I find upon enquiry at the office of the auditor of state that the available appropriations under the two acts referred to are on deposit in the state treasury to the credit of the Adams-Hatch fund, and that an appropriation for the purposes designated has been made as shown on page 677, 106 Ohio Laws, as follows:

> "All monies appropriated by the United States government which are now in the Adams-Hatch fund, or which may be credited to such fund prior to July 1, 1917."

It will be noted that the only monies specifically appropriated are those which may be credited to the fund from appropriations made by the United States government, no reference being made to funds which may accrue from the sale of products arising from the use of such funds in the experiments conducted under the provisions of the Adams-Hatch laws, nor for funds received from the sale of any stock purchased with such funds.

Section 24 of the General Code, as amended 104 Ohio Laws 178, is as follows:

> 'On or before Monday of each week every state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid shall pay to the treasurer of state all moneys, checks and drafts received from the state, or for the use of any such state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid, during the preceding week, from taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, fees, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals, or otherwise, and file with the auditor of state a detailed, verified statement of such receipts. Where fees and tuitions are paid to the officer or officers of any college, normal school or university receiving state aid, said officer or officers shall retain a sufficient amount of said tuition fund and fees to enable said officer or officers to make refunds of tuition and fees incident to conducting of said tuition fund and fees. At the end of each term of any college, normal school or university receiving state aid, the officer or officers having in charge said tuition fund and fees shall make and file with the auditor of state an itemized statement of all tuitions and fees received and disposition of the same."

It will be observed that the terms of the statute are emphatic as to the payment into the state treasury of all moneys, checks and drafts "received for the state," or for the "use of any such state officer or state institution," no exception being made with reference to the particular funds in question.

Your precise question is:

"Is it proper for the state to require funds appropriated by the general government for a specific purpose and accepted by the state for that purpose to be converted into the general revenues of the state, subject to reappropriation by the state legislature?"

For a proper consideration of the matter the question should be considered from two angles: 1. Should the fund appropriated by the general government for a specific purpose be converted into the state treasury? and, 2. To what fund in the state treasury should the fund so appropriated by the general government be credited?

Section 270 of the General Code provides, in part, as follows:

"All moneys paid into the state treasury, the disposition of which is not otherwise provided by law, shall be credited by the auditor of state to the general revenue fund. * * *"

By the provisions of the federal legislation appropriating the Adams-Hatch fund for the use of state officers in carrying on the experiments for which it was designed, it may be said that the disposition of the money appropriated thereby was provided by law as comprehended by section 270 of the General Code, supra. The acceptance of the Adams-Hatch fund appropriation by the state imposed an obligation on the state to use the fund for the purpose designated, and accordingly the Adams-Hatch law funds paid into the treasury constitute in the treasury a separate and distinct fund, no part of which is subject to appropriation for general purposes as are the general revenues of the state.

This interpretation has been recognized by the general assembly in its appropriation to the agricultural commission of

"all moneys appropriated by the United States government which are now in the Adams-Hatch fund, or which may be credited to such fund prior to July 1, 1917."

Your statement is to the effect that unless the fund may be re-invested through the necessary changes in your cows it will be impossible to conduct the investigations for which the fund was originally created.

That it was the purpose of the general assembly to confine the fund to the specific purpose is manifest, and it is my opinion that the business necessities of its operation demand and justify its being kept intact as far as possible by crediting to the Adams-Hatch fund set up in the auditor's office all moneys received from the sale of cows or milk used in the experiments referred to on the ground that such receipts are a part of the funds appropriated by the general government. This would make the necessary funds available for your purposes and would not hamper the experiments. I would suggest in the future, however, that to care for this and kindred matters a rotary fund be established.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CANAL LANDS—LEASE OF SAME TO CITY OF CINCINNATI—ACTS OF 1911, 1913 AND 1916 CONSIDERED—ACT OF 1913 WITHOUT EFFECT SINCE NO LEASE WAS EXECUTED UNDER IT—HOW NEW LEASE SHOULD BE EXECUTED.

The execution of the new lease provided for by amended senate bill No. 255, 106 O. L. 293, is governed by the first five sections of senate bill No. 259, 102 O. L. 168, and by said amended senate bill No. 255, and in the execution of said lease no reference is to be had to house bill No. 562, 103 O. L. 720.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 22, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of May 29, 1916, relating to the leasing of a part of the Miami and Erie canal to the city of Cincinnati, which communication reads as follows:

> "We are about to prepare the lease required to be executed and delivered by the governor under the act of May 17, 1915 (106 O. L. 293), and certain doubts have arisen as to the provisions to be placed in such lease and the uses to which the grant is limited.
> "1. The original act covers the canal from a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue to the east side of Broadway in the city of Cincinnati.
> "The act of 1913 (103 O. L. 720) apparently covers an additional part of the canal extending to St. Bernard.
> "This act of 1913 required the execution of a new lease which has not apparently been executed.
> "The act of 1911 limited the use to certain purposes other than railways.
> "The act of 1913 extended the use to railways.
> "The question arises from the terms of these two acts of 1911 and 1913, whether the latter did not confine its purposes to the extended portion of the canal.
> "We find, for instance, that section 1 of the 1911 act is not repealed nor amended, but that the section 1 of the act of 1913 provides for the grant of additional parts of the canal, the words employed being 'In addition to the lease or parts of the Miami and Erie canal heretofore made to the city of Cincinnati,' etc.
> "Then, section 5 of the act of 1911 was not amended nor referred to, in its stead a similar provision, known as section 4 in the act of 1913, was made covering the same ground, and especially speaking of approval of valuation 'on said portion of such canal.'

"Also the method of ascertaining the rents for the new portion i. e. 'for said part of such canal' is determined by reference to the appropriate sections of the act of 1911.

"On the other hand we find that in section 4 of the 1913 act, in the provision for the construction of works for supplying water to lessees of the state, the provision is limited to 'that portion of the canal to be abandoned under the act of May 15, 1911,' tending to show an intent on the part of legislature to have the entire section 4 of that act apply to the whole portion to be abandoned except that particular provision. Also in section 4 of the 1913 act we find the gauge of the anticipated Lake-Ohio river canal changed from 9 to 5 feet for the entire distance.

"Query: In executing the new lease provided for in section 6 of the 1915 act, shall we be governed by the 1913 act as well as by the act of 1911 in the following respects:

"(A) In extending the uses to railways.

"In this connection we call attention to the fact that, if the act of 1913 is not applicable, then we have this peculiar situation:

"The act of 1911 limits the use to streets, etc. Railways are not specified as a use enjoyed from the grant.

"Section 5 as amended in 1915 (106 O. L. 293) says that 'Nothing herein shall be held or interpreted to prevent the construction or operation by said city of Cincinnati, or its grantees, of a subway X X X for the use of streets, electric, suburban or interurban railways or terminals,' and forbids the use for railways of a certain portion of the property within the city of Cincinnati.

"The question is, first, whether the provision of the amended section 5 to the extent that it refers to railways, is not confined to that part granted by the act of 1913. Second, if it does apply to the whole quantity granted, then, is the lease to provide in the granting clause that the uses shall be as defined in section 1 of the act of 1911, with the condition in the Habendum clause that 'nothing herein shall be held or interpreted to prevent the construction,' etc., following the language of section 5 above referred to.

"2. In the act of 1911 provision was made in section 5 for the contingency of the state constructing a Lake Erie-Ohio river canal. It provided for a nine foot gauge.

"This section was amended in the act of 1915, the possibility of such a new canal being constructed being overlooked entirely.

"In the 1913 act, section 4, we find a provision taking care of this contingency, in the same words as employed in the act of 1911, section 5 except that the gauge is changed to five feet. This section 4 of the act of 1913 is unrepealed.

"Query: Does section 4 of the act of 1913 apply to the entire property granted?

"For your better information we send herewith a 'parallel analysis' of the three acts in question."

Upon receipt of your request I forwarded a copy of the same to Hon. Charles A. Groom, city solicitor of Cincinnati, with the request that he submit his views upon the matters involved, and I am in receipt of the following communication from him bearing upon the questions submitted by you:

"I am in receipt of your favor of June 7th, enclosing copy of letter from Hon. A. V. Donahey, auditor of state, requesting an opinion on certain matters connected with the lease by the state to the city of Cincinnati of a portion of the Miami and Erie canal.

"With regard to Mr. Donahey's first doubts, that is, what consideration should be given to the act of 1913 (103 Ohio Laws 720), there can at present be no dispute on account of the fact that the city of Cincinnati has not taken advantage of the act of 1913 in so far as the same applies to the acquisition of that portion of the Miami and Erie canal lying between a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue and a point 1,000 feet beyond the crossing of the canal by the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio S-W. R. R. in the city of St. Bernard.

"Section 5 of the act of 1913 amended section 6 of the act of 1911, and section 6 of the act of 1913 gave the governor of state authority to amend the lease of the city of Cincinnati between Broadway and a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue, so as to conform with section 6 of the act of May 8, 1911, as amended in the 1913 act. Whatever results might have been occasioned by the act of 1913, through construction of section 5 and section 6 thereof, cannot now be material, since the act of May 17, 1915 (106 Ohio Laws 293) amends sections 5 and 6 of the act of April 18, 1913, and specifically repeals the said sections 5 and 6 of the act of 1913.

"If Mr. Donahey has in mind the fact that section 6 of the act of May 15, 1911, was not repealed by the act of April 18, 1913, he is in error, since section 7 of the act of April 18, 1913, expressly repeals all laws and parts of laws inconsistent therewith, furthermore, the act of May 17, 1915, repealing sections 5 and 6 of the act of April 18, 1913, eliminates all questions of conflict between the act of May 17, 1915, and possibly unrepealed sections of the act of 1911 by the final provisions of section 2 of the act of May 17, 1915, specifying that all laws and parts of laws inconsistent therewith are repealed.

"With regard to the matter of the gauge of the canal from Lake Erie to the Ohio river, being 9 feet in the act of 1911 from 5 feet in the act of 1913, there can at present be no controversy, since the city of Cincinnati has never requested the lease of the property north of a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue. Section 4 of the act of 1913 is specific in providing for a valuation and lease of property north of the point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue, and further specifies that in case the state shall build such canal of no less than 5 feet gauge the city of Cincinnati shall reimburse the state for the amount of its expenditure in procuring a right of way either by purchase or condemnation, or both, for said canal from a point in the city of St. Bernard 1,000 feet beyond the crossing of the canal by the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio S-W. R. R. to a point at said canal 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue. Section 5 of the act of 1911 refers to the 9-foot gauge canal, and obligates the city to provide for the expense of purchase or condemnation for such canal from a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue through Millcreek valley to the Ohio river. This section was not amended or repealed by the act of April 18, 1913, and as the act of April 18, 1913, made specific provision for the expense of purchase or condemnation by the state of a right of way for a 5-foot gauge canal between the point in St. Bernard and the point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue, there can be no conflict between the two unless the city should ask for a lease of the canal property north of that now held and for which it now asks the amended lease.

"So far as material to the present lease, there should be considered only sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the act of May 15, 1911, and sections 5 and 6 of the act of May 17, 1915, which take the place of sections 5 and 6 of the act of April 18, 1913, which said last act was enacted to take the place of section 6 of the act of May 15, 1911. In extending the use to railways, therefore, the acts of 1911 and 1915 alone should be considered.

"I fail to see any basis for a claim that the amendment of section 5 and 6 of the act of April 18, 1913, by the act of May 7, 1915, limits the application of the provisions of the 1915 amendment to that portion of the canal authorized to be leased, in addition to that already leased, mentioned in the 1913 act, since the language of section 5 of the act of 1913 is quite specific to the end that it is an amendment merely of section 6 of the act of May 15, 1911. The point in Mr. Donahey's mind would lead to the opposite construction, that is, that section 5 of the act of 1913 applies only to that portion of the canal authorized to be leased by the act of 1911.

"I think the confusion has arisen from a misinterpretation of the boundaries of the canal property which the city desires. The property now described is exactly the same as that authorized to be leased in 1911. The provisions of the act of 1913 with regard to the leasing of additional property have not so far been exercised.

"At the bottom of page 3 of the copy sent me it is stated that in the act of 1911 provision was made in section 5 for the contingency of the state constructing a Lake Erie-Ohio river canal, and providing for a 9-foot gauge; and on page 4 of the copy sent me it is stated that this section was amended in the act of 1915, and the possibility of such new canal being constructed was entirely overlooked.

"This is error. The act of 1915 amends sections 5 and 6 of the act of 1913, and section 5 of the act of 1913 amended section 6 of the act of 1911, so that section 5 of the act of 1911 has never been either amended or repealed, and still provides for the possibility of a 9-foot gauge canal, and you will find in the draft form of lease submitted a reference to the 9-foot gauge canal possibly to be constructed.

"On page 4 of the copy of the letter sent me it is stated that in the act of 1913, section 4, is found a provision taking care of the contingency of the possible construction by the state of a Lake Erie to Ohio river canal, with the statement that the provision in the 1913 act is in the same words as employed in the 1911 act, section 5, except that the gauge is changed to 5 feet; and the further statement that section 4 of the act of 1913 is unrepealed. In this connection you will observe that section 4 of the act of 1913 relates to, and takes care only of the space north of the point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue, and is not in the same words as employed in section 5 of the act of 1911. As stated before, there is undoubtedly a provision for the payment by the city of the expenses of a right of way for a 9-foot gauge canal from a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue south to the Ohio river in connection with the property authorized to be leased by the act of 1911, and a provision for the payment by the city of acquiring a right of way for a 5-foot gauge canal between the point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue and the point 1,000 feet beyond the crossing of the railroad tracks in St. Bernard in connection with the additional property authorized to be leased by the act of 1913. The conflict anticipated by Mr. Donahey, however, cannot arise unless the city of Cincinnati at some future time would desire to lease the additional property authorized to be leased by the act of 1913. If the city should ever demand such lease the circumstance undoubtedly would arise, and the city would be obligated to provide for the expense of condemnation or other acquisition of property for a 5-foot gauge canal from St. Bernard to a point 100 feet north of Mitchell avenue, and for a 9-foot gauge canal from a point 100 feet north of Mitchell avenue to the Ohio river, since section 4 of the act of 1913 and section 5 of the act of 1911 are both in force.

"Section 4 of the act of 1913, as stated before, on its face discloses that it applies merely to the construction of a Lake Erie to Ohio river canal between the specifically described points set forth in the last sentence of the said section and, consequently, the same cannot apply to property authorized to be leased by an entirely separate and distinct act.

"If I have not made myself entirely clear in the foregoing I think the following table will eliminate all question of doubt:

"Act of 1911, 102 Laws 168—

"Subject—Lease of canal, Broadway to Mitchell avenue.

"Section 1—Not amended.

"Section 2—Not amended.

"Section 3—Not amended.

"Section 4—Not amended.

"Section 5—Not amended.

"Section 6—Repealed by section 7 of act of 1913 (103 Laws 720) and amended in section numbered 5 of act of 1913.

"Act of 1913, 103 Laws 720—

"Subject—Lease of canal Mitchell avenue to point in St. Bernard.

"Section 1—Not amended.

"Section 2—Not amended.

"Section 3—Not amended.

"Section 4—Not amended.

"Section 5—Subject—Amendment of section 6 of act of 1911 relating to lease of canal Broadway to Mitchell avenue.

"Section 6—Subject,—Provision for new or amended lease of property from Broadway to Mitchell avenue to conform with section 6 of act of 1911 as herein amended, and for outlet or spillway at St. Bernard.

"Section 7—Repeal of all laws and parts of laws inconsistent.

"Act of 1915, 106 Laws 293—

"Subject—Amendment of section 5 and 6 of act of 1913.

"Section 1—Amendment of sections 5 and 6 of act of 1913.

"Section 2—Repeal of sections 5 and 6 of act of 1913.

"IN FORCE—

"Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 of act of 1911, and sections 5 and 6 in act of 1915, the latter section 5 being an amendment of section 6 of the act of 1911, and sections 6 being new matter.

"Sections 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the act of 1913.

"Sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the act of 1911 relate to the canal from Broadway to Mitchell avenue.

"Sections 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the act of 1913 relate to the canal from Mitchell avenue to St. Bernard.

"Section 5 and 6 in the act of 1915 relate to the use to be made of the canal and the execution of a new lease covering either the canal from Broadway to Mitchell avenue or from Broadway to St. Bernard if the additional part of the canal from Mitchell avenue to St. Bernard is acquired as authorized by sections 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the act of 1913.

"Whatever conflicts or inconsistencies there may be in sections 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the act of April 18, 1913, are not material, since the same do not apply to the property described in the amended leases now requested.

"Using the old rule of construction that an amended section is placed in the body of the entire act and the whole interpreted in the light of the new conditions, we have the situation that permission is given to the city to lease, enter upon, improve and occupy as a public street or boulevard and for sewage conduit, and if desired for subway purposes, the Miami and Erie canal between the east side of Broadway and a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue; but nothing herein shall be held or interpreted to prevent the construction or operation by the city of Cincinnati, or its grantee, of a subway beneath the street or boulevard, etc., or the construction of ventilation openings or the operation of interurban railways on the surface or in open cut or ditch from Brighton bridge to the point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue.

"I will be very glad to come to Columbus at any time convenient to you and take up the matter in detail.

"Thanking you for your attention to this matter in the past, and trusting that you will call on me if anything further is desired, * * *."

A brief reference to the history of the legislation relating to the leasing of a portion of the Miami and Erie canal to the city of Cincinnati is essential in a consideration of the questions submitted by you.

The original act found in 102 O. L. 168, was passed May 15, 1911, and consisted of eight sections. An act supplementing and amending the act of 1911 was passed April 18, 1913, and is found in 103 O. L. 720. The first four sections of this act related to the proposed leasing of a further part of the Miami and Erie canal to the city of Cincinnati. I am informed that no action has ever been taken under these four sections, and that no action under the same is at the present time desired or contemplated by the city of Cincinnati, and that the city now desires only an amended lease covering that part of the canal referred to in the origianl act of 1911. Section 5 of the act of 1913 amended section 6 of the act of 1911. Section 6 of the act of 1913 provided for an amended lease, and it is my understanding that the authority conferred by this section has never been exercised. Section 7 of the act of 1913 provided for the repeal of all laws and parts of laws inconsistent with that act. Inasmuch as the first four section of the act of 1913 related to the leasing of an additional portion of the canal, and inasmuch as the city of Cincinnati does not now desire to lease this additional portion of the canal these four sections need not be considered in connection with your present inquiry. Inasmuch as section 6 of the original act of 1911 was amended by the act of 1913, said section 6 of the original act is also removed from consideration. Sections 5 and 6 of the act of 1913 were amended by an act found in 106 O. L. 293, which act was passed May 17, 1915. Inasmuch as all that part of the act of 1913, which has not been amended, relates to the leasing of an additional portion of the canal, and inasmuch as no lease of any additional portion of the canal is now desired, your questions may be answered without any reference to the act of 1913, which act has no bearing upon the questions now submitted. These questions are to be determined by a reference to the first five sections of the act of 1911, and the act of 1915.

I, therefore, advise you that in executing the new lease provided for in the act of 1915, you are to be governed by the first five sections of the act of 1911 and by said act of 1915, and that no reference is to be had by you to the act of 1913.

I have no doubt that by the adoption of the act of 1915 the legislature intended that the city under its new lease should be entitled to construct railways or terminals on the surface or in an open cut or ditch rather than in a subway over a part of the leased premises. It is unnecessary at this time, however, to place a construction upon the language used in the act of 1915 in amending section 5 of the act of 1913. In the preparation of the lease, in so far as the extension of the uses of the leased property so as to include railways is concerned, full expression may be given to the intention of the legislature, and the rights of all parties may be conserved by providing for the granting of permission to the city of Cincinnati to enter upon, improve and occupy forever, as a public street or boulevard and for sewerage, conduit, and if desired for subway purposes, all of that part of the Miami and Erie canal which extends from a point 300 feet north of Mitchell avenue to the east side of Broadway in said city, including the full width thereof, as owned or held by the state, such permission to be subject to the outstanding rights or claims, if any, existing at the time of the passage of the act of 1911 with which it might conflict, following substantially in this grant the language of section 1 of the act of 1911, and adding thereto language embodying the provisions of section 6 of the act of 1911, as last amended in 106 O. L. 293. This addition may be made substantially in the language in said section 6, as amended, and the lease will then have been executed in accordance with the terms of the statute, and if there be in the future any controversy as to the meaning of the language employed in the lease, which language is the language of the statute, the matter will have to be determined by a judicial construction of said section 6 of the act of 1911, as last amended by the act of 1915. Answering specifically your question as to the proper terms of the lease, in so far as extending the uses to railways is concerned, I advise you that the provisions of section 6 of the act of 1911, as last amended by the act of 1915, are not confined to the additional portion of the canal which might have been leased under the act of 1913, but that on the other hand these provisions are applicable in the preparation of an amended lease covering that portion of the canal originally leased under the act of 1911, and which amended lease you are now called upon to prepare. The granting clause of the lease should set forth the uses in the language of section 1 of the act of 1911, and immediately following this clause or incorporated therein there should be set forth substantially in the language of the statute the several provisions of section 6 of the act of 1911, as last amended by the act of 1915.

In stating your second question you correctly observe that in the act of 1911 provision was made in section 5 for the contingency of the state constructing a canal of not less than a 9-foot gauge from Lake Erie to the Ohio river at Cincinnati.

Your next observation that section 5 of the act of 1911 was amended by the act of 1915 is incorrect. Section 6 of the act of 1911 was amended by the act of 1913, and later amended by the act of 1915, but no other part of the act of 1911 has been amended. The section 5 amended by the act of 1915 was section 5 of the act of 1913. Section 5 of the act of 1911 is still in full force and effect, and applies to all that portion of the canal which the city of Cincinnati is now desirous of leasing, and section 4 of the act of 1913 has no application whatever to such portion of the canal.

In drawing the amended lease referred to by you, provision for reimbursement of the state by the city to the amount of the state's expenditure in providing a right of way for a canal should therefore be made in the lease in strict accordance with the provisions of section 5 of the original act of 1911.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

CIVIL SERVICE—FIVE-THIRDS RULE—WHEN LIST OF COMPETITIVE ELIGIBLES IS REQUESTED FOR MORE THAN ONE POSITION ONE PERSON MAY BE CERTIFIED TO APPOINTING AUTHORITY FOR EACH POSITION TO BE FILLED AND TWO ADDITIONAL NAMES ADDED TO LIST.

When a list of competitive eligibles is requested for more than one position one person may be certified to the appointing authority for each position to be filled and two additional names added to the list. This is commonly known as the five-thirds rule. When this is done, however, beginning at the top of such list each person who is not appointed must be considered the number of times required by law in his case in a group of three composed of himself and two persons next highest on the list. If in addition to such competitive eligible list persons are certified under the provisions of section 486-31 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 418, and one or more of such persons so certified are appointed, such appointment or appointments will prevent any consideration of the lowest name on such competitive eligible list because of the requirements above stated.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 24, 1916.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of June 23, 1916, submitting the following statement and inquiry:

"The Industrial Commission of Ohio respectfully requests of you an opinion as to the legality of its action in appointing Wilbur C. Doerr, of Cincinnati, Ohio, regularly to the position of branch office deputy at Toledo, Ohio, on the following statement of facts:

"The names certified by the state civil service commission for the positions of branch office deputy on certification No. 1671, are as follows:

"Charles V. Lavan, Cleveland; Walter J. Boesel, Columbus; Ralph E. Maxwell, Columbus; Clyde H. Kearns, Columbus; Wilbur C. Doerr, Cincinnati; F. M. Secrest, Cleveland (non-com.); H. G. Wagner, Toledo (non-comp.); Arnold S. Althoff, Dayton (non-com.).

"The above certification of eligibles and non-competitives was made in response to a request made by the Industrial Commission for certification of names from which to make appointments to this position in Cleveland, Toledo and Dayton.

"F. M. Secrest, Cleveland, Ohio, was appointed to the position of branch office deputy, Cleveland office, on September 18, 1915, approved by Governor Willis on September 28, 1915.

"H. G. Wagner, Toledo, Ohio, was appointed to the position of branch office deputy, Toledo office, on September 18, 1915, disapproved by Governor Willis on September 20, 1915. Mr. Wagner was again appointed to this position on February 24, 1916, and was disapproved by the governor on February 25, 1916.

"Arnold S. Althoff, Dayton, Ohio, was appointed to the position of branch office deputy, Dayton office, on September 18, 1915, approved by Governor Willis on September 28, 1915.

"Charles V. Lavan, Cleveland, Ohio, was appointed to the position of branch office deputy, Toledo office, on September 25, 1915, disapproved by Governor Willis on September 28, 1915.

"Wilbur C. Doerr, Cincinnati, Ohio, was appointed to the position of branch office deputy, Toledo office, on May 5, 1916, approved by the governor on May 8, 1916.

"Reports of appointments showing approval and disapproval of the same have been furnished the state civil service commission. That commission refuses to approve the appointment of Wilbur C. Doerr as branch office deputy at Toledo, Ohio as made by this commission on May 5, 1916, on the ground that he was not entitled to consideration for appointment to such position."

It appears from your foregoing statement that a requisition was made for an eligible list from which appointments were to be made to three positions. In response to this request the state civil service commission certified five names from a competitive eligible list and also the names of three persons who were entitled to such certification under certain provisions of section 486-31 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 418, which provisions are as follows:

"The name of each officer, employe and subordinate holding a position in the classified service of the state, the counties, cities and city school districts thereof at the time this act takes effect, who has not passed a regular competitive examination and who has not been in the service seven years as herein provided, shall, within ten days after this act becomes effective, be reported by the appointing authority to the commission, and shall be certified to the appointing authority in addition to the three candidates for appointment to such position. If any such person is reappointed, he shall be deemed to have been appointed under the provisions of this act. If no eligible list exists such person may be retained as a provisional employe until such time, consistent with reasonable diligence, as the commission can prepare eligible lists when such position shall be filled as prescribed in this act."

Attention is directed particularly to the requirement in the provisions above quoted that such certification shall be in addition to the three competitive candidates for each position. It is a rule of the state civil service commission, being subdivision b of rule VI, and also of the commissions of other states, notably New York, that when a list of eligibles is requested for more than one position, one person will be certified for each position to be filled and two additional names added to the list. This rule is known as the five-thirds rule and in its operation, when followed, it will always give three names from which to fill the last position in the list. In the case under consideration it appears that the civil service commission followed this rule, certifying on the eligible list five persons for the three positions to be filled and adding the names of three persons as hereinbefore stated. This method of certifying an eligible list when more than one appointment is to be made seems never to have been questioned, and I know of no reason why it does not meet the full requirements of the law when other regulations of the commission in reference thereto are observed. Such regulations will be referred to later in this opinion.

The plan upon which this rule is based, however, does not contemplate the certification of any additional names as provided in said sections 486-31 G. C. supra, and in the present case the certification of said three additional names and the appointment of two thereof completely disarranged the ordinary operation of the rule. It is provided in said subdivision b of rule VI of the State Civil Service Commission, that whenever certifications are made by groups the appointments may be made by appointing those standing highest on the list, "but in case this is not done, then beginning at the top of the list everyone who is not appointed must be considered three times in a group of three, and every time a group of three is considered one of such group must be appointed." It was required, therefore, that when the appointment to the Cleveland position was made the industrial commission, under the foregoing regulations, could only consider in connection therewith the names of the first three persons on the eligible list and the name of the person certified under said section 486-31 G. C. supra, for appointment to such position. It appears that the person so certified under said section, and commonly known as a non-competitive, was appointed to fill the position, so that when the commission came to consider candidates for the second position it was again required to consider only the first three names on the eligible list in connection with the person certified under said section 486-31 G. C. supra, and again it occurred that said last named person was appointed to the position so that when the commission came to consider the last position to be filled, which is the position in controversy, it was again required, under the regulations aforesaid, to consider only the first three names on the eligible list and the name of the person certified under said section 486-31 G. C. supra. It appears, however, from your statement that the person whose name appears fifth on the eligible list was finally selected for this position. From what has been stated it is apparent that under the rules of the commission, which are in accordance with the requirements of the law, said person was not eligible for consideration for this position. Had there been no certification of persons under section 486-31 G. C. supra, and appointments thereof, then when the last position came to be filled the name of the person whose appointment is now challenged would have appeared on the list for that position but, as before stated, the appointments from certifications under said section 486-31 G. C. supra, disarranged the whole plan.

In view of the considerations above stated I am of the opinion that the commission is justified in refusing to approve Mr. Doerr's appointment.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS AND INSPECTORS OF ELECTIONS—SECTION 12911 G. C. IS VIOLATED WHEN MEMBER OF SUCH BOARD SELLS FIRE INSURANCE TO POLITICAL SUBDIVISION WITH WHICH HE IS NOT CONNECTED WHERE PREMIUM MORE THAN $50.00.

Section 12911 G. C. is violated when a member of the Board of Deputy State Supervisors and Inspectors of Elections sells fire insurance to a political subdivision with which he is not connected where the premium amounts to more than fifty dollars.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 25, 1916.

HON. JOHN C. D'ALTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Toledo, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of July 12, 1916, submitting the following statement and inquiry is received:

> "A member of the Deputy Board of State Supervisors and Inspectors of Election of this county is also a member of a firm which has the agency for an insurance and bonding company, which agency desires to write insurance on county and city property, and to furnish bonds for county, city and state officials.

"Is there any criminal liability on the part of such member of board of election in acting as a member of a firm which is the agent for such insurance or bonding company? In particular, can such bonding agency write bonds for depositaries of public moneys?

"Your opinion upon this subject would be appreciated."

Section 12911 G. C. provides as follows:

"Whoever, holding an office of trust or profit, by election or appointment, or as agent, servant or employe of such officer or of a board of such officers, is interested in a contract for the purchase of property, supplies or fire insurance for the use of the county, township, city, village, board of education or a public institution with which he is not connected, and the amount of such contract exceeds the sum of fifty dollars, unless such contract is let on bids duly advertised as provided by law, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than ten years."

A member of the Board of Deputy State Supervisors and Inspectors of Elections holds an office by appointment of both trust and profit. He is, however, a state officer and is not therefore "connected with" any other political subdivision in the sense the same is used in sections 12910 and 12911 G. C.

A member of a firm is necessarily "interested in" any business transacted by the firm.

It follows, therefore, that if such firm makes any contract for furnishing fire insurance, the premium of which amounts to more than fifty dollars, the member of said firm who is also a member of the Board of Deputy State Supervisors and Inspectors of Elections would become liable to prosecution and conviction under said section 12911 G. C., unless such contract is let on bids duly advertised as provided by law. I might add that I know of no provision in law for advertising and receiving bids for fire insurance.

I know of no law forbidding a public officer from being interested in the furnishing of bonds to other public officers or for depositaries of public moneys. The furnishing of such bonds is the result of private contract between the individuals and with which the public subdivision has nothing to do except possibly in those few instances where the public subdivision pays the premium on the bond. As will be noted bonds are not included in the subjects prohibited in either section 12910 or 12911 G. C., those statutes being confined to the furnishing of property, supplies and fire insurance.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—INDOOR CHEMICAL CLOSETS MAY NOT BE INSTALLED IN SCHOOL HOUSES.

Indoor chemical closets may not be installed in school houses in view of the provisions of section 12600-65 of the General Code.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 25, 1916.

State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

"At a recent meeting of the State Board of Health, there appeared before the board a representative of a sales company selling indoor chemical closets. I was instructed to refer the matter to you for your opinion and advice.

"Attached hereto, you will find a monograph, giving information in regard to the construction, installation and operation of the Kaustine chemical closet, which is typical of sanitary equipment of this type.

"Please inform me if this or any similar device can be legally installed inside a school building in this state."

In addition to your letter and the monograph, memoranda submitted by Mr. Emerson L. Taylor has been considered in connection with the matter.

It is contended in the memoranda that the Kaustine sanitary equipment has much merit, and that from a standpoint of economy it is highly desirable that it should be accepted by your board as being allowable under the provisions of the building code.

This matter has been dealt with by your board on several occasions in the past, and was made the subject of a special investigation by a committee consisting of W. H. Dittoe, chief engineer, and Wm. C. Groeniger, plumbing inspector, with the result that a number of recommendations were made concerning the use of chemical closets.

Conceding that the Kaustine system may have all the merit claimed for it from the standpoint of efficiency and economy it does not appear that those matters have any material bearing on the question of its availibility under the laws as they exist.

Your attention is invited to section 12600-65 G. C., a part of the state building code which contains a provision as follows:

"Where water supply and sewerage systems are not available no sanitary equipment shall be installed within the building, but pumps in lieu of drinking fountains, closets and urinals in the above proportions shall be placed upon the school building grounds, and no closets or urinals shall be placed nearer any occupied building than fifty (50) feet."

It is contended by counsel that the Kaustine system is a private sewage disposal system, and as such is not comprehended within the prohibitions contained in the section just quoted, and the further argument is offered that the system should not be brought within the terms of the statute for the reason that it was not originated until several years after the building code had been in force.

Whatever may be claimed for the Kaustine system it must certainly be regarded as a sanitary equipment for the uses and purposes for which it has been originated, and it is my opinion that the sweeping provisions of section 12600-65 G. C. supra, clearly prohibit the installation of this or any similar device inside a school building in this state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—WHAT IS A "REPAIR" OF A HIGHWAY—OPINION REAFFIRMED IN WHICH IT WAS HELD STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER IS NOT AUTHORIZED TO PAY CONTRACTOR AN ESTIMATE BASED UPON MATERIAL DELIVERED ON SITE.

In order to constitute a "repair" of a highway it is first essential that there must have been an improvement of the highway and that this improvement must have fallen into decay, either slight or extensive. Some substantial part of the original improvement must remain, and the proposed operation, to be a repair, must contemplate the use of that part of the old improvement still remaining, and must further contemplate a completed work that will be substantially like the original.

The state highway commissioner is not authorized to pay a contractor an estimate based upon material delivered on the site of an improvement and not yet incorporated in the work.

The conclusions expressed in opinion No. 485, rendered June 10, 1915, and opinion No. 1211, rendered January 28, 1916, are reaffirmed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 25, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—This department is in receipt of a communication from The Ohio Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, under date of May 3, 1916, in which communication there is requested a reconsideration of certain questions passed upon by me in opinion No. 485, rendered to you on June 10, 1915, and opinion No. 1211, rendered to you on January 28, 1916.

In opinion No. 485 I was called upon to define the meaning of the word "repair" as used in the sections of the General Code governing the activities of your department. The following is quoted from the opinion in question:

> "The verb 'repair' is defined in the Standard dictionary as follows: '(1) to mend, add to or make over;' '(2) to restore to a sound or good state.' The noun 'repair' is defined in the same work as follows: 'restoration after decay, waste, injury or partial destruction.' In order to constitute a repair it would seem in the light of the above definitions that there must first have been a work of some kind, and this work must have fallen into a state of decay. The extent of the decay does not seem to be material, so long as some substantial part of the original work remains. When the above situation exists, a repair would consist in restoring the work in question to its originally sound and good state, utilizing a substantial part of the original work and so conducting operations that when they are completed the new work will be substantially like the old. Applying these general principles to the word 'repair' as used in connection with a highway, it is first essential that there must have been an improvement and that this improvement must have fallen into decay, either slight or extensive. Some substantial part of the original improvement must remain, and in order to constitute a repair the proposed operation must contemplate the use of that part of the old improvement still remaining and must further contemplate a completed work that will be substantially like the original. It will not, however, rob a contemplated operation of its character as a repair merely because it is proposed to so conduct the operation that the highway when repaired will possess certain improvements as compared with the original work. In the specific instance referred to by you, it is my opinion that the facts that some slight alterations are to be made in the grade of some parts of the road, that the margins are to be straightened up and that the roadway is to be widened in places will not change the character of the proposed operation as a repair. The present cuts and fills will be utilized, substantially the present grade will be followed and the old macadam not worn away will be used as a base. The road was originally constructed as a macadam road, a very substantial part of the old construction still remains and is to be utilized in the new work, and when the new work is completed the result will be a road of substantially the same general type as the original improvement; and I am of the opinion that you may properly regard this contemplated improvement as a repair and pay for it accordingly. I would have no hesitation in saying, however, that if it were planned to change the general type of the road, as, for instance, by paving with brick a road originally surfaced with macadam, then the proposed operation could not properly be regarded as a repair."

As I understand the communication of the Ohio Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, that association objects particularly to the conclusion that the operation of paving with brick a road originally surfaced with macadam, could not properly be regarded as a repair. I have not been cited, however, to any authorities in support of an opposite conclusion and a careful re-examination of the authoities bearing on this question has only served to strengthen and confirm my conclusions as originally expressed.

A general definition of the word "repair" was attempted by the court in the case of Ardesco Oil Co. v. Richardson, 63 Penn. State, 162, 166, the court using the following language:

> "Repair means to restore to its former condition, not to change either the form or the material. If you are to repair a wooden building, you are not to make it brick, stone or iron, but you are to repair wood with wood."

In the case of Farraher v. City of Keokuk, 111 Iowa, 310, the court was called upon to consider the validity of an assessment for an alleged repair of a sidewalk. Under the Iowa statute cities were authorized to provide for the construction, reconstruction and repair of permanent sidewalks and to assess the cost thereof on abutting lots, and it was provided that such improvements should be made only on petition of a majority of the frontage. Cities were also authorized to repair sidewalks without notice to owners and assess the expense thereof against the property. The city engineer of Keokuk caused a brick walk, which had been out of repair, to be taken up, a new trench dug and an entirely new foundation of sand laid thereon, and a large number of new brick to be used along with some of the old brick in relaying the walk. This was held to constitute a reconstruction and not a repair of the walk such as the city was authorized to make without a petition, and the assessment was therefore held to be invalid. A careful reading of the opinion indicates that the decision of the court was based on the fact that no substantial part of the old work was utilized in the construction of the new.

In the case of Board of Commissioners v. Mankey, 29 Ind. App., 55, the court cited with approval Webster's definition of the word "repair," which is to "restore to a sound or good state after decay, injury, dilapidation or partial destruction," and held that authority to repair a graveled road did not carry with it authority to make substantial changes in the established grade.

The following is quoted from the opinion of the court in the case of Weaver v. Templin, Trustee, 113 Ind., 298, 303:

> "We are unable to resist the conclusion that the trustee, under color of making repairs and removing obstructions, has changed and improved the ditch in several essential particulars. The ditch has been greatly widened and deepened, and, doubtless, much improved, since the amount expended is almost twice the cost of the original ditch. The inference from the facts stated is that the trustee has improved the ditch instead of repairing it. Under authority to repair there can be no enlargement and improvement, except in so far as the work of repairing necessarily enlarges and improves."

In the case of Ritterskamp v. Stifel, 59 Mo. App., 510, the court held that when in repaving an alley all the old paving stones were taken out and new ones used in their stead, the grade changed two or three inches, and the alley made new except the old sand which was mixed with the clay and soil, the work was a reconstruction and not a repair.

In the case of Paving Company v. Broderick, 113 Calif., 628, the court held that it would be in violation of a proper construction of the term "repair" to hold that it included the original improvement of the street, or work of a different character from that previously done thereon.

In the case of Blount v. City of Janesville, 31 Wisc., 648, it was held that if a street once graded and paved with stone is ordered to be regraded and completely repaved with a different material, such operation would not constitute a repair.

In the case of Field v. City of Chicago, 198 Ill., 224, the court emphasized the fact that some very substantial part of the old improvement must be incorporated in the new work in order to constitute it a repair. The road in question had been previously macadamized, and the plans for the new work called for the cleaning, scarifying and rolling of the old roadway and the construction thereon of a complete new broken limestone and crushed granite pavement six and one-half inches thick. The court held that the operation was an improvement and not a repair. The following is from the opinion of the court:

"If the roadway already contains a good foundation, or one that with some labor can be made a good foundation, we see no reason why the same should be excavated and destroyed instead of being used in putting down a new pavement on the street. Doubtless most of the streets in cities of any considerable size, which have been premanently improved by special assessment or special taxation, had been previously graded, curbed and macadamized by the city authorities, and used in that way by the public long before the permanent improvement was made, and we do not understand that the previous work done on such streets would impress all future improvements with the character of mere repairs, unless such previous improvements were destroyed. * * * The mere fact that the ordinance provides that the macadam foundation already in the street shall be made level and smooth, and used as a foundation for the improvement provided for by the ordinance, and that some of the curb stones shall be used in the new work, does not make the work one of repair only. If the ordinance had provided that on the roadway so cleaned, filled and compacted, as specified, there should be placed a layer of granite blocks or a layer of vitrified brick, instead of layers of broken limestone and crushed granite, it would hardly be contended that the work would be one of repair."

In the case of Robertson v. City of Omaha, 55 Nebr., 718, the court held in effect that a use of a part of the old work will not constitute an operation a repair if the result is a pavement of a substantially different type. In this case a street had been paved with wooden blocks laid on a concrete base, and the wooden blocks had become worn and were replaced with vitrified brick laid on the old base. It was held that this constituted a repavement of the street and not a repair.

In the case of In the Matter of Repaving Fulton Street, 29 How. Pr. (N. Y.), 429, the first branch of the syllabus is as follows:

> "The substitution of a new and different kind of pavement from that existing on a public street is not a repair of the street, and a local assessment may be made for the expense thereof, even where the whole width of the street is not so repaved."

In the case of Bush v. City of Peoria, 215 Ill., 515, the court held that laying a new asphalt pavement after removing the old asphalt pavement down to the concrete base, and partially renewing the base, is not a repair, notwithstanding a part of the old foundation is to be used. The court evidently did not consider that enough of the old work was to be preserved and utilized to constitute the operation a repair and held that the same was an improvement. To the same effect see People v. City of Buffalo, 65 N. Y. Supp., 163; Levi v. Coyne, 57 S. S. (Ky.), 790, and McCaffrey v. City of Omaha, 72 Nebr., 583. However, in the case of City of Covington v. Bullock, 126 Ky., 236, the court held that where a street has been constructed with a concrete base six and one-half inches thick, and an asphalt wearing surface three inches thick and the asphalt has become worn, the operation of entirely removing the asphalt and laying a new asphalt wearing surface on the old concrete base without disturbing the same constitutes a repair and not a reconstruction.

If it were attempted to construct a rule from these five cases decided by the courts of Illinois, New York, Kentucky and Nebraska, the rule would be that the laying of a new wearing surface of the same material constitutes a repair, but that the partial rebuilding of the base and the laying of a new wearing surface, even of the same material as the old, does not constitute a repair, and is to be classed as a reconstruction.

The question of whether any given operation is to be classed as a repair or a reconstruction is a mixed question of law and fact, and it is impossible to lay down a definite and absolute rule that will afford an answer in every case that may arise. I am satisfied, however, that the statement of the general principles that are to govern, as made in opinion No. 485 of this department, hereinbefore referred to, is a correct statement of the law, and that the same is supported by the authorities. The rule will not exclude the use of brick in repair work, and will, indeed, require the use of this material where a road was originally constructed of brick. The rule will also permit of some variations in the method of construction to meet the developments of the road builders' art. Where a brick pavement has been laid without the use of any filler, and it becomes necessary to dig up the brick and relay the same on the old base, substituting new brick for those that are found to be broken or badly worn, the operation will not be robbed of its character as a repair merely because after the pavement is relaid cement or tar is used as a filler.

The other opinion of this department, a reconsideration of which is requested by the Ohio Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, is opinion 1211, rendered to you on January 28, 1916, in which opinion I held that under the provisions of section 1212, G. C., you were not authorized to pay a contractor estimates based upon material delivered on the site of the improvement and not yet incorporated in the work. That part of section 1212, G. C., quoted in the opinion in question, reads as follows:

> "No payment by the state, county or township, on account of a contract for any improvement under this chapter shall, before the completion of said contract, exceed eighty-five per cent. of the value of the work performed to the date of such payment. Fifteen per cent. of the value of the work performed shall be held until the final completion of the contract in accordance with the plans and specifications."

The only other provision found either in this section or elsewhere, and bearing in any way upon the question, is the preceding sentence, which sentence reads as follows:

> "The payment of the cost of the construction of such improvement shall be made as the work progresses, upon estimates made by the engineer in charge of such improvement, and upon approval of the state highway commissioner."

The matter is in my opinion, however, fully determined by the provision first above quoted, and I am unable to reach any conclusion other than that expressed in opinion 1211.

In the absence of a specific statutory provision to the contrary, the state certainly could not be called upon to pay for something that it had not yet received. Where the ownership of unspecified goods is to be transferred from one person to another, it is elementary that the title will not ordinarily pass until there has been an appropriation of specific goods assented to by both the seller and the buyer. In the building of houses or other permanent structures, the act which is ordinarily indicative of this selection of specific goods is the final affixture of the materials to the freehold, for the reason that this act is the one which puts the material finally out of the control of the builders and redounds purely to the benefit of the owner. Even the act of the owner in approving materials to be used by the builders is not usually sufficient to transfer title. This approval simply sets at rest the question of the land owner's assent. The seller may not, up to this point, have indicated positively his election and may not until afterward. In obtaining the approval of the owner, the builder merely secures the owner's assent to the subsequent appropriation of the goods by affixture to the realty, should he elect to so affix them.

Johnson v. Hunt, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 135;
Manchester Mills v. Rundlett, 23 N. H., 271;
4 Meeson and Welsby's Rep., 687.

I have not been referred to any authorities supporting the contentions of the Ohio Brick Manufacturers' Association; the arguments submitted being directed in the main to the wisdom and advisability of the statute rather than to its proper construction. These are arguments to be properly made to the legislature rather than to administrative officials charged with the execution of the law, and in view of the clear and unambiguous language used in section 1212, G. C., and of the well established legal principles referred to above, I am of the opinion that the rule set forth in opinion 1211 of this department is the one that should govern your department in this particular.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—MAY BY AMENDMENT TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION AUTHORIZED BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT OF STOCKHOLDERS, CHANGE ISSUED COMMON STOCK TO PREFERRED STOCK AND ISSUED PREFERRED STOCK TO COMMON STOCK.

A corporation may by amendment to its articles of incorporation authorized by the unanimous consent of its stockholders, change issued common stock to preferred stock, and issued preferred stock to common stock.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 26, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of July 21, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

"We are enclosing certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of 'THE NORCROSS COMPANY,' which was presented to this department by Cooke, McGowen and Foote, attorneys-at-law, Cleveland, Ohio, for filing. As the said certificate of amendment does not recite the fact that the proposed amended capital stock is unissued and in conformity with a late opinion rendered by your department, we have refused to file the same.

"At the request of counsel for The Norcross Company, we are submitting the proposed certificate to your department and kindly request an early opinion on the question, as to whether a corporation can by amendment change common stock into preferred, or preferred into common, although the proposed amended capital stock is issued and outstanding."

The certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of The Norcross Company enclosed in your letter discloses that said company has an authorized capital stock of $100,000.00 all of which is common stock. It seeks by amendment authorized by the unanimous consent of all its stockholders to change $50,000.00 of this common stock to preferred stock. The certificate of amendment does not recite that the common stock which it desires to change to preferred stock is unissued, and I am informed by counsel for the company that all of this stock is issued and outstanding.

In opinion No. 1306 rendered to you on March 1, 1916, I advised you as follows:

"For your future guidance in this connection, I may add that it is my opinion that you should file and record certificates of amendment to articles of incorporation, adopted by the unanimous consent of all the corporation's stockholders, changing unissued common stock to preferred stock, or unissued preferred stock to common stock."

Although the corporation under consideration at the time the above mentioned opinion was given was seeking to change by unanimous consent of all its stockholders unissued preferred stock to common stock, yet I believe that the reasons for the conclusion therein expressed are equally applicable to the situation presented in your enquiry.

The controlling reason for the conclusion expressed and the advice given you in the former opinion referred to was that the change in the character of the stock was agreed to and authorized by all of the stockholders of the company, and that therefore no rights either of creditors or stockholders were impaired or jeopardized by permitting the change, and even though such action was not specifically authorized by the General Code, yet by reason of the long-established practice to that effect it should be permitted.

I therefore advise you that you should accept and record the certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of The Norcross Company enclosed in your letter and which I herewith return to you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CHILDREN'S HOME—WHERE TRUSTEES REQUEST ADMISSION OF PUPILS TO COMMON SCHOOLS—BOARD OF EDUCATION OF DISTRICT OBLIGED TO ADMIT SUCH PUPILS—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS PAY TUITION—WHEN NEW BUILDING REQUIRED AND FUND NOT AVAILABLE—BOARD OF EDUCATION MUST BORROW MONEY FOR PUPOSE OF ERECTING SCHOOL BUILDING.

The written request of the trustees of a children's home in which a separate school has been maintained, for the admission of pupils resident in such home to the common schools of the appropriate school district, obliges the board of education of such district to admit such pupils subject to the payment of tuition for them by the county commissioners.

In case such request necessitates the construction of a new school building and funds therefor are not immediately available, the board of education must borrow money under its general power to issue bonds for school building purposes, there being no special provision for such a case.

If the tax duplicate of the district permits, money may be borrowed for such a purpose by the board of education without a vote of the people. Section 7629, G. C., explained in the light of Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403, the Smith one per cent. law, and particularly section 5649-1 thereof.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 26, 1916.

HON. PERRY SMITH, Prosecuting Attorney, Zanesville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of July 10th you requested my opinion as follows:

"Under section 7676 of the General Code of Ohio we have what is known as the Avondale children's home in Newton township. The trustees of said children's home have notified the board of education of Newton township to provide a school sufficient for the inmates of said institution. The said board of education cannot build this school house because the same will cost about $5,000.00 to $5,500.00 and it will become necessary to issue bonds to build the same.

"Under what section of the law can the board of education of Newton township issue these bonds to build this school house without a vote of the people? There is in the treasury of the building fund of Newton township $1,483.68 and on August 1st they will draw $1,483.68 more. In the contingent fund they have $845.00 that they will not need this year so it will become necessary to borrow or issue bonds for the difference between $3,700.00 and $5,500.00 and the board of education of said township thinks they can pay these bonds off in three years.

"If there is any law or provision by which this money can be raised by the issuing of bonds, please give us the section of the statute and we will try and comply with it."

In reply to my request for additional information respecting the situation upon which my advice was desired, you wrote me on July 19th as follows:

"1st. The Avondale children's home was established by law by a vote of the people who issued bonds for buying the land and building the institution. It is a children's home for Muskingum county, Ohio, and it is not a private establishment or institution.

"2nd. The trustees of the children's home under section 7676 of the General Code have served a written notice upon the trustees of the township to build a school house to accomodate the children of the Avondale children's home.

"3rd. This is not a special school house for these children alone, but is for the children in the neighborhood and also to accomodate the children's home pupils.

"The institution, through its trustees, have been furnishing school room and rooms, furniture, fuel, apparatus and books for the children, but the institution has grown so large that it becomes necessary to build a school house conveniently near to said children's home so as to give them a common school education. It is not especially for the children's home, but for the children who live in the neighborhood.

"Our tax duplicate will not justify us at this time as far as the county is concerned in building this school house as you have the facts of the money that Newton township has on hand. Please let me know if there is any section of law by which the board of education can borrow the money to build this school house, or if the board of education is relieved from building the school house under the General Code, and is it incumbent upon the county commissioners to build the same? I understand from the law that the trustees or the board of education of the township must furnish school for the children of the home."

Section 7676, G. C., et seq., as amended in 103 O. L., 896, provide as follows;

"Sec. 7676. The board of education in any district in which a children's home or orphans asylum is established by law, when requested by the board of trustees of such children's home or orphans' asylum when no public school is situated reasonably near such home or asylum, shall establish a separate school in such home or asylum, so as to afford to the children therein, as far as practicable, the advantages and privileges of a common school education. Such schools must be continued in operation for such period as is provided by law for public schools. If the distributive share of school funds to which the school at such home or asylum is entitled by the enumeration of children in the institution is not sufficient to continue the schools for that length of time, the deficiency shall be paid out of the funds of the institution or by the county commissioners.

"Sec. 7677. All schools so established in any such home or asylum shall be under the control and management of the respective boards of education of the school districts in which such homes and institutions are located, and courses of study, length of school term, and all other school matters shall be uniform in the respective school districts. Teachers employed in such homes or institutions must have a teacher's elementary school certificate as provided by section seven thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine of the General Code."

"Sec. 7678. In the establishment of such schools the commissioners of the county in which such children's home or orphans' asylum is established, shall provide the necessary school room or rooms, furniture, fuel, apparatus and books, the cost of which for such schools must be paid out of the funds provided for such institution. The board of education shall incur no expense in supporting such schools."

Your statement of facts makes it reasonably clear that these sections have in the past been complied with. The separate school of which section 7676, G. C., speaks has been in existence and rooms and facilities therefor have been furnished in the institiution by the trustees thereof or by the county commissioners at the expense of the institutional funds. It appears that now the trustees of the institution feel that they can no longer afford the space therein necessary for the accommodation of the separate institutional school, and have requested the board of education of the district in which the school is located to furnish other accommodations for the pupils resident in the home. In other words, what is desired is the discontinuance or disestablishment of the separate school referred to in section 7676, G. C., which, on your statement of facts, will require the building of a new school building in the district because of the fact, which seems reasonably to be inferred from your letter, that the buildings which now exist in the district are not of sufficient capacity to accommodate the pupils already attending school therein and the additional pupils which would under the proposed arrangement have to be accommodated therein.

The first question which is suggested by your letter is as to whether or not the written notice given by the trustees of the children's home to the board of education is sufficient to require the board of education to discontinue the separate school and provide additional regular facilities for the accommodation of the children's home pupils.

Sections 7676 to 7678, inclusive, deal solely with the establishment of a separate school. Prior to the amendment of section 7681, G. C., in 106 O. L., 489, no machinery was afforded for the discontinuance or disestablishment of such separate school, and the same could be effected, if at all, only by common consent of the public authorities whose action was requisite to the establishment thereof. However, said section 7681, G. C., at present provides as follows (106 O. L., 489):

"The schools of each district shall be free to all youth between six and twenty-one years of age, who are children, wards or apprentices of actual residents of the district, including children of proper age who are inmates of a county or district or of any public or private children's home or orphans' asylum located in such a school district, but the time in the school year at which beginners may enter upon the first year's work of the elementary schools shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the local boards of education. The board of education in any district in which a public or private children's home or orphans' asylum is located, when requested by the governing body thereof, shall admit the children of school age of such home or asylum to the public schools of the school district. The county commissioners shall pay the tuition of such pupils to the school or schools maintained by the board of education at a per capita rate which shall be ascertained by dividing the total expenses of conducting the elementary schools of the district attended, exclusive of permanent improvement and repairs, by the total enrollment in the elementary schools of the district, such amount to be computed by the month. An attendance any part of the month shall create a liability for the whole month. The distributive share of school funds from the state for the children of such home or asylum shall then be paid to the county commissioners. But all youth of school age living apart from their parents or guardians and who work to support themselves by their own labor, shall be entitled to attend school free in the district in which they are employed."

Under this section it is clear that the request of the governing body of the public children's home is sufficient to discontinue the special school in said home, and to require the board of education to admit the children of school age of such home to the public schools of the appropriate school district, subject of course, to the obligation of the county commissioners to pay the tuition of such pupils in accordance with the rule laid down in the section.

The written notice referred to in your letter is, in my opinion, in compliance with section 7681, G. C. (instead of section 7676, G. C., referred to by you.)

The sections quoted make no special provision for the acquisition of additional facilities necessitated by the admission of such pupils to the schools of the district. The special school provided for by sections 7676 to 7678, inclusive, was to be conducted in school rooms furnished by the county commissioners; but the buildings or rooms, if any, necessary for the accommodation of the additional pupils admitted to the public schools of the district by virtue of section 7681, G. C., as amended, must be furnished by the board of education, and no part of the cost of such permanent improvement is to be included in fixing the rate of tuition to be paid by the county commissioners. In short, one effect of discontinuing a separate school and admitting the children's home pupils to the public school is to shift from the county to the school district the financial burden of providing school rooms for the pupils involved.

There being no special provision for paying the expense of additional school buildings necessitated by the admission of children's home pupils to the schools of the district, under section 7681, G. C., it follows that the board of education must secure the funds for such purpose by exercising its general powers.

Your statement of facts makes it clear that the expense of erecting a new building can not be defrayed out of current building fund levies; that money will have to be borrowed, and that it is desired to borrow the same without submitting the question to a vote of the people.

It appears from your statement of facts that the amount of money needed in addition to the moneys which are expected to be in the building and contingent funds and available for use for this purpose is not large. Accordingly it seems quite possible (although I am unable to determine such possibility without knowing the tax duplicate of the district) that section 7629, General Code, may be employed. It provides as follows:

"Section 7629. The board of education of any school district may issue bonds to obtain or improve public school property, and in anticipation of income from taxes, for such purposes, levied or to be levied, from time to time, as occasion requires, may issue and sell bonds, under the restrictions and bearing a rate of interest specified in section seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty-seven. The board shall pay such bonds and the interest thereon when due, but provide that no greater amount of bonds be issued in any year than would equal the aggregate of a tax at the rate of two mills, for the year next preceding such issue. The order to issue bonds shall be made only at a regular meeting of the board and by a vote of two-thirds of its full membership, taken by yeas and nays and entered upon its journal."

It has always been held by this department and by the courts that despite the reference in this section to "the restrictions * * * specified in sections seventy six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty-seven," which makes the section somewhat ambiguous, said section 7629 authorizes the issuance of bonds without a vote of the electors.

An additional limitation is imposed upon the issuance of such bonds by section 7630, G. C., which, however, was declared by the supreme court in the case of Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403, to have been repealed by implication by the enactment of the Smith one per cent. law, section 5649-1, et seq., G. C.

The language of the opinion of Donahue, J., in this case raises some doubt as to whether section 7629, G. C., being necessarily related to section 7630, G. C., was not also repealed by implication in the same manner. He says at pages 414 and 415:

"The provisions of section 7629, General Code, were modified, aided and restricted by the provisions of section 7626, 7627, 7630, 7591 and 7592, General Code. These material parts of this code being no longer in force or effect, the whole plan and scheme is weakened and possibly destroyed.

"If section 7629, General Code, has survived the wreck of the plan provided by the school code of 1904, for the issuing of bonds by the board of education, it is not only bereft of its fellow sections of that code in reference to the same subject-matter, but it is deprived of the aid of their correlative provisions with reference not only to the issuing but to the retirement of bonds.

"Section 7629, General Code, provides for the issue of bonds only in anticipation of income from taxes levied for the purposes named in that section. * * * This section contains a further provision—that the bonds issued thereunder shall not exceed an amount equal to the aggregate of a tax at the rate of two mills on the tax valuation for the year next preceding such issue."

Thereafter, at considerable length Judge Donahue proceeds to discuss the application of section 7629, G. C., as modified by the Smith law to the facts of the case at hand. It is therefore to be strongly inferred from his final conclusion that he did not regard section 7629 as repealed. This was the opinion of my predecessor and I concur therein, and advise you that section 7629, G. C., is at present in force.

Much was said in Rabe v. Board of Education, supra, as to the modifying effect of the Smith one per cent. law upon the power of the board of education to issue bonds without a vote of the people under section 7629, G. C. The fourth branch of the syllabus epitomizes the holding of the court on this point:

"4. In determining the amount of income from taxes levied or to be levied that may be anticipated by an issue of bonds by any taxing authority, the calculation must be based on the same proportion of the total maximum levy in any one taxing district as the proportion of the maximum levy it is authorized to certify to the budget commissioners is to the total maximum levies that all the taxing authorities within that taxing district are authorized to certify."

In connection with this statement of the syllabus the following remark in the opinion must be noted:

"It would seem to be not only proper but necessary to take into account the future demands upon the school funds for school purposes in connection with the probable increase of the tax duplicate in determining just what income may be anticipated by the issue of bonds for the purchase of school property without detriment to the future imperative needs of the schools of that school district."

In other words, as the law was when the controversy which gave rise to Rabe v Board of Education originated, the levies which could be anticipated under section 7629, G. C., were levies that would have to be made subject to the prior claims, so to speak, of the current expense and tuition levies of the district. Since then, however, article XII, section 11 of the constitution has been adopted, and is now in force, and as to bonds issued since its adoption the following paragraph of the opinion in Rabe v. Board of Education applies:

"At this time, under the amendment to the constitution (section 11, article XII), which provides that no bonded indebtedness of the state or any political subdivision thereof shall be incurred or renewed, unless in the legislation under which such indebtedness is incurred or renewed provision is made for levying and collecting annually by taxation an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds and provided for a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity, it is of the utmost importance that at the time of the incurring of such indebtedness the other needs of the political subdivision proposing to issue the bonds should be taken into account, for this levy must continue during the term of the bonds in an amount sufficient to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund for their final redemption, even though the amount should exhaust the entire income available from taxation and without regard to the current expenses. In other words, under this provision of the constitution, the payment of interest and the retirement of bonds are to be provided for first, and the current expenses become a secondary consideration."

Though as Judge Donahue pointed out "this amendment * * * has no application to this case" (Rabe v. Board of Education), it does have application at the present time and its force and effect is emphasized and made clear by the provisions of section 5649-1, G. C., as amended 104 O. L., 12, as follows:

"In any taxing district, the taxing authority shall, within the limitations now prescribed by law, levy a tax sufficient to provide for sinking fund and interest purposes for all bonds issued by any political subdvision, which tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items, and for the full amount thereof."

So that it is now clear that a board of education acting under section 7629, G. C. has the power (which to be sure ought as a matter of policy not to be abused) to issue bonds within the limitation of that section without a vote of the people, and to order in the proceedings to issue such bonds the making of sufficient interest and sinking fund levies to provide for the final retirement of the bonds, which such levies so provided for must be made during the life of the bonds, regardless of the effect of the making of such levies upon the returns from taxation for the current needs of the district.

It was the opinion of my predecessor, who first considered this question, and it is my own opinion, that there are at the present time but two absolute limitations upon the power of a board of education to issue bonds for the purpose of building a school building without a vote of the electors. They are:

> "(1) The amount of the bonds so issued must not exceed in any one year the amount which would have been produced by a tax at the rate of two mills for the year next preceding the issue.
> "(2) The amount of the annual levy required to retire such bonds, and accordingly 'anticipate' under section 7629, G. C., as determined by the aggregate amount of the bonds and the number of years which they are to run, must not exceed, together with interest and sinking fund levies already provided for and applicable within the district, any of the limitations of the Smith one per cent law applicable to such interest and sinking fund levies."

If, in determining the length of time the bonds would have to run, the board of education of a district should propose to act in reckless disregard of the needs of the district for tuition purposes for any future year or years, it seems that a taxpayer prior to the issuance of the bonds might intervene, and by injunction restrain such action as an abuse of discretion; but if no such action were taken, the bonds, if within the limitations above referred to, would undoubtedly be valid, and the money produced by their sale could undoubtedly be expended for the purpose for which it was raised. Regardless of the question of power, however, I can not too strongly advise that the board of education should not fail to take into account the needs of the school district for current expense levies during the time which the projected sinking fund levies are to be made, in determining the amount of bonds that it ought to issue for such purposes.

Answering, then, the question submitted in your letter of July 10th, I beg to advise that the board of education of Newton township may issue the bonds required to build the school house needed without a vote of the people under section 7629, General Code, subject to the limitations above referred to; that is to say, while I am not able to state positively that the board of education can issue the bonds, yet if the tax duplicate of the district is of sufficient size as that the amount of money needed for the purpose, together with the amount, if any, previously borrowed under the section during the year, will not exceed the proceeds of a two-mill levy on last year's duplicate, and if the necessary interest and sinking fund levies will not impair the needs of the district for current purposes, the power of the board of education to act under the section above referred to is adequate.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF BOWLING GREEN STATE NORMAL COLLEGE—APPROVAL OF CONTRACT FOR CONSTRUCTION OF TRAINING SCHOOL BUILDING.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 26, 1916.

HON. J. E. SCHATZEL, Secretary, Bowling Green State Normal College, Bowling Green, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You have submitted to me through your architects the contract entered into by your board of trustees and The Steinle Construction Company, under date of July 21, 1916, for the construction of the training school building, including general construction, heating and ventilating, plumbing, gas fitting, sewage, and lighting fixtures, the said contract calling for the sum of $94,545.45, to be paid for out of the appropriations made in sections 2 and 3 of house bill 701, 106 O. L. 666, together with the bond covering said contract and the advertisements calling for bids.

I have ascertained from the auditor of state's office that there are sufficient funds on hand not contracted against for the purposes of this contract. I have examined the contract and bond and find the same to be in compliance with law and have therefore this day approved the same and have filed the original contract and bond with the auditor of state and have returned the rest of the papers to your architects.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-Gen al.

APPROVAL, SALE OF CERTAIN CANAL LANDS IN UNION TOWNSHIP, ROSS COUNTY, TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 26, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of July 19, 1916, transmitting to me duplicate copies of your record of proceedings relating to the sale of certain canal lands in Union township, Ross county, Ohio, to the board of county commissioners of that county, and also duplicate copies of a resolution providing for such sale.

I find upon an examination of your record of proceedings that the sale is authorized by the statute, and I also find that the resolution providing for the sale is properly drawn. I am therefore returning the duplicate copies of the resolution with my signature attached thereto.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BUILDINGS—CITY AND TOWNSHIP HAVE NO AUTHORITY TO UNITE FOR ERECTION OF CITY HALL AND TOWNSHIP HOUSE.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 27, 1916.

HON. F. C. GOODRICH, Prosecuting Attorney, Troy, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of July 15, 1916, is as follows:

> "The question has been asked of me whether or not a city and a township have a right to join in the erection of a city hall and township house.
> "Section No. 3399 of the General Code provides that a village and township may join in the building of a township house, but I can find no section of the statute giving direct authority for a city and a township to join in the erection of a city building.
> "Will you please advise whether or not section No. 3399 and the following sections will permit the city and township joining in the erection of this building, or if there is any other section of the statute that gives such authority?"

Section 3399, G. C., provides:

> "The electors of a township in which a village is situated, and the electors of such village may if both so determine, as hereinafter provided, unite in the enlargement, improvement or erection of a public building."

Section 3400, G. C., provides that application for such purpose shall be made to the mayor of the village and the trustees of the township, and prescribes the minimum number of freeholders that must sign the respective applications. Section 3401, G. C., provides for the submission of the question of levying a tax for said purpose to the electors of the village and township respectively, and section 3402, G. C., provides:

> "If at such election two-thirds of the electors of the township and of the village voting, vote in favor of such improvement, the trustees of such township and the council of the village shall jointly take such action as is necessary to carry out such improvement."

It will be observed that the authority conferred by the foregoing provisions of the statutes is limited to the electors of a township in which a village is situated and the electors of such village. It is evident that said provisions of the statutes do not authorize the electors of a city to unite with the electors of a township for the aforesaid purpose.

A city as well as a township has only limited power and each must act within the limits of its powers as prescribed by statute. I find no provision of the statute authorizing a city and township to join in the erection of a city hall and township house and I am of the opinion therefore that your question must be answered in the negative.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER.

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SYNOPSIS FOR INITIATIVE PETITION PROHIBITING LIABILITY INSURANCE COMPANIES COMPETING WITH WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 29, 1916.

HON. TIMOTHY S. HOGAN, Attorney-at-law, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You have submitted to me for my certificate an initiative petition, the syllabus of which reads as follows:

"PROPOSED LAW

"To amend section 1465-101 of the General Code of Ohio, making void contracts indemnifying employers against loss or liability for the payment of workmen's compensation, and agreements to pay such compensation, and making void contracts which indemnify the employer against damages when injury, disease or death arises from failure of employer to comply with lawful requirements for the protection of the lives, health and safety of employes, or when the same is occasioned by the wilful act of the employer or any of his officers or agents; prohibiting the issuance of licenses to enter into such contracts; and to repeal original section 1465-101 of the General Code of Ohio."

I hereby certify that the foregoing synopsis is a truthful statement regarding the above entitled proposed law.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY—SON OF SUCH OFFICER NOT LEGALLY DISQUALIFIED FOR EMPLOYMENT UNDER SECTION 2412, G. C., TO ASSIST PROSECUTOR.

An attorney at law who is the son of a prosecuting attorney is not thereby legally disqualified for employment under the provisions of section 2412, G. C., to assist said prosecuting attorney in the prosecution or defense of any action brought by or against the officers specified in said section aforesaid, but cannot be appointed merely as a collector of delinquent taxes.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 29, 1916.

HON. TOM S. MADDOX, Prosecuting Attorney, Washington C. H., Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of July 19, 1916, as follows:

"A prosecuting attorney acting under authority of section 2412, G. C., requests the county commissioners to appoint him an assistant for the purposes of bringing suit, prosecuting, defending and collecting the delinquent street assessments due the city of Washington, Fayette county, Ohio, as appears on the tax duplicate in the office of the county treasurer of said county; also to collect all other delinquent taxes appearing on the duplicate.

"R. R. Maddox, son of said prosecutor, by appointment under section 2914, 2915, G. C., is clerk and stenographer to said prosecutor; the said R. R. Maddox is an attorney at-law since July 1, 1916; no partnership of any kind exists between the said R. R. Maddox and said prosecutor.

"May said parties enter into a legal contract for the same?"

Section 2412, G. C., to which you refer, provides as follows:

> "If it deems it for the best interests of the county, upon the written request of the prosecuting attorney, the board of county commissioners may employ legal counsel to assist the prosecuting attorney in the prosecution or defense of any suit or action brought by or against the county commissioners or other county officers and boards, in their official capacity."

This statute provides for the employment of legal counsel to assist in the prosecution or defence of any suit or action brought by or against the county commissioners or other county officers and boards. The employment of such legal counsel as contemplated by this statute must be to assist the prosecuting attorney in some suit or action instituted by the officials named in said section or brought against them. There is nothing in this section to prevent the county commissioners from employing the son of a prosecuting attorney to assist the latter in the prosecution of such suits or in defending said officers and boards in any suit instituted against them; provided, of course, that said son is an attorney at law. The further fact mentioned in your inquiry that the son is in the employ of his father as a clerk and stenographer, appointed under authority of section 2915, G. C., and who, I learn in a subsequent letter, is engaged only a part of the time at a salary of $35.00 per month, offers no legal obstacle to the employment of the son under said section 2412, G. C., supra.

I therefore hold, under the facts stated, that the son of said prosecuting attorney may be legally employed under the provisions of section 2412, G. C., supra, but I express no opinion on the policy of making such employment.

In a subsequent letter you call attention to the provisions of section 3892, G. C., and refer to an opinion rendered by the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices and of this department to the effect that only the county treasurer may enforce the collection of assessments under said section. I am unable to see what connection said last named section has with said section 2412, G. C., supra. As before observed, under said section 2412, G. C., supra, the commissioners may only employ an attorney to assist the prosecuting attorney in prosecuting suits and actions brought by the board of county commissioners or other county officials, or in defending such officials in suits and actions brought against them. There is nothing in the provisions of section 3892, G. C., supra, that would prevent a county treasurer from being represented in actions to enforce the collection of assessments under said section by the prosecuting attorney or the person so employed to assist him.

If, however, it is intended that the person employed to assist the prosecuting attorney is expected to act as a collector merely for the county treasurer in the matter of street assessments and other collections named in your inquiry, such employment may not be made for such purposes. A person employed under section 2412, G. C. must be employed to assist in actual litigation and cannot be employed as a mere collector for the county treasurer. I trust that this interpretation of section 2412, G. C., is made perfectly plain.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CHILDREN'S HOME—TRUSTEES OF SUCH HOME WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER TO OTHER INSTITUTIONS, CHILDREN COMMITTED TO THEIR CARE BY JUVENILE COURT EXCEPT UPON ORDER OF SUCH COURT.

Trustees of children's home are without authority to transfer to other institutions any children committed to the children's home by the juvenile court, except upon the order of such court, which has continuing jurisdiction over its wards until they arrive at the age of twenty-one years

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 29, 1916.

Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion relative to the adoption of dependent children is as follows:

> "An interesting question in connection with the matter of adoption of dependent children has been submitted to us by a children's home of this state which has placed a large number of children in foster homes, many of whom are later adopted. This institution has also acted as an agent for other institutions. The following situation is submitted for your opinion as to the proper procedure:
> "A child is committed by the juvenile court in the manner set forth in section 1653, to a county children's home. Later the trustees of said county home transfer and surrender guardianship by means of a signed document to a legally recognized institution in another county. It is assumed that this child, when committed to the county children's home is placed therein with the right to adopt, as provided in section 1672. Has the county children's home the legal right to transfer guardianship of children to another institution without securing formal consent of the judge who committed the child to the county children's home? And has the second institution full legal authority to be a consenting party to the adoption of this child by foster parents in whose home the child has been placed through the instrumentality of the second institution? (See sections 8024 and 8025.)
> "The same institution has for years been receiving by the use of the formal surrender blank, children from other institutions in the same community. There is attached hereto a copy of the formal surrender blank used by institutions when transferring the guardianship of the child, which is the same as is used by parents when voluntary surrender of guardianship of children to the institution is made."

With your letter you enclose the copy of the blank form referred to in your letter which is as follows:

Section 1653 of the General Code (103 O. L., 872), in part is as follows:

> "When a minor under the age of eighteen years, or any ward of the court under this chapter, is found to be dependent or neglected, the judge may make an order committing such child to the care of the children's home if there be one in the county where such court is held * * *"

The provisions of law relative to the manner in which children may be admitted to children's homes are embraced in section 3090 of the General Code (103 O. L., 890), which is as follows:

> "They shall be admitted by the superintendent on the order of the juvenile court or of a majority of such trustees, accompanied by a statement of facts signed by the court or trustees, setting forth name, age, birthplace, and present condition of the child named in such order, which statement of facts contained in the order, together with any additional facts connected with the history and condition of such children shall be, by the superintendent, recorded in a record provided for that purpose, which shall be confidential and only open for inspection at the discretion of the trustees."

As to the guardianship and control of inmates, section 3093 of the General Code in part, provides as follows: (103 O. L., 891.)

> "All inmates of such home who by reason of abandonment, neglect or dependence have been admitted, or who have been by the parent or guardian voluntarily surrendered to the trustees, shall be under the sole and exclusive guardianship and control of the trustees during their stay in such home, until they are eighteen years of age, and if such child is placed out or adopted such control shall continue until such child becomes of lawful age. * * *"

Under the provisions of the section just quoted it will be noted that exclusive guardianship and control of children while in children's homes is vested in the trustees of the said home.

Under the provisions of section 3090 of the General Code, supra, it will be observed that there are two methods of admitting children to children's homes—one through the agency of the juvenile court, and the other by a majority of the trustees of the children's home.

Section 1643 of the General Code, as amended (103 O. L., 869), is as follows:

> "When a child under the age of eighteen years comes into the custody of the court under the provisions of this chapter, such child shall continue > for all necessary purposes of discipline and protection, a ward of the court, until he or she attain the age of twenty-one years. The power of the court over such child shall continue until the child attains such age."

From a reading of section 1643 quoted above it will be observed that there is a specific provision therein to the effect that "the power of the court over such child shall continue until the child attains such age."

The question involved in your inquiry is as to whether or not the jurisdiction of the juvenile court over the wards of the court continues after a child has been committed to a children's home insofar as the approval of the court may be required for the removal of the child from such children's home.

The provisions of section 3093 of the General Code, supra, to the effect that all inmates of such homes "shall be under the sole and exclusive guardianship of the trustees during their stay in such homes" appears to be general and controlling with respect to the matter, but upon examination of section 3093, supra, and section 1643, supra, it will be found that section 3093 is an old statute which has governed trustees of children's homes for a number of years, whereas section 1643, supra, is one of comparatively recent origin, and is a part of a general scheme of the law for the care and conduct of dependent and neglected children which originated with senate bill 40, which was an act "to regulate the treatment and control of dependent, neglected and delinquent children," which act was passed April 25, 1904, to be found in 97 Ohio Laws, at page 561. By virtue of the act in question the juvenile court system was established, which was an advance movement in the care of Ohio's unfortunate wards.

There have been a number of changes in the law since its original enactment but section 1643 of the General Code, supra, which vests the juvenile court with continuing jurisdiction of its wards until they arrive at the age of twenty-one years, and section 1653 of the General Code, supra, under which the children referred to in your communication were committed to the children's home, are parts of the juvenile court law as it at present exists.

The clear and manifest purpose of the juvenile court system is to vest in the juvenile court the absolute control of all dependent children which become wards of that court.

Section 3093 of the General Code, supra, provides that:

> "All inmates of such homes who by reason of abandonment, neglect or dependence have been admitted, or who have been by their parents or guardians voluntarily surrendered to the trustees shall be under the sole and exclusive guardianship and control of the trustees during their stay in such home."

and insofar as such guardianship and control applies to the children committed by the juvenile court is concerned, it is absolute while such child remains in the home.

The provisions of section 1643 of the General Code, supra, to the effect that the jurisdiction of the juvenile court shall continue for "all necessary purposes of discipline and protection" until the child attains the age of twenty-one years is controlling with reference to children committed by the court to the children's homes and may be exercised whenever, in the judgment of the court, the best interests of the child demands any change or modification in the orders of commitment.

There can be no question but that the ward's discipline and protection reflects on the place wherein the child may be kept or the person in whose custody it is placed.

As reflecting upon the intention of the general assembly with reference to the continuing jurisdiction of the juvenile court over its wards reference may be had to section 1352-3 of the General Code (103 O. L., 866), wherein it is provided, in part, as follows:

"The board of state charities shall when able to do so, receive as its wards such dependent or neglected minors as may be committed to it by the juvenile court. County, district, or semi-public children's homes or any institution entitled to receive children from the juvenile court may, with the consent of the board, transfer to it the guardianship of minor wards of such institutions. If such children have been committed to such institutions by the juvenile court that court must first consent to the transfer. * * *"

In section 1352-5 of the General Code (103 O. L., 867), it is provided, among other things, that:

"The board of state charities may when willing to do so, receive as its wards with all the powers given it by section 1352-3 of the General Code, delinquent children committed to it by a juvenile court or from any institution to which such children may be committed by the juvenile court or assigned by the board of administration. Such children shall be placed by it in homes in accordance with the provisions of section 1352-3 of the General Code. * * * * If originally committed to such institution by the juvenile court, that court must first consent to the transfer of such child to the board of state charities. * * *"

And, again, section 1672 of the General Code (103 O. L., 876), is to be considered as laying particular stress upon the continuance of the jurisdiction of the juvenile court under the provisions of section 1643 of the General Code, section 1672 being as follows:

"If the court awards a child to the care of an association, corporation or individual, in accordance with these provisions, unless otherwise ordered, the child shall become a ward, and be subject to the guardianship of such association, corporation or individual. Such association, corporation or individual may place such child in a family home and shall be made party to any proceedings for the legal adoption of the child, and if the court when making such award so orders, may appear in any court where such proceedings are pending, and assent to such adoption. Such assent shall be sufficient to authorize the judge to enter the proper order or decree of adoption, and upon such order being made, all jurisdiction of the juvenile court over such child under section 1643 of the General Code, shall cease and determine. Such guardianship shall not include the guardianship of any estate of the child."

