

quired to devote to the duties of their offices is fixed by Section 154-20, General Code, which reads in part, as follows:

“All employes in the several departments shall render not less than eight hours of labor each day, Saturday afternoons, Sundays and days declared by law to be holidays excepted in cases in which, in the judgment of the director, the public service will not thereby be impaired.

The above statute, it will be observed, requires the employes spoken of to render eight hours service per day.

If, with the consent of the head of the department, an employe's time is arranged so that he can render eight hours service in the Department of Education and at the same time teach at the university, I am of the opinion that the law is not violated, and that he is entitled to pay for services rendered in both positions.

In am therefore of the opinion, in specific answer to your question, that the director of education, the assistant director of education and the chiefs of divisions within the Department of Education are not permitted by law to be employed as teacher at the Ohio State University or any college, or hold any other office or position of employment while serving as such director, assistant or chief of a division within the Department of Education. All other employes within said Department of Education may legally be employed as teacher at the Ohio State University or any other college, providing their schedule be so arranged, with the approval of the head of the Department of Education, that they render at least eight hours service as an employe of the Department of Education.

Respectfully,

GILBERT BETTMAN,

Attorney General.