The ultimate purpose of the state is to dispose of its juvenile court ward by finding suitable homes in families rather than to continue such wards in institutions and ample provision is made in the various statutes for the placing of all such wards in homes by the various institutions or state agencies, but nowhere in the law is there to be found any provision which admits of the transferring of the wards of the juvenile court from one institution to another, except that in the exercise of its powers under the juvenile research act to be found in 103 O. L., 175, the board of administration may transfer any minor committed to one of the institutions under its care to any other institution with the limitation that no person shall be transferred from a benevolent to a penal institution.

In view of the foregoing it is my opinion that the trustees of a children's home are without authority of law to transfer the guardianship, control or custody of children committed to it by the juvenile court to another institution, except upon the order of the juvenile judge who originally committed the child to the children's home.

A similar question was considered by my predecessor in opinion No. 767, addressed to Hon. Hugh R. Gilmore, prosecuting attorney, Eaton, Ohio, under date of September 9, 1912, to be found in Vol. II, of the Report of the Attorney-General for 1912, at page 1529, in which opinion I concur.

This disposition of the first question will of course obviate the necessity of a discussion of the second question in your inquiry.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, CERTAIN OIL AND GAS LEASES TO GRIFFIN PRODUCING COMPANY AND T. R. COWELL.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 29, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your communication of July 6, 1916, addressed to Hon. Frank B. Willis, Governor of Ohio, and myself, requesting our approval of oil and gas leases as follows:

(1) Lease to Griffiin Producing Company, dated June 28, 1916, and covering property located in section 29, township 13, range 16, Hocking county, Ohio, being the first half of the north half of the northwest quarter, and the south half of the northwest quarter.

(2) Lease to T. R. Cowell, dated June 28, 1916, and covering property located in Hocking county, Ohio, section 29, township 13, range 16, being the east half of the north half of the northwest quarter of said section, and the north half of the northeast quarter of said section.

(3) Lease to T. R. Cowell, dated June 28, 1916, and covering property located in Hocking county, Ohio, section 29, township 13, range 16, being the north half of the southwest quarter of said section.

I have carefully examined said leases, and the same meet with my approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—WEAK SCHOOL DISTRICT—SALARY OF PART-TIME SUPERINTENDENT.

That the proportionate part of the salary of a part-time superintendent employed by a school district under section 4740, G. C., attributable to teaching service, exceeds $70 00 per month, does not disqualify the district to receive state aid as a "weak" one, unless the average compensation paid to all high school teachers, including such portion of the salary of such superintendent, exceeds such rate.

That a board of education may be able to apply income from the district levy for contingent fund upon the payment of teachers' salaries, or may actually contemplate such application, does not affect the amount which the district is entitled to receive under the weak school district aid law, which is in all cases measured by the deficiency in the estimated income of the tuition fund as compared with the amount required to pay the minimum salaries of elementary teachers mentioned in section 7595-1, G. C., the actual salaries of high school teachers, and the other charges made by law against the fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 29, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 12th, requesting my opinion upon the following question:

"A part-time superintendent is employed by a special supervision district under favor of section 4740, G. C., at an aggregate salary for all services of $175.00 per month. He devotes one-half of his time to teaching, and, in accordance with my opinion No. 1769, addressed to you under date of July 10, 1916, the district, if it requires state aid under the weak school district aid law, may include as a part of its deficiency such portion of his total salary as is referable to his services as teacher, the apportionment being made on a time basis. In the opinion referred to you have also been advised that for the purpose of applying section 7595-1, General Code, such a part-time superintendent should, as a teacher, be regarded as a high school teacher, because of the nature of the qualifications he is required to possess. Inasmuch as half of the monthly salary of the superintendent-teacher in question exceeds $70.00 per month, which is the amount fixed for high school teachers in section 7595-1, G. C., you submit the following questions which have arisen in your administration of the weak school district aid law:

"1. Must we refuse state aid under the weak school district aid law on that ground?

"2. Does the question of what fund bears this expense of $87.50 have any relation to this question?

"In other words, * * *: In determining whether a district is entitled to state aid, should we disregard all expenditures out of contingent funds? Or, stated otherwise, if the maximum levy is made, and if the proper proportion of that levy is placed in the tuition fund, then, should we only contemplate expenditures for salaries made out of that fund, and disregard expenditures for salaries paid out of other funds by transfer, always, however, having in mind the mandate that salaries paid should be those fixed by the weak school district law?

"3. If your opinion holds that we should only regard the salaries paid out of the tuition fund, then, if the salary of the superintendent is wholly paid out of funds other than tuition fund, by transfer either in whole or in part, should any part of that salary be included in our calculation in determining the sum of state aid to be given?"

Section 7595-1, G. C., as now in force, provides as follows (106 O. L., 430):

"Only such school districts which pay salaries as follows shall be eligible to receive state aid: Elementary teachers without previous teaching experience in the state, forty dollars a month; elementary teachers having at least one year's professional training, forty-five dollars a month; elementary teachers who have completed the full two years' course in any normal school, teachers' college, or university, approved by the superintendent of public instruction, fifty-five dollars per month; high school teachers not to exceed an average of seventy dollars per month in each high school."

The words "not to exceed an average of" were inserted in the section by its last amendment. Since this amendment became effective I have had occasion to consider the application of the amended section in the following opinions:

In opinion No. 799—1915 (Opinions of the attorney-general for that year, page 1672), I held that,

"With the exception of salaries paid to high school teachers, the provisions of section 7595-1, G. C., as amended, determine the minimum salaries which the board of education of a school district, which complies with the other provisions of the statute governing state aid to weak school districts, must pay in order to be entitled to receive such aid."

In opinion No. 803, the same year, Id. 1683, I held with respect to the provision of section 7595-1, G. C., relating to salaries of high school teachers that

"It is not necessary for a board of education, in making application for state aid, to show the exact amount which each high school teacher employed by said board is entitled to receive according to the terms of his contract of employment. If said application shows the number of high school teachers employed, the number of months for which they are employed and the total amount of the salaries which said high school teachers will be entitled to receive under the terms of their contract of employment, the state auditor will be able to determine whether said board of education has complied with the above provisions of section 7595-1, G. C., as amended, governing salaries paid to high school teachers."

In other words, the mere fact that one teacher who ranks as a high school teacher is entitled to receive a salary attributable to teaching service in excess of $70.00 per month does not disqualify the district from receiving state aid. It must appear that the average compensation paid to high school teachers in the district exceeds $70.00 per month before the district is disqualified.

Your first question, therefore, must be answered in the negative, with the qualification that if it should appear that the average salary paid to all high school teachers in the district in question exceeds $70.00 per month, then the district is disqualified from receiving any state aid under the weak school district law.

I take it that your second and third questions do not relate to the question of the qualification of a district to receive any state aid, but rather to the amount that the district is entitled to receive, assuming that it is not disqualified.

As to the salaries of teachers other than high school teachers, the answer to a question of this sort is under the statutes clear. The opinions of this department both during my administration and that of my predecessor, have uniformly held that a school district is not disqualified from receiving state aid because it has contracted to pay more than the minimum salary provided by law to some of its trachers; but that the amount of state aid to which it is entitled is limited to the deficiency in its tuition fund measured by the difference between the amount therein and the amount which would be necessary to pay the minimum salaries.

Of course, if a district has contracted to pay salaries in excess of those mentioned in sections 7595-1, G. C., it must in some manner or other provide funds therefo as the contracts, because of the provisions of section 5661, General Code, are valid obligations of the district. If this were accomplished by transfer from the contingent fund, the amount of such transfer could not be applied to reduce the deficiency because if this were done it might in many cases wipe out the deficiency entirely and deprive the district of state aid.

Accordingly, I held in opinion 799, above referred to, that > "The certified statement to the state auditor must show, among other things:

> " '1. That the board of education of the school district in question made the maximum school levy allowed by law, two-thirds of which was for the tuition fund.
> " '2. The estimated amount of the tuition fund that will be realized from two-thirds of said levy.
> " '3. The estimated amount that must be paid from said fund other than for the salaries of teachers.
> " '4. The estimated amount that will be available for the payment of said salaries.
> " '5. The number of teachers employed by the board of education of said school district, properly classified according to qualifications prescribed by section 7595-1, G. C., as amended.
> " '6. The estimated amount of money which will be required in the tuition fund to pay said teachers the salaries provided by said section 7595-1, G. C., as amended, for eight months of the year.'
> "The difference between the estimated amount which will be required in said tuition fund as above set forth in item 6, and the estimated amount available for said teachers' salaries as set forth in item 3, will be the amount of the deficit for which the state auditor shall issue a voucher. * * *
> If, therefore, the certified statement of facts from the county auditor shows that the board of education of a school district has complied with all the requirements of the statute governing state aid to weak school districts, I d not think the state auditor is required, before issuing the aforesaid voucher, to determine whether said board of education has contracted to pay its teachers salaries, which in the aggregate will amount to more than the amount required under item 6, as above set forth.
> "Under the provisions of section 7603, G. C., the contingent fund of said district will be entitled to receive, in addition to the one-third of the amount realized from the maximum legal school levy, all moneys coming from sources not enumerated in said section. If said board of education finds that the amount realized from two-thirds of the maximum legal school levy, together with the amount received from the state as state aid, under authority of section 7595, G. C., as amended, is less than the aggregate amount which said board has contracted to pay its teachers, this difference may be made up by transferring any surplus money in the contingent fund to said tuition fund, under authority of section 2296, G. C., as amended in 103 Ohio Laws, page 522, and in the manner provided by sections 2297, et seq., of the General Code, or said board may, under authority of section 5656, G. C., and within the limitations therein provided, borrow money for this purpose."

In accordance then with this previous opinion, I advise that if the district is not disqualified entirely from receiving state aid and has made the maximum levy, and if the proper proportion of that levy is placed in the tuition fund, then the deficiency for which the district is entitled to state aid is the difference between the anticipated income from such fund and such amount as is necessary to pay the minimum salaries provided in section 7595-1, G. C., as to the salaries of teachers other than high school teachers, plus the amount necessary to pay the actual aggregate compensation of high school teachers under their contracts of employment. That the board of education may contemplate transferring enough money from the contingent fund to the tuition fund to pay the entire salary of one of its teachers makes no difference; it is, nevertheless, entitled to state aid on the basis above referred to.

I therefore answer your second question by advising that in determining whether a district is entitled to state aid you are to disregard the fact that the board of education may contemplate transferring moneys from its contingent fund to its tuition fund; and that you are to apportion the state aid to the district in such manner as will make the tuition fund large enough to pay the minimum salaries provided in section 7595-1, G. C., and the actual salaries of high school teachers, even though you may be advised that the board of education may have available for transfer money in its contingent fund which, if transferred to the latter fund would make such tuition fund larger in amount than would be necessary to provide for the payment of such salaries and other fixed charges.

To illustrate my holding by a simple example, let it be supposed that a weak school district has contracted to pay its teachers just the minimum salaries provided by section 7595-1, G. C., and that the average salary of its high school teachers is $70.00 per month; it would be entitled to state aid for the difference between the income from its levies for the tuition fund, less fixed charges payable from such fund other than for teachers' salaries, and the amount required to pay the salaries contracted for, even though the board of education at the time of making the application for state aid might foresee its ability to transfer a considerable amount from the contingent fund of the district to the tuition fund, and even though the board might be willing to do so and actually intend to make such transfer.

To put it in another way: The auditor of state is, in my opinion, without authority to compel the board of education of a weak school district to agree to enhance the amount of the tuition fund by transfer from the contingent fund as a condition of receiving state aid or as determining the amount of state aid which it will receive.

This answer to your second question determines the answer to your third question. It makes no difference that the salary of the superintendent in question may as a matter of intention and anticipation be payable out of funds other than the tuition fund. (Of course, the application for state aid is prospective and the deficiency which it contemplates is estimated, under the present law, so that it cannot be said to a certainty that any given salary is paid out of any particular fund, unless indeed the contract of employment so stipulates. All salaries of teachers, superintendents, etc. are primarily a charge upon the tuition fund and must be regarded as such in the office of the auditor of state).

Accordingly, if in the case you submit the fact that that part of the salary of the part-time superintendent which is attributable to teaching service amounts to $87.50 does not cause the average amount paid to high school teachers to exceed $70.00 per month, and does not accordingly disqualify the district entirely from receiving state aid, the district in question would be entitled to state aid for the entire amount of its anticipated deficiency, one item going to make up which would be the entire estimated expenditure for the salaries of high school teachers, even though the board of education might contemplate the use of contingent fund moneys to pay all or part of the salary of a particular teacher or superintendent.

Throughout this opinion I have differentiated between the salaries of high school teachers and those of elementary teachers as items in the deficiency application. This is because, as I have pointed out, the amounts fixed in section 7595-1, G. C., for salaries of elementary teachers are minimum amounts, whereas the average amount stipulated therein with respect to the salaries of high school teachers is a maximum amount. Accordingly, if the district is not disqualified entirely by exceeding the maximum as to high school teachers, it is entitled to state aid on that behalf to such an extent as will enable it to pay the entire salaries of its high school teachers, and no more. Thus, if the aggregate amount paid to high school teachers in a weak school district were such as that the average was $65.00 per month, only such amount should be included in the statement of deficiency on account of the salaries of high school teachers as would represent an average of $65.00 per month; whereas, as to elementary teachers the full amount specified in section 7595-1, G. C., being a minimum, must necessarily represent the measure of the deficiency.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—RESOLUTIONS OF TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES OF RUSH CREEK TOWNSHIP, LOGAN COUNTY AND BOKES CREEK TOWNSHIP, LOGAN COUNTY, FOR CERTAIN ROAD IMPROVEMENTS IMPROPERLY DRAWN.

Resolutions of the township trustees of Rush Creek township, Logan county, and Bokes Creek township, Logan county, relating to the improvement of inter-county highway No. 236, as submitted by the state highway commissioner, are improperly drawn and are therefore returned without approval.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 29, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You have submitted to me for examination under date of July 13, 1916, a final resolution by the township trustees of Rush Creek township, Logan county, Ohio, providing for the improvement of a section of I. C. H. No. 236 in that township; and also under date of July 22, a final resolution of the township trustees of Bokes Creek township, Logan county, Ohio, providing for the improvement of a section of I. C. H. No. 236, located in that township.

A careful examination of these resolutions discloses that they have been prepared upon the theory that it is permissible for the township trustees of two townships to in some measure at least proceed jointly in reference to the improvement of a section of inter-county highway lying partly in one township and partly in the other.

In so far as the resolution of the township trustees of Rush Creek township is concerned it appears that the trustees have applied for state aid on 786 feet of highway, but that you have approved their application as to 6979 feet of highway, and have caused plans to be made for the improvement of said 6979 feet of highway. In other words your approval and your plans cover a much longer section of highway than that covered by the application. Bokes Creek township lies immediately east of Rush Creek township, and by a comparison of the description of the section of highway on which state aid is asked with the section of highway which you plan to improve it appears that all but 786 feet of the highway lies in Bokes Creek township instead of Rush Creek township. Discrepancies also appear in the resolution of the trustees of Bokes Creek township between the description of the section of highway on which state aid is asked and the description of the section of highway, the improvement of which you have approved, and for the improvement of which plans have been prepared by you.

A reference to the resolution of the township trustees of Rush Creek township shows that they are to contribute three hundred dollars ($300.00), which is $10,800.00 less than the total estimated cost, which total estimated cost amounts to $11,100.00. A reference to the resolution of the township trustees of Bokes Creek township shows that they are to contribute three thousand one hundred and thirteen dollars and ninety-eight cents ($3,113.98), which is $9,386.02 less than the total estimated cost and expense, which total estimated cost and expense amounts to $12,500.00. A reference to the certificate of the chief clerk of your department, endorsed on the resolution of the trustees of Rush Creek township, shows that the state is proposing to expend nine hundred dollars ($900.00) in connection with that improvement, while a reference to the certificate of the chief clerk, endorsed on the resolution of the trustees of Bokes Creek township, shows that the state is proposing to expend eight thousand and twenty-seven dollars and eighty-one cents ($8,027.81) on the improvement within that township. In other words, the state is to expend $900.00 in one township and $8,027.81 in the other township, while one township is to expend $300.00 and the other is to expend $3,113.98, making a total expenditure of $12,341.79. It will thus be seen that the total amount certified for expenditure is not the same as the estimated cost, whether said estimated cost be taken to be $11,100.00 or $12,500.00.

I understand that both final resolutions relate to the same proposed improvement and that a small portion of the improvement lies in Rush Creek township and the remainder in Bokes Creek township. I also understand that the total cost was first estimated at $11,100.00 but was later raised to $12,500.00, and that of this estimated cost of $12,500.00 the sum of $1,200.00 is referable to the work in Rush Creek township. I also understand that there are no drainage structures on that part of the improvement situated in Rush Creek township, but that there are some drainage structures on that part of the road located in Bokes Creek township.

There is no statutory authority for any form of joint action by two or more boards of township trustees in the improvement of a section of intercounty highway lying in two or more townships but not on the township line. Section 1220, G. C., authorizes two or more townships to make application where a road is on a township line, but has no application to the facts of the present case. Where it is desired to improve such a section of highway partly in one township and partly in another, and not on the line between the two, the portion in each township should be regarded as a separate section, and separate proceedings should be carried forward as to the improvement of the portion of highway located in each township.

Under section 1214, G. C., fifteen per cent. of the cost and expense of an intercounty highway improvement, excepting therefrom the cost and expense of bridges and culverts, is to be apportioned to the township or townships in which such road is located, and ten per cent., excepting therefrom the cost and expense of bridges and culverts, is made a charge upon the property abutting on the improvement. Under section 1217, G. C., where the application for an intercounty highway improvement is made by the township trustees, the state may assume all or any part of the county's proportion of the cost of the improvement. The effect of these provisions is that where an improvement is made on the application of township trustees the township must assume and agree to pay, in the first instance, at least twenty-five per cent. of the cost of the work, exclusive of bridges and culverts.

The estimate for this work should be divided in accordance with the facts to show that the estimated cost of the work in Rush Creek township is $1,200.00, and that the estimated cost of the work in Bokes Creek township is $11,300.00. The $1,200.00 may be divided between the state and Rush Creek township in any manner that may be agreed upon, and a similar division may be made between the state and Bokes Creek township as to the $11,300.00, representing the estimated cost of the work in that township, with the qualification in each instance that the township must assume and agree to pay at least twenty-five per cent. of the cost of the work on the section of roadway within its territorial bounds, excluding therefrom bridges and culverts. The descriptions of the sections of roadway on which state aid is desired, and the descriptions of the sections of roadway, the improvement of which is approved by you, should also be corrected to correspond with the facts.

For the reasons above stated I am returning these final resolutions without my approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—INSURANCE COMPANIES—AGENTS' BALANCES —HOW TAXABLE.

Balances belonging to insurance companies, which are in the hands of agents in this state, on the day preceding the second Monday of April in any year, are taxable.

An agent's balance consists of: (1) Moneys collected by him during any current month from policy holders, and, under the prevailing practice, transmitted by said agent to the insurance company which he represents, on or about the first day of the month following their collection, less any amounts applied by said agent in taking up surrendered policies, (2) amounts at any time due the company from the policy holders, but uncollected by the agent, said amounts being charged against said agent on the books of the company, and considered as a part of said balance. That part of the agent's balance referred to in item one constitutes "moneys" as defined by section 5326, G. C., while that part of said balance referred to in item two constitutes "credits" of the company within the meaning of that term as defined by section 5327, G. C.

"Credits" in the hands of an agent, representing an insurance company in this state on the tax listing day of any year, which, under the provisions of the statutes must be returned for taxation, should be determined by deducting from the amount due said company, on account of business transacted by said agent, and not collected by him on said tax listing date, the bona fide debts of said company arising "from the same source," i. e., from the business so transacted.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 31, 1916.

Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of recent date you request my opinion on the following questions which you state have arisen in the administration of the Parrett-Whittemore law:

"1. Are balances belonging to insurance companies, which are in the hands of agents within this state, and are commonly known as agents' balances, taxable?

"2. Should the same be treated as money or as credits?

"3. If a part or all of said balances are credits, and are subject to taxation, what liabilities of the companies may be deducted from them?"

Permit me to say by way of explanation, that the answer to the above request has been delayed owing to the fact that at the time the same was made, Mr. O. B. Ryon, general counsel for the national board of fire underwriters, asked permission to file a brief on the foregoing questions and with the consent of your commission this request was granted. Said brief has just been filed with the department and reference will hereafter be made to the same.

The provisions of the statutes governing the return of the property of all incorporated companies, except banking or other corporations whose taxation is specifically provided for, are found in sections 5404, 5405 and 5406 of the General Code read in connection with sections 13, 14 and 15 of the so-called Parrett-Whittemore law (sections 5406-1, 5406-2 and 5406-3 of the General Code, 106 O. L., 249), and section 6 of said law (section 5372-1, G. C., 106 O. L., 247). Said provisions are as follows:

"Sec. 5404. The president, secretary, and principal accounting officer of every incorporated company, except banking or other corporations whose taxation is specifically provided for, for whatever purpose they may have been created, whether incorporated by a law of this state or not, shall list for taxation, verified by the oath of the person so listing, all the personal property thereof, and all real estate necessary to the daily operations of the company, moneys and credits of such company or corporation within the state, at the true value in money.

"Sec. 5405. Return shall be made to the several auditors of the respective counties where such property is situated, together with a statement of the amount thereof which is situated in each township, village, city, or taxing district therein. Upon receiving such returns, the auditor shall ascertain and determine the value of the property of such companies, and deduct from the aggregate sum so found of each, the value as assessed for taxation of any real estate included in the return. The value of the property of each of such companies, after so deducting the value of all the real estate included in the return, shall be apportioned by the auditor to such cities, villages, townships, or taxing districts, pro rata, in proportion to the value of the real estate and fixed property included in the return, in each of such cities, villages, townships, or taxing districts. The auditor shall place such apportioned valuation on the tax duplicate and taxes shall be levied and collected thereon at the same rate and in the same manner that taxes are levied and collected on other personal property in such township, village, city or taxing district.

"Sec. 5406. The auditor of each county, on or before the first Monday of May, annually, shall furnish the president, secretary, principal accounting officer, or agent as provided in the next two preceding sections, the necessary blanks for the purpose of making such returns, but neglect or failure on the part of the county auditor to furnish such blanks shall not excuse such president, secretary, accountant, or agent, from making the returns within the time specified herein. If the county auditor to whom returns are made is of the opinion that false or incorrect valuations have been made, that the property of the corporation or association has not been listed at its full value, or that it has not been listed in the location where it properly belongs, or if no return has been made to the county auditor, he must have the property valued and assessed. This section and the next preceding section shall not tax any stock or interest held by the state in a joint stock company.

pany is situated in more than one county, return shall be made to the county auditor of the county wherein the principal place of business of the company is located, or if the company has no principal place of business in this state, to the county auditor of any county wherein it transacts business or its property is situated. The county auditor to whom return is made shall certify the fact, together with the return and all information in his possession relating thereto, to the tax commission of Ohio, which shall ascertain and determine the aggregate value of the entire property of the company required to be listed in this state, and, from the aggregate sum so found, make the deductions provided in section fifty-four hundred and five of the General Code. The commission shall apportion the value of the property of such company, after making such deductions, among such counties in proportion to the value of the property located in each, and certify its findings to the county auditors, who shall severally apportion the amount certified to their respective counties, to the cities, villages, townships and other taxing districts therein, in the manner prescribed in section 5405 of the General Code.

"Sec. 5406-2 (106 O. L., 249). The county auditor shall enter the apportioned valuation provided for in the preceding section on the tax list and duplicate, separately entering the real estate belonging to the company at the assessed value thereof.

"Sec. 5406-3 (106 O. L. 249). In determining the location of property for the purpose of the two preceding sections, all moneys and credits used in or appertaining especially to a separate business transacted by an incorporated company at a particular place shall be deemed to be located at such place where the business is transacted, and moneys and credits not used in or appertaining especially to such separate business transacted at any particular place shall be deemed to be located at the principal place of business of such company.

"Sec. 5372-1, G. C. (106 O. L. 247). Personal property, moneys, credits, * * * in the possession or control of a person as * * * agent * * * on the day preceding the second Monday of April in any year, on account of any person or persons * * * or corporation, shall be listed by the person having the possession or control thereof and be entered upon the tax lists and duplicate in the name of such * * * agent, * * * adding to such name words briefly indicating the capacity in which such person has possession of or otherwise controls said property, and the name of the person * * * or corporation to whom it belongs * * *."

Your first question is answered by determining the answer to the question whether any of the foregoing provisions of the statutes make it the duty of an insurance company doing business in this state, or the agent of said company, to return for taxation moneys or credits in the hands of said agent on the day preceding the second Monday of April in any year and belonging to said company.

As I understand it, an agent's balance, so-called, in the state of Ohio, consists of:

(1) Moneys collected by him during any current month from policy holders and, under the prevailing practice, transmitted by said agent to the insurance company which he represents on or about the first day of the month following their collection, less any amounts applied by said agent in taking up surrendered policies, as hereinafter set forth;

(2) Amounts at any time due the company from the policy holders but uncollected by the agent, said amounts being charged against said agent on the books of the company and considered as a part of said balance.

While Mr. Ryon states that said balance cannot be used by the agent in any way; that the same belongs to the company and is so treated by both the company and the agent; that said balance is not in any instance used by the company in this state, and that the agent, in remitting collections, retains only such portion of the same as is due him for commissions under his contract with the company which he represents, I find upon investigation that the agent is usually authorized to take up cancelled policies at short time rates and pay for the same, and said cancelled policies are then returned to the company and the agent is credited with the amount paid by him for the same. In this way said agent, as the representative of his company, uses a part of all the money, collected by him, in the transaction of the business of said company.

The foregoing observations are justified by the further statement of Mr. Ryon in his brief, which statement is as follows:

> "In the early days of fire insurance, all contracts of this kind were for cash—indeed, credit was unknown; but as the business developed and became of greater complexity and commercial importance, it was found impracticable to collect cash for the policies issued at all times, and the system was inaugurated of permitting local agents to make periodical returns to the companies, presented usually at the end of each month, the agent being expected to collect premiums and to remit, less his commissions, with his account.
> "As the business developed, however, and its importance increased and further credit was extended, and while the agent is still required by all the companies, so far as I am advised, to render an account at the end of the month of all business transacted, showing a balance due and appearing upon his books at the time the account is made, as a practical proposition, he does not now remit, under ordinary circumstances, but has additional time, of from thirty to forty-five days, in which to make his collections, if possible and send the money to the companies he represents.
> "The account current, or monthly statement, is handled upon the books of the companies as a debit against the agency and may be liquidated either in cash or by the surrender of cancelled policies, or from payments which the agent has made in behalf of the company.
> "It frequently happens that policies are accounted for by the agent to the company, which as a matter of fact are never paid, and in that event the agent squares his account with the company by returning the cancelled policy."

It will be observed that that part of the agent's balance referred to in item one, above set forth, constitutes "moneys" as defined by section 5326, G. C., while that part of said balance referred to in item two, constitutes "credits" of the company within the meaning of that term as defined by section 5327, G. C.

Mr. Ryon contends that these funds are transitory in the hands of the agents are not subject to their control and, being collected in the course of the ordinary business and for practically immediate transmission to their superiors, are not subject to a property tax under any condition.

Mr. Ryon argues that the supreme court of Ohio has never passed upon this question; that there is no specific provision of the Ohio statutes on the subject and in support of his proposition as above stated he cites the following adjudicated cases by the courts of other states:

> Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. v. Newark, 62 N. J. L. R. 74;
> Village of Howell v. Gordon, 127 Mich. 317;
> New York Life Insurance Co. v. Board of Assessors, 158 L. A. 462.

In support of the proposition that the "credits" referred to in item two, above set forth, are not returnable for taxation in Ohio, Mr. Ryon calls attention to the definition of that term by chief justice McGruder, speaking for the supreme court of Illinois, in Reat v. People, 201 Ill., 469, as follows:

> "Where a foreigner has an agent within the state, by whom investments are made, who collects the income and transmits it to his principal, it is usually held that 'credits' have a situs in the hands of the agent within the state and may be taxed there * * *
> "If, however, the credit is left in the hands of an agent in the state not for investment, but merely to be collected and the proceeds transmitted to the owner abroad, the better view is that it is not property within the state.
> "Where the owner of such credits or securities is a non-resident of Illinois, and is absent from the state, his securities, remaining in this state in the hands of an agent, are only subject to taxation in this state when they are so left in the hands of the agent for the purpose of having them renewed or collected, in order that the money realized from such renewal or collection may be re-loaned by the agent as a permanent business. The credits of the non-resident owner, so remaining in Illinois, must constitute the subject matter or stock in trade of the business of the owner as conducted by the agent."

I have examined the foregoing, as well as other citations of Mr. Ryon, in support of his conclusion that the funds in question are not subject to taxation in this state, and have carefully considered the case note in 55 L. R. A. (n. s.) at pages 903 et seq. on the subject of situs, as between different states or countries, of personal property for taxation. If Mr. Ryon were correct in his assumption that no specific provision of the Ohio statutes requires the return of the funds under consideration for taxation, and the further assumption that said funds are in no way subject to the control of the agent, the authorities cited by him would clearly support the conclusion reached by him and I would be compelled to concur with him in said conclusion. That said assumptions are incorrect, in view of the plain provisions of section 6 of the Parrett-Whittemore law (section 5372-1, G. C.) and in view of what has already been said relative to the practice of insurance companies in authorizing their agents in this state to take up surrendered policies and pay for the same, seems clear.

Section 2 of article XII of the constitution provides:

> "Laws shall be passed, taxing by uniform rule, all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise; and also all real and personal property according to its true value in money. * * *"

I find no provision of the statute attempting to exempt the funds under consideration from taxation. There can be no question therefore that in so far as domestic insurance companies are concerned said funds must be returned either by the proper officers of the company under provision of section 5404, et seq., of the General Code, or by the agent himself under provision of section 5372-1, G. C., supra. It remains to be determined in answering your first question whether said balances in the hands of agents representing foreign insurance companies doing business in this state, must be returned under any of the foregoing provisions of the statutes.

In this connection it must be noted that the tax provided for in section 5433 G. C. (106 O. L. 502) is in the nature of a tax upon the right to do business and is not a tax upon property.

See:

Insurance Co. v. Bowland, 196 U. S. 611;
Assurance Co. v. Halliday, 110 Fed. 259;

Insurance Co. v. Halliday, 126 Fed. 257;
Assurance Co. v. Halliday, 127 Fed. 830.

As I view it, the fact that the agent of the foreign insurance company doing business in this state is authorized to apply a part or all of the money collected by him in any month to the taking up of surrendered policies and as stated by Mr. Ryon, "other payments which the agent has made in behalf of the company," distinguishes the question under consideration from the question passed upon by the courts in the cases above cited. But apart from this consideration, I am clearly of the opinion that it was the intention of the legislature, in enacting the provisions of section 5372-1 G. C., supra, to require the return for taxation of just such funds as those referred to in your first question.

It will be observed that under the plain terms of the provisions of this section moneys or credits in the possession or control of a person as agent of a corporation, on the day preceding the second Monday of April in any year, on account of such corporation, must be listed by such agent having the possession or control thereof and be entered upon the tax list and duplicate in the name of said agent, said section further providing that there shall be added to such name words briefly indicating the capacity in which such agent has possession of or otherwise controls said property and the name of the corporation to whom it belongs.

While it may be true, as stated by Mr. Ryon, that if the tax commission insists upon this assessment and requires insurance companies to pay taxes upon said balances, said companies will so arrange their business in the state of Ohio that the balances in the future will not exist, this does not alter the conclusion above expressed as to the duty of the agent to return said balances in his hands on the tax listing day in any year.

I am of the opinion therefore, in answer to your first question, that moneys, and credits as hereinafter defined, belonging to insurance companies, which are in the hands of agents within this state on the day preceding the second Monday of April in any year, must be returned for taxation.

Your second question has been answered in determining the answer to your first question.

Coming now to a consideration of your third question, it will be observed that under provision of section 5406-3, G. C., supra, "all moneys and credits used in or appertaining especially to a separate business transacted by an incorporated company at a particular place shall be deemed to be located at such place where the business is transacted." This provision of section 5406-3, G. C., read in connection with the provisions of section 5372-1, G. C., supra, makes it clear that the duty rests primarily on the agent of an insurance company, doing business in this state, to return for taxation moneys and credits in his hands on the tax listing day in any year and realized from the particular business transacted by him as the representative of said company. It is equally clear that the effect of the enactment of said provisions of said sections, in so far as the return of credits is concerned, is to carry into the statutes, governing the return of such credits for taxation, the limitation declared by the courts in the case of Hubbard v. Brush, 61 O. S., 252. The second and third branches of the syllabus in that case are as follows:

"2. Choses in action, whether book accounts, promissory notes, or the like, of foreign corporations that are kept in this state and arise out of the corporate business transacted here, are subject to taxation under the provisions of section 2744, Revised Statutes.

"3. Such corporation, in listing for taxation its 'credits' liable to taxation in this state, may, under the provisions of section 2730, Revised Statutes (section 5327, G. C.), deduct from its claims and demands that arise out of the business it transacts in this state, such of its bona fide debts as arise from the same source."

In view of the foregoing, I am of the opinion in answer to your third question that the "credits" in the hands of an agent, representing an insurance company in this state, on the tax listing day of any year, which, under the provisions of the statute must be returned for taxation, should be determined by deducting from the amount due said company, on account of business transacted by said agent, and not collected by him on said tax listing date, the bona fide debts of said company arising "from the same source," i. e., from the business so transacted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE OF UNITED STATES—RURAL POST ROADS—CERTAIN REQUIRED INFORMATION BEFORE STATE ENTITLED TO FEDERAL AID FOR RURAL POST ROADS.

Information requested by secretary of agriculture as to the constitution and laws of Ohio, which is required in connection with the administration of the act of congress approved July 11, 1916, public No. 156, entitled "An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 31, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of July 20, 1916, enclosing communication from the secretary of agriculture touching the act of congress approved July 11, 1916, and entitled "An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes." I note your request that I prepare replies to the inquiries submitted by the secretary of agriculture, whose communication to you reads as follows:

"Enclosed herewith there is sent you a copy of the act of congress approved July 11, 1916 (public No. 156), entitled 'An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes.'

"It is desired to proceed with the administration of the statute as promptly as practicable. It will be appreciated if you will forward, or cause to be forwarded, to this department, information with respect to your state as follows:

"1. Date of meeting, and the date of final adjournment if fixed by law, of the first regular session of the legislature held after the passage of the act, within the meaning of section 1 of the act, together with references to the provisions of the constitution and statutes of your state on the subject.

"2. References to the provisions, if any, of the constitution and statutes of your state dealing with tolls of any kind on roads, within the meaning of section 1 of the act.

"3. References to the provisions, if any, of the constitution and statutes of your state relating to the state highway department or to any department of another name, or commission, or official or officials, empowered, under the laws of your state, to exercise the functions ordinarily exercised by a state highway department, within the meaning of section 2 of the act.

"4. If the question be at all open to doubt, an opinion of the attorney-general, or other appropriate law officer of your state, as to whether your state has a highway department within the meaning of section 2 of the act.

"5. The names and addresses of the officials constituting the state highway department, if any, of your state.

"6. Two copies of the rules and regulations, if any, adopted by your state highway department.

"7. References to the provisions, if any, of the constitution and statutes of your state prohibiting the state from engaging in any work of internal improvements, within the meaning of section 3 of the act.

"8. References to the provisions of the constitution and statutes of your state dealing with construction work and labor in the state, within the meaning of section 6 of the act.

"9. References to the provisions of the constitution and statutes of your state dealing with the official, or officials, or depository, authorized under the laws of the state to receive public funds of the state or any county of the state, within the meaning of section 6 of the act.

"10. References to the provisions of the constitution and statutes of your state dealing with the duties of the state or its civil subdivisions with respect to the maintenance of roads, within the meaning of section 7 of the act.

"11. References to the provisions of the constitution and statutes of your state prescribing the authority and duty of the counties with respect to public roads, including all special legislation affecting particular counties."

I will answer the inquiries submitted by the secretary of agriculture in the order in which he has stated them.

1. The date of meeting of the first regular session of the legislature of Ohio to be held after the passage of the act referred to is the first Monday of January, 1917. The date of final adjournment of such session of the legislature is not fixed by law. Section 25 of article II of the constitution of Ohio reads as follows:

"All regular sessions of the general assembly shall commence on the first Monday of January, biennially. The first session, under this constitution, shall commence on the first Monday of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two."

The section above quoted was a part of the original constitution of 1851.

On November 7, 1905, article XVII of the constitution of Ohio was adopted, and section I of this article reads as follows:

"Elections for state and county officers shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in the even numbered years; and all elections for all other elective officers shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in the odd numbered years."

In the case of State ex rel. v. Creamer, treasurer, 83 O. S., 412, decided March 28, 1911, the second branch of the syllabus reads as follows:

> "The express provisions of the constitution of the state establish such relation between the election of state officers and the convening of the general assembly that since the seventeenth article, adopted in 1905, has expressly changed the date of the election from November of the odd numbered years to the same month of the even numbered years, the provision for the convening of the regular session of the general assembly then elected must be regarded as changed by implication from the first Monday of January in the even numbered years to the first Monday of the same month in the odd numbered years."

The two constitutional provisions referred to above and the case of State ex rel. v. Creamer, treasurer, supra, are authority for the statement that the date of meeting of the first regular session of the legislature of Ohio to be held after the date of the passage of the act referred to, which date is July 11, 1916, is the first Monday of January, 1917. As before observed, the date of final adjournment of the legislature is not fixed by the constitution or laws, but is left to be fixed by the general assembly. The only pertinent constitutional provisions are section 14 of article II and section 9 of article III.

Section 14 of article II reads as follows:

> "Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than two days, Sundays excluded; nor to any other place than that, in which the two houses shall be in session."

Section 9 of article III reads as follows:

> "In case of disagreement between the two houses, in respect to the time of adjournment, he (the governor) shall have power to adjourn the general assembly to such time as he may think proper, but not beyond the regular meetings thereof."

From the above it will be seen that the date of final adjournment of the next regular session of the general assembly of Ohio remains to be fixed by a joint resolution to be adopted by the two houses of such general assembly.

2. There is not in Ohio any constitutional or statutory authority for the expenditure of funds of the state or of any political subdivision thereof in the construction or repair of roads that are not free from tolls. Section 19 of article I of the constitution of Ohio reads as follows:

> "Private property shall ever be held inviolate but subservient to the public welfare. When taken in time of war, or other public exigency, imperatively requiring its immediate seizure of for the purpose of making or repairing roads, which shall be open to the public, without charge, a compensation shall be made to the owner, in money, and in all other cases, where private property shall be taken for public use, a compensation therefor shall first be made in money, or first secured by a deposit of money, and such compensation shall be assessed by a jury, without deduction for benefits to any property of the owner."

In order that the unusual powers conferred by this section of the constitution may be exercised with respects to roads, it is necessary that such roads shall be open to the public without charge. Toll roads formerly existed in Ohio but their abolition was brought about by the enactment of senate bill No. 172, 101 O. L., 397, which bill was passed on May 10, 1910, and is entitled "An act supplemental to section 7405 of the General Code and to authorize and empower county commissioners to acquire toll roads." This act contains four sections, numbered from 7405-1 to 7405-4, inclusive, of the General Code of Ohio, and the purpose and scope of the act is sufficiently indicated by the first two sentences of the first section thereof, which sentences read as follows:

> "In any county in which is located any portion of toll road or toll turnpike in existence at the time of the passage of this act, the county commissioners thereof shall proceed to condemn or appropriate such road or turnpike for the purpose of converting it into a free public thoroughfare. Within six months after the passage of this act the county commissioners shall pass a resolution declaring such intent, defining the purposes of the appropriation, setting forth a pertinent description of the road and the estate or interest therein desired to be appropriated."

There are not now in Ohio any toll roads, controlled either by the state or its political subdivisions or by private corporations.

3. Section 2 of the act of congress provides that the term "state highway department" shall be construed to include any department of another name, or commission, or official or officials, of a state empowered, under its laws, to exercise the functions ordinarily exercised by a state highway department. The constitution of Ohio contains no provision relating to the state highway department. The statutory provisions relating to this department are found in amended senate bill No. 125, 106 O. L. 574, and more particularly in chapter VIII of that bill, which chapter relates to the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of roads and bridges by the state highway department. The sections of this chapter are numbered from 1178 to 1231-3, inclusive, of the General Code of Ohio. This chapter contains the major portion of the statutory provisions relating to the state highway department, although certain provisions relating to that department are also to be found in other chapters of amended senate bill No. 125, and especially in chapters VII, X and XI thereof.

4. There can be no doubt of the fact that the state of Ohio has a highway department within the meaning of section 2 of the act of congress, referred to by the secretary of agriculture.

Section 171 of amended senate bill No. 125, 106 O. L. 574, 623, being section 1178 G. C., contains the following provision:

> "There shall be a state highway department for the purpose of affording instruction, assistance, and co-operation in the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of the public roads and bridges of the state, under the provisions of this chapter."

5. Section 1178 G. C., referred to above, also contains the following provision:

> "The governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a state highway commissioner, who shall serve for the term of four years, unless sooner removed by the governor."

The state highway commissioner, Hon. Clinton Cowen, Columbus, Ohio, therefore constitutes the state highway department of Ohio within the meaning of the fifth question submitted by the secretary of agriculture.

6. I understand by inquiry at the office of the state highway commissioner that no rules and regulations have been adopted by the state highway department within the meaning of the sixth question as I understand the same.

The procedure of the state highway department is regulated by the provisions of amended senate bill No. 125, referred to above, and there is, therefore, no necessity for the adoption of rules and regulations. The state highway commissioner, acting under the authority of section 249 of amended senate bill No. 125, being section 7246 G. C., has prepared and published a set of traffic rules and regulations governing the use of and traffic on all state roads, but, as I understand the question of the secretary of agriculture, the same does not relate to rules and regulations of this class. It might be wise, however, to procure from the state highway commissioner two copies of such traffic rules and regulations and forward the same to the secretary of agriculture.

7. There is no constitutional or statutory provision in Ohio prohibiting the state from engaging in the work of internal improvements. Section 6 of article XII of the constitution of Ohio only goes so far as to provide that except as otherwise provided in the constitution the state shall never contract any debt for purposes of internal improvement. This only goes so far as to prohibit the contracting of debts, and does not prohibit the state from engaging in the work of internal improvement.

8. Section 6 of the act of congress, now under consideration, provides that the construction work and labor in each state shall be done in accordance with its laws. In so far as construction work of the state highway department is concerned the matter is regulated by statute, and the pertinent provisions are to be found in chapter VIII of amended senate bill No. 125, referred to above, the sections of the chapter being numbered from 1178 to 1231-3, inclusive, of the General Code of Ohio.

Under section 1196 G. C. plans, specifications, profiles and estimates must be made by the state highway commissioner. Under section 1200 G. C. the surveys maps, plans, profiles, specifications and estimates for a proposed improvement must be adopted by the local authorities co-operating in the making of the improvement. Under section 1206 G. C. the state highway commissioner must advertise for bids and is required to award the contract to the lowest and best bidder. Under section 1208 G. C. a bond must be furnished by the contractor before the contract is entered into, the conditions of the bond being set forth in this section. Section 1212 G. C. relates to the method of payment, and sections 1213 and 1214 G. C. relate to the division of the cost and expense of an improvement. It is provided by section 1212 G. C. that no payment on account of a contract for any improvement shall, before the completion of said contract, exceed eighty-five per cent. of the value of the work performed to the date of such payment.

I have referred to some of the more important provisions of the statutes of Ohio relating to construction work carried forward by the state highway department, but the question of the secretary of agriculture might be fully answered by the observation that the constitution of Ohio contains no provision relating especially to construction work carried forward by that department, and that the statutory provisions governing the same are found in sections 1178 to 1231-3, inclusive, of the General Code of Ohio.

In so far as labor is concerned reference should be had to section 37 of article II of the constitution of Ohio, which section reads as follows:

> "Except in cases of extraordinary emergencies, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work, and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work, for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract, or otherwise."

Reference should also be had to house bill No. 100, 103 O. L. 854, the sections of which are numbered 17-1 and 17-2 of the General Code of Ohio, which act makes it unlawful for any person, corporation or association, whose duty it shall be to employ or to direct and control the services of workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract or otherwise, to require or permit any of such workmen to labor more than eight hours in any calendar day, or more than forty-eight hours in any week, except in cases of extraordinary emergencies. Any person violating the provisions of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction is liable to fine or imprisonment, or both.

9. Speaking in a general way the state treasurer is under the laws of Ohio authorized to receive public funds of the state, and the county treasurer of each county is authorized to receive public funds belonging to his county. The office of treasurer of state is created by section 1 of article III of the constitution of Ohio, and the office of county treasurer is recognized by section 3 of article X of the constitution of Ohio. While there are other scattered provisions in the General Code of Ohio relating to the duties of the treasurer of state, the principal statutory provisions governing his powers and duties are to be found in the first subdivision of chapter 4, division I title III, part first, of the General Code of Ohio, being sections 296 to 320-1, inclusive, of said General Code.

The election of a county treasurer is provided for by section 2632 G. C., and the powers and duties of the county treasurer are prescribed by the first subdivision of chapter 4, division II, title X, part first, of the General Code of Ohio, being sections 2632 to 2698, inclusive, of said General Code. There are many other scattered provisions of the General Code of Ohio relating to the duties of treasurer of state and county treasurer with which provisions the secretary of agriculture is probably not concerned, but his attention should be directed to section 24 G. C., as amended in 104 O. L. 178, which section provides for the disposition of taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, fees, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals and other moneys received for the state; to the provision of section 1224 G. C., 106 O. L. 641, to the effect that nothing in the chapter in which this section is found shall be construed so as to prohibit a county, township or municipality or the federal government, or any individual or corporation from contributing a portion of the cost of the construction, maintenance and repair of state highways; and to section 1228 G. C., 106 O. L. 643, which section reads as follows:

> "If funds from the federal government for improvements or maintenance of highways shall become available, such funds shall be apportioned by the state highway commissioner, to the counties, in proportion to the mileage of improved public highways therein, unless a different method of apportionment shall be designated by the federal government. The state highway commissioner is authorized to enter into any agreement with the federal government that he deems proper, in order to secure any funds available for road purposes."

I express no opinion at the present time as to the effect of all of the above provisions, taken together; but, as above suggested, the attention of the secretary of agriculture should be called to the same.

10. The constitution of Ohio contains no provision relating to the maintenance of roads by the state or its political subdivisions. This matter is regulated by a number of sections of amended senate bill No. 125, 106 O. L. 574, and more particularly by section 241 of said act, being section 7464 G. C., which section divides the public highways of the state into three classes, viz.: State roads, county roads and township roads, and provides that state roads shall be maintained by the state highway department, county roads by the county commissioners, and township roads by the township trustees.

Section 238 of said act, being section 6956-1 G. C., provides for a mandatory tax levy by county commissioners for the repair and maintenance of bridges and county highways, and section 239 of the act, being section 3298-18 G. C., provides for a mandatory tax levy for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of township roads. Under section 217 of the act, being section 1224 G. C., the state highway commissioner is required to maintain and repair all inter-county highways, main market roads, bridges and culverts constructed by the state by the aid of state money or taken over by the state after being constructed. Under this section, counties, townships, municipalities, the federal government, individuals or corporations may contribute a portion of the cost of constructing, maintaining and repairing state highways.

11. There is no provision in the constitution of Ohio relating to the authority and duty of counties with respect to public roads. This matter is controlled by the provisions of amended senate bill No. 125, 106 O. L., 574, and more particularly by the provisions of chapters I, II, VI, VII, IX, X and XI of that act. There is no special road legislation in Ohio affecting particular counties.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

RURAL POST ROADS—FORM OF ASSENT BY GOVERNOR TO ENTITLE STATE TO FEDERAL AID.

Form of assent by the Governor to the provisions of the act of congress approved July 11, 1916 (public No. 156), entitled "An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 31, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of July 19, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "I am enclosing herewith a communication from the secretary of agriculture, together with copy of the act of congress of July 11, 1916, relative to state aid in the construction of rural post roads. You will note in paragraph 1 that provision is made for assent of the states to the terms of the statute. I thought it proper to refer this communication to you with the request that you will prepare the form of the assent provided for in section 1 of the act. It might be desirable in this connection for you to call in the state highway commissioner for consultation concerning this matter."

The communication addressed to you by the secretary of agriculture reads as follows:

> "Inclosed herewith there is sent you a copy of the act of congress approved July 11, 1916 (public No. 156), entitled 'An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes.'
> "Your attention is invited to the provisions of section 1 with respect to the assent of the states to the terms of the statutes. If your state decides to assent, it will be appreciated if the instrument evidencing that fact is executed in duplicate and forwarded to this department."

Section 1 of the act in question contains the following provision:

"Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that the secretary of agriculture is authorized to co-operate with the states, through their respective state highway departments, in the construction of rural post roads; but no money apportioned under this act to any state shall be expended therein until its legislature shall have assented to the provisions of this act, except that, until the final adjournment of the first regular session of the legislature held after the passage of this act, the assent of the governor of the state shall be sufficient."

The secretary of agriculture evidently refers to the assent which may be given by the governor of a state, and which assent under the terms of section 1 of the act is effective until the date of the final adjournment of the first regular session of the legislature of such state held after the passage of the act. The secretary of agriculture makes no suggestions as to the form of such assent other than that the same should be executed in duplicate.

In the absence of any suggestion from the federal authorities as to the form of assent desired by them, I suggest that your assent to the provisions of the act may be given in the following form:

"Office of the Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio----------1916.

"I, Frank B. Willis, Governor of Ohio, hereby assent to the provisions of the act of congress approved July 11, 1916 (Public No. 156), entitled "An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes.

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand on the day and year first above written.

"Governor of Ohio.

APPROVAL, CONTRACT FOR CONSTRUCTION OF FISH HATCHERIES AT LAKE ST. MARYS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 2, 1916.

Board of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—A few days ago you submitted to me the specifications for the construction of fish hatcheries at Lake St. Marys, the contract for the building of which hatcheries you advise me has been let to the M. E. Murphy Company, and you request me to prepare contract therefor.

Upon an examination of the specifications I noted that a blank form of contract had already been inserted therein, which on examination I deem to fully cover the requirements and have therefore caused the proper words to be inserted in the blank space and herewith return the same to you.

The contract calls for the construction of a hatchery. Such a construction is not within the provisions of section 2314 et seq., G. C., not being for the erection, alteration or improvement of a state institution or buildings or additions thereto. Consequently, the restrictions of section 2314 et seq., G. C., relative to entering into a state contract do not apply to the contract in question.

The money that is to be used for the payment of the contract is part of the amount appropriated in section 1460 G. C., 106 O. L. 174, as follows:

> "All fines, penalties and forfeitures arising from prosecutions, convictions, confiscation or otherwise under this act, unless otherwise directed by the board of agriculture shall be paid by the officer by whom the fine is collected to the board of agriculture and by it paid into the state treasury to the credit of a fund which is hereby appropriated for the use of the board of agriculture."

The bill in which said section is found was passed on April 21, 1915, approved April 21, 1915, and the appropriation therein is at present available.

Since under the resolution passed by the board of agriculture the secretary of the board of agriculture, together with the fish and game committee, is authorized to award the contract, I am of the opinion that it will be sufficient if the secretary of the board of agriculture and the fish and game committee sign the contract.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—PURCHASE OF ITS OWN STOCK—PREVIOUSLY SUBSCRIBED, ISSUED AND OUTSTANDING—NOT RESTORED TO STATUS OF UNISSUED STOCK—CONTINUES TO RETAIN ITS CHARACTER—TAX COMPUTED UPON ALL ITS SUBSCRIBED OR ISSUED AND OUTSTANDING STOCK REGARDLESS OF FACT CORPORATION HAS PURCHASED PORTION OF ITS STOCK.

The purchase by a corporation of its own stock, which has been previously subscribed, issued and outstanding, does not restore such stock to the status of unissued stock. It continues to retain its character as subscribed, issued and outstanding stock.

The fee or tax required of a corporation under section 5498 G. C. should be computed upon all its subscribed, or issued and outstanding stock, regardless of the fact that a portion of such stock has been subsequently acquired and is owned by the corporation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 2, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—I have your letter of July 11, 1916, requesting my opinion, as follows:

> "The France Slag Company, a domestic corporation for profit, in 1915, reported $250,000.00 as the amount of its subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock. In 1916, under the same item, it reported $125,000.00. In response to an inquiry by the commission as to the difference in these amounts, we received the following explanation:
> " 'The France Slag Company has an authorized capital stock of $250,000.00, all common. At the time it made its Willis tax report for the year 1915 its entire authorized capital stock was issued and outstanding. In January, 1916, upon a sale of a portion of its assets, $125,000.00 par value of the capital stock was surrendered to the company. This was done on the theory that the stock so surrendered became unissued stock and was not done for the purpose of reducing the capital stock of the company. The stock is in this situation: That the company, if it cares to do so, may again sell this stock to third persons. We are treating it as though it were unissued and not treasury stock, and as though the same had never been subscribed for, inasmuch as the company has parted with assets which represented that amount of stock.'
> "In view of the facts as stated above, what amount should be determined by this commission to represent the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of the France Slag Company for the year 1916? As the same question is involved in reports of other corporations, an early reply to this question would be greatly appreciated."

I am also in receipt of a letter from counsel for the France Slag Company, from which I quote only so much as sets forth the facts from which arises the question to be considered:

> "A corporation filed its report in 1915, showing an authorized capital stock of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, all common, all of which stock was subscribed for and was issued and outstanding at the time. Sometime prior to May, 1916, the corporation sold a portion of its assets to some of its stockholders, in consideration of which the purchasing stockholders surrendered their stock aggregating one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, par value, to the corporation, the certificates evidencing which stock were canceled, and the stock was treated thereafter as unissued stock, as distinguished from treasury stock. The corporation in May, 1916, filed its Willis tax report with the state tax commission, and set out in this report that the amount of capital stock subscribed for, issued and outstanding, was one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, being the balance of the authorized capital stock remaining outstanding after the surrender to the company of the above mentioned one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of stock. No certificate of reduction covering the one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of stock has as yet been filed.

"QUERY: Must the corporation pay its Willis tax for 1916 based upon its original issued and outstanding stock?"

Sections 5495, 5497 and 5498 of the General Code, requiring corporations organized under the laws of Ohio to file an annual report with the Tax commission of Ohio, specifying in detail the contents of such report, and prescribing the basis for computing the annual fee or tax to be paid by such corporations, are as follows:

"Section 5495. Between the first day of May and the first day of July, 1911, and annually thereafter during the month of May, each corporation, organized under the laws of this state for profit, shall make a report, in writing, to the commission, in such form as the commission may prescribe.

"Section 5497. Such report shall contain:

"1. The name of the corporation.

"2. The location of its principal office.

"3. The names of the president, secretary, treasurer and members of the board of directors, with the postoffice address of each.

"4. The date of the annual election of officers.

"5. The amount of authorized capital stock and the par value of each share.

"6. The amount of capital stock subscribed, the amount of capital stock issued and outstanding, and the amount of capital stock paid up.

"7. The nature and kind of business in which the corporation is engaged and its place or places of business.

"8. The change or changes, if any, in the above particulars, made since the last annual report."

"Section 5498. Upon the filing of the report, provided for in the last three preceding sections, the commission, after finding such report to be correct, shall, on the first Monday of July, determine the amount of the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of each such corporation. On the first Monday in August the commission shall certify the amount so determined by it to the auditor of state, who shall charge for collection, on or before August fifteenth, as herein provided, from such corporation, a fee of three-twentieths of one per cent. upon its subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock. which fee shall not be less than ten dollars in any case. Such fee shall be payable to the treasurer of state on or before the first day of the following October."

The last quoted section (5498) requires the annual fee or tax to be computed upon the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of the corporation, and under opinion No. 1274, rendered February 15, 1916, I advised your commission that the effect of this language was to require the fee to be computed upon all subscribed stock, regardless of whether or not the same was issued and outstanding.

The facts presented disclose that all the authorized capital stock of The France

Slag Company, amounting to $250,000.00, was, prior to January, 1916, subscribed, issued and outstanding, but that thereafter the corporation purchased, and from its assets paid for $125,000.00 of its stock, which stock has since been considered and treated by the corporation as authorized but unissued stock.

An Ohio corporation is not authorized, except under special circumstances which are not shown to have existed in connection with the affairs of The Franch Slag Company, to purchase or deal in its own capital stock. Therefore, the legality of the transaction, whereby this corporation purchased one-half of its own capital stock, is open to question. Passing this question, however, the fact remains that The France Slag Company purchased and is now the owner of $125,000.00 of its capital stock, which was heretofore subscribed, issued and outstanding. Assuming the legality of the transaction, the stock so purchased became and now is treasury stock.

In opinion No. 1274, above referred to, the following language is used:

> "As I understand the term, 'treasury stock' of a corporation is subscribed and issued stock which has later become the property of the corporation. The mere fact that this stock is an asset of and owned by the corporation itself does not take away its character as subscribed stock."

Section 8700, General Code, prescribes the only method whereby an Ohio corporation may secure a reduction in the amount of its authorized capital stock, and is as follows:

> "Section 8700. With the written consent of the persons in whose names a majority of the shares of the capital stock thereof stands on its books, the board of directors of such a corporation may reduce the amount of its capital stock and the nominal value of all the shares thereof, and issue certificates therefor. The rights of creditors shall not be affected thereby, and a certificate of such action shall be filed with the secretary of state."

As a corporation is purely a creature of law, it must, in order to exercise a power or privilege conferred by law, comply with all the essential requirements and conditions prescribed by such law. From the statement of facts presented in the letter of its counsel, The France Slag Company has failed to exercise the power conferred by said section 8700 of the General Code, and has admittedly filed no certificate of reduction covering the $125,000.00 of its capital stock purchased by it.

The mere fact that the corporation owns and has elected to treat such stock as unissued does not change its legal character or take away its status as subscribed stock, upon which the fee or tax authorized by section 5498 General Code, should be computed and collected.

I therefore advise you that the fee required by said section 5498 General Code, to be collected from The France Slag Company, should be computed upon the corporation's entire authorized capital stock of $250,000.00.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

WHEN A PERSON BORN OF ALIEN PARENTS IS A NATURAL BORN CITIZEN OF UNITED STATES—WHEN AN ELECTOR—CHINAMEN AND JAPANESE.

A person born in the United States of alien parents then lawfully and permanently domiciled within the United States, and not employed in any diplomatic or official capacity under any foreign government, is a natural born citizen of the United States, and if possessed of the qualifications enumerated and referred to in section 1 of article V of the constitution of Ohio, is an elector, and entitled to vote at all elections, without regard to race or color.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 3, 1916.

HON. JOHN C. D'ALTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Toledo, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of July 27, 1916, is as follows:

> "We enclose you herewith a copy of letter this day sent to our deputy board of state supervisors, which is self-explanatory. Will you kindly give us your opinion with respect thereto at as early a date as convenient."

Your letter addressed to the board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections of your county, to which you refer, a copy of which is enclosed, is as follows:

> "We have your letter of date July 26th, as follows:
> " 'Will you please advise this board if a Chinaman or Japanese, born in this country, under the laws of the United States, has the rights to a franchise and have we the rights to register and allow him to vote at the coming elections.
> " 'Immediate reply will be greatly appreciated by this board.'
> "Section 1 of article V of the constitution of Ohio provides as follows:
> " 'Every white male citizen of the United States of the age of 21 years, who shall have been a resident of the state one year next preceding the election, and of the county, township or ward in which he resides until such time as may be provided by law, shall have the qualifications of an elector, and be entitled to vote at all elections.'
> "The restriction, namely, 'white, male citizen,' in the elective franchise was abrogated by the 15th amendment to the constitution of the United States, which provides as follows:
> " 'The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.'
> "The supreme court of the United States has held in 169 U. S., at page 649, as follows:
> " 'A child born in the United States, of parents of Chinese descent who, at the time of his birth, are subjects of the Emperor of China, but having permanent domicile and residence in the United States, and are there carrying on business, and are not employed in any diplomatic or official capacity under the Emperor of China, becomes, at the time of his birth, a citizen of the United States by virtue of the first clause in the 14th amendment of the constitution:

"From the quotations above noted, we are of the opinion that a Chinaman born in this country, whose parents have a permanent domicile in the United States, and whose parents are not employed in any diplomatic or official capacity under the Emperor of China, is, under the constitution of Ohio and United States, an elector, entitled to exercise the right of franchise in Ohio; but, as we are advised in a conversation over the telephone with your clerk that the registration laws of Ohio do not provide the necessary means of ascertaining the facts as to the residence of the parents of a Chinaman asking for this right, and, as we feel that if this privilege is asked for indiscriminately by such a number of Chinamen, namely, about 50, as you say, that will apply to your board for registration, and as this apparently might open the door to wholesale frauds of the election laws, we have for these reasons submitted to the attorney-general your letter for his official opinion.

"You will therefore kindly hold our opinion in abeyance until we have heard from the attorney-general."

In view of the provisions of section I of article V of the constitution of Ohio, the question of citizenship suggests itself as of first concern in the consideration of your inquiry. Section I of the 14th amendment of the constitution of the United States provides in part as follows:

"All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside."

Under this constitutional provision, the case of the United States v. Wong Kim, Ark., 169 U. S., 649, 42 L. Ed., 890, to which you refer in your letter to the board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections, the first branch of the syllabus of which is quoted therein, was decided. The rule laid down in that case is clearly determinative of the citizenship of persons born within the United States of alien parentage, subjects of the Emperor of China, who have a lawful permanent domicile within the United States and are there carrying on business and are not employed in any diplomatic or official capacity under any foreign government, and from the rule there laid down it clearly follows that a person, of whatever race, who is born within the United States of parents not employed in any diplomatic capacity under any foreign government, who are lawfully and permanently domiciled therein, is by reason thereof a natural born citizen of the United States. So that if the persons to which reference is made by the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, in their inquiry addressed to you, come within the rule laid down in that case, they are beyond question citizens of the United States and subject to the provisions of section 1 of article V of the constitution of the state of Ohio, that:

"Every white male citizen of the United States, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of the state one year next preceding the election, and of the county, township or ward in which he resides such time as may be provided by law, shall have the qualifications of an elector and be entitled to vote at all elections."

This constitutional provision is, however, subject to the provision of the fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, that:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

So that by operation of the provision of this amendment to the federal constitution, the word "white" is, in effect, eliminated from section 1 of article V of the constitution of Ohio, above quoted, and the effect of this latter provision is, therefore, that every male citizen of the United States, having the qualifications therein enumerated, shall be entitled to vote at all elections and such right may not be in any way restricted by reason of the race or color of any citizen of the United States.

From the foregoing it conclusively follows that a person who was born in the United States, and who has all the qualifications enumerated in and referred to by said section 1 of article V of the constitution of Ohio, may not be barred from the exercise of the elective franchise solely by reason of alien parentage or on account of his race. I am, therefore, of opinion, that a person who was born in the United States of Chinese parents, who were then lawfully and permanently domiciled within the United States, there carrying on business and not employed in any diplomatic or official capacity under any foreign government, is a natural born citizen of the United States, and if possessed of the qualifications enumerated and referred to in section 1 of article V of the constitution of Ohio, is an elector, and entitled to vote at all elections.

Whether an individual is a native born citizen of the United States within the rule laid down in the above mentioned case is a question of fact to be determined in every case, whether such person be of Chinese or other foreign parentage. If doubt exists as to the nativity of any person who assumes the right to exercise the elective franchise, such question may be determined upon challenge in any case.

There is further reference in your communication to the absence of provision for the registration of the class of persons therein mentioned. It may be observed that electors are of two general classes only, viz., natural born and naturalized citizens. Attention is called to the provision of section 4905, G. C., which requires that the registrars shall place upon the register the answers of the applicant to their questions pertinent to the heading of each column thereon in their order. By section 4906, G. C., it is provided, among other things, that "in the column as to 'nativity' the name of the state or foreign country must be given."

"Nativity," as here used, clearly refers to the place of birth of the applicant for registration, and it is only necessary, therefore, in case of electors who were born within the United States to name the state in which they were born, regardless of the fact that their parents were aliens. Of course, as above stated, the answer to this question is subject to challenge the same as that with reference to any other necessary qualification of an elector, and subject to the same rules of determination upon challenge.

BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION—COTTAGE AT MASSILLON STATE HOSPITAL—SUPPLEMENTAL BID RECEIVED SUBSEQUENT TO OPENING OF ORIGINAL BID RECEIVED CANNOT BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING CONTRACT.

A supplemental bid received subsequent to the opening of the original bid received under section 2318, G. C., cannot be considered in awarding a contract.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 3, 1916.

Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Under date of July 17th you wrote to me as follows:

"We are enclosing herewith tabulation of bids received on cottage No. 4 at the Massillon state hospital. Please note that the two low bids on this cottage are submitted by the Cullen-Vaughn Co., of Columbus, Ohio ($67,234), and Keller E. Huff, Canton, Ohio ($66,136).

"For your information we wish to state that the excavating for this cottage has been practically completed by the state, and, as you will note, the Cullen-Vaughn Co. have allowed $1,477 in their bid for excavating, and Keller E. Huff has allowed $410 for the same item. Deducting this item would make their bids read, the Cullen-Vaughn Co., $65,757, and Keller E. Huff $65,726, a difference of $31.00.

"The board also desires to accept alternate No. 7, for which the Cullen-Vaughn Co. have allowed a deduction of $50.00, and Keller E. Huff nothing. This would bring the Cullen-Vaughn Co's. bid down to $65,707, which would be $19.00 lower than Keller E. Huff's bid.

"We are also submitting herewith a letter from the Cullen-Vaughn Co., for substituting a fireproof ceiling on the second floor of the dormitory instead of metal lath coiling, as specified, for $1,550. However, this communication was received after the bids were opened, and the board is desirous of being advised whether or not it can be accepted. Please note that Keller E. Huff's bid on the same item was $2,500, and that the building cannot be constructed with the fireproof ceiling if Huff's bid is accepted without exceeding the appropriation, but if the Cullen-Vaughn Co's. bid is accepted the building can be constructed with the fireproof ceiling within the appropriation, $70,000, as you will note from the following figures:

	"Keller E. Huff.
"Original bid	$66,136.00
"Deduct for excavation	410.00
	$65,726.00
"Deduct for alternate No. 7	0.00
	"$65,726.00
"Add for fireproof ceiling	2,500.00
"Add for architect's fees (approximate)	2,365.00
"Add for advertising (approximate)	60.00
	"$70,651.00

	"The Cullen-Vaughn Co.
"Original bid	$67,234.00
"Deduct for excavation	1,477.00
	"$65,757.00
"Deduct for alternate No. 7	50.00
	"$65,707.00
"Add for fireproof ceiling	1,550.00
"Add for architect's fees (approximate)	2,365.00
"Add for advertising (approximate)	60.00
	"$69,682.00

"The board has decided to accept the bid of the Cullen-Vaughn Co., and your opinion is requested as to whether or not their bid for the addition of fireproof ceiling shall be accepted in the main contract or as an addition after the regular contract is entered into."

The letter referred to by you in your communication is as follows:

"July 14, 1916.

"The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

"GENTLEMEN:—Since filing our proposal for the construction of cottage No. 4 at Massillon, we have discovered we failed to put our estimated price if the second floor ceiling should be made fireproof. This price is requested in the specifications but no space is left for it on the bidding blank.

"Our figure for doing this work, namely making the ceiling of the second floor fireproof would be fifteen hundred and fifty dollars ($1,550.00) extra.

"Trusting that this explanation you will permit us to file this statement with our regular proposal, we beg to remain,

"Yours very truly,

"THE CULLEN-VAUGHN COMPANY,

"(Signed) E. C. Fenimore, Manager."

After the receipt of your letter I communicated with the architects who advised me as follows:

"Referring to the letter from the Ohio board of administration regarding the bids on the cottage for the Massillon state hospital would say the estimated cost of this cottage exclusive of architects' fees and advertising is $67,575.00. This includes the building complete, using the metal lath ceiling. The estimate on the excavation is $1,100.00. Therefore, the estimated cost of the building, not including the excavation is $66,475.00.

"Both of the bids submitted to you in the letter herewith enclosed are below the estimate. Alternate No. 7 mentioned in the letter of the board of administration, reads as follows: 'If Tennessee marble is used in place of Vermont, from the marble, tile and slate bid, deduct $.....' The Cullen-Vaughn Company deducted $50.00 for this alternate and Keller E. Huff made no deduction whatever. It is desired to take advantage of this alternate. Keller E. Huff in his bids allow $410.00 for excavation and The Cullen-Vaughn Company allow $1,477.00. It is desired to take the excavation out of the contract as this is already done at no cost to the state. Therefore, deducting from the bid of the Cullen-Vaughn Co. the allowance they make for excavation and the allowance they make for alternate No. 7 leaves their bid $65,707.00; making the same deductions from the bid of Keller E. Huff leaves his bid $65,726.00; making the bid of the Cullen-Vaughn Company $19.00 below the bid of Keller E. Huff, in accordance with the plans and specifications, not considering the alternate for a fireproof ceiling.

"It would seem to us that the decision of the board of administration to accept the bid of the Cullen-Vaughn Company on the original plans and specifications and award the contract to them as above outlined is the proper thing to do, and if the board desires to substitute the concrete ceiling for the metal lath ceiling, this should be done by securing the consent of the proper state officials. The proposal of the Cullen-Vaughn Company to put this ceiling in for $1,550.00 could then be accepted, making the total for the building complete on the Cullen-Vaughn bid after adding the ceiling $67,257.00. This would still leave the cost of the building including the concrete ceiling below the estimate first above stated."

As I understand the matter the Cullen-Vaughn Company submitted its bid without including therein a bid upon the alternate relative to fireproof ceiling on the second floor of the dormitory, but that it submitted the same in a letter, which letter was received after the opening of the bids. It further appears, however, that upon opening the bids the board had decided to exercise alternate No. 7 and also to deduct from each and every bid the amount bid upon the excavation, the board having itself caused the excavation to be made, so that with the deduction for excavation and the deduction for alternate No. 7 the Cullen-Vaughn Company is the low bidder.

Said company not having in its original bid included the item of addition for fireproof ceiling, I do not believe that it is within the power of your board to consider the supplementary bid made but that the proper thing to do is to accept the bid as it was originally submitted, and that after a contract has been duly entered into to change the specification by way of a change in the contract providing for the fireproof ceiling under the provisions of section 2320, G. C., which provides as follows:

"After they are so approved and filed with the auditor of state, no change of plans, descriptions, bills of material or specifications, which increases or decreases the cost to exceed one thousand dollars, shall be made or allowed unless approved by the governor, auditor and secretary of state, when so approved, the plans of the proposed change, with descriptions thereof, shall be filed with the auditor of state as required with original plans."

"No allowance shall be made for work performed or materials furnished under the changed plans, descriptions, specifications or bills of material unless a contract therefor is made in writing before the labor is performed or materials furnished, showing distinctly the change. Such contract shall be subject to the conditions and provisions imposed upon original contracts, and approved by the attorney-general."

Therefore, after the original contract is entered into, a new contract embodying the change will have to be made under the provisions of section 2321, G. C.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General

CLERK OF COURTS—WHERE FINES COLLECTED WERE PAID INTO GENERAL COUNTY FUND—SHOULD HAVE BEEN PAID TO LAW LIBRARY ASSOCIATION—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MAY ALLOW CLAIM.

When the clerk of the courts pays into the general county fund certain fines which, under the provisions of section 3056, G. C., should have been paid to the trustees of a law library association and said money has thereafter been expended or appropriated by the county, said trustees may present a claim for the same to the county commissioners which when allowed by said commissioners may be paid from said county fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 3, 1916.

HON. WILLIAM C. HUDSON, Prosecuting Attorney, McArthur, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of July 28, 1916, submitting the following statement and inquiry:

> "On February 10th of 1916, a law library association was organized in this county under authority and according to the provisions of the statutes relating thereto. Since that time the county clerk has received certain fines which according to section 3056, G. C., belonged to this association. The county clerk however instead of retaining these fines paid them into the county treasury. Now the law library association through their trustees demand of the clerk the amount which should have been paid to them. What is the duty of the clerk under such circumstances?
> "My view is that as the money was paid over by mistake the clerk should certify that fact to the county auditor who then should issue a warrant on the treasurer for the amount due the library association, but as I find no statute applicable I do not like to advise the clerk to that effect, and he is doubtful what course to pursue.
> "I would like to have your opinion on this question whether in accordance with, or contrary to, the view I take of the matter."

While it is true that the money was turned into the county treasury by a mistake of the clerk, as stated in your letter, yet, as you further state, there is no statutory law authorizing the county auditor, upon certificate of the clerk to that effect, to issue a warrant on the treasurer for the same, and as no money may be paid from the county treasury except in compliance with statutory law, I am of the opinion that the plan suggested by you may not be followed.

I advise that the library association, through its officers, present to the county commissioners for their allowance, a claim for the amount of money so paid into the county treasury by the county clerk aforesaid, and when said claim is allowed by the county commissioners a warrant may legally be drawn upon the county treasurer in favor of said library association for said amount.

In advising this procedure I am not overlooking the case of State ex rel. Pugh, et al. v. Sayre, auditor, et al., 90 O. S., 215, in which a writ of mandamus was awarded against the defendant Sayre, as county auditor, requiring him to issue his warrant on the county treasury for certain funds claimed to be due a law library association. This case was predicated upon wholly different facts from those involved here. In said case against Sayre the police court clerk, being doubtful of the validity of section 3056, G. C., paid into the county treasury the sum of $7,133.06, which, under the provisions of said section, should have been paid to the trustees of the law library association. The defendant Sayre, as county auditor, under the provisions of section 2567, G. C., certified said money into the county treasury as "Law library funds." The petition specifically alleged that the county treasurer, at the time said suit was instituted, still held said money as the law library fund, and that it had not been expended nor appropriated for any purpose whatever. Under those facts then, the money was intact, and had been and was kept wholly separate from any other fund. In the case submitted by you, while your letter does not so state, I assume that the fines specified were paid into the treasury by your clerk to the credit of the general county fund, as provided by section 12378, G. C., and have since been expended or appropriated for county purposes. This being so, I am of the opinion that such appropriation will make the county liable to account to the trustees of the library association for the money so used and that the same now constitutes a claim against the county, to be paid only upon the allowance of the county commissioners as provided by section 2460, G. C.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, ORDER OF STATE BOARD OF HEALTH, PUBLIC WATER SUPPLY, STRUTHERS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 3, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Enclosed herewith you will find an order of the state board of health to The Mahoning Valley Water Company, of Youngstown, Ohio, in regard to the public water supply of Struthers, Ohio.

I have examined said order which is issued under section 1252 of the General Code, and find the same to be regular.

It is my opinion that it should be approved and I have therefore approved the same and am transmitting the order to you for your approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—CONTRACT FOR IMPROVEMENT OF STREET—PROVISION FOR EXCAVATION AND HAUL DISCUSSED —CONTRACTOR MAY RECEIVE ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION WHEN MATERIALS HAULED BEYOND LIMITATION FIXED BY ENGINEER AND CONTRACT.

When a contract for the improvement of a street provides that all material excavated therefrom shall be carefully and neatly piled by the contractor at such points on intersecting streets and abutting lots as the engineer directs and the engineer under said provision of said contract directs that such material when placed on intersecting streets shall be piled within 200 feet of the improved street and thereafter the contractor is employed by the municipality to haul some of said material to points on said intersecting streets beyond the limitation so fixed by said engineer and also to haul some material excavated to streets not intersecting said improved street, such hauling is not within the requirements aforesaid of said contract and the contractor may receive additional compensation therefor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 4, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of July 14, 1916, requesting my written opinion upon the following matter:

"In connection with the improvement of Springfield street within the village of St. Paris, Champaign county, Ohio, under a contract by and between the said village, and Brewer, Tomlinson & Brewer, contractors (original copy of contract and accompanying specifications attached) payment was made by the village to the contractors of a certain invoice, amounting to the sum of $174.00 for 'hauling 1160 loads of material off of Springfield street to various other streets' at 15 cents per load—said material being crushed stone or earth from the excavation of Springfield street—in addition to the consideration provided for by contract and in the absence of any supplemental contract whatsoever. In like manner certain other items, as extra or force accounts, have been paid by the village to the contractor for labor and materials in changing fire cisterns in such manner as to conform to the street improvement, and similar charges.

"It may be noted that the said sum of $174.00 for hauling excavated material to various other streets and certain other small items of so-called 'extra or force account' were not considered a portion of the cost of the Springfield street improvement, but have been paid from moneys in the service fund appropriated for street repairs.

"Reverting to the aforesaid item of $174.00, attention is invited to the accompanying extract from page 9 of a report on the village of St. Paris, filed by State Examiner C. E. Lippincott, Jan. 1, 1916, under the title of 'Contingent Findings,' wherein findings for recovery are returned against the contractors for that portion, if any, of said payment covering services of contractors in placing material upon intersecting streets or abutting lots.

"Affidavit of Clerk Myers indicates that the understanding prevailed that not all of said material was placed on parallel streets, but part of same on intersecting streets.

"Affidavit of Street Commissioner Richeson shows that but a small proportion of the excavated material was conveyed to parallel streets or alleys.

"See affidavits attached.

"Question 1. In view of provisions of contract (see specifications, page 3), and in the absence of any supplemental contract, should findings for recovery be returned, if at all, for that portion of said item of $174.00, representing payment for conveyance of materials to intersecting streets as is held in Examiner Lippincott's report under title of 'Contingent Findings?'

"Question 2. Or, should findings be returned against contractors for the entire sum of $174.00, and other invoices for extra labor performed and materials furnished, as held by Attorney L. D. Johnson, acting in behalf of the mayor of St. Paris?

"Opinion attached."

Before attempting to answer your foregoing inquiries attention must be directed to the extract from the report of the state examiner referred to therein, which is as follows:

"Under the contract it was the duty of the contractor to haul the gravel excavated from the street to other intersecting streets or abutting lots as directed by the engineer, and for which he was only entitled to the 40 cents per cubic yard for excavation as per bid. There is nothing in the contract whereby the contractor was to receive anything extra for hauling same, and also no limit as to length of the haul on intersecting streets."

The provisions of the contract to which reference is here made have been quoted in a former opinion upon the same matter, and are as follows:

"The council reserves the right to all cross walk stones, or paving block, curb stones, gravel, crushed stone, sewer pipe, earth or other valuable material after it has been taken up by the contractor, who is to use care in handling the same so as not to break or waste them, and shall carefully and neatly pile them at such points on intersecting streets or abutting lots as the engineer may direct."

As has been heretofore stated in reference to the aforesaid provisions of said contract the contractors are required to place the material so excavated at such points on intersecting streets as the engineer may direct, which is ordinarily, under such contracts, at such points only on said streets as to enable the material so excavated to be temporarily disposed of until a place may be found in which it may permanently be placed, and which second removal is outside of the terms of the contract entirely and must be at an additional expense to the municipality.

I am informed that under the foregoing provisions of said contract the engineer directed that all material not placed upon abutting lots should be placed at points on the intersecting streets within two hundred feet of the street under improvement. The examiner in question further states in his findings:

"In placing the gravel on other intersecting streets the contractor was merely complying with his contract, and, therefore, he would not be entitled to receive any extra price for such hauling, but, if placed on streets not intersecting Springfield street, there should have been a supplemental contract in writing, clearly fixing the extra price to be paid, which should have been made by council and signed by the mayor, notwithstanding the cost was less than $500.00 (section 4221 and 4223, G. C.). The original contract does not provide for placing any excavated material except upon 'intersecting streets and abutting lots,' and when it was found necessary to place some of it elsewhere the law should have been followed by making of supplemental contract."

It is apparent that the foregoing observations of said examiner are not supported by the contract if it is true that the engineer directed the contractor to pile the excavated material within two hundred feet of the improved street. Under such circumstances it would not be the duty of the contractor under his contract to haul said material upon intersecting streets to any point beyond the two hundred feet limit, and as before observed the cost of removing said material beyond the two hundred feet limit would necessarily be an additional cost to the municipality. This appears to have been the construction placed upon the contract by the municipality, and it is claimed that because of the impossibility of securing teams to remove said material beyond the two hundred feet limit the contractors were employed by said municipality under an entirely separate and distinct contract to haul said material, not only to other points beyond the two hundred feet limit on intersecting streets, but also to points on parallel streets, and they were paid therefor at the rate of fifteen cents per load of one and one-half yards, said payments being made from the street repair fund and not from the fund provided for the construction of said improvement.

It would seem in view of these considerations to be purely a question of fact as to what action should be taken by your department in reference to the payment of this bill of $174.00. If it is true that the contractor was directed by the engineer to haul the material excavated from said improved street to points on intersecting streets within two hundred feet of said improved street, and said contractor was thereafter employed and paid by the municipality for hauling said material to points beyond said limit of two hundred feet on intersecting streets, and on other streets not covered by the contract, I am unable to see upon what ground a finding for said amount so paid may be sustained. On the other hand, if the municipality made payments to said contractors for the hauling of material that was covered by the terms of the contract, or, in other words, if the hauling of the material for which the $174.00 was paid was required of said contractors under the terms of their contract, a finding should be made against said contractors for said amount.

It is claimed in the opinion to which you refer in your second question that the payment of the money aforesaid was made in the entire absence of any contract liability, but is an additional sum paid out over what the express terms of the contract provided, and that if the hauling of this material was not covered by the terms of the original contract a supplemental contract should have been made, and that, therefore, the payment of said money was unlawful and may be recovered.

In a letter from the solicitor of the village in question it is stated that:

"The contract contained the provision mentioned in your letter that the gravel, etc., was to be placed on intersecting streets at points indicated by the engineer, who ordered it placed within two hundred feet of the improved street and it became incumbent upon the village to remove it to points where it was wanted upon other streets. The village endeavored to hire individuals to take their teams and haul the gravel, but were unable to obtain them. The council then entered into a new and independent contract with the contractors, whereby the contractors were to do the hauling for the village at a nominal price of 15 cents per load of one and one-half yards. This was done under street repair for the other streets, and when done, was paid for out of street repair fund and not out of the fund for the improvement of said street.

"No supplemental contract was entered into because there was no supplemental agreement. There was no change in plans or specifications, no alteration or modification of original contract, therefore section 4223, G. C., did not apply to the case."

As I regard this controversy, the question of whether a supplemental contract was required or whether the "new and independent" contract specified in the solicitor's letter aforesaid was sufficient, is immaterial in view of the fact that no fraud is claimed and the price paid is admitted to have been a reasonable one. While I incline to the view that the contract made, as stated in the solicitor's letter aforesaid, was sufficient and that no supplemental contract was necessary, yet if the facts should eventually show that a supplemental contract was required the equitable principles approved by the court in the case of State v. Frontier, 77 O. S., 7, will control. While a strict construction of the rule as approved by the court in that case might suggest that it may be applied only to contracts involving a change of possession of property, and may not apply to personal services, yet, until such a distinction is made by the court, it will be the safer plan to follow the reasoning rather than a strict interpretation of the decision aforesaid, and in the present case therefore to hold that if the contractors were paid only a reasonable and fair compensation for services not included in the original contract, and which by the terms of said contract they were not required to perform, justice and fair dealing demand that they be permitted to retain the money so paid.

The aforesaid observations furnish as specific an answer to your inquiries as can be given.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—CHIEF OF POLICE MAY NOT CERTIFY TO ANY BILL FOR FOOD FURNISHED PRISONERS IN EXCESS OF CONTRACT PRICE—CHIEF RECEIVES REGULAR SALARY FOR DUTIES OF HIS OFFICE—MAY NOT BE ALLOWED ANY ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION.

Under the provisions of an ordinance enacted by virtue of sections 4125 and 4126, G. C., and embodying substantially the provisions of said sections, a chief of police may not certify to any bill for food furnished prisoners in excess of the contract price of said food if provided and furnished under a contract with a third party or in excess of its actual cost if provided and furnished by said chief himself, and may not be allowed or receive any compensation other than his regular salary for the performance of the duties imposed upon him by the provisions of said ordinance.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 4, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of July 14, 1916, as follows:

"We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following question:

"May a chief of police be allowed any sum additional to the actual cost or sustenance of prisoners under sections 4125 and 4126, General Code. See letters and copy of ordinance enclosed."

The copy of the ordinance, enclosed with your inquiry under which the same arises, is as follows:

> "Section 1. The chief of police of the city of_____shall provide all persons confined in prisons or station houses with necessary food during such confinement and see that such places of confinement are kept clean and made comfortable for the inmates thereof.
> "Section 2. It shall be the duty of the chief of police, monthly, to present to the director of public safety all bills for food, sustenance and necessary supplies, duly certified, whereupon such director shall audit the same and draw his order on the treasurer of the corporation in favor of the officer presenting such bill, but the amount shall not exceed 40 cents per day for any person so confined."

The foregoing ordinance was enacted under the authority of sections 4125 and 4126, G. C., and is substantially a copy of the provisions of said sections of the General Code. Both the language of the ordinance and of section 4125, G. C., is that the chief of police shall provide all prisoners with necessary food. There is no specific provision in either section 1 of the ordinance or section 4125, G. C., aforesaid, that the chief shall receive any compensation for the performance of the duty thus imposed upon him. If any compensation may be paid to him for the performance of this duty, authority therefor must be found in some other provision of the ordinance or statutory law, but no such specific provision may be found in either the ordinance or the statutory law. Upon the contrary, it is provided in section 2 of the ordinance, which, as before observed, is in sunstantial compliance with every requirement of section 4126, G. C., that it shall be the duty of the chief of police, monthly, to present to the director of public service all bills for food duly certified. It certainly will not be insisted that this requirement of the ordinance contemplates that the chief of police shall in any manner charge to his own advantage the original cost of furnishing said food to prisoners as charged in said bills. Further, it will not be claimed I apprehend that the chief, who has contracted with a third party to furnish, prepare and serve meals at a certain price, may certify a bill charging a higher price than that fixed by the contract. It is clear that it is the purpose of both the statutory law and the ordinance aforesaid to receive the certification of the chief of police to the end that the amount in said bills shall represent the actual cost of furnishing said food to the prisoners and that neither the statutory law nor the ordinance intends or contemplates that the chief of police through the discharge of his official duty shall be permitted to profit thereby at the expense of the city. The one requirement of certification, as before observed, precludes any contention that he may certify to a bill for any greater amount than that actually due either himself or a third party for food furnished to prisoners. The limitation of the ordinance fixing the maximum amount to be paid at forty cents per day does not mean that such amount is to be paid in each and every instance. This sum is a limitation beyond which no allowance may be made and if food may be provided for a less amount the city is entitled to the benefit of the difference.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your inquiry, that the sections of the General Code to which you refer, and the ordinance hereinbefore noted do not permit a chief of police to certify to a bill for food for a greater amount than the contract price if said food is furnished under a contract by a third party or to the actual cost thereof if said food is directly furnished by the chief.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 4, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of July 28, 1916, is as follows:

> "We are herewith submitting to you for an opinion, a communication from W. C. Brown, prosecuting attorney for Jefferson county, and an agreed statement of facts in the matter of the proposed initiative petitions for the city of Steubenville, Ohio, filed with the auditor of the city of Steubenville, and certified to the board of deputy state supervisors of election.
> "Will you please give us your opinion on the matters therein contained as soon as possible."

You enclose, as stated, letter of Hon. W. C. Brown, prosecuting attorney, as follows:

> "Enclosed you will find agreed statement of facts of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections upon the question of submitting to the voters of the city of Steubenville, Ohio, two certain proposed initiative ordinances on the 8th day of August, 1916.
> "The members of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections being equally divided, are certifying the question to you, upon the agreed statement of facts, for your opinion."

The statement of facts referred to in the communication of Mr. Brown, above set forth, is as follows:

"IN THE MATTER OF THE TWO PROPOSED INITIATIVE PETITIONS FOR THE CITY OF STEUBENVILLE, OHIO, FILED WITH THE AUDITOR OF THE CITY OF STEUBENVILLE, AND CERTIFIED TO THE BOARD OF DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS OF ELECTIONS. } Agreed statement of facts.

"It is agreed that two several initiative petitions, signed by twenty per cent. of the electors of the city of Steubenville, Ohio, the basis of said percentage being determined by the total number of votes cast for the office of mayor of said city at the last preceding election therefor; said petitions being regular in form, and having the required number of signatures under section 4227-5 of the General Code, were, on the 26th day of June, 1916, filed with the city auditor of said city of Steubenville, proposing two certain ordinances, true and correct copies of which said ordinances were set forth in full in said two petitions, and requesting in said two petitions that the ordinances in said petitions set forth be submitted to the electors of said city of Steubenville at a special election.

"It is further agreed, that there had been filed on the 28th day of June, 1916, with said city auditor, explanations upon said proposed ordinances as required by section 5018-9, G. C.; that after ten days after the filing of said two petitions with said auditor, said two petitions were certified to the deputy state supervisors of elections of Jefferson county, Ohio; that on the 18th day of July, 1916, said city auditor having had said explanations printed, the same were mailed to every voter in said city of Steubenville; that on the 18th day of July, 1916, W. C. Brown, prosecuting attorney of said Jefferson county, in a written opinion, advised said board of deputy state supervisors of elections, that owing to the fact that the mailing of said explanations had not been fully completed by ten days previous to Tuesday, July 25th, 1916, which said date he ruled should be the date on which said special election on said two initiative petitions should be called by said board, and that in consequence said board was without jurisdiction and authority to proceed further in any matter pertaining to the holding of said election, and he further advised them not to proceed to have printed the ballots necessary for said election, nor to do anything else towards the holding of same; that said board, following said opinion, did nothing further in the matter until the 26th day of July, 1916, when at a regular meeting of said board the matter of the two several initiative petitions, filed with the city auditor on June 26, 1916, and certified to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of Jefferson county, on July 10th, 1916, was taken up by said board, and on motion duly made and properly seconded, it was moved that said board shall submit the two several ordinances, proposed by initiative petition, and heretofore filed with the city auditor of said city of Steubenville, on June 26th, 1916, and which were certified to said board of deputy state supervisors of elections on July 10th, 1916, at an election to be held on the 8th day of August, 1916. The vote on said motion was: Nos, Messrs. McLane and Bernier—2: Ayes, Messers. McLister and Robinson—2. Said board being divided this matter is certified to the state supervisor of elections.

"It is further agreed that the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of Jefferson county has refused, and will continue to refuse, to call any election on said two several initiative petitions, or to proceed to submit said proposed ordinances at the election in said petitions prayed for, either on the 8th day of August, 1916, or on any other day.

"It is agreed that the proposed election asked for is under the provisions of section 4227-5, G. C.: that the said two several petitions are regular in form in all respects, and that a duly verified copy of said proposed initiative ordinances were filed with the auditor prior to the circulation of said two petitions, in all respects as prescribed by section 4227-6, G. C.

"It is further agreed that Tuesday, August 8, 1916, is the date of the primary election day, provided for by law for the holding of primaries for state, districts, and county candidates under section 4963, G. C.

"It is agreed that the question submitted is the legal authority of the board to submit the petition to a vote on any other date than the fifth Tuesday after the petitions were filed with the city auditor

"(Signed):
"A. E. McLane,
"President, Board Deputy State Supervisors of Elections.

"Attest:
"W. C. Brown,
"Prosecuting Attorney, Jefferson County, Ohio.

"Jos. W. Hutton,
"Clerk, Board Deputy State Supervisors of Elections."

It is provided by section 5007, G. C., 103 O. L., 845, that:

"The votes of at least three deputy state supervisors for the county or a majority of the chief deputies and clerks of the district or subdivision of the district shall be necessary to a decision. In all cases under this title, in the event of a disagreement, or, if no decision can be arrived at, the matter in controversy shall be submitted to the state supervisor of elections, who shall summarily decide the question so submitted to him, and his decision shall be final."

It is under authority of the above quoted section that the matter submitted for consideration is before the secretary of state, as state supervisor of elections, for decision. It may be observed, however, that the authority here conferred upon the state supervisor of elections is limited to the decision of matters which boards of deputy state supervisors of elections, referred to in section 5007, G. C., may lawfully determine and the state supervisor of elections would therefore be without jurisdiction to determine any question which was not within the power or authority of the other election officers referred to in said section 5007 to pass upon.

Section 4227-5, G. C., 104 O. L., 239, under authority of which the petitions above referred to were filed, provides as follows:

"Whenever twenty per cent. of the electors of any municipality file a petition with the city auditor, if it be a city, or village clerk, if it be a village, proposing or against an ordinance or other measure, requesting in the petition that the ordinance or measure be submitted to the electors of the municipality at a special election, the auditor or village clerk, after ten days, shall certify the same to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, who shall submit the same at a special election to be held on the fifth Tuesday after the petition is filed. The petition shall not be submitted at a special election if a regular or general election will occur not later than ninety days after the petition is filed, but shall be submitted at the regular or general election."

The duty of submitting the question of the approval of an ordinance or other measure to the electors of a municipality is here conditioned solely upon the filing of a petition by twenty per cent. of the electors thereof, and a certification of the same after ten days by the city auditor, or village clerk, to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections. There is not here found, nor is there elsewhere, statutory provision imposing the duty or conferring the power upon the board of deputy state supervisors of elections to exercise any judicial function in respect to the regularity of the election or the legality and validity of an ordinance or measure which may be approved at the election here required to be held. If there appears from the certification of the auditor or clerk, as the case may be, a petition such as is required by section 4227-5, G. C., supra, the sole duty and authority of the deputy state supervisors of elections in respect thereto is to submit the question of the approval of the ordinance or measure set forth in such certification on the fifth Tuesday after the filing of the petition or at the next regular general election occurring not later than ninety days after the filing of the petition.

True, it is required, among other things, by section 5018-8, G. C., 103 O. L., 833, in reference to the distribution of pamphlets of explanation that:

> "Distribution of such pamphlets shall be made to every voter in the municipality or county, so far as possible, by the clerk of such municipality or county commissioner, as the case may be, either by mail or carrier, not less than ten days before the election at which the measures are to be voted upon."

There is, however, no provision of law under authority of which official knowledge of the distribution of such pamphlets, or the time thereof, may be brought to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, and though it be a fact, as stated, that the distribution of such pamphlets was not completed within the time prescribed by section 5018-8 G. C., supra, the officers charged with the duty of conducting the election could have had no official knowledge of such fact. The question of whether the above provision of section 5018-8 is mandatory or directory only, and the effect of the failure of a strict compliance therewith upon the validity of the ordinance or measure submitted at an election held pursuant to section 4227-5, G. C., supra, is not within the functions of the deputy state supervisors of election to determine, nor does the fact of a failure to comply with such provision in any way affect the authority or duty of such officers to conduct the election in question, as required by said section 4227-5, G. C.

The effect of irregularities in respect to the distribution of pamphlets of explanation of ordinances or measures upon the validity of same, is a matter for judicial determination, with which the board of deputy state supervisors of elections have no concern. It is a well established principle of law that public officers may exercise only such powers as are expressly conferred by law or are necessary to the performance of duties or the exercise of powers so expressly imposed or conferred.

If, therefore, the certification of the city auditor were regular, as set forth in the statement of facts submitted, it was the plain duty of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections to have submitted the ordinances therein set forth at a special election on July 25, 1916, that being the fifth Tuesday after the filing of the petition on June 26, 1916, and there not being either a regular or general election to be held within ninety days subsequent to that date.

It is observed that since the special election was not held on the fifth Tuesday after the filing of the petition, as prescribed by section 4227-5, G. C., supra, it is now sought to hold the same on August 8, 1916, that being the day on which the primary election for the nomination of candidates for state and county officers is required by law to be held. This position is based, doubtless, on one of two theories, viz., that it is within the power of the deputy state supervisors of elections to fix a day other than that prescribed for holding such special election or that the primary election required to be held on August 8th next is a regular or general election within the terms of section 4227-5, G. C., supra.

It must be first observed that there is nowhere found any statutory provision, conferring in any way, power or authority to exercise any discretion as to the time of holding the election authorized by section 4227, G. C., upon the board of deputy state supervisors of elections. On the contrary, the time is definitely and specifically determined by express and unequivocal statutory provision, and the only express authority conferred upon the election officers in question is the submitting of the question or petition at a special election to be held at the time so fixed by statute.

It was held by the common pleas court of Montgomery county, in the case of in re Petition for Election Precincts, 2 N. P., n. s., 245, that the provision of section 1 of the Brannock law, 97 O. L., 87, that:

> "The common pleas judge shall order a special election to be held not less than twenty and not more than thirty days from the filing of such petition," was directory only as to the time within which such election might be held. The only reason stated for this holding is that "the objects of the petition might clearly be defeated by lengthy hearings which could be continued at great length as an excuse for defeating the objects of the act." No authority for the decision of the court on this point is cited or discussed. This case is followed by the common pleas court of Lucas county in 2 N. P., n. s., 469,by mere reference thereto. The same question was before the court of common pleas of Franklin county in the case of Cole v. Columbus, 2 N. P., n. s., 563, in which the decisions of the foregoing cases were referred to in a well considered opinion, in which the authorities were reviewed and wherein it was held that the provision of the Brannock law, above quoted, was mandatory. With this latter decision I am constrained to concur.

If, however, it were to be held that the provision of the Brannock law, above referred to, is directory only, there is a marked distinction between that statutory provision and that of section 4227-5, G. C., under consideration. There was by the Brannock law specifically conferred upon the mayor or common pleas judge, with whom the petitions were authorized to be filed, power and authority to determine the exact date on which the election should be held, subject only to limitations therein prescribed, while, as before pointed out, there is to be found no semblance of authority in the deputy state supervisor of elections to exercise any discretion or take any action whatever in respect to the date on which the election required by section 4227-5, G. C., may be held.

I am therefore led to conclude that there is no power or authority in the board of deputy state supervisors of elections to submit the petitions in question at an election on a day other than that prescribed by said last mentioned section.

Since the election was not held on the fifth Tuesday after the filing of the petitions, the only remaining date on which such election is authorized by section 4227-5, G. C., to be held, is that of a regular or general election. This gives rise to the question of whether the primary to be held on August 8, 1916, is a regular or general election within the meaning of those terms as found in said section.

The terms regular, general and primary election each have a generally well understood and accepted meaning. A general election is understood to mean the November election at which state and county officers may be elected, and is so defined by section 4948, G. C., for the purposes of chapter 6, title XVI of part first of the General Code. A regular election is understood to comprehend those regularly recurring elections at which public officers are chosen, the time of holding which is definitely fixed by law. That is to say, when the word "election" is used in connection with either of the qualifying terms "general" or "regular," reference is understood to be made to the annual November elections at which public officers are chosen as distinguished from special or primary elections which are authorized to be held for other purposes than the election of officers, or if for such purpose, at a time other than the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November of any year. A primary election is not generally understood to comprehend an election at which public officers are chosen. On the contrary, a primary election has for its purpose the choice of party candidates and the selection of representatives and controlling committees of voluntary political parties and not the election or choice of public officers. While the primary to be held on August 8th is now by statute required to be held regularly each year, it is in a sense not an election at all as that term is commonly accepted when used in connection with the terms "regular" and "general."

I am therefore of opinion that the primary election required to be held on August 8th, next, is neither a regular or general election within the terms of section 4227-5, G. C., supra, and that the petitions referred to in the statement submitted may not be submitted to the electors on that date.

This conclusion is in accord with an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, found at page 942 of the report of the attorney-general for the year 1914, which follows his previous opinion to Hon. Don. J. Young, prosecuting attorney, under date of February 27, 1912, and also his further opinion found at page 1921 of the report of the attorney-general for the year 1912.

In the opinion at page 942 of the report of the attorney-general for the year 1914, it is said:

> "In an opinion rendered to Hon. Don. J. Young, prosecuting attorney, Norwalk, Ohio, under date of February 27, 1912, I said:
> " 'Then again, the requirement of the present primary election law only applies to voluntary political parties or associations, which at the next preceding general election polled in the state or any district, county or subdivision thereof, or municipality, at least ten per cent. of the entire vote cast (section 4949, G. C.), and as the object of the legislature in providing for the submission of the question of the issuance of bonds must have been to obtain an expression of the whole of the entire electorate at the election whereat every voter of the county would be eligible to vote, it is readily perceived that this could not always be had at a primary election, limited as it is to partisan voters. The right of the independent voter and of the Socialist or other party voter whose party may not have received the required percentage at the next preceding election to have his vote recorded for or against the bond issue must be jealously preserved.
> " 'I am therefore of the opinion that the primary election is not such an election as is included in the phrase "regular election" contained in section 3077, General Code.'
> "I am of the opinion that the same argument applies to referendum elections held in a municipality and that the term 'regular election' can have no application to primaries.
> "My conclusion is, therefore, that a primary may not be considered a 'regular' or a 'general' election within the meaning of the initiative and referendum act."

I therefore advise that there is not now authority either in the secretary of state, as state supervisor of elections, or in the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of Jefferson county, to fix a date on which the positions in question may be submitted at a special election, as provided by said section 4227-5, G. C.

The right of the petitioners and the people of the city of Steubenville at large to have the petitions in question submitted to a vote on Tuesday, July 25, 1916, that being the fifth Tuesday after the filing of the petitions, has been defeated by a violation of the plain duty of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, the performance of which could have been enforced by mandamus had the circumstances rendered the same practicable.

It was certainly never intended by the legislature that public and individual rights should be defeated by the arbitrary refusal of public officers to perform official duties or by reason of a misapprehension of the duties imposed by law, on the part of such officers, and I am constrained to believe that the courts would not, under the circumstances of this case, permit the purpose of the law to be wholly defeated thereby.

Though the request for a special election contained in the petitions has been defeated in the manner above pointed out, that fact in no way affects the validity of the petition in question nor will it be permitted to result in the ultimate defeat of the right to have the same submitted to a vote. These petitions fully meet the requirements of section 4227-1, G. C., 104 O. L., 238, which are as follows:

> "Ordinances and other measures providing for the exercise of any and all powers of government granted by the constitution or now delegated or hereafter delegated to any municipal corporation, by the general assembly, may be proposed by initiative petition. Such initiative petition must contain the signatures of not less than ten percentum of the electors of such municipal corporation.
> "When there shall have been filed with the city auditor, if it be a city, or village clerk, if it be a village, a petition signed by the aforestated required number of electors proposing an ordinance or other measure, said city auditor or village clerk shall, after ten days, certify the petition to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of the county wherein such municipality is located. Said board shall submit such proposed ordinance or measure for the approval or rejection of the electors of such municipal corporation at the next succeeding regular or general election in any year, occurring subsequent to forty days after the filing of such initiative petition. * * *"

I am therefore clearly of the opinion that the ordinances or measures proposed by the petitions in question should be submitted by the deputy state supervisors of elections of Jefferson county to the electors of the city of Steubenville, at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, that being more than forty days subsequent to the filing of the petitions.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—WHERE CONTRACTOR FAILED TO PERFORM CONTRACT—HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER RE-ADVERTISED AND RELET SAME—CONTRACT RELET AT EXCESS AMOUNT—SURETY LIABLE.

It appearing that The Illinois Surety Company, acting by C. H. Bancroft, attorney-in-fact, signed as surety the proposal and contract bond of Parrish & Bales of Dayton, Ohio, successful bidder for the construction of section "R" of the Cleveland-Kent road, petition No. 1618, I. C. H. No. 460, in Franklin township, Portage county, Ohio, and that because of the failure of said firm to perform their contract the state highway commissioner was compelled to re-advertise said contract, and relet same at a consideration of $3,281.35 in excess of the sum for which said Parrish & Bales had agreed to perform the work, the state highway commissioner is advised to make demand upon the receiver of The Illinois Surety Company for the payment of said sum of $3,281.35, and is further advised that upon the failure or refusal of said receiver of said company to make payment of said amount proper action will be taken to enforce the collection.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 5, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of July 28, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

"On October 8, 1915, the state highway department received bids for contract known as section 'R' of the Cleveland-Kent road, I. C. H. No. 460, petition No. 1618, Franklin township, Portage county. Parrish & Bales, contractors, Dayton, Ohio, were the low bidders, and subsequently the contract was awarded to them at their bid of $24,180.00.

"The contractors failed to start the work and it became necessary for me to relet the same, and bids were asked for on June 15, 1916. S. S. Senter, Canton, Ohio, was the low bidder, and the work was awarded to him for $27,461 35.

"When bids were first received on this contract the total estimate was $28,189.99. When bids were taken the second time for the work the estimate was the same, except that the steel reinforcing was omitted, thereby reducing the expense of the job possibly $1,500.00.

"The original contract called for 3/8 inch square twisted rods, 8 feet long, placed 18 inches center to center in the concrete, and in Mr. Senter's concrete this steel reinforcement was omitted.

"You will note the difference in the contract price of the Parrish & Bales' contract and S. S. Senter's contract is $3,281.35.

"The Illinois Surety Company appears as surety on the original contract of Parrish & Bales, and I am submitting the above facts to you in order that action may be taken to recover the difference in the two contracts, which is $3,281.35, as above stated, if in your judgment this is the proper procedure."

Replying to the above communication I advise you that you should forthwith make a demand upon the receiver of The Illinois Surety Company for payment of the difference between the bid of Parrish & Bales and the bid of S. S. Senter, being $3,281.35. The receiver is James S. Hopkins, who may be addressed at 134 So. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill., and your demand upon him for the payment of the loss sustained may be phrased as follows:

> "I desire to direct your attention to the fact that on the 8th day of October, 1915, The Illinois Surety Company, acting by C. H. Bancroft, attorney-in-fact, signed as surety the proposal and contract bond of Parrish & Bales, of Dayton, Ohio, successful bidder for the construction of section 'R' of the Cleveland-Kent road, I. C. H. No. 460, in Franklin township, Portage county, Ohio, petition No. 1618, the amount of the bond being $28,189.99, and the bid of Parrish & Bales being $24,180.00. Said Parrish & Bales, in violation of the terms of their agreement with the state of Ohio, failed to commence their work within a reasonable time, and wholly failed and refused to comply with and complete their said contract, and performed no work whatever thereon, and, therefore, the undersigned, in compliance with the requirements of the General Code of Ohio, duly re-advertised said contract, and on the 15th day of June, 1916, relet the same to one S. S. Senter, of Canton, Ohio, said S. S. Senter being the lowest and in fact the only bidder for said work, and his bid being $27,461.35, said bid of S. S. Senter being $3,281.35 in excess of the sum for which said Parrish & Bales had agreed to perform said work.
> "By reason of the foregoing the state of Ohio has been damaged, and has suffered a loss in said amount of $3,281.35, and the undersigned, therefore, makes demand upon you, as receiver for said The Illinois Surety Company, for the payment of said sum of $3,281.35. Payment of this amount should be made to the undersigned, and I trust that there may be a prompt settlement of this claim."

In case the receiver for The Illinois Surety Company fails or refuses to make payment to you, I will, upon being advised of that fact, take the proper action to en force collection.

Respectfully
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—WHERE CONTRACTOR DEFAULTS IN CONTRACT FOR STATE WORK—WHERE SURETY COMPANY WHICH SIGNED HIS BOND IS IN HANDS OF RECEIVER—PROPER COURSE TO PURSUE BY HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER.

Where a contractor defaults in his contract for state highway work, and it appears that the surety company which signed the bond of said contractor is in the hands of a receiver at the time of such default, the only recourse of the state highway department is to make demand upon said receiver for any loss occasioned by such default and incident to the reletting of said contract, and in the event of a failure or refusal on the part of the receiver to make settlement the matter should be referred to this department for appropriate action.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 9, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—On April 22, 1916, you addressed to me the following communication:

"It has come to our attention that the Illinois Surety Company of Chicago, Illinois, has had a receiver appointed for the purpose of liquidation.

"As the Illinois Surety Company appears as surety on a large number of bonds which contractors have furnished the state of Ohio, I will appreciate your taking such steps as you deem necessary to protect our interests."

It having come to my knowledge that a reinsurance agreement had at least been proposed, if not actually consumated, between The Illinois Surety Company and the receiver for that company, on the one hand, and The National Surety Company of New York, on the other hand, I requested you, under date of May 27, 1916, to furnish me a list of all the bonds furnished to your department by contractors on work not yet completed and signed by The Illinois Surety Company, as surety. You complied with this request on June 27, 1916, and I then wrote The National Surety Company, asking that company to advise me as to whether any reinsurance agreement had been effected between that company and The Illinois Surety Company, and if so, whether such agreement covered the bonds given to your department. Under date of July 19, 1916, The National Surety Company replied as follows:

"We have your letter of July 14th with reference to certain bonds on which The Illinois Surety Company appears as surety, these bonds being in behalf of certain highway contractors.

"In reply, I have to advise that the proposed agreement by which we hoped to reinsure certain of the unexpired live bonds of The Illinois Surety Company was not approved by the superintendent of insurance and therefore never became effective. We have not reinsured any of the bonds to which you refer, nor have we assumed any liability under any of them.

"If you decide that new bonds are necessary, we of course shall be glad to consider writing them just as we would any other bonds, but at the present time we have absolutely no liability under any of these bonds."

The above facts account for the delay in answering your communication of April 22nd. The letter of The National Surety Company removes from consideration the hope of realizing on any of the bonds of The Illinois Surety Company by reason of any reinsurance agreement between that company and The National Surety Company. It therefore remains to consider the question of what, if any, further action may be taken by your department to safeguard the interests of the public.

In considering this question it is important to refer to the sections of the General Code relating to the bonds to be given by contractors for said highway work. Prior to the going into effect of the Cass highway law on September 6, 1915, this matter was controlled by the provisions of section 1203 G. C., 103 O. L. 456, which section read as follows:

"The state highway commissioner may reject any or all bids. Before entering into a contract he shall require a bond with sufficient sureties conditioned that if the proposal is accepted, the contractor will perform the work upon the terms proposed, within the time prescribed and in accordance with the plans and specifications, and will indemnify the state and county against any damages that may be claimed by reason of the negligence of the contractor in the construction of the improvement. The bond as above required shall be in an amount not to exceed one hundred and fifty per cent. of the contract price and may include indemnity against liens and claims for material and labor furnished in the construction of the improvement.

An approved surety company may be accepted as surety on such bonds. In no case shall the state be liable for damages sustained by reason of the construction of an improvement under this chapter."

Since September 6, 1915, the controlling statutory provisions are those found in section 201 of the Cass highway law, section 1208 G. C., which section reads as follows:

"The state highway commissioner may reject all bids. Before entering into a contract the commissioner shall require a bond with sufficient sureties, conditioned that the contractor will perform the work upon the terms proposed within the time prescribed, and in accordance with the plans and specifications thereof, and that the contractor will indemnify the state, county or township against any damage that may result by reason of the negligence of the contractor in making said improvement. Such bond shall also be conditioned for the payment of all material and labor furnished for or used in the construction of the road for which such contract is made, and which is furnished to the original contractor or subcontractor, agent or superintendent of either engaged in said work. The bond may be enforced against the person, persons or company executing such bond by any claimant for labor or material, and suit may be brought on such bond in the name of the state of Ohio on relation of any claimant within one year from the date of delivering or furnishing such labor or material, and such bonds or sureties thereon shall not be released by the execution of any additional surety, note or other instrument on account of such claim or for any reason whatsoever, except the full payment of such claims for such labor or material. In no case shall the state be liable for damages sustained in the construction of any improvement under this chapter."

Whether reference be had to the existing statutes or to the prior law, a bond must be executed before a contract may be entered into between the state of Ohio and a bidder for highway work let by your department. There is no provision in either section, either requiring or authorizing the taking of an additional or supplementary bond in case the surety on the original bond should, subsequent to the execution of such bond, become insolvent or the affairs of a surety company signing such bond be thereafter placed in the hands of a receiver. Not only is this true but it is also true that no method exists by which a contractor could be forced to give an additional or supplementary bond. It might be, indeed, that contractors who have been successful in their work and who have found their contracts profitable would be willing to give additional or supplementary bonds if so requested, but contractors who find themselves so placed may be reasonably expected to complete their work and in such instances there will be no necessity for resorting to the bond. Contractors who through mismanagement, or otherwise, are not succeeding with their work and who are finding the same unprofitable would, especially if financially irresponsible, welcome a forfeiture of their contracts and if such contractors were to be requested to give additional bonds and were to refuse to do so, there would be no method of compelling compliance on their part with such a request and it might be reasonably expected that they would refuse to so comply. A forfeiture of their contracts under such circumstances and for the sole reason that they had refused a supplemental bond, might, and indeed probably would, have the effect of releasing the surety on the original bond. It is therefore my opinion that there is no action which you can take at the present time in the premises and that in case of a default on the part of any contractor whose bond has been signed by the Illinois Surety Company, demand should be made on the receiver of that company for settlement, as will be pointed out in a separate opinion and that in the event of a failure or refusal on the part of the receiver to make settlement, the matter should be referred to this department for appropriate action.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

The state armory board may lawfully pay from its appropriation for "Armory Fund" the expense of materials furnished for the installation in a leased armory of locker equipment for the safe keeping of public property.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 9, 1916.

Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of July 28th we received a letter from Honorable E. S. Bryant, assistant adjutant general, to the following effect:

> "I enclose herewith letter from the commanding officer of troop 'B,' Ohio cavalry, to the state armory board, enclosing a bill for $205.00 for the material entering into the construction of certain lockers for the use of troop 'B' in their armory. This claim was allowed by the state armory board, provided that your opinion is that such lockers may be paid for by the state armory board, as will appear from an extract of the minutes of July 27, 1916. I believe that the facts are fully stated in the enclosed letter.
> "Your opinion upon the question of whether or not the state armory board may expend funds for this purpose is respectfully requested."

The letter referred to by Colonel Bryant in his communication is as follows:

> "Columbus, Ohio, July 22, 1916.
> "From: The C. O. Troop B. First Squadron, Ohio Cavalry.
> "To: The State Armory Board.
> "Subject: Bill for construction of lockers.
> "1. I enclose herewith certified claim, executed by myself, for the material entering into the construction of lockers for troop B Armory. The size of our troop has recently been increased and we have had a great deal of theft of property from the armory. In order to accommodate the increase and further safeguard property, I have had constructed 50 lockers for the clothing and personal equipment of the enlisted men, and 80 lockers for the saddle equipment of each man. By means of these lockers each equipment is locked up securely, and the saddle equipment lockers each have two locks, the man carrying one key and the quartermaster sergeant the other.
> "2. These lockers are detachable without injury to the building. The lockers for the personal equipment of the men have already been detached since the call of the president, June 19th. The saddle lockers can easily be removed without injury or destruction of the premises by the removal of a few nails.

"3. The armory occupied by our troop is held under lease, and is not an armory constructed by the state.

"4. Under our arrangement with the contractor we have paid him for the labor and furnished part of the labor by our own men, and the bill of the contractor is presenting his claim only for the material used.

"5. It is requested that this account be allowed and vouchers for payment.

"(Signed) Simeon Nash,
"Captain Troop B, First Squadron, Ohio Cavalry."

From an extract of the minutes of your board at a meeting held July 27, 1916, it appears that the following resolution was adopted:

"TROOP 'B' ARMORY. RESOLVED: That the claim of E. R. Smith for $205.00 for furnishing and installing lockers be allowed for payment, on condition that said payment is approved by the attorney-general.

"(Signed) Byron L. Bargar,
"Secretary Ohio State Armory Board."

The question arises, therefore, as to whether or not your board would be authorized to pay the claim of a contractor for furnishing and installing lockers in a building under lease, as an armory, by the state.

The sections of the General Code which prescribe the duties of the state armory board are sections 5253 to 5271 G. C. inclusive. Section 5255 G. C. provides as follows:

"The board shall provide armories for the purpose of drill and for the safe keeping of arms, clothing, equipments, and other military property issued to the several organizations of organized militia, and may purchase or build suitable buildings for armory purposes, when, in its judgment, it is for the best interests of the state so to do. The board shall provide for the management, care, and maintenance of armories, and may adopt and prescribe such rules and regulations for the management, government and guidance of the organizations occupying them as may be necessary and desirable."

Sections 5258 to 5261 G. C. inclusive provide for the construction of a building for an armory or the purchase of such a building.

Section 5261 G. C. was amended in 106 O. L. 103 by the addition of the following:

"Provided, that in addition to the amount so allowed for building and grounds there shall be allowed a sum not to exceed one thousand dollars for the furnishing and equipment of each such armory building so built or purchased."

The amendment of section 5261, G. C., above noted, in no way affects the question at issue. Section 5255 G. C., providing that the state board shall provide armories for the safekeeping of arms, etc., either by lease, purchase or construction of armories, is sufficient, as I view it, to authorize said board to provide lockers in a leased armory, for the reason that if the lessor had provided such armories, and included the cost price thereof in the lease, undoubtedly the state armory board would be entitled to pay an increased rental by reason thereof.

While it is true that section 5287 G. C., 106 O. L. 520, provides a fund yearly for the various organizations for the care of state property and other incidental expenses, nevertheless I do not believe that such fact in any way deters the state armory board from paying the bill in question. If the state armory board could have provided the lockers in the first instance I do not see any reason why it should not recognize, approve and adopt the expenditure for lockers made in the case in question.

The fund out of which the amount is to be paid by the state armory board is undoubtedly the appropriation made under the designation "Armory Fund" in house bill No. 701, 106 O. L. 666. Section 6 of said bill requires that vouchers drawn on appropriations made in said bill shall show that competitive bids were secured, unless an emergency existed requiring purchase.

From a letter received from Colonel E. S. Bryant, under date of August 2nd, it appears that the lockers in question were not let by competitive bids, and that the same were purchased about June 10, 1916. Therefore, the appropriation made to the state armory fund in house bill No. 701 at page 711 is the appropriation available for the purpose.

From the letter of Captain Nash, under date of July 22nd, hereinbefore set out in full, it appears that there was a great deal of theft of property from the armory, due to the fact that the property was not sufficiently under lock and key, moreover it appears that doubtless due to the call of the president there was a sudden and unusual increase in the numerical strength of the company. Such being the facts I well believe that the purchase of the lockers was an emergency, and, therefore, did not require competitive bidding.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—LIMITATION OF TWO-TENTHS OF ONE MILL IN SECTION 5643 G. C. DOES NOT APPLY TO INTEREST AND SINKING FUND LEVIES—APPLIES TO SPECIAL TAXES WHICH MAY BE LEVIED IN ANY ONE YEAR FOR PURPOSE OF BUILDING OR REPAIRING BRIDGES—TAX LIMITED TO SINGLE LEVY—BONDS PAYABLE WHEN TAX COLLECTED.

The limitation of two-tenths of one mill, mentioned in Section 5643 G. C. does not apply to the interest and sinking fund levies which may be made for the retirement of bonds issued under the latter part of section 5644 of the General Code, as to which there is no limitation, excepting the general ones of the Smith law.

Said limitation applies to the special taxes which may be levied in any one year for the purpose of building or repairing bridges as therein referred to. Such special tax is limited to a single levy on one duplicate, and if bonds are issued in anticipation of its collection under the first paragraph of section 5643 G. C. they must be made payable when such tax is collected.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 9, 1916.

HON. DON C. PORTER, Prosecuting Attorney, Coshocton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of August 5th, submitting for my opinion the following question:

> "In case county commissioners decide to sell bonds, by virtue of sections 5643 and 5644 of the General Code, for the construction of a bridge to replace one that has become dangerous to public travel, does section 5643 limit the amount of the bond issue or does it merely limit the proportion of the bond issue that can be paid in any one year?"

The answer to your question will, I am sure, be suggested by a careful analysis of sections 5643 and 5644 General Code, which must be read together. They are as follows:

> "Section 5643. If an important bridge, belonging to or maintained by any county, becomes dangerous to public travel, by decay or otherwise and is condemned for public travel by the commissioners of such county, and the repairs thereof, or the building of a new bridge in place thereof, is deemed, by them, necessary for the public accommodation, the commissioners, without first submitting the question to the voters of the county, may levy a tax for either of such purposes in an amount not to exceed in any one year two-tenths of one mill for every dollar of taxable property upon the tax duplicate of said county.
> "Section 5644. If the county commissioners deem it necessary or advisable, they may anticipate the collection of such special tax by borrowing a sum not exceeding the amount so levied, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually and may issue notes or bonds therefor, payable when said tax is collected, or the commissioners, without such submission of the question, may proceed under the authority conferred by law to borrow such sums of money as is necessary for either of the purposes before mentioned, and issue bonds therefor. For the payment of the principal and interest of such bonds, they shall annually levy a tax as provided by law."

Generally speaking, our statutes recognize two distinct theories of procedure or methods in the issuance of bonds, viz.:

First, The levy of special taxes and the issuance of bonds in anticipation of their collection; and Second, The issuance of bonds and the levy of taxes to pay the interest thereon and retire them when due.

Also, there are two kinds of bonds which may be issued under either of these schemes, namely, serial bonds in which the principal of the entire indebtedness is represented by obligations falling due periodically, and sinking fund bonds in which the entire issue falls due at the same time.

The above quoted sections confer three distinct powers which may be pointed out as follows:

1. The power to levy a tax which must not in any one year exceed two-tenths of one mill.

2. The power to anticipate the collection of the special tax by borrowing money, either by the issuance of bonds or by the issuance of notes, which obligations must be payable when the tax is collected.

3. The power to borrow money "under the authority conferred by law" and then to levy an annual tax for the payment of the principal and interest thereon.

The first of these powers is conferred by section 5643, The second and third of them are conferred by section 5644. The reference in the latter section to the "authority conferred by law" is to section 2434 of the General Code to which I refer you. It will be observed that this section of itself, and as adopted and referred to in section 5644, provides for the issuance of bonds according to the second general scheme or theory above described.

When section 5644 confers the power to issue bonds otherwise than in anticipation of the special tax provided for in section 5644, it does not impose any limitation thereon. It is expressly provided that the money to be borrowed in this way may consist of "such sums * * * as is necessary for either of the purposes before mentioned." And the tax that is to be levied for the payment of such bonds is to be such as is sufficient for the payment of the principal and interest thereon.

In other words, the limitations of section 5643 do not apply to the sinking fund and interest levy provided for by the last part of section 5644. The two levying powers are, as above pointed out, quite separate and distinct. It follows that if the county commissioners proceed under the second half of section 5644 and under section 2434 General Code, to issue bonds without reference to the special tax provided for by section 5643, as they may do, the limitations of the last named section do not apply at all. In this sense, section 5643 does not in any way limit the amount of the bond issue which the commissioners may make under the sections, if they decide to proceed in this way.

But if the commissioners wish to levy the special tax provided for by section 5643, and merely to borrow money by the issuance of bonds or otherwise, in anticipation of the collection thereof, the question which you submit is squarely raised. Furthermore, another question, which you do not suggest, is here encountered and must be considered before reaching a conclusion on your query. Section 5643 provides that under the circumstances therein named the commissioners "may levy a tax * * * in an amount not to exceed in any one year two tenths of one mill"&c.; and that part of section 5644, which completes this scheme of raising money, provides:

> "They may anticipate the collection of such special tax by borrowing a sum not exceeding the amount so levied, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, and may issue notes or bonds therefor, payable when said tax is collected."

The introductory question suggested by these phrases is as to whether or not the commissioners, under favor thereof, have authority to levy more than one special tax at a time; that is to say, does this power authorize the commissioners in one action to levy a tax that shall run on the duplicate for more than a year? Under the language of the sections under examination, I think the answer to this question is in the negative. It is true that many statutes of the state, authorizing the levy of taxes and the issuance of bonds in anticipation of their collection, have been so construed in practice as to authorize the making of a levy which is to run for a number of years, until the amount to be raised, with interest, is produced. But for several reasons, which I shall state, I do not think that section 5643 can be so interpreted.

In the first place, while not conclusive in itself, it is to be observed that the thing to be levied is designated in the singular number as "a tax." As a general rule at least, and subject to such exceptions as may exist in the case of levies of the general character above referred to, the act of the county commissioners, in levying taxes, is effective only with respect to a single year.

Section 5627 General Code provides as follows:

> "The county commissioners, at their March or June session, annually, shall determine the amount to be raised for ordinary county purposes, public buildings, the support of the poor, interest and principal of the public debt, and for road and bridge purposes. They shall specifically set forth in the record of their proceedings the amount to be raised for each of such purposes."

The Smith one per cent. law, section 5649-1 et seg., General Code, clearly recognizes that levies are annual, and the machinery of the budget commission, with its power to revise levies, &c. is adapted to this theory. Perhaps no clearer recognition of this idea is found than that which is expressed in section 5649-1, as amended 104 Ohio Laws 12. This section requires the making of annual sinking fund levies, adequate for the payment of interest and the retirement of the bonded indebtedness of the taxing district. These are the only mandatory levies of which the Smith law speaks; it treats all other levies as discretionary and clearly implies that such discretion is to be exercised annually.

If, therefore, the special tax referred to in section 5643 is to be regarded as a continuing levy, for the retirement of bonds (when bonds have actually been issued in anticipation of its collection), it is by virtue of section 5649-1 alone, and not by its own force and that of section 5627 General Code, under which its amount in any one year would be within the control of the county commissioners.

The Smith law, however, is of recent enactment, and obviously its provisions can not reflect upon the previously established meaning of section 5643 in this particular. Therefore, when said section 5643 was enacted, and its meaning became fixed, it provided for an annually redetermined levy, if it provided for any continuing levy at all.

2. The fact that ample provision is made for the issuance of long time bonds, in the last part of section 5644, is some evidence, at least, that the general assembly did not think that when it provided for the issuance of bonds, in anticipation of the collection of the special tax, it was making it possible to issue such long time bonds.

3. The third reason for the conclusion which I have expresssed respecting the question as to whether section 5643 authorizes a levy for more than one year, is in a way an answer to your specific question. The phrase "in an amount not to exceed in any one year two tenths of one mill," &c., modifies the phrase "may levy a tax." The two possible meanings of this phrase, suggested by your letter, may be stated thus:

(a) That the commissioners may levy taxes in any amount necessary to build the bridge, and then the amount so levied is to be distributed over a number of years, in such manner as that the levy in any one of the years will not exceed two tenths of one mill.

(b) The amount which the commissioners may levy for the purpose is limited to two tenths of one mill for that year.

The second of these two interpretations is certainly the most natural one to be given to the language of the section, and in my opinion it is correct. It is the amount of the levy made by the commissioners which is not to exceed two tenths of one mill in any one year. The section does not say that the amount of the levy may be any sum fixed by the commissioners in their discretion and required for the pusposes indicated, provided that only such part thereof shall be placed on the duplicate in any one year as will necessitate a levy of two tenths of one mill or less. To make it read so, would be doing manifest violence to its plain provisions.

The only doubt here is as to the meaning of the words "in any one year." If these words were not in the section at all, the interpretation which I have given to it would, I am sure, not be questioned. What is the true purport of this phrase? In my opinion, light is shed upon this question by the fact that the levy is to be made "for either of such purposes." While this phrase is of itself far from clear, I am strongly inclined to the view that the limitation here is upon the total amount of taxes that may be levied in any one year for any purpose, under section 5643. That is to say, if the commissioners decide to levy such special taxes for the restoration of two important bridges which are dangerous to public travel and are condemned, &c., it can not levy the taxes, up to this limitation, for each of the bridges, but the amount raised for both of them together must come within the limitation. This, then, is the purpose of the phrase "in any one year." The total levies made in any one year for "either" (i. e., any) of the purposes mentioned in section 5643 can not exceed two tenths of one mill.

Now, if this interpretation be correct, it has a definite bearing upon the general question as to whether the levy under section 5643 may last more than one year. Suppose, for example, the commissioners proceeded on the theory that they had the power under section 5643 to make a levy which should be binding on their successors at least as soon as the bonds were issued, and should require its own repetition during a number of years until a given amount of money had been raised; suppose too, that the levy was such as to require in the first year two tenths of one mill, i. e., to exhaust the limitation, then, if the duplicate of the county should remain exactly stationary during the remaining years within which it was supposed that the commissioners might by a single act cause a levy to be made, the limitation would be exhausted for each of those years also, unless the taxes previously provided for be not counted in ascertaining the two tenths of a mill limitation for such subsequent years. The result then would be that during such subsequent years the commissioners would be powerless to make any other levies under section 5643.

Does then section 5643, if it is to be interpreted as authorizing a continuing levy, impose any limitation upon the amount of the levies for the subsequent years? Obviously the answer to this question must be in the affirmative. It is distinctly provided that the amount to be levied "in any one year" shall not exceed two tenths of one mill. If the statute is susceptible of such an interpretation as to authorize a continuing levy, the levies for the subsequent years would have to be counted in ascertaining the limitation, as well as the one for the initial year.

I do not think that the legislature contemplated, in the enactment of this ambiguous section, that the county commissioners of one year should have it in their power to disable their successors in a later year from exercising this power at all; and yet this is the practical result which would follow if section 5643 be given this meaning. It may be argued that the commissioners of a subsequent year, being faced with the existence of a levy in a prior year under section 5643, might redistribute the amount originally levied, and extend its collection beyond the time originally contemplated. This, however, will not do, because section 5644 requires that when bonds have been issued they shall be made payable "when said tax is collected." It necessarily follows, therefore, that if bonds are to be issued the time of the final collection of the tax must be certain, because it fixes the time when the bonds are to be paid.

For all these reasons, then, I conclude that under section 5643 but one special tax for a single year can be levied. And if notes or bonds are issued they must be made payable at the time of the final collection of such tax. This conclusion of course answers your question by showing that the second alternative suggested by you is impossible, because a bond issue, to be retired in annual installments, can not be made under section 5643 and the first part of section 5644 of the General Code.

But it is not exactly accurate, either, to say that section 5643 limits the amount of a particular bond issue. What it does is to limit the amount of taxes that may be levied for the purpose indicated in any one year, as its terms plainly express.

I am aware that some of the arguments which I have used run counter to the established practice in levying taxes and issuing bonds in anticipation of their collection under other sections. In this group of sections, however, clear provision is made, as I have pointed out, for the issuance of long time bonds and the making of annual levies for their retirement. It is because the intention of the legislature to distinguish between the two kinds of bond issues is so plain in these sections, and because I think it is clear that the legislature intended that the long time bonds should be issued as provided for in the latter part of section 5644, that I have come to the conclusion above expressed.

Recapitulating, then, I am of the opinion that under the sections above named long time bonds may be issued without any limitation on the sinking fund levies necessary to retire them, other than the general limitations of the Smith one per cent. law, provided the commissioners proceed under the last part of section 5644 and under section 2434 General Code. But if the commissioners desire to levy a special tax, and to anticipate its collection by the issuance of notes or bonds, the force of such levy expires in one year, and the levy itself is to be extended upon one duplicate only; and the limitation of two tenths of one mill relates to all such taxes which may be levied in any one year.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TEXT BOOKS—WHEN MAJORITY OF MEMBERS OF VILLAGE OR RURAL SCHOOL BOARD DO NOT VOTE FOR ADOPTION OF TEXT BOOKS, RECOMMENDED BY DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT, BOARD MAY UNDER SECTION 7713 G. C. ADOPT BOOKS WITHOUT FURTHER RECOMMENDATION BY DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT—TIME FOR ADOPTING TEXT BOOKS.

If a majority of the elected members of a village or rural school board do not vote for the adoption of a text book or text books, which have been recommended by the district superintendent, the board may then proceed, pursuant to the provisions of section 7713 G. C., to adopt for use in the schools under its control other text books instead of those so recommended, without further recommendation by the district superintendent.

The school board of a village or rural school district may adopt text books for use in the schools under its control after the first Monday of February and before the first Monday of August, as provided by section 7713 G. C., though no recommendation thereof has been made by the district superintendent.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 9, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. PEARSON, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of July 13, 1916, is as follows:

> "I respectfully ask an opinion on the following question:
> "Section 7706-2 reads:
> " 'It shall be the duty of the district superintendent to recommend to the village and rural boards of education within such district, such text-books and courses of study as are most suitable for adoption.'
> "Section 7713 reads in part:
> " 'At a regular meeting held between the first Monday in February and the first Monday in August, each board of education shall determine by a majority vote of all members elected the studies to be pursued and which of such text-books so filed shall be used in the schools under its control.'
> "Is a board of education of a district within the jurisdiction of a district superintendent obliged to receive and act upon his recommendation in order to adopt text-books? If such board refuses to adopt the book or books recommended by him, may the board proceed then to adopt without receiving a second recommendation from him or giving him an opportunity to make such a recommendation? To put it in another way, is an adoption a legal adoption if the district superintendent's recommendation has not been received at all or, if after offered, such a recommendation has once been rejected the adoption is made without further report from him?"

In defining the powers and duties of district superintendents, section 7706-2 G. C., 104 O. L. 133, as quoted in your inquiry, was enacted, which imposes upon such superintendent the duty of recommending to the village and rural boards of education within his supervision district such text-books and courses of study as in his judgment are most suitable for adoption. It is similarly provided in section 7706 G. C., 104 O. L. 133, that such superintendent shall be the chief executive officer of all boards of education within his district and that "he may take part in their deliberations but shall not vote." The manifest purpose of this provision is that boards of education may have the benefit of the judgment of the district superintendent in their deliberations. It would not, however, be argued that in the absence of statutory declaration to that effect the board of education must be guided in their actions by the suggestions of the superintendent altogether in any matter.

A consideration of the provisions of section 7706-2 G. C. supra, readily suggests a similar purpose in its enactment. A careful examination of the further sections of the General Code, relative to the powers and duties of the district superintendent and village and rural school boards, as to the adoption of text-books, fails to disclose any provision which would indicate a legislative intent that the recommendation of the district superintendent, authorized or required by section 7706-2 G. C. should be binding upon the school board and such construction of the provision of that section would be inconsistent with the provisions of section 7713 G. C. quoted in your inquiry. This latter section requires that the board shall determine by a majority vote of all members, which of such text-books filed by the publishers shall be used in the schools under its control. It would be idle to require action by a majority vote of the board, if that action is conclusively predetermined by the district superintendent.

The requirement of section 7706-2 G. C. is fully met when the superintendent has made a recommendation and I find no requirement or authority for his making a second or further recommendation.

While it may not be an unreasonable, yet it seems it would be a somewhat unnatural, construction to give to the language of the above mentioned sections to hold that if a majority of the members of the board of education refused to vote for the adoption of a book or books recommended by the superintendent no substitute for the book or books so recommended could be adopted, except upon further recommendation by the superintendent. To so hold, it seems clear, would necessitate reading into these sections language which neither appears nor is there suggested.

As in the case of the provision of section 7706 G. C. above referred to, it seems clear that the only purpose of section 7706-2 G. C. is to give to the boards of education the benefit not of a second, third or subsequent choice of the superintendent, but rather of his best judgment as to the most suitable books only.

I am therefore of the opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that if a majority of the members of a board of education elected thereto do not vote for the adoption of a book or books which have been duly recommended by the district superintendent, the board may then proceed without further recommendation, to adopt by a majority vote of all members elected, a substitute or substitutes therefor, if the period of five years has elapsed since the adoption of a text which such newly adopted book or books are to supersede. It will be observed that by the provisions of section 7713 G. C. supra, the board of education is authorized to determine the text-books to be used at a regular meeting held between the first Monday in February and the first Monday in August. There is no requirement that notice should be given to the district superintendent by the board of education of the time when such action is contemplated nor is the authority here clearly conferred made dependent in any way upon the recommendation of the superintendent having been made, and I am of opinion that if the district superintendent fails or refuses to make his recommendation prior to the action of the board in determining the text-books to be used in the schools under its control, at a regular meeting of the board after the first Monday of February and before the first Monday of August, as required by section 7713 G. C., such determination would be valid notwithstanding the absence of the recommendation by the district superintendent.

The above also fully answers your communication under date of July 21, 1916, upon the same subject.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COLONEL JENNINGS MEMORIAL HALL—DISAPPROVAL OF CONTRACT—CONSIDERATION GREATER THAN BALANCE OF APPROPRIATION.

Contract for erection of Colonel Jennings Memorial Hall not to be approved because consideration is greater than the balance of the appropriation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 10, 1916.

Honorable Frank B. Willis, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—You have submitted to me for consideration a contract dated August 1, 1916, between I. N. Roselle and The Colonel Jennings Memorial Commission for the erection of the Colonel Jennings Memorial Hall, the said contract calling for the expenditure of four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars.

The erection of this building is not within the purview of sections 2314 et seq., G. C., and there is therefore no statutory provisions governing the method of awarding the contract other than that found in the appropriation made in 103 O. L., 607, which appropriation reads as follows:

> "To an honorary commission, appointed by the governor, appointment not requiring confirmation by the senate, to serve without compensation, except actual expenses. Said commission to enter into a contract to be approved by the governor, for the erection of a memorial building, in commemoration of the life and services of Colonel William Jennings and his company of soldiers who erected a fort at Fort Jennings, the present site of the village of Fort Jennings, Putnam county, Ohio. After appointment the commission shall organize and elect one of its members chairman. The chairman shall approve and sign all vouchers for the payment of costs in the erection of said memorial building, for which there is hereby appropriated the sum of .....$4,000.00."

In the appropriation bill found in 106 O. L., 843, the balance remaining unexpended in the above appropriation were all appropriated "to remain subject to all the terms and conditions of the original appropriation."

I have examined the contract as submitted and find no legal objection to the same save and except that upon inquiry at the office of the auditor of state I find there is only $3,972.85 remaining in the fund. The contract calling for $4,000.00 is therefore in excess of the appropriation. The appropriation calls for your approval of the contract.

Since there are not sufficient funds in the hands of the auditor of state appropriated for the purpose of paying the contract price, I do not believe that you should approve the contract. In this connection also I would call your attention to Opinion No. 1597 rendered to you under date of May 20th, 1916.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX—WHERE, BY TERMS OF WILL, ESTATES IN REMAINDER PASS TO COLLATERAL HEIRS DETERMINED ACCORDING TO PROVISIONS OF STATUTE OF DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION IN FORCE AT TIME OF DEATH OF TESTATOR—SUCH ESTATES TAXABLE—WHEN TAX BECOMES A LIEN—TIME OF DETERMINATION POSTPONED UNTIL DEATH OF LIFE TENANT—WHEN STATUTES FOR COLLECTION OF TAX BEGIN TO RUN.

Where, by the terms of a will, estates in remainder pass to collateral heirs determined according to the provisions of the statute of descent and distribution in force at the time of the death of the testator, such estates are subject to the collateral inheritance tax.

While, by the provision of the latter part of section 5331, G. C., 103 O. L., 463, said tax becomes a lien upon the property so passing to said collateral heirs immediately upon the death of the testator and remains a lien until paid, in case it is impossible at the time of the death of the testator to determine the value of the life estate for the purpose of deducting the same from the appraised value of the entire estate in order to determine the value of said estates in remainder, the time of the determination of said tax must be postponed until the death of the life tenant, and the statutes governing the limits of time for the collection of said tax will begin to run at the date of the death of said life tenant.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 10, 1916.

Honorable H. C. Fish, Prosecuting Attorney, Pomeroy, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of July 31st enclosing copy of the will of Joseph P. Bradbury, who died July 8, 1915.

You state that said testator left a widow who is still living; that he left no direct descendants but left two sisters and the descendants of one sister and of two brothers, and that the widow elected to take under the will.

You request my opinion upon the following questions:

"(1) Does the interest passing under Item IX of this will pass such an estate that the collateral inheritance tax should be paid?

"(2) If the collateral inheritance is to be paid on this estate, should it be paid now, or at the death of the widow?"

Provisions of the statutes pertinent to your inquiry are as follows:

"Section 5331, G. C. (103 O. L., 463):

"All property within the jurisdiction of this state, and any interests therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of this state or not, and whether tangible or intangible, which pass by will or by the intestate laws of this state, or by deed, grant, sale or gift, made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to a person in trust, or otherwise, other than to or for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant or adopted child, shall be liable to a tax of five per cent. of its value above the sum of five hundred dollars. Fifty per cent. of such tax shall be for the use of the state and fifty per cent. of such tax shall go to the city, village or township in which said tax originates. All administrators, executors and trustees, and any such grantee under a conveyance made during the grantor's life, shall be liable for all such taxes, with lawful interest as hereinafter provided, until they have been paid, as hereinafter directed. Such taxes shall become due and payable immediately upon the death of the decedent and shall at once become a lien upon the property, and be and remain a lien until paid."

Section 5333, G. C. (103 O. L., 463):

"When a person bequeaths or devises property to or for the use of father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, or adopted child, during life or for a term of years, and the remainder to a collateral heir, or to a stranger to the blood, the value of the prior estate, shall be appraised, within sixty days after the death of the testator, in the manner hereinafter provided, and deducted, together with the sum of five hundred dollars, from the appraised value of such property."

Section 5343, G. C.:

"The value of such property, subject to said tax, shall be its actual market value as found by the probate court. If the state, through the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, or any person interested in the succession to the property, applies to the court, it shall appoint three disinterested persons, who, being first sworn, shall view and appraise such property at its actual market value for the purposes of this tax, and make return thereof to the court. The return may be accepted by the court in a like manner as the original inventory of the estate is accepted, and if so accepted, it shall be binding upon the person by whom this tax is to be paid, and upon the state. The fees of the appraisers shall be fixed by the probate judge and paid out of the county treasury upon the warrant of the county auditor. In case of an annuity or life estate, the value thereof shall be determined by the so-called actuaries' combined experienced tables and five per cent. compound interest."

The items of said will, the provisions of which are material for the purpose of answering your questions are as follows:

"Item III. I give to her (Emma L. Bradbury, widow of testator) also as long as she remains unmarried, the residence in which we now live, situated on Butternut street in the village of Pomeroy, the grounds of which extend from the northeast line of the residence lot of the late Henry Koehler, and extending southeasterly to the low cement block wall standing between my residence lot and the premises upon which H. H. Blackmore now resides; that southeasterly line extending from the southeast end of said wall in a southerly direction to a point four feet distant from the stable now standing on Lot No. 41; then parallel with the northwesterly side of the stable to the big wall; thence along the big wall in a westerly line to Lot No. 37 owned by Frank Deihl; thence northwesterly along that line to the westerly end of a stone wall lying between my residence property and the lot owned by Edward Koehler; thence along that stone wall in a southeasterly direction to the line between the lot owned by the late Henry Koehler above mentioned, and my residence lot.

"Item IV. "I further desire and direct that the sum of four hundred and eighty dollars ($480.00) per year be paid in quarterly installments to my wife out of my estate, quarterly from the time of my death.

"Item V. I further direct that in case any blood relative of my own, or any blood relative of my wife should reside with her on said residence, and such person considers residing with her there, that he or she shall not remain a guest of the house longer than two weeks at any one time; and that he or she shall not remain an inmate or guest of the house longer than four weeks during any one year; that should any of the relatives reside with her beyond the time prescribed in this item, then the annual sum of $480.00 directed to be paid to my said wife in Item III of this will, shall be reduced to three hundred and eighty dollars ($380.00).

"But if her brother, Mark Woods, should desire to reside with her, and pay weekly two dollars per week to my said wife, and assist her in taking care of the yard and garden to the extent of his ability, the above provision in reference to relatives shall not apply to him.

"Item VII. I further desire and direct that after paying my wife the said sum of $480.00 per year, or $380.00 per year in the case she forfeits the one hundred dollars mentioned in Item V, that the balance of the income from my said estate shall be divided equally between my wife and my sister Augusta, the amount received by each of them, however, not to exceed the sum of one hundred dollars per year.

"Item IX. "I desire and direct that at the death of my wife, the balance of the property remaining shall be divided among my kindred according to the statute of descent and distribution in force in the state of Ohio at the time of my death."

It will be observed that by provision of Item III, Emma L. Bradbury, widow of the testator, has the use of the residence property so long as she remains unmarried. By provision of Items IV and V, the amount of her yearly allowance depends upon her compliance with the requirement of the provisions of said items. By provision of Item VII, her additional allowance is indeterminate.

The estate of Emma L. Bradbury is exempt from the collateral inheritance tax by provision of section 5331, G. C., supra, and in view of the provisions of Items III, IV, V and VII of said will, as above set forth, it is evident that it is impossible at this time to determine the value of said estate in the manner provided by section 5343, G. C., for the purpose of deducting the same from the value of the entire estate of the testator, as required by section 5333, G. C., and for the purpose of ascertaining the estate in remainder which would be subject to the collateral inheritance tax under the provision of said section 5331, G. C., it appearing from your statement of facts that there are no direct descendants of said testator who by provision of said section 5331, G. C., would be exempt from said tax.

Inasmuch as the value of the life estate of the said Emma L. Bradbury cannot at this time be determined, it necessarily follows that the estate in remainder cannot at this time be determined in the manner provided by section 5343, G. C., supra, and if it were not for certain provisions of the statutes to be hereinafter considered, I would at once conclude that the determination of the value of the estate in remainder must be postponed until after the termination of the life estate by the death of the said Emma L. Bradbury, widow of said testator.

It seems clear, however, that the provisions of Item IX disposes of the estate that will remain after deducting the life estate of the said Emma L. Bradbury by adopting by reference the provisions of the statute of descent and distribution in force in the state of Ohio at the time of the death of said testator, and I am of the opinion, in answer to your first question, that by the terms of said Item IX of said will there were vested in the collateral heirs of said testator, determined according to said statute of descent and distribution in force at the time of said death and still in force, estates in remainder the respective amounts of which cannot be determined at this time, and that said estates, the values of which are to be determined as hereinafter set forth, are subject to the collateral inheritance tax.

The answer to your second question is difficult to determine, in view of the fact that the courts of this state have not attempted to interpret the statutes governing the determination of collateral inheritance taxes and the time and manner of their collection as applied to a case where at the time of the death of the testator it is impossible to determine the value of the life estate.

It will be observed that by the terms of the provision of the latter part of section 5331, G. C., supra, "such taxes shall become due and payable immediately upon the death of the decedent and shall at once become a lien upon the property, and be and remain a lien until paid."

Section 5333, G. C., read in connection with section 5343, G. C., provides for the appraisal and deduction of the life estate or estate for a term of years from the entire estate of the testator for the purpose of determining the estate in remainder, said section 5333, G. C., providing that the value of the prior estate shall be appraised within sixty days after the death of the testator in the manner provided by section 5343, G. C., and deducted, together with the sum of five hundred dollars, from the appraised value of said entire estate.

Section 5335, G. C., provides that:

> "If such taxes are not paid within one year after the death of the decedent, interest at the rate of eight per cent. shall be thereafter charged and collected thereon, and if not paid at the expiration of eighteen months after such death, the prosecuting attorney of the county wherein said taxes remain unpaid, shall institute the necessary proceedings to collect the taxes in the court of common pleas of the county, after first being notified in writing by the probate judge of the county of the non-payment thereof. The probate judge shall give such notice in writing. If the taxes are paid before the expiration of one year after the death of the decedent, a discount of one per cent. per month for each full month that payment has been made prior to the expiration of the year, shall be allowed on the amount of such taxes."

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutes, can it be said that the determination of the tax in question and the collection of the same, may be postponed until the death of the life tenant? Numerous authorities from other states may be cited in support of the proposition that the tax must be postponed when the interests are not presently ascertainable.

In the case of People v. McCormick, 208 Ill., 437, it was held that when the basis of the tax, the rate and the exemption, if any, cannot be fixed the tax itself cannot be fixed. The fourth branch of the syllabus in that case is as follows:

> "Where the person who is or will ultimately be entitled to the beneficial interest in a remainder cannot be identified or the proportion thereof cannot be determined, the imposing of an inheritance tax must be postponed until such matters can be definitely ascertained."

To the same effect, see Ayers v. Chicago Title & Trust Company, 187 Ill., 42.

Upon investigation I find that the provisions of the statutes of Illinois are almost identical with those of this state.

In the case of in re Babcock, 75 N. Y. Supp. 926, the syllabus is as follows:

"Where testatrix devised to her brother during his life all her personal property with a right to use as much of the principal as was necessary, no transfer tax can be assessed against the remainder as it cannot be determined until the death of the life tenant how much of the principal will be used by him."

I observe, however, that under the statutes of New York provision is made for the postponement of the determination of the value of the estate in remainder where, at the time of the death of the testator, the prior estate cannot be determined.

While the foregoing provisions of the statutes, generally speaking, require the determination of the tax and the collection of the same within the time limits therein provided, I am nevertheless of the opinion that the only reasonable interpretation of said statutes as applied to the particular facts presented in your inquiry is to hold that while the tax on the estate in remainder became a lien upon the property upon the death of the testator and will remain a lien until paid, the time of the determination of said tax must be postponed until the death of the said Emma L. Bradbury, widow of said testator, and that the statutes governing the limits of time for the collection of said tax will begin to run at the date of the death of said life tenant.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE BOARD OF SCHOOL EXAMINERS—REFUSAL TO GRANT CERTIFICATE TO APPLICANT—UPON REQUEST BOARD SHOULD DISCLOSE TO APPLICANT ALL EVIDENCE SUBMITTED TO IT.

When the state board of school examiners refuse to grant a certificate to an applicant as provided by sections 7805, 7806-6 and 7806-7, G. C., 104 O. L., 100, upon evidence, not submitted to the board by the applicant, upon the questions of the good moral character, professional experience and ability, and the period of successful teaching therein prescribed, the board should, upon request of the applicant, disclose to him all such evidence and the source thereof.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 10, 1916.

Hon. Frank B. Pearson, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of July 14, 1916, is as follows:

"It seems necessary for me to submit to you the following question:

"Under sections 7807, 7807-6 and 7807-7, the state board of school examiners issue state life certificates. In investigating the experience of the candidates to determine whether they have completed the requisite period of teaching successfully, members of the board submit questionnaires to those who are acquainted with the teaching experience of the applicants. These are intended to be confidential reports. The question is, are these public documents of such a nature that members of the board of examiners are obliged to open them to the inspection of interested persons?"

Section 7805, G. C., 104 O. L., 100, provides for the creation of a state board of school examiners. That part of section 7807, G. C., 104 O. L., 100, pertinent to your inquiry, is as follows:

"The board thus constituted may issue three grades of life certificates to such persons as are found to possess the requisite scholarship, and who exhibit satisfactory evidence of good moral character and of professional experience and ability."

Sections 7807-6 and 7807-7, G. C., 104 O. L., 100, to which reference is made, provide as follows:

"Sec. 7807-6, G. C. It shall be the duty of the state board of school examiners to issue without examination to every holder of a state provisional certificate, a life certificate of similar kind upon satisfactory evidence that the holder thereof has completed at least twenty-four months of successful teaching, after receiving such provisional certificate.

"Sec. 7807-7, G. C. The state board of school examiners shall issue without examination, a state life high school certificate to the holder of a degree from any normal school, teachers' college, or university that has been approved by the superintendent of public instruction, upon satisfactory evidence that the holder thereof has completed at least fifty months of successful teaching."

Under sections 7807-6 and 7807-7, G. C., the board is required to issue certain classes of certificates under other conditions therein set forth, upon satisfactory evidence that the applicant has completed at least twenty-four months of successful teaching, after receiving a provisional certificate and upon satisfactory evidence that the applicant has completed at least fifty months of successful teaching, respectively.

These sections clearly impose upon the applicant the burden of producing before the board, in the first instance, satisfactory evidence of the requisite facts as to the prescribed periods of successful teaching in like manner as it is incumbent upon the applicant to produce satisfactory evidence of good moral character and of professional experience and ability, under the provisions of section 7807, G. C,. supra.

It is, of course, within the authority of the board to determine, in the exercise of its discretion, what constitutes satisfactory evidence of these essential matters of fact and in doing so the board would not only be authorized, but it would seem to be their duty, to establish and to follow, in so far as practicable, some uniform rule or regulation as to the character and amount of evidence upon these matters, which it would deem to be satisfactory, and require to be exhibited and submitted by the applicant. The establishment of such uniform rule would seem to be necessary in order to place all applicants upon an equal basis. The determination of the board, as to what evidence of these matters of fact would be deemed by it to be satisfactory, in the absence of gross abuse of its discretion, would be conclusive. Until such satisfactory evidence of the matters of fact here under consideration is submitted by the applicant, there would seem to be neither reason nor occasion for investigation on the part of the board in respect thereto. If the board of examiners, after the submission of what, in an ordinary case, would be by it deemed satisfactory evidence of good moral character, successful teaching experience, etc., has reason to doubt the verity of a part or all of the evidence so submitted, occasion might then arise for investigation to enable the board to properly determine the sufficiency of the evidence before it in the particular case. It will be readily observed that a board of examiners in such case bears a relation to the applicant somewhat similar to that of a court to parties to an action.

I learn from personal interview with Mr. T. Howard Winters, of the department of public instruction, from whom the above inquiry primarily comes, that the "interested persons" therein referred to are, generally speaking, the applicants for certificates in reference to whom the investigations mentioned in the request are made.

While an examination fails to disclose express statutory authority for the state board of school examiners making investigations of the character above referred to, I am inclined to the view that where there is reasonable ground to doubt the truth of such evidence as has been submitted on behalf of an applicant on the matters of fact here under consideration, it would be entirely proper for the board to consider other evidence of a similar character to that required of the applicant upon the question and to secure such evidence by means most practicable and convenient. When such evidence is so secured by the board, your question then is, must the board of examiners disclose such evidence to the applicant. If the action of the board is adverse to the applicant and the evidence thus procured by such investigation tends to discredit that submitted by the applicant, certainly every principle of justice and fairness would demand that the applicant have full opportunity to meet such derogatory evidence—a palpable right wholly defeated if the nature and source thereof is concealed by those public officers, whose first duty is to deal fairly and openly in all matters affecting the rights of individuals. While it would certainly be within the power of the legislature to provide that the qualifications of teachers for certificates should be determined by the state board of school examiners by secret inquisitions, such a course is so contrary to our whole policy of the administration of public affairs that it is not believed that the same could be adopted in the absence of express statutory authority therefor, and in the absence of such express statutory provision it is hardly conceivable that it was the legislative intent that the rights of applicants for certificates should be determined upon information, the course of which they may not know, the nature of which they may not learn and the truth of which they may not question.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to our inquiry, that where by means of questionnaires, or otherwise, evidence is obtained by the state board of school examiners relative to the moral character, professional experience and ability or to the period of successful teaching of an applicant for a certificate, upon which the board refuses to grant a certificate to an applicant as provided by said sections 7807-6 and 7807-7, G. C., all such evidence and the source thereof should be disclosed to the applicant that he may have full opportunity to meet the same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL COURT OF CLEVELAND—FEES—"SITTING AT TRIAL"—POLICE OFFICER OR BAILIFF—WITNESSES.

In civil causes of which courts or justices of the peace have jurisdiction in which a trial is had in the Municipal Court of Cleveland, a fee of one dollar for sitting in the trial of such cause may be taxed as costs.

In civil jury trials in which courts of justices of the peace have jurisdiction, in forcible detainer without a jury and in criminal trials in causes of which courts of justices of the peace have jurisdiction, a fee of one dollar may be taxed as costs for the attendance of a bailiff or deputy bailiff in the municipal court of Cleveland.

Witness fees may not be taxed in criminal cases for the attendance of police officers, police-detectives or bailiffs, as witnesses in the municipal court of Cleveland.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 11, 1916.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of May 25, 1916, is as follows:

> "We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following questions:
> "(1) In what event should $1.00 be taxed as a part of the costs of judge for 'sitting at trial'?
> "(2) In what event should $1.00 be taxed as a part of the costs of the police officer or bailiff attending trial?
> "(3) Is it legal in any event to tax a fee of 50 cents for attendance at the trial as a witness, or otherwise, of a police officer, detective, or bailiff?
> "P. S.—The above questions relate to the legal fees taxable in the municipal court of the city of Cleveland, Ohio."

The municipal court of Cleveland is established and conducted under the provisions of sections 1579-1 to 1579-54, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 682, and 106 O. L., 274. By section 1579-21, G. C., 103 O. L., 889, it is provided:

> "The judges or a judge of the court may summon and impanel jurors; tax costs; compel the attendance of witnesses, jurors and parties; issue process; preserve order; punish for contempt; and may exercise all powers which are now or may hereafter be conferred upon the court of common pleas or the judges thereof, or upon justices of the peace, or upon police courts of cities or the judges thereof necessary for the exercise of the jurisdiction herein conferred and for the enforcement of the judgments and orders of the court."

This provision confers upon the judges or a judge of the municipal court of Cleveland authority to tax costs but does not prescribe the costs to be so taxed.

Section 1579-47, G. C., 103 O. L., 695, provides as follows:

> "Except as otherwise provided for in this act, in actions and proceedings wherein the said municipal court has jurisdiction concurrent with a court of a justice of the peace, the fees and costs may be the same and taxed in the same manner as is now, or may hereafter be provided for actions and proceedings heard and determined in a court of a justice of the peace. In other actions and proceedings the fees and costs may be the same and taxed in the same manner, as is now, or may hereafter be, provided for actions and proceedings heard and determined in the court of common pleas. In criminal proceedings all fees and costs may be the same as now fixed in the police court of said city. Provided, however, that the municipal court, in lieu of the aforesaid methods of taxing costs, by rule of court may establish a schedule of fees and costs to be taxed in all actions and proceedings, in no case to exceed fees and costs provided for like actions and proceedings by general law."

Except it be otherwise provided in the act in 103 O. L., 682, there may be taxed as fees and costs in the municipal court of Cleveland (1) in actions and proceedings wherein that court has concurrent jurisdiction with courts of justices of the peace the same fees and costs as may be taxed by justices in such cases; (2) in other actions and proceedings the same fees and costs as are authorized to be taxed in similar matters in the court of common pleas and (3) in all criminal proceedings the same fees and costs as are authorized in the police court of said city, provided that such municipal court has not by rule established a schedule of fees and costs to be taxed in all proceedings in no case in excess of the fees and costs provided in like actions and proceedings by general law.

Section 4580, G. C., prescribes the witness fees in police courts, and section 4581, G. C., provides as follows:

"Other fees in the police court shall be the same in state cases as are allowed in the probate court, or before justices of the peace, in like cases, and in cases for violation of ordinances such fees as the council, prescribes, not exceeding the fees for like services in state cases."

Section 1746, G. C., in so far as pertinent, provides:

"Except as otherwise provided, justices of the peace, for the services named, when rendered, may receive the following fees: * * * * * sitting in the trial of a cause, civil or criminal, where a defense is interposed, whether tried to the justice or to a jury, one dollar; * * * *."

It is assumed that this latter provision gives rise to your first question. Since the costs in the municipal court of the city of Cleveland in all criminal proceedings are limited by the provisions of section 1579-47, G. C., 103 O. L., 695, supra, to the fees and costs fixed in the police court of said city, the same are governed by the provision of section 4568, G. C., as follows:

"The judge of the police court shall receive no fees or perquisites, but shall receive such annual compensation, not to exceed two thousand dollars as the council may prescribe * * * * *."

This provision renders it conclusive that a judge of the municipal court of Cleveland may not receive the fee of one dollar for sitting in the trial of the cause as provided by section 1746, G. C., supra, in any criminal proceeding. It is provided, however, by section 1579-41, G. C., 106 O. L., 278, in which the powers and duties of the clerk of the municipal court of Cleveland are defined that:

"He shall receive and collect all costs, fines and penalties, and shall pay therefrom annually six hundred dollars in quarterly installments to the trustees of the law library association as provided in division IV, chapter 1, of the General Code, and he shall pay the balance thereof quarterly to the treasurer of the city of Cleveland and take proper receipts therefor, but money deposited as security for costs shall be retained by him pending the litigation."

So that if the fee of one dollar for sitting in the trial of a cause prescribed by section 1746, G. C., supra, may be taxed as costs in any criminal proceeding, the same is required to be collected by the clerk and disposed of according to the above provision of section 1579-41, G. C.

I am inclined to the view, however, that the effect of the provision of section 4568, G. C., above quoted, is to eliminate from the costs in criminal cases in police courts the item of one dollar for sitting in the trial of a cause as provided by section 1746, G. C., supra, and that therefore the same is not required to be collected by the clerk in criminal cases.

The above inhibition against a police judge receiving fees is not applicable to the fee for sitting in the trial of a cause in a civil proceeding because, as will be noted, it is provided by section 1579-47, G. C., supra, that in civil proceedings in which the municipal court has concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace, costs may be taxed in the same manner as is provided for actions in courts of justice of the peace.

The one dollar item in question is by section 1746, G. C., a proper item of costs in the court of a justice of the peace, and it is therefore the duty of the clerk of the municipal court of Cleveland, in civil cases, to collect and make disposition thereof as provided by section 1579-41, G. C., 106 O. L., 278, supra.

Answering your first question specifically, I am of opinion that in civil cases of which courts of justices of the peace have jurisdiction, and in which a trial is had in the municipal court of Cleveland, a fee of one dollar for sitting in the trial may be taxed as costs, and should be collected and disposition thereof made according to the provisions of section 1579-41, G. C., supra.

Your second question, it is assumed, has reference to the provision of section 3347, G. C., as follows:

"For services rendered, duly elected and qualified constables shall be entitled to receive the following fees; * * * on each day's attendance before justice of the peace, or jury trial, one dollar; each day's attendance before justice of the peace on criminal trial, one dollar; on each day's attendance before justice of the peace in forcible detainer, without jury, one dollar; * * * * * *."

In the original enactment of this section, 62 O. L., 90, the word "or" in the above phrase "or jury trial" was "on," and should in my opinion be so interpreted here.

Section 1579-45, G. C., 106 O. L., 278, provides in part as follows:

"A bailiff and deputy bailiffs, shall be designated as hereinafter provided for in this act. They shall perform for the municipal court services similar to those usually performed by the sheriff for courts of common pleas and by the constable for courts of justice of the peace. The bailiff shall have power to approve all undertakings and bonds given in actions of replevin, all redelivery bonds in attachment, and all bail bonds given upon arrest before judgment. The bailiff shall receive such compensation not less than three thousand six hundred dollars per annum and deputy bailiffs shall each receive such compensation not less than one thousand two hundred dollars, per annum, as the council may prescribe, payable in monthly installments, out of the treasury of the city of Cleveland. * * * * * *"

The bailiff and deputy bailiffs are here required to perform services similar to those performed by constables for courts of the justice of the peace, one of which services is to attend trial by jury before a justice and to attend before justice in forcible detainer without jury, and criminal trials for which a fee of one dollar is provided by section 3347, G. C., supra. It therefore follows that by force of section 1579-47, G. C., supra, in those civil cases in which a jury trial is had of which the court of a justice of the peace would have jurisdiction, and in forcible detainer without a jury and in criminal trials in causes of which courts of justices of the peace have jurisdiction, a fee of one dollar may be taxed as costs in said cause for the attendance of a bailiff or deputy bailiffs, and should be collected and disposition thereof made as provided in section 1579-41, G. C., supra.

As to your third inquiry, the statutory provisions hereinbefore referred to are subject to the special provisions of section 3024, G. C., as follows:

"No watchman or other police officer is entitled to witness fees in a cause prosecuted under a criminal law of the state, or an ordinance of a city, before a police judge or mayor of a city, justice of the peace, or other officer having jurisdiction of such cases."

The manifest purpose of the enactment of this section was that it serve as an inhibition against taxing as costs, in the cases mentioned, witness fees of those police officers whose official duty it is to enforce the law and to prosecute such cases, and who are at the same time being paid a compensation or salary for the discharge of such duties from public funds. In the light of such purpose of the above quoted statute, the term police officer would clearly include as well bailiffs of the municipal court of Cleveland and detectives who are in the police service of the city. It would not include detectives otherwise receiving compensation for their services in connection with the cause so prosecuted from the city or other public funds.

The above statutory provision has no application to witnesses in civil causes, and I am of opinion that when a police officer, detective or bailiff is subpoenaed or called as a witness in a civil cause in the municipal court of Cleveland, he is entitled to the same fees as other witnesses in like cases.

TAXES AND TAXATION—CONTRACT BETWEEN THE CLEVELAND RAILWAY COMPANY AND CLEVELAND, PAINESVILLE AND EASTERN RAILROAD COMPANY—EXCISE TAXES—GROSS EARNINGS FOR PURPOSE OF TAX.

A contract between an interurban railroad company and a local railroad company, whereby it is agreed that the latter will receive the cars of the former and so operate them upon its lines as to transport passengers and freight therein to a designated point in the city, and that passenger fares and freight charges earned in the city transit shall belong to the city company, at the expense and risk of which the city transit shall take place, differs from a contract of the kind subsisting between the interurban company and the local company in Cincinnati, Milford and Loveland Traction Company v. State, 94 O. S. Such a contract amounts to a joint traffic agreement, and payments made in pursuance thereof by the interurban company to the local company constitute merely a settlement and accounting for earnings belonging in the first instance to the local company; nor is a different character to be ascribed to rebate payments made under such contract by the local company to the interurban company on account of passenger earnings from city business originating on or going to points on the interurban line. Such payments, therefore, may be deducted from the total income of the interurban company or the city company, as the case may be, for the purpose of ascertaining its gross earnings as a basis of the computation of the public utility excise tax.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 11, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"In re Omitted Excise Taxes of The Cleveland Railway Company. P. U. No. 2247."

The above entitled claim, which has been certified to this department for collection, represents moneys paid by The Cleveland Railway Company to The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company as a rebate on passenger fares and freight charges upon business originating on or going to points on the lines of the latter railroad, under contract between the two companies. This rebate was deducted by The Cleveland Railway Company from its statement of gross earnings made to the commission for the purpose of the apportionment of the public utility excise tax.

The question of law which is involved here is as to whether or not the case presented is governed by the decision of the supreme court in Cincinnati, Milford and Loveland Railway Company v. State of Ohio, 94 O. S., ——.

In the case cited, the decision hinged upon the interpretation to be given to a contract between The Cincinnati Traction Company and The Cincinnati, Milford and Loveland Railway Company, by virtue of which permission was given to the latter company to operate its cars for the transportation of passengers and freight over certain designated tracks of the former company.

As compensation for the privilege thus granted by the owner of the tracks and the city franchises, the interurban company, the user thereof, was to pay in the first instance a certain annual stipend, and in addition thereto was to pay a fixed sum for each passenger carried in its cars over said tracks; was to divide freight earnings on the basis of freight car mileage, and was to make certain other payments and divisions of particular earnings, which it is not necessary to mention in this connection.

The court held that in its essence the contract was, as above stated, merely one for the use of property and facilities, as distinguished from one for the interchange of traffic; that, accordingly, whatever might be the form of any particular payment to be made by the interurban company to the local company, in pursuance thereof, all transactions referable to the contract were to be interpreted in the light of the relation of the parties thus generally described, and not regarded as joint enterprises, the income of which was merely being divided. On this ground the court distinguished the preceding case of State v. Coshocton Gas Company, 88 O. S., 608, wherein a contract between a local gas company and a producing or transporting gas company was, because of its particular terms and the situation of the parties, held to contemplate the transaction of a joint business, and the division between the parties of the receipts from or earnings of such joint business; so that, for the excise tax report purposes, only the share of one of the parties constituted its earnings.

It is apparent that the solution of the question raised by the claim above referred to must depend upon the relation of The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company to The Cleveland Railway Company. Were the two companies, during the time to which the statement relates, engaged in a joint enterprise, in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as that particular earnings of such joint enterprise, though collected by one company, belonged in the first instance to the other; or, was the one company merely using facilities of the other company and paying therefor in such manner as might be agreed upon, so that the payments so made represented merely operating expenses of the payor, rather than the payee's share of the fruits of a joint undertaking? This question must be answered by examining the contract between the parties, for it is clear, upon consideration of the grounds upon which the two cases above cited were decided, that the mere fact that the cars of an interurban railway company may be operated over the tracks of a local street railway company, and that the interurban company may be making payments to such local company, or vice versa, is not conclusive.

Through the courtesy of the secretary of the Cleveland Railway Company, I have been permitted to examine copies of a general or main traffic agreement between The Cleveland Electric Railway Company and The Cleveland City Railway Company on the one hand, and a number of interurban railroad companies, including The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company, on the other hand, entered into November 29th, 1897, and a separate contract between The Cleveland Electric Railway Company and The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company, supplementary to said main contract and entered into on the same date. It appears that these contracts are still in force, although the obligations thereof have been assumed by different corporations. Thus The Cleveland Electric Railway Company and The Cleveland City Railway Company have, as I understand it, been merged into The Cleveland Railway Company, or at least the latter company has assumed the obligations of the other two companies. So also with respect to some of the interurban companies mentioned in the main agreement.

For the present purposes, the following provisions of the "general or main traffic agreement" may be quoted:

> "WHEREAS, It is desired by the parties hereto (to) so adjust their relations that the said city companies shall have the street railway business within the present or future limits of the city of Cleveland, except as hereinafter provided, or points adjacent thereto to which they now carry passengers for a single fare, and that the said suburban companies shall have the suburban traffic over territory reached by their respective lines and territory naturally tributary thereto, up to the limits of said city, or to the present connecting points with said city companies, without interference with each other; and also to agree upon terms and conditions upon which said city companies may operate the cars of said suburban companies.

"3. The general terms upon which said suburban cars shall be operated by the city companies are as follows:

"The city companies shall pay to the suburban companies, for cars delivered to and used upon the lines of the city companies, mileage at the rate of two cents per car-mile during the first two years of the existence of this contract.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

"Settlement for mileage shall be made monthly and payments for each month made on or before the 20th of the succeeding month.

"4. The city companies shall receive and be entitled to all fares collected from incoming and outgoing passengers from and to the points at which such cars are received and delivered by them, except as otherwise provided in special contracts between either of the city companies and any of the suburban companies, parties hereto, and the suburban companies shall receive and be entitled to all fares collected from passengers outside of such points.

"5. The net revenues received from freight, express, other sources than passenger traffic and U. S. mail, in earning, which the city and suburban companies participate, shall be apportioned between the two participating companies in proportion to the length of their respective hauls; the provisions of this section to remain in force for two years, and then to be subject to adjustment as is hereinbefore provided for an adjustment of car mileage; it being understood that the city companies are not required to haul anything but passengers in their own cars.

"7. Each of the city companies shall be responsible for the cars received by it from the point at which they are received and until they are returned to the same point, and agrees to be responsible for all damages to persons or property occasioned in its operation of such cars, and to return the cars received by it at the point of delivery in as good condition as when received, wear and tear only excepted.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

"9. It is agreed that in all cases where baggage is carried by the suburban companies without charge, the city companies will carry the same baggage, in the suburban companies' cars, free of charge. It is mutually understood that the city companies shall not be required to transport more than 150 pounds of baggage for any passenger."

The following provisions of the separate contract between The Cleveland Electric Railway Company and The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company are of interest:

"2. The first party shall take all cars tendered to it by second party at the junction of the lines of said parties, and shall, except as otherwise mutually agreed, place upon said cars its own motormen and conductors, and operate said cars, at its sole expense and risk, and under its exclusive directions and control, over what is known as said first party's Euclid Avenue line, or such other line as the parties hereto may agree upon, to the Public Square, or other point in the city of Cleveland which may hereafter be mutually agreed upon, and return said cars over the same route, and deliver them to second party at said junction.

"3. Said first party shall be entitled to collect from all passengers on said cars, while in its possession, its regular rate of fare for operating its own cars over the same line.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

"7. Said first party agrees to pay a rebate to the second party of 25% of the gross receipts of the line in Euclid avenue between the easterly limits of the village of East Cleveland and its present terminus in Euclid hamlet collected from passengers who come from or go to points east of said terminus; the intention being that such rebate shall be made to the suburban company only upon business originating on or going to points on the suburban line."

There is also a contract between The Cleveland City Railway Company and The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company, entered into on the date above named, which seems to be identical in terms with the contract between The Cleveland Electric Railway Company and The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company.

The purport of the above quoted provisions of the main and supplemental contracts is plain and unmistakable. They witness a joint traffic agreement in the most exact sense of the term. The contract is such as might be entered into between any two connecting railroad companies. Under this contract the operation of the interurban cars within the limits of the franchise territory of the city companies is the act of the city companies. Instead of the local companies agreeing to permit the interurban companies to operate their cars over the local tracks, as in the Cincinnati case, the local companies agree to receive such cars and themselves to operate them over their own tracks. Moreover, there is no underlying payment for privileges conferred by the local company upon the interurban company, as in the Cincinnati case, and what may be referred to as the passenger payments, instead of being apportioned according to the number of passengers hauled, amounts to nothing more than that the local fare shall belong to the local company and that the fare representing suburban and interurban transit, i. e., what might be termed the ride outside of the city territory, is to belong to the interurban companies; so that if either company collects the whole through rate, it must account for the fare belonging to the other company, in its periodical settlements with the latter.

With respect to the division of freight earnings, it is to be observed that the same, together with express and like receipts, are to be divided between the local and the interurban companies "in proportion to the length of their respective hauls," instead of such earnings being apportioned on the basis of car-mileage, irrespective of the particular haul, as in the Cincinnati case.

In other words, the companies speak accurately in their contract of themselves as participating in the through freight rate, just as two commercial steam railroads, having connecting lines, would participate in such a through rate.

What has been said is, I think, sufficient to show that the relation between The Cleveland Railway Company and the interurbans, with which it has agreed in the above quoted main contract and special contracts like that with The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company, is that of connecting carriers under joint traffic arrangements. Thus it appears that any collection of revenue made by one company on account of the transportation of passengers, freight or express in a continuous journey over the lines of both companies, belongs in the first instance to both companies in the proportion in which, under the contract, they are respectively entitled to participate therein.

The precise question, of course, relates to the nature of the rebate payments made by the local company, The Cleveland Railway Company, as successor to the two local companies, parties to the original contracts to The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company, under section 7 of the supplemental contract, as above quoted. In my opinion the character of these payments was fixed by the nature of the relation of the parties as hereinbefore described.

While this stipulation has the effect of calling for something more than a mere accounting for earnings belonging in the first instance to the respective parties to the joint traffic agreement, as their respective shares of joint rates, yet it does not destroy the nature of the relation established by the contract, which is that of participants in a joint enterprise. The undertaking being carried on for the benefit of both parties, the contract may, of course, further stipulate exactly as to what shall be the respective shares of each party in the fruits of the enterprise. While the simplest kind of a stipulation to this effect which could be imagined, would be one for the mere participation on the mileage basis, or some equivalent rule, in the through rate, yet it is competent for the parties to stipulate in addition for rebate of this character, without changing the nature of the agreement. Therefore, the rebate provided for by section 7 belongs, in my opinion, in the first instance to the interurban company, the same as its share of all joint rates participated in.

It follows, of course, that the claim against The Cleveland Railway Company is not covered by the decision in the Cincinnati, Milford and Loveland case, but that in a general way, at least, the principles of the Coshocton Gas Company case apply.

I am also just in receipt of a letter from the general manager of The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company, against which a claim (P. U. No. 2250) of a similar nature has been certified to this department for collection. My information is that The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company is the successor in interest of The Lorain and Cleveland Railway Company, which was a party to the general or main traffic agreement. I have seen a copy of a special or additional agreement between The Lorain and Cleveland Railway Company and the local companies, and between The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company and such local companies which is in all respects similar to that between The Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Railroad Company and The Cleveland Electric Railway Company.

The manager of The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company states in his letter that of the claim certified to this department for collection against The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company, so much as represents taxes upon $12,-680.00, amounts paid to the Toledo local railway company, is conceded to be due from the company; but that the remainder, representing Cleveland payments, is, in the view which he takes, not collectible.

For the reasons above stated, the contention of the manager of The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company is, upon the facts as he represents them to be, correct. In fact, though the particular contracts should in all cases be examined, I have been assured that all arrangements made by The Cleveland Railway Company, or its predecessors, with interurban railroads, are of the same general character; whereas, all arrangements made by the local railway and light company in Toledo, with incoming interurban railroads, are of the character similar to those made by The Cincinnati Traction Company with interurbans using its tracks. This would most likely be the case, because the local company in all such cases is in position virtually to dictate terms upon which it will permit the use of its tracks by the incoming interurban railroad, or enter into traffic arrangements with such railroad. Accordingly, it is quite usual for the local company to have a stereotyped form of contract which it imposes upon the interurban company which desires to make terms with it.

Upon the principles above laid down, I advise and recommend that the claim against The Cleveland Railway Company, P. U. No. 2247, be settled and compromised by the cancellation of the entire amount certified for collection; and that the claim against The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company, P. U. No. 2250, be settled and compromised upon the basis above referred to, viz., the payments made to The Cleveland Railway Company are to be deducted from the amount on which the omitted tax certified for collection is based and the amount of the claim be reduced accordingly, and payment accepted upon that basis. I assume that the commission is able from its files to verify the statement of the general manager of The Lake Shore Electric Railway Company to the effect that the sum of $12,680.00 represents Toledo payments. My recommendation goes to the basis of settlement and not to the exact amount thereof.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—COUNCIL—AUTHORIZED TO LEVY FOR FUNDS TO CARE FOR INDIGENT SICK OF CITY—WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO LEVY TAX FOR PAYMENT OF LOSSES SUSTAINED BY HOSPITALS BY REASON OF CONTRACT BETWEEN CITY AND HOSPITALS —SECTION 4021, G. C., CONSTRUED—CITY OF YOUNGSTOWN.

The city council, while authorized under the provisions of section 4021, G. C,. to levy a tax for the purpose of raising funds for the care of indigent sick of the city, is without authority to levy such tax for the payment of losses sustained by hospitals in previous years under the operation of a contract with the city which provides for the payment to the various hospitals, parties to the contract, of a proportionate share of the sum raised by taxation under section 4021, G. C.

Whether or not a moral obligation exists on the part of the city to reimburse the hospitals for such losses, is debatable; but if it be assumed and admitted by the city that such moral obligation exists, and under such assumption the proceeds of the tax levy are paid to the hospitals, no recovery back of the money thus paid could be made.

A contract made between the city and the hospitals, to provide for the care of the sick under the provisions of section 4021 would be subject to modification, and if under its modified form moneys were raised by taxation, to take care of anticipated losses in future years, such moneys could legally be paid to the hospitals. Amounts levied and collected under the provisions of section 4021, G. C., to pay losses sustained by hospitals under a contract covering service for past years, are the proceeds of a special tax in the treasury, and there being no authority for their expenditure, they should, under the provisions of section 5654, G. C., be transferred to the sinking fund of the city.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 11, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

"We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following questions:

"On January 1, 1912, a contract became effective between the city of Youngstown and the Youngstown City Hospital and St. Elizabeth Hospital whereby said hospitals agreed, 'To render medical and surgical attention, to furnish board and nursing to the city poor for the consideration of a just proportion of the funds appropriated by city council for hospital purposes * * *. To accept in full compensation for the services to be rendered our proportionate part of the moneys appropriated by council for this purpose in the following proportion and manner; that each hospital receive such proportion of the money so appropriated by council for this purpose as the number of hospital days' treatment by each hospital shall bear to the total number of days of hospital treatment rendered by all, it being mutually understood and agreed that the board of health shall distribute patients in such a manner that the number of hospital days shall be as nearly equal as possible for each hospital, equalization being effected each quarter.'

"November 30, 1914, council passed an ordinance to the effect that said hospitals had submitted claims, alleged losses in caring for the indigent sick in the years 1912, 1913, 1914 and estimated for 1915 in the amount of $80,622.00 under the terms of the aforesaid contract, and that said amount be included in the 1916 tax budget, said amount to be in addition to the amount required to care for the indigent sick during said year 1916.

"Said amount of $80,622.00 was included in said tax budget, and a mill levy sufficient to produce approximately said amount was incorporated in the municipal tax rate for 1916.

"Question 1: Was the action taken by council on November 30, 1914, to provide for losses alleged to have been sustained under said contract of January 1, 1912, legal?

"Question 2: If not legal, should the city auditor refuse payment of said tax money to said hospitals?

"Question 3: Could said funds be used to pay bills for care of indigent sick incurred since January 1, 1916, when a new contract became effective between the city and the hospitals?"

In addition to your letter, I have before me the copies of the ordinances passed by the city council of Youngstown, Ohio, which you have furnished at my request.

It appears that on November 27th, 1911, the council of the city of Youngstown passed an ordinance wherein they accepted a proposal made by several private charitable hospitals of the city, among which were the Youngstown City Hospital Association and St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the ordinance having for its purpose the securing of medical and surgical attention, boarding and nursing of the indigent poor of the city of Youngstown.

By the terms of the agreement created by the proposal and acceptance, the two hospitals above mentioned contracted to "accept in full compensation for the services to be rendered our proportionate part of the monies appropriated by council for this purpose in the following proportion and manner, to wit":

"We agree to render medical and surgical attention, to furnish board and nursing to the 'city poor,' for the consideration of a just proportion of the funds appropriated by city council for hospital purposes, upon the following conditions:", the conditions being as to the residence of the applicant for admission, certification by a practicing physician as to the condition of such applicant, emergency cases, etc.

The arrangement went into effect January 1st, 1912, and continued without interruption or protest, so far as my information goes, until the city council on November 30th, 1914, passed an ordinance as follows:

"Providing a method for determining the amount of money to be raised for hospital purposes in the year 1916 and succeeding years, and for making compensation for the work done by the Youngstown Hospital Association and St. Elizabeth's Hospital under a method provided by the ordinance of November 24th, 1911, the cost of which has exceeded the appropriations made by council to said hospitals for said work.

"WHEREAS, Under the laws of the 28th day of March, 1898, council is authorized to levy and collect a tax not exceeding one mill and pay the amount so collected to private hospitals which furnish free care to the indigent sick of such municipality; and

"WHEREAS, Under the terms of said statute an arrangement was made by an ordinance dated November 24th, 1911, to levy a sufficient amount of money to pay to The Youngstown Hospital Association and St. Elizabeth's Hospital an amount of money to be equal to the cost of caring for the indigent sick of Youngstown; and

"WHEREAS, The work done by said hospitals in caring for the sick of this municipality, sent to said hospitals by the municipal authorities of the city of Youngstown, has exceeded the amounts so levied and collected during the years 1912, 1913 and 1914, and on account of the present depression in business, an abnormal amount of work will be sent to said hospitals for 1915, and the value of said work will greatly exceed the amount provided for the year 1915, said losses for said years 1912, 1913 and 1914 amounting to thirty-nine thousand, five hundred forty dollars and forty-four cents ($39,540.44) on the part of the Youngstown Hospital Association, and nineteen thousand, eight hundred fourteen dollars and seventy-six cents ($19,814.76) on the part of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and the loss anticipated for the year 1915 will be twenty-one thousand, two hundred and sixty-six dollars and seventy cents ($21,266.70), making a total of eighty thousand, six hundred twenty-two ($80,622.00) dollars.

"Now, therefore, in order to provide a method for computing the cost of such services in future, and in order to provide compensation to said hospitals for their losses during the years 1912, 1913, 1914 and the anticipated loss during the year 1915;

"Be it ordained by the council of the city of Youngstown, state of Ohio:

"First. That in order to determine the amount of money to be raised for hospital purposes in future years, the cost thereof shall be determined by an examination of the accounts of said hospital by the hospital committee and finance committee of council and a computation of the expected increase for the coming year, and the levy for such year shall be based upon the cost so determined.

"Second. That in order to reimburse said hospitals for losses sustained since January 1st, 1912, that the amount of eighty thousand, six hundred twenty-two dollars ($80,622.00) be levied in the budget of 1916, in addition to the amount provided for the care of the sick for said year, as provided for in section one, and that the total amount of money so determined for hospital purposes for the year 1916 shall be the total of the two amounts so determined.

"Third. That as early as possible after the first day of January, 1915, the hospital committee and finance committee of council shall meet with the proper officials of The Youngstown Hospital Association and St. Elizabeth's Hospital and determine a method for designating the persons who are to receive municipal relief at such hospitals, and shall further provide a method of determining the cost of such services, and a method of estimating the amount of services to be given by said hospitals during the coming year, and the amount so determined shall be reported to council and included in the budget in 1916, and the method so determined shall be followed in future years.

"This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law."

No complaint is made that the city council failed to appropriate, during the years 1912, 1913 and 1914, as much for the care of the indigent sick of the city as the hospitals anticipated and expected when they submitted their proposal which was accepted by the ordinance of November 27th, 1911; nor is any claim made by the hospitals, or any one else, that the cost and expense of caring for the indigent sick of the city was greater during those years than was anticipated, by reason of epidemic or other unusual and unforeseen conditions.

From the facts presented, it appears that the hospitals made an unfortunate agreement, under which they suffered heavy loss, and the city council, by its action, has indicated that the city should assume and bear the burdens of the loss and reimburse the hospitals accordingly.

Concerning the losses suffered by these two hospitals during the years 1912, 1913 and 1914, amounting in the aggregate to $59,355.20, I call your attention to an opinion of my predecessor, dated January 7th, 1915, addressed to Honorable George J. Carew, city solicitor, Youngstown, Ohio, to be found at page 1775, volume 2, 1914 report of the attorney-general, wherein substantially this same question was presented. In that opinion the city solicitor was advised that the city of Youngstown was under no legal obligation to reimburse said hospitals for the losses sustained by them during previous years, under their contract of November 27th, 1911, to treat and care for the indigent sick of the city, and further that the city council was without authority to borrow money under section 3916, of the General Code, to reimburse for such losses.

I concur in the opinion of my predecessor and believe that the reasoning and principles upon which that opinion was based are here applicable, as the situation is in nowise changed, except that council has levied and, apparently without opposition or protest, collected a tax for the express purpose of reimbursing said hospitals.

Assuming that the city of Youngstown is under a moral obligation to reimburse these hospitals, which under the facts presented is debatable, the fact that a tax has been levied and collected is not sufficient to transform a moral obligation to a legal obligation, nor is the liability of the city any greater now than before.

Section 4021, of the General Code, under which the tax levy in question was made, is as follows:

> "The council of each municipality, annually, may levy and collect a tax not to exceed one mill on each dollar of the taxable property of the municipality and pay the amount to a private corporation or association which maintains and furnishes a free public hospital for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality, or not free except to such inhabitants of the municipality as in the opinion of a majority of the trustees of such hospital are unable to pay. Such payment shall be as and for compensation for the use and maintenance of such hospital. Without change or interference in the organization of such corporation or association, the council shall require the treasurer thereof, annually, to make a financial report setting forth all of the money and property which has come into its hands during the preceding year and the disposition thereof, together with any recommendations as to its future necessities."

While under the section just quoted a municipality is authorized to levy a tax to secure funds with which to care for the indigent sick, there is no authority therein contained for the raising of funds for the purpose of discharging a supposed or alleged moral obligation arising from an executed contract to care for such indigent sick. Although the money realized from the tax levy is in the treasury, the payment of the same to the hospitals may be enjoined, because there is no authority of law for its payment.

As before stated, the question as to whether there is a moral obligation on the part of the city to reimburse the hospitals for the losses sustained is doubtful. If the facts should disclose that the losses suffered were due to an unexpected number of patients treated and cared for, or to unreasonably small appropriations made by council, and it should be determined that a moral obligation to reimburse the said hospitals exists, then under the doctrine laid down in the State ex rel. v. Fronizer et al., 77 O. S. 7, there could be no recovery back from the hospital, if the proceeds of the tax levy were paid to said hospitals in settlement of the moral obligation as such.

Concerning that portion of the tax levy amounting to $21,266.70, provided in the ordinance of the 30th day of November, 1914, supra, for anticipated losses during the year 1915, it is to be observed that the raising of that amount and the payment of the same to the hospitals was legally authorized under the principle that the parties to the original contract, made November 27th, 1911, were competent to change or modify the contract and provide for compensation on the basis of a different or a higher rate. Force is given to this position by reason of the fact that the contract of November 27, 1911, was not executed for any definite period of time, but from its terms it must be assumed that it was expected to continue until terminated by some positive act of the parties. either by abrogation or modification.

In volume 2 on Municipal Corporations, section 820, with reference to modification of contracts, Dillon says:

> "A city or other municipal corporation, having the power to make a contract, can deal with the contract in the same manner as if it were a natural person, and may, in the absence of statutory limitation upon its powers or conformably with such limitation, change, modify it or cancel it in the same manner as it might originally contract, but the modification must be made by officers of the municipality having authority to act in that respect. If the officers are without authority, the modification is not binding on the municipality. But the assent of a municipal corporation to the variation or modification of a contract need not necessarily be expressed by the formal action or resolution of the common council; it may be implied from acts relating to the contract work subsequent to the date of the contract."

Again, at section 821, Dillon says:

> "If it has obtained a contract which by mistake or a change of circumstances it deems to operate oppressively upon the other party, an agreement to make an additional compensation or to modify or annul it is not, in the absence of special restriction, invalid for want of consideration."

Specifically answering your questions, I have to advise:

First. That the action of the city council on November 30th, 1914, to provide for losses sustained by the hospitals referred to during the years 1912, 1913 and 1914, was unauthorized, and payments to the hospitals of the funds raised by taxation under the ordinance may be enjoined. If no action is taken to prevent such payment, and the city officers, having custody of the moneys raised by said tax levy, elect to and do make payment thereof, assuming the existence of a moral obligation, no recovery back can be made from said hospitals. The action of the city council on November 30th, 1914, to provide for anticipated losses during the year 1915 was a valid exercise of its authority under section 4021 of the General Code.

Second. The city auditor should refuse payment of the amounts levied for the years 1912, 1913 and 1914, in so far as they relate to the reimbursement for losses sustained in previous years, but should permit payment of the amount levied to anticipate losses during the year 1915.

Third. The amounts levied and collected to pay losses for the years 1912, 1913 and 1914 are the proceeds of a special tax in the treasury, and, in the absence of an existing moral obligation to pay over said funds, there being no authority for their expenditure, the same should be transferred to the board of trustees of the sinking fund of the city, under the provisions of section 5654, of the General Code, as amended, 103 Ohio Laws page 521, as follows:

> "Sec. 5654. The proceeds of a special tax, loan or bond issue shall not be used for any other purpose than that for which the same was levied, issued or made, except as herein provided. When there is in the treasury of any city, village, county, township or school district a surplus of the proceeds of a special tax or of the proceeds of a loan or bond issue which cannot be used, or which is not needed for the purpose for which the tax was levied, or the loan made, or the bonds issued, all of such surplus shall be transferred immediately by the officer, board or council having charge of such surplus, to the sinking fund of such city, village, county, township or school district, and thereafter shall be subject to the uses of such sinking fund."

MAUMEE VALLEY PIONEER AND HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION—ABSTRACT OF TITLE FOR PURCHASE OF REAL ESTATE FOR SAID ASSOCIATION, APPROVED.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 12, 1916.

Hon. W. H. Rheinfrank, Secretary Fort Meigs Memorial Commission, Perrysburg, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Some time since you submitted to me for examination an abstract of title to the following described real estate, to wit:

> "A part of River Tract No. sixty-six (66), in Perrysburg township, Wood county, Ohio, more particularly described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point in the west line of said River Track 66, where said west line crosses the center line of the river road so called (said river road being a southwesterly extension or continuation of Front street in the village of Perrysburg), thence north along the west line of said River Tract 66, 490 feet to a point; thence south 74° 15′ east 661 feet to a point in the center line of the river road, so-called, at the western extremity of a culvert; thence south 6° 30′ east 275.2 feet to a point; thence south 1° 00′ west 132 feet to a point; thence south 75° 00′ west 707.9 feet to a point in the west line of said River Tract 66; thence north along said west line 292.5 feet to the place of beginning, containing 8.55 acres of land, more or less."

I have carefully examined the abstract of title, and while—as shown by said abstract—there are some minor defects in the title I am of the opinion that lapse of time has cured them.

As the property now stands in the name of The Maumee Valley Pioneer and Historical Association of Ohio, no taxes are chargeable against same.

The abstract of title is enclosed herewith. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX—ESTATE FOR LIFE OF ANOTHER—ESTATE IN REMAINDER—WHEN TAXABLE.

Where a person, other than those having the relation to the testator mentioned in section 5331, G. C., 103 O. L., 463, and who by the provision of said section are exempt from the collateral inheritance tax therein provided takes, by the terms of the will of such testator, an estate for the life of another and also an estate in remainder, both of said estates are subject to said collateral inheritance tax.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 12, 1916.

HON. JOHN V. CAMPBELL, Prosecuting Attorney, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of July 21st is as follows:

"We beg to request your opinion in a collateral inheritance tax matter in re estate of Charles H. Albrecht. The provisions of the last will and testament of said decedent affecting the question propounded are as follows:

" 'Item 3. All the rest and residue of my estate, real and personal, I give, devise and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named, in trust to have, hold, manage and control for and during the natural life of my wife Hermine F. Albrecht, with full power and authority to sell, transfer, mortgage, lease, or otherwise to convey and incumber all or any part of my estate, publicly or privately and without any order of court and to invest and reinvest the proceeds according to their discretion.

" 'During the continuance of said trust my trustees shall pay the net income of said estate one-third to my wife, Hermine F. Albrecht, and of the remaining two-thirds one equal part to my son, Carl H. Albrecht, one equal part to my daughter, Hulda E. Albrecht, and one equal part in equal shares to my son, Robert A. Albrecht and his wife Maria Albrecht, or to the survivor of them.

" 'Item 4. At the death of my wife, Hermine F. Albrecht, said trust shall terminate, and my said trustees shall convey, transfer, pay over and distribute all of my property in three equal shares absolutely and in fee simple as follows:

" 'One share to my son Carl.

" 'One share to my daughter Hulda.

" 'One share to my son Robert A. and his wife.'

"You will observe that under item 3 Maria Albrecht, the wife of Robert A. Albrecht, is taxable, she receiving one-ninth of the income of said estate during the life of Hermine F. Albrecht.

"In addition thereto, under item 4, she receives either one-ninth or two-ninths of the corpus of the estate in remainder, the quantum of her interest in remainder depending upon the existence or non-existence of her husband Robert at the expiration of the life estate in said Hermine F. Albrecht.

"We contend that the state is entitled to the percentum tax on the present worth of the income bequeathed to the taxable person for the life of Hermine F. Albrecht, and that upon the death of Hermine F. Albrecht, the state is entitled to its percentum tax upon the value of the remainder devised to the taxable person, be the same one-ninth or two-ninths thereof.

"The counsel for the estate are contending that we cannot tax the income now and the corpus later, or rather that we cannot tax the value of the income and the corpus from which said income is derived, that if our position be correct, the taxable person would be doubly taxed."

Section 5331, G. C. (103 O. L., 463), provides:

"All property within the jurisdiction of this state, and any interests therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of this state or not, and whether tangible or intangible, which pass by will or by the intestate laws of this state, or by deed, grant, sale or gift, made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to a person in trust, or otherwise, other than to or for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, or adopted child, shall be liable to a tax of five per cent. of its value above the sum of five hundred dollars. Fifty per cent. of such tax shall be for the use of the state; and fifty per cent. of such tax shall go to the city, village or township in which said tax originates. All administrators, executors and trustees, and any such grantee under a conveyance made during the grantor's life, shall be liable for all such taxes, with lawful interest as hereinafter provided, until they have been paid, as hereinafter directed. Such taxes shall become due and payable immediately upon the death of the decedent and shall at once become a lien upon the property, and be and remain a lien until paid."

Section 5333, G. C. (103 O. L., 463), provides:

"When a person bequeaths or devises property to or for the use of father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, or adopted child, during life or for a term of years, and the remainder to a collateral heir, or to a stranger to the blood, the value of the prior estate shall be appraised, within sixty days after the death of the testator, in the manner hereinafter provided, and deducted, together with the sum of five hundred dollars, from the appraised value of such property."

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutes read in connection with the provisions of Items 3 and 4 of the will of the said Charles H. Albrecht, deceased, it is evident: First, that the life estate of Hermine F. Albrecht, widow of said testator, and the respective estates, per autre vie of Carl H., Hulda E. and Robert A. Albrecht are exempt from the tax prescribed by said section 5331, G. C., while the estate of Maria Albrecht, the duration of which is measured by the life of said Hermine F. Albrecht, is taxable if it can be said that said estate is an "interest" in the property of the said Charles H. Albrecht, deceased, within the meaning of that term as used in the first part of said section 5331, G. C.; second, that the respective estates in remainder of the said Carl H., Hulda E, and Robert A. Albrecht are exempt from said tax while the estate in remainder of the said Maria Albrecht is subject to said tax.

By provision of the latter part of section 5331, G. C., the taxes on the respective estates of the said Maria Albrecht become due and payable immediately upon the death of the said Charles H. Albrecht, and at once become a lien upon said property, and will remain a lien until paid.

I do not think that the contention of counsel for the estate, as set forth in your letter, is justified in view of the above provisions of the statutes taken in connection with the provisions of section 5343, G. C., for the reason that in determining the estate in remainder for the purpose of estimating the collateral inheritance tax the value of the life estate must be deducted from the appraised value of the entire estate as found in the manner provided by section 5343, G. C., which reads as follows:

> "The value of such property, subject to said tax, shall be its actual market value as found by the probate court. If the state, through the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, or any person interested in the succession to the property, applies to the court, it shall appoint three disinterested persons, who, being first sworn, shall view and appraise such property at its actual market value for the purposes of this tax, and make return thereof to the court. The return may be accepted by the court in a like manner as the original inventory of the estate is accepted, and if so accepted, it shall be binding upon the person by whom this tax is to be paid, and upon the state. The fees of the appraisers shall be fixed by the probate judge and paid out of the county treasury upon the warrant of the county auditor. In case of an annuity or life estate, the value thereof shall be determined by the so-called actuaries' combined experience tables and five per cent. compound interest."

Numerous authorities may be cited in support of the proposition that the life tenant or the tenant for the life of another, not expressly exempted by the statute, is subject to the tax as a legatee, except possibly in the case of a contingent life estate. See in re Wolfe, 48 Ohio Weekly Law Bull. 211; Fitzgerald v. Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co., 24 R. I. 59; in re Cager, 111 N. Y. 343.

In the case of Westhus v. St. Louis Union Trust Co., 164 Fed. 795, it was held that where a testator died in December, 1901, bequeathing certain property in trust to pay the income to the son for life, the life estate of the son became vested on the death of the testator and was therefore subject to the inheritance tax. In this case, of course, the son was not in the class exempted by provision of the statute from the inheritance tax.

In the case of State v. Probate Court, 112 Minn. 279, it was held that when the testator gives the beneficial use of his property for a limited time to one person, after which the corpus of the estate goes to another, the right of each legatee is subject to taxation, and the fact that both bequests are to the same individual will not change the result. It was further observed by the court that "to hold otherwise would defeat the entire purpose of the statute, which can only be given effect by insisting that when the amount actually paid exists the exemption and tax based on that amount is then due."

On the question of the taxability of a contingent life estate it was held by the court in the case of in re Eldridge, 62 N. Y. Supp. 1026 that "where a devise is made to two for life and to the survivor of M, the remainder to the surviving children of M, and the remainder in fee to the children of A and W, if they have issue, the life estates of the first takers are alone taxable, since it is impossible to tell which of the children of M will take the second life estate; nor can it be known into what number of shares the estate in remainder will be divided."

It will not be contended that a vested remainder is not subject to the collateral inheritance tax under the provisions of said section 5331, G. C., and in view of the foregoing authorities it seems clear to my mind that the respective estates of the said Maria Albrecht are taxable unless it can be said that a part of her estate in remainder is contingent, the amount of which cannot at this time be determined.

I am unable to concur with you in holding that, in so far as the estate in remainder of the said Maria Albrecht is concerned, any part of said estate is contingent. By the terms of Item 3 of said will, as above quoted, Robert A. and Maria Albrecht are each entitled to one-ninth of the net income of the estate during the life of Hermine F. Albrecht and, assuming that the expectancy of the life of Robert A. Albrecht is greater than that of Hermine F. Albrecht, the interest of the said Maria Albrecht in the net income of the estate during the life of the said Hermine F. Albrecht is limited to such fractional part of said net income. By the terms of Item 4 of said will the said Robert A. Albrecht and the said Maria Albrecht each has a vested undivided half interest in one-third of the entire estate in remainder.

The vested interest of the said Robert A. Albrecht in said estate in remainder may be disposed of by him during his life, or he may dispose of it by will, or if he is the owner of said vested remainder at the time of his death and dies intestate, the said interest in said estate will descend under the intestate laws of the state.

It cannot be said, therefore, that Maria Albrecht has an "interest" in the estate in remainder of her husband Robert A. Albrecht within the meaning of said term as used in the first part of section 5331, G. C., which would be subject to the collateral inheritance tax.

If not already ascertained, the value of the entire estate as well as the estate for the life of the said Hermine F. Albrecht, should be determined in compliance with the requirements of the foregoing provisions of the statutes and in the manner therein prescribed. I am enclosing copy of opinion No. 1269, of this department, rendered to Hon. George Thornburg, prosecuting attorney of Belmont county, under date of February 14, 1916, which will be of some assistance to you in determining the estate for the life of the said Hermine F. Albrecht.

It was held by my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in an opinion found in the Annual Report of the Attorney General for the year 1914, at page 815, of said report, that the way to ascertain the value of a vested future estate dependent upon a prior taxable estate under the collateral inheritance tax law is to ascertain the value of the prior estate and to take that value together with the sum of five hundred dollars from the appraised value of the whole estate i. e., the whole inheritance subject to taxation.

The reasoning offered by Mr. Hogan in support of this conclusion is as follows:

> "It is clear, of course, that this statute does not, in terms, govern the ascertainment of the value of a subsequent estate save when the prior estate is not taxable. However, in Dow v. Abbott, 197 Mass., 283, under statutes, in this respect identical with those of Ohio, the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts held that the section corresponding to section 5333, as amended, should be applied in a case like that stated by you (similar to the one under consideration). In the language of Rugg, J., 'the statute makes no specific provision for a case exactly like this, but the valuation can be ascertained according to the method pointed out in R. L. c. 15, section 2 * * * for analogous cases,' (the statute referred to being the one which corresponds to section 5333, General Code, and the case before the court being one in which the prior and ultimate estate were subject to taxation).

"I can find no other authorities upon the question. Under similar statutes the supreme court of Illinois holds that a section corresponding to section 5333, General Code, should be strictly construed. (In re Kingman, 220 Ill., 563.) Such a strict construction would, of course, lead to a result opposite to that indicated by the Massachusetts decision above cited, and would support the view that the actual present value of the subsequent estate should be ascertained in the way pointed out in In re Estate of Dow, supra. However, the Illinois decisions are not on the exact point, and for various reasons I have come to the conclusion that the Massachusetts rule should be followed in Ohio.

"Among the reasons which have led me to adopt this conclusion, I may state that the Ohio statute makes specific provision for the computation of future values of annuities and life estates (section 5353, of the General Code), the provision being that such computation shall be at five per cent. compound interest. There is no like provision for computing present worth of vested estates to be enjoyed in futuro. It does not seem possible to me that the legislature would have adopted the statutory rate and method of computation above referred to, had it not been intended that the same rate and method, if applicable at all, should be used in computing present worth. We are thus forced to the conclusion that in order to make the statute harmonious, the analogy of either section 5353, or that of section 5343, or that of both, must be applied to a case which neither one of them covers, viz.: the ascertainment of the value of a future estate dependent upon the value of a life estate which is taxable. That is to say, if neither statute controls, we have no statutory rate of interest for the computation of present worth, and it seems unlikely that the legislature intended a different rate of interest to be used in computing present worth from that which it has prescribed for the valuation of life estates and annuities; and if section 5343 be held applicable, it is equally as reasonable to hold section 5333, as amended, applicable."

I concur in the reasoning given in support of the conclusion expressed by my predecessor, as above set forth, as to the proper interpretation of the statutes hereinbefore referred to governing the determination of the estate in remainder in the case where the life estate is subject to the collateral inheritance tax.

Answering your question, I am of the opinion that the "interest" of the said Maria Albrecht in the estate of the said Charles H. Albrecht, deceased, which, under the provisions of section 5331, G. C., is subject to the collateral inheritance tax, is to be determined by adding to one-ninth of the estimated present worth of the net income from said estate for the life of the said Hermine F. Albrecht, one-sixth of the value of the entire estate in remainder, determined in the manner hereinbefore mentioned, and deducting from said sum the sum of $500.00 exempted by provision of the latter part of said section 5331, G. C.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—WHEN VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT HAS TAX VALUATION OF LESS THAN $500,000, BOARD SHOULD SUBMIT TO ELECTORS QUESTION OF REORGANIZING OR DISSOLVING SUCH DISTRICT—SECTIONS 4681, 4682 AND 4682-1, G. C., CONSTRUED.

When a village school district has a tax valuation of less than $500,000, as required by section 4681, G. C., its board of education should submit to its electors the question of reorganizing such district, as provided by section 4682, G. C., or of dissolving such district and joining some contiguous territory as provided by section 4682-1, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 12, 1916.

HON. S. W. ENNIS, Prosecuting Attorney, Paulding, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of recent date submitting the following statement and inquiry:

"Cecil village school district, Paulding county, Ohio, has a tax valuation of $336,510, and the board of education thereof still continues to act and perform all the duties of a legally constituted board of education of a village school district.

"In accordance with the provisions of section 4682 of the General Code of Ohio, does a village school district, which has a tax valuation of less than $500,000, legally exist as a village school district, and if they refuse and neglect to call an election under the provisions of said statute, does such village school district automatically become a part of the rural school district of the same township whose territory is contiguous thereto.

"I wish you would please pass an opinion upon the above matter as early as possible. It has become necessary to build a new school house in said district by reason of the old one being condemned, and the village board, if such can be done, desires to relinquish their right as a village school district, and become a part of the rural school district, and if your opinion sustains my views on this question, that when the village school district has a less valuation than $500,000, it becomes a part of the rural school district, and if that is the case, the rural district will proceed at once to erect a new school building to replace the one condemned."

Your foregoing inquiry involves a consideration of sections 4681 and 4682, G. C., as amended 103 O. L. 545, and section 4682-1, G. C., as amended 104 O. L. 133. It may be observed that prior to the amendment of the sections aforesaid, as found in 103 O. L., 545, the minimum total tax valuation of the property of a village school district was $100.000. As amended in 103 O. L., 545, the foregoing sections provide as follows:

"Sec. 4681. Each village, together with the territory attached to it for school purposes, and excluding the territory within its corporate limits detached for school purposes, and having in the district thus formed a total tax valuation of not less than five hundred thousand dollars, shall constitute a village school district.

"Sec. 4682. A village, together with the territory attached to it for school purposes, and excluding the territory within its corporate limits detached for school purposes, with a tax valuation of less than five hundred thousand dollars, shall not constitute a village school district, but the proposition to organize the territory thus formed into a village school district may be submitted by the board of education, and shall be submitted by the board of education upon the presentation to it of a written petition for such purpose signed by 25 per cent. of the electors of the territory thus formed, to a vote of the electors of the territory thus formed at any general or a special election called for that purpose, and be so determined by a majority vote of such electors.

"Sec. 4682-1. A village school district organized as a village school district at the time of the passage of this act, or that may be hereafter organized, which has a total tax valuation of less than five hundred thousand dollars, shall continue as a village school district, but the proposition to dissolve such village school district may be submitted by the board of education, and shall be submitted by the board of education upon the presentation to it of a written petition for such purpose signed by 25 per cent. of the electors of such village school district, to a vote of the electors of such village school district at any general or a special election called for that purpose, and be so determined by a majority vote of such electors."

It will be observed that after the amendment of the sections as aforesaid, a village district was required to have a tax valuation of not less than $500,000, but where prior to said amendment a village school district has been organized under the limitation of $100,000, as provided by the prior statute, such village district was permitted to continue with the right to dissolve upon a vote of the electors thereof ordered either by the board of education upon its own motion or by said board upon the presentation of a written petition for that purpose signed by 25 per cent. of the electors of said district. The amendment of said section 4682-1, G. C., 104 O. L., 133, left said section as follows:

"A village school district containing a population of less than fifteen hundred may vote at any general or special election to dissolve and join any contiguous rural district. After approval by the county board such proposition shall be submitted to the electors by the village board of education on the petition of one-fourth of the electors of such village school district or the village board may submit the proposition on its own motion and the result shall be determined by a majority vote of such electors."

By reason of said amendment of said section 4682-1, G. C., the right of a village school district with a tax valuation of less than $500,000 to continue as such district was repealed, and by reason of this repeal it is now claimed that all village districts, when their tax valuation falls below the limitation of $500,000, are automatically dissolved. In other words, it is claimed that by reason of the failure of the legislature to make any specific provision for such districts to continue as village districts a strict construction of section 4682, G. C., precludes any further continuation of such districts as village school districts.

I am unable to concur in this contention. While the sections aforesaid may be susceptible of different constructions, it is my judgment that when considered together they afford a complete procedure for the disposition of a village district when it falls under the limitation of $500,000 tax valuation as provided in section 4682, G. C., aforesaid. In other words, I am of the opinion that the provisions of said section 4682 aforesaid must be given a prospective operation in that their provisions mean that when a village district ceases to have a tax valuation of $500,000, it shall not continue as a village district under its former right as provided by section 4681, G. C., but that in the happening of such contingency it may proceed by vote, under the supervision of its board of education, either to organize as a village district and so continue as such as provided by said section 4682, or by vote, under the supervision of its board of education after the approval of the county board, determine to dissolve itself and join some contiguous rural district as provided by section 4682-1 aforesaid.

It seems to be the manifest purpose of section 4682, first, to take from a village district with a tax duplicate of less than $500,000 the right to continue as a village district and, secondly, at the same time to afford it the opportunity by vote to continue as such district. The board of education of any village district falling below the limitation aforesaid should know the sentiment of its citizens in regard to continuing it as a village district, and if no petition is presented and the board is of the opinion that the electors of such district desire it to continue as a village district they should submit the question of such continuance to the electors as provided by section 4682 aforesaid. If, however, the board is of the opinion that the electors desire such district to be dissolved, then either upon a petition or its own motion said board of education may submit the question of dissolution under the provisions of section 4682-1 aforesaid. It may be claimed in this connection that this last named section was not intended to afford a village school district of the class here considered the opportunity to vote under its provisions as it contains no reference to such districts. In view of the original provisions of said section, which dealt entirely with village school districts having a tax valuation of less than $500,000, such contention is not convincing. A village school district with a population of less than 1,500 is certainly empowered under the provisions of this section to vote on the question of dissolution regardless of its tax valuation, and while such district may have a tax valuation of more than $500,000, yet the fact, if it should be a fact, that its tax valuation is less than that amount presents no obstacle to a vote under its provisions.

My conclusion, therefore, is that when the tax duplicate of a village district falls below $500,000, the authority and jurisdiction of its board of education en instanti does not cease, but continues to enable said district either to organize as a village district and continue as such or to dissolve as such district and join some contiguous rural district.

In this connection some question may arise as to the disposition of the property of such district and of any of its indebtedness should such exist, in the event that such district should determine to dissolve and join some contiguous rural district. These matters are fully discussed and disposed of in an opinion found in volume I, page 554, of the attorney-general's report for the year 1915, to which opinion reference is here made.

Answering your inquiry, therefore, specifically I am of the opinion that the village district in question is not dissolved but that its board of education should submit to its electors the question of reorganizing as provided by section 4682, supra, or of dissolving and joining a contiguous rural district as provided by section 4682-1, supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—HAS AUTHORITY TO INCREASE CAPITAL STOCK BY ISSUANCE OF BOTH COMMON AND PREFERRED STOCK AFTER ITS ORIGINAL CAPITAL STOCK IS FULLY SUBSCRIBED AND AN INSTALLMENT OF TEN PER CENT. PAID ON EACH SHARE AND BEFORE STOCK AUTHORIZED BY SUBSEQUENT ISSUE HAS BEEN SUBSCRIBED OR ANY PART THEREOF PAID FOR.

After its original capital stock is fully subscribed and an installment of ten per cent. paid on each share, a corporation may increase its capital stock even though stock authorized by a prior certificate of increase has not been subscribed or issued and an installment of ten per cent. has not been paid on such shares.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 14, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of July 20, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

"We are in receipt of a communication from Maxwell and Ramsey, attorneys at law, Union Central building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and also a verbal request that we submit the question contained therein to your department for an opinion. The communication reads as follows:

"'I represent a manufacturing corporation organized under the laws of Ohio in 1912, with an original capital stock consisting of twenty million common and five million preferred, all of which has been paid in full and issued. In 1914 the capital stock was increased to thirty millions by an additional five millions of common, all of which has been subscribed, paid for, and issued, except two million five hundred thousand, which has been subscribed and ten per cent. paid thereon. In January, 1916, the capital stock was reduced by the redemption of five million preferred, and was thereupon increased by providing for twenty-five million preferred and twenty-five million additional common. Fifteen million dollars of said new preferred stock has been subscribed, fully paid for, and issued, but no part of such authorized increased common stock has been either subscribed, paid for, or issued. The total authorized capital stock at the present time is therefore seventy-five million, of which fifty million is common and twenty-five million is preferred.

"'The company now desires to further increase its capital stock both common and preferred. My client has asked my opinion as to whether under the laws of Ohio this can be done. I have advised that it can, but before taking corporate action to that end will be pleased to know whether the secretary will approve a certificate of increase which recites that all of the original capital stock has been subscribed, fully paid for, and issued, but which will not recite that all of the capital stock of the company has been subscribed and ten per cent. paid thereon.

"Section 8698 of the General Code provides for changes in capital stock by authorizing an increase in the capital stock or the number of shares into which it is divided prior to organization, after its original capital stock has been fully subscribed for and an installment of ten per cent. on each share has been paid thereon. It also provides that after organization the increase may be made by the holders of a majority of the stock at a meeting called for that purpose or at a meeting of the stockholders at which all are present in person or by proxy, and also agree in writing to such increase. There is no provision in the section as a condition of increase except that the original capital stock be fully subscribed for and an installment of ten per cent. on each share paid. Therefore, it would seem quite clear that all this statute contemplates is, that the original capital stock must be fully subscribed and ten per cent. paid thereon, but not any increase subsequently authorized.

(Signed) "'Lawrence Maxwell.'

"We would like an opinion on the question as to whether a corporation can increase its capital stock after the original capital stock is fully subscribed but not a subsequent increase thereof."

The statement of Messrs. Maxwell and Ramsey quoted in your letter discloses that the corporation in question has a present authorized capital stock of $75,000,000.00, of which $50,000,000.00 is common and $25,000,000.00 preferred. Of this stock $25,000,000.00 common and $10,000,000.00 preferred have not been subscribed or issued. The question raised is whether such corporation may now secure authority to increase both its common and preferred stock without being able to certify and certifying that all of its authorized capital stock is fully subscribed and ten per cent. paid on each share.

Sections 8698 and 8699 of the General Code authorizing and prescribing conditions for the increase of capital stock of a corporation are as follows:

"Section 8698. After its original capital stock is fully subscribed for, and an installment of ten per cent. on each share of stock has been paid thereon, a corporation for profit, or a corporation not for profit, having a capital stock, may increase its capital stock or the number of shares into which it is divided, prior to organization, by the unanimous written consent of all original subscribers. After organization the increase may be made by a vote of the holders of a majority of its stock, at a meeting called by a majority of its directors, at least thirty days' notice of the time, place and object of which has been given by publication in some newspaper of general circulation, and by letter addressed to each stockholder whose place of residence is known. Or, the stock may be increased at a meeting of the stockholders at which all are present in person, or by proxy, and waive in writing such notice by publication and letter; and also agree in writing to such increase, naming the amount thereof to which they agree. A certificate of such action shall be filed with the secretary of state.

"Section 8699. Upon the assent in writing of three-fourths in number of the stockholders of a corporation, representing at least three-fourths of its capital stock, to increase the capital stock, it may issue and dispose of preferred stock in the manner by law provided therefor. Upon such increase of stock, a certificate shall be filed with the secretary of state, as provided in the next preceding section."

In opinion No. 563 rendered June 30, 1915, I referred to and approved an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, dated March 16, 1914, wherein he advised the then secretary of state that an increase of capital stock by the issuance and sale of preferred stock is not governed by the conditions stipulated in section 8698 of the General Code. So that, capital stock already authorized need not be fully subscribed for and an installment of ten per cent. need not be paid thereon prior to an increase of preferred stock solely under section 8699 of the General Code.

This ruling disposes of your question so far as it concerns any increase in the preferred stock of the corporation under consideration.

An increase in the common stock of the corporation must be made under the provisions of section 8698 of the General Code above quoted, which provides that before a corporation may make such increase its original capital stock must be fully subscribed and an installment of ten per cent. paid on each share. The original capital stock of the corporation is the stock which it secures authority to issue under its original articles of incorporation.

If it had been the legislative intent to deny a corporation the right to increase its capital stock until all its authorized capital stock were first subscribed and ten per cent. paid in on each share, such intent could have been easily accomplished and clearly expressed either by omitting the word "original" or by using in its stead "authorized."

I am therefore of the opinion that a corporation may secure authority to increase its capital stock by the issuance of both common and preferred stock after its original capital stock is fully subscribed and an installment of ten per cent. paid on each share and before stock authorized by a subsequent issue has been subscribed or any part thereof paid for. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF ARMORY—SALARY—WHEN TEMPORARILY ABSENT IN MILITARY SERVICE AND OTHERS PERFORM WORK—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MAY WAIVE RIGHTS TO CLAIM PERSONAL SERVICES OF SAID SUPERINTENDENT.

When a superintendent of an armory is temporarily absent in the military service of the state and is employing and paying others to do his work as superintendent during said absence, if the work of the persons so employed is satisfactory to a board of county commissioners the latter may well waive their rights to claim the personal services of said superintendent and should allow and pay his salary.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 16, 1916.

HON. JOHN C. D'ALTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Toledo, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of July 24, 1916, as follows:

"One Ed. Rydman, a member of the sixth regiment, now quartered at Columbus, is on the county payroll as superintendent of the armory.

"Should the county pay him for services as superintendent while he is in active military service and not performing the duties of superintendent?

"We understand that your office has made a ruling with respect to General McMaken who resigned as tax commissioner of this county when called upon by the governor to take up his duties as brigadier general of the Ohio Guard. We desire to make our ruling with respect to Mr. Rydman in accordance therewith."

Your information with respect to the ruling of this department in the case of General McMaken is erroneous. His military position was not involved in the question upon which the former opinion was rendered. The only proposition considered in that opinion was his right to hold contemporaneously the office of a member of the county board of revision, and that of a member of the board of trustees of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home at Xenia, Ohio. It was held in said opinion that under the provisions of section 5590 G. C., as amended 106 O. L. 270, he could not continue in both offices, but as the provisions of said section expressly except from its operation offices in the state militia, said opinion had no bearing whatever on his right to continue to hold his military office. While I am not informed as to the exact cause which prompted General McMaken to resign from the county board of revision, I assume that he did so because he found it impossible to perform the duties of that position in connection with the duties devolving upon him as commander of his brigade in Camp Willis.

In the case presented in your inquiry it of course will be conceded that the commissioners, as a matter of law, are entitled to the personal services of said superintendent, and the fact that he is not personally performing the duties of his employment would constitute a legal defense to his claim for salary. However, it appears from the letter of your county auditor that he has employed and is paying others to do his work as superintendent during his absence, and that the services of the persons so employed are satisfactory, and further that he will probably return to his position within a very short time.

Under all these circumstances, therefore, and in view of the character of his present service to the state, I must advise your commissioners not to insist upon their technical legal rights under their contract with him, and especially upon the defense above mentioned, but to allow and pay said superintendent his salary.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

SCHOOLS—METHOD OF MEASURING DISTANCE PUPILS LIVE FROM NEAREST SCHOOL—SECTION 7731 G. C. 104 O. L. 133.

Method of measuring distance pupils live from nearest school under provision of section 7731 G. C. 104 O. L. 133.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 16, 1916.

HON. JOSEPH W. HORNER, Prosecuting Attorney, Newark, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of July 28, 1916, is as follows:

> "The following inquiry has been submitted to this office with the request for your opinion upon the question at law raised:
> "'In measuring the distance pupils live from the school house who claim transportation under section 7731 General Code, where should said distance begin and end?'"

Section 7731 G. C. 104 O. L. 133, to which you refer, provides as follows:

> "In all rural and village school districts where pupils live more than two miles from the nearest school, the board of education shall provide transportation for such pupils to and from such school. The transportation for pupils living less than two miles from the school house, by the most direct public highway shall be optional with the board of education. When transportation of pupils is provided, the conveyance must pass within one-half mile of the respective residences of all pupils, except when such residences are situated more than one-half mile from the public road. When local boards of education neglect or refuse to provide transportation for pupils, the county board of education shall provide such transportation and the cost thereof shall be charged against the local school district."

When the first two sentences of the above section are read together, as they must be, it seems clear that the effect thereof is to require that the distance of two miles therein referred to be measured upon the course of the most direct public highway between the residence of the pupil and the school which said pupil is required to attend. If, then, the residence of the pupil is upon such public highway, in my opinion the distance to the school should be measured from the entrance to the curtilage from such highway along the most direct public highway route to the nearest point to the school premises. If the residence of the pupil in question is not upon a public highway, the distance from the school could not then be measured from the entrance to the curtilage in which such pupil resides, the same being required to be measured, as above pointed out, on the most direct public highway only. In such case I am of opinion that the distance should be measured from that point in a public highway nearest to the residence of the pupil which is accessible to the pupil by traveling over the premises only on which such pupil resides. If there is no public highway which is accessible to the pupil by traveling over the premises on which he resides only, then the distance should be measured from that point in the public highway nearest to his residence to which he has most convenient access by private right of way, or otherwise.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

TREASURER OF STATE—MAY NOT RECEIVE COUNTY WARRANTS TO QUALIFY TRUST COMPANIES TO DO BUSINESS IN OHIO—TEXAS COUNTIES.

The state treasurer may not receive road and bridge and court house and jail funding warrants of Live Oak and Panola counties, Texas, under section 9778 G. C., so as to qualify trust companies to do business in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 16, 1916.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of August 4, 1916, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "W. L. Slayton and Company, of Toledo, Ohio, forwarded to this department today, to be placed to the credit of The Commercial Bank, Savings and Trust Company, of Findlay, Ohio, for the purpose of qualifying as a trust company the following:
> "25—State of Texas, county of Live Oak, 6%, road and bridge fund warrants, par value $1,000.00 each.....$25,000.00
> "25—State of Texas, county of Panola, 6%, court house and jail funding warrants, par value $1,000.00 each.....$25,000.00
> "Grand total $50,000.00
> "Under the trust laws, would I, as treasurer, be permitted to accept these warrants? I respectfully refer you to opinion No. 1314 under date of March 3, 1916, which may have some bearing on the matter in question.
> "These securities are being held here subject to your decision and can be examined by you, if desirable. An early opinion will be appreciated."

I am also in receipt of a letter from W. L. Slayton and Company, in which they inclose the opinion of their attorney, Harry E. Thurston of Toledo, Ohio, which I have carefully considered.

The opinion of Mr. Thurston constitutes an excellent argument in support of the desirability of extending the scope of section 9778 G. C. by legislative amendment. It does not, however, shed any new light upon the proper interpretation of the language of the section as it now stands; nor does it convince me that the conclusion expressed in my opinion of March 3, 1916 (No. 1314), is incorrect, wherein I advise that you were not authorized by said section 9778 to accept road and bridge improvement warrants of Atascoas county, Texas. I have examined the warrants referred to in your letter and find them to be securities of substantially the same character as the warrants of Atascoas county, referred to in my former opinion.

Without in any way reflecting upon or even considering the value or integrity of the securities, but solely upon the limiting language of the statute, I advise that you are not authorized, under section 9778, to accept the warrants described in your letter.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—NEW RIGHT OF WAY—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MAY AGREE WITH PERSONS AS TO AMOUNT OF COMPENSATION AND DAMAGES THEY ARE ENTITLED TO RECEIVE BECAUSE THEIR PROPERTY RIGHT IN LAND IS TAKEN REGARDLESS OF WHETHER SUCH INTEREST IS HELD BY LEASE OR REVERSION.

In procuring the necessary right of way for road improvement constructed by co-operation of the county commissioners and the state highway commissioner, pursuant to section 1191 G. C. et seq., 106 O. L. 627, the county commissioners may agree with any and all persons having a property right in the land or property sought to be appropriated for such purpose, as to the amount of compensation and damages to which such person or persons may be entitled by reason of their property right in the land so taken and the damages by them sustained thereby.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 16, 1916.

HON. A. C. MCDOUGAL, Prosecuting Attorney, Woodsfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 7, 1916, is as follows:

> "I desire to have your opinion on the following proposition: Have the county commissioners a legal right to compensate, in the way of compromise, an oil company, for moving rigs and boiler-house off a proposed right of way for a public road?
> "The above question arises where a right of way from an old to a new right of way has been changed under the state highway improvement law on what is known as the Woodsfield-Marietta road No. 389, said road being under process of construction, the oil rig and boiler-house being located on the new right of way."

It is learned from the state highway department, upon inquiry, that the improvement of the Woodsfield-Marietta road, No. 389, to which you refer, is being constructed by the co-operation of the state highway commissioner and the county commissioners of Monroe county, pursuant to section 184 of the Cass law, section 1191 G. C. et seq., 106 O. L. 627, upon the application of the county commissioners. In reference to procuring the right of way for improvements of this character, which are made upon the application of county commissioners or township trustees, section 194 of the Cass highway law, section 1201 G. C. 106 O. L. 631, provides in part as follows:

> "If the line of the proposed improvement deviates from the existing highway, or if it is proposed to change the channel of any stream in the vicinity of such improvement, the county commissioners or township trustees making application for such improvement must provide the requisite right of way. If the board of county commissioners or township trustees are unable to agree with the owner or owners of such land or property as may be necessary for such change or alteration, or if additional right of way is required for the same, and the county commissioners or township trustees are unable to agree with the owner or owners of the land or property in question then the board of county commissioners or township trustees, as the case may be, may by resolution declare it necessary to condemn and appropriate for public use such land or property, and shall proceed to fix what they deem to be the value of such land or property sought to be condemned or appropriated, and deposit the value thereof with the probate court of the county for the use and benefit of such owner or owners, and thereupon the board of county commissioners or township trustees shall be authorized to take immediate possession of and enter upon said lands for the purpose aforesaid. * * *"

From the foregoing it clearly appears that in the case under consideration the duty of procuring the right of way for the improvement in question devolves upon the county commissioners. The duty on the commissioners imposed and the powers conferred may be performed and exercised in the manner in the above mentioned section prescribed. Provision is found in said section for condemnation proceedings by which necessary right of way may be had, but this is conditioned upon the county commissioners or the township trustees, as the case may be, being unable to agree with the owner or owners of the land or property sought to be appropriated in respect to the compensation and damages properly payable therefor. This condition, precedent to condemnation proceedings, beyond question confers upon the commissioners or trustees full authority to purchase the necessary land or property for a right of way, and if they can may agree with the owner or owners of the property so taken as to the amount of damage resulting therefrom to which such owner or owners may be entitled in any case where an improvement of the highway is proposed to be made by co-operation with the state highway commissioner.

While it is not so stated in your inquiry, I think it may be assumed, from what is therein set forth, that the oil company is the owner of some interest, presumably a leasehold estate in the land which it is sought to appropriate for a right of way. This being true, there are then at least two owners of the land or property in question with whom the county commissioners may agree as to the compensation and damages which such owners may be entitled by reason of the appropriation of the land and property in question for road purposes, viz., the lessee or oil company and the owner of the remainder and reversion of the estate after the expiration of the lease. This state of fact would then necessitate an apportionment of the whole amount of compensation and damages proper to be paid for the right of way in question between the lessees and the lessor or owner of the reversion, according to their respective interests in the particular land appropriated. If the owner or owners of the reversion or the lessor or lessors have agreed with the county commissioners as to the amount of compensation and damages to which they are entitled by reason of their interest in the land and property in question, it remains for the commissioners to agree, if they are able so to do, with the oil company as to the compensation and damages to which it is entitled by reason of its rights and interest in the land appropriated, if any such interest or right it has. Of course, if the oil company, contrary to the foregoing presumption, has no right to have its oil rig and boiler house upon the land in question, it could not be entitled to either compensation or damages. The measure of the compensation and damages to which the oil company would be entitled, if it has any right or interest which could be affected by the appropriation of the land in question, must depend upon all the facts peculiar to the case. Not having before me such facts, I am unable to express an opinion upon this question. It is not deemed improper to suggest, however, that if the oil field is productive and the property of the oil company is being operated, or capable of being profitably operated, and the circumstances of the case are such that in order to continue the production of oil and the utilization of its property and interest therein it would be necessary to re-erect the oil rig and boiler house in another location on the property of the company, the cost and expense thereof would constitute a proper element of damage to be considered. On the contrary, if the property of the oil company is not susceptible of profitable operation in its present location and will not be during the life of the lease, then no damage would ordinarily result to the lessee by reason of having to remove the same, since the lessee would have to remove this property at the expiration of the lease in any event.

Cincinnati v. Eversman, 4 O. L. Rep. 140.

The only damage which could result in such case would be measured by the value of the right to allow the rig and boiler house to remain in their present location during the remainder of the life of the lease, whatever that might be.

A more definite answer to your inquiry is impracticable by reason of not having before me further facts.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MORRIS PLAN BANK—METHOD OF LOANING MONEY NOT AUTHORIZED BY LAWS OF THIS STATE.

The Morris Plan Bank method of loaning money is not authorized by the laws of this state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 17, 1916.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Recently I received from your department through Mr. W. E. King, chief inspector, a communication in reference to the operation of certain banks in this state known as the Morris Plan Banks. Submitted with the inquiry was certain articles of incorporation, a pamphlet and literature disclosing the method and manner of doing business of said banks, and other memoranda reflecting on the question submitted.

The question upon which information is sought in said inquiry is whether a banking institution is authorized under the statutes to carry on the business of making loans and investments as shown by the data submitted in said inquiry, or whether such business is within the provisions of the statute with respect to chattel mortgage and loan companies.

Before discussing the facts shown by the correspondence, literature, advertising matter, printed application, note, pass book and other memoranda attached to your letter, it will be necessary to consider the statutory law controlling the licensing of loan companies as found in section 6346-1 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 281, which is as follows:

> "It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, partnership, association or corporation, to engage, or continue in the business of making loans, on plain, endorsed, or guaranteed notes, or due bills, or otherwise, or upon the mortgage or pledge of chattels or personal property of any kind, or of purchasing or making loans on salaries or wage earnings, or of furnishing guarantee or security in connection with any loan or purchase, as aforesaid, at a charge or rate of interest in excess of eight per centum per annum, including all charges, without first having obtained a license so to do from the superintendent of banks and otherwise complying with the provisions of this act."

The provisions of the foregoing section are very plain. They make it unlawful for any person, firm, partnership, association or corporation to engage or continue in the business of making loans on plain, endorsed or guaranteed notes or due bills, or otherwise, or upon the mortgage or pledge of chattels or personal property of any kind, or on salaries or wage earnings, at a charge or rate of interest in excess of eight per centum per annum, including all charges, without first having obtained a license so to do and otherwise complying with the provisions of the act of which said section is a part.

It is provided, however, in section 6346-5 G. C., being one of the sections of the act of which the first named section is a part, that "Nothing in this act shall apply to pawn brokers who obtain a municipal license as provided in sections 6337 to 6346, inclusive, of the General Code or to national banks or to state banks or any person, partnership, association or corporation whose business now comes under the supervision of the superintendent of banks."

With the statutory provisions of the foregoing two sections in mind we will consider from the memoranda submitted the plan or method under and by which a Morris Plan Bank conducts its business. The data and memoranda submitted refer to the plan or method of making loans by one of the banks of the class named and this method may be best stated in its own language, which I quote from one of its pamphlets attached to your letter, and is as follows:

"The Morris Plan Bank makes loans of small amounts for a period not exceeding one year, on the basis of character and earning capacity.

"The borrower executes a note for the amount of the loan, which must be signed by two or more co-makers, who thus become responsible for its payment. The bank must be satisfied that the borrowers and co-makers are responsible and of good character. For every $50 loaned, or part thereof, the borrower agrees to buy a "C" certificate and to leave it with the bank as security. Weekly payments are required on these certificates. If the borrower fails to make his payments, the bank holds the co-makers responsible. This is all that is required.

"The amounts so loaned range from $25 to $500 or more. When the note is executed, the "C" certificate purchased is assigned to the bank and becomes a security for the note and a protection for the co-makers. When the borrower has completed his fifty weekly instalment payments, the certificate becomes fully paid and therefore equals the amount of the loan. Two weeks later his note becomes due and must be paid. He may then cash the "C" certificate, pay his note, and close the transaction.

"Interest (discount) at six per cent. per annum is deducted in advance. If the loan is made, but not otherwise, a charge of $1.00 towards the cost of investigation is made on each $50 or part thereof. No charge to exceed $5.00 if loan is for $250.00 or more.

"The whole operation of making and paying off a loan is as follows: Suppose you wish to borrow $100. You call at the office of the bank and make application for a loan. You will be requested to furnish certain information concerning yourself. If the information given by you is satisfactory, you will be handed an application blank with instructions as to the manner in which it is to be filled out by yourself and your co-makers. When this application is completed, it is to be returned to the bank for consideration, at which time you will be provided with a note for the amount of your loan and instructions will be given as to signatures. After investigation the application will be submitted to the executive committee for their approval. If approved, you will be requested to call, bringing the fully signed note with you. You then agree to buy two "C" certificates of the value of $100.00, and upon delivery of the note and assignment to the bank of the certificates, you will receive in cash the amount of your loan, less the discount and investigating charge. For example:

"Amount borrowed		$100.00
"Less interest (discount)	$6.00
"Less charge for investigation	2.00	8.00
"Amount received in cash		$ 92.00

"Suppose you receive this payment on a Wednesday. On or before the following Wednesday, and one each succeeding Wednesday, you will pay to the bank an instalment of $2.00 on the two "C" certificates purchased. When you make your last, or the fiftieth, instalment payment of $2.00 on your certificates, you will have paid $100.00 for them. Two weeks later when your note is due, and must be paid, you may surrender your certificates, for which the bank will pay you $100.00, and use the proceeds to pay off your note. In the meantime the bank has the use of the payments made by you for loaning to other borrowers."

It is further stated by the company in question in its advertisement that it obtains the money which it lends partly from its stockholders and partly from the investment certificates as explained below. It states that it accepts no deposit accounts. It issues two classes of certificates known as class "B" and class "C" certificates. Class "B" certificates are fully paid certificates in denominations of $50, $100, $500 and $1,000, interest bearing coupons attached, bearing interest at five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, January 1st and July 1st. Class "C" certificates are the instalment certificates mentioned in connection with the method hereinbefore described of making loans.

It is said with reference to said class "C" certificates that when fifty equal instalments have been regularly paid four per cent. interest per annum will be allowed on the aggregate amount paid on a "C" certificate, from and after the twenty-fifth payment, provided the same has not been pledged with the bank as security for a loan.

The foregoing two classes of certificates appear to furnish the only method whereby the bank obtains money in addition to its capital stock.

It appears from the printed application for loans, which is furnished by said company to applicants, and from the printed form of note used by said company to evidence said loan, constituting of course the contract between the company and the borrower, that the purchase of the instalment investment certificate designated as"C," as hereinbefore described, is a condition precedent to procuring a loan. In other words, the purchase of this certificate, which must be hypothecated as security for the loan, is required as one of the conditions upon which the loan will be made and without which it cannot be procured by the applicant. It is further provided in the note given as evidence of said loan that if any default is made in the payment of any instalment due the company on said "C" certificate hypothecated with said note, or in the event of the default in the observance of any other regulation of said company "then this obligation at the option of the company shall become due and payable whether due according to its face or not."

As before observed, the weekly instalments paid for class "C" certificates are not permitted to draw interest when said certificate is pledged with the bank as security for a loan. Simply stated, therefore, the conditions upon which this bank loans money are: (1) That the loan shall be for a period not exceeding a year; (2) that the note must be signed by the borrower and two or more co-makers; (3) that a "C" certificate must be purchased by the borrower for the amount of the loan; (4) that said "C" certificate must be pledged as security for the loan, and (5) that any default in the payment of any instalments due on said certificate makes the whole loan due at the option of the company.

It therefore appears beyond question that the purchase of this "C" certificate with its consequent obligations for payment is a part of the contract made by the applicant in securing his loan and said purchase of said certificate and the procuring of said loan constitute one transaction. Whatever obligations are assumed in the purchase of the "C" certificate are imposed upon the borrower as a condition for the procurement of his loan as well as the purchase of said certificate.

To state the matter differently—the company will only agree to make a loan upon condition that the borrower shall buy from it a certificate for the amount of the loan and agree to pay for that certificate in weekly instalments, which if paid as promised will mature the certificate at the time said loan becomes due. While it does not appear that the borrower is compelled to surrender his "C" certificate in payment of his note when the latter becomes due, it is clearly to be inferred that such is the plain purpose of the transaction. It follows from this that whatever profit may flow to the company from the purchase of said "C" certificate is in reality the earnings of the loan itself. It is apparent that the profit on a loan made under such circumstances will be far greater than the rate of interest charged in advance therefor as advertised in said literature. If a borrower procures $100.00 and issues his note therefor for one year he receives on said note the sum of $92.00. He agrees as a condition of said loan to purchase a "C" certificate for the amount of $100.00 upon which he is to pay $2.00 per week. Therefore he has the use of $92.00 for one week only. By the payment of $2.00 on his "C" certificate the amount is reduced to $90.00, and at the end of the next week to $88.00, and at the end of the succeeding week to $86.00, so that it is evident upon the face of the transaction that the borrower is not having the benefit of the use of the money he actually borrows for the period named in his note or for a time any thing near the period so named in his note.

Attached to your letter are a number of statements including the calculations of experts upon the cost to a borrower of a loan made under the foregoing circumstances. If these calculations are true it appears that the cost of the loan described in the statement of the company, as above quoted, would equal a direct charge of interest of at least 19.2% per annum. Should any default be made in the payment of any weekly instalments due under the contract for the purchase of said "C" certificate a charge of five cents per week is made on each dollar so defaulted, and if there should be charges of this kind made upon each weekly instalment the rate of interest would very materially increase, and might under such conditions, it is stated, reach the enormous amount of more than 100% per annum. The calculation by which said experts aforesaid arrive at the above figures is stated as follows:

> "If 6% interest and a 2% fee is discounted on a loan of $100 made for a year the borrower receives $92. He repays this at the rate of $2.00 a week in 46 weeks. During the period of his weekly payments the amount of which he has the actual use is decreased regularly at the rate of $2.00 a week, these amounts forming a simple arithmetical progression. The sum of this progression which is found by multiplying one-half the number of payments by the sum of the first and last factors, i. e., 46 divided by 2 times 92 plus 2 equals $2,162.00, of which he has the use one week. This is equivalent to the use of $41.58 for one year. The actual charge of $8.00 upon this amount is at the rate of 19.2% per annum.

"A slightly different method giving the same result is the following:

"As the borrower pays $2.00 each week, he repays the face of the loan, $92.00, in 46 weeks, the payments for the succeeding four weeks being $8.00 interest from his own funds. As the payments are equal and at equal intervals of one week the average time for which he has the use of all the 46 sums of $2.00 each is one-half the sum of the shortest and longest periods, or ½ of 1 plus 46, which is 23.5 weeks or .451 years. The interest divided by the product of the principal and the time in years gives the annual rate per cent., in this case 8 divided by 92 times .451 equals 19.2.

"Where 6% is discounted without a fee the borrower has the use of $2,256 for one week or $43.38 for one year. The charge of $6.00 upon this amount is at the rate of 13.8% per annum.

"The foregoing takes no account of penalty interest charged upon overdue weekly payments at the rate of 5% per week, and also takes no account of the fact that if the borrower, having paid interest for a year in advance decides to pay off his loan at the end of the first month he is supposed to receive no rebate of unearned interest. Obviously this increased the rate still further."

It appears from the foregoing computation of said experts that a loan made under this plan would cost the borrower interest at the rate of 19.2% per annum and therefore that said companies so making such loans are charging and receiving that rate of interest because, as before stated, the borrowing of the money and the purchase of the class "C" certificate constitute but one transaction.

However, another and perhaps a fairer method of computing the earnings of the company upon such loans is found in the following computation:

"The borrower gives his note for $100.00 receiving $92.00 in cash—$2.00 being deducted for expenses and $6.00 for discount taken out when the loan is made. This amount is to be paid by the borrower in fifty weekly installments of $2.00 each. That is to say,—for a loan of $92.00 he contracts to pay $100.00 in fifty weekly installments of $2.00 each; as $92.00 is the amount of money paid by the lender and received by the borrower this undoubtedly should be the proper basis on which to determine the interest in true discount. The first $2.00 payment being made seven days after the loan was made would be in the hands of the lender 358 days and the last one 15 days. Following the payments with a decreasing ratio of seven days the total number of days which the lender would have the use of the $2.00 would be 9,325 days or 18,650 days for $1.00; hence the interest on $1.00 at six per cent. for 18,650 days would be $3,066—which amount represents the interest on the payments. $3,066 added to the $8.00 which was taken out in the beginning would make $11.06 total income on the $92.00 given the borrower. To determine the rate of interest on the money actually received we must find what rate per cent. on $92.00 for one year produces $11,066. This we find to be 12.03%."

While the latter computation lowers the rate of interest, yet it is immaterial to the question of whether usury is involved in the contract which of the above results represents the correct earnings of the company, for under both computations the rate of interest obtained is usurious.

It is maintained, however, by said companies that the purchase of said "C" certificate is a separate transaction and entirely disconnected with the contract under which the loan is made. In other words, it is contended that the payments made on said "C" certificate are not and may not be considered as partial payments on the loan, and in support of this contention authorities are cited to the effect that payments of dues on shares of stock in building and loan companies are not ipso facto payments of so much of a loan for which they are hypothecated, and that such payments are not applications of the money so paid to the reduction of the loan.

I am not disposed to question the authorities so cited, but it is manifest without argument that a share in a building and loan company represents a wholly different claim against said company from that of the "C" certificates against the companies in question, and that the former rests upon wholly different considerations. When shares are purchased in building and loan companies they are taken for better or worse; they represent an interest in the business of the company; they may at maturity be worth their par value—they may be worth much more than their par value, or they may be worth much less. In the case of the "C" certificates, when they are purchased they represent a liquidated amount, and upon maturity become a liquidated demand for only their face value.

If, however, we accept the contentions of said companies in this respect and conclude that the sales of said "C" certificates are not involved in any manner whatever in the making of the loan or the payment thereof, then we are confronted with other statutory provisions which impose even heavier burdens upon said companies.

It is provided in section 697 G. C. that:

> "Every corporation, partnership or association other than a building and loan association, which places or sells certificates, bonds, debentures or other investment securities of any kind, on the partial payment or instalment plan, and every investment guaranty company doing business on the service dividend plan shall be deemed a bond investment company."

It is further provided in the succeeding section, namely, section 698 G. C., that

> "Before doing business in this state, every bond investment company shall deposit with the treasurer of state one hundred thousand dollars in cash or bonds of the United States or of the state of Ohio, or of any county or municipal corporation in Ohio, for the protection of investors in the securities of such company. Such deposit shall be made out of the paid-up capital stock of such bond investment company."

If, therefore, as said companies claim, the sale of said "C" certificates is not involved in and no part of the loan transaction, then said companies undoubtedly are selling certificates on the partial payment or installment plan, and are clearly within the definition of a bond investment company, as found in section 697 supra, and are therefore subject to the provisions of section 698, supra, and by the sale of said certificates are operating a business in violation of the terms and conditions of said last named section.

It appears from the articles of incorporation of one of the companies under consideration, a copy of which is submitted with your memoranda, that said corporation

"is formed for the purpose of conducting a commercial and saving bank in accordance with the Morris plan of industrial banking and exercising all of the powers which may be exercised by a corporation engaged in such business and doing all things incident and necessary thereto."

It appears, therefore, that this company is chartered as a banking institution, and it is claimed by all companies doing business under the Morris plan in this state that they are banking institutions, they being chartered under similar provisions.

These facts, however, are not conclusive of their liabilities under the law nor of the rights of your department if as a matter of fact they are operating a business which is not within the legitimate functions of a bank.

It would not be profitable here to discuss in detail what is or what is not a bank. While it is undoubtedly true, as observed by the supreme court in the case of Niagara County Bank v. Baker et al., 15 O. S. 68, that "In all the American systems of banking, with which we have any acquaintance, the furnishing of loans, at fixed rates of interest, to facilitate the business and commerce of the country, has been made a cardinal feature in the institution of banks, and in giving them extensive corporate privileges," it does not follow that the business of loaning money alone will constitute a banking business. On the contrary, it would seem from the authorities that the function of receiving deposits is the distinctive feature of the banking business, and that the loaning of money not connected with receiving deposits has not been considered sufficient to constitute the business of banking.

Tiffany on Banks and Banking, section 2.
Morse on Banks and Banking, section 2.
Bouvier's Law Dictionary, 318.

It is contended, however, in behalf of the companies in question, that the loaning of money is sufficient to establish their status as banks, and that the feature of receiving deposits is not a necessary element under the statutes of this state in the banking business and especially in the business of those persons, companies and corporations coming under the supervision of the banking department of this state. In support of this contention it is alleged that the provisions of section 711 G. C., section 724 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 360, and section 9793 G. C. must be construed as expressly excepting the qualifications of "receiving money on deposit" from corporations doing a banking business in this state.

Section 711 G. C. provides.

"The superintendent of banks shall execute the laws in relation to banking companies, savings bank, savings societies, societies for savings, saving and loan associations, savings and trust companies, safe deposit companies and trust companies and every other corporation or association having the power to receive, and receiving money on deposit, chartered or incorporated under the laws of this state. * * *"

Section 724 G. C., amended as aforesaid, provides:

"At least once each year and as often as the superintendent of banks may deem necessary, and also when requested by the board of directors or trustees thereof, the superintendent of banks or an examiner appointed for that purpose shall thoroughly examine the cash, bills, collaterals or securities, books of account and affairs of each bank, savings bank, safe deposit and trust company, savings and loan society or association incorporated under any law in this state, or any person, partnership or association engaging in the business of receiving deposits. * * *"

Section 9793 G. C. provides:

"Every banking company, savings bank, savings and loan association, savings and trust company, safe deposit and trust company, society for savings, savings society, and every other corporation or association, except building and loan associations, empowered to receive, and receiving money on deposits, now existing and chartered or incorporated or which hereafter become incorporated shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter. * * *"

It is claimed that from the language of the foregoing sections it is clear that the business of receiving deposits does not necessarily apply to banking companies but applies only to the persons, associations or corporations with which it is directly connected in said statutes. In other words, for example, in section 711 aforesaid the term "having the power to receive, and receiving money on deposit" applies only to the term "every other corporation or association" mentioned in the statute. And, again, in section 9793 aforesaid the words "empowered to receive and receiving money on deposit" apply only to the term "every other corporation or association."

I am unable to concur in the conclusion thus urged. Not only is the business of receiving deposits ordinarily considered as the distinctive function of a bank, but I think the provisions of section 9796-1 G. C. as amended 104 O. L. 185, show very clearly the purpose of the legislature in all these statutes to connect the function of receiving money on deposit with the banking business. This section provides as follows:

"Whenever the term 'state bank' is used in this act, the said term shall be held to include every corporation or association having the power to receive, and receiving money on deposit, chartered or incorporated under any general or special law of Ohio, but shall not include building and loan associations; * * *"

It appears from the memoranda submitted that the institutions doing business in this state under the Morris plan are connected with a parent corporation known as "The Industrial Finance Corporation," with which said local institutions have contractual relations which authorize them to conduct business under said plan in this state. In the contract between the parent corporation and the local corporation it is stated in the preamble thereof:

WHEREAS, it is desirable to develop this system of industrial loans and investments on a business basis in order permanently to secure the advantages to be derived from its successful operation by separate and distinct companies incorporated as independent institutions and designed to be operated as such."

And again in paragraph 1 of the contract it is provided:

"The corporation does hereby sell, transfer and assign unto the company and its successors all its right, title and interest for the city of

> ----------, state of Ohio, and the county of ----------, state of Ohio, in and to the use of a certain system, including copyrights, plans and forms, together with all renewals and improvements thereof and additions thereto for the conduct and operation of a loan and investment business, known and designated as the Morris plan and belonging to the said corporation, which said copyrights are duly recorded in the office of the registrar of copyrights of United States at Washington, D. C."

The foregoing provisions taken in connection with the following provisions found in paragraph 19 of said contract, to wit:

> "The company further agrees that no substantial departure shall be made from the operation of the Morris plan as contemplated by this contract; that it will not accept deposits and that in so far as its directors deem practicable it will operate in substantial conformity to the rules and regulations, a copy of which is hereto attached, for the conduct of business under said Morris plan."

indicate conclusively to me that it was never contemplated by the originators of said Morris plan that the method of loaning money which it provides should be considered as a banking business. In fact, it is very clear that the Morris plan is precisely what its originators call it in their contract with the subordinate companies, viz.: "A loan and investment business."

In reaching this conclusion other very persuasive facts must be noted. It appears from the report of the superintendent of banks of the state of New York for the year 1915 at page 30 thereof, that companies operating under the Morris plan system in that state are listed as investment companies:

An examination of the laws of New York in respect to such companies discloses some very recent amendments which apparently were passed for the especial benefit of the Morris plan corporations, and in order to give them a legal status without which it was probable their methods were not authorized by the laws of that state. The first amendments referred to are found in volume 9, chapter 369 of the Consolidated Laws of New York for the year 1914, being sections 290 et seq.

Sections 292 of said chapter provides for a deposit of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars with the superintendent of banks before companies organized under the provisions of said chapter may operate.

In section 293 thereof we find a delegation of powers to said company, among which is found the authority "to sell choses in action owned, issued, negotiated or guaranteed" by said company. And in paragraph 2 of said section said companies are authorized to receive money or property in installments or otherwise from any person or persons with or without an allowance of interest upon such installments.

In paragraph 4 thereof they are authorized

> "To deduct interest in advance on loans at the rate of six per centum per annum, provided such loans are secured by assignments of choses in action or other evidences of indebtedness issued by it and to be paid for in uniform monthly or weekly installments."

Said last named paragraph was amended to take effect March 30, 1915, said amendment being found in volume 10 of the Consolidated Laws of said state for the year 1915 at page 34 thereof. Said amendment reads as follows:

"To deduct interest in advance on loans at the rate of six per centum per annum, provided such loans are secured by assignments of choses in action or other evidences of indebtedness issued by it and to be paid for in uniform monthly or weekly installments. To charge for a loan exceeding fifty dollars made pursuant to this subdivision one dollar for each fifty dollars or fraction thereof loaned for expenses including any examination or investigation of the character and circumstances of the borrower, co-maker, or surety, and the drawing and taking the acknowledgment of necessary papers, or other expenses incurred in making the loan; provided, that no fee collected hereunder shall exceed five dollars.

"If any such loan made pursuant to this subdivision is fifty dollars or less, such charge shall not be more than one dollar. * * *"

An additional paragraph was also added to said section on said date, which reads as follows:

"To impose a fine of five cents for each default in the payment of one dollar or a fraction thereof at the time any periodical installment upon a certificate assigned as collateral security for the payment of a loan made pursuant to subdivision four of this section becomes due, provided, however, that such fines shall not be cumulative; that no fine shall be imposed for more than four successive defaults, and that the aggregate of such fines collected in connection with any such loan or renewal thereof shall not exceed one dollar."

It is manifest that the foregoing laws apply in every particular to companies operating under the Morris plan, and as before observed gives them a protection and legal status not provided for by the laws of this state.

Special legislation for the benefit of such companies was also enacted by the legislature of the state of Rhode Island, while I am informed that in the states of Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Texas, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Illinois additional legislation was found necessary to give such companies authority to operate, and that the legislatures of said states are now considering the question of enacting the same.

In view of these considerations it is apparent that such companies now have no place in the laws of this state, and I am therefore impelled to conclude that without additional legislation here, companies operating under the Morris plan have no legal status in this state.

What is here said is not to be understood as a criticism of such plan. It may possess advantages to borrowers not found in the methods of other companies engaged in loaning money in this state. When, however, all that may be said in favor of this plan has been considered, it does not remove the fact that there is no law in this state providing for companies operating under such plan, and that it possesses features which are clearly in violation of the laws now upon our statute books.

As your inquiry was prompted by the fact that applications are now pending before you for certificates to commence business under said plan, which certificates are necessary by virtue of the provisions of section 9720 and 9721 G. C., I must advise that said certificates may not legally be granted by you and that the companies now asking for said certificates to operate under said plan are not lawfully entitled to commence business in this state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

QUESTION OF SANITY OF PERSON ACCUSED OF CRIME—BEFORE AND AFTER INDICTMENT—HOW DETERMINED—WHEN INSANE PERSON IS COMMITTED TO LIMA STATE HOSPITAL—PROCEDURE—COSTS CANNOT BE COLLECTED FROM STATE WHERE PERSON FOUND GUILTY OF CRIME IS IN SAME VERDICT FOUND TO BE INSANE.

Section 13577 G. C. provides for the disposition by the common pleas court of a person accused of crime before indictment when the question of sanity is raised before the grand jury.

Section 13614 G. C. provides for the disposition of one accused of crime after indictment by the common pleas court when the question of insanity is raised before trial.

Under the provisions of sections 13577 and 13614 G. C. the common pleas court is vested with jurisdiction to commit the accused, when found to be insane, to the Lima State Hospital.

Section 13608 G. C. provides a special proceeding to try the question of sanity of one accused of crime, and on such finding jurisdiction to commit the accused insane person is transferred to the probate court under the provisions of section 13610 G. C.

Sections 13577 and 13614 G. C. contemplate the determination of the question of sanity and the commitment of the accused insane person to the Lima State Hospital for special treatment until restored to reason when he may be placed on trial for the offense charged.

A verdict finding the accused guilty and insane at the time of trial is not authorized and should not be received, as one who is insane cannot be said to be in position to make a proper defense in a criminal case.

Costs taxed in a criminal case cannot be collected from the state where a person found guilty of a crime is in the same verdict found to be insane and committed to the Lima State Hospital, because of his insanity no judgment being pronounced by the court to enforce the verdict of guilty.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

HON. LINDSEY K. COOPER, Prosecuting Attorney, Ironton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

> "One Scott Grubb was indicted at the last term of our common pleas court for larceny. Being in indigent circumstances, the court appointed an attorney to defend him. On the trial two defenses were made: First, that he did not burn the building. Second 'Insanity.' The jury acquitted him solely on the ground that he was insane. Judge Corn was undecided as to how to tax the costs in the case, and, after investigation, I was unable to advise him. He suggested that I write you and inquire your holding as to whether the state would pay the costs in a case of this kind. Inasmuch as the jury holds the defendant to be insane, we felt that the costs could not be taxed against defendant. * * *'

In your subsequent letter you state that you were mistaken in the statements made in your first letter to the effect that the jury acquitted Scott Grubb solely on the ground that he was insane, and that the journal entry shows that the verdict of the jury found him.

"Guilty of arson in the manner and form as he stands charged in the indictment, but we find him now to be insane."

Section 3016 of the General Code is as follows:

"In felonies, when the defendant is convicted the costs of the justice of the peace, police judge, or justice, mayor, marshal, chief of police, constable and witnesses, shall be paid from the county treasury and inserted in the judgment of conviction, so that such costs may be paid to the county from the state treasury. In all cases, when recognizances are taken, forfeited and collected and no conviction is had, such costs shall be paid from the county treasury."

One of the questions to be considered first in connection with your request for an opinion is as to the authority of the judge of the common pleas court, under the verdict rendered in this case, to commit the Defendant Grubb to the Lima State Hospital, and resort must be had to several statutes which deal with the disposition of insane persons accused of or indicted for crime.

The Lima State Hospital is an institution which has been especially designed for the care and special treatment of the criminal insane and special classes of insane persons who cannot be satisfactorily cared for in the regular hospitals for insane.

Section 13577 of the General Code, which deals with the disposition of a person accused of crime in connection with whom the question of insanity is raised before the grand jury, is as follows:

"If a grand jury upon investigation of a person accused of crime finds such person to be insane, it shall report such finding to the court of common pleas. Such court shall order a jury to be impaneled to try whether or not the accused is sane at the time of such impanelling, and such court and jury shall proceed in a like manner as provided by law when the question of the sanity of a person indicted for an offense is raised at any time before sentence. If such person is then found to be insane he shall be committed to the Lima State Hospital until restored to reason. This section shall not be in force and effect until the Lima State Hospital is ready for the reception of inmates as certified to the courts by the governor and secretary of state."

Section 13614 of the General Code, which was enacted to care for insane persons under indictment, is as follows:

"If a person under indictment appears to be insane, proceedings shall be had as provided for persons not indicted because of insanity. If such person is found to be insane he shall be committed to the Lima State Hospital until restored to reason when the superintendent thereof shall notify the prosecuting attorney of the proper county who shall proceed, as provided by law, with the trial of such person under indictment."

It is provided that section 13577 and 13614 of the General Code, supra, are not to be in full force and effect until the Lima State Hospital is ready for the reception of inmates as certified to the court by the governor and secretary of state; that condition having been met, the sections referred to are in full force and effect.

Under the provisions of section 13577 of the General Code, supra, the common pleas court is vested with jurisdiction to commit an insane person accused of crime but who has not been indicted when such person has been certified to the common pleas court by the grand jury. The procedure prescribed is that a jury shall be impanelled to try the question of sanity of such person, and if it shall be found that he is insane he shall be committed to the Lima State Hospital until restored to reason.

Under the provisions of section 13614 of the General Code, supra, the court is vested with the same jurisdiction in dealing with an insane person who is under indictment.

Section 1985 of the General Code provides, in part, as follows:

> "The Lima State Hospital shall be used for the custody, care and special treatment of insane persons of the following classes: * * *
> "Persons accused of crime but not indicted because of insanity. * * * Persons indicted but found to be insane. * * *"

It is clear from a reading of sections 13577 and 13614 of the General Code, supra, that the intention of the general assembly in their enactment was to provide that persons within the jurisdiction of the common pleas court either held to the grand jury before indictment or after indictment should not be called to answer for the offenses with which they were charged if they were subjects for admission to the Lima State Hospital because of insanity until they had had the benefit of the treatment at Lima State Hospital and had been restored to reason, and the ordinary proceedings in the probate court were obviated by placing the jurisdiction to commit under the special provisions of sections 13577 and 13614 of the General Code in the common pleas court. It is clear from a reading of the sections referred to that it is contemplated that the question of insanity shall be raised in the common pleas court in advance of the trial of the accused.

Prior to the going into effect of sections 13577 and 13614 of the General Code, supra, provision was made for the trial of the question of the sanity of a person indicted in section 13608 of the General Cde, which is as follows:

> "When the attorney of a person indicted for an offense suggests to the court in which such indictment is pending, and before sentence, that such person is not then sane and a certificate of a reputable physician to that effect is presented to the court, such court shall order a jury to be impaneled to try whether or not the accused is sane at the time of such impaneling. Thereupon a time shall be fixed for a trial, a jury shall be drawn from the jury-box and a venire issued, unless the prosecuting attorney or the attorney of the accused demand a struck jury, in which case such jury shall be selected and summoned as required by law. The jury shall be sworn to try the question whether the accused is or is not sane and a true verdict given according to the law and the evidence, and, on the trial, the accused shall hold the affirmative."

It will be observed that the procedure therein authorized is special in its nature, that the sanity or the insanity of the accused may be determined by three-fourths of the jurors, and that upon a finding by the jury that the person accused of crime is insane the fact of the finding shall be certified to the probate court under the provisions of section 13610 of the General Code, and the probate court is vested with jurisdiction to dispose of the accused as upon inquest had.

In the case under consideration it does not appear that the question of the insanity of the defendant was raised prior to the impaneling of the jury to try him for the offense with which he was charged, hence resort was not had to either section 13577, to 13614, nor 13608 of the General Code. I am at a loss to understand how upon the trial of the defendant for the crime with which he was charged, and in the absence of any of the special proceedings provided by law, evidence could be adduced as to his insanity at the time of the trial, and in the absence of any such evidence how the jury could arrive at a verdict such as appears to have been rendered in this case.

While the judge of the common pleas court would, as before stated, be vested with jurisdiction to commit a person accused of or indicted for crime to the Lima State Hospital under authority of the special proceedings provided for and referred to above, there is grave doubt in my mind as to the regularity of the verdict which appears to have been received by the court and upon which the commitment of the accused to the Lima State Hospital was made. The defendant either stands as convicted of the crime with which he was charged and the portion of the verdict declaring him to be insane is surplussage, or the verdict should be set aside on the ground that the defendant was insane at the time of the trial, therefore not in position to make a proper defense in the criminal proceedings. If the former proposition should be accepted and the conviction of the defendant should be regarded as regular, the jurisdiction of the judge of the common pleas court would, in my opinion, be limited to the sentencing of the defendant to the penitentiary or reformatory, as the case may be. If the defendant were sentenced to the penitentiary or to the reformatory and he was found to be insane, he might be dealt with under the provisions of sections 1841-2 and 1841-3 of the General Code as amended 103 O. L., pp. 681-682, which are as follows:

> "Sec. 1841-2. All persons committed to any institution under the control and management of the Ohio Board of Administration shall be considered as committed to the control, care and custody of such board. Upon resolution, duly entered upon the minutes of the board, any person committed to one of such institutions may, for reasons set forth in such resolution, be transferred to any other institution; provided that, except as otherwise provided by law, no person shall be transferred from a benevolent to a penal institution.
> "Sec. 1841-3. The board of administration acting as a commission of lunacy may adjudge any inmate in any institution under its control, or in any county jail, to be insane, feeble-minded, or epileptic, and may remove such inmate to any one of the state hospitals, or to the institution for feeble-minded, or to the Ohio hospital for epileptics."

The particular question propounded by you is as to whether or not the state should in the case under consideration pay the costs which have been taxed. From the facts as presented by you, the defendant stands convicted of the crime with which he was charged; however, it appears that judgment has not been pronounced by the court by the imposition of sentence for the crime of which he was found guilty, and as the machinery provided by law for the payment of costs by the state in felony cases where a conviction has been had is dependent upon the sentencing of the accused and his commitment to the warden of the penitentiary or to the superintendent of the reformatory, as provided in sections 13720 to 13727, inclusive, of the General Code, there is no ground upon which the costs in this case under its present status can be collected from the state. The conviction of the defendant followed by the imposition of sentence would, under the provisions of sections 13722 and 13723 of the General Code, authorize the clerk to make up a cost bill and issue execution to the sheriff of the county in which the indictment was found against the property of the defendant for the costs of the prosecution.

However, this case has never reached that stage, inasmuch, as stated above, the judgement of the court on conviction was not pronounced.

Aside from the question of the regularity of the proceedings which resulted in the commitment of the defendant to the Lima State Hospital, as referred to above, it is my opinion that in view of the failure of the court to pronounce judgment sentencing the defendant to the penitentiary or reformatory, and his not being delivered to the warden of the penitentiary or to the superintendent of the Ohio state reformatory, there is no machinery provided by law which will provide for the payment of the costs by the state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—SECTIONS 2353 AND 2352 G. C. CONSTRUED —PROVISION FOR GIVING FIFTEEN DAYS NOTICE WHEN ESTIMATED COST OF CONTRACT DOES NOT EXCEED ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS, DIRECTORY—IF COMMISSIONERS DETERMINE TO GIVE FIFTEEN DAYS' NOTICE SAME MAY BE GIVEN BY POSTING, ONLY.

The provisions of section 2353 G. C. as to the giving of fifteen days' notice when the estimated cost of a contract does not exceed one thousand dollars, are directory and county commissioners may adopt such plan if they so desire, or may follow the general provisions of the law and advertise as provided by section 2352 G. C. If, however, the commissioners determine to give fifteen days' notice, as provided by said section 2353, aforesaid, then such notice may be given only by posting, as therein provided.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of August 10, 1916, submitting the following inquiry:

> "Where the estimated cost of a public building, bridge or bridge sub-structure, or addition to or repair thereof, does not exceed one thousand dollars, may the county commissioners still advertise notice to contractors as provided by section 2352 G. C., or is the language of section 2353 mandatory in requiring them to give notice of the letting by posting on bulletin board where the estimated cost is less than one thousand dollars?"

Sections 2352 and 2353 G. C., to which you refer in your foregoing inquiry, provide as follows:

> "Sec. 2352 G. C. When the plans, drawings, representations, bills of material, specifications and estimates are so made and approved, the county commissioners shall give public notice in two of the principal papers in the county having the largest circulation therein, of the time when and the place where sealed proposals will be received for performing the labor and furnishing the materials necessary to the erection of such building, bridge or bridge substructure, or addition to or alteration thereof, and a contract based on such proposals will be awarded. If there is only one paper published in the county, it shall be published in such paper. The notice shall be published weekly for four consecutive weeks next preceding the day named for making the contract, and state when and where such plan or plans, descriptions, bills and specifications can be seen. They shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable hours, between the date of such notice and the making of such contract.

"Sec. 2353 G. C. When the estimated cost of a public building, bridge or bridge substructure or of making an addition to or repair thereof does not exceed one thousand dollars, it shall be let as heretofore provided, but notice of the letting need be given for only fifteen days, by posting on a bulletin board or by writing on a blackboard in a conspicuous place in the county commissioners' or auditor's office, showing the nature of the letting and when and where proposals in writing will be received. Plans or specifications, or both as hereinbefore provided shall be kept on file during the fifteen days and open to public inspection."

The foregoing sections were originally a part of section 798 R. S., which, as amended in 98 Ohio Laws, 19, and prior to the codification in 1910, read as follows:

"After such plans, descriptions, bills of materials, specifications and estimates are made and approved, as required by this chapter, the county commissioners shall give public notice in two of the principal papers in any such county having the largest circulation therein; but if there is only one paper published in such county, then it shall be published in such paper of the time and place, when and where sealed proposals will be received for performing the labor and furnishing the materials necessary to the erection of any such building, bridge or bridge substructure, or any addition to or alteration thereof, and a contract or contracts based on such sealed proposals will be made, which notice shall be published weekly for four consecutive weeks next preceding the day named for making such contract or contracts, and shall state when and where such plan or plans, descriptions, bills and specifications can be seen, and which shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable hours, between the date of such notice and the making of such contract or contracts; but when the estimated cost of any public building, bridge or bridge substructure or of making any addition to or repair of the same does not exceed one thousand dollars, the same shall be let as heretofore provided, but notice of such letting need only be given for fifteen days, and said notice shall only be by posting on a bulletin board or by writing on a blackboard in a conspicuous place in the county commissioners' or auditor's office, showing the nature of the letting and when and where proposals in writing will be received, plans or specifications, or both as hereinbefore provided shall be kept on file during said fifteen days and open to public inspection, and when the estimated cost of any public building, bridge or bridge substructure or of making any addition thereto or repair thereof does not exceed two hundred dollars, the same may be let at private contract without any publication or notice thereof."

It will be observed that but little change was made by the codifying commission in the foregoing statute except to divide it into three sections, viz., 2352, 2353 and 2354 G. C. There is nothing in the present language of section 2353, aforesaid, to justify the conclusion that its provisions in reference to the giving of fifteen days notice may be regarded as mandatory. While it is true that in the original section 798 R. S., aforesaid, it is provided that said fifteen days notice shall "only be by posting," as therein directed, yet the effect of this provision is only to make the method of posting mandatory after the decision is made to give notice for only fifteen days. I am unable to conceive upon what theory the word "need," as used in said section, may be given the force and effect of a command.

Prior to the aforesaid amendment of section 798 R. S., and by the amendment of said section found in volume 85 Ohio Laws 221, it was provided as follows:

> "But when the estimated cost of any public building or a bridge, and the substructure thereto, or of making any addition to or repair of any public building, bridge and substructures for the same does not exceed one thousand dollars; the same may be let at private contract without publication."

In the case of State ex rel. v. Commissioners, 2nd N. P., n. s., 261, the court having under consideration the legality of certain contracts which had been made under the provisions of said section 798 R. S., as amended in volume 85, aforesaid, in referring to this particular provision used this language:

> "After all this is done the auditor shall advertise for sealed proposals, as directed in section 798 R. S., and the only discretion the commissioners can exercise is the making of a contract without advertising, when the estimated cost of the bridge and the substructure does not exceed one thousand dollars, and this discretion does not mean the omission of any of these preliminary acts or the utter disregard of the rights of the public."

The court in the foregoing case construed the then provisions of said section 798 as vesting the commissioners with a discretion in the matter of letting the contract without advertising. Further investigation of the provisions of said section 798, prior to the last named amendment, shows that in volume 68 O. L., pags 103, the provision here under consideration was carried in the following language:

> "Provided that when the cost of a building or a bridge or of making any addition to or repair of any building, will not exceed one thousand dollars, the commissioners may, if they are of the opinion that the interest of the public will be the best subserved thereby, cause such building or bridge to be built, or such addition or repair to be made by private contract, without publication or public letting, as is provided in this and the following section."

It will thus be observed that under the original provisions of the law in respect to contracts less than one thousand dollars, an exception was made from the general provision requiring advertising, which was purely permissive and which vested the county commissioners with a discretion to determine for themselves whether contracts coming within that class should be advertised as required by the general provisions of the law, or let by private contract.

It clearly appears to have been the purpose of the legislature in the prior enactments of the exceptions to the general law in respect to the contracts under consideration here, to make such exceptions discretionary with the county commissioners. By reason of this general purpose, as thus plainly expressed in a former provision of the law, I conclude that no change in this regard was intended in the present amendment as it now appears in said section 2353, and that the provision of said section, viz., "but notice of the letting need be given for only fifteen days" is one intended to be permissive only, and that there is still reserved to the commissioners the right to advertise, as provided in section 2352 aforesaid. If in their judgment such plan would be more beneficial to the county.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that the provisions of section 2353, supra, as to the giving of fifteen days' notice, when the estimated cost of the contract does not exceed one thousand dollars, are directory and that the commissioners may adopt such plan, if they so desire, or may follow the general provisions of the law and advertise, as provided by section 2352 G. C. If, however, the commissioners determine to give fifteen days' notice, as aforesaid, then such notice may only be given by posting, as required by said section 2352 G. C., aforesaid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

POST-MORTEM EXAMINATIONS—OHIO HOSPITAL FOR EPILEPTICS——IF REMAINS CLAIMED BY RELATIVES, THEIR CONSENT MUST BE OBTAINED—EXCEPTION, DEATH FROM VIOLENCE.

Post-mortèm examinations of the remains of patients who die in the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, whose remains are claimed by the husband, wife or next of kin, may be made without the consent of the husband, wife or next of kin only in those cases in which it is supposed that death resulted by violence, whereby an inquest is required to be held.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a request for an opinion from Dr. G. G. Kineon, superintendent of the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, which is as follows:

> "I should like an opinion regarding the extent of our rights to make post-mortem examinations on bodies of patients who die at the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics.
> "It has been our custom to hold post-mortem examinations on our patients, provided we could get the consent of the relatives. However, there have been some cases which we very much desired to examine after death in order to be absolutely sure of the diagnosis, but were unable to do so because the relatives refused consent."

In accordance with the practice of this department the opinion on the foregoing question is being addressed to you.

With reference to epilepsy, section 2044 G. C. provides as follows:

> "In the committment and conveyance to the hospital, the care and custody while there, and the discharge therefrom, of epileptic insane or eplieptics whose being at large is dangerous to the community, like proceedings shall be had, and like powers exercised by officers charged with like duties in the premises as is provided by law for the commitment and care of the insane."

Further provision as to the care, custody and control of patients in the hospital for epileptics is found in section 2051 G. C., as follows:

> "The board of trustees may make such rules and regulations respecting the care, custody, discipline and discharge of patients, as they deem best for the interests of the patients and the state. Until properly discharged, all persons admitted to the hospital as patients shall be under the custody and control of the manager. Subject to such regulations as the trustees adopt, the manager may restrain and discipline any patient in such manner as he deems best for the welfare of the patient and the proper conduct of the institution."

The foregoing provision must be read in connection with the provision of section 1841-2 G. C. 103 O. L. 681, as follows

> "All persons committed to any institution under the control and management of the Ohio Board of Administration shall be considered as committed to the control, care and custody of such board."

Thus the care, custody and control of inmates or patients in the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics is committed to the Ohio Board of Administration, and so long as any person remains a patient or inmate in such institution he is subject to all lawful rules and regulations of the board governing inmates thereof. On the death of a person who was theretofore an inmate of such institution, such person ceases, of course, to be an inmate and his remains then becomes subject to the provisions of law applicable to the disposition of dead bodies.

A careful examination of the statutes fails to disclose any authority thereby conferred upon the board of administration, or any of its agents or employes, or other public officer, to hold or order to be held a post-mortem examination of the remains of a deceased inmate of the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, except in case of death under circumstances such as induce a supposition that death was caused by a violence, in which case it is within the jurisdiction of the coroner to make, or cause to be made, a post-mortem examination.

In respect to the disposition of the bodies of certain classes of deceased persons, it is provided by section 9984 G. C. as follows:

> "Superintendents of city hospitals, directors or superintendents of city or county infirmaries, directors or superintendents of work-houses, directors or superintendents of asylums for the insane, or other charitable institutions founded and supported in whole or in part at public expense, the directors or warden of the penitentiary, township trustees, sheriffs, or coroners, in possession of bodies not claimed or identified, or which must be buried at the expense of the county or township, before burial, shall hold such bodies not less than thirty-six hours and notify the professor of anatomy in a college which by its charter is empowered to teach anatomy, or the president of a county medical society, of the fact that such bodies are being so held. Before or after burial such superintendent, director, or other officer, on the written application of the professor of anatomy, or the president of a county medical society shall deliver to such professor or president, for the purpose of medical or surgical study or dissection, the body of a person who died in either of such institutions, from any disease, not infectious, if it has not been requested for interment by any person at his own expense."

Section 9987 G. C. provides as follows:

"In all cases the officer having such body under his control, must notify or cause to be notified, in writing, the relatives or friends of the deceased person."

The provisions of these sections give rise to the inference, at least, that where a body is claimed and is not required to be buried at public expense, those persons who claim the same have a right to its custody for burial. This inference, it seems, is made fully conclusive by the provisions of section 12689 and section 12692 G. C., as follows:

"Sec. 12689 G. C. Whoever, being a superintendent of a city hospital, city or county infirmary, workhouse, asylum for the insane, or other charitable institution founded and supported in whole or in part at public expense, coroner, infirmary director, sheriff, or township trustee, fails to deliver a body of a deceased person when applied for, in conformity to law, or charges, receives or accepts money or other valuable consideration for such delivery, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than six months.

"Sec. 12692 G. C. Whoever detains a corpse, claimed by relatives or friends for interment at their expense, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than six months."

The foregoing provisions are subject to modification effected by section 12960 G. C., which provides:

"The next preceding section shall not require a delivery of such body until twenty-four hours after death."

It is then the mandatory duty to deliver the remains of a deceased inmate of the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics to the relatives next of kin or friends who claim the same for burial after twenty-four hours subsequent to death.

This right of possession for burial after twenty-four hours subsequent to the death of an inmate does not, in itself, conclusively preclude the holding of a post-mortem examination.

At common law there was no property right in the remains of deceased persons (13 Cyc. 280; 8 Am. and Eng. Ency. 834), yet the right to bury a corpse and preserve its remains is a legal right which the courts will recognize and protect.

Larson v. Chase, 47 Minn. 307.

Foley v. Phelps, 1 N. Y. App. Div. 551.

"It follows as a corollary to the well-recognized rule in the United States of the right of possession of a corpse for the purposes of interment and the care of such remains after burial that the invasion or violation of that right furnishes a ground for a civil action for damages." 13 Cyc. 280.

At page 280 of the same volume it is stated:

"and the right to dispose of a corpse by decent sepulture includes the right to the possession of the body in the same condition in which death leaves it."

There is little authority in this state on the question here under consideration.

In the case of Farley v. Carson, 5 W. L. Bull 786, decided by the district court of Hamilton county, it was held:

"A husband or wife, relict, is entitled to the possession of the body of the deceased wife or husband for sepulture, and in the fitness for burial in which death leaves it.

"It does not show an infringement on this right to possess the body with decency of death, where the attendant physician, immediately on the death of decedent in a hospital, and without delaying the delivery of the body to the widow, made an incision in the body in order to ascertain the extent of an abscess, of which the patient had died, one part or organ being dismembered or removed, and the incision not being visible when the clothes are on."

While this case held that a mere incision of the length of from four to eight inches in the abdomen, which was sewed up and covered by a strip of adhesive plaster, made for the alleged purpose of determining the extent of an abscess of the liver by the attending physician after death, was not a violation of the right of the widow to possession of the remains for decent burial, I am not inclined to the view that this case can be taken as authority for making a post-mortem examination such as the case might require to determine the correctness of the diagnosis of the ailments of the deceased by a physician in attendance or otherwise.

In the case of Foley v. Phelps, 1 N. Y. App. Div. 551, the complaint alleged that the plaintiff's husband, having fallen through an elevator shaft, was taken to Bellevue hospital where he died three hours later; that the plaintiff was under the duty and obligation and had the right to bury her husband; that she applied at the hospital for his body and begged those who were in charge of it not to allow an autopsy to be performed, stating that she would send an undertaker for the body at once; that, notwithstanding her request and protestations, the defendant, without her knowledge or consent, procured, assisted, aided and abetted in performing an autopsy on her husband's body, and that this was done without any authority of law. To this complaint a demurrer was interposed. It was held:

"That the complaint stated a cause of action; that, prior to interment, the widow had a right to the possession of the body of her husband for the purpose of preservation and burial, and that her rights in this regard were paramount to those of the next of kin, and that she had a right to the possession of the body in the same condition it was in, when death occurred; that the unlawful and unauthorized mutilation of the body was a clear invasion of the plaintiff's right, and, irrespective of any statutory enactment, entitled her to bring an action for damages."

In the case of Larson v. Chase, 47 Minn. 307, it was held:

"The right to the possession of a dead body for the purposes of preservation and burial belongs, in the absence of any testamentary disposition, to the surviving husband or wife or next of kin, and the right of the surviving wife (if living with her husband at the time of his death) is paramount to that of the next of kin.

"This right is one which the law recognizes and will protect and for any infraction of it,—such as an unlawful mutilation of the remains,—an action for damages will lie. In such an action a recovery may be had for injury to the feelings and mental suffering resulting directly and proximately from the wrongful act, although no actual pecuniary damage is alleged or proved."

While the circumstances of a particular case might be such that a post-mortem examination would not involve a more substantial mutilation of the remains than that under consideration in the case of Farley v. Chase, it certainly may not be said that a post-mortem examination would not in any case necessitate such a mutilation of the remains as would be a violation of the right of the husband or wife, or next of kin, to have possession of the body in the same condition in which death leaves it.

In the absence of statutory authority therefor, I am therefore of opinion that post-mortem examinations of the remains of patients who die in the Ohio Hospital for Epileptics, whose remains are claimed by the husband, wife or next of kin, may be made without the consent of such husband, wife or next of kin, only in those cases in which it is supposed that death was caused by violence, as that phrase is construed in the case of State ex rel. v. Billows, 62 O. S. 307, i. e., "whenever the coroner, from observation or information has substantial reason for believing or surmising that death was caused by unlawful means" in which case an inquest is required to be held.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY BOARD OF SCHOOL EXAMINERS—TERMS OF SUCH MEMBERS—THOSE ELIGIBLE TO APPOINTMENT AS MEMBERS OF SUCH BOARD.

If a superintendent of schools who is employed according to the provisions of section 4740 G. C., 106 O. L. 439, teaches a substantial part of each day in the schools of which he is superintendent, pursuant to the direction of the board of education of the district, and has all the other requisite qualifications, he is eligible to appointment as a teacher to membership of the county board of school examiners, under section 7811 G. C., 104 O. L. 100.

A superintendent of the schools of a village school district, which is exempted under the provisions of section 4688 G. C., 104 O. L. 133, is not eligible to appointment as a member of the county board of school examiners.

If a county school examiner, who was appointed as a district superintendent, becomes a teacher or becomes a superintendent, under section 4740 G. C., 104 O. L. 439, or such examiner, who was appointed as a teacher becomes a district superintendent, or becomes a superintendent employed under section 4740 G. C., supra, and does not teach under the direction of the board of education of the district, a substantial part of each day, such examiner ceases to possess the requisite qualifications and is no longer eligible to serve in that capacity.

If a superintendent, employed under section 4740 G. C., supra, who teaches a substantial part of each day by direction of the board of education, was appointed a county school examiner as a teacher and thereafter ceases to be such superintendent and becomes a teacher only in the public schools of the county school district or of an exempted village school district, he does not thereby become disqualified to continue to serve as county school examiner.

The regular terms of members of boards of county school examiners, at the time section 7811 G. C., 104 O. L. 102, became effective, expired on August 31, 1914, 1915 and 1916 respectively. The regular terms of the appointive successors of the examiners, whose terms expired on August 31, 1915 and 1916, respectively, will expire on August 31, 1917 and 1918, respectively.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. PEARSON, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of July 24, 1916, is as follows:

"The department of public instruction desires an opinion on the following questions relating to appointment and eligibility of members of county board of school examiners:

"(1) May a superintendent of a village that is exempted from district supervision under section 4740 as amended, be legally appointed a member of the county board of school examiners?

"(2) May a superintendent of an exempted village (4688 G. C.) be legally appointed on county board of school examiners?

"(3) If the time for which two members of county board of school examiners expires on August 31, 1916, for what length of time shall each be appointed?

"(4) If a district superintendent becomes a teacher, or a teacher becomes a district superintendent, or either becomes a 4740 superintendent during the time for which he had been appointed on the county board of school examiners, would his term as member of an examining board automatically end?

"(5) If No. 1 be answered in the affirmative, and a 4740 superintendent is now a member of a county board of school examiners until August 31, 1917, shall a teacher or a district superintendent be appointed on the board of examiners, whose term will begin September 1, 1916?"

Section 7811 G. C., 104 O. L. 100, relative to the appointment and qualifications of members of county boards of school examiners, provides as follows:

"There shall be a county board of school examiners for each county, consisting of the county superintendent, one district superintendent and one other competent teacher, the latter two to be appointed by the county board of education. The teacher so appointed must have had at least two years' experience as a teacher or superintendent, and be a teacher or supervisor in the public schools of the county school district or of an exempted village school district. Should he remove from the county during his term, his office thereby shall be vacated and his successor appointed."

By this section it is provided that the county board of school examiners shall be composed of the county superintendent, one district superintendent and one other competent teacher. That is to say, the third member is hereby required to be a competent teacher other than the county superintendent or a district superintendent, as held in opinion No. 679 of this department, rendered to Hon. Addison P. Minshall, prosecuting attorney of Ross county, found at page 1388 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915.

Section 4740 G. C., 106 O. L. 439, to which reference is made in your first question, provides as follows:

"Any village or rural school district or union of school districts for high school purposes which maintains a first grade high school and which employs a superintendent shall upon application of the county board of education before September 10, 1915, or before June 1st of any year thereafter, be continued as a separate district under the direct supervision of the county superintendent. Such district shall continue to be under the direct supervision of the county superintendent until the board of education of such district by resolution shall petition to become a part of a supervision district of the county school district. Such superintendents shall perform all the duties prescribed by law for a district superintendent, but shall teach such part of each day as the board of education of the district or districts may direct. Such districts shall receive no state aid for the payment of the salaries of their superintendents, and the salaries shall be paid by the boards employing such superintendents."

It will be first noted that the village or school district, or union of school districts, hereby continued for supervision purposes, separate from the supervision districts of the county school district established as required by law, is to be under the direct supervision of the county superintendent, and that the superintendent therein referred to as being employed is not a district superintendent and could not, therefore, qualify as such under section 7811 G. C., supra, for appointment as a member of the county board of school examiners, as held in opinion No. 679 of this department, heretofore referred to. If, then, the superintendent employed under section 4740 G. C. may be a member of the county board of school examiners, it must be as a competent teacher.

It will be further observed that the superintendent employed by the board of education, reference to whom is made in section 4740 G. C., is required thereby to teach such part of each day as the board of education may direct, so that notwithstanding the requirement that he shall perform all the duties prescribed by law for a district superintendent, he must, of necessity, be a competent teacher. If, then, such superintendent shall have had at least two years' experience as teacher or superintendent, and teaches a substantial part of each day, pursuant to the direction of the board of education, in the schools of which he is superintendent, he would then be a competent teacher within the terms of section 7811 G. C., supra, and eligible to appointment as a member of the county board of school examiners as a teacher.

I am of the opinion, in answer to your first question, that a superintendent employed in any village or rural school district, or union of school districts, for high school purposes, which maintains a first grade high school, who teaches a substantial part of his time in such school, if possessed of all the other requisite qualifications, may be appointed, as a teacher, a member of the county board of school examiners.

Section 4688 G. C., 104 O. L. 133, to which reference is made in your second inquiry, provides as follows:

> "The board of education of any village school district containing a village which according to the last federal census had a population of three thousand or more, may decide by a majority vote of the full membership thereof not to become a part of the county school district. Such village district by notifying the county board of education of such decision before the third Saturday of July, 1914, shall be exempt from the supervision of the board."

While the village here referred to is exempted from the supervision of the county board of education, it is not thereby constituted a separate supervision district such as is under the supervision of a district superintendent, as referred to in section 7811 G. C., supra. The superintendent of the schools of such exempted village may not, therefore, be appointed a member of the county board of school examiners as a district superintendent. Neither would such superintendent be, in my opinion, a teacher within the meaning of the terms of section 7811 G. C., and would not therefore be eligible, as a teacher, to appointment as county school examiner.

Your third question necessitates a reference to the provisions of sections 7813 and 7814 G. C., prior to the amendment thereof in 104 O. L. 100. Prior to said amendment the term of one of the members of the county board, under section 7813 G. C., was three years and it was therein provided that the term of one of the examiners should expire on the 31st day of August of each year. No change was made in section 7814 G. C. by the amendment referred to except to change the appointing power from the probate judge of the county to the county board of education. By force of the provisions of the above mentioned section, there was at the time of the taking effect of the amendments thereof a board of school examiners, the term of one of whom expired August 31, 1914, and he was, by virtue of section 7811 G. C., as amended, superseded by the county superintendent; and one member whose term expired August 3, 1915, whose successor was required to be appointed for a term of two years ending August 31, 1917. The term of the third member of the old board will expire August 31, 1916, the successor of whom should be appointed for a term of two years ending August 31, 1918.

Sections 7813 and 7814 G. C., 104 O. L. 102-3, provide as follows:

> "Sec. 7813. The term of office of such appointive school examiners shall be two years. The term of one of the examiners shall expire on the thirty-first day of August, each year. The county board of education shall revoke the appointment of any examiner, upon satisfactory proof that he is inefficient, intemperate, negligent, guilty of immoral conduct, or that he is using his office for personal or private gain.
> "Sec. 7814. When a vacancy occurs in the board, whether from expiration of the term of office, refusal to serve, or other cause, the county board of education promptly shall fill it by appointment for the full or unexpired term and within ten days, report this to the superintendent of public instruction, together with the names of the other members of the board and the date of the expiration of their several terms of office."

If for any reason a vacancy has occurred in the term of the examiner whose term began September 1, 1915, the term of the person appointed to fill such vacancy will not expire until August 31, 1917, and his successor cannot, therefore, be appointed this year. So that it appears that the assumption that the terms of two of the examiners will expire August 31, 1916, is based on a misconception of the law.

Since receiving your inquiry, it is learned that your third question is based upon the following state of facts: At the time section 7811 G. C., 104 O. L. 100, went into effect, the county board of school examiners of a certain county consisted of E., B. and H., whose terms of office expired on August 31, 1914, 1915 and 1916, respectively. B. was chosen county superintendent in 1914, and E., whose term then expired, was reappointed as a member of the county board of school examiners, whereupon it was apparently assumed that E., who was reappointed at the expiration of his regular term in 1914, was appointed for a term of two years ending August 31, 1916.

When B., whose term of office would have expired August 31, 1915, was chosen county superintendent in 1914, he became ex officio member of the county board of school examiners by operation of law, with his tenure as examiner dependent solely upon his tenure as county superintendent, and succeeded E., whose term expired that year. There then became a vacancy in the unexpired term which B. had theretofore held ending August 31, 1915, as above stated. It was then the duty of the county board of education in 1914 to choose a member of the county board of school examiners to fill the vacancy in the unexpired term of B., ending in 1915. For this unexpired term E. was appointed for the reason that it was the only term for which the county board of education had authority then to make an appointment. It then became the duty of the county board of education, in 1915, to appoint a successor to E., whose term expired on the 31st day of August of that year, for a term of two years ending August 31, 1917. This, as I understand, was not done and no successor to E. has as yet been appointed by the county board of education. Since the county board of education has thus far failed to make an appointment for the term beginning September 1, 1915, E. was entitled to hold over under the provisions of section 8 G. C., as follows:

> "A person holding an office of public trust shall continue therein until his successor is elected or appointed and qualified, unless otherwise provided in the constitution or laws."

E. is not, however, now holding a regular term which will expire at any definite time. He may hold only until his successor is appointed and qualified. At the expiration of his term on August 31, 1915, it became the duty of the county board of education, by virtue of section 7814 G. C., supra, to appoint his successor for a term of two years ending August 31, 1917, and that the duty of the board continues. So, it is now the duty of the county board of education to appoint a successor to E. for the unexpired term ending on the date last mentioned.

In answer to your fourth inquiry, it will be observed that it is specifically required by section 7811 G. C., supra, that one examiner shall be the county superintendent, one a district superintendent and one a competent teacher with certain specified qualifications. From this it is clear that where there are incumbents of any two of the above named classes serving, no one is eligible to appointment or to serve in the other place on the county board of school examiners, except a person of the other enumerated class. It is the palpable intent that neither two teachers nor two district superintendents may be members of the county board of school examiners at the same time. If, then, a district superintendent ceases to be such, he can no longer serve as an examiner. By reason of his ineligibility, he cannot then qualify as a teacher for, of necessity, there is already one teacher on the board and that teacher may not be ousted by reason of the change or lack of qualification of either member as district superintendent. For the same reason a teacher who becomes a district superintendent is ineligible longer to serve as an examiner so long as there is already one district superintendent on the county board of school examiners.

From the answer to your first inquiry it follows that if a district superintendent becomes a superintendent of schools, employed under section 4740 G. C., he would cease to be a district superintendent and therefore ineligible as examiner. If a teacher who is examiner is employed as a superintendent of schools under section 4740 G. C., if a substantial part of each day is employed in teaching, as directed by the board of education, he continues to be a teacher and therefore may continue to serve as member of the county board of school examiners as a teacher.

From the answer to your first question it also follows, in answer to your fifth question, that if a superintendent of schools employed under section 4740 G. C. is a member of the county board of examiners, whose term expires August 31, 1917, a district superintendent only may be appointed as member of the county board of school examiners for the term beginning September 1, 1916.

FIDELITY OR INDEMNITY INSURANCE COMPANY—MUST HAVE AUTHORIZED PAID UP CAPITAL STOCK OF NOT LESS THAN $250,000 TO QUALIFY AS SURETY UNDER PROVISIONS OF SECTION 2723 G. C.

The provisions of section 2723 G. C. requires that a fidelity or indemnity insurance company shall have an authorized paid up capital stock of not less than $250,000 to qualify as a surety on the undertaking therein named.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of August 3, 1916, submitting the following inquiry:

> "Can a fidelity or indemnity insurance company which has paid in capital stock of $215,000.00, a reserve of $35,000.00 and surplus amounting to $44,000.00 legally act as surety for a county depositary under provisions of section 2723, General Code?"

Section 2723 G. C., to which you refer, in so far as its provisions apply to your inquiry, is as follows:

> "Such undertaking shall be signed by at least six resident free-holders as sureties or by a fidelity or indemnity insurance company, authorized to do business within the state and having not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars capital."

The undertaking referred to in the foregoing section is the bond to be given by banks or trust companies which have been selected as county depositaries. The requirements of this section in respect to the qualifications of the fidelity or indemnity insurance company which is offered as surety on said undertaking, are, first, that such company is authorized to do business in this state and, secondly, that it has a capital of not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. It is apparent that the answer to your question depends upon what construction shall be given the term "capital" as used in this section. It is ably contended by the representatives of the company involved in your inquiry that the term "capital" as used in said section means the actual estate of the corporation, or, in other words, its assets of every description including not only the sum subscribed and paid in for its capital stock but all gains and profits, investments and reserves and all money and property of every kind and description owned by said corporation. If this contention may be sustained the company in question meets the requirements of the statute. If, however, the term "capital" as used in this section has reference only to the capital stock actually subscribed and paid for and is limited to such capital stock, it is clear that the capital of the company in question, being only two hundred and fifteen thousand dollars, is insufficient to meet the requirements of this section.

Without discussing in detail the arguments advanced aforesaid, it is sufficient to say that I am not disposed to question the contention that in the administration of the common law there is a broad distinction made by the courts between the capital of a corporation and its paid-up capital stock and if in the present instance the section under consideration stood alone these facts would be very persuasive. The legislature, however, has given the term "capital" as applied to the affairs of the corporations named in said section 2723 a definite meaning and this term as applied to the operation and business of said companies has received a statutory construction which in my judgment must control in the interpretation of the section in question.

The insurance companies named in said section 2723 are organized under the provisions of section 9510 G. C. and it is provided in section 9524 G. C. that > "Except as hereinafter provided, no joint stock insurance company shall be organized under this chapter, or permitted to do business in this state with a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, which must be paid up before the company can transact business. But on the payment of twenty-five per cent. of its capital stock, a live stock company may do business."

Under the provisions of this section it is very clear that the capital of said companies as defined by the legislature and as applied by it to the right to operate is limited to the paid up capital stock of such companies, and this section specifically provides that unless the capital therein required shall be in the amount and of the character named, said companies shall not be permitted to do business in this state.

We have, then, in this section, which is the first legislative limitation placed upon the rights of said companies, a clear and definite expression of the legislature in respect to not only what it regards but what it requires as the capital of such companies. Following up further legislative actions we find other regulations imposed on said companies by other statutes. It is provided in section 628 G. C. that:

> "If it appears to the superintendent of insurance upon satisfactory evidence that the assets of an insurance company organized under the laws of this state after deducting therefrom all liabilities including reinsurance, reserve or unearned premium fund, computed according to the laws of this state, are reduced twenty per cent. or more below the capital required by law, he shall require such company to restore such deficiency within such period as he designates in such requisition."

It is further provided in the succeeding section that if the deficiency is more than forty per cent. of the capital required by law, such company shall not issue any new policies or transact any new business until it receives a license from the superintendent of insurance authorizing it to do business.

In both of the aforesaid sections the legislature uses the expression "capital required by law," and clearly distinguishes between "capital required by law" and the assets of such companies. The capital required by law is defined in section 9524, supra. It follows, therefore, that not only does the legislature in said sections 628 and 629 again clearly indicate what it considers shall constitute the capital which shall be the basis upon which such companies may be permitted to operate, but by the further provisions of said section conclusively negatives any contention that the capital required by law may be regarded as including the assets of such corporation. If called upon to interpret the term "capital" as used in any of the statutes hereinbefore noted, no difficulty would be had in limiting the term to the paid up capital stock of the companies in question.

I am of the opinion that the construction thus given the term "capital" under the sections quoted, and the sense in which it is used by the legislature in said sections, must control in the interpretation of said term as used in section 2723 supra. That is to say, the capital required by section 2723 must be held to be the capital required by other sections of our statutory law or, as expressed in those sections, the capital "required by law."

I therefore hold that the company named in your inquiry may not legally become surety on the undertaking in question, and that under the provisions of section 2723 G. C. any fidelity or indemnity insurance company, in order to qualify as surety upon the undertakings specified in said section, must first be authorized to do business in this state and, secondly, must have a paid up capital stock of not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ARE AUTHORIZED TO VACATE ROADS BY PROVISIONS OF CASS HIGHWAY LAW—PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED—LIABILITY OF PETITIONERS.

The county commissioners are authorized by sections 6860 and 6862 G. C., 106 O. L. 574, to vacate roads under the proceedings prescribed for establishment of roads in so far as the same may be applicable.

In case the petition for a road improvement filed pursuant to section 6862 G. C., 106 O. L. 574, is granted, no liability upon the bond given pursuant to section 6863 G. C., 106 O. L. 575, for costs and expenses of the proceedings can arise.

In case the petition is granted and the petitioners are ordered by the commissioners to pay a part of the compensation and damages allowed and the petitioners fail to pay the same by the time fixed therefor, the petitioners then become liable for all costs of the proceedings. In all other cases when the petition is granted, the costs and expenses of the proceedings become a charge against the county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

HON. JOHN M. MARKLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Georgetown, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your request for an opinion under date of July 18, 1916, which request reads as follows:

> "An application has been filed with the county commissioners of Brown county, Ohio, praying for the vacation of a certain road in said county under the provisions of section 3 of the Cass highway act (section 6862 of the General Code of Ohio). A bond has also been given by the petitioners, under the provisions of section 4 of said act (section 6863 General Code of Ohio), conditioned that the petitioners will pay into the treasury of the county the costs and expenses incurred in the proceedings in case the prayer of such petition be not granted.
> "There seems to be no provision in chapter I of the Cass highway act to adjudge the costs against the petitioners in case the prayer of the petition is granted. In the application for an improvement, establishment, etc., of a road in case there are any damages or compensation, the commissioners seem to be authorized to require the petitioners to pay any or all of such damages or compensation. The question is this: In case the commissioners grant the prayer of this petition for the vacation of said road, may they require the petitioners to pay the costs of advertising, etc., in connection with said petition, or will the county be required to pay the same."

A consideration of the question submitted by you involves an examination of the first nineteen sections of the Cass highway law, being sections 6860 to 6878 G. C., inclusive. In view of the language used in these sections, considerable doubt has arisen as to whether county commissioners are authorized to vacate roads, and while you do not inquire as to this matter, I deem it proper to consider the same before answering the specific question submitted by you.

Section 6860 G. C. reads as follows:

"The county commissioners shall have power to locate, establish, alter, widen, straighten, vacate or change the direction of roads as hereinafter provided. This power extends to all roads within the county, except the intercounty and main market roads."

Section 6861 G. C., relates to the width of roads to be hereafter established, and section 6862 G. C. reads as follows:

Applications to locate, establish, alter, widen, straighten, vacate or change the direction of a public road, shall be made by petition to the county commissioners signed by at least twelve freeholders of the county residing in the vicinity of the proposed improvement, which petition shall set forth the route and termini of the road, or part thereof to be located, established, or vacated, or the particular manner in which such road is to be altered, widened, straightened, or the direction thereof changed.

"When such road or proposed road lies wholly within any school district and is necessary for the convenience and welfare of the pupils in such district, the board of education of such district may, by resolution, petition for such road."

It will be noted that section 6860 G. C. provides, among other things, that the county commissioners shall have power to vacate roads and that section 6862 G. C. provides that applications to vacate a public road shall be made by petition to the county commissioners. The next fifteen sections of chapter I of the Cass highway law contain no reference whatever to the vacation of roads, except that found in section 6869 G. C., 106 O. L. 576, being section 10 of the Cass law.

Section 6863 G. C. provides that after "such" petition is filed the commissioners shall, within ten days, consider the same and shall fix a date when they shall view the proposed "improvement" and also a date for a final hearing thereon. Under the provisions of this section the county commissioners must require the petitioners to give a bond conditioned that they will pay to the county the costs and expenses incurred in the proceedings for "such improvement" in case the prayer of the petition is not granted. Section 6864 G. C. provides for a notice to be published in a newspaper, which notice, in addition to other matter, shall state briefly the object and prayer of the petition for "such improvement." Section 6865 G. C. provides, among other things, that if the commissioners, after the view of "said proposed improvement," consider "such improvement" of sufficient public importance, they shall instruct the county surveyor to make a plat and survey of the same, and under this section the county surveyor must report in writing, giving his opinion either for or against the granting of "such proposed improvement." The surveyor's report must be accompanied with a statement of the estimated compensation and damages due each person whose land is to be taken if the "proposed improvement" is established, and shall also state the width to which "said improvement" shall be open. Under section 6866 G. C., the commissioners must find that "said improvement" will serve the public convenience and welfare before they are authorized to grant the same. Under section 6867 G. C. the county commissioners may grant the "improvement" prayed for in the petition, or they may grant "said improvement" with changes and modifications. Section 6868 G. C. relates to the payment of compensation and damages and contains frequent references to the "improvement." Section 6869 G. C. reads as follows:

> "When an improvement is ordered established on the final hearing thereon, the county commissioners shall cause a record of the proceedings including the plat and survey of said proposed improvement to be entered in the proper road records of the county, provided, however, that in case of an appeal to the probate court, no record of said improvement shall be made until the appeal shall have been finally disposed of. Said commissioners shall then cause said road to be opened up as established, and such road shall thenceforth be considered a public road and shall be kept open, maintained and improved as provided by law, and that part of the road, if any, made unnecessary by any change or alteration therein shall be ordered vacated. No road shall be opened up, however, until all compensation and damages allowed are paid. A county road or part thereof which remains unopened for seven years after the order establishing it was made or authority granted for opening it, shall be vacated and the right to build it pursuant to the establishment in the original proceedings therefor shall be thereafter forever barred.

Sections 6870 to 6873 G. C., inclusive, relate to the procedure where there are claims for compensation and damages and contain numerous references to the "improvement," and this is also true of sections 6874 to 6877 G. C., inclusive, which sections are applicable when the "improvement" petitioned for is along or upon a county line or across a county line. Section 6878 G. C. contains a further reference to the vacation of roads and reads as follows:

> "The commissioners of any county or any joint board of commissioners of two or more counties, at a meeting had for that purpose, may by resolution declare by unanimous vote their intention to locate, establish, alter, widen, straighten, vacate or change the direction of any road, and such notice shall thereupon be given as is provided for upon the filing of a petition for such improvement and like proceedings shall be had by such commissioners or joint board thereof as in the case of the filing of a petition before them asking for such improvement."

It will thus be seen that while the legislature has declared that the county commisioners shall have power to vacate roads, that applications to vacate a public road shall be made by petition to the county commissioners, and that the commissioners of any county or any joint board of commissioners of two or more counties may, by resolution, declare by unanimous vote their intention to vacate any road, in which case like proceedings shall be had as in the case of the filing of a petition, yet the machinery provided by the related sections is specificly designed for use in the location or establishment of roads and does not seem to be suitable for use in the vacation of roads, and under section 6869 G. C., after taking final action on the petition, the express duty is enjoined on the commissioners of causing to be opened up as established the road petitioned for, which road shall thenceforth be considered a public road and shall be kept open, maintained and improved as provided by law. In view, however, of the clear and unambiguous language of sections 6860 and 6862 G. C., it is my view that county commissioners are authorized to vacate roads, that the word "improvement," occurring in sections 6862 to 6878 G. C., inclusive, must, where the sense so requires, be held to include anything that may be petitioned for under authority of section 6862 G. C., and that where the petition is for the vacation of a road, the general procedure outlined in the sections in question is to be followed, but the final order of the commissioners, instead of being for the establishment of a proposed improvement and for the opening up of the road so established, will be that an existing road shall be vacated and shall not thenceforth be considered or regarded as a public road.

The specific question submitted by you is to be answered by reference to section 6863 G. C., which relates to the terms of the bond to be given by the petitioners, the condition of the bond being that the petitioners asking for the improvement will pay into the treasury of the county the costs and expenses incurred in the proceedings for the improvement in case the prayer of the petition be not granted. Under a bond so conditioned no liability could arise where the prayer of the petition is granted. Under section 6868 G. C. the commissioners may order the compensation and damages paid out of the county treasury or they may order the same, or such part thereof as they deem reasonable and just, paid by the petitioners and the balance, if any, out of the county treasury. This section further provides that when a portion of the compensation and damages is ordered paid by the petitioners, in case of failure to pay the same by the time fixed by the county commissioners, the petitioners shall be liable for all the costs of said proceedings and the commissioners may, at their option, abandon the improvement.

In view of the foregoing provisions I advise you that where a petition for the vacation of a road is filed, acted upon and refused, the costs and expenses must be paid by the petitioners or their sureties. Where the petition is granted, the petitioners and their sureties are relieved from liability and the costs and expenses become a charge against the county. In the case of a vacation of a road, no question of compensation can arise, the question of damages may arise and in proper cases damages may be allowed. In such case if the damages or any part thereof are by the county commissioners ordered paid by the petitioners and the petitioners fail to make payment within the time fixed by the county commissioners, such petitioners become liable for all the costs of the proceedings but their liability is created by the statute and does not arise from the giving of a bond, and under such circumstances their sureties would not be liable for the costs and expenses of the proceedings.

I believe the above constitutes a complete answer to the question submitted by you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—REDPATH CHAUTAQUAS COMPANY OF OHIO—LIABILITY TO SAID ACT, ESPECIALLY SO-CALLED "TALENT" USED IN ITS BUSINESS.

"Talent" so-called, used by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio in the conduct of its business may be divided into four classes, the first three classes of which are "talent" under contract with and in the service of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, a corporation of the state of Massachusetts. This "talent" is used by the Ohio company for varying periods either consecutive or intermittent for special engagements but remains under contract with the Massachusetts corporation.

The only control the Ohio company has over the talent is as to the time and place of rendering the service.

Such "talent" are not in the service of the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio as comprehended by the workmen's compensation law and amounts paid to them for services are not to be taken into consideration in computing the amount of premium to be paid into the state insurance fund by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio.

Of the fourth class of talent used by the Redpath Chautauquas Company the salaries of such as are employed continuously for a regular period should be taken into account in computing the amount of premium to be paid, such talent being employed direct by the Ohio company as distinguished from the first three classes employed by the Redpath Lyceum Bureau.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

> "I am enclosing herewith letter from Messrs. Webber, McCoy and Jones, attorneys at law, report of payroll Auditor Robert Naylor, and a copy of an opinion prepared by Mr. N. G. White, an employe of this department, relative to including in the payroll report of the Redpath Chautauqua Company the amounts paid to persons employed by the chautauqua company to deliver addresses and lectures and to furnish amusement and entertainment at chautauquas conducted by said company.
> "The Redpath Chautauquas Company contend that such persons, whom they class as 'talent,' should not be included in the payroll reports made to this commission.
> "We would be glad to have your opinion as to whether such 'talent' are 'employes,' 'workmen' or 'operatives' as defined in section 14 of the workmen's compensation act, General Code section 1465-61."

With your letter you enclose a communication from Messrs. Webber, McCoy and Jones, attorneys representing the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, together with a blank form of contract of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, which lyceum bureau is a Massachusetts corporation with offices in Boston, New York and Chicago.

At the outset it may be stated that no question is raised as to the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio being subject to the workmen's compensation law, which is admitted by your commission, that company admittedly having five or more workmen or operatives regularly employed in the various lines of work in connection with the operation of the Redpath Chautauquas Company.

The question presented by your enquiry is as to whether or not the salaries paid for the "talent" used by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio in carrying on its chautauqua work are to be considered in determining the amount of premium to be paid by the Redpath Chautauquas Company under the provisions of the workmen's compensation law.

Paragraph 2 of section 13 of the workmen's compensation law, section 1465-60 of the General Code (103 O. L. 72), which defines "employers," is as follows:

> "Every person, firm and private corporation, including any public service corporation, that has in service five or more workmen or operatives regularly in the same business or in or about the same establishment under any contract of hire, express or implied, oral or written."

The term "employe, workman and operative" as used in the act is defined in section 1465-61, paragraph 2, as follows:

> "Every person in the service of any person, firm or private corporation, including any public service corporation employing five or more workmen or operatives regularly in the same business or in or about the same establishment under any contract of hire, express or implied, oral or written, including aliens and also including minors who are legally permitted to work for hire under the laws of the state but not including any person whose employment is but casual or not in the usual course of trade, business, profession or occupation of his employer."

It will be noted from the sections quoted above that the requirement necessary to bring an employer within the operations of the workmen's compensation law is that he must employ five or more workmen or operatives regularly in the same business and that in making up that requirement persons casually employed are not to be considered.

The information submitted by your payroll auditor relative to the matter in hand being somewhat vague and indefinite, further investigation has been made by this office for the purpose of ascertaining the facts surrounding the operation of the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio with the result that it has been found that the so-called "talent" used by the chautauquas may be divided into four classes, namely:

1st. Such talent as is known as list talent, or what may be described as talent under continuous contract with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, the Massachusetts corporation.

2nd. Talent in the nature of musical organizations, opera companies, etc., under contract with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, provided by a leader or manager, who, under special contract with the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, provides an attraction to fill engagements made by the Redpath Chautauquas Company.

3rd. Talent composed principally of lectures under contract with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau who engage in chautauqua work casually as an incident to their regular employment and generally during vacation periods.

4th. Talent made up of persons or attractions secured by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio direct, i. e., without resorting to the use of persons or attractions under contract with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau. This talent is made up of individuals hired especially or outside of attractions supplied by a manager or leader as the case may be, and generally speaking, contracts referred by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio for the purpose of filling special engagements or as added attractions to the regular chautauqua for which talent is secured from the Redpath Lyceum Bureau.

The four classes of talent referred to above make up the line of attractions used by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio in its operation. The Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, while an organization separate and distinct from the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, secures all of the first three classes of its attractions referred to through the Lyceum Bureau as such talent being under contract with the Lyceum Bureau for services for a definite time or at least for not less than a specified number of weeks or months. In other words, the time and services of the talent referred to are at the command of and subject to the orders of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau. The Redpath Lyceum Bureau is responsible to the talent for the payment of the sum contracted to be paid for services according to the particular terms of the contract. In the operation of its business affairs the Redpath Lyceum Bureau co-operates with the various chautauqua companies throughout the country, of which the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio is one, by assigning for specified times such of its attractions as may be agreed upon for particular territory. While, as stated before, the talent is under contract with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau and must look to it for payment for services, in practical operation for reasons of convenience payment for services rendered is at times made direct to the talent by local committees or by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, as the case may be, but all of such payments are made pursuant to the contract existing between the talent and the Redpath Lyceum Bureau according to such terms as may be agreed upon. The services rendered by the talent contracted for by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, so far as I have been able to ascertain, are of such a nature as to be wholly outside of the control of the chautauquas company, except insofar as the time and place of rendering such services may be designated. In fact it is possible under the arrangements made between the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, and the so-called talent that one person or attraction may be working one day for the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, and the next day under a separate contract for another chautauqua company in other territory, returning the following day to the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio to fill another engagement, but at all times such talent or attraction sustains uninterrupted contractual relations with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau referred to above.

In practice the talent of the first three classes referred to as used by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio is part of the organization of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau loaned or assigned to the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio for a particular purpose under a separate contract and at no time during the continuation of the contract with the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio does the contractual relation existing between the talent and the Redpath Lyceum Bureau come to an end.

The purpose of the workmen's compensation law is to compensate injured employes and the dependents of killed employes, so that it must follow that by the provisions of the law contained in section 1465-61, paragraph 2, G. C., supra, "every person in the service of any person" is meant every person in the service as an employe of any person.

Waiving the question of the status of talent as independent contractors, it is my opinion that talent of the first three classes referred to as used by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio under the conditions stipulated are not to be considered as employes of the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, and their salaries or compensation are not to be taken into consideration in computing the amount of premium to be paid by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio under the workmen's compensation law.

As to the fourth class enumerated differentiation may be made between those persons employed direct by the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio for a regular or continuous period and those persons only casually employed for special engagements, it being my opinion proper to include the salaries of the first branch of the fourth class referred to as being employes of the Redpath Chautauquas Company direct and independent of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, which controls the first three classes of talent. Taking the view that the first three classes of talent are not employes of the Redpath Chautauquas Company of Ohio, it is wholly immaterial whether they are workmen or operatives as defined in section 14 of the Workmen's Compensation Law, supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JUSTICE OF PEACE—SPEEDING OF AUTOMOBILES—WHEN PLEA OF GUILTY TO CHARGE OF VIOLATING SECTION 12604 G. C. IS MADE BEFORE JUSTICE OF PEACE HE IS WITHOUT JURISDICTION TO RENDER FINAL JUDGMENT—EXCEPTION—HOW FINES ILLEGALLY PAID UNDER SECTION 12604 G. C. CAN BE RECOVERED.

When a plea of guilty is made before a justice of the peace to a charge of violating the provisions of section 12604 G. C., said justice is without jurisdiction to render a final judgment therein unless the defendant in a writing subscribed by him waives the right of trial by jury and submits to be tried by said justice as provided by section 13511 G. C. The provisions of section 13510 G. C. in respect to the jurisdiction conferred upon justices in cases where a complaint is filed by an injured party are not applicable to prosecutions under said section 12604, supra, for the reason that violations of said last named section are not in the class of misdemeanors in the commission of which there may be an injured party as contemplated by said section 13510, supra.

When fines are collected by a justice of the peace under section 12604 G. C. without having jurisdiction as above defined, and are paid by said justice into the county treasury, the parties so paying said fines are the only persons who may recover said money from said treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 19, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of August 14, 1916, as follows:

> "1st—Upon a plea of guilty may a justice of the peace assess a fine and enforce the collection thereof against a person charged with violating the provisions of section 12604 G. C.? (See Secs. 12626 to 12628 and Secs. 13510 and 13511 G. C., and O. S. Vol. 51 page 24.)
> "2nd—If he has no such authority what finding should be made relative to fines that have thus been collected and paid into the county treasury and those which yet remain in the hands of the justice?"

Section 12604 G. C. provides the maximum rate of speed at which a motor cycle or motor vehicle shall be operated in various sections of a municipality and on roads outside thereof, and provides a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for the first offense and not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for a second violation of the rate of speed so fixed.

Section 13423 G. C., as amended 103 O. L. 539, specifies certain criminal matters in which justices of the peace, police judges and mayors of cities and villages have final jurisdiction within their respective counties.

It is provided in section 1464 G. C. that justices of the peace shall have final jurisdiction in matters involving a violation of the fish and game laws.

The offense of operating a motor cycle or motor vehicle at a greater speed than that provided by section 12604 supra is not included in the cases specified in either section 13423 supra or section 1464 supra, nor in any other section conferring final jurisdiction upon justices of the peace.

The jurisdiction conferred upon a justice of the peace to render final judgment in other cases of misdemeanor is found in sections 13510 and 13511 G. C. It is provided in the former section that when a person charged with a misdemeanor upon complaint of the party injured enters a plea of guilty thereto a magistrate shall sentence him to such punishment as he may deem proper; but if the complaint is not made by the party injured and the accused pleads guilty, such magistrate shall require the accused to enter into a recognizance to appear at the proper court, as is provided when there is no plea of guilty.

What is meant in this section by the term "party injured" is defined by the court in the case of Hanaghan v. State, 51 O. S. page 24, wherein the court said:

> "If every citizen of the state, or member of the community where the offense is committed, is included in those descriptive words, this proceeding in error is without merit. But it is evident they were not used in the statute in that sense. They refer, we think, to the person who suffers some particular injury from the commission of the offense, either in his person, property, or reputation, as distinguished from that which results to the general public, or local community."

It is apparent that the offense of driving a motor vehicle at an unlawful rate of speed is not in the class of misdemeanors in the commission of which there may be an "injured party" in the sense as above defined by the supreme court. It follows, therefore, that when a complaint is made under this section before a justice of the peace, he has no jurisdiction upon a plea of guilty to impose the penalty of the law, but is required, as is provided in said section 13510, supra, to order the defendant to enter into a recognizance for his appearance at another court, unless said defendant, upon entering his plea of guilty, should in writing waive the right of a trial by jury and submit to be tried by the magistrate, as provided in section 13511 G. C.

Without quoting in full the provisions of said last named section, it is sufficient to say that in cases of misdemeanor it permits the accused to waive, in a writing subscribed by him and filed before or during the examination, the right of trial by jury and to submit to be tried by the magistrate. When the accused complies with these provisions of said section 13511, the justice of the peace is invested with jurisdiction to render final judgment.

The foregoing observations furnish the answer to your first inquiry.

You then ask if a justice has no authority to render final judgment and assess a fine under the provisions of section 12604 G. C., what finding should be made relative to fines that have been collected and paid into the county treasury and those which yet remain in the hands of the justice.

In answer to this inquiry I must advise that if any fines have been collected in cases wherein the facts, as above set forth, were not present to confer jurisdiction upon a justice of the peace and such fines have been turned into the county treasury, they should remain there unless the party from whom they were collected feels impelled to complain. The money so paid by the justices into the county treasury is not public money, within the contemplation of section 286 G. C., as amended in 106 O. L. 507, in that it requires any findings by your examiners. If fines have been paid into the county treasury, which were collected under said section 12604 supra, without authority of law, the parties from whom such fines were collected must proceed to recover the same, and they are the only persons who may recover the same.

As to such fines as have not yet been turned into the county treasury by the justice but still remain in his possession, the justice should proceed to return said money to the parties entitled to the same and should then proceed in the case according to law and recognize the defendants to the proper court.

Reference is also made in your inquiry to the provisions of sections 12626 and 12628 G. C. These sections provide as follows:

> "Sec. 16226. A person taken into custody, because of the violation of any provision of this subdivision of this chapter, shall forthwith be taken before a magistrate or justice of the peace in a city, village or county, and be entitled to an immediate hearing. If such hearing cannot be had, he shall be released from custody on giving his personal undertaking to appear in answer for such violation at such time or place as shall then be indicated, secured by a deposit of a sum equal to the maximum fine for the offense with which he is charged; or, in lieu thereof, if he be the owner, by leaving the motor vehicle. If the person so taken is not the owner, he can leave the motor vehicle with a written consent given at the time by the owner, who must be present, with such judicial officer.
> "Sec. 12627. If a judicial officer is not accessible, the accused under the next preceding section shall forthwith be released from custody by giving his name and address to the officer making the arrest and depositing with such officer a sum equal to the maximum fine for the offense for which such arrest is made or instead, if he is the owner, by leaving the motor vehicle. If the accused is not the owner, he can leave the motor vehicle with a written consent given at the time by the owner who must be present.
> "Sec. 12628. The officer making the arrest as provided in section twelve thousand six hundred and twenty-six, shall give a receipt in writing for such sum or vehicle deposited and notify such person to appear before the most accessible magistrate, naming him, specifying the date, place and hour. In case such undertaking with security or deposit shall not be made by an owner or other person taken into custody, the provisions of law in reference to bail in cases of misdemeanor shall apply."

Without discussing the provisions of these sections in detail it is sufficient to say that while they may indicate an intention on the part of the legislature to confer upon magistrates or justices of the peace final jurisdiction to hear and dispose of complaints under said section 12604 supra, yet in my judgment they are not sufficient to accomplish that purpose and do not confer such final jurisdiction.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—EXCAVATION OF MATERIALS FOR STREET IMPROVEMENT—INTERPRETATION OF CONTRACT MADE BY MUNICIPALITY AND CONTRACTOR FOR DISPOSING AND HAULING AWAY DIRT SO EXCAVATED.

When a municipality reserves all material excavated from a street in the course of its improvement and the contract provides that said material shall be placed upon the premises of abutting lot owners and on intersecting streets, which provision of the contract was imposed upon the contractor as a part of his duty under said contract, and thereafter said lot owners or other property owners pay said contractor for hauling dirt excavated from said street to their premises, the only claim said municipality may have against the parties, other than abutting lot owners, is the value of the material so hauled.

If said material was hauled by said contractors without the knowledge or direction of the municipality and in violation of the provisions of said contract, both the contractor and the person receiving such material, if he was not an abutting lot owner, may be held to account to the municipality for its value if it has any value.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 22, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of July 14, 1916, as follows:

"During the course of the Springfield street improvement, sundry payments were made to the contractors by property owners within the village for earth, stone, or other excavated materials or for the delivery of the same to such points as may have been designated by said property owners.

"One instance of same is that of $50.00 paid by the St. Paris village school district, for which a bill was submitted by the contractors, for '500 loads of dirt hauled from Springfield street to school yard.'

"In other cases of such payments made by property owners within the village, checks were submitted showing said payments were made 'for dirt' made available by reason of street improvement excavation; receipts were exhibited, given by the agent of the contractors, acknowledging payments 'for dirt'; and in other instances wherein no receipts are held and purpose of payment is not written upon the face of the check made to the contractors, makers thereof have stated that such payments were made for stone or dirt; and finally in certain cases wherein no receipts were given or none preserved, and payments made to contractors in currency, statements were made under oath, by property owners that said payments were made for earth from the said street excavation.

"Doubt was expressed in certain cases whether such payments to contractors have been made for earth and excavated material, or for services of the contractors in delivering same to their premises as designated.

"Question 1. Under contract provisions (see specifications, page 3 of the enclosed data) does title to any and all excavated materials vest in the corporation in the sense that payments as described above made to contractors are recoverable to the village treasury?

"Question 2. Under said contract, is the contractor entitled to receive and retain compensation from property owners for the delivery of such materials to certain designated points, or must such delivery be considered only a proper disposition of the same by direction of the engineer as expressly provided by the terms of the contract."

The provisions of the contract to which you refer in your foregoing inquiries are as follows:

> "The council reserves the right to cross walk stones or paving block, curb stones, gravel, crushed stone, sewer pipe, earth or other valuable material after it has been taken up by the contractor who is to use care in handling the same so as not to break or waste them and shall carefully and neatly pile them at such points on intersecting streets or abutting lots as the engineer may direct."

By the foregoing provisions of said contract title to all the material described therein taken up and excavated by said contractors from said street, is retained by the municipality. Any appropriation of said material by the contractors in violation of the terms of said contract, or by the contractors and private parties, other than abutting lot owners, would render the party so appropriating said material liable to account to said municipality for the value thereof. If the contractors or any property owner aforesaid therefore appropriated any dirt or other material excavated by the contractors and the latter hauled it upon the property of said individuals, both the contractors and said individuals receiving said dirt must account to the municipality for its value, if it has any value. This value might or might not be the amount received by the contractors from said individuals for hauling said material. However, what the individuals saw fit to pay and what the contractors agreed to accept under such circumstances is no concern of the municipality. The money thus received by the contractors from said individuals is not public money within the meaning of section 286 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 509, and does not represent the measure of loss to the municipality. The responsibility, under such circumstances, of the contractors and said property owners arises from a misappropriation of public property and the measure of such responsibility is the value of the property so taken.

It follows, therefore, that if the contractors hauled material upon abutting lots under the direction of the engineer and the owners of said lots, either voluntarily or by inducement of the contractors, paid the latter for such hauling, such transaction is solely one for adjustment between said lot owners and contractors, and one in which the village has no interest. Upon the other hand if material excavated by the contractors was taken by them without the knowledge of the municipality and without any direction by the engineer and placed upon the property of individual owners, other than abutting owners, the latter and the contractors must be held liable to compensate the municipality for the value of such material so taken.

In addition to the facts submitted in your inquiry I have learned from other sources that the engineer in charge of such improvement for the municipality, and under the provisions of the contract above quoted, ordered and directed the contractors to place and pile the material so excavated either upon abutting lots or upon intersecting streets at points within two hundred feet of the street under improvement. This direction of the engineer appears to be in accordance with the usual practice of engineers under such circumstances. It is not understood that the provisions of the contract above quoted and like provisions in other contracts of a similar character contemplate that the material excavated shall be hauled from the improvement to a point at any great distance therefrom. The purpose of this provision of the contract is to take care of at least a part of the material so excavated temporarily so that it may thereafter be removed to such points or places as the municipality may determine to be proper. The requirement in said contract that the contractors "shall carefully and neatly pile" indicates that it was not intended that such disposition should be a permanent one.

It is further claimed in reference to the actual facts involved in the improvement in question that great difficulty was experienced by the municipality in disposing of the material excavated from said Springfield street, and that the village was unable to procure the necessary teams to remove said material, after the same had been placed upon intersecting streets under the direction of the engineer, to the points of its final disposition. It is therefore a serious question to be considered, if the above facts are true, whether, in the event said contractors disposed of said material in an unauthorized manner, it can be shown that the village actually sustained any loss thereby, or in other words, whether such material was of any value to the village under the surrounding circumstances of the case.

Referring now to your first inquiry: In view of the above considerations I must advise that no payments such as described in your inquiry are recoverable from the contractors by the village, but if there was an unlawful appropriation of any material as above described by the contractors and private property owners, other than abutting owners, the village is entitled to recover from them the value of the material so appropriated.

In answer to your second inquiry, in view of what has already been said, the payment by property owners to the contractors for the hauling of such material is a matter for adjustment between them and must depend, as between them, upon the particular circumstances of each case.

In order that my conclusions in this matter may be perfectly plain I hold:

1. If any material, paid for by either private individuals or the school district named in your inquiry, was hauled by order of the engineer under the provisions of the contract, the transaction is one for adjustment between the parties so paying said contractors and the contractors.

2. If material was hauled by said contractors without the knowledge or direction of the engineer in charge and in violation of the provisions of said contract, both the contractors and the person receiving such material, if he was not an abutting lot owner, may be held to account to the municipality for its value, if it has any value.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

AMERICAN FLAG ON HANDKERCHIEFS—MANUFACTURE FOR SALE OR HAVING SAME IN POSSESSION FOR PURPOSE OF SALE—VIOLATION OF SECTION 12396 G. C.

The manufacture for sale, or the having in possession for the purpose of sale, of handkerchiefs on which is placed the American flag, is a violation of section 12396 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 22, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—You have requested my opinion regarding sections 12396, 12397 and 12398 G. C., which prohibit certain uses of the flag of the United States or the state of Ohio. The particular state of facts in which I understand you are interested is expressed in two paragraphs of a letter from Wilson Bros., Chicago, Ill., as follows:

> "We have been offering for sale handkerchiefs with different kinds of embroidery, using the American flag in connection with designs representing ships, guns, etc., and in some instances with the word 'preparedness' under the flag.
> "These handkerchiefs were not in any way to be used as advertisements."

Section 12396 G. C. provides as follows:

> "Whoever prints, paints or places a word, figure, mark, picture or design, upon a flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States, or the state of Ohio, or causes it to be done, or exposes, or causes to be exposed, such flag, standard, color or ensign upon which is printed, painted or placed, or to which is attached or appended a word, figure, mark, picture or design, or manufactures or has in possession an article of merchandise upon which is placed or attached a representation of such flag, standard, color or ensign, or publicly mutilates, defiles, defaces or casts contempt upon such flag, standard, color or ensign, shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both."

One of the express prohibitions contained in this section is the manufacture, or having in possession, an article of merchandise on which is placed or attached a representation of such flag, standard, color or ensign. If the flag used by Wilson Bros. comes within the definition of "flag" contained in section 12397 G. C., and the use which they make of it does not come within the exceptions of section 12398 G. C., there can be no question that the same is a violation of said section 12396 G. C.

Section 12397 G. C. Defines the words "flag, standard color or ensign," as follows:

"The words 'flag,' 'standard,' 'color' or 'ensign,' as used in the next preceding section, shall include any flag, standard, color or ensign or a picture or representation thereof, made of or represented on any substance, and purporting to be a flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States, or the state of Ohio, or a picture or representation thereof, upon which shall be shown the colors, the stars and the stripes in any number thereof, or which might appear to represent a flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States or state of Ohio."

If the flag used by Wilson Bros. contains the colors red, white and blue and the stars and stripes in any number, it is within the definition.

The only exceptions to section 12396 G. C. are contained in section 12398 G. C. as follows:

"The next two preceding sections shall not apply to an act permitted by the statutes of the United States or by the United States army and navy regulations, nor shall they apply to a newspaper, periodical, book, pamphlet, circular, certificate, diploma, warrant, or commission of appointment to office, society lodge or emblem, ornamental picture, or stationery for use in correspondence, on which shall be printed, painted or placed said flag disconnected from any advertisement."

Congress has not legislated with reference to the question here under consideration save in the matter of the use of the flag in trade marks, etc., sought to be registered and the reference to regulations of the army and navy undoubtedly refers to the rules of the army and navy prescribing the form of various flags used therein, some of which contain printed matter, such as recruiting flags, advertising flags, and emblems of particular divisions of the army and navy. I am advised by the judge advocate general of the war department, Washington, D. C., that their rules contain no permission for the use of the flag in the manner here under consideration.

Under their own statement of facts it is clear that the use of the flag by Wilson Bros. does not come within any of the further exceptions in said section, but that the flag is placed on the handkerchiefs solely for the purpose of making them more salable.

Under section 12396 G. C., supra, the question of whether or not the use of the flag is one for advertising purposes is immaterial, for that section contains no such limitation. It is merely a prohibition against the use of the flag on any article of merchandise, and the only reference in any of these sections to advertising is that contained in section 12398, and it is there merely a limitation upon the exceptions.

I am therefore of opinion that the manufacture for sale of handkerchiefs, containing the American flag with the colors and the stars and stripes, in connection with designs representing ships, guns, etc., or in connection with the word "preparedness" is a violation of section 12396 G. C., supra, and subjects the manufacturer, or any one having such handkerchiefs in possession, to prosecution thereunder.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE MEDICAL BOARD—EXAMINING NURSES AND CHIEF EXAMINER—SUCH POSITIONS NOT SUBJECT TO PROVISIONS OF CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

Persons appointed to positions and offices under the provisions of the civil service act, which became effective July 1, 1914, 103 O. L. 698, in which a definite term is fixed by statute, may serve only for the term so fixed by statute.

The positions of examining nurses, including that of chief examiner, provided for by section 1295-1 G. C., as enacted in 106 O. L. 191, are not subject to the provisions of the civil service law, requiring a competitive examination of applicants therefor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 22, 1916.

The State Civil Service Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of August 2, 1916, submitting the following statement and inquiry:

> "The act regulating the practice of nursing in the state of Ohio provides that:
> "'Within sixty days after this act becomes operative, the state medical board shall employ a secretary, entrance examiner, and three nurses; said three nurses with the secretary of the state medical board shall constitute a nurses' examining committee, this committee to be chosen from ten nominations made by the Ohio Association of Graduate Nurses. The secretary of the state medical board shall be the secretary and executive officer of the committee. One nurse shall be employed for one year, one for two years, and one for three years, and thereafter as the term of one nurse expires, a successor shall be employed in the manner hereinbefore specified, for a term of three years. One of the nurses so employed shall be designated as chief examiner. The secretary shall have the power to administer oaths. Each person so employed shall file with the secretary an affidavit that she is a resident of Ohio, a graduate of a recognized training school for nurses and, in addition thereto, shall have had not less than five years' experience in nursing.'
> "In July, 1915, Miss Anna Johnson took a competitive examination for public health nurse, and stood No. 3 on the list. Following the taking effect of the law in August, 1915, Miss Johnson was appointed a member of the nurses' examining committee for a term of one year, and was designated chief examiner, as provided by law. The state medical board had claimed exempt from the classified service three positions, as provided under section 486-8 of the civil service law, so that Miss Johnson was appointed to the position of chief examiner from the eligible list, and was considered in the classified service.

"At a meeting of the state medical board on July 5, 1916, Miss Johnson was re-appointed a member of the nurses' examining committee for a term of three years, but one member of that committee who had never taken the nurses' examination was designated as chief examiner. Now Miss Johnson has written the civil service commission to know what her rights are under the civil service law.

"Inasmuch as the law creating the Nurses' examining committee became effective prior to the civil service law, and since this position is not claimed as one of the exemptions by the state medical board, it appears to us that the position must be in the classified service.

"Is not section 1 of this law inconsistent with the provisions of the civil service law? Since the civil service law provides that all positions in the classified service shall be free, open to all, and competitive, can the civil service commission limit the applicants for this position to the ten nominations made by the Ohio Association of Graduate Nurses, or can the civil service commission lawfully confine the competitors to the three persons appointed as members of the nurses' examining committee?

"We will appreciate an early reply for the reason that the state medical board has requested that we conduct a competitive examination to create an eligible list for the position of chief examiner."

The statute quoted in your foregoing letter is section 1295-1 G. C., and is found in 106 O. L. 191, being section 1 of "an act to regulate the practice of nursing in the state of Ohio," which act became effective on the 2nd day of August, 1915. It appears from the records of the state medical board that by virtue of the provisions of said section aforesaid, said board on the 4th day of August, 1915, appointed three nurses from a list of ten nominations made by the Ohio Association of Graduate Nurses, which list included the person named in your inquiry, who was appointed for the term of one year and designated as chief examiner. Said person so appointed assumed the duties of her said position on August 16, 1915. Her appointment, therefore, was made while the civil service law, which became operative January 1, 1914, was still in effect (103 O. L. 698), as the present civil service law did not become operative until August 31, 1915. Under the authority of the recent case of McNamara v. State Civil Service Commission, the law which was in force at the time the appointment was made for a definite term must be held to control the tenure of office of the person so appointed.

In an exhaustive opinion reported in volume II, at page 1664 of the Attorney-General's Report for the year 1914, my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, held that a statute fixing a definite term for a position in the classified civil service, under the provisions of said act of 1914, was not repealed by said act, and that the term so fixed by statute controlled the tenure of such person in such position in said service. This opinion followed the decision of the superior court of Cincinnati in the case of State ex rel. v. Schneller, 15 N. P., n. s., 438.

I concur in the conclusions of my predecessor in this respect, and therefore advise that at the expiration of the term of one year, for which the person named in your inquiry was appointed, her tenure in said position of chief examiner will end.

The foregoing observations are based upon the assumption that the position of chief examiner of nurses was properly designated as being one within the competitive classified service and that the appointment of said person from an eligible list was in all respects in accordance with and required by statutory law. However, this brings us to a consideration of your inquiry as to whether the provisions of said section 1295-1, aforesaid, are not in conflict with the requirements of the civil service law to the effect that examinations for positions in the classified service shall be public, competitive and free for all. See section 486-10 G. C., 106 O. L. 406. As before observed, under the provisions of said section 1295-1, supra, the appointment of three nurses is to be made from a list of ten nominations, which are selected by the Ohio Association of Graduate Nurses. Manifestly, then, the provisions of this statute and those of the civil service law, above noted, are hopelessly conflicting if the positions of said nurses, and particularly that of chief examiner, are properly in the classified service under the civil service law.

The requirement that there shall be a test by a competitive examination of the qualifications of all applicants for appointments and promotions in the civil service of the state is subject to both the constitutional and statutory limitation that such competitive examination shall control when it is practicable to ascertain an applicant's merit and fitness in this manner. It would seem to be a necessary inference that in the case under consideration the legislature had declared that the merit and fitness of persons appointed to the positions of examining nurses, including that of chief examiner, should not be determined by a competitive examination because it is specifically provided that such nurses, to be eligible for appointment, shall be graduates of a recognized training school for nurses, shall have had not less than five years experience in nursing and shall be chosen from a list of ten nominations made by the Ohio Association of Graduate Nurses and finally, it is only from the list of three thus appointed that the nurse designated as chief examiner may be chosen. It must also be noted that the law under consideration was enacted while the civil service act of 1914 was in full force and operation, and that the provisions of said act of 1914, in respect to the requirement that examinations for positions in the classified service shall be public, competitive and free for all, were identical with those of the present law, as was also the provision that the competitive class shall include all positions for which it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of applicants by competitive examination. See section 486-10 G. C., 103 O. L. 406, and paragraph one of subdivision (b) of section 486-8 G. C., 103 O. L. 406.

It is clear, therefore, that the legislature, with full knowledge of the requirements of said act of 1914 as to positions in the classified service and the freedom of competition provided in examinations therefor, declared that the positions in question, with the qualifications it placed upon them, should not be subject to the civil service law in regard to positions in the classified service.

By reason of these considerations and the principle of law that a general statute, treating a matter in general terms and not expressly contradicting the provisions of a prior special statute, is not to be considered as intended to effect a more particular and specific provision of an earlier special act unless it is absolutely necessary to so construe it in that manner. (Fostick v. Village, 14th O. S. 472.) I am of the opinion that the positions of examining nurses, including that of chief examiner, provided for in section 1295-1 supra, are not within the operation of the civil service law. This conclusion is reached not only because of the impracticability of testing the qualifications of said nurses by competitive examination, in view of the provisions of said section 1295-1 supra, but it is supported by the further fact that the requirements of said section in themselves subject all appointees to a test as thorough, effective and satisfactory as could be afforded by a competitive examination.

I therefore advise that the positions of examining nurses, including that of chief eraminer, appointed under the provisions of section 1295-1 G. C., as enacted in 106 O. L. 191, are not within the operation of the civil service law, and that the only qualifications that may be required for appointment to such positions are those specially provided for in said section. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SALE OF CANAL LANDS IN ROSS AND LICKING COUNTIES.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 22, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—With yours under date of August 15, 1916, you submit transcripts of the proceedings in reference thereto, together with resolutions authorizing the sale of canal lands as follows:

"To L. B. James, Chillicothe, Ohio, a tract of abandoned Ohio Canal in the city of Chillicothe---------- $50.00
"To Ruth Felumlee, Newark, Ohio, a tract of the abandoned Ohio canal in Madison township, Licking county, Ohio---------- 180.00
"To Orville Kiger, Newark, Ohio, a tract of the abandoned Ohio canal in Madison township, Licking county, Ohio---------- 500.00."

Having examined the transcripts of the proceedings and resolutions above mentioned, I find said proceedings to have been in conformity to law and the resolutions regular in form and am therefore returning the same to you with my endorsement of said resolutions in duplicate.

Respectfully
EDWARD C TURNER
Attorney-General.

INDEPENDENT COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY—WHEN ENTITLED TO PER CAPITA ALLOWANCE FROM COUNTY TREASURY—KINSMAN STOCK AND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY NOT ENTITLED TO SAID ALLOWANCE.

An agricultural society, organized under section 9911 G. C., which held annual fairs prior to the year 1915, and which held an annual exhibition in 1915, is not "an independent county agricultural society" within the meaning of section 9880-1 G. C. (106 O. L. 273) such as to entitle it to the per capita allowance from the county treasury, provided for in section 9880 G. C., nor could such society, by reorganizing in December, 1915, pursuant to the provisions of sections 9880 and 9880-1 G. C., bring itself under favor of said sections for the purpose of securing such allowance.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 22, 1916.

HON. ARCHER L. PHELPS, Prosecuting Attorney, Warren, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of July 10, 1916, is as follows:

"On the 19th day of March, 1888, The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association of the township of Kinsman, this county, was incorporated under the general corporation laws of Ohio. Since that date this association has maintained this agricultural association in Kinsman township, giving an annual agricultural exhibition. During this period, this society was not entitled to the $800.00 from the county, to which county agricultural societies were entitled under the provisions of section 9880 G. C.

"On May 5, 1915, the general assembly passed section 9880-1, supplemental to section 9880 of the General Code, found in 105-106 Ohio Laws 273. The effect of this supplemental section is under certain conditions to make the provisions of section 9880 with respect to the payments therein authorized, applicable to independent agricultural societies, that had held annual fairs for agricultural advancement, previous to January 1, 1915, and which said independent society had held an annual exhibition.

"In December, 1915, the persons interested in The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association reorganized, under the provisions of section 9880-1 of the General Code, which new agricultural association has not yet held an annual exhibition. After such reorganization they made application to the state board of agriculture and secured a certificate from the president of the state board, attested by the secretary, that the laws of Ohio and the rules of the board had been complied with, thereby under the provisions of said section 9880-1, entitling said reorganized society to the payment of $800.00 from the county treasury. This certificate has been presented for payment, and the county auditor has called my attention to the situation, and has demanded an opinion as to whether or not the county is liable for this payment.

"A careful examination of section 9880-1 specifies two conditions which must exist before the independent agricultural society is entitled to this certificate from the state board of agriculture: First, that said independent agricultural society has held annual fairs for agricultural advancement, previous to January 1, 1915. Second, that such independent agricultural society has held an annual exhibition and has complied with certain other conditions.

"As to the first condition, the present agricultural society, organized under section 9880-1, has never held an annual exhibition. The old corporation, The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association did hold an annual exhibition every year since its organization, however, the old association, organized under the general corporation laws of the state was never entitled to this payment from the county treasury, and even since the passage of section 9880-1, if not existing, in my opinion would not now be entitled to the payment for the reason that section 9880-1 is supplemental to section 9880 and must be read in pari materia, and the organization which is given the right to the payment from the county treasury is an agricultural society, organized in accordance with the terms of this statute.

"As to the second condition, the agricultural society which is now demanding payment of $800.00 from the county treasury, upon the certificate of the president and secretary of the state board of agriculture, has not yet held an annual exhibition, and under the express terms of section 9880-1 is not entitled to this payment until after it has held such an exhibition. Further, in order to entitle an independent agricultural society to the certificate granted to this society, it must not only be made to appear that such annual exhibition has been held, but that such society had held such annual exhibitions prior to January 1, 1915, which the present society can never do.

"We have had in this county for a great many years a county society known as The Trumbull County Agricultural Association, which holds annual exhibitions, and owns well equipped fair grounds.

"In my opinion the new independent agricultural society, organized in December, 1915, under the provisions of section 9880 and 9880-1, is not entitled, under the provisions of these sections, to any payment from the county treasury, and was not entitled to the certificate to that effect, issued by the state board of agriculture, for the two reasons above stated.

"Owing to the fact that the state board of agriculture has issued this certificate which has lead the officers of the new agricultural society to believe that it is entitled to this payment, I will appreciate your opinion upon the questions: First, can the new society, not having held annual exhibitions prior to January 1, 1915, at any time in the future qualify so as to be entitled to this payment? Second, under the foregoing state of facts is this new society entitled to the payment of the certificate from the state board of agriculture, which it now holds?

"For your assistance in determining these questions I herewith enclose a copy of the articles of incorporation of the old Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association."

In response to my request for additional information I have your letter of August 1st, enclosing certified copy of the articles of incorporation of "The Kinsman Fair Association," filed in the office of the secretary of state December 17, 1915. The articles of incorporation of "The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association," organized March 19, 1888, provide:

"First: The name of said corporation shall be The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association.

"Second: Said corporation shall be located and its principal business transacted at Kinsman, in Trumbull County, Ohio.

"Third: The purpose for which said corporation is formed is for the promotion and development of the horse, cattle and general agricultural interests of said township of Kinsman and the surrounding neighborhood."

The articles of incorporation of The Kinsman Fair Association hereinbefore referred to, provide:

"First: The name of said corporation shall be The Kinsman Fair Association.

"Second: Said corporation is to be located at Kinsman in Trumbull County, Ohio, and its principal business there transacted.

"Third: Said corporation is formed for the purpose of improvement in agriculture, horticulture, live stock and domestic manufacturies."

Upon investigation in the office of the board of agriculture of Ohio I find that the official report for the year 1915, as filed with said board and purporting to be the official report of The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Association, shows the name of said organization as "The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company," the date of organization March 19, 1888, and the number of members forty-two.

In view of this report, and of the purpose for which said company was organized, as set forth in item 3 of its articles of incorporation, it is evident that said company was organized for the advancement of the agricultural interests primarily in Kinsman Township, Trumbull County, the entries, however, being open to adjoining townships, and that said company was doubtless organized pursuant to the provisions of section 9911 G. C., as enacted February 11, 1877, and as still in force, which provisions are as follows:

"When any number of persons of a township form a society for the promotion of agriculture in such township, and under their hands and seals make a certificate, and acknowledge it before a justice of the peace, in which shall be specified the name of the society, the objects of its formation, and the township in which it shall be located, and file it in the office of the secretary of state, such society shall be deemed a body corporate, with succession, and with power to sue and be sued, defend and be defended, and contract and be contracted with, may make and use a common seal, and the same alter at pleasure, and may purchase and hold in fee simple, or rent or lease such real estate as may be required as a site for holding fairs, not exceeding forty acres, and establish all necessary rules and regulations for the management of such fairs and the legitimate business of the society."

In view of the foregoing it seems clear that while The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company has held annual fairs since the time of its organization in 1888, said company was never a county or district agricultural society within the meaning of section 9880 G. C., which provides:

"When thirty or more persons, residents of a county, or of a district embracing one or more counties, organize themselves into an agricultural society, which adopts a constitution and by-laws, selects the usual and proper officers, and otherwise conducts its affairs in conformity to law and the rules of the state board of agriculture, and when such county or district society has held an annual exhibition in accordance with the three following sections, and made proper report to the state board, then, upon presentation to the county auditor, of a certificate from the president of the state board attested by the secretary thereof, that the laws of the state and the rules of the board have been complied with, the county auditor of each county wherein such agricultural societies are organized, annually shall draw an order on the treasurer of the county in favor of the president of the county or district agricultural society for a sum equal to two cents to each inhabitant thereof, on the basis of the last previous national census. The total amount of such order shall not in any county exceed eight hundred dollars, and the treasurer of the county shall pay it."

This section was originally enacted February 28, 1846, and its provisions, in so far as your inquiry is concerned, have not been materially changed by subsequent amendments.

It necessarily follows that in so far as the provisions of said section 9880 G. C. are concerned, said company was never entitled to the aid from the county provided for in the latter part of said section.

The act of the general assembly (106 O. L. 273) known as amended senate bill No. 52, entitled "An act to supplement section 9880 by the addition of a supplemental section to be known as section 9880-1 of the General Code relative to independent county agricultural societies," provides as follows:

"When thirty or more persons, residents of a county or of contiguous counties not to exceed three, are organized into an independent agricultural society that has held annual fairs for agricultural advancement previous to January first, 1915, in a county wherein is located a county agricultural society, and when such independent society has held an annual exhibition in accordance with the three following sections, and made proper report to the state board, then, upon presentation to the county auditor of a certificate from the president of the state board attested by the secretary thereof, that the laws of Ohio and the rules of the board have been complied with, the county auditor of the county, if the fair board be residents of one county, shall draw an order on the treasurer of the county in favor of the president of the independent agricultural society for a sum equal to the amount paid to the county fair and the treasurer shall pay said order. If the fair board of the independent agricultural society be residents of more than one county, the auditors of such counties shall draw orders on their respective treasurers for their proportionate share of an amount equal to an average amount paid to the several county fair boards to be divided according to population of the counties according to the last federal census. The treasurer or treasurers shall pay such order or orders from the county funds."

As observed by you, this section, being supplemental to section 9880 G. C., must be read in connection with said latter section. The evident intention of the legislature, in the enactment of said supplemental section, was to extend the scope of section 9880 G. C. by giving to an independent agricultural society, other than the one theretofore officially recognized as the county agricultural society, and as such, entitled to county aid under provision of the latter part of section 9880 G. C., the right to receive from the county treasurer a sum equal to that paid to said officially recognized county society, providing said independent county society complies with the provisions of said statutes, has held annual fairs prior to January 1, 1915, and has held an annual exhibition in accordance with the provisions of sections 9881, 9882 and 9883 of the General Code, at the time of making its report to the state board of agriculture and at the time of making its demand upon the county treasurer, holds the certificate from said board as required by said section 9880-1 G. C., showing that the laws of Ohio and the rules of the state board of agriculture have been complied with.

From the official report above referred to, it appears that The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company held its annual fair in August, 1915. From your statement of facts, however, it appears that said company was never officially recognized as the county agricultural society within the meaning of section 9880 G. C., and in view of what has already been said, it seems clear that said company could not have been so recognized, even if the Trumbull County Agricultural Society were not in existence, which latter organization I am informed is the officially recognized agricultural society of Trumbull county, and in view of the provisions of section 9880-1 G. C., read in connection with the provisions of section 9880 G. C., I do not think it could be said that The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company, if still in existence, would now be an independent county agricultural society within the meaning of section 9880-1 G. C., such as to entitle it to the aid therein provided.

It was evidently the intention of the members of The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company, in reorganizing in December, 1915, by filing new articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, and in changing the name and purpose of the organization, as above set forth, to thereby bring themselves under favor of said sections 9880 and 9880-1 G. C. The official report as filed with the state board of agriculture is signed by D. H. McLean, as president, and H. D. Fobes, as secretary, respectively, of The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company, and the affidavit of said officers thereto attached is made under date of January 11, 1916. This report purports to be the report of The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company and no reference is made to the re-organization in December, 1915.

The certificate of the state board of agriculture was issued on the assumption that The Kinsman Stock and Agriculture Company was still in existence; that said company was an independent agricultural society within the meaning of section 9880-1 G. C., and that the report of said company, as filed with said state board, shows said company to be qualified to receive the said certificate. If the fact of reorganization had been brought to the attention of the board of agriculture, as it should have been, said certificate in all probability would not have been issued.

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutes and the facts presented, I am compelled to conclude, for reasons already given, that The Kinsman Stock and Agricultural Company was never a county agricultural society within the meaning of section 9880 G. C., nor an independent county agricultural society within the meaning of section 9880-1 G. C., such as to entitle it to the certificate from the board of agriculture, that the new organization known as The Kinsman Fair Association, not having held annual fairs prior to January 1, 1915, and not having held an annual exhibition at the time the aforesaid report was filed, could not qualify under provision of said section 9880-1 G. C. for the purpose of receiving the aid provided for in said section and that the conditions of said section make it impossible for said The Kinsman Fair Association to qualify at any time in the future for the purpose of receiving said aid.

Your questions must, therefore, be answered in the negative.

I am addressing a letter to the board of agriculture enclosing a copy of this opinion, and advising said board to reconsider its action in issuing the aforesaid certificate.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY—WHEN AN ALLOWANCE UNDER PROVISIONS OF SECTION 3004 G. C. MAY BE EXPENDED IN EMPLOYMENT OF PERSON TO PROCURE EVIDENCE AGAINST VIOLATORS OF THE LAW REGULATING SPEED OF MOTOR VEHICLES.

The allowance made to a prosecuting attorney under the provisions of section 3004 G. C. may be expended in the employment of a person or persons to procure evidence against violators of the law regulating the speed of motor vehicles, said evidence to be used before a grand jury or in the prosecution of said offenders if no secret service officer has been appointed by said prosecuting attorney under the provisions of section 2915-1 G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 501. If such secret service officer has been appointed, said expenditure aforesaid may not be made unless the services of such persons are reasonably necessary in addition to the services of said secret service officer.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 22, 1916.

HON. JOSEPH T. MICKLETHWAIT, Prosecuting Attorney, Portsmouth, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of August 1, 1916, as follows:

> "Several deaths, due to excessive speeding by drivers of automobiles on the highways of this county, have occurred during the past few weeks. Unfortunately, owing to the particular construction of these highways, and because of the many sharp curves and steep grades on most of the roads in this section of the state, automobile speeding will always be attended with most serious effects, often resulting in loss of life.
> "Speeding here is not general. However, there is such abuse in driving that a great number of our people are afraid to venture out on the roads, especially in the evenings and on Sundays. As far as my observation goes the law is being enforced in the city and villages, but it is not observed in the county. Something, if possible, should be done to correct this abuse.

"I am not sure if the prosecuting attorney, acting under section 3004, has the necessary power and authority to employ and pay regularly a suitable person to detect and apprehend violations of the state law against excessive speeding on the roads of this county outside the city and villages, and am, therefore, writing you for your opinion in this matter."

Section 3004 G. C., to which you refer in your foregoing letter, insofar as its provisions are pertinent to your inquiry is as follows:

"There shall be allowed annually to the prosecuting attorney in addition to his salary, and to the allowance provided by section 2914, an amount equal to one-half the official salary, to provide for expenses which may be incurred by him in the performance of his official duties and in the furtherance of justice, not otherwise provided for. Upon the order of the prosecuting attorney the county auditor shall draw his warrant on the county treasurer, payable to the prosecuting attorney, or such other person as the order designates, for such amount as the order requires, not exceeding the amount provided for herein, and to be paid out of the general fund of the county."

This statute in plain terms authorizes an allowance in addition to that provided by section 2914 of an amount equal to one-half of the salary of the prosecuting attorney for expenses which may be incurred by him in the performance of his official duties and in the furtherance of justice in matters not otherwise provided for.

If conditions obtain in your county in respect to the speeding of automobiles on country roads, such as you describe in your letter, it is manifest that some means should be adopted to end the same. Therefore, if in your judgment it is necessary to have the services of some person to procure evidence against such violators for your use before a grand jury, and in the prosecution of such offenders, I am of the opinion that such expenditure is warranted, unless you have availed yourself of your privilege to appoint and have appointed a secret service officer, as provided by section 2915-1 G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., page 501, which provides as follows:

"The prosecuting attorney may appoint a secret service officer, whose duty it shall be to aid him in the collection and discovery of evidence to be used in the trial of criminal cases and matters of a criminal nature. Such appointment shall be made for such term as the prosecuting attorney may deem advisable, and subject to termination at any time by such prosecuting attorney. The compensation of said officer shall be fixed by the judge of the court of common pleas of the county in which the appointment is made, or, if there be more than one judge, by the judges of such court in such county in joint session, and shall not be less than one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month for the time actually occupied in such service, nor more than one-half of the official salary of the prosecuting attorney for a year, payable monthly, out of the county fund, upon the warrant of the county auditor."

If you have made an appointment under the foregoing statute of a secret service officer, then it is the duty of such officer so appointed to render you the services specified in your inquiry; and as section 3004 G. C., aforesaid, has the limitation therein that expenses incurred under its authority shall be in matters not otherwise provided for, such limitation would preclude such expenditure of money allowed under its provisions for the performance of duties and services which the law requires of the secret service officer. The provisions of said section 2915-1 G. C., aforesaid, are permissive, and if no secret service officer has been appointed thereunder then the limitation aforesaid in said section 3004 aforesaid will not apply. Further, it might become necessary that a secret service officer should have some assistance, or his entire time be required in other matters, in which event the limitation aforesaid of section 3004 will not apply.

I must advise, therefore, in answer to your inquiry, that you may properly use the money allowed under the provisions of said section 3004 G. C., supra, in the employment of a person or persons to procure evidence against violators of the laws regulating the speed of motor vehicles upon country roads for your use before a grand jury and in the prosecution of such offenders if you have not appointed a secret service officer under the authority of section 2915-1 G. C. If, however, you now have at your command the services of a secret service officer, such expenditure of money allowed under section 3004 G. C., supra, may not be made, unless the services of such persons are reasonably necessary in addition to the services of secret service officer.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—CONSTRUCTION OF SWITCH ACROSS INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAY BY INTERURBAN ELECTRIC RAILWAY COMPANY—WHAT AGREEMENT BETWEEN STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER AND RAILWAY COMPANY SHOULD CONTAIN.

When there is presented to the state highway commissioner an application by an interurban electric railway company for authority to construct a switch across an inter-county highway, together with the written consent of the owners of more than one-half of the feet front of the lots and lands abutting on that part of the highway where such switch is proposed to be constructed; the state highway commissioner is authorized to agree with the company as to the terms of occupancy, and the agreement should impose upon the company all of the duties and liabilities prescribed by sections 6956 and 7479 G. C. and should contain provisions protecting the public from any liability for damages and requiring reconstruction at any time that the same may be required by the state highway commissioner or other public authority hereafter vested with the control of the highway in question.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 23, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of July 13, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "This department is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Lon O. Shank, Dayton, Ohio, representing Mr. C. E. Haines of that city, in which application is made for permission from this department to construct a commercial siding across a portion of inter-county highway No. 62 from the tracks of the Ohio Electric Railway Company.
> "I am attaching hereto a copy of Mr. Shank's letter, together with the original sketch sunmitted by him showing the location of the proposed siding, which is situated near Fort McKinley, Ohio. I assume that the request contemplates a surface grade crossing.
> "I am uncertain as to my authority in the matter and would respectfully request that you advise me as to what procedure I may properly follow in response to Mr. Shank's letter."

The copy of Mr. Shank's letter attached to your communication reads as follows:

"Pursuant to our conversation of the 8th instant, in your office, I am hereby making application for permission to cross the proposed brick highway known as the Salem pike, with a single track switch at the point known and designated as Fort McKinley and sitauted on the Dayton & Union City division of the Ohio Electric Railway, about six miles northwest of Dayton, the exact point being designated on the map and drawing attached hereto.

"The proposed switch will require about fifty feet of track construction in the proposed brick paving, the cost and maintenance of which it is understood will be assumed by the applicant.

"The applicant further proposes to erect a substantial building on the property at this point in which he will engage in the business of dealing in coal, lime, feed, building material, etc.

"It is estimated that one hundred cars approximately will be delivered on this track the first year.

"The owner of the property and the one for whom this permit is sought is C. E. Haines, R. F. D. No. 10, Dayton, Ohio."

Supplementing your communication of July 13th, you wrote me on July 20th, as follows:

"Permit me to supplement my letter to you of July 13th, relative to an application received from Mr. Lon O. Shank, of Dayton, Ohio, for permission to construct a commercial siding across a portion of inter-county highway No. 62, from the tracks of the Ohio Electric Railway Company.

"I am submitting a copy of another letter from Mr. Shank on the subject which it occurs to me you should have."

The second letter addressed to you by Mr. Shank reads as follows:

"In reviewing the copy of my letter to you under date of the 11th instant I note that in the fifth paragraph I referred to the applicant as C. E. Haines.

"Mr. Haines is the owner of the property which would be entered by this siding if granted, but the point which I want to make clear is, and one which we fully understand to be required by law, that the application for this franchise will come from the transportation company, which is the Ohio Electric Railway.

"Mr. Brenner, one of the county commissioners, advised me this morning that his office had not as yet heard from you relative to this proposed improvement, and inasmuch as Mr. Haines has his plans and specifications drawn for his building, he is very anxious to begin construction, but does not want to do anything toward the work until action has been taken by you and the local board."

A consideration of this matter involves an examination of a number of the sections of the General Code. Section 9100 G. C. reads as follows:

"Street railways, with single or double tracks, side-tracks and turnouts, may be constructed or extended within or without, or partly within and partly without, any municipal corporation. Offices, depots, and other necessary buildings therefor, also may be constructed."

Section 9101 G. C. reads as follows:

> "The right to construct or extend such railway within or beyond the limits of a municipal corporation, may be granted only by its council, by ordinance; the right to construct such railway without the limits of a municipal corporation may be granted only by the county commissioners, by an order entered on their journal."

Section 9101 G. C., in so far as it provides that the right to construct street railways, without the limits of a municipal corporation, may be granted only by the county commissioners by an order entered on their journal, must be construed in the light of certain other statutory provisions which will be later considered.

Section 9105 G. C. reads as follows:

> "No such grant shall be made until there is produced to council, or the commissioners, as the case may be, the written consent of the owners of more than one-half of the feet front of the lots and lands abutting on the street or public way, along which it is proposed to construct such railway or extension thereof; and the provisions of all ordinances of the council relating thereto, have in all respects been complied with, whether the railway proposed is an extension of an old or the granting of a new route."

In the case of Harner v. Railway Co., 29 Ohio Law Bulletin 387, 11 O. D. R. 807, it was held that the consent of the abutting property owners is necessary to the construction of new switches or the extension of pre-existing ones. This section, in so far as it requires the production to the county commissioners of the written consent of the owners of more than one-half of the feet front of the lots and lands abutting on the street or public way along which it is proposed to construct a railway or extension thereof, must also be considered in the light of other legislative enactments affecting, in the case of inter-county highways, the public authority to whom the written consent of the owners is to be produced.

Section 9113 G. C. reads as follows:

> "Council, or the commissioners, as the case may be, may fix the terms and conditions upon which such railways may be constructed, operated, extended and consolidated."

Section 9117 G. C. reads as follows:

> "Companies incorporated under section eighty-six hundred and twenty-five for such purpose, may construct, maintain and operate electric street railroads, or street railroads using other than animal power as a motive power, for the transportation of passengers, packages, express matter, United States mail, baggage and freight upon highways in this state outside of municipalities, or upon private rights of ways."

Section 9118 G. C. reads as follows:

> "Such companies may occupy and use for their tracks, cars, necessary fixtures and appliances, the public highways outside of cities and villages with the consent of the public authorities in charge of or controlling such highways, and with the written consent of the majority, measured by the front foot, of the property holders abutting on each of such highways."

Section 9118-1 G. C., considered in connection with other statutory provisions, and especially in connection with the provisions of the statutes transferring from county commissioners to the state highway commissioner the management and control of inter-county highways, practically determines the answer to the question now under consideration. The section in question reads as follows:

> "Whenever it is deemed necessary by a majority of the directors of any such railway company to cross the streets, avenues, alleys, ways, or any part thereof, of any municipality, or any public highway outside of a municipality, whether the same be under the control of public authorities or a private company, or a person or persons, the council of such municipality, or the public officers or authorities owning or having charge of such highways outside of municipalities, shall have power to agree with such company as to the manner and mode of such crossing and the compensation to be paid therefor; if the parties fail to agree, such company may file its petition in the common pleas court of the county in which the proposed crossing is situated, and in such cause if the crossing be within a municipality, such municipality shall be defendant; if the crossing be outside a municipality, the public authorities owning or having charge of such highway shall be defendants. Summons shall be served and the rule days and the rights of the defendant to plead shall be the same as in civil actions in such court. Such petition shall set forth the action of the company declaring the necessity for crossing the highway, and the inability of the company to agree with the council or other public officers or authorities owning or having charge of said highway; and the court of common pleas thereupon shall have jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter of the petition, and may proceed to examine the matter offered by evidence, by reference to a master commissioner or otherwise, and upon the final hearing of said cause the court shall enter its decree fixing the manner and mode of such crossing and the compensation, if any, to be paid therefor by the company, and upon compliance with the terms of said decree the company shall have the right to construct and maintain said crossing in accordance with the order of said cause."

A reference to the sketch of the proposed switch shows that it is in effect a crossing of the highway. The tracks of the Ohio Electric Railway Company are located on one side of the public highway and the property which it is desired to reach by means of the proposed switch is located upon the other side of the highway.

The inter-county highway system of the state has been placed under the jurisdiction of the state highway department, and county commissioners are not now authorized to construct, improve, maintain or repair inter-county highways without first submitting to the state highway department their plans and specifications for the proposed work and securing the approval of such plans and specifications by the chief highway engineer. See section 1203 G. C. and the related sections.

Section 7479 G. C., which should also be considered, reads as follows:

> "No franchise or grant to any street railway, interurban railway or other railway shall hereafter be granted by the state highway commissioner, by the board of county commissioners or by the council of any municipality, unless such franchise or grant shall provide that such company shall thereafter, when required by the proper authorities in charge of such road or street, make such changes in its grade and method of construction as shall be necessary to conform to any improvement thereafter made of such street or road. The type of construction used by such company shall be approved in the first instance by the state highway commissioner if such road is under jurisdiction of the state; by the engineer of a municipality if such improvement is within the bounds of such municipality, or, by the county highway superintendent in the case of other roads, and shall also be approved by the proper authorities having jurisdiction over such street or road."

"Any person, firm or corporation operating a railway for the transportation of passengers, freight or express, crossing any street or road, shall improve, maintain and repair that portion of the highway at such crossing and lying between the outside ends of the ties, and also that portion lying between the tracks in the case of two or more tracks, and the cost and expense of this improvement, maintenance and repair shall be borne by said individual, firm or corporation. Such improvement, maintenance or repair shall be made whenever in the opinion of the authorities having charge of such road the public necessity requires, and shall be made in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the county surveyor.

"In case the said person, firm or corporation operating said railway fails to improve, maintain or repair the same as required by the proper authorities, as provided in this section, then such authorities shall proceed to improve, maintain and repair the same, and the cost thereof shall be charged against said property and collected in the manner hereinafter provided. Whenever a road or street is improved where a street or interurban or other railroad or railway lies within the improved portion of the roadway, such railroad or railway grade shall in all respects be changed to meet the approval of the county surveyor unless otherwise provided for in the grant or franchise, by virtue of which such railway operates on or occupies said highway, and costs of such change of grade be paid by such company under the law or by the terms of its franchise or grant, shall be a lien upon the property of such company, and the proper authorities may provide for the payment of the amount chargeable against said company under the law or by the terms of its franchise or grant, in installments as in the case of other property owners, and such installments shall bear interest as in other cases, and the board of county commissioners or other authorities may issue bonds in anticipation of the collection of said installments."

In view of the foregoing and other related provisions, I advise you that under the facts presented by your inquiry and the attached communications you should first have before you an application from the Ohio Electric Railway Company for permission to construct the proposed switch in and along the inter-county highway in question. There should also be produced to you by the company the written consent of the owners of more than one-half of the feet front of the lots and lands abutting on that part of the highway where such switch is proposed to be constructed. When the application of the company and the written consent of such owners are filed with you, you will be authorized to agree with the company as to the terms of occupancy and the agreement should impose upon the company all of the duties and liabilities prescribed by sections 6956 and 7479 G. C. and the other related sections referred to above, and should contain further provisions designed to protect the public from any liability for damages and fixing the liability of the company for any and all damages resulting to third persons by reason of the construction and operation of the switch and enjoining upon the company the duty of altering or reconstructing the switch and changing the type of construction at any time as may be required by you or by any other public authority hereafter vested with the control of the highway in question. When you have before you the proper application and written consent of owners, I will be very glad to prepare for you a proper form of agree ment between you and the company or if the company desires to submit a proposed form of agreement I will be very glad to examine the same and advise you as to its sufficiency.

I am returning herewith the original sketch submitted by Mr. Shank.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ADULT PERSON OF FEEBLE MIND—IF PUBLIC CHARGE MAY BE ADMITTED TO INSTITUTION FOR FEEBLE MINDED YOUTH— SECTIONS 1901 AND 1902 G. C. CONSTRUED.

An adult person of feeble mind, who is a public charge, may be admitted to the custodial department of the institution for feeble-minded youth under the provisions of and in accordance with the formalities prescribed by section 1901 G. C., but an adult person of feeble mind who is not a public char e may only be admitted to said institution as provided by section 1902 G. C. as amended 103 O. L 245.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 23, 1916.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS, Prosecuting Attorney, Elyria, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of August 18, 1916, as follows:

> "In Wellington township of this county, there is a woman by the name of Myers, who is an imbecile, and the authorities of that township insist that she be taken to the Lorain county infirmary. The superintendent insists that having been in the condition in which she now is for many years, and with no chance of any improvement, she should not be placed in the infirmary, but should be placed in an institution for the feeble minded elsewhere.
> "Your opinion as to the proper place where this woman can be cared for is desired and a prompt reply will be greatly appreciated."

The only state institution to which the person named in your inquiry may be committed is the institution for feeble minded youth, the provisions for which are found in sections 1891 to 1904 G. C. inclusive. It is provided by section 1901 G. C. that:

> "The trustees shall receive as inmates of the custodial department, feeble minded children, residents of this state, under the age of fifteen years, who are incapable of receiving instruction in the common schools of the state, and adults of the same class, over this age, who are public charges.* * *"

It is provided by the succeeding section, 1902 G. C., as amended 103 O. L. 245, that:

> "Feeble minded persons of such inoffensive habits as to make them proper subjects for classification and discipline in the institution may be admitted, on pursuing the same course of legal commitment as governs admission to the state hospital for the insane."

In an opinion of this department reported in Vol. II of the Attorney-General's Report for 1911-1912, at page 981, my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in commenting upon the provisions of the foregoing section made the following observations:

> "The trustees are empowered to accept without legal commitment persons over the age of fifteen years, incapable of receiving instruction in the common schools, who are public charges. For such admission the formalities prescribed in section 1901 are sufficient."

It would seem from the statement made in your letter that the person whose case is under consideration is now a public charge. If this is true the provisions of said section 1901 would govern in her case, and her commitment to said institution may be made under said section. If, however, she is not a public charge, then the provisions of section 1902 will apply, and in this connection I again quote from the opinion above cited as follows:

> "But the trustees neither have authority, nor may they be compelled to admit into the custodial department persons over the age of fifteen years who are not public charges, and who are not sent to the institution upon formal commitment. That is to say, the trustees may not receive adults who are not public charges upon mere application papers indorsed by the probate judge. Such persons must be received, if at all, only after affidavit is filed with the probate judge, witnesses are subpoenaed, a hearing is had, and a certificate signed by two medical witnesses duly qualified, to the effect that the subject of the inquest is feeble minded and of inoffensive habits."

I concur in this interpretation of the law, and if the party named in your inquiry is not a public charge then the proceedings to have her committed to said institution must be had under the provisions of said section 1902 aforesaid. In the event that the trustees of said institution will not receive said party, or some obstacle is found by the probate court which will prevent her commitment, and she is a public charge, the only remaining place in which she may be cared for is the county infirmary.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—PERPENDICULAR WASH BANK MORE THAN EIGHT FEET IN HEIGHT—DUTY OF GUARD RAIL PROTECTION RESTS UPON COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—SECTION 7563 G. C. CONSTRUED.

Under section 7563 G. C. any perpendicular bank more than eight feet in height, having an immediate connection with a public highway, or adjacent thereto, and in an unprotected condition, should be protected by suitable guard rails erected by the board of county commissioners, and this duty rests upon the county commissioners without reference to whether such bank was produced by erosion, and also extends to banks not exactly perpendicular, if such banks are so nearly perpendicular that they could not be regarded as sloping in character.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

HON. OTHO W. KENNEDY, Prosecuting Attorney, Bucyrus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of August 16, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "I wish to call your attention to section 7563 G. C., and ask for your opinion concerning the meaning of the following therein, to wit:
> " 'All perpendicular wash banks more than eight feet in height.'
> "What is a wash bank, and does any steep bank more than eight feet in height, adjacent to a public highway, require protection by suitable guard rails? Suppose that a bank thus adjacent to a public highway in a county is more than eight feet in height, but not strictly perpendicular. Does such a bank require protection by suitable guard rails on behalf of the county commissioners?"

Section 7563 G. C., referred to by you, reads as follows:

> "The board of county commissioners shall erect, or cause to be erected and maintained, where not already done, one or more guard rails on each end of a county bridge, viaduct or culvert more than five feet high. They shall also erect or cause to be erected, where not already done, one or more guard rails on each side of every approach to a county bridge, viaduct or culvert if the approach or embankment is more than six feet high. They shall also protect, by suitable guard rails, all perpendicular wash banks more than eight feet in height, where such banks have an immediate connection with a public highway, or are adjacent thereto, in an unprotected condition, but in such cities and villages as by law receive part of the bridge fund levied therein, such guard rails shall be erected by the municipality."

So far as I have been able to ascertain, the term "wash bank" has no technical meaning. It is probable that by the use of this term the legislature intended to refer to banks resulting from the erosive affect of running water. In the construction of a statute it is always necessary, however, to keep in mind the mischief sought to be remedied. A perpendicular bank having an immediate connection with a public highway, or adjacent thereto, would be none the less dangerous if produced by some means other than erosion. A bank inclining slightly from the perpendicular would be none the less dangerous to travelers passing in its vicinity by reason of the fact that it was not exactly perpendicular.

While the legislature has used the word "perpendicular," and has referred in terms only to "wash banks," yet the spirit of the statute controls the letter, and I think that is within the intention of a statute is as much within the statute as if it were within the letter.

It is, therefore, my opinion, in answer to your question, that under the section in question any perpendicular bank more than eight feet in height, having an immediate connection with a public highway, or adjacent thereto, and in an unprotected condition, should be protected by suitable guard rails erected by the board of county commissioners, and that this duty rests upon the county commissioners without reference to whether such bank was produced by erosion, and also extends to banks not exactly perpendicular, if such banks are so nearly perpendicular that they could not be regarded as sloping in character, and therefore possess all the elements of danger existing in the case of a perpendicular bank. Aside from this section the duty rests upon county commissioners to keep in a safe condition for travel the improved roads under their control, and in the discharge of this duty it might and indeed would, under proper circumstances, be necessary for the commissioners to protect by suitable guard rails even those banks which might properly be regarded as sloping in character.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—JOINT COUNTY ROAD—PETITIONERS NOT AUTHORIZED TO SPECIFY DIFFERENT METHODS OF ASSESSMENTS FOR OWNERS' PORTION IN DIFFERENT COUNTIES.

Where a petition is presented asking for the construction of a joint county road, the petitioners are not authorized to specify one method of assessment as to the owners' portion in one county and another and different method of assessment as to the owners' portion in the other county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

HON. B. A. MYERS, Prosecuting Attorney, Celina, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of August 21, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "The boards of county commissioners of Van Wert county and Mercer county have requested that I submit to you the following questions for answer.
> "A petition has been presented to the joint board of county commissioners, asking for the improvement of the county line road between Mercer county and Van Wert county, Ohio. The petition has written in it two different methods of payment. The Mercer county people ask that they pay their portion under one method and the Van Wert county people ask that they pay their portion under another and different method on a county line road, in one and the same petition.
> "Can they use one method in one county and another and different method in the other county, referring to the portion of the cost of the road which is to be paid by the land owners?"

The question presented by your communication was considered by this department in opinion No. 1441, rendered to Hon. Franklin J. Stalter, prosecuting attorney of Wyandot county, and Hon. Donald F. Melhorn, prosecuting attorney of Hardin county, on March 30, 1916, in which opinion it was held that the respective proportions of the cost and expense of a joint county road, payable by each county, must be raised by the same method in each county, which method is to be set forth in the petition, when the board is acting upon a petition, and is to be determined by the board when acting without a petition.

I am enclosing for your consideration a copy of the opinion in question and advise you, in answer to your inquiry, that where a petition is presented asking for the construction of a joint county road, the petitioners are not authorized to specify one method of assessment as to the owners' portion in one county and another and different method of assessment as to the owners' portion in the other county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EMBALMING EXAMINERS—WHEN MEMBER ASSUMES OFFICE—COMPENSATION—WHEN SECRETARY ASSUMES OFFICE —SPECIAL MEETINGS—PURPOSE—PROSECUTIONS FOR VIOLATIONS OF EMBALMING LAWS—MEMBERS NOT COMPENSATED FOR SERVICES.

A member of the board of embalming examiners is entitled to assume the office on the first day of July following his appointment, and his acts are valid even though he does not take the oath of office until a later date, but he cannot draw compensation except for services performed after he takes the oath of office.

The time when the secretary of the board shall assume his office and draw compensation, is a matter proper to be regulated by the board, subject only to the terms of the appropriation bill.

Special meetings may be held by the board to prepare questions for examinations, if necessary, and the members may receive compensation therefor.

No special duty is placed on members of the board in connection with prosecutions for violations of the laws, regulating embalming, and they cannot be compensated for such services, save in the way of witness fees and mileage when called as witnesses.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

The Ohio State Board of Embalming Examiners, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You have requested my opinion upon the following questions:

"(1) When does a member of this board take hold, at the time of his appointment by the governor or when he is sworn in by this board? When does he draw his compensation?"

Section 1336, G. C. provides in part as follows:

"Each year the governor shall appoint one member of the state board of embalming examiners, who shall serve for a term of three years from the first day of July following his appointment."

Under this section a member of the board of embalming examiners is entitled to assume his office on the first day of July following his appointment by the governor.

You then inquire from what date does he draw his compensation, whether from the time of his appointment by the governor or when he is sworn in by the board. There is no special provision of statutory law requiring a member of your board to take an oath of office, but being an officer, section 7 of article XV of the constitution of Ohio and section 2 of the General Code are applicable and they provide:

Sec. 7 of Art. XV of constitution:

> "Every person chosen or appointed to any office under this state, before entering upon the discharge of its duties, shall take an oath or affirmation to support the constitution of the United States and of this state, and also an oath of office."

Sec. 2 of General Code:

> "Each person chosen or appointed to an office under the constitution or laws of the state, and each deputy or clerk of such officer, shall take an oath of office before entering upon the discharge of his duties."

Both the foregoing constitutional and statutory provisions require that a member of your board shall take an oath of office before assuming the duties of his position, and until this is done his title to his office is not complete. While there are no provisions of law which would work a forfeiture of said office in the event that he failed to take said oath within a certain specified time, yet if he assumes to act without taking such oath, his acts are merely those of a de facto officer and, while valid as to third parties, they do not entitle him to any compensation. In other words, as a de facto officer he can not himself acquire a right to compensation and maintain an action therefor. Mechum on Public Officers, section 331.

This question was before the court in the case of State ex rel. Cronin v. Eshelby, 2 C. C. 468, in which it was held that:

> "An officer to be entitled to the salary of an office must have qualified thereto in the manner provided by law."

The court in this case said:

> "We have thought it necessary to only consider the two elements in this case; first, as to whether or not this party was entitled to recover anything, never having qualified for the office. In order to qualify himself under the law it would be necessary for him to give bond and take oath of office. This he did not do."

Under the authority of the foregoing case I therefore held, in answer to your inquiry in reference to compensation, that the member named may not draw compensation except for services performed after he qualifies by taking the oath of office as above required.

Your second question is as follows:

> "(2) When a new secretary is elected by the board when does he take hold and draw his compensation, on and after his election or when he turns over the books to his successor?"

Section 1338 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "The state board of embalming examiners shall meet at least once each year at such time and place as it directs, but at least fifteen days' notice thereof shall be given. It shall organize by the election of a president and a secretary from its members. * * * The secretary shall serve during the pleasure of the board, and shall perform the duties of secretary and treasurer. The board may adopt such rules and by-laws for its government as it deems proper * * *."

Section 1339 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "* * * The secretary shall receive such salary as the board directs, and his necessary traveling expenses incurred in the discharge of his official duties. * * *"

The matter of when the secretary shall assume his office and the time of the payment of his compensation is, therefore, a matter to be regulated by your board, so long as such payments are made in accordance with the appropriation bill by which the money is provided.

> "(3) Is it lawful for the board to draw compensation for special meetings to prepare questions for examinations?"

Section 1341 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "For use in the examination of persons who desire to engage in the practice of embalming and the preparation and disposal of the dead in this state, the state board of embalming examiners shall prepare a list of questions on the following subjects:
> (Then follows a list of subjects upon which an applicant shall be examined.)

Section 1338 G. C. supra recognizes the right of the board to hold more than one meeting in a year, and if it is necessary to have a special meeting of the board to perform the duty placed upon the board by section 1341 G. C. supra, the members will be entitled to the compensation fixed by section 1339 G. C., above quoted. The question of the necessity for such a meeting is one concerning which I would not be able to advise without a complete statement of facts. Sufficient to say that it must appear that a real necessity for such a special meeting exists, and that the duty imposed upon the board cannot be performed without such a meeting.

> "(4) If an embalmer violates the provisions of the embalming statute, whose duty is it to prosecute him, and if a member of the board is compelled to attend the trial, will he be allowed any compensation for his expenses and time?"

No specific duty is placed upon your board or its members to cause prosecutions for violations of the law regulating the embalming of bodies and the preparation thereof for burial, and section 1339 G. C. supra only provides for compensation to members of your board during the meetings of the board and mileage at the rate of three cents per mile for each mile of travel in attendance upon such meetings. Prosecutions for such violations, therefore, rest with the local authorities, and the members of your board could only be called upon to appear in such prosecutions in the capacity of witnesses, and would be entitled to receive only the usual witness fees and mileage provided for by law in criminal cases.

Respectfully
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—QUESTION OF CENTRALIZATION OF SCHOOLS AND ISSUANCE OF BONDS TO PURCHASE SITE AND ERECT SCHOOL BUILDING, SUBMITTED TO ELECTORS OF RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT—CANNOT TRANSFER TERRITORY TO ANOTHER DISTRICT FOR PERIOD OF THREE YEARS.

After the questions of centralization of schools and issuance of bonds to purchase a site and erect a school building have been submitted to the electors of a rural school district, pursuant to the provisions of sections 4726 G. C., 104 O. L. 139, and section 7625 G. C., the county board of education may not, pursuant to the provisions of section 4696 G. C., or section 4692 G. C., 106 O. L. 397, within the period of three years from such centralization, transfer territory from such rural school district to an adjoining exempted village school district, or city school district, or to another county school district.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

HON. JOS. T. DOAN, Prosecuting Attorney, Wilmington, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 16, 1916, is as follows:

"I received the following communication from the county board of education of Clinton county, Ohio, viz.:

" 'The following resolution was adopted by the county board of education in regular session August 7, 1916;

" 'Be it resolved by the Clinton county board of education in regular session, that the county attorney for Clinton county be requested to obtain an opinion from the state attorney-general, in the matter of the transfer of certain territory from the Jefferson township school district to the Midland village school district.

" 'Be it further resolved, that a copy of the county attorney's request be furnished the county board of education to put on file and become a part of the records of said board.'

"By way of explanation, the question of centralizing the Jefferson township schools and the question of issuing bonds for the purchase of a site and the erection and furnishing of a school house are both submitted to vote and carried, afterward a petition requesting a transfer of part of the territory to Midland village school district was presented and the transfer ordered by the county board and later another petition asking for transfer to the Midland village school district was presented and it was also ordered by the county board.

"In view of your opinion No. 1299, dated February 28, 1916, directed to Hon. Frank B. Pearson, I am of the opinion that the county board is without authority to make such transfer."

I concur in your opinion above expressed. Opinion No. 1299 of this department, under date of February 28, 1916, directed to Hon. Frank B. Pearson, to which you refer, held that:

> "Where the board of education of a county school district, acting under authority of section 4692 G. C., as amended 106 O. L. 397, transfers a part or all of a school district of the county school district to an adjoining district of said county school district and the board of ducation of the local school district, as enlarged by said transfer of territory, acting under authority of section 4726 G. C., as amended 104 O. L. 139, and section 7625 G. C., submits to the electors of said local district the questions of centralizing the schools of said district and of issuing bonds of said district for the purposes authorized by the provisions of said sections 4726 and 7625 of the General Code, and said local board of education, by virtue of the authority conferred upon it by a vote of the electors of said district in favor of said centralization and bond issue, proceeds to take the necessary steps to centralize said schools, said county board of education and the board of education of an adjoining exempted village school district, or city school district, or another county school district, may not, after said centralization proceedings have been commenced and before the same are completed, act jointly, under provision of section 4696 G. C. as amended in 106 O. L. 397, on a petition of the electors of said territory or part thereof, transferred as aforesaid, filed with said county board of education under provision of said section 4694 G. C. as amended, and praying for the transfer of said territory, or part thereof, to said adjoining exempted village school district or city or county school district."

While the proceedings for centralization do not appear from your statement of facts to have advanced so far as the proceedings for centralization had in the case under consideration in the opinion above referred to, the proceedings for centralization in the present case have advanced equally as far as shown by the statement of facts in the case of Fulks et al. v. Wright, 72 O. S. 547, referred to in the above mentioned opinion.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that after the questions of centralization and issuance of bonds to purchase a site and erect and furnish a school building have been submitted to the electors of a rural school district, pursuant to the provisions of sections 4726 (as amended in 104 O. L. 139) and 7625 G. C., the county board of education may not, pursuant to the provision of section 4694 G. C., or section 4692 G. C., 106 O. L. 397, within the period of three years from such centralization, transfer territory from such rural school district to an adjoining exempted village school district or city school district, or to another county school district.

Respectfuly,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS—MAY APPOINT COMMISSIONERS PURSUANT TO SECTIONS 455 AND 457 G. C.—NO APPROPRIATION AVAILABLE AT PRESENT TIME TO PAY THEIR COMPENSATION.

The superintendent of public works may appoint commissioners pursuant to the provisions of sections 455 and 457 G. C., 103 O. L. 125, notwithstanding that at the time of such appointment there is no appropriation available for the payment of their per diem compensation and mileage provided by section 460 G. C., 103 O. L. 126.

The compensation and mileage so provided may not be paid, however, until specific appropriation therefor is made by the legislature.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. Fauver, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 12, 1916, is as follows:

> "This department is in receipt of numerous claims for damages resulting from overflow by reason of breaches in the canals and extreme high waters in the reservoirs.
> "The statutes provide for the appointment of a commission to determine the merits of such claims, but unfortunately no appropriations are available for such purposes.
> "I would like an opinion as to whether or not we can appoint such a commission and return their expenses along with their report to the general assembly."

Section 455 G. C., 103 O. L. 125, provides as follows:

> "When private property is injured by break, leakage or overflow of a canal, slack water, pool, reservoir or other public work, or by the insufficiency or by the filling up of a culvert thereof, or by the washing away of earth caused by a dam under the control of the superintendent of public works, the owner of such property shall apply in writing to the superintendent of public works for damages within one year from the occurrence of the injury, but no such application shall be received after such period."

Section 457 G. C., 103 O. L. 125, in so far as pertinent to your inquiry, provides as follows:

> "Upon the filing of such application the superintendent of public works may appoint three disinterested persons as commissioners to consider the claim."

The duties and authority of such commissioners with respect to such claims are prescribed in sections 458 and 459 of the General Code as amended in the same act.

Section 460 G. C. as amended in 103 O. L. 116, in so far as pertinent to your inquiry, provides as follows:

> "Each commissioner shall receive five dollars for each day of service, and mileage at the rate of two cents per mile when actually engaged in the service > of the state. The costs incurred by the commissioner shall be paid after the presentation of their award and report, upon the approval of the superintendent of public works, from moneys appropriated for the maintenance of the canals, but if the damages awarded do not exceed the costs of the hearing no payment of such damages shall be made. If no damages are awarded the complainant shall pay the costs of the hearing."

It will be noted that the authority conferred by section 457 G. C. supra, upon the superintendent of public works to appoint the commissioners therein named, is conditioned only upon the filing of an application for damages, as provided by section 455 G. C. supra.

You state in your inquiry that no appropriations are available for the payment of the commissioners appointed pursuant to said section 457 G. C. supra. In this statement I concur. Upon an examination of house bill No. 701, 106 O. L. 666, I find no appropriation made for the maintenance of the canals of the state within the meaning of that phrase as found in section 460 G. C. supra, other than the appropriations for specific improvements named and definitely described therein, which said appropriations may not be used for purposes other than those specifically prescribed, and hence are not applicable to the payment of the costs incurred by the commissioners in the performance of their duties under section 457 G. C. et seq.

While by virtue of the provisions of section 22 of article II of the constitution of Ohio, that > "No money shall be drawn from the treasury, except in pursuance of a specific appropriation made by law, and no appropriation shall be made for a longer period than two years."

no payment of the cost incurred by the commissioners appointed by the superintendent of public works, pursuant to the above mentioned statutes, may be paid from the state treasury. As above stated, the authority of the state superintendent of public works to appoint such commissioners, and their authority to perform the duties and exercise the power imposed and conferred upon them by law, is not in any way limited by or conditioned upon the authority to pay their compensation and mileage, or the costs incurred by such commissioners in the performance of their duties.

If, then, claims are regularly filed pursuant to section 455 G. C. supra, it is entirely within the authority of the superintendent of public works to appoint commissioners, as provided in section 457 G. C. supra, and equally within the authority of the commissioners so appointed to perform all the duties upon them imposed by law, pursuant to such appointment, notwithstanding the absence of authority for the payment of the costs incurred by such commissioners or their compensation and mileage from the state treasury.

If such commissioners are so appointed, and pursuant thereto perform the duties imposed upon them by law, the costs by them incurred and their per diem compensation and mileage may not be paid from the state treasury, however, until appropriation is made therefor by the legislature.

Whether the phrase "costs incurred by the commissioner (s)," and the phrase "costs of the hearing," as found in section 460 G. C. supra, include the per diem compensation and mileage of the commissioners, is not altogether clear. A determination of this question is not, however, necessary to an answer to the question here under consideration.

I fail to find any provision for the payment of the costs incurred by the commissioners, or the compensation and mileage of the commissioners, if the same be not included in such costs, other than that of section 460 G. C. supra, and there being no appropriation therefor, as above stated, neither the per diem and mileage of the commissioners nor any costs by them incurred may be paid from the state treasury until appropriation therefor is made by the legislature.

Separate appropriations were made in 104 O. L. 220, for the payment of the compensation and expenses of appraisers for services rendered in 1913. This would indicate a legislative interpretation of the term "costs" which would not include the compensation and mileage of the commissioners. It is also a recognition of the authority to appoint such commissioners in the absence of an appropriation for the payment of their compensation and mileage.

The conclusion above reached is in accord with an opinion of my predecessor Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, addressed to Hon. John I. Miller, superintendent of public works, found at page 427 of the report of the attorney-general for the year 1913, in which it was held:

> "Under section 457, and following, General Code, the damages awarded by the commission to ascertain damages resulting from the overflow and breaches in canal banks, and also the expenses of such commission, are to be paid from moneys specifically appropriated for that purpose. Such appropriation may be made after the damages are awarded and the services have been performed. Such moneys may not be paid from any other fund."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—COUNTY BOARD OF REVISION—NO AUTHORITY FOR PAYMENT OF FEES TO WITNESSES CALLED BY SUCH BOARD—BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SCHOOL DISTRICT MAY CONTRACT WITH BOARD OF ANOTHER DISTRICT FOR ADMISSION OF ITS PUPILS—BOARD MAY ASSIGN SUCH PUPILS TO ATTEND SCHOOL—COMPULSORY EDUCATION LAWS—WHEN PUPILS SUBJECT THERETO.

There is no authority for the payment of fees to witnesses called by the county board of revision, pursuant to the provisions of section 5596 G. C., 106 O. L. 257.

The board of education of one township rural school district may contract with the board of education of another township rural school district for the admission of pupils of the former district into the schools of the latter district and when such contract is made the board of education of the former district may assign pupils therein to the schools of the latter district and compel the attendance of the pupils so assigned, who are subject to the compulsory education laws, to the schools to which they are assigned subject to the rights of such pupils under the provisions of section 7735 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

HON. JOHN M. MARKLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Georgetown, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 15, 1916, is as follows:

> "I wish that you would kindly give me an opinion upon the following questions:
> "First. A complaint has been filed against John E. Lyons by Robert Taylor with reference to the amount of personal property listed by the said

John E. Lyons, in Brown county, Ohio, and the same is set for hearing before the board of revision for Monday, August 21, 1916. It will be necessary to compel the attendance of witnesses at the hearing. The law seems to be silent with reference to the fees paid to such witnesses for their attendance. Kindly advise me as to what fees and mileage, if any, such witnesses will be entitled to.

"Second. There are certain persons of school age, residing in the Clark township school district, Brown county, Ohio, who live about two and a quarter miles from the nearest school in said school district. Of course the board of education is compelled to provide transportation for these pupils who reside more than two miles. The nearest other school to these pupils is in the Lewis township school district of Brown county, Ohio, and is about one and seven-eighth miles from the residence of said pupils. Can the board of education of Clark township school district contract with the board of education of Lewis township to admit these pupils to the Lewis township school, and can they compel the pupils to attend such school in Lewis township?"

In reference to the power of the board of revision to call and examine witnesses, section 5596 G. C., 106 O. L. 257, provides as follows:

"The county board of revision shall in all respects be governed by the laws respecting the valuation of real and personal property and shall make no change of any valuation except in accordance with such laws. The county board of revision may call persons before it and examine them under oath as their own or other's property, moneys, credits and investments to be placed on the tax list and duplicate for taxation, or the value thereof. If a person notified to appear before the board refuses or neglects to appear at the time required, or appearing, refuses to be sworn or answer any question put to him by the board or by its order, the chairman of the board shall make complaints thereof, in writing to the probate judge of the county, who shall proceed against such person in like manner as is provided for in the last subdivision of chapter three, title one, part second, of the General Code."

The payment of witness fees and costs are matters subject wholly to statutory control. A careful examination of the statutes fails to disclose any provision for the payment of fees of witnesses called before the county board of revision, and in the absence of such statutory authority therefore I am of opinion that witnesses called under authority of the above quoted section are not entitled to witness fees.

Your second question involves a consideration of section 7734 G. C., which provides as follows:

"The board of any district may contract with the board of another district for the admission of pupils into any school in such other district on terms agreed upon by such board. The expense so incurred shall be paid out of the school funds of the district sending such pupils."

In opinion No. 742, addressed to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, under date of August 19, 1915, found at page 1558 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915, it was held, under the provision of this section, that:

"The board of education of a school district may lawfully contract with the board of education of another school district for the admission of its pupils into one or more of the schools of such other district and the amount of tuition for such attendance may be fixed by the terms of said contract."

Boards of education are required by section 7644 G. C. to establish such elementary schools as are necessary to provide for the free education of all the youth of school age within the district under its control. By section 7690 G. C. the board of education is given the management and control of all the public schools in the district. Section 7684 G. C. provides as follows:

"Boards of education may make such an assignment of the youth of their respective districts to the schools established by them as in their opinion best will promote the interests of education in their districts."

Since the board of education is authorized to contract with the board of education of another district for the admission of pupils into the schools of such other district, I am inclined to the view that when such contract is entered into by a board of education the school of such other district becomes "established" within the meaning of sections 7644 and 7684 G. C., and the board of education is duly authorized to make assignment of pupils within its district thereto by the last mentioned section. Pupils subject to the compulsory school attendance statute may be compelled to attend the schools to which they are assigned, except when such pupil lives more than one and one-half miles from the school to which he is assigned, in which case such pupil may attend a nearer school in the same district, or, if there be no nearer therein, then a nearer school in another district in all grades separate below the high school, under the provision of section 7735 G. C.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your second question, that the board of education of a township rural school district may contract with the board of education of another such school district for the admission of the pupils of the former into the schools of the latter school district and may compel pupils, subject to the compulsory attendance statute, to attend the schools, when properly assigned thereto of the district so contracted with, if such pupils live within one and one-half miles of such school, or do not live nearer to another school, when the distance to the school to which they are assigned is more than one and one-half miles. If the pupil who is not subject to the compulsory attendance statute chooses to attend school, he may attend the school only to which he is assigned, unless he lives more than one and one-half miles therefrom, in which case such pupil may, under the provisions of said section 7735 G. C., attend any other nearer school in his district or if there de none, any other school in another district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CANAL LANDS—STATE'S LIABILITY FOR NEGLIGENCE WHEN CANALS OVERFLOW ON PRIVATE PROPERTY—DAMAGES—WHEN ALLOWED AND WHEN NOT ALLOWED.

Where by reason of negligence of the officers or agents of the state in the construction and maintenance of a canal into which the natural drainage of adjacent lands has been diverted by the officers or agents of the state, a break, leakage or overflow of the canal results from such natural drainage causing injury to private property which could not have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care on the part of the owner, such state of facts would from a proper basis for the allowance of damages to such property owner under the provisions of section 459 G. C., 103 O. L. 126.

Injury to private property resulting from the overflow of natural streams into the canal, and then on to such property, is not a proper basis for the allowance of damages under section 459 G. C., 103 O. L. 126, unless the overflow of the natural water course originally was caused by negligence of the officers or agents of the state in the construction or maintenance of the canal, and the injury could not have been avoided by the ecercise of ordinary care on the part of the property owner.

Injury to private property resulting from water discharged from artificial drainage by owners of adjacent lands into a canal of the state, without the consent or authority of the state, its officers or agents, breaking or leaking from or overflowing the canal does not form a proper basis for the allowance of damages under section 459 G. C., 103 O. L. 126.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 26, 1916.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 12, 1916, is as follows:

"The seventy-ninth general assembly abandoned that portion of the Ohio canal between Trinway in Muskingum county and the Ohio river in Scioto county, also the Hocking canal between Carroll in Licking county and Nelsonville in Hocking county, likewise the Columbus feeder between Columbus and Lockbourne in Franklin county.

"The feed from pools above the dam in the streams, and from reservoirs, has been cut off so that no water now flows through these canals, except the natural drainage from adjacent lands, and occasionally when natural streams overflow into the canals.

"Adjacent land owners very frequently ditch their lands so that large quantities of water flow into the canal, and in time of floods the canal banks are often broken and adjacent lands flooded, which results in damage claims.

"We would appreciate your opinion as to whether or not the state is liable for damages under these conditions.

"Hoping to have an early reply, fixing the status of the state as to these claims, I am, * * *."

Since the state may not be sued its liability for damage to private property resulting from the maintenance and operation of the canals must be determined from the statutory provisions for the payment of claims of property owners for such damages. In respect to such claims, sections 455 and 459 of the General Code (103 O. L. 125-126) provide as follows:

"Section 455. When private property is injured by a break, leakage, or overflow of a canal, slack water, pool, reservoir or other public work, or by the insufficiency or by the filling up of a culvert thereof, or by the washing away of earth caused by a dam under the control of the superintendent of public works, the owner of such property shall apply in writing to the superintendent of public works for damages, within one year from the occurrence of the injury, but no such application shall be received after such period.

"Section 459. The commissioners shall examine the canal, reservoir, culvert, dam or other work where such injury occurred and the property injured, and hear testimony offered by the applicant and in behalf of the state. If they are of the opinion that the injury resulted from defective construction of any part of the public works, which might have been avoided by the use of ordinary skill or care, or resulted from the want of proper care on the part of the officers or agents of the state in maintaining or repairing the construction of any part of the public works, and that the accident was unavoidable by the use of ordinary care on the part of the applicant, they shall award him such damages as they deem just. The commissioners shall make their decision in writing, subscribe and deliver it to the superintendent of public works, together with the subpoena issued by them, their records and a statement of the number of days they were engaged in the discharge of their duties."

Provision is made in section 457 of the General Code (103 O. L. 125) for the appointment of the commissioners referred to in section 459 of the General Code by the superintendent of public works.

Section 461 of the General Code (103 O. L. 127) provides as follows:

"The superintendent of public works shall cause each decision of the commissioners upon an application for damages to be recorded in the book kept for that purpose. The award of the commissioners, together with all records pertaining thereto, shall be submitted to the general assembly at its next regular session. Payments of compensation for damages so awarded shall be made from moneys specifically appropriated for that purpose."

So, if damage to private property results from a break, leakage or overflow of the canal, or from the insufficiency or by the filling up of a culvert thereof, occasioned by defective construction which might have been avoided by the use of ordinary skill or care, or from the want of proper care on the part of the officers or agents of the state in repairing or maintaining such canal, and such damage was unavoidable by the use of ordinary care on the part of the owner of the damaged property, the commissioners are authorized to award the owner of such property such damages as they deem just.

The facts stated in your inquiry are very limited and general. When reference is made to the natural drainage from adjacent land I infer that it is meant water which has been diverted by the state or its officers or agents from the natural water courses into the canal by reason of its construction and maintenance. In such case the state, in diverting water from the natural water course into the canal, would assume the responsibility of using ordinary care in providing for the restraint of such water so as to protect private property from all injury therefrom which would not have resulted from such water flowing in its natural course. That is to say, it would be the duty of the state to use ordinary care to safeguard private property from injury by water diverted by the state, its officers or agents from its natural course to the extent of that amount of water which might be ordinarily anticipated to flow in or from such natural water course in time of ordinary storms, freshets, and a failure on the part of the officers or agents of the state to exercise such ordinary care in the construction or maintenance and repair of any canal into which they have diverted the water from a natural water course would constitute such negligence as would form a proper basis for an award of just damages by the commissioners to the owner of private property injured by reason of any break, leakage or overflow of such diverted water from the canal.

On the contrary, if a natural water course has been so diverted by the officers or agents of the state as to discharge into a canal, and by reason of such extraordinary freshets or rainfall as in the exercise of good judgment and care could not be anticipated, and a break, leakage or overflow of the canal resulted, the same could not be attributed to any failure to exercise proper care on the part of the officers or agents of the state, and would not, therefore, form a proper basis for an award of damages resulting therefrom.

It is stated that in certain cases adjacent land owners discharge the artificial drainage from their land into the abandoned canals referred to, causing the same in times of heavy rain fall or floods to overflow. I am informed by Mr. R. E. Booton, of your department, that this action on the part of adjacent land owners is wholly without leave or right granted to them by the state, its officers or agents. The discharge of such artificial drainage into the canal is therefore a trespass on the land and on the right of the state, and not an act for which the state, its officers or agents may be held responsible. If the injury to private property results from the water discharged from such artificial drainage overflowing the canal, it cannot be said that such injury is in consequence of the failure of the officers or agents of the state to exercise that ordinary care which would constitute a basis for an award for damages under the provisions of section 459 of the General Code supra.

Where natural watercourses, which are not diverted by the state, its officers or agents, into the canal, in time of flood, overflow their banks and into the canal and then overflow the canal, doing injury to private property, such state of fact would not constitute a proper basis for the allowance of damages unless the natural water course was caused to overflow its banks by the negligence of the officers or agents of the state in the construction or maintenance of the canal and such injury could not have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care on the part of the property owner.

The application of the general principles herein discussed must be determined from the facts in each particular case and such application would be subject to modification by any material fact not herein considered.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MASSILLON STATE HOSPITAL—APPROVAL, CONTRACT FOR CONSTRUCTION OF COTTAGE No. 4.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 29, 1916.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Messers. Richards, McCarty and Bulford, architects for your board for construction of cottage number four at the Massillon State Hospital, have submitted a contract for the construction of said cottage, duly entered into on the 7th day of August, 1916, between your board and The Cullen & Vaughan Company, an Ohio corporation, together with a bond securing the completion of the contract, and also copy of the minutes of your board, of August 7th, 1916, awarding the contract to said The Cullen & Vaughan Company.

It appears from the minutes submitted that your board has determined to exercise alternate No. 7, specified in the specifications and excepted the excavation, your board having itself made such excavation.

I have carefully examined the contract and bond and find the same to be in all respects in compliance with the law and have therefore approved the same and caused the same to be this day filed in the office of the auditor of state.

I am herewith returning the other papers submitted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTIONS FOR IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS IN COLUMBIANA, HANCOCK, VINTON AND WYANDOT COUNTES.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 29, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of August 28, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolutions relating to the following road improvements.

"Columbiana county—Section 'D,' Lisbon-Canton Southern road, Pet. No. 2194, I. C. H. No. 368.

"Hancock county—Section 'A,' Findlay-Kenton road, Pet. No. 2428, I. C. H. No. 221.

"Vinton county—Section 'G,' McArthur-Athens road, Pet. No. 3039, I. C. H. No. 160.

"Vinton county—Section 'G,' McArthur-Logan road, Pet. No. 3040, I. C. H. No. 397.

"Wyandot county—Section 'A,' Kenton-Upper Sandusky road, Pet No. 3116, I. C. H. No. 229."

I find these resolutions to be in regular form, and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, ABSTRACT OF TITLE TO REAL ESTATE ON WHICH IS LOCATED WYANDOTTE BUILDING, FRANKLIN COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 29, 1916.

State Board of Public Buildings, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—At your request I have examined the abstract of title to the following described real estate:

"Situate in the county of Franklin, in the state of Ohio, and in the city of Columbus, being lots numbers one (1), two (2) and three (3), of Ridgeway and Crosby's subdivision of inlot number two hundred and seventy-three (273) in said city, as said lots are numbered and delineated upon the recorded plat thereof of record in deed book No. 13, page 239, recorder's office, Franklin county, Ohio."

From such examination I am of the opinion that said abstract shows a good and merchantable title in The Wyandotte Office Building Company, subject to the following exceptions:

1st. There are a few minor defects in the early history of the title which I deem unimportant and perfectly safe to waive.

2nd. The taxes for the year 1916 which are as yet undetermined.

3rd. No examination made for city assessments.

4th. No examination made in the United States circuit or district courts.

5th. Subject to the rights of the parties in possession not shown of record.

By this objection I mean not only short term tenants but also the location of the building in reference to the lot lines, which latter point can be determined only by surveys.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

OFFICES COMPATIBLE—CLERK OR DEPUTY IN OFFICE OF COUNTY AUDITOR—DEPUTY SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Neither the position of a clerk in the office of a county auditor, nor that of a deputy in said office, is incompatible with the office of deputy sealer of weights and measures, and a person holding the position of deputy sealer of weights and measures may also hold either of the foregoing positions if it is physically possible for him to perform the duties of both.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 30, 1916.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of June 27th, asking my opinion received, and is as follows:

"Can the deputy sealer of weights and measures, appointed under section 2622 General Code, also be a clerk in the office of the county auditor, and work as such at times when not employed as such deputy sealer of weights and measures? In other words, would such positions be incompatible?"

Section 2615 G. C. provides as follows:

"By virtue of his office the county auditor shall be county sealer of weights and measures, and shall be responsible for the preservation of the copies of the original standards delivered to his office. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to see that all state laws relating to weights and measures be strictly enforced throughout his county, and to assist generally in the prosecution of all violations of such laws."

Section 2622 G. C. provides as follows:

> "Each county sealer of weights and measures shall appoint by writing under his hand and seal, a deputy who shall compare weights and measures wherever the same are used or maintained for use within his county, or which are brought to the office of the county sealer for that purpose, with the copies of the original standards in the possession of the county sealer, who shall receive a salary fixed by the county commissioners to be paid by the county, which salary shall be instead of all fees or charges otherwise allowed by law. Such deputy shall also be employed by the county sealer to assist in the prosecution of all violations of laws relating to weights and measures."

There is no statutory requirement that a deputy sealer of weights and measures shall devote his entire time to his duties, as such deputy, and there is nothing in the provisions fixing his duties as such deputy which gives him any control or supervision over the clerks in the office of the county auditor.

Section 2981 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "Such officers may appoint or employ necessary deputies,assistants, clerks, bookkeepers or other employes for their respective offices, fix their compensation and discharge them."

By this section the county auditor is given considerable latitude in the employment of clerks, subject, of course, to the civil service law and to the appropriation made by the county commissioners for the compensation of such clerks. A clerk in the office of the county auditor has no official duty to perform in connection with the work of the deputy sealer of weights and measures, and I know of no reason why a deputy sealer of weights and measures could not be employed as a clerk in the office of the county auditor and receive compensation therefor, provided it is physically possible for him to perform such work without interfering with his duties as deputy sealer of weights and measures. I am therefore of the opinion that a deputy sealer of weights and measures, appointed under section 2622 G. C., may also be employed as a clerk in the office of the county auditor and work at such time when not employed as such deputy sealer of weights and measures and that such positions would not be incompatible.

You also verbally inquire whether the same rule applies to a deputy county auditor, and without any extended discussion of the reasons, you are advised that these two positions are not incompatible, and may be held by the same person if the volume of work in each is such as to enable one person to perform the duties of both.

The enforcement of the county weights and measures law is specifically placed upon the county auditor, as county sealer, and upon the deputy sealer as such, and the duties are in no way especially related to other duties of the county auditor or of deputy county auditors. I am unable to see how in practice there could be any conflict between the duties of the two positions, and it is my opinion that the offices of deputy county auditor and deputy sealer of weights and measures are not incompatible and may be held by the same person, if it is physically possible for one person to perform the duties of both.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION ACT—WHEN ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION UNDER TWO DIFFERENT SECTIONS MAY BE MADE AT SAME TIME TO INJURED EMPLOYE—COMPENSATION FOR TEMPORARY TOTAL DISABILITY—SECTION 1465-79 G. C.—AMOUNT FOR SPECIFIC INJURIES—SECTION 1465-80 G. C.

Where an employe sustains an injury in the course of his employment, which results in the loss of a part or the whole of a member, he shall be awarded compensation for the period of his temporary total disability as provided in section 32 of the Ohio compensation act or section 1465-79 G. C., 103 O. L., 72 et seq., in addition to the amount of compensation provided for specific injuries in the schedule contained in section 33 of the act, or section 1465-80 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 31, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter under date of August 23, 1916, in which you request an opinion with reference to the allowance of compensation under sections 31, 32 and 33 of the Workmen's compensation law of Ohio, or section 1465-78 1465-79 and 1465-80 of the General Code (103 O. L. 72 et seq.), the letter being as follows:

> "We would like to have your opinion as to whether the compensation provided for specific injuries enumerated in the schedule in section 33 of the workmen's compensation act is payable in addition to the compensation provided for temporary total disability by section 32 of said act or whether the amount carried in said schedule includes the amount payable under section 32 for temporary total disability.
> "To illustrate, an employe suffers the loss of the index or first finger of one of his hands as a result of which he is totally disabled for a period of three weeks, at the end of which time he is able to resume work. The schedule in section 33, defining partial disability, provides compensation 'for the loss of the first finger, commonly called the index finger, 66⅔ per cent. of the average weekly wages during 35 weeks.' Is such employe entitled to compensation for total disability under section 32 for the period of such total disability, exclusive of the first week, and, in addition thereto, the amount of compensation provided by the schedule contained in section 33?
> "We have before us your opinion rendered January 20, 1916, relative to the construction of section 33, which does not seem to us to fully answer the question hereinbefore submitted."

Section 31 of the workmen's compensation law,section 1465-78, G. C., is as follows:

> "No compensation shall be allowed for the first week after the injury is received, except the disbursements hereinafter authorized for medical, nurse and hospital services and medicines, and for funeral expenses."

Section 32 of the workmen's compensation law, section 1465-79 G. C., is as follows:

> "In case of temporary disability, the employe shall receive sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of his average weekly wages so long as such disability is total, not to exceed a maximum of twelve dollars per week, and not less than a minimum of five dollars per week, unless the employe's wages shall be less than five dollars per week, in which event he shall receive compensation equal to his full wages, but in no case to continue for more than six years from the date of the injury, or to exceed three thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars."

Section 33 of the workmen's compensation law, section 1465-80 G. C., is as follows:

"In case of injury resulting in partial disability, the employe shall receive sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of the impairment of his earning capacity during the continuance thereof, not to exceed a maximum of twelve dollars per week, or a greater sum in the aggregate than thirty-seven hundred and fifty dollars. In cases included in the following schedule, the disability in each case shall be deemed to continue for the period specified and the compensation so paid for such injury shall be as specified herein, to wit:" (Here follows a schedule of specific amounts to be paid in case the injured employe has lost a part of or a whole member.)"

Section 31 supra, provides that no compensation shall be allowed for the first week after the injury, except disbursements for medical, nurse and hospital services and medicines and funeral expenses, and need not be considered in answering your question.

The question submitted in your letter, in short, is as to whether an employe that loses a part of, or the whole of, a member, is entitled to compensation for a temporary disability in addition to the amount specified in the schedule of section 33 for the loss of a part or all of a member. The schedule in section 33 provides that in the cases enumerated in the schedule compensation shall be paid for a specified period. It would seem from this schedule that for an injury resulting in a partial disability compensation could not be paid for less period than that provided in the schedule. The compensation provided for in the schedule must be paid notwithstanding there is a temporary disability occurring from the same injury. The compensation as fixed by the schedule is a certain sum fixed by law for the loss of a member, and for the reason that the loss deprives the employe of the use of that member for the remainder of his life, and puts the employe under a handicap resulting from such loss, which might be difficult to estimate, and for this reason it seems that the legislature determined that the compensation for the loss of certain members shall be as specified in the schedule. The amounts so specified are given to the employe on the theory that the loss of a member is worth a certain specified amount, and the payment of compensation to an employe as specified in the schedule is supposed to make him whole for the loss of the member.

Section 32 supra, provides that in case of temporary disability the employe shall receive 66⅔ per cent. of the average weekly wage so long as such disability is total not, however, to exceed a maximum of $12.00 per week, nor less than a minimum of $5.00 per week, unless the employe's wages are less than $5.00 per week, and then he shall receive compensation equal to his full wages, but in no case to continue for more than six years, nor exceed in amount $3,750.00.

When an employe sustains an injury resulting in the loss of a part of, or the whole of, a member, he at the same time sustains a temporary disability, and compensation should be awarded for a temporary disability according to section 32 supra.

Section 33 supra, provides for the payment of compensation for a partial disability. It provides that the injured employe shall receive 66⅔ per cent .of the impairment of his earning capacity during the continuance thereof, not, however, to exceed more than $3,750.00, and for certain specified injuries named in the schedule, which is part of section 33, he shall receive 66⅔ per cent. of his average weekly wages for a specified number of weeks. There is nothing in section 33 which provides that the compensation awarded according to the schedule for a loss of part of, or the whole of, a member, shall be exclusive compensation for a temporary disability caused by the loss of the member.

The New York compensation act contains a schedule somewhat similar to that contained in section 33 of the Ohio act. The New York supreme court, appellate division, second department, on May 12, 1916, in the case of Wagner v. The American Brewing Company, 158 N. Y. supplement, p. 1043, in the first branch of the syllabus said:

> "Under the workmen's compensation law (consolidated laws, chapter 67) the employer or his insurer is to provide compensation for all personal injuries that involve permanent or temporary disability, whether total or partial, the schedule of section 15 enumerating particular injuries not being exclusive."

The question submitted in your letter is almost identical with the one which arose under the workmen's compensation law of the state of New Jersey. The New Jersey law in section 2, clause (a), provides compensation for injuries producing temporary disability, and in clause (b) provides for disability total in character and permanent in character. Clause (c) provides for disability total in character but permanent in quality, and it is further provided in this section and clause that in cases included in its schedule that the compensation "shall be that named in the schedule."

In the case of The Nitram Company v. Creigh, reported in 86 Atl., 435, compensation was awarded for temporary disability, to which was added the period specified in the schedule for a partial disability. The employer objected to the award; the case was taken to the supreme court of that state, and the award was sustained. The syllabus of the case is as follows:

> "Where a servant employed under the workmen's compensation law got his fingers smashed, and some of them were amputated, and such injury produced temporary disability partially due to an infection preventing him from going to work, damages were properly allowed both under class 'A' concerning temporary disability and class 'C' providing for disability partial in character, but permanent in quality, even though the damages would exceed the maximum recovered under class 'B' relating to total and permanent disability."

In another case in New Jersey, the case of Bonaldi v. Hamburg-American line 36 N. J. L. J., 32, an employe losing a leg was awarded the specific indemnity fixed therefor by the statute and was also allowed compensation during the actual disability.

A similar ruling was made in Loughman v. Home Brewing Company, 36 N. J. L. J., 113, where the injury was a Potts fracture attended by permanent total disability compensation was awarded not only for permanent total disability but also for temporary disability.

In Holt v. Wood Brothers, the Illinois industrial board on April 1, 1914, held that where an employe has lost all the fingers of the left hand leaving the palm of the hand and the thumb complete, and he also lost his first, second and third fingers of the right hand, an award was made of $8.00 per week for 150 weeks for the loss of the use of the left hand, and $8.00 per week for 85 weeks for the loss of the fingers of the right hand, and $96.00 for the temporary total incapacity.

Therefore, in answer to your question as to whether compensation for temporary disability can be paid to an employe who sustains an injury which results in the loss of a member for which compensation is provided in the schedule to section 33 of the act, I am of the opinion that compensation should also be paid for the temporary disability as provided in section 32 in addition to the allowances specified in the schedule of section 33 of the workmen's compensation act, supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—AUTHORIZED TO ERECT STABLES FOR SHELTER OF VEHICLES, HORSES AND CONVEYANCES OF PUPILS WHO DRIVE TO SCHOOL.

Boards of education are authorized, under the provisions of section 7620 G. C., where the same is necessary for the convenience of pupils who drive to school, to erect a stable for the shelter and protection of the vehicles, horses and conveyances of such pupils.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 31, 1916.

HON. DEAN E. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your communication under date of August 25, 1916, you make the following inquiry:

> "May boards of education use funds in their hands for the purpose of erecting a stable for the accommodation of such of their pupils as drive to school?"

I am unaware of any statutory provision which makes specific mention of the erection or construction of a stable for the purpose mentioned in your inquiry, or for any other purpose. It is provided, however, by section 7620 G. C. that:

> "The board of education of a district may build, enlarge, prepare and furnish the necessary school houses, purchase or lease sites therefor, or rights of way thereto, or purchase or lease real estate to be used as playgrounds for children, or rent suitable school houses, provide the necessary apparatus and make all other necessary provisions for the schools under its control. It also shall provide fuel for schools, build and keep in good repair fences inclosing such school houses, when deemed desirable plant shade and ornamental trees on the school grounds, and make all other provisions necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools within the subdistricts."

In view of the comprehensive language of the above section, and the character of its specific provisions, I am inclined to conclude that it was the legislative intent, in the enactment of this section, to confer upon boards of education a wide discretion in the determination of the character of provisions for the schools under its control and other provisions necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools within its district and that such section should be given a liberal construction to the end that its purposes may be fully carried out.

Under authority of the provisions of the above quoted section, which were then found in section 3987 of the Revised Statutes, my predecessor, Hon. Wade H. Ellis, held in an opinion to Hon. Edward B. Follett, prosecuting attorney of Washington county, found at page 249 of the Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1907, that:

"Boards of education may construct such foot bridges over creeks and other streams as are deemed necessary for the 'convenience' of the public schools under the authority conferred by section 3987 Revised Statutes."

My predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, also held in an opinion under date of February 13, 1914, addressed to Hon. Ben A. Bickley, prosecuting attorney, and found at page 247 of the Report of the Attorney-General for that year, that:

"Where a township district school house is located upon a private road, other lawful means for securing a necessary and convenient approach to the school house being absent, it is proper for the board of education to provide for the construction of a bridge on this road, under the provisions of section 7620, General Code."

I have no hesitancy in reaching the conclusion that where by reason of centralization of the schools authorized by law or the location thereof it is reasonably necessary, or adds substantially to the convenience of pupils that they drive to school, the construction of a stable for the shelter and protection of the conveniences of such pupils is a provision for the convenience and prosperity of the schools to which such pupils are assigned within the meaning and purpose of section 7620 G. C. supra.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your question, that where the same is necessary for the convenience of the pupils who are assigned to the schools of a district that a stable be erected for the shelter and protection of their conveyances, it is within the power of the board of education to construct such stable, shed or shelter, as in their judgment will provide for the convenience of the pupils of such school.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—RIGHT TO COMPEL RAILWAY TRACKS TO BE MOVED—OBSTRUCTIONS IN HIGHWAYS—PROCEDURE — WHAT NOTICE TO RAILROAD COMPANY SHOULD CONTAIN.

Where the state highway commissioner, under authority of section 7204 G. C., desires to secure the removal and relocation of railway tracks, which tracks constitute an obstruction in a highway, the first step to be taken is to notify the company owning such tracks and direct it to remove the obstruction. The notice should describe the highway obstructed, and in case the tracks are to be moved to the side of the road, should set forth the exact line outside of which the tracks are to be relocated.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 31, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of August 11, 1916, transmitting to me a copy of your letter to Mr. J. H. Sundmaker, chief engineer of the Ohio Electric Railway Company, dated May 1, 1916, a copy of his answer dated May 12, 1916, a copy of your reply dated May 15, 1916, and a copy of a letter from division engineer R. N. Waid, dated August 8, 1916. This correspondence relates to the removal of the Ohio Electric Railway Company's equipment from the roadway now being constructed by your department on section "M" of the national road in Licking county. In your letter of May 1st, to Mr. Sundmaker, you refer to certain negotiations looking toward the shifting of the line of the roadway being constructed by your department, the object of such negotiations being to avoid the necessity of shifting the tracks of the company and it appears that nothing tangible has resulted from these negotiations. You advised Mr. Sundmaker that the contractor has done considerable work on lines originally laid out for the proposed improvement and it also appears that certain property and track equipment of the Ohio Electric Railway Company will stand upon or occupy a portion of the highway as the same will eventually be constructed. In this letter you notify Mr. Sundmaker, on behalf of the Ohio Electric Railway Company, to move such obstructions as will permit the completion of the construction of the highway, as provided for in your plans for the improvement, and you advise Mr. Sundmaker that the chief highway engineer is ready to designate all railway property that will interfere with the construction of the road in question and also to designate the points at which such property may be located beyond the limits of your proposed work so as not to interfere with the use and maintenance of the highway. Mr. Sundmaker, in his reply to this communication under date of May 12th, discusses the possibility of shifting the roadway to the north to prevent interference with the road bed of the company and states that the company has been unable to reach a satisfactory agreement with the contractor which would permit of working out the matter in that manner. Mr. Sundmaker also refers to the franchise rights of the company and states that the entire matter has been submitted to its attorneys. He says that if advised by its attorneys the company will proceed to relocate its tracks, but expresses the hope that such relocation may prove to be unnecessary.

Your reply to Mr. Sundmaker, under date of May 15, 1916, merely refers to your position in the matter and advises him that in the event of the failure of the company to move its tracks, you will find it necessary to refer the matter to this department. Mr. Waid's letter, under date of August 8, 1916, advises you that the company has made no move to get its poles or tracks out of the way and that it will be possible for the contractor to place his macadam without anything being moved but that when the road is completed the company's pole line will be in the edge of the macadam and its tracks so close to the road that there will not be room for any berme and ditch at some points.

You state that in addition to the demand of your department that the Ohio Electric Railway Company remove these obstructions, the county commissioners of Licking county made a similar written request under date of May 2, 1916, that it is apparent that the company intends to take no voluntary action in the premises and that you are referring the matter to this department with the request that I take the necessary steps to require the railway company to comply with your demands.

The pertinent section of the General Code is section 161 of the Cass highway law, section 7204 G. C., which section was fully discussed in opinion No. 855 of this department, rendered to you on September 22, 1915, and found at page 1822 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for that year. The section in question reads as follows:

> "It shall be the duty of the owners or occupants of lands situated along the highways to remove all obstructions within the bounds of the highways which have been placed there either by themselves or their agents, or with their consent. It shall be the duty of all telephone, telegraph, steam or electric railway, or other electrical companies, oil, gas, water or public service companies of any kind, to remove their poles and wires, connected therewith, or any tracks, switches, spurs, or oil, gas or water pipes, mains, conduits or other objects when the same, in the opinion of the county highway superintendent, constitute obstructions in the highway or interfere with the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of the highway or use thereof, by the traveling public, subject, however, to the rights of any such company to be or remain in such highway, by virtue of any grant or franchise to said company. If, in the opinion of the county highway superintendent such companies have obstructed said highway, said highway superintendent shall forthwith notify the county commissioners who shall cause notice to be served on said owner, occupant or company, directing the removal of said obstructions and if said owner, occupant or company shall not within five days proceed to remove said obstruction and complete the same within a reasonable time, the county highway superintendent, upon order of the county commissioner may remove said obstructions. The expense thereby incurred shall be paid in the first instance out of money levied and collected and available for highway purposes, and the amount thereof shall be certified to the proper officials to be placed upon the tax duplicate against the property of such owner, occupant or company, as provided by law, to be collected as other taxes, and the proper fund shall be reimbursed out of the money so collected, or the cost of removing such obstructions may be collected from the owner, occupant or company by civil action by the county commissioners or township trustees.

"All such persons, firms or corporations shall be required to reconstruct or relocate their properties or any part thereof upon such public highway, upon the order of the proper authorities if in the opinion of such authorities the same constitute an obstruction in such public highway."

It will be unnecessary to again discuss the force and effect of this section. The second paragraph thereof is especially applicable to the situation, which now presents itself, and since this highway is being improved by your department, it is manifest that your department is the proper authority to make an order for the relocation of the tracks of the company, which order must, of course, be based upon a finding that the tracks as at present located constitute an obstruction in the highway. You have already made such a finding and have communicated the same and also your order in the premises to the chief engineer of the company, but before taking any other or further actions in the premises, it is my view that a more formal and definite order should be prepared and served upon the company. I will be glad to prepare this order upon being furnished with the necessary information. I will need to know the exact points in the highway between which it is necessary to relocate the tracks of the company and the exact line outside of which such tracks must be relocated in order to permit of the completion of the improvement projected by you. The description of the tracks, the relocation of which is required, and the description of the line outside of which the same must be relocated should be so complete and definite as to admit of no misunderstanding and to fully advise the company as to exactly what action is required of it in the premises.

It is my view that after this notice is prepared, it should, in order to avoid any question, be served personally upon the president of the company or upon the vice-president, in case the president cannot be found. If you will kindly furnish me with the necessary information, the order will be promptly prepared and forwarded to you.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—AUTHORIZATION TO RE-ESTABLISH SUSPENDED SCHOOL—MUST FIND TWELVE OR MORE PUPILS QUALIFIED WHO ARE ENROLLED IN ATTENDANCE AT SOME SCHOOL.

To authorize the re-establishment of a school which has been suspended under the provisions of section 7730 G. C., 106 O. L. 396, there must be found in such district twelve or more pupils who are qualified under section 7681 G. C., 106 O. L. 489, to attend school and who are enrolled as in attendance at some school.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 31, 1916.

HON. FORREST G. LONG, Prosecuting Attorney, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 15, 1916, is as follows:

"I would be pleased to have your opinion on the following:

"First. A certain school in one of our rural districts was duly suspended under authority of section 7730 of the General Code of Ohio, about two or three months ago. Said school or suspended district now has within its boundaries more than twelve pupils of lawful school age. May the board under authority of section 7730 of the General Code now re-establish such school, or must said board wait until the pupils of said suspended district have first enrolled in some other school? In other words, does the word enrollment as used in the latter part of said section strictly mean that said pupils must first have their names entered on the enrollment book of some school, or does said term 'enrollment' only mean that said pupils shall reside within said district?

"Second. Section 7811 of the General Code provides how a county board of school examiners shall be constituted. Where said section refers to a district superintendent, does it mean also a superintendent over a special supervision district as is provided in section 4740 of the General Code? In other words, may a superintendent over a special supervision district as is provided in section 4740 of the General Code be appointed on said board of school examiners as a district superintendent?

"I would be very glad indeed if I could have an early reply on these two questions, as the rights of certain persons here will be much affected by your opinion."

Section 7730 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 396, to which you refer, provides as follows:

"The board of education of any rural or village school district may suspend any or all schools in any rural or village school district. Upon such suspension the board in such village school district may provide, and in such rural school district shall provide for the conveyance of pupils attending such schools, to a public school in the rural or village district, or to a public school in another district. When the average daily attendance of any school for the preceding year has been below ten, such school shall be suspended and the pupils transferred to another school or schools when directed to do so by the county board of education. No school of any rural district shall be suspended until ten days' notice has been given by the board of education of such district. Such notice shall be posted in five conspicuous places within such village or rural school district; provided, however, that any suspended > school as herein provided, may be re-established by the suspending authority upon its own initiative, or upon a petition asking for re-establishment, signed by a majority of the voters of the suspended district, at any time the school enrollment of the said suspended district shows twelve or more pupils of lawful school age."

Referring to the phrase "at any time the school enrollment of the said suspended district shows twelve or more pupils of lawful school age," it is said in opinion No. 827 of this department, addressed to Hon. Frank B. Grove, prosecuting attorney, found at page 1754 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915, that:

> "The above phrase means, when taken in connection with the latter provision of section 7730 G. C. * * * that any suspended school may be re-established in the manner provided in said section whenever the number of pupils, who, under the provisions of section 7681 G. C. as amended in 106 O. L. 489, are qualified to attend the schools in the suspended district when the same is re-established, and who are enrolled in another school or schools to which they have been transferred by order of the board of education, is twelve or more."

It is thus held that before a pupil who is qualified to attend school in a suspended district, under the provisions of section 7681 G. C., 106 O. L. 489, may be counted in determining whether or not "the school enrollment of the said suspended district shows twelve or more pupils of lawful school age," such pupil must be enrolled as a pupil in some school. There seems ample reason for so limiting the power to re-establish the suspended school. A case may readily be imagined in which the number of pupils in a district, who are qualified to attend schools under the provision of section 7681 G. C. supra, is in excess of twelve and at the same time the number of such pupils who are subject to the compulsory education laws and may be compelled to attend school is much below twelve. If those pupils who reside in such district, who are not subject to compulsory attendance, do not choose to attend the schools so re-established, the attendance thereof, would, of necessity, be less than twelve and the reason for re-establishment of such school therefore fails.

A careful examination of the provisions of said section 7730, as amended, discloses the manifest purpose of the legislature that schools shall not be maintained when the average attendance thereof falls below ten, and it can hardly be said that the board of education would be warranted in assuming that the attendance of a re-established school would be twelve or more, in the absence of such number of pupils within such district who are subject to compulsory attendance, although there is such number of pupils qualified within the provisions of section 7681 G. C. supra, who, if they choose to attend school, might make the average daily attendance in excess of twelve.If, however, there are twelve or more pupils residing in the district in which a school has been suspended, under the provisions of section 7730 G. C., who are enrolled in another district, such enrollment would, it would seem, afford sufficient evidence of the probable attendance of such suspended school when re-established to warrant such re-establishment and such attendance as is contemplated by the provisions of said section 7730.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your first question, that to authorize the re-establishment of a school which has been suspended under the provisions of section 7730 G. C. supra, there must be found in such district twelve pupils who are qualified, under section 7681 G. C., 106 O. L. 489, to attend school, and who are enrolled as in attendance at some school.

Your second question is fully answered in opinion No. 1861, addressed to Hon.

Frank B. Pearson, superintendent of public instruction, under date of August 19, 1916, copy of which is herewith enclosed for your information.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TRUST COMPANIES—"MUNICIPAL BONDS"—BONDS OF MAGISTERIAL DISTRICT OF WEST VIRGINIA NOT BONDS OF MUNICIPALITY WITHIN MEANING OF THAT TERM AS USED IN SECTION 9778 G. C.

Bonds of a magisterial district of West Virginia are not bonds of a municipality within the meaning of that term as used in section 9778 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 1, 1916.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of August 23rd you enclose a communication from The Tillotson & Wolcott Company of Cleveland, Ohio, requesting your opinion as to whether bonds of magisterial districts of West Virginia may be deposited with you as treasurer of state under provision of section 9778 G. C. for the purposes mentioned in said section, and you request my opinion on the question submitted to you.

The letter of The Tillotson & Wolcott Company reads as follows:

> "We wish to be advised whether the bonds of magisterial districts of West Virginia are eligible as deposits with you under the terms of section 9778 of the Code.
> "This section provides, as you know, for deposits by trust companies of certain specified amounts, either in cash or in bonds. The bonds that are eligible are described as follows: 'Bonds of the United States, or of this state, or any municipality or county therein, or in any other state, etc.'
> "In general, a magisterial district in West Virginia corresponds to a township in Ohio. The bonds of magisterial district are issued by the county, on behalf of the district, and are issued by the county officers. They are, of course, included within the general term 'municipal bonds.'
> "It occurs to us that probably you have already passed on this question, and if so, we should be glad to know what your ruling is. If there never has been a ruling, we would be obliged to you if you would submit the question to the attorney-general.
> "We enclose herewith one of our circulars, describing certain issues of these bonds for whatever value it may be to you."

The answer to the question submitted by you depends upon the answer to the question whether the bonds above referred to are bonds of a "municipality" within the meaning of that term as used in section 9778 G. C., which provides as follows:

> "No such corporation, either foreign or domestic, shall accept trusts which may be vested in, transferred or committed to it by an individual, or court, until its paid in capital is at least one hundred thousand dollars, and until such corporation has deposited with the treasurer of state in cash fifty thousand dollars if its capital is two hundred thousand dollars or less, and one hundred thousand dollars if its capital is more than two hundred thousand dollars, except that, the full amount of such deposit by such corporation may be in bonds of the United States, or of this state, or any municipality or county therein, or in any other state, or in the first mortgage bonds of any railroad corporation that for five years last past paid dividends of at least three per cent. on its common stock."

It appears that in your letter addressed to The Tillotson & Wolcott Company on August 28th you questioned the authority of said company for its statement that the bonds in question "are, of course, included within the general term 'municipal bonds.' " You submit for my consideration the letter addressed to you by Mr. J. W. Tyler, office counsel of said company, under date of August 29th, in answer to your inquiry, which letter is in part as follows:

"Our authority for the statement is the fact that the term 'municipal bonds' as used in the every day course of business of investment bankers, includes all bonds issued by political subdivisions, or by municipal or quasi-municipal corporations as distinquished from private corporations; in other words, if you should ask any bond man if a magisterial bond, or a township bond, was a municipal bond, his answer would unhesitatingly be in the affirmative.

"If you will turn to Dillon's Work on Municipal Corporations, vol. II, chapter 20, you will notice that it is headed 'Municipal Bonds.' It will also be noted that the chapter deals with the bonds of cities, villages, counties, townships and districts,—all under this title. For instance: In section 880, on page 1352, is this sentence:'Municipal bonds in the usual form, containing words of negotiability, with coupons attached, are absolute, etc.' In the next section, 181, is found at the beginning, this language: 'Negotiable bonds of the kind here referred to,' (by which, of course, he means the municipal bonds spoken of in his preceding section) 'have been issued by municipal corporations proper * * * and by counties * * * and by organized townships * * * and by school districts.' The author does not mention 'magisterial districts,' by name, but they are the same as townships.

"Or, turn to Daniel on 'Negotiable Instruments,' vol. II, section 1518, with which chapter 48 opens: You will find this language,—'Municipal bonds constitute a vast portion of the wealth of the country, etc.' This section is followed by other sections defining municipal corporations, from which it is clear that the term 'municipal' is not confined to a city or village but includes all political subdivisions."

Again, turn to chapter 2 of Harris on 'Municipal Bonds': The first sentence reads as follows:"

" 'By the term "municipal bonds" is meant evidences of indebtedness, issued by cities, incorporated towns, counties, townships, school districts, and other public corporate bodies, negotiable in form, payable at a designated future time, bearing interest payable annually, or semi-annually, and usually having coupons attached evidencing the several installments of interest.' "

Upon an examination of the constitution and statutes of the state of West Virginia I find that the statement of Mr. Tyler that "in general, a magisterial district in West Virginia corresponds to a township in Ohio," and that "the bonds of magisterial districts are issued by the county on behalf of the district, and are issued by the county officers" is correct. The county officers referred to are the members of the county court which corresponds, generally speaking, to a board of county commissioners in this state and the authority of said officers to issue said bonds under the conditions prescribed by statute and for the purposes therein set forth, is clear. In view of the strict limitations under which said bonds are issued, the high character of this class of securities cannot be questioned. Moreover, in so far as the general use of the term "municipal bonds" is concerned, the force of the reasoning given and authorities cited by Mr. Tyler in support of the proposition that the bonds in question are included in said class, must be conceded.

It will be remembered, however, that in opinion No. 1314 of this department, rendered to you on March 3, 1916, I held that the provisions of section 9778 G. C. supra, authorizing you to accept bonds of municipalities or counties of another state in lieu of cash, should be strictly construed. While I was of the opinion that the road and bridge county warrants of Atascosa county, Texas, under consideration in said opinion, had many of the distinguishing characteristics of a bond and constituted valid obligations of said county, nevertheless I advised you that they were not bonds within the meaning of said section 9778 G. C.

In opinion No. 1778 of the department, rendered to you on June 28, 1916, you were advised that you are not authorized by provision of said section to accept legally issued bonds of a school district in this state. It is evident, however, that such bonds would be "municipal bonds" within the meaning of that term as above defined in the citations of Mr. Tyler.

In so far as the statutes of Ohio are concerned, the term "municipality" has a well defined meaning and its application in this state is clearly limited to cities and villages regularly incorporated in the manner provided by law. I do not think it can be said that the legislature, in enacting the provisions of said section 9778 G. C. intended to give to the term "municipality" the general meaning contended for by the representative of The Tillotson & Wolcott Company. It seems clear to my mind that the bonds of a municipality in this state, which may be deposited with you as treasurer of state, under provision of section 9778 G. C. are those of a city or village duly incorporated under the statutes of Ohio and of similar incorporations in another state. While the statutes of West Virginia provide for the incorporation of cities, towns and villages, no provision is made for the incorporation of a magisterial district as such.

I am of the opinion therefore, in answer to the question submitted by you, that you are not authorized by provision of said section 9778 G. C. to accept bonds of magisterial districts of West Virginia for the purposes mentioned in said section.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTIONS FOR ROAD IMPROVEMENTS IN GALLIA, GEAUGA, LAWRENCE, MERCER, PICKAWAY, PREBLE, PUTNAM, ROSS, SANDUSKY AND VINTON COUNTIES.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 1, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of August 29, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolutions relating to the following road improvements:

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—REGULATION OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE CEMETERIES.

By the provisions of section 3622 G. C. municipal corporations are authorized to regulate public and private cemeteries within their corporate limits and by the provisions of section 4157 G. C. may prohibit the interment of the dead within said limits. Therefore, the owner of a private lot situated within the corporate limits of a city who desires to use said lot for private burial purposes should first have the permission of the council of said city so to do.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 1, 1916.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS, Prosecuting Attorney, Elyria, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have a letter of the date of August 23, 1916, from Hon. Frank A. Stetson, assistant prosecuting attorney, as follows:

"Some days ago I talked by phone with your assistant, Mr. Ballard, concerning a matter in which a written opinion is desired. I restate the facts and inquiry, so that there may be no misunderstanding in the matter.

"I inclose a pencil sketch showing the location of the property concerning the use of which inquiry is made, the premises being marked with an 'X' on the sketch.

"The city of Elyria owns a cemetery within its boundaries. Adjoining this cemetery is a lot of land which has been purchased by an individual, to be used for private burial purposes. It is not a part of the Elyria cemetery, nor is it intended by conveyance or otherwise to be made a part thereof.

"My inquiry is: What, if anything, should be done or accomplished before the property may be used for private burial purposes by the person owning the legal title in fee simple to the premises?"

From the statements made by you and the pencil sketch attached to your letter, it appears that the owner of a certain lot abutting and adjoining a public cemetery owned by your city, both lot and cemetery being within the corporate limits of said city, desires to use said lot for private burial purposes. Said lot is not a part of said cemetery and is situate near the intersection of two streets, and is surrounded on two sides by lots occupied for residence purposes. Many other lots so occupied are situate within the immediate vicinity of the lot in question.

You inquire what legal steps are necessary to enable the owner of said lot to use it for the purposes aforesaid. So far as I am able to ascertain, there are no specific statutory provisions governing the establishment and maintenance of a private cemetery under the circumstances aforesaid.

It is, however, provided in section 3616 G. C. that:

> "All municipal corporations shall have the general powers mentioned in this chapter, and council may provide by ordinance or resolution for the exercise and enforcement of them."

Among the powers thus delegated to all municipal corporations are those defined in section 3622 G. C., which provides as follows:

> "To provide public cemeteries and crematories for the burial or incineration of the dead and to regulate public and private cemeteries."

The power to regulate, so as aforesaid delegated to a municipal corporation, includes the power to determine the location of all cemeteries within the corporate limits, and if any doubt exists as to such control, it is dissipated by the delegation of further powers conferred upon such corporations in this respect, which are found in the provisions of section 4157 G. C., which provides as follows:

> "Council may prohibit the interment of the dead within the corporation limits, and for the purpose of making such prohibition effective may not only impose proper fines and penalties, but shall also have power to cause any body interred contrary thereto to be taken up and buried without the limits of the corporation."

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutory law, it would seem to be at least a necessary precaution on the part of the owner of the lot in question, before he attempts to use such lot for burial purposes, to have the permission of the municipal authorities so to do, and an application for such permission should be made to council. In this connection it must also be noted that the owners and occupiers of the adjoining lots aforesaid, and also those living on lots situate within such distance of the lot in question as to be affected by its use as a cemetery or private burial place, may have objections to such use that might appeal to a court of equity and result in litigation which would prevent such use entirely. These questions, however, are matters which involve private rights, with which we have no concern in this opinion.

The above observations furnish as definite an answer as can be given to your inquiry.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION—APPROPRIATION MADE FOR DEFINITE NUMBER OF EMPLOYES CANNOT BE USED TO PAY COMPENSATION TO EMPLOYES IN EXCESS OF DEFINITE NUMBER.

An appropriation made for a definite number of employes cannot be used to pay compensation to employes in excess of the definite number.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 1, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of August 29th, to the following effect:

"Under the appropriation made for the industrial commission carried as 'Personal Service A-1 Salaries,' we have as of June 30, 1916, several thousand dollars unused balance caused through unavoidable delay in filling positions. A specific example is as follows:

"Under state insurance an appropriation was made by the legislature for five claim investigators (one of whom shall be a woman), $6,600.00

"This appropriation was divided as follows:

"Two male claim investigators at $1,200 each	$2,400.00
"One female claim investigator at $1,200	1,200.00
"Two male claim investigators at $1,500 each	3,000.0
"Total	$6,600.00

"On May 5, 1916, the industrial commission promoted P. T. Zimmerman, a $1,200 claim investigator, to a $1,500 salary as claim investigator, thus displacing John J. Adams, a provisional appointee, whose salary was $1,500 per year. Mr. Zimmerman's promotion became effective May 16, 1916, and the appointment of a claim investigator to succeed him at $1,200 a year did not become effective until July 1, 1916. The unused balance of the salary of one claim investigator from May 16 to June 30, 1916, both inclusive, was, therefore, $150.00.

"Miss Inez Morrow, a stenographer regularly employed by the commission at a salary of $900.00 per year, was promoted from the executive department to the actuarial department, effective August 1, 1916, at a salary of $1,080 per year, leaving an unused balance of the appropriation under 'Executive and General,' designated at 'Nine Clerks and Stenographers,' of $37.50 on August 16, 1916, her successor not having been appointed up to the last named date. All of the appropriation of $8,310 made for 'Nine Clerks and Stenographers' would be consumed during the year, provided all of the clerks and stenographers were employed all of the time.

"The industrial commission respectfully requests of you an opinion as to whether or not said unused balance of $150.00 is now available for use in the employment of an additional claim investigator, five being already employed, and whether or not the unused balance of $37.50, which was not used on account of the fact that no successor to Miss Morrow was appointed prior to August 16, 1916, is available for the employment of another clerk or stenographer in addition to the nine clerks and stenographers regularly appropriated for in the appropriation bill, and now employed by the commission."

The first appropriation to which you refer, to wit, the appropriation made for five claim investigators under state insurance, is found in house bill 701, 106 O. L. 696, as follows:

"5 claim investigators (one of whom shall be a woman), $6,600."

The other appropriation to which you refer, to wit, appropriation under executive and general, is found in house bill 701, 106 O. L. 695, as follows:

"9 clerks and stenographers, $8,310."

Section 9 of house bill No. 701, 106 O. L. 828, provides as follows:

"Each department, board or commission for which an appropriation is made in section 2 or 3 of this act for the payment of the salaries of a specified number of employes whose salaries are not fixed by law shall, within ten days after July 1, 1915, as to appropriation accounts created by section 2 of this act, and on or before July 1, 1916, as to such accounts created by section 3 of this act, and subject to the provisions of this section, apportion such appropriation account and assign to each position to which the same relates a specified amount or part thereof. Such department, board or commission shall file such apportionment, in writing, with the president of the board provided for in section 4 of this act, which board shall examine the same and see that the provisions of law and of this act are complied with in making such apportionment. Said board may change such apportionment in order to comply with such law or the provisions of this act, and when satisfied that the same is in all respects legal and in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall certify such apportionment, with any modification it may make, to the auditor of state, with the approval of a majority of its members endorsed thereon. Subject to the approval of said board, any department, board or commission may change the salary or compensation attached to any such position under its control. No department, board or commission may apportion or expend, nor may the board provided for in section 4 of this act permit to be apportioned or expended, the total amount of any such appropriation in the payment of salaries of a less number of assistants, clerks or employes from that specified in such an appropriation; but in the event that fewer than the specified number of assistants, clerks or other employes are paid from such total appropriation, such department, board or commission and the board shall assign to each vacant position to which such appropriation relates to a substantial salary, having regard to the grade of service."

The appropriations made in house bill No. 701 are subject to the provisions of section 9.

It appears that in pursuance of section 9 of said bill your board divided the first appropriation herein referred to, as appears in your letter, as follows:

"Two male claim investigators $1,200.00 each	$2,400.00
"One female claim investigator at $1,200.00	1,200.00
"Two male claim investigators at $1,500.00 each	3,000.00
Total	$6,600.00"

From the books of the auditor of state I find that your board divided the second appropriation, referred to in your letter, as follows:

"Appropriations for nine clerks and stenographers:

"Execptive Department		$8,310.00
"One stenographer	$1,050.00
"One stenographer	900.00
"One stenographer	900.00
"One stenographer	900.00
"One clerk	1,080.00
"One clerk	1,020.00
"One clerk	1,020.00
"One clerk (vacancy)	600.00
"One stenographer	840.00
"		$8,310.00"

In view of the provisions of section 9 of house bill No. 701, which requires a division of a lump sum for various employes whose salaries are not fixed by law, into definite salaries, it would seem that the legislature intended that the division as made by the particular officer or board should stand the same as if it were a specific appropriation made for the particular position, and, in view of the fact that the number of positions are specified, I am of the opinion that a greater number than that specified cannot be employed and paid out of the particular appropriation, and if there is any balance left in the appropriation, it cannot be used to pay the salary of a position which would be in excess of the number specified in the appropriation bill.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that any unused balance in such an appropriation is not available for the employment of a clerk or stenographer in excess of the number specified in the appropriation bill.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—PURPOSE CLAUSE "FORMED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MANUFACTURING, BUYING, SELLING AND DEALING IN TYPEWRITERS OF ALL KINDS AND THE DOING OF ALL THINGS NECESSARY OR INCIDENTAL THERETO," NOT DUAL IN CHARACTER.

The purpose clause of a corporation "formed for the purpose of manufacturing, buying, selling and dealing in typewriters of all kinds and the doing of all things necessary or incidental thereto" is not dual in character.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 4, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of August 30, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

"We beg to submit to you the following purpose clause and kindly request your early opinion on the question as to whether or not the same is dual as to purpose:

"'Said corporation is formed for the purpose of manufacturing, buying, selling and dealing in typewriters of all kinds and the doing of all things necessary or incident thereto.'"

Section 8623 of the General Code, relative to the formation of corporations in Ohio, is as follows:

"Except for carrying on professional business a corporation may be formed for any purpose for which natural persons lawfully may associate themselves."

The supreme court of Ohio, in the case of State ex rel. v. Taylor, 55 O. S., 61, in construing the language of this section, used the following language at page 67 of the opinion:

"It will be noted that the word is 'purpose,' not 'purposes.' Its use implies a limitation. This limitation must have been by design. It is a most wise and reasonable one. We cannot assume that the General assembly would intentionally clothe corporations with capacity to unite all classes of business under one organization, as this would tend strongly to monopoly."

This expression of the court has been uniformly followed in Ohio, and has been cited and adhered to by my predecessors in office and by myself in several former opinions and rulings.

The question therefore arises, "Do the powers sought to be secured under the purpose clause presented, when viewed as a whole, constitute one purpose or several purposes?" The purpose clause in question creates or constitutes what might be called a typewriter company. It clearly evidences the desire of the incorporators to secure authority to produce and deal in the single product—typewriters.

The rule laid down in a former opinion of my predecessor in office that a corporation cannot be organized in Ohio to engage in both a general manufacturing business and a general merchandise business does not, in my opinion, apply to the situation here presented, and I therefore advise you that the purpose clause quoted in your letter is not dual in character.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SCHOOLS—MINIMUM LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF TEACHERS EMPLOYED IN SUPERVISION DISTRICT—SECTION 4738 G. C. HAS NO APPLICATION TO SEPARATE SUPERVISIONS CONTINUED UNDER SECTION 4740 G. C.—SAME APPLICATION TO SECTIONS AS AMENDED IN 106 OHIO LAWS—COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER TERRITORY FROM SEPERATE DISTRICT CONTINUED UNDER SECTION 4740 G. C. THEN OR NOW.

The minimum limitation on the number of teachers employed in a supervision district provided in section 4738 G. C., 104 O. L. 140, had no application to separate supervision districts continued under the provisions of section 4740 G. C., 104 O. L. 141, and the similar minimum limitation provided in section 4738 G. C., 106 O. L. 396, has no application to separate districts continued under the provisions of section 4740 G. C., 106 O. L., 439.

There was no authority in the county board of education to transfer territory from a separate supervision district continued under section 4740 G. C., 104 O. L. 141, and there is now no authority in the county board of education to transfer territory from a separate district continued under the provisions of section 4740 G. C. 106 O. L. 439.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 5, 1916.

HON. ROBERT C. PATTERSON, Prosecuting Attorney, Dayton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter under date of August 17, 1916, you submit for an opinion the questions following:

> "1. Is G. C. section 4740 (104 O. L. 141) to be construed with 4738 (104 O. L. 140), so as to limit the minimum of teachers to twenty?
> "2. If the minimum number of teachers prescribed by 4738 does not apply to 4740, is the county board of education authorized to reduce the number of teachers in a separate supervision district, that is complying with the provisions of 4740, thereby abolishing such supervision district?"

Section 4738 G. C., 104 O. L. 140, and section 4740 G. C., 104 O. L. 141, to which reference is made in your first inquiry, provided as follows:

> "Sec. 4738. The county board of education shall within thirty days after organizing divide the county school district into supervision districts, each to contain one or more village or rural school districts. The territory of such supervision districts shall be contiguous and compact. In the formation of the supervision districts consideration shall be given to the number of teachers employed, the amount of consolidation and centralization, the condition of the road and general topography. The territory in the different districts shall be as nearly equal as practicable and the number of teachers employed in any one supervision district shall not be less than twenty nor more than sixty.
> "The county board of education shall, upon application of three-fourths of the presidents of the village and rural district boards of the county, redistrict the county into supervision districts.
> "Sec. 4740. Any village or rural district or union of school districts for supervision purposes which already employs a superintendent and which officially certifies by the clerk or clerks of the board of education on or before July 20, 1914, that it will employ a superintendent who gives at least one-half of his time in supervision, shall upon application to the county board of education be continued as a separate supervision district so long as the superintendent receives a salary of at least one thousand dollars and continues to give one-half of his time to supervision work. Such districts shall receive such portion of state aid for the payment of the salary of the district superintendent as is based on the ratio of the number of teachers employed to forty, multiplied by the fraction which represents that fraction of the regular school day which the superintendent gives to supervision. The county superintendent shall make no nomination of a district superintendent in such district until a vacancy in such superintendency occurs. After the first vacancy occurs in the superintendency of such a district all appointments shall be made on the nomination of the county superintendent in the manner provided in section 4739. A vacancy shall occur only when such superintendent resigns, dies or fails of re-election.

"Any school district or districts, having less than twenty teachers, isolated from the remainder of the county school district by supervision districts provided for in this section shall be joined for supervision purposes to one or more of such supervision districts, but the superintendent or superintendents already employed in such supervision district or districts shall be in charge of the enlarged supervision district or districts until a vacancy occurs."

An examination of the provisions of the foregoing sections of the statute will readily disclose that section 4738 G. C. conferred upon the county board of education general power to divide the county school district into supervision districts for the purpose of supervision of the schools of such districts by the district superintendents authorized to be appointed under the provisions of section 4739 G. C., 104 O. L. 140. There was thus provided the machinery for the general scheme of supervision of the schools of the county school district in connection with the county superintendent authorized to be appointed under the provisions of section 4744 G. C. 104 O. L. 142.

Section 4738 G. C. supra, standing alone, would place all the schools of the rural and village school districts of the county school districts under the authority of the county board of education to divide the same into supervision districts.

To the foregoing general scheme and authority for supervision of rural and village schools, section 4740 G. C., supra, operates as a plain and unambiguous exception. By force of the provisions of this latter section there was authorized to be continued, entirely separate from and independent of those supervision districts authorized to be created under section 4738 G. C., supra, in so far as supervision was concerned, a wholly distinct class of supervision districts.

If this authorization of two separate and distinct classes of supervision districts be borne in mind, I think it will be clearly observed that the provisions of section 4738 G. C., supra, have application only to that class of supervision districts created under its authority by the county boards of education, and that the limitations of the power to continue supervision districts, under section 4740 G. C., supra, was confined to those prescribed in that section.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your first question, that the provision of section 4738 G. C., 104 O. L. 140, relative to the minimum number of teachers employed in any supervision district established by the county board of education, had no application to separate supervision districts continued under authority of section 4740 G. C. 104 O. L. 141. It appears that the manifest purpose of section 4740 G. C., supra, was to authorize the continuance of supervision districts which did not meet the conditions prescribed in said section 4738.

Sections 4738 and 4740 G. C., supra, were amended in 106 O. L., at pages 396 and 439, respectively. They, however, retained their same general character in that section 4738 continues to be confined in its application and to have reference only to supervision districts established by and under the jurisdiction of the county board of education, while section 4740 operates as an exception thereto, and is applicable to and governs exclusively the continuance of the separate districts therein specifically referred to.

Under the provisions of section 4740 G. C., 104 O. L. 141, supra, the sole conditions to the continuance of a separate supervision district, independent of the authority of the county board of education thereunder, were that the board of education of the village or rural district or union of school districts for supervision purposes already employed a superintendent, that such superintendent received a salary of at least $1,000.00, and that it was certified by the clerk or clerks of the board of education before July 20, 1914, that it would so employ a superintendent who would give at least one-half of his time to supervision work, and it was therein specifically prescribed that so long as the employment of the superintendent continued, as therein provided, such separate supervision district should continue.

It follows that if it were within the power of the county board of education to transfer one part of the territory from such separate supervision district, it would have been equally within its power to have transferred any number of parts thereof in like manner, until the whole of such separate supervision district would have been transferred to another district or districts.

A construction of any other provision of statute that would recognize in the county board of education authority to transfer from such separate supervision district a part of the territory thereof would render nugatory the provisions of section 4740 G. C., supra, for the continuance of such separate supervision district. It was certainly not contemplated that the specific provision for the continuance of a separate supervision district of section 4740 G. C. should be rendered wholly nugatory, and its manifest purpose totally defeated by any action of the county board of education in respect to the territory thereof, pursuant to section 4738 G. C., or 4736 or 4692 G. C., which latter sections confer upon the county board of education authority to transfer territory in certain cases, but which it is not deemed necessary to here quote.

Section 4740 G. C. was amended in 106 O. L. 439, to provide as follows:

> "Any village or rural school district or union of school districts for high school purposes which maintains a first grade high school and which employs a superintendent shall upon application to the county board of education before September 10, 1915, be continued as a separate district under the direct supervision of the county superintendent. Such district shall continue to be under the direct supervision of the county superintendent until the board of education of such district by resolution shall petition to become a part of a supervision district of the county school district. Such superintendents shall perform all the duties prescribed by law for a district superintendent, but shall teach such part of each day as the board of education of the district or districts may direct. Such districts shall receive no state aid for the payment of the salaries of their superintendents, and the salaries shall be paid by the boards employing such superintendents."

While the above amendment changed substantially the character of separate districts authorized to be continued thereunder, it does not serve to confer upon the county board of education broader power in any way in respect to the supervision thereof than that conferred upon that board as to separate supervision districts prior to the amendment of said section. Section 4738 G. C. was also amended in 106 O. L. 396. It also retained its general character as applicable only to those supervision districts established thereunder by the county board of education.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your second question, that there was no authority in the county board of education, under the provisions of section 4738 G. C., 104 O. L. 140, to transfer territory from a separate supervision district continued as such under section 4740 G. C., 104 O. L. 141, and to thereby reduce the number of teachers employed in such separate supervision district, and that there is now no authority in the county board of education to transfer territory from a separate district authorized to continue as such under the provisions of said section 4740 G. C., 106 O. L. 439.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JUDGE OF COURT OF INSOLVENCY—NO AUTHORITY FOR COUNTY TO PAY COURT COSTS INCURRED BY SUCH JUDGE IN DEFENDING HIMSELF IN SUIT FOR WRIT OF PROHIBITION.

No authority of law for county to pay court costs incurred by insolvency judge in defending himself in a suit for writ of prohibition.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 5, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—We are in receipt of your letter of August 26, which is as follows:

"We are sending you herewith letter from Hon. Smith Hickenlooper, assistant prosecuting attorney in Hamilton county, together with bill rendered to the county by Hon. Joseph B. Kelly, judge of the court of insolvency of that county, in which he asks reimbursement for certain costs in defending the jurisdiction of his court, and we would request your written opinion as to whether this bill may be paid.

"We ask that you inclose the bill with your opinion so that it may be returned to the files of Hamilton county."

Inclosed with your letter is a letter to you from Hon. Smith Hickenlooper, assistant prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, under date of August 24th, to the following effect:

"Hon. Joseph B. Kelly, judge of the court of insolvency of Hamilton county, has filed a claim with the county commissioners in the sum of $112.90, being the expense of securing bill of exceptions, printing record and brief, filing fee in the supreme court and other court costs attendant upon defending a petition for a writ of prohibition, known as cause number 804 in the court of appeals of this county, and number 15223 in the supreme court. The facts are as follows:

"Early in 1916 a petition for a writ of prohibition was filed in the court of appeals in the case of state ex rel. Marie Gelner v. Joseph B. Kelly, judge of the insolvency court. This action raised the question of jurisdiction of the insolvency court to determine divorce proceedings pending in that court at the time the law establishing the court of domestic relations of Hamilton county went into effect. The court of appeals heard the case and decided against the existence of such jurisdiction. Thereupon Judge Kelly brought error proceedings to the supreme court where the judgment was reversed, the petition dismissed and judgment for the costs rendered against the relator. The county prosecutor was treated throughout as one of the counsel for the petitioner, and as such acknowledged the receipt of notice of filing of bill of exceptions, copies of briefs, records, etc., and was served with summons in error. In other words he was treated as in an adversary position. We enclose herewith the original claim which shows the cost of the bill of exceptions, brief and record to be $93.93; filing fee in supreme court, $5.00; and other court costs $13.97; making the total bill $112.90.

"The writer has been unable to find any statutory provision either expressly or impliedly authorizing the payment of such claim from the county treasury. But inasmuch as Judge Kelly had no personal interest whatever in the litigation which involved only the jurisdiction of the court and attacked the judge solely in his judicial capacity, it would seem rather unjust that the judge should personally bear the expense of defending the jurisdiction of his court. The relator against whom judgment for costs was rendered is without property subject to execution for the satisfaction of such judgment.

"We should like to find a way to reimburse Judge Kelly for his actual cash expenditures, but know of no authority for this unless the claim were paid from the prosecuting attorney's expense fund which scarcely seems applicable for expenditures not made by the prosecuting attorney, and arising from a matter in which the prosecuting attorney was treated as in an adversary position. In discussing the matter with Mr. Brotton he suggested that you might be willing to give us your opinion in the matter. If the allowance of the claim would receive the approval of your department, there is no disposition on the commissioners' part to be supertechnical."

In the statement of facts submitted by Mr. Hickenlooper, it appears that the county prosecutor was treated throughout as one of the counsel for the petitioner.

Section 3004 G. C., which provides an annual allowance to the prosecuting attorney in addition to his salary, makes such provision solely "for expenses which may be incurred by him in the performance of his official duties and in the furtherance of justice, not otherwise provided for."

The foregoing provision will not cover the payment of the costs out of such fund in the instant matter. I cannot find any other authority of law which would permit of the paying of the bill.

I fully appreciate that the action taken by Judge Kelly was to preserve the jurisdiction of his court in divorce proceedings, and that it was taken by him not on account of private interest, but solely on account of public interest. Nevertheless, not finding any provision of law by which the bill can be paid, I must advise you that in my opinion the said bill cannot be paid.

I am inclosing the bill which you submitted, in order that you may return the same to the files of Hamilton county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,

BRIDGES AND CULVERTS—WHEN CONTRACT FOR BRIDGE IS REQUIRED TO BE LET AT COMPETITIVE BIDDING AND IS SO LET—NO AUTHORITY FOR CHANGING PLANS AFTER CONTRACT IS AWARDED.

Where a contract for a bridge is required to be let at competitive bidding and is so let, there is no authority for changing the plans and specifications after the contract is awarded.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 5, 1916.

HON. BENJAMIN A. BICKLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Hamilton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your inquiry under date of August 29, 1916, which inquiry reads as follows:

"As prosecuting attorney of Butler county, Ohio, I submit herewith for opinion and your advice the following proposition:

"The board of county commissioners of Butler county, Ohio, in March, 1916, determined to erect a bridge across the Miami river in the city of Hamilton, Butler county, Ohio, the cost of which exceeds $100,000. Said board of county commissioners had the county surveyor, who is also the county highway superintendent, prepare full and accurate plans showing all the necessary details of the work and materials required, with working plans suitable for the use of mechanics, so drawn as to be easily understood; accurate bills showing the amount of the different kinds of material necessary to construct said bridge; full and complete specifications of the work to be performed showing the manner and style to be done and a full and accurate estimate of each item of expense and the aggregate cost thereof.

"These plans were submitted to and approved by the state highway commissioner. They were also approved by the board consisting of the three commissioners, the county auditor, and county surveyor.

"The county commissioners then gave public notice of the time when and the place where sealed proposals would be received for performing the labor and furnishing the material necessary for the erection of said bridge, and stating that the contract based on such proposal would be awarded.

"Bids were received at the time and place stated and the contract awarded for the erection of said bridge.

"The plans and specifications of said bridge call for a re-enforced concrete railing and the contract awarded calls for a re-enforced concrete railing. The contractor is now engaged in the construction of said bridge in accordance with said plans and specifications and under his contract.

"Since the work has progressed, and at the present time it is about one-third completed, the county commissioners now believe and are fully convinced that said re-enforced concrete railing should be changed to a stone railing. Said stone railing would cost approximately $5,000 more than the re-enforced concrete railing provided for in the specifications. There is ample money in the fund unappropriated, and the same would be within the estimate made by the engineer to cover this additional cost if the county commissioners have any authority in law to make said change.

"We desire to know whether or not a change can be made in the plans and specifications of this work so as to authorize the county commissioners to change the rail from re-enforced concrete to stone, and if so, what procedure is necessary. Would the state highway commissioner have authority to order said change? Would he have to approve the new plan? If changed would there have to be a re-advertisement for bids and a new contract for that portion of the work? Or would the commissioners have authority to order this change and contract with the present contractor for the same?

"An early opinion upon these questions will be greatly appreciated as the commissioners desire to make this change if they have authority so to do under the law."

The statutory provisions relating to the construction of bridges by county commissioners are for the most part found in chapter I of title (IX) X, part first of the General Code of Ohio, and in the subdivision of said chapter relating to county building and bridges, being sections 2333 to 2361 inclusive. Under these sections competitive bidding is required when the estimated cost exceeds two hundred dollars, the form of advertisement to be made depending upon the amount involved. It is apparent that the change desired by the county commissioners cannot now be made unless the right of the public, created by section 2355 G. C., to have the work let to the person who offers to perform the labor and furnish the materials at the lowest price and gives good and sufficient bond for the faithful performance of the contract, in accordance with the plans and specifications, is preserved. There is and can be no claim that the present situation arises by reason of any casualty or other unforeseen contingency or that an emergency exists. The bridge can be completed according to the original plans and specifications and when so completed will be a useful structure and adapted to the purposes for which it is being built. The most that can be said is that the commissioners, after determining to follow one plan and after having let a contract to be performed in accordance therewith, have concluded that as to one feature of the work another and different plan should have been adopted.

It should first be observed that the contractor is entitled to complete the work according to the original plans and specifications and to receive therefor the agreed price. His rights under his contract cannot be violated by the county and if he were to refuse to accede to any change in plans or to agree to an omission of certain parts of the work in consideration of a reduction in compensation, there would be no necessity for a further discussion of the matter. I am satisfied, however, that even should the contractor agree to a change of plans and to the construction of another and more expensive railing in consideration of an increased compensation, or should he agree to waive his right to construct the railing and to accept a reduced compensation with the idea that a separate contract might thereafter be let for the construction of the railing, there is no method by which such contract might be so made between the county and the contractor as to preserve the requirement of competitive bidding. It it were determined to at once make a contract with the present contractor, providing for the construction of a railing other than that called for by the specifications, there could of course be no competitive bidding, for the reason that the county would have to deal with the present contractor. If it were agreed between the county and the present contractor to cancel the contract, in so far as it relates to the railing, with the idea of advertising for bids for the construction of a stone railing and awarding the contract for such construction to the lowest bidder, then there would be no method of determining the reduction in compensation to be suffered by the present contractor by reason of his being excused from constructing a railing and preserving in such determination the element of competition. The state highway commissioner has no authority in the premises other than to approve or disapprove plans submitted to him as provided in section 1184 G. C., 106 O. L. 625, and that authority in this particular instance has been exhausted.

In view of the foregoing I advise you that under facts presented by your inquiry there is no statutory authority for a change in the plans and specifications for the bridge in question so as to permit the construction of a stone railing in the place of the concrete railing provided for by the original plans and specifications.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—TAX LEVIES MADE BY TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES FOR ROAD PURPOSES UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTIONS 1222, 3298-1, 3298-13, AND 3298-20 G. C., 106 O. L. 574 ET SEQ. ARE UPON ALL TAXABLE PROPERTY OF TOWNSHIP INCLUDING THAT WITHIN ANY INCORPORATED VILLAGE OR CITY THEREIN SITUATED—LEVY UNDER SECTION 3298-18 G. C. IS UPON TAXABLE PROPERTY OF SUCH TOWNSHIP OUTSIDE OF ANY INCORPORATED VILLAGE OR CITY SITUATED THEREIN—WHEN SUCH LEVIES ARE ILLEGAL—SEE OPINION NO. 1408, MARCH 22, 1916.

Tax levies made by township trustees for road purposes under authority of sections 1222, 3298-1, 3298-13 and 3298-20 G. C., as said sections are amended by the act of the general assembly known as the Cass law, 106 O. L. 574 et seq. are upon all the taxable property of the township including that within any incorporated village or city therein situated, but a tax levy by township trustees under authority of and for the purposes mentioned in section 3298-18 G. C., 106 O. L. 647, is upon the taxable property of such township outside of any incorporated village or city situated therein. See opinion No. 1408 of the department, rendered to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, March 22, 1916.

If the trustees of a township, by resolution, levy a tax, which by the terms of said resolution is referable for authority to any of those sections of the statutes above stated, requiring that said levy be made on all of the taxable property of the township including that within any incorporated village or city situated therein, and it appears that by the further provision of said resolution said levy is made to apply only to the taxable property in the township outside of such incorporated village or city, said levy is illegal and may be enjoined as in conflict with section 2 of article XII of the constitution.

If, however, it should appear that the trustees of a township have, by resolution, made a levy for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of the roads of such township and no reference is made in said resolution to any one of the foregoing statutes for the authority for such levy and if said resolution provides that such levy shall only apply to the taxable property in the township outside of any incorporated village or city situated therein, said resolution should be construed as having been made under authority of said section 3298-18 G. C. for the purpose mentioned in said statute.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 5, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of August 30th you request my opinion as follows:

> "The commission respectfully requests your written opinion upon the following questions:
> "What levies authorized by the law commonly known as the Cass road law to be made by township trustees are required to be levied against all of the taxable property of the township including incorporated villages and cities located in whole or in part therein; and what ones are required to be levied upon the property of the township exclusive of the property in incorporated villages and cities, wholly or partly therein?

"If the trustees of a township made a levy under one of the sections of the Cass law upon the taxable property of the township exclusive of the taxable property in incorporated villages or cities located wholly or partly therein, when the law under which the levy was made required the same to be levied upon the taxable property of the township including such property located in incorporated villages or cities wholly or partly within the township, would such action invalidate the levy so made?

"In a considerable number of counties in the state the commission is officially informed that levies made under the Cass law are not being levied upon the property of incorporated villages and cities located in the township. It would seem that the purpose of this omission is to avoid exceeding the maximum limit of fifteen mills in such cities and villages; hence the above questions."

Your first question has been answered in opinion No. 1408 of this department rendered to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices under date of March 22, 1916.

All the sections of the act of the general assembly known as the Cass law, governing tax levies by township trustees for road purposes, as set forth in said opinion, are as follows:

Section 60 of the act (section 3298-1 G. C., 106 O. L. 589):

"The board of trustees of any township may levy and access upon the taxable property of such township a tax not exceeding three mills in any one year upon each dollar of taxable property therein for the purpose of improving, dragging, repairing or maintaining any public road or roads or part thereof. Such levy shall be in addition to the levy of two mills authorized by law for general township purposes, but subject to the limitation upon the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force."

Section 72 of the act (section 3298-13 G. C., 106 O. L. 592):

"Levies for the payment of principal and interest on bonds issued under the provisions of this act, shall be in addition to the two mills authorized to be levied for general township purposes, but subject to the limitation on the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force."

Section 215 of the act (section 1222 G. C., 106 O. L. 640):

"* * * For the purpose of providing a fund for the payment of the proportion of the cost and expense to be paid by the township or townships for the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of highways under the provisions of this chapter, the township trustees are authorized to levy a tax, not exceeding two mills, upon all taxable property of the township in which such road improvement or some part thereof is situated; such levy shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for township purposes and shall be outside of the limitation of two mills for general township purposes, but subject, however, to limitation upon the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force."

Section 239 of the act (section 3298-18 G. C., 106 O. L. 647):

"After the annual estimate for each township has been filed with the trustees of the township by the county highway superintendent, they may increase or reduce the amount of any of the items contained in said estimate, and at their first meeting after said estimate is filed, they shall make their levies for the purposes set forth in the estimate upon all of the taxable property of the townships, not exceeding in the aggregate two mills in any one year upon each dollar of the valuation of such taxable property in said township, outside of any incorporated village or city. Such levies shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for township purposes, but subject, however, to the limitation upon the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force. The amount levied to cover the estimate made for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of highways, shall be known as the township highway fund. The provisions of this section shall not prevent the expenditure of any portion of the regular levy of two mills for township purposes, but the levies herein provided for are in addition thereto. Such levy shall amount to at least twenty dollars for each mile of township road within such township."

Section 257 of the act (section 3298-20 G. C., 106 O. L. 653):

"The trustees of a township may levy a tax in such amount, as they determine, to purchase real property, containing suitable stone or gravel, and the necessary machinery for operating the same, when deemed necessary for the construction, improvement, or repair of the public roads within the township, to be under the control of the trustees or a person appointed by them. The question of levying such tax, for such purpose, and the amount asked therefor shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the township at a general election. Twenty days' notice thereof shall be previously given by posting in at least ten public places in the township. Such notice shall state specifically the amount to be raised. If a majority of all votes cast at such election are in favor of the proposition, the tax therein provided for shall be considered authorized. Such tax may be levied in addition to all other taxes for township purposes, but subject however to the limitation on the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force."

In opinion No. 1408 of the department, above referred to, it was held that the tax levies provided for in all of the foregoing statutes except the one provided for in section 3298-18 G. C., supra, are to be made on all of the taxable property of the township including that within any municipal corporation or corporations therein situated and that the levy provided for in section 3298-18 G. C. is to be made on all taxable property of the township outside of any incorporated village or city therein situated.

In view of my holding in the aforesaid opinion I advise you in answer to your first question above stated that the foregoing sections of the General Code include all of the provisions of the Cass law governing tax levies by township trustees for road purposes; that all of the tax levies made by township trustees pursuant to the authority vested in them by said statutes with the exception of the levy authorized by the provision of section 3298-18 G. C., supra, are to be made on all of the taxable property of the township including that within any incorporated village or city therein situated and that the levy made under authority of said section 3298-18 G. C. is to be made on all of the taxable property of the township outside of any incorporated village or city therein situated.

In considering your second question it may be observed that, while the power of the legislature to provide that a part or all of a township shall be a taxing district for road purposes will not be questioned, the rule is well settled that in levying a tax for the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of a road, all property within the taxing district must be taxed by a uniform rule according to its true value in money (see Bowles v. State, 37 O. S. 35). It necessarily follows that if the trustees of a township, by resolution, levy a tax which by the terms of said resolution is referable for authority to any of those sections of the statutes above set forth requiring that said levy be made on all of the taxable property of the township including that within any incorporated village or city situated therein, and it appears that by the further provision of said resolution said levy is made to apply only to the taxable property in the township outside of such incorporated village or city, said levy will be illegal and may be enjoined as in conflict with section 2 of article XII of the constitution upon which the above stated rule is based.

It will be observed, however, that section 3298-18 G. C. supra, as found in chapter 10 of the Cass road law, relating to general provisions, is general in its application and authorizes the trustees of a township to make an annual levy of not to exceed two mills in any one year upon each dollar of taxable property in the township outside of any incorporated village or city situated therein, in addition to the regular levy of two mills for township purposes; that said levy is made for the purpose of covering the estimate of the county highway superintendent filed with said township trustees, setting forth the needs of the township for such year for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of highways in said township, and is designated by said statute as "the township highway fund." Said section further provides that such levy shall amount to at least twenty dollars for each mile of township road within such township and I held in opinion No. 1408 of the department, hereinbefore referred to, that this latter provision of said statute is mandatory.

If, therefore, it should appear that the trustees of a township have, by resolution, made a levy for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of the roads of such township and no reference is made in said resolution to any one of the foregoing statutes for the authority for such levy, I am of the opinion that if said resolution provides that such levy shall only apply to the taxable property in the township outside of any incorporated village or city situated therein, said resolution should be construed as having been made under authority of said section 3298 G. C. for the purposes mentioned in said statute.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—PURPOSE CLAUSE DISAPPROVED—MORE THAN ONE MAIN PURPOSE—THE SECURITY REALTY INVESTMENT COMPANY.

Proposed amended purpose clause of The Security Realty Investment Company disapproved because it sets forth more than one main purpose.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 6, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of August 31, 1916, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "We are herewith submitting certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of The Security Realty Investment Company, a check of $5.00, and a ten cent internal revenue stamp, and kindly request an early opinion on the question as to whether or not the proposed amendment has a duality of purpose."

The purpose clause which the The Security Realty Investment Company seeks to secure by its certificate of amendment is as follows:

> "For the purpose of buying, selling, leasing mortgaging and in general dealing in real estate in the state of Ohio and elsewhere throughout the United States and of lending money and securing same by real estate mortgage or personal security, subject, however, to the provisions of sections 8648 and 8649 of the General Code of Ohio, formerly section 3235 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio, said corporation to exist in accordance with such sections for the term of twenty-five (25) years from the date of its original incorporation."

The present purpose clause of the corporation, which it seeks by amendment to change, as set forth at page 124 of the record of corporations, No. 137, found in your office, is as follows:

> "Said corporation is formed for the purpose of dealing in real estate subject to the provisions of section 3235 of the revised statutes of Ohio and is to be created for the term of twenty-five years."

The amended purpose clause enumerates more in detail the powers of the corporation in connection with the real estate transactions, and adds the further power of "lending money and securing the same by real estate mortgage or personal security".

The corporation under its original purpose clause and also under its amended purpose clause, even though the last quoted language were omitted, would doubtless possess the incidental power in connection with its real estate transactions to loan money and take proper security for the same. In the amended purpose clause, however, the power to lend money and secure the same by real estate mortgage or personal security is not set forth as an incidental power, but as one of the main purposes of the corporation. If this is permissible, then the corporation would be authorized not only to engage in real estate transactions, but would possess the essential powers of collateral loan companies organized under sections 9857 et seq. of the General Code.

In the case of State ex rel. vs. Taylor, 55 O. S. 61, the supreme court of Ohio has held that an Ohio corporation organized under section 8623 of the General Code can have only one main purpose. I am, therefore, of the opinion that The Security Realty Investment Company, which is a corporation organized for the purpose of dealing in real estate, cannot secure the additional general authority by amendment of its articles of incorporation to loan money and secure the same by real estate or personal security, and I therefore advise you that you should not accept the proposed amendment in the form presented.

I herewith return the certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of The Security Realty Investment Company, the check for $5.00, and the ten cent internal revenue stamp, enclosed in your communication.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY MIDWAY VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT, MADISON COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 6, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Midway Village School District of Madison County, Ohio, in the amount of $10,000, for the purpose of completing, enlarging, repairing and furnishing the school house in said district, being twenty bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education and other officers of Midway village school district relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said school district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—CANCELLATION OF CHARTERS BY TAX COMMISSION OF CERTAIN CORPORATIONS—HOW REINSTATED—WESTERN STAR PUBLISHING COMPANY—THE DAYTON CASTINGS COMPANY.

Upon certificate to the Secretary of State by the Tax Commission, under section 5517 G. C., the Secretary of State should correct his records in accordance therewith.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 6, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of September 1st you submitted to me the following:

"We are herewith submitting copy of the order of the tax commission of Ohio relative to the reinstatements of the Western Star Publishing Company and The Dayton Castings Company, and would like an early opinion on the question as to whether or not the secretary of state has the authority to file the same, and also strike from the records the entry cancelling the corporate authority of the above stated corporations without a certificate from the tax commission, certifying that all taxes, fees and penalties have been paid, together with a fee of $100 as provided for under section 5511 of the General Code."

The orders for reinstatement referred to are as follows:

"It appearing that The Western Star Publishing Company, a domestic corporation, was certified to the secretary of state by this commission on April 11, 1916 with the instruction to cancel its articles of incorporation for the reason that the said company failed to comply with the law in the matter of filing annual reports as a domestic corporation and paying fees thereon, as provided for in section 5509 G. C.; and it further appearing that said company was misinformed by the treasurer of state as to the matter of filing its reports and that the action of this commission in certifying the company for cancellation was erroneous; it is therefore ordered that the entry made by the secretary of state cancelling the articles of incorporation of said company be stricken from the margin of the corporation records and from the list of companies certified for cancellation and that this commission correct its permanent records accordingly.

"The vote upon this motion resulted: Mr. Boyle, aye; Mr. McGiffert, aye; Mr. Peckinpaugh, aye.

"It appearing that The Dayton Castings Company, a domestic corporation, was certified to the secretary of state by this commission on April 11, 1916 with the instruction to cancel its articles of incorporation for the reason that the said company failed to comply with the law in the matter of filing annual reports as a domestic corporation and paying fees, as provided for in section 5509 G. C.; and it further appearing that said company failed to receive blanks or notice of delinquency and believing that all reports were filed to date and the fees due thereon paid, and that the action of this commission in certifying the company for cancellation was erroneous; it is therefore ordered that the entry made by the secretary of state cancelling the articles of incorporation of said company be stricken from the margin of the corporation records and from the list of companies certified for cancellation, and that this commission correct its permanent records accordingly.

"The vote upon this motion resulted: Mr. Boyle, aye; Mr. McGiffert, aye."

The action of the commission in cancelling the articles of incorporation was under the provisions of section 5509 G. C. Said section provides as follows:

"If a corporation, wherever organized, required by the provisions of this act, to file any report or returns or to pay any tax or fee, either as a public utility or as a corporation, organized under the laws of this state, for profit or as a foreign corporation for profit doing business in this state and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, or as a sleeping car, freight line or equipment company, fails or neglects to make any such report or return or to pay any such tax or fee for ninety days after the time prescribed in this act for making such report or return or for paying such tax or fee, the commission shall certify such fact to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall thereupon cancel the articles of incorporation of any such corporation which is organized under the laws of this state, by appropriate entry upon the margin of the record thereof, or cancel the certificate of authority of any such foreign corporation to do business in this state by proper entry. Thereupon all the powers, privileges and franchises conferred upon such corporations, by such articles of incorporation or by such certificate of authority, shall cease and determine. The secretary of state shall immediately notify such domestic or foreign corporation of the action taken by him."

Section 5517 of the General Code provides in part as follows:

"Any bank, public utility or corporation may be heard by the commission upon the question as to the correctness of any determination, finding or order of the commission after the same has been made. Application to the commission for a review of any determination, finding or order by it made, must be filed within sixty days after the passage of this act, or within sixty days from the date of the certification thereof by the commission to the proper officer. The commission, upon such application, may make such correction in its determination, finding or order, as it may deem proper, and its decision in the matter shall be final. Such correction shall be certified to the proper official, who shall correct his records and duplicates in accordance therewith. * * *"

Both the certificate of cancellation of The Western Star Publishing Company and that of The Dayton Castings Company contain the finding by the commission that the action thereof in certifying the company for cancellation was erroneous.

Since section 5517 G. C. provides that the decision of the commission in any matter shall be final, and that upon certification of correction the officer shall correct his records, there does not seem to be any doubt about the power of the commission in making the certification referred to. The commission having made the certification I assume that the application for the review of the action of the commission in originally certifying the above companies for cancellation was filed within the time prescribed in section 5517 G. C.

Specifically answering the question submitted I am of the opinion that upon the certificate of the tax commission under section 5517 G. C. you should correct your records in accordance with said section, the provisions of section 5511 G. C. not applying in such case.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—TOWNSHIP HIGHWAY SUPERINTENDENT IS PUBLIC OFFICER—PERSON NOT POSSESSED OF QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTOR MAY NOT BE APPOINTED TO SUCH OFFICE.

A township highway superintendent is a public officer, and a person not possessed of the qualifications of an elector may not, therefore, be appointed to such office.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 6, 1916.

HON. JOHN M. MARKLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Georgetown, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of August 29, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "In October of 1915 one, Thomas Barker, moved to Eagle township, Brown county, Ohio, from the state of Kentucky, and purchased a farm in said Eagle township with the intention of making the same his permanent residence. In June of 1916 the trustees of Eagle township appointed the said Thomas Barker as township highway superintendent of one of the three road districts in said township. As Mr. Barker had not resided in this state a sufficient length of time to acquire the qualifications of an elector, the question has been raised that he cannot serve as such township highway superintendent. The matter has just been called to my attention, and I find that he has served since his appointment but has never drawn any pay.
> "Although there seems to be no statutory qualification for one to serve as township highway superintendent, yet if it should be held to be a public office Mr. Barker would be prohibited from serving by article XV, section 4 of the Constitution of the state of Ohio.
> "Kindly advise me as soon as possible whether or not Mr. Barker can hold the position of township highway superintendent of Eagle township, Brown county, Ohio, and if your opinion thereon should be in the negative also kindly advise me if the trustees would be authorized to pay him for the services he has already performed."

Section 4 of article XV of the Constitution of Ohio, referred to by you, reads in part as follows:

> "No person shall be elected or appointed to any office in this state unless possessed of the qualification of an elector. * * *"

As suggested by you, the answer to your inquiry depends upon the question of whether a township highway superintendent is an officer or whether he is merely an employe. If a township highway superintendent is to be regarded as an officer, then the person referred to by you is ineligible in view of the constitutional provision that no person shall be elected or appointed to any office unless he possess the qualifications of an elector, which qualifications, under the provisions of section 1 of article V of the Constitution, include residence within the state for one year.

Mechem, in his work on public offices and officers, section 1, defines a public office as follows:

> "A public office is the right, authority and duty, created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either fixed by law or enduring at the "pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the sovereign functions of the government, to be exercised by him for the benefit of the public. The individual so invested is a public officer."

In distinguishing between an officer and an employe, the fact that the powers in question are created, defined and conferred by law is important. While the township highway superintendent is by section 3374 G. C. made amendable to the rules and regulations of the township trustees, or the county highway superintendent, so far as the rules and regulations of such county superintendent do not conflict with those of the township trustees, yet many of his powers and duties are created by law. Under section 3370 G. C. he is given control of the township roads of his district under the direction of the township trustees, and the duty is enjoined upon him of keeping such roads in good repair. Under section 3374 G. C. the township highway superintendent is required to make reports to the county highway superintendent.

Under chapter V of the Cass highway law many of the duties relating to the dragging of unimproved roads are enjoined upon the township highway superintendent. He is required to divide the graveled and unimproved public roads of his district into road dragging districts and to designate each district by number and file a description thereof with the township clerk. He is authorized and required to designate what districts shall be dragged and to adopt a suitable form of notice to be given each person contracted with to drag roads. It is his duty to report all claims for dragging, to keep the dragging records of his district and to attend demonstrations arranged by the county highway superintendent for the purpose of exhibiting the best method of dragging the public highways. He is authorized and required to enter into contracts on behalf of the township and is further authorized to cancel such contracts when the stipulations therein contained have not been properly complied with or when the work is not done in a suitable manner. The fact that the duties of township highway superintendents are so fully defined by the statutes argues for the conclusion that such superintendents are to be regarded as public officers. It is true that their authority is confined within their limits, but that fact has been generally held to be immaterial where the authority is actually conferred and defined by statute. Under section 3371 G. C., township highway superintendents are required to give bond to the state of Ohio for the use of the township in which they are appointed, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duty, and section 3372 G. C. refers to the position as an office, the section in question reading as follows:

"Whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of the township highway superintendent by reason of death, resignation, removal or other cause, the trustees shall, within thirty days, fill such vacancy."

In view of the foregoing it is my opinion that a township highway superintendent is to be regarded as a public officer, and it therefore follows that the person referred to by you not having the qualifications of an elector, for the reason that he has not been a resident of the state for one year, is ineligible to serve as township highway superintendent. His ineligibility having existed throughout the entire period during which he has assumed to act as township highway superintendent, it follows that the trustees of the township would not be authorized to pay him for the services which he has performed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORRUPT PRACTICE ACT—CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION 5175-29 G. C. PERMITTING EXPENDITURE OF ADDITIONAL SUM OF $5.00 FOR EACH ONE HUNDRED VOTES IN EXCESS OF FIVE THOUSAND CAST FOR GOVERNOR AT LAST STATE ELECTION—APPLICABLE TO CANDIDATES FOR PUBLIC OFFICES IN COUNTIES, CITIES AND VILLAGES NOT ENUMERATED.

The provision of the second sentence of section 5175-29 G. C., 103 O. L. 580, permitting the expenditure of an additional sum of five dollars for each one hundred votes in excess of five thousand cast for governor at the last preceding state election, by candidates for office, is applicable only to candidates for other public offices than those specifically enumerated in the earlier part of said section, to be voted for by the qualified electors of a county, city or village, or a part thereof as referred to in the latter part of the first sentence of said section.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 6, 1916.

HON. E. D. FRITCH, Judge of the Common Pleas Court, Akron, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of August 31, 1916, is as follows:

"Under the provisions of R. S. O. section 5175-29, is a candidate for the office of judge of the court of common pleas or probate judge limited to five hundred dollars for campaign expenditures, or may he expend five hundred dollars plus five dollars for each hundred votes in his county in excess of five thousand votes.

"Opinion here is conflicting on the subject. A member of the general assembly, which passed the corrupt practices act, told me that the legislative intent was that the five dollars per hundred votes for all votes in excess of 5,000 votes applied only to candidates 'for any other public office' who are limited to three hundred dollars, and that the five dollars per hundred cannot be added by the candidates who are named and expressly limited in that part of the section preceding the phrase 'by a candidate for any other public office, etc.' In other words, that a candidate for probate or common pleas judge is not permitted to spend more than five hundred dollars for both primary and general election.

"It occurred to me that your office had probably ruled on the subject or might know of some decision settling the matter. This is a matter of considerable interest and importance to all who are candidates for any of the offices named in the act and section referred to from the beginning of the section to and including candidates for state representative.

"Please reply as soon as convenient."

Section 5175-20 G. C., 103 O. L. 580, to which you refer in your inquiry, provides as follows:

"The total amount expended by a candidate for a public office, voted for at an election, by the qualified electors of the state, or any political subdivision thereof, for any of the purposes specified in section 26 of this act, for contributions to political committees, as that term is defined in section 1 of this act, or for any purpose tending in any way, directly or indirectly, to promote or aid in securing his nomination and election, shall not exceed the amount specified herein; by a candidate for governor, the sum of five thousand dollars; by a candidate for other state elective office the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars; by a candidate for the office of representative in congress or presidential elector, judge of the court of appeals, the sum of two thousand dollars; by a candidate for the office of state senator, the sum of three hundred dollars in each county of his district; by a candidate for judge of common pleas, probate or insolvency court, the sum of five hundred dollars; by a candidate for the office of state representative the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars; by a candidate for any other public office to be voted for by the qualified electors of a county, city, town or village, or any part thereof, if the total number of votes cast therein for all candidates for the office of governor at the last preceding state election shall be five thousand or less, the sum of three hundred dollars. If the total number of votes cast therein at such last preceding state election be in excess of five thousand, the sum of five dollars for each one hundred in excess of such number may be added to the amounts above specified. Any candidate for a public office who shall expend for the purpose above mentioned an amount in excess of the amounts herein specified shall be guilty of a corrupt practice."

The second sentence of the above quoted section is not entirely free from ambiguity. I am inclined to the view, however, that when the same is taken in connection with the latter part of the preceding sentence, the meaning of the second sentence is rendered reasonably clear. It will be first observed that there is no reference found in the preceding provisions of said section relative to the number of votes cast in the state or subdivision in which the candidate seeks election to office except in that applicable to "any other public office," which is as follows:

"by candidate for any other public office to be voted for by the qualified electors of a county, city, town or village, or any part thereof, if the total number of votes cast therein for all candidates for the office of governor at the last preceding state election, shall be five thousand or less, the sum of three hundred dollars."

It is clear that this provision with reference to the total number of votes cast has application only to the "candidates for any other public office" in that part of the first sentence of the above section, in which it is found. It further appears that the phrase "total number of votes cast therein" in the second sentence has the same meaning as that phrase when used in that part of the first sentence last above quoted. That is to say, the term therein as used in both the latter part of the first sentence and in the second sentence of said section 5175-29, supra, has reference to the county, city or village referred to in said latter part of the first sentence.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that the additional $5.00 for each one hundred in excess of five thousand votes cast therein provided in the second sentence of section 5175-29 G. C., supra, has reference only to candidates for any other public office than those specifically enumerated in the earlier portions of said section. I am strengthened somewhat in this conclusion by reason of the necessary result of the application of a different construction. For instance, it will be noted that it is provided that a candidate for any other state elective office than that of governor may not expend in excess of twenty-five hundred dollars in the first instance. If the provision for an additional amount of five dollars for each one hundred in excess of five thousand total votes in the state may be applicable to such other state officer, it would result that such increase in the amounts authorized to be expended would be many times the initial amount so authorized. That is to say, a candidate for any state office, other than that of governor, would be thereby authorized to expend in excess of the twenty-five hundred dollars specifically provided in the earlier part of said section, under the provision of the second sentence thereof, as based upon the total vote for governor in the state at the last preceding state election, an amount equal to many times the initial amount of twenty-five hundred dollars.

It is hardly believed that it was the legislative intent that by reason of the application of the provision for the expenditure of five dollars for each one hundred votes cast in excess of five thousand, in addition to the original amount provided for candidates for state offices, they should be authorized thereby to expend an amount equal to many times the original amount of twenty-five hundred dollars.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, LEASES TO BOARD OF AGRICULTURE OF OHIO FOR FISH HATCHERIES.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 7, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your communication of August 23, 1916, transmitting to me for examination two leases to the board of agriculture of Ohio for fish hatchery purposes, one lease covering the old canal bed just north of its intersection with Buckeye Lake, and the other the borrow pits in the rear of the easterly embankment and north of the feeder lock at Lake St. Marys.

I find these leases to be in regular form and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed upon the triplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF CANTON-CANAL DOVER ROAD.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 7, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of September 6, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolution relating to the improvement of section "A" of the Canton-Canal Dover road, Pet. No. 2942, I. C. H. No. 70.

I find this resolution to be in regular form and am therefore returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY AUGLAIZE COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 7, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Auglaize County, Ohio, in the amount of $21,000 for Bowsher road improvement, being twenty-one bonds of $1000 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the county commissioners and other officers of Auglaize county relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form presented and signed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of Auglaize county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, CONTRACT ENTERED INTO BETWEEN BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF OHIO UNIVERSITY AND THE CULLEN AND VAUGHN COMPANY, HAMILTON, OHIO, FOR CONSTRUCTION OF ANNEX TO WOMEN'S DORMITORY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 8, 1916.

HON. I. M. FOSTER, Secretary Board of Trustees of Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your architect, Honorable Frank L. Packard, has submitted to this department the contract entered into between the board of trustees of Ohio University and The Cullen and Vaughn Company of Hamilton, Ohio, for the contruction and completion of an annex to the women's dormitory at Ohio University.

From the papers submitted it appears that at a meeting of the board of trustees of said university the president, or in his absence the vice president, together with O'Bleness and Biddle, as constituting the building committee of the board of trustees, were authorized to advertise for sealed proposals for the said annex and to receive and open same on August 3rd and award the contract therefor to the lowest bidder, the said building committtee to do and perform such acts as and for said board of trustees, and further, the president and secretary of said board were authorized to sign the contract.

It also appears that on August 3, 1916(President Ellis being absent, Vice President Jones acted as chairman of the committee; he, together with Mr. O'Bleness being present and Mr. Biddle being absent; that in accordance with said authority vested in said committee of three, and two of said committee being present, the bids were duly opened and read, and after consideration thereof the contract was awarded to The Cullen and Vaughn Company, its bid of $9,180 being the lowest bid received. The said bid of $9,180 is below the architect's estimate of $9,185.40. The contract is duly signed not only by The Cullen and Vaughn Company, through its vice president and secretary, but also by the president and secretary of the board of trustees of Ohio University.

I find both the contract and bond securing the execution of the same to be in compliance with law and have this day filed the original of said contract and the bond in the office of the auditor of state and have returned to your architect the balance of the papers submitted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, GAS AND OIL LEASE TO T. H. LOVE, LEESBURG, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 9, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—On September 5, 1916, you transmitted for my approval a gas and oil lease executed to one T. H. Love of Leesburg, Ohio, said lease covering a tract of land in Carroll county, being the northeast quarter of section 16, township 4, range 6, in the civil township of Union, said lease calling for a one-eighth royalty on oil and a royalty of two hundred ($200.00) dollars on a gas producing well, and requiring the drilling of at least one well within six months from the date of the approval of the lease by the governor and attorney-general.

I have carefully examined the lease and find that the same is in all respects in accordance with law and duly executed. I, therefore, herewith return the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—TAX LEVY IN 1915 ON GRAND DUPLICATE OF COUNTY—PROCEEDS AVAILABLE FOR EXPENDITURE AFTER TAKING EFFECT OF CASS HIGHWAY LAW FOR PAYING COUNTY'S SHARE OF IMPROVING OR REPAIRING ROADS UNDER CHAPTER VI OF SAID LAW—BONDS—SUFFICIENT IF LEVY MADE TO COVER ANY DEFICIENCY WHEN BONDS ISSUED SOLELY IN ANTICIPATION OF COLLECTION OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS—NEED NOT LEVY FOR ENTIRE AMOUNT OF BOND ISSUE, ONLY DEFICIENCY.

Where, in the year 1915 a tax levy was made upon the grand duplicate of the county for the purpose of paying the county's share of road improvements, or repairs carried forward by the county commissioners under any one of the several statutes under which the same might have been made, such levy being general in character and designed to produce funds for the payment of the county's share of the cost and expense of improving and repairing roads generally, the proceeds of such levy coming into the county treasury and being available for appropriation and expenditure after the taking effect of the Cass highway law, are available for the purpose of paying the county's share of the cost and expense of improving or repairing roads under chapter VI of the Cass law, and this without reference to the particular plan provided by section 6919 G. C. and selected in any given instance, provided, of course, such plan involves a payment by the county of a portion of the cost and expense.

Where, under authority of section 6929 G. C., bonds are issued solely in anticipation of the collection of special assessments, it is not necessary that a tax be levied at the time of the issuance of the bonds sufficient to pay the entire amount of the bonds in question. The statute will be fully complied with if, in the legislation providing for the issue of bonds, provision is made for levying and collecting annually on the grand duplicate of the county a tax sufficient to cover any deficiency in the payment or collection of the special assessments in anticipation of the collection of which the bonds are issued.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 9, 1916.

HON. DEAN E. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication under date of August 25, 1916, in which communication you inquire as follows:

> "May county commissioners use part of the general road fund levied in 1915 to pay the county's share of the expense of improving roads under 214 et seq. of the Cass law (plan four being used as the method of payment).
> "When roads are being improved under the above act, and the county has sufficient funds to pay its share of the costs of said improvement in cash, but when bonds must be issued in anticipation of assessments against property benefited, does section 6929 of the General Code require a tax to be levied at the time of the issuance of the bonds sufficient in amount to pay the entire amount of bonds at maturity, together with interest thereon, or is it sufficient that a levy be made to meet deficiencies in assessments under 5630-1 G. C."

In response to my request for additional information you advised me, under date of September 1, 1916, that in the first question submitted by you you intended to refer to chapter VI of the Cass highway law, relating to road construction and improvement by county commissioners, instead of section 214 et seq. of that act.

The Cass highway law was passed May 17, 1915, approved June 2, 1915, and under the terms of section 304 thereof went into effect on the first Monday in September, 1915. It will thus be seen that all tax levies for road purposes made in the year 1915 were made under the pre-existing statutes, but that no part of the taxes so levied came into the county treasury and was available for appropriation and expenditure until long after the Cass law had taken effect. The saving provisions of section 303 of the act, while they may properly be characterized as broad and comprehensive, are not, in my opinion, sufficient to preserve the pre-existing statutes and authorize proceedings thereunder merely because prior to the taking effect of the Cass highway law, tax levies for improving or repairing roads generally had been made under such pre-existing statutes. The effect of such a conclusion would be to unduly prolong a dual system of road improvement, and if such a conclusion were to be reached the old statutes would be continued in force during the fiscal year ending on the last day of February, 1917, for the reason that the proceeds of the first half of the 1915 tax collection would not be available for appropriation until March 1, 1916, and the proceeds of the second half of such tax collection would not be available until the first day of September, 1916.

Considering together all of the saving provisions of the Cass highway law, the more reasonable conclusion is that where taxes had been levied under pre-existing statutes authorizing general levies upon the grand duplicate of the county for road purposes, it was the intention of the legislature to preserve the right to collect such taxes but to require their expenditure for the same general purposes under the new scheme of road laws. It is therefore my opinion that where in the year 1915 a tax levy was made upon the grand duplicate of the county for the purpose of paying the county's share of road improvements or repairs carried forward by the county commissioners, under any one of the several statutes under which the same might have been made, such levy being general in character and designed to produce funds for the payment of the county's share of the cost and expense of improving or repairing roads generally, the proceeds of such levy coming into the county treasury and being available for appropriation and expenditure after the taking effect of the Cass highway law, are available for the purpose of paying the county's share of the cost and expense of improving roads under chapter VI of the Cass highway law, and this without reference to the particular plan provided by section 6919 G. C., and selected in any given instance, provided, of course, such plan involves a payment by the county of a portion of the cost and expense.

The second question submitted by you is evidently suggested by the following language found in section 6929 G. C.:

> "Prior to the issuance of such bonds, the county commissioners shall provide for levying and collecting annually a tax upon all the taxable property of the county to provide a sum sufficient to pay the interest on such bonds and to create a sinking fund for their retirement at maturity."

The force and effect of this language was considered at length by this department in opinion No. 1203, rendered to Hon. C. P. Kennedy, prosecuting attorney of Summit county, on January 5, 1916. The following is quoted from the opinion in question:

> "It is apparent that the legislature, in using the above quoted language, did not intend that where, under section 6929 G. C., bonds were issued in anticipation of tax on a county, a tax on a township and special assessments against benefited real estate, then the entire interest and redemption fund for such bonds should be provided by a levy on the county duplicate. Where bonds are issued in anticipation of a tax on a county, then the tax levied for the payment of such bonds is to be levied on the county, and where bonds are issued in anticipation of a tax on a township then the tax levied for the payment of such bonds is to be levied on the township. Where bonds are issued in anticipation of special assessments, the interest and redemption fund is to be created by the special assessments in question. It is manifest that the legislature in using the above quoted language had in mind a tax similar to that provided for by section 5630-1 G. C., 106 O. L. 495, which section reads as follows:

" 'Bonds issued by county commissioners in the manner provided by law, in anticipation of the collection of special assessments levied against the property abutting upon a proposed improvement, or to be benefited thereby, or in anticipation of the collection of taxes upon the taxable property of any township or townships of the said county within which such improvement is to be made, shall be full, general obligations of such county for the payment of the principal and interest, of which, when due, the full faith, credit and revenue of such county shall be pledged. The county commissioners shall, prior to the issuance of the bonds above mentioned, provide for the levying of a tax upon all the taxable property of the county to cover any deficiency in the payment or collection of such special assessments or township tax.'

"It would not have been within the power of the legislature to provide that bonds should be issued in anticipation of a county tax, a township tax, and special assessments, and then further provide that the township tax and special assessments should not be levied, but that the entire interest and redemption fund should be provided by a levy on the taxable property of the county.

"Wasson v. Commissioners, 49 O. S. 622;

"Hubbard v. Fitzsimmons, 57 O. S. 436;

"State ex rel. Breenan v. Benham, 89 O. S. 351;

"Cooley on Taxation, p. 227;

"27 Am. and Eng. Encyc. of Law, 2d. Ed., 595; 37 Cyc., 723.

"It is elementary that there is a presumption in favor of the constitutionality of a statute, and that when a statute is susceptible of two constructions, one of which supports the act and gives it effect, and the other renders it unconstitutional and void, the former is to be adopted. The whole statute and all its parts are also to be taken together, and any particular provision must, if possible, receive a construction consistent with the rest of the act.

"In view of the above considerations, it would be impossible to reach a conclusion different from that herein announced, even if it be conceded that the language now under discussion is of doubtful import. It is my opinion that the legislature, by the use of the language in question, intended to provide that as between a county and the holder of bonds issued under section 6929 G. C., such bonds should be the full and general obligation of the county, that the credit and revenues of the county should be liable for the payment of such bonds, and that prior to the issuance of such bonds the commissioners should provide for levying and collecting annually a tax upon all the taxable property of the county sufficient to cover any deficiency in the township tax or assessments, to the end that there might be provided under all circumstances and conditions a sum sufficient to pay the interest on such bonds and to create a sinking fund for their retirement at maturity."

You do not in your question refer to the payment by an interested township or townships of any portion of the cost and expense of road improvement, and I assume that in the particular instance which you have in mind the cost and expense is being divided between the property owners and the county.

In accordance with the holding in the opinion rendered to Mr. Kennedy, I advise you that where, under authority of section 6929 G. C., bonds are issued solely in anticipation of the collection of special assessments, it is not necessary that a tax be levied at the time of the issuance of the bonds sufficient to pay the entire amount of the bonds in question. The statute will be fully complied with if in the legislation providing for the issue of bonds provision is made for levying and collecting annually, on the grand duplicate of the county, a tax sufficient to cover any deficiency in the payment or collection of the special assessments in anticipation of the collection of which the bonds are issued.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CASE OF COMMISSIONERS V. SWANSON, COURT OF APPEALS, TUSCARAWAS COUNTY—PROSECUTOR SHOULD ENDEAVOR TO HAVE SAME REVIEWED BY SUPREME COURT.

Under the facts as submitted an effort should be made to secure a review by the supreme court of the case of Commissioners v. Swanson, being case No. 53, in the court of appeals, Tuscarawas county, Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 9, 1916.

HON. E. E. LINDSAY, Prosecuting Attorney, New Philadelphia, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your request for an opinion under date of September 7, 1916, which request reads as follows:

> "I am herewith submitting to you the bill of exceptions, record, briefs, and other papers in the case of The Board of County Commissioners of Tuscarawas County, et al. v. S. A. Swanson, et al., being case No. 53 in the court of appeals of Tuscarawas county.
> "This case involves the construction of a number of the statutes relating to county bridges and if the judgment of the court of common pleas and the court of appeals stands, Tuscarawas county will be compelled to pay a judgment of about $11,000.00 without having received anything in return therefor.
> "I desire to direct your special attention to the questions of the change in location of the proposed bridge and the failure to publish and circulate a newspaper notice of the commissioners' intention to erect the proposed bridge and the location thereof. It is my judgment that in view of the prior decisions of the courts of Ohio upon similar questions the county authorities should not, at the present time, submit to the judgment of the court of appeals and pay the judgment rendered against the county, and I believe that the case should be carried to the supreme court.
> "In view of the importance of the questions involved I deem it proper to submit to you the papers in the case and request your opinion as to the advisability of carrying the case to the supreme court."

The plaintiffs in their petition aver that for many years prior to the month of March, 1909, there was a bridge across the Tuscarawas River in Warwick township, Tuscarawas county, belonging to and maintained by the county, which bridge had become and was dangerous to public travel by reason of wear, decay and other causes, and which bridge, after being examined by the surveyor and the commissioners and found to be dangerous to public travel by reason of said causes, was condemned for public travel by the board of county commissioners. It is further averred that the bridge in question was an important one which had theretofore been used by a large number of people who had occasion to cross the Tuscarawas river at or near to the point where the bridge stood. The plaintiffs say that upon the condemnation of the bridge the commissioners directed the surveyor, on or about March 29, 1909, to prepare plans and specifications for the construction of a new bridge to be built of concrete at or not far from the point where the old bridge stood and that the surveyor prepared such plans in the manner provided by law and filed the same with the county commissioners on or about June 19, 1909, whereupon the county commissioners examined and approved the plans and authorized the county auditor to advertise for bids. It is averred that the county auditor advertised in due form that bids would be received on July 19, 1909, at which time a number of bids were submitted, the bid of the plaintiffs being $31,196.77, and being the lowest and best bid. Plaintiffs further aver that on or about July 30, 1909, the commissioners awarded the contract to the plaintiffs and thereafter sold the bonds of the county, and again on or about August 11, 1909, awarded the contract to the plaintiffs and ordered that a contract in writing should be entered into between the plaintiffs and the county. Plaintiffs aver that at the time the contract was entered into and went into effect the required funds were in the county treasury to the credit of the proper fund, which fact was properly certified, and that the prosecuting attorney also approved in writing the form and correctness of the contract; that a bond was duly executed by plaintiffs and that they thereupon entered upon the execution of their contract. Their petition sets forth three causes of action, two causes being based on estimates made by the county surveyor and the third being for labor and materials furnished.

The county commissioners demurred to the petition on the ground that neither of the causes of action stated facts which showed a cause of action, which demurrer was sustained by the court of common pleas. The plaintiffs prosecuted error to the court of appeals, which court reversed the decision of the court of common pleas and remanded the cause with instructions to the common pleas court to overrule the demurrer.

The defendants then filed an answer, setting forth five grounds of defense. The first ground was that the new bridge was proposed to be constructed at a different place and on a different road from the place and road at and on which the alleged condemned bridge stood. The second and third defenses were in the nature of general denials and the fourth defense was that the prosecuting attorney did not make the proper certificate. The fifth defense was that the county commissioners did not at any time, prior to making the alleged contract or prior to locating the bridge, publish and circulate hand bills and publish in any newspaper of the county notice of their intention to erect such bridge and the location thereof.

Plaintiffs in their reply admit that the proposed new bridge was not located on the exact spot of the old bridge and that the commissioners, prior to making the contract with the plaintiffs, did not publish and circulate hand bills or notice in a news paper of their intention to erect the bridge.

The case was tried to a jury and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiffs in the sum of $10,663.84. A motion for a new trial was overruled and error being prosecuted the judgment was affirmed by the court of appeals.

It was established at the trial and was indeed admitted by all parties that the condemned bridge and the new bridge that the plaintiffs contracted to build are on two different roads, that the new bridge location is 3120 feet distant from the old bridge, measured in a direct line, and that the condemned bridge was repaired and is still used by the public. The advertisement for bids, the bid of plaintiffs and the written agreement between plaintiffs and the commissioners all provided for the construction of the bridge in the new location. There was no publication of notice of the intention of the commissioners to erect the bridge and the location thereof as provided by section 2444 G. C. The board of commissioners did not submit to the voters of Tuscarawas county the question of the policy of making the expenditure for the bridge in question. It was claimed in behalf of the plaintiffs that the county commissioners were proceeding under section 5643 G. C., which section provides as follows:

> "If an important bridge belonging to or maintained by any county becomes dangerous to public travel, by decay or otherwise, and is condemned for public travel by the commissioners of such county, and the repairs thereof or the building of a new bridge in place thereof is deemed by them necessary for the public accommodation, the commissioners, without first submitting the question to the voters of the county, may levy a tax for either of such purposes in an amount not to exceed in any one year two-tenths of one mill for every dollar of taxable property upon the tax duplicate of said county."

Conceding the correctness of the claim that the commissioners were proceeding under section 5643, the charge of court to the effect that a vote of the people was not necessary was correct, but the court also gave the following special charge to the jury at the request of the plaintiffs:

> "As a matter of law, the jury are charged that it was not required of the county commissioners before letting a contract for the construction of a bridge under the circumstances, claimed by them in the petition to publish and circulate hand bills and publish in a newspaper of the county, notice of their intention to erect such bridge and the location thereof."

The question of the scope of section 2444 G. C. was before the court in the case of State ex rel. Ampt v. Hamilton County Commissioners, decided by the superior court of Cincinnati in 1900 and reported in 14 O. D., N. P. 228. The commissioners in that instance were seeking to proceed under section 2825 R. S., a part of which section became section 5643 G. C. It is true that section 2825 R. S., now section 5643 G. C., was amended subsequent to 1900 and prior to the letting of the alleged contract in the case now under consideration, but I am unable to see how the amendment affects the force of the decision in the Ampt case. In this case the court held that there was nothing in section 2825 R. S. to negative or excuse compliance with the provisions of section 877 R. S., now section 2444 G. C., requiring the circulation of hand bills and publication of notice. The court further held that section 877 R. S. was a general statute applying to all bridges and probably more so to bridges sought to be built under section 2825 R. S. than in the case of new bridges built under the general powers expressly conferred upon the commissioners. In the case of State ex rel. v. Amlin, 13 O. D. 334, the court held that section 2444 G. C. did not apply where county commissioners had been directed by a vote of the people to make an improvement, thus indicating the mandatory character of the section where a vote is omitted.

In this connection attention is also directed to the case of Buchanan Bridge Company v. Campbell, et al., Commissioners, 60 O. S. 406, in support of the proposition that a contract nade by county commissioners for the purchase and erection of a bridge, in violation or disregard of the statutes on that subject, is void, that no recovery can be had against the county for the value of such bridge and that the courts will leave the parties to such unlawful transaction where they have placed themselves and will refuse to grant relief to either party. In the view that I take of the case now under consideration the decision of the court of common pleas in the first instance, in sustaining a demurrer to the petition, was in accordance with the Ampt case, whereas the decision of the common pleas court in thereafter overruling the demurrer, in compliance with the mandate of the court of appeals and the decision of the court of appeals in sustaining the court of common pleas, were in conflict with the Ampt case. So far as I have been able to ascertain, in a hasty examination of the voluminous briefs filed in the case now under consideration, the Ampt case was not called to the attention either of the trial court or of the court of appeals. The bridge which the plaintiffs contracted to build was never completed and the county has derived no benefit whatever from the services alleged to have been performed and without reference to the other questions involved in this case, and in view of the fact that the decision herein seems to be in direct conflict with that of the superior court of Cincinnati, in the Ampt case, supra, it is my view that an effort should be made by the county authorities of Tuscarawas county to secure a review of the entire matter by the supreme court. This view of the matter is strengthened by the fact that the practical effect of the decision now under consideration is to permit county commissioners, under the guise of building a new bridge in place of a condemned bridge, to construct a new bridge on a different road and at a distance of over 3,000 feet from the old bridge, and to repair the old structure and reopen the same to traffic, on the theory that the new bridge will serve the same travelers who were accustomed to use the old, although those persons who were accustomed to use the old bridges and who still find it the more convenient, will have no occasion to use the new structure by reason of the fact that the old bridge has been repaired. If the commissioners are authorized to locate a new bridge, built to take the place of a condemned structure, on a different road and at a distance of more than 3,000 feet from the site of the old bridge, then what is the limit within which the new structure may be placed? The fact that the new bridge was built on a different road and at a distance of over 3,000 feet from the location of the old and that the old bridge was thereafter repaired, to my mind casts strong doubt upon the authority of the commissioners to proceed under section 5643 G. C. and thereby escape the necessity of first submitting the question to the voters of the county. I am not prepared to say that in the construction of a new bridge, under authority of section 5643 G. C. the commissioners would not be justified in making slight changes in the location both of the bridge and of the road on which the same is to be built in order to secure a better or more practicable location, but a change of over 3,000 feet, and to another and different road, should not, in my opinion, be accepted by the present county officials as a proper and lawful change under the statute until every effort has been made to secure a contrary ruling from the courts, especially as the case is not one where the county has received anything of value and is retaining the same.

You have requested an early opinion upon the matter submitted by you and I have not had the opportunity to make the thorough examination of the record and briefs and the other papers submitted which I would have preferred. For this reason I have not alluded to certain other alleged grounds of error which, upon a more careful examination, might appear to be worthy of consideration by the supreme court.

For the reasons above set forth, however, I am of the opinion, and advise you, that the county authorities of Tuscarawas county should seek to have this matter reviewed by the supreme court before paying the judgment rendered against the county.

I reach this conclusion by reason of the importance to the county of the matters involved, the fact that the county has received nothing of value, the existence of a former decision at variance with that reached in the present case, which decision relates to the circulation of hand bills and publication of notice for the purpose of advising the public and affording opportunity for petitions, remonstrances and a hearing, and the great general and public importance of the ruling to the effect that in building a new bridge to replace one condemned, the commissioners may locate the new structure on another and different road and at a distance of over 3,000 feet from the location of the old bridge. In reaching this conclusion it is scarcely necessary to add that the same cannot be considered by any one as in any possible way reflecting upon the courts before which the case has already been tried, but the matters here involved are of great importance, not only to the particular county and contractor, but also to other counties and contractors.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—EIGHT HOUR LAW—EXTRAORDINARY EMERGENCIES—ROAD WORK PROSECUTED ONLY DURING SUMMER MONTHS—INCONVENIENCE TO PUBLIC—SUCH REASONS DO NOT CONSTITUTE "EMERGENCY" WITHIN MEAMING OF SECTION 17-1 G. C.

The facts that road work can be prosecuted only during the summer months and that those living along the route of a road improvement and also the public generally are inconvenienced during construction work do not constitute an extraordinary emergency within the meaning of the eight hour law, section 17-1 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 11, 1916.

HON. GEO. C. VON BESELER, Prosecuting Attorney, Painesville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of September 6, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

"Section 17-1 is as follows:

" 'Except in cases of extraordinary emergency, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work, and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work, for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract or otherwise; and it shall be unlawful for any person, corporation or association, whose duty it shall be to employ or to direct and control the services of such workmen to require or permit any of them to labor more than eight hours in any calendar day or more than forty-eight hours in any week, except in cases of extraordinary emergency. This section shall (not) be construed to include policemen or firemen.'

"By reason of the vast amount of work being done here by way of the construction of improved roads, Lake coutnty at the present time is engaged in building something like two miles of concrete road in conjunction with the state highway department. Another road, something like four miles in length, is being constructed in the village of Fairport, township of Painesville, and the city of Painesville connecting the two municipalities. Also two streets are being paved within the city of Painesville. It is very doubtful that this work can be completed before cold weather sets in. Will you please let me know your opinion as to whether or not these public improvements may be deemed to be extraordinary emergencies allowing the contractor to work more than eight hours. I might say that the purpose of the contractor is to employ the men on an eight hour basis and for eight hours a day, paying them various amounts for over time, always in excess of the regular day's wages per hour.

"I am informed that the state highway department is not enforcing this rule and the contractors are permitted to work more than eight hours.

"It seems to me that such improvements are in the nature of extraordinary emergencies for the reason that such work can be prosecuted only during the summer months; for the further reason that the public generally is very greatly inconvenienced during such construction work; and that the public who live along the route of proposed improvement are inconvenienced in getting in and getting out.

"As we are extremely anxious to have your view of this matter immediately, I shall appreciate an early reply."

In opinion No. 814 of this department, rendered to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, on September 10, 1915, and found at page 1713 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for that year, it was held that sections 17-1 and 17-2 G. C. apply to workmen engaged in the construction, repair, replacement or alteration of streets, roads and all public thoroughfares. The only question presented by your inquiry is, therefore, as to whether the facts that the road work can be prosecuted only during the summer months, and that not only those living along the route of a road improvement, but also the public generally, are greatly inconvenienced during construction work, constitute a case of extraordinary emergency. I advise you that this question must be answered in the negative.

The most common present meaning of the word "emergency" is set forth in the Standard Dictionary as follows:

> "A sudden or unexpected occurrence or condition calling for immediate action."

The closing of a road for the purpose of construction or repair, and the facts that the work can be carried forward only during favorable weather, and that during its progress persons will be inconvenienced, cannot be said to create a situation which might be properly described as either sudden or unexpected. The situation which you describe in your letter instead of being unexpected is the one which is to be expected whenever a road improvement is proposed. To hold that under such circumstances work might be prosecuted without regard to section 17-1 G. C., would be to practically repeal the eight hour law and the constitutional provision of which it is declaratory, and for the violation of which it provides a penalty, in so far as the construction and improvement of streets and roads is concerned.

I therefore advise you that the situation described in your communication does not constitute an extraordinary emergency within the meaning of the statute.

I note your observation in regard to the state highway department and am informed by a representative of that department that in so far as the department is proceeding by force account and directly employing labor, the department is complying strictly with all of the provisions of the eight hour law, and that in so far as the matter has been brought to the attention of that department by persons with whom it has contracted for the construction of roads, the department has advised such persons that the eight hour day for workmen engaged in any public work, carried on or aided by the state, even when done by contract, has been established by the constitution and laws of the state and that the department is without any power or authority to authorize any contractor to violate its provisions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 11, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of September 6th you request my opinion as follows:

> "The county commissioners of Lucas county, Ohio, constructed certain roads under what was known as the Garrett law and its successor, the Thomas law (sections 6926 to 6956 inclusive). Bonds were issued by the county to meet the township's share of such construction, part prior to June 2, 1911, and part thereafter without vote, and the county commissioners have been levying taxes on the several townships under section 6950 for the payment of the interest on such bonds and their redemption.
> "Prior to the passage of the Cass law, there was apparently no limitation on the rate of taxation that might be levied for the redemption of such bonds other than the 15 mills limitation of the Smith law. Section 106 of the Cass law now provides for a levy of not over 3 mills for such purpose. Is the levy for the redemption of the bonds issued under the Garrett and Thomas laws (now repealed) subject to the limitations found in the Cass law, to the limitations of the Smith one per cent. law, or to the limitations of the act under which they were issued?

"If subject to the provisions of the Smith law, is the levy to be considered as a levy for debt, and, therefore, subject to only the 15 mills limitation if the bonds are issued prior to June 2, 1911, and subject to the 2 mills for township purposes and 10 mills for all current purposes since that date?

"Can the levy now made under the Cass law for new construction, when taken together with the levy for the redemption of the bonds issued under the old law, exceed the 3 mills limitation provided by section 106 of the Cass law?"

Sections 6926 to 6956, inclusive, of the General Code, as found in the chapter relating to county roads and under the subdivisions relating to the improvement of stone and gravel roads, and formerly known as the Garrett law, were amended by the act of the general assembly known as the Thomas law (103 O. L. 198 et seq.) and as amended continued in force until the going into effect of the Cass law (106 O. L 574-664) on September 6, 1915.

It may be observed at the outset that tax levies made by the commissioners of Lucas county to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund for the retirement at their maturity, of bonds issued by said commissioners for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the cost of improvements made by said commissioners under authority of section 6926 et seq. of the General Code as in force prior to said date of September 6, 1915, are not subject to the limitation of any provision of said Cass law. While said sections, generally speaking, were repealed by the going into effect of section 305 of said Cass law, those provisions of said sections governing the aforesaid tax levies were, by the saving provisions of section 303 of said law, continued in full force and operation.

Section 303 of said law provides as follows:

"This act shall not affect or impair any contract or any act done, or right acquired of any penalty, forfeiture or punishment incurred prior to the time when this act or any section thereof takes effect, under or by virtue of any law so repealed, but the same may be asserted, completed, enforced, prosecuted or inflicted as fully and to the same extent as if such laws had not been repealed. The provisions of this act shall not affect or impair any act done or right acquired under or in pursuance of any resolution adopted by the board of commissioners of any county, the trustees of any township, or the commissioners of any road district prior to the time of the taking effect of this act, and wherever under any law repealed by this act any organization now exists for the purpose of improving, repairing or maintaining any public road or roads, such organization shall not be affected by this act and all officers of such organization or organizations shall continue to hold office and exercise the powers heretofore exercised by them. Their successors in office with like powers shall be elected or appointed as heretofore till all contracts and obligations of such organization shall be fully met and complied with and all rights fully conserved. For such purposes such organization or organizations shall have all rights heretofore exercised by them to hire necessary assistance, clerical or otherwise; to fund or refund any indebtedness and to levy and collect taxes or certify the same for levy and collection; to pay such debts and expenses together with salaries and other expenses of such organization or organizations; but no such organization or organizations shall contract any new obligation or obligations after the taking effect of this act, for the construction or repair of additional road or roads or the maintenance or repair of roads already improved. When all obligations existing at the time of the taking effect of this act have been fully met and complied with, such organization or organizations shall cease to exist and all property or funds of such organization or organizations shall be and become a part of the road fund of the county in which such organization or organizations exist. All roads macadamized or paved by any such organization shall be kept improved and in repair by the county highway superintendent at the cost of the county in which the same are located."

In view of the provisions of section 303 of said Cass law, above quoted, it is evident that the only limitations which affect the aforesaid tax levies are those found in the sections themselves when read in connection with certain provisions of section 5649-2 G. C. (101 O. L. 430) and the provisions of the so-called Smith law (Section 5649-2, as amended to 5649-5b of the General Code) prescribing general limitations on tax levies, all of which provisions will hereafter be considered.

You state that a part of the bonds in question were issued by said commissioners of Lucas county prior to June 2, 1911(the date when said Smith law became effective), and a part subsequent to said date and without a vote of the people, and I note in this connection that no provision of the statutes authorizing said bond issues required that the question of their issue be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the taxing district or districts in which the aforesaid tax levies were made.

While from your statement of facts it appears that the bonds under consideration are of two classes, i. e., those issued prior to said date of June 2, 1911, and those issued subsequent to that date, I find it necessary in determining the answer to your first question to consider said bond issue as divided into three classes:

"1. Those issued prior to January 1, 1911 (the date when section 5649-2 G. C., 101 O. L. 430, became effective).

"2. Those issued subsequent to said date and prior to said date of June 2, 1911.

"3. Those issued subsequent to June 2, 1911."

Relative to bond issues of the first class I call your attention to the provisions of sections 6928, 6945, 6949 and 6950 of the General Code as in force prior to their amendment in 103 O. L., 198 et seq., which were as follows:

"Sec. 6928. The county commissioners shall order that a portion of the cost, and expenses thereof, which shall not be less than one-half, nor more than two-thirds of the total, shall be paid out of the proceeds of any levy or levies upon the grand duplicate of the county against which the taxable property of any township or townships in which such road may be in whole or in part, as authorized hereinafter. They shall also order the balance of said cost and expense be assessed upon and collected from the owners of said real estate, and from the real estate benefited thereby in proportion to the benefit to be derived therefrom by said real estate as determined by said commissioners.

"Sec. 6945. For the purpose of providing by general taxation a fund out of which not less than one-half nor more than two-thirds of the costs and expenses of all improvements made under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter can be paid, the commissioners are authorized to levy upon the taxable property of any township or townships within the county in which such improved road is to be or has been constructed, not exceeding ten mills in any one year upon each dollar of the valuation of the taxable property in such township or townships. Such levy shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law, notwithstanding any limitation upon the aggregate amount of such levies now in force.

"Sec. 6949. The county commissioners, if in their judgment it is desirable, may sell the bonds of any county in which such improvement is to be or has been constructed to an amount necessary to pay, of the costs and expenses of such road improvement, the respective shares of such township or townships and of the landowners whose lands therein are benefited by such road improvement. Such bonds shall state for what purpose issued, bear interest at a rate not in excess of five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, and mature, in not more than ten years after their issue, in such amounts and at such times as the commissioners shall determine, but not more than one-fifth of the principal of said bonds shall mature in any one year. They shall be sold according to law and for nor less than par and accrued interest.

"Sec. 6950. The proceeds of such bonds shall be applied and used exclusively for the payment of the expenses and cost of construction of such stone or gravel road improvement, and the levy for the payment of the principal and interest of such bonds may be in addition to any levy now authorized by law."

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutes it is evident that in so far as bond isues of the first class above mentioned are concerned a tax levy for interest and sinking fund purposes made by said county commissioners prior to said date of January 1, 1911, upon the taxable property of the township or townships in which the improvement in question was located, are subject only to the limitation of ten mills in any one year provided for in the latter part of section 6945 G. C. supra, said section further providing that such levy should be in addition to all other levies authorized by law, notwithstanding any limitation upon the aggregate amount of such levies then in force. Said bond issues were subject also to the limitation contained in the latter part of section 6949 G. C. supra, that not more than one-fifth of the principal should mature in any one year.

Section 5649-2 G. C. (101 O. L. 430), by the terms of section 11 of the act in which the same is found, became effective on January 1, 1911, and as in force prior to the going into effect of its amendment (102 O. L. 268) on June 2, 1911, provided as follows:

"The maximum rate of taxes that may be levied for all purposes, by the taxing authorities of any taxing district, upon the taxable property therein, shall not in any one year exceed ten mills on each dollar of the tax valuation of the taxable property of such district, for that year, including the taxes, levied under authority of section 1 of this act. If in any year such rate of ten mills will not produce an amount equal to the aggregate amount of taxes levied in such district in the year 1909, plus six per cent. thereof for the year 1911, nine per cent. for the year 1912 and twelve per cent. thereof for any year thereafter, and exclusive of any additional amount authorized for sinking fund purposes, or under the provisions of section five of this act, or emergencies as provided for in section forty-four hundred and fifty, forty-four hundred and fifty-one, fifty-six hundred and twenty-nine and seventy-four hundred and nineteen of the General Code, such rate may be increased to the extent necessary to produce such aggregate amount, but in no case to exceed fifteen mills exclusive of levies for sinking fund and interest purposes."

Section 1 of the act (section 5649-1 G. C.) provided as follows:

> "In any taxing district, the taxing authority shall levy a tax sufficient to provide for sinking fund and interest purposes."

It will be observed that while section 5649-2 G. C. supra, provides a general tax limitation in a taxing district of ten mills for all purposes, it so conditioned said limitation by reference to the aggregate amount of tax levies in such district for the year 1909 that in so far as the tax levy for a bond issue of the first class above mentioned is concerned, the same was not affected by any of the limitations prescribed by said section.

Coming now to a consideration of the effect of the Smith law limitations upon the tax levy made subsequent to said date of June 2, 1911, to provide the necessary interest and sinking fund for a bond issue of the first class above mentioned, I note that by provision of the latter part of section 5649-2 G. C. as amended 102 O. L. 268, and as again amended 103 O. L. 552, said levy is expressly exempted from the ten mill limitation therein prescribed.

In opinion No. 601 of this department rendered to your commission July 12, 1915, I held that a levy, made by the commissioners of a county under authority of section 6956-14 G. C. on the taxable property of a township in which an improvement is located in whole or in part, to pay the proportion of the cost of said improvement apportioned to said township by said county commissioners under authority of section 6956-10 G. C., was not a levy made by the taxing officials of a township for township purposes within the meaning of section 5649-3a G. C. and that said levy was not therefore subject to the two mill limitation prescribed by said section. It seems clear to my mind that inasmuch as the levy under consideration is made by the county commissioners for interest and sinking fund purposes in connection with the aforesaid issue of county bonds for the improvement of county roads, the same cannot be said to be subject to said two mill limitation for township purposes prescribed in said section 5649-3a G. C.

In view of the foregoing it necessarily follows that the only limitation of said Smith law, if any, that can be said to apply to said tax levy is that prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C., which as originally in force and as amended in 103 O. L. 57, and as now in force, provides that:

> "In no case shall the combined maximum rate for all taxes levied in any year in any county, city, village, school district, or other taxing district, under the provisions of this and the two preceding sections and sections 5649-1, 5649-2 and 5649-3 of the General Code as herein enacted, exceed fifteen mills."

It is evident, however, that in so far as bond issues of the first class above mentioned are concerned, this latter limitation could not apply in a possible case where the tax levy made under authority of section 6945 G. C. supra, when taken in connection with all other levies required by law to be made exceeds the fifteen mills and the county commissioners in such case should either fail to avail themselves of the authority conferred by section 5656 et seq. of the General Code or should be unable, in the exercise of such authority, to sell refunding bonds of such county for the purpose of extending the time of the payment of said bonds. To hold that said limitation would apply in this case would result in the impairment of the obligation of the contract evidenced by the bonds in question.

Such a case, however, is not at all probable and I am of the opinion that, generally speaking, said tax levy is subject to said fifteen mill limitation prescribed by said section 5649-5b G. C.

It will be observed that the provision of the first part of section 5649-2 G. C. (101 O. L. 430), as in force prior to the going into effect of its amendment (102 O. L. 268) on June 2, 1911, by its terms would have brought a tax levy made by the commissioners of Lucas county for interest and sinking fund purposes incident to bond issues of the second class above mentioned, within the ten mill limitation therein prescribed, subject however to the conditions mentioned in the latter part of said section under which said levy would not have been subject to either the ten or fifteen mill limitation prescribed by said statute.

Inasmuch, however, as the first tax levy for bonds of said second class must necessarily have been set forth in the annual budget of said county commissioners filed with the county auditor on or before the first Monday in June, 1911, according to the requirement of section 5649-3a G. C., which section is a part of the act of the general assembly known as the Smith law (102 O. L. 266), it is evident that the only limitations that need be considered are those of said Smith law, and in view of what has already been said it is clear that the only limitation of said law, which, generally speaking, can be said to apply to said tax levy is that prescribed by said section 5649-5b G. C.

Relative to bond issues of the third class above mentioned, made subsequent to said date of June 2, 1911, and without a vote of the people, it may be observed that as to those bonds of said class issued prior to the going into effect of the amendment of said sections 6926 to 6956, inclusive, of the General Code on July 28, 1913, the provisions of section 6945 G. C. supra, are by implication modified by the subsequent enactment of the provisions of the Smith law and in view of what has already been said it necessarily follows that a tax levy for interest and sinking fund purposes incident to bond issues of said subdivision of said class three, above set forth, is outside of the two mill limitation for township purposes prescribed by section 5649-3a G. C., but subject to the ten mill limitation provided for in section 5649-2 G. C. as amended 103 O. L. 552, and to the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by said section 5649-5b G. C., as amended 103 O. L. 57.

Section 6945 G. C. as amended 103 O. L. 202, and as in force prior to the going into effect of the Cass law September 6, 1915, provided as follows:

> "For the purpose of providing by general taxation a fund out of which not less than one-half nor more than two-thirds of the costs and expenses of all improvements made under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter can be paid, the commissioners are authorized to levy upon the taxable property of any township or townships within the county in which such improved road is to be or has been constructed, not exceeding three mills in any one year upon each dollar of the valuation of the taxable property in such township or townships. Such levies shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for township purposes, but subject to the maximum limitation upon the aggregate amount of all levies now in force."

In view of the above provisions of section 6945 G. C. as amended, it is evident that the legislature had in mind the general limitations on tax levies contained in sections 5649-2 to 5649-5b, inclusive, of the General Code hereinbefore referred to. It will readily be observed that the tax levy made for interest and sinking fund purposes incident to the bond issues of class three, above mentioned, issued subsequent to July 28, 1913, the date when section 6945 G. C. as amended became effective, is subject to the ten and fifteen mill limitations above referred to and in addition thereto to the three mill limitation prescribed by said amended section 6945 G. C. supra.

Answering your first question specifically I am of the opinion:

"1. That tax levies made by the commissioners of Lucas county to provide a fund for the payment of the interest and for the retirement at their maturity of the bonds issued by said county commissioners for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the cost of improvements made by said county commissioners under authority of sections 6926 to 6956, inclusive, of the General Code, as in force prior to September 6, 1915, are not subject to the limitation of any provision of the Cass law.

"2. That a tax levy made by said county commissioners for interest and sinking fund purposes in connection with bonds issued prior to January 1, 1911, is subject only to the ten mill limitation provided in section 6945 G. C. as then in force, and to the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C., as amended, and as now in force. this conclusion being subject of course to the qualification that, in the possible case hereinbefore considered where the tax levy made under authority of section 6945 G. C., when taken in addition to all other levies required by law to be made, exceeds fifteen mills, and the county commissioners in such case have either failed to exercise the authority conferred upon them by section 5650 et seq. of the General Code, or have been unable in the exercise of such authority to sell refunding bonds of said county for the purpose of extending the time of payment of said bonds, said 15 mill limitation will not apply.

"3. That a tax levy made by said county commissioners for interest and sinking fund purposes incident to bonds issued subsequent to January 1, 1911, and prior to June 2, 1911, is subject only to the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by said section 5649-5b G. C.

"4. That a tax levy made by said county commissioners for interest and sinking fund purposes incident to bonds issued subsequent to June 2, 1911, and prior to July 28, 1913, is subject only to the ten mill limitation prescribed by section 5649-2 G. C., and the fifteen mill limitation provided for in section 5649-5b G. C., as said sections are amended and now in force.

"5. That a tax levy made by said county commissioners for the aforesaid purposes, in connection with bonds issued subsequent to said date of July 28, 1913, is subject to the ten and fifteen mill limitations above referred to, and in addition thereto to the three mill limitation prescribed by section 6945 G. C. as amended, 103 O. L. 202, and as in force from and after said date of July 28, 1913, and prior to the going into effect of the Cass law on September 6, 1915."

Your second question has already been answered in determining the answer to your first question.

Section 106 of the Cass law, referred to in your third question, being section 6927 of the General Code, 106 O. L. 603, provides:

"For the purpose of providing by taxation a fund for the payment of the proportion of the costs and expenses of such improvement, to be paid by the township or townships interested, in which such road may be in whole or part situated, the county commissioners are hereby authorized to levy a tax not exceeding three mills in any one year upon all the taxable property of such township or townships. Such levy shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for road purposes, but subject to the limitation on the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force."

The provisions of this statute governing county commissioners in the making of tax levies for the purposes therein set forth can only apply to improvements made subsequent to September 6, 1916, and have no application to tax levies made by county commissioners under authority of section 6945 G. C. supra, for the purpose herein before considered.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your third question, that the three mill limitation provided for in said section 6927 G. C. supra, has no application to said tax levies made under authority of said section 6945 G. C. supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—PARTNERSHIP DULY LICENSED TO CONDUCT SALOON MAY CARRY ON BUSINESS IN WHATSOEVER NAME OR NAMES CHOSEN AT PLACE FOR WHICH LICENSE ISSUED—NO ADDITIONAL LICENSE REQUIRED—LIEBENTHAL BROTHERS & COMPANY—NATIONAL CORDIAL COMPANY.

A partnership duly licensed to conduct a saloon, or, in other words, having a saloon license, may carry on the business authorized under such license in whatsoever name or names they may choose at the place where such license is operative, so long as no other person or persons are in any way interested in such business than those whose names appear in the application for such license and to whom the same was granted and issued, and no other person or persons than the licensees have any financial interest in the business conducted at the place for which such saloon license is granted.

A partnership having a license to traffic in intoxicating liquors at a given place is not required to procure an additional license or licenses by reason of the fact that the partnership business is conducted in more than one name.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 12, 1916.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—With your request for an opinion thereon you transmitted to me statement of facts submitted to you by Mr. George B. Harris of Cleveland, Ohio, as follows:

"CLEVELAND, OHIO, August 2, 1916.

"Liebenthal Brothers & Company is a partnership, composed of Sylvester and Melville Liebenthal, which does a wholesale and retail liquor business at 1438 West 9th street, in this city, having a license so to do. For purposes of business convenience, it proposes to bill out certain wholesale sales under the name of "National Cordial Company." The salesmen who are to make the sales are employed by Liebenthal Brothers & Company, the merchandise is to be prepared for delivery by the employes of Liebenthal Brothers & Company, and deliveries are to be made by those employed or hired by Liebenthal Brothers & Company, the billing is to be done by the employes of Liebenthal Brothers & Company, and the books kept by their employes. All of the foregoing are to be carried on at the place of business of Liebenthal Brothers & Company aforesaid, except the solicitation of salesmen, which, of course, is to be done at the place of business of the various customers.

"The questions presented are: (a) May Messrs. Liebenthal so use the name 'National Cordial Company?' (b) If so, must they acquire for National Cordial Company a liquor license?"

It is further stated by Mr. Harris, in personal interview, that the foregoing statement is intended to show only that all the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors therein referred to is carried on at No. 1438 West Ninth street in the city of Cleveland, and that all of such business is done, owned, conducted and controlled by the partners in said statement named, and that no other person or persons have any interest therein and that the question sought to be submitted, stated in another way, is:

> "May persons who are duly licensed to traffic in intoxicating liquors, as a partnership, carry on such business under more than one name, if such business is conducted in all other respects in compliance with law?"

It will be borne in mind that subject only to certain exceptions not necessary to be here considered, no sale of intoxicating liquors may be lawfully made in this state unless the person or persons making such sale is duly licensed to engage in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors.

Under article XV, section 9 of the constitution, licenses to traffic in intoxicating liquors are authorized to be granted subject to certain restrictions and limitations therein prescribed. These constitutional limitations upon the power to grant licenses to traffic in intoxicating liquors are for the most part carried into the license law passed April 18, 1913, 103 O. L. 216.

The primary purpose running through both the constitutional and statutory authority for the granting of licenses to traffic in intoxicating liquors, and the restrictions or limitations thereof therein provided, is to limit the conduct of the business to a class of persons, associations and corporations possessing certain qualifications therein prescribed and to further so limit the number of saloons that they may not be in excess of a prescribed ratio to the population of the township or municipality in which the same are located in that territory of the state in which the sale of intoxicating liquors is not prohibited by law. Neither the constitution nor the license law operates to make the sale of intoxicating liquors fundamentally unlawful. In the exercise of the police power of the state it is sought, however, through the constitutional and statutory provisions referred to, to limit the sale of liquors to the class of persons therein defined and the number of saloons within a prescribed territory.

Aside from the provisions of section 23 of the license law, 1261-38 G. C., 103 O. L. 234, which requires that each licensee shall post in a conspicuous place within the enclosure or room where the liquors are sold the license certificate issued to him by the county boaad, and section 51 of the license law, 1261-66 G. C., 103 O. L. 238, which makes a failure to comply with the above mentioned provision of section 1261-38 G. C. a misdemeanor and provides a penalty therefor, neither article XV, section 9 of the constitution nor the license law in themselves purport to impose upon a licensee any restriction, limitation or regulation in the conduct of his business at the place for which the license is issued.

Beyond the limitation of the number of saloons and the restrictions of the power to grant licenses as to the class of persons to whom the same may be granted the laws regulating the manner of conducting the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors, but for the exception above mentioned, must be sought elsewhere than in the section of the constitution above referred to and in the license law.

It is stated that the persons in question are duly licensed to conduct a wholesale and retail liquor business, and whether the license is issued to Liebenthal Brothers & Company or not, it is inferred that the business is now being conducted under that name. Licenses are granted on applications required to be filed with the county liquor licensing board having jurisdiction of the place for which the license is sought.

Section 1261 G. C., 103 O. L. 223, provides in part as follows:

> "Each applicant shall state:

"(a) His full name and address, or if more than one person, or if an association, the names of all the persons concerned, whether as partners or as members of said association, and the address of each person concerned, including street and number. * * *

"(c) The fact that the applicant is not in any way interested either as owner or part owner in a business, or a stockholder of a corporation engaged in the business, conducted at any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold or kept for sale as a beverage."

Whether the license was issued to Sylvester Liebenthal and Melville Liebenthal or to Liebenthal Brothers & Company, it must have appeared from the application that Sylvester Liebenthal and Melville Liebenthal were the only persons interested in the license sought and that neither of them were interested either as owner or part owner in a business, or as stockholder of a corporation engaged in the business conducted any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold or kept for sale as a beverage. So that it is conclusive that Liebenthal Brothers & Company and Sylvester Liebenthal and Melville Liebenthal are identical, and that for whatever is done by them in the conduct of the business carried on under such license—in violation of law or the rights of others—Sylvester Liebenthal and Melville Liebenthal are responsible.

With the foregoing observations let it be supposed that the partnership referred to, being duly licensed to conduct a saloon at the place mentioned, through its traveling salesman or representative, procures an order for a consignment of intoxicating liquors which the partnership in question sells at the place where it is duly licensed to sell intoxicating liquors and for reasons satisfactory to the licensee or licensees the consignment of liquors, in all other respects sold in compliance with law, is billed out to the vendee and consignee and charged against the person to whom sold on the books of the licensee in the name of the "National Cordial Company" or other wholly ficticious name, and that payment therefor is made by the vendee to the "National Cordial Company."

If such transaction be legally wrong there must be a legal remedy. The course of business described would, of course, be subject to the provisions of section 8096 G. C. et seq. requiring partnerships transacting business in this state under a ficticious name, with certain exceptions, to file with the clerk of the common pleas court of the county a certificate stating the names in full of all the members of the partnership and their places of residence. No penalty attaches to a failure to comply with the foregoing requirement that would render a sale so made in any substantial sense unlawful.

By section 1261-31 G. C., 103 O. L. 221, it is made the duty of the county liquor licensing board and they are authorized "to suspend or revoke, subject to the conditions and in the manner provided by law, all licenses granted or renewed in said county."

It is provided in part by section 1261-34 G. C., 103 O. L. 222, that:

"If at any time a corporation or association shall come to be without a designated manager as provided for herein, the license of said corporation or association shall be suspended unless within ten days a new manager or managers are appointed; and if in such case no new manager is designated within thirty days after the original manager ceases to occupy the position, unless the time is extended by the county board, and if the said manager has not all the qualifications provided by law in the case of an individual applicant, the license may be revoked. * * *

"Licenses shall not be granted to any applicant who is in any way interested in the business conducted at any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold or kept for sale as a beverage, nor shall such license be granted unless the applicant or applicants are the only persons in any way pecuniarily interested in the business for which the license is sought, and no other person shall be in any way interested therein during the continuance of the license; if such interest of such person shall appear, the license shall be deemed revoked."

Section 1261-49 G. C., 103 O. L. 230, provides in reference to the power to suspend or revoke a license as follows:

"If any licensee within the jurisdiction of a county licensing board has been once convicted during the license year of an offense under laws or ordinances concerning the sale of intoxicating liquors, and if said board with due notice to the licensee and after a full hearing granted to him finds that the said licensee has, during said license year and after said conviction, violated the said laws or ordinances, the said board may suspend the license of the said licensee once for a period not to exceed ten days.

"If, after such conviction and suspension, offenses are, during the said license year, again repeated, the said board may, with due personal notice to the licensee, served not less than five days before the hearing, and after a full hearing granted to said licensee, revoke the said license of said licensee; and notice of such revocation shall forthwith be served upon the person whose license is so revoked.

"Upon a conviction under said laws and ordinances as for a second offense as provided for in section 54 hereinafter the county board may, if error proceedings are taken to the judgment of the court in which conviction is had, suspend the license of the licensee so convicted for the remainder of the license year. Should, however, the judgment of conviction be reversed prior to the termination of said license year then such suspension shall immediately terminate. During such suspension no new license shall be granted to take the place of the license so suspended."

Section 1261-73 G. C., 103 O. L. 241, provides in part as follows:

"If any licensee is more than once convicted for a violation of the laws in force to regulate the traffic in intoxicating liquors, his license shall be deemed revoked and no license shall thereafter be granted to him."

The foregoing provisions prescribe the conditions and manner provided by law for the suspension and revocation of licenses as referred to in section 1261-31 G. C. supra.

No further discussion is needed in this connection than to say that the transaction under consideration is manifestly not within contemplation of the authority to suspend or revoke a license by the foregoing statutory provisions conferred. Nor is it necessary here to consider the power to revoke a license based upon the loss by a licensee of any of the requisite qualifications by a licensee as it is not believed that the transaction under consideration of itself would operate to deprive one of any of those qualifications.

Section 1261-63 G. C., 103 O. L. 237, makes it a criminal offense for any person to sell intoxicating liquors without having been duly licensed with certain exceptions therein defined.

Section 1261-64 G. C., 103 O. L. 238, makes it an offense for any person whether licensed or not to sell intoxicating liquors in quantities of less than two gallons without having a saloon license with the same exceptions as made in the preceding section.

If then it be determined by those officers charged with, or other persons seeking the enforcement of the foregoing penal statutes that sales of intoxicating liquors are being made in any name or names under which no license has been granted or issued, since criminal proceedings may not be maintained against a mere name, it will necessarily devolve upon such officers or persons to ascertain the identity of the person or persons represented by such name or names and by whom, as a matter of fact, such sales are being made. If upon investigation it develop that such sales are being made by a person, persons or partnership duly licensed to make the same and that such sales are being made only at the place where the license is in force it needs no argument to support the conclusion that no prosecution under either of the foregoing sections could be sustained. That is to say if the person or persons represented by the name under which a sale is made are in fact licensees and they are the only persons interested in such sale no offense defined by the statutes above referred to would be committed solely by the use of a ficticious name in the transaction.

I am aware of no other statutory provision the application of which would render unlawful in any way the use of a fictitious name by a partnership having a saloon or wholesale license in the conduct of the business authorized by such license. It is elementary that a partnership may adopt and use in the conduct of its business any name or names and that obligations entered into thereunder are binding and valid.

This principle is recognized in the following cases:

Wright v. Hooker, 10 N. Y. 51.

"Partners may adopt any name for the transaction of their partnership business, and may bind themselves by different partnership names, in their different places of business."

Campbell v. Coal & Iron Co., 9 Colo. 60.

"Where the same persons carry on the same business as partners, in two different places, under different firm names, there is in law but a single partnership, and the assets of both nominal firms are equally applicable to the payment of all the creditors."

The same rule is laid down in the case of In re Williams and Company, 3 Woods (U. S.) 493.

While different places of business are mentioned in the foregoing cases it is not deemed essential to the right to use different names in the conduct of a partnership business that the business conducted under different names must be at different places.

Hunt v. Sunonin, 79 Ky. 270.

"Only the individuals composing a firm can be sued. They may be sued jointly or separately, whether they do business in one or any number of firm names."

In the case of Meier & Company v. Bank, 55 O. S. 459, the court in the opinion observed that:

"The adoption of a firm name is largely for convenience in making contracts binding on all the members by its use, thus obviating the necessity of securing the individual assent of, and execution by each of the partners, which, when the members are numerous, might not only be inconvenient, but sometimes impracticable."

It is submitted that the right to use more than one name solely for the reason that it may add substantially to the convenience of the proper conduct of a partnership business is here clearly recognized.

In 22 Am. & E. Ency. 79 it is stated:

> "Where, as is sometimes the case, a firm has several names, a contract made in any one of such names will be binding."

In the absence of statutory restrictions in reference thereto and for the reasons above set forth I am therefore of opinion in answer to the first question submitted that a partnership duly licensed to conduct a saloon or in other words having a saloon license, may carry on the business authorized under such license in whatsoever name or names they may choose at the place for which the license is issued so long as no other person or persons are in any way interested in such business than those whose names appear in the application for such license and to whom the same was granted and issued. And the licensees are in no way interested in the business at any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold or kept for sale as a beverage.

Since as above pointed out the persons to whom the license has already been granted may not be interested in any way in the business conducted at any other place and no other person or persons than the licensee or licensees may be in any way pecuniarily interested in the business for which the license is granted it follows that no additional rights would be acquired by the present licensees or partnership by procuring a license in the name of the National Cordial Company, nor could any other person or persons thereby be permitted to obtain any pecuniary interest in the business conducted at the place where the present license is in force. Nor is it believed that there is authority for granting more than one license to conduct the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors at a single place.

The answer to the second question must therefore be in the negative.

The conclusion as above stated is confined solely to the facts under consideration.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

MARYSVILLE REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN—NO SPECIFIC AUTHORITY FOR APPOINTMENT OF FIELD OFFICERS—EMPLOYES MAY BE APPOINTED WHO WOULD HAVE SOME OF THE POWERS OF FIELD OFFICERS.

The provisions of section 2212 G. C. in respect to the appointment of field officers for certain penal institutions do not apply to the reformatory for women, but under the provisions of section 1842 G. C. the Ohio board of administration may determine whether it is necessary for said institution to have such services as correspond to those performed by field officers of the institutions named in said section 2212 supra, and if such board determines that such services are necessary it may designate the number of persons necessary to perform the same and fix their salaries, and the superintendent of said institution, under the provisions of section 2148-4 G. C. may thereupon appoint, as provided by law, the number so designated by said board.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 12, 1916.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of September 2, 1916, submitting the following inquiries:

"For the information of the Ohio board of administration, I wish you would designate to us the manner in which, and by whom, the field officers for the Ohio reformatory for women at Marysville are to be appointed; or does the law warrant the appointment of such officers."

The only statutory provisions providing for the appointment of a person or persons as a field officer or officers and defining their authority and duties are found in sections 2212 and 2213 G. C. These sections are as follows:

"Section 2212. The board of managers of the penitentiary and of the reformatory, respectively, shall appoint and employ one or more officers, to be known as field officers, for their respective institutions. Such officers shall carefully look after the welfare of all persons whose sentences have been suspended and those who have been paroled from such institutions."

"Sec. 2213. If a person placed upon probation fails to conduct himself in accordance with the rules and regulations of the institution in whose charge he has been placed, a field officer thereof, without warrant or other process, because of such failure, may arrest and convey him to the institution and the board of managers, after full investigation and a personal hearing, may forthwith terminate the probation and cause him to suffer the penalty of the sentence previously suspended. * * *"

It is manifest that the provisions of the above sections apply only to the institutions named therein and furnish no authority for the appointment of a field officer or officers for the reformatory for women. It follows, therefore, that there is no provision of law whereby any person or persons may be appointed as a field officer or officers for the institution named in your inquiry. But this does not mean that said institution shall be without the services which by law are imposed upon field officers or that it is without authority to have employes who may perform most of the services that are rendered by field officers, as provided in said foregoing sections, or by parole officers for the institutions named in section 2215 G. C.

In other words, while there is no specific authority to appoint a field officer or officers for the women's reformatory, there is ample authority for the employment of a person or persons who, as employes of said institution, may perform most of the services and discharge most of the same duties as those now imposed by law upon said field officers. Such employes would not have the power given to field officers by statute, such as the power to arrest without warrant or other process.

It is provided in section 2148-4 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 130, that:

"The board shall select and designate a suitable woman as superintendent to manage the institution and promote the welfare of the inmates thereof. The selection of other employes shall be after the manner described in section 1842 of the General Code, except that as far as practicable the employes shall be women."

This section provides for the appointment of a superintendent of the institution named in your inquiry and further provides that all employes of said institution shall be selected after the manner described in section 1842 of the General Code.

Referring now to said section 1842 it is provided therein, among other things, that:

"The chief officer shall have entire executive charge of the institution for which he is appointed, except as otherwise provided herein. He shall select and appoint the necessary employes, but not more than ten per cent.

of the total number of officers and employes of any institution shall be appointed from the same county. He shall have power to discharge them for cause, which shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and a report of all appointments and resignations and discharges shall be filed with the board at the close of each month. * * *

"The board, after conference with the managing officer of each institution, shall determine the number of officers and employes to be appointed therein. It shall from time to time fix the salaries and wages to be paid at the various institutions, which shall be uniform, as far as possible, for like service, provided that the salaries of all officers shall be approved in writing by the governor."

I am of the opinion that, in the section just quoted, may be found ample authority for providing said institution with the services of employes who may perform most of the duties of field officers as prescribed in said sections 2212 and 2213 aforesaid. I mean by this that said employes may be charged with the same duties as those imposed upon field officers, but would, of course, be without any of the authority which said statutes confer upon said officers. Said section 1842, aforesaid, delegates to your board in the first instance the power to determine, after conference with the managing officer of said institution, the number of officers and employes to be appointed therein and also their salaries and wages. The authority to so determine the number of officers necessarily includes the right of your board to consider and determine the necessity of the services to be rendered said institution by the officers and employes so considered. If, therefore, in your judgment, such services as those rendered by field officers are necessary to the institution in the proper and efficient administration of its affairs and in the enforcement of laws and regulations in respect thereto, the right primarily rests in your board to designate the number of persons who, as employes of said institution, may perform said services and to fix their salaries. When this is done, then, under the provisions of said section 2148-4 aforesaid, the superintendent of said institution is authorized to select and appoint said employes.

In answer, therefore, to your inquiry, I must advise that the Ohio board of administration, under the provisions of section 1842 G. C. supra, may determine whether it is necessary for the Ohio Reformatory for Women to have such services as correspond to those imposed by law upon field officers and parole officers of other institutions. If said board determines that such services are necessary to the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of said institution, then it may designate the number of persons who may be employed to perform said services and fix their salaries, and thereupon the superintendent of said institution may select and appoint in the manner provided by law the number of persons so designated by said board.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION—ORDERS OF SAID COMMISSION ISSUED UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 614-60 G. C. ARE NOT REQUIRED TO BE FILED WITH SECRETARY OF STATE—PURCHASER, HOME TELEPHONE COMPANY OF IRONTON—PROPERTY SOLD, CENTRAL UNION TELEPHONE COMPANY EXCHANGE AT IRONTON.

The orders of the public utilities commission of Ohio issued under authority of section 614-60 G. C. authorizing the purchase by The Home Telephone Company from The Central Union Telephone Company of Ironton exchange, and also fixing and determining rates, tolls, charges and rentals for service in said exchange are not required by law to be led with the secretary of state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 12, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of September 6, 1916, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "We are enclosing copy of orders of the public utilities commission of Ohio, relative to The Central Union Telephone Company and The Home Telephone Company.
> "The aforesaid instruments were submitted to this department for filing under section 614-61 of the General Code.
> "We kindly request an opinion on the question as to whether the secretary of state has the authority to file said instruments under the aforesaid section.
> "If your opinion is in the affirmative, under what index should the filing thereof be recorded, and also what would be the proper fee for so filing?"

The enclosures in your letter consist of certain orders and supplemental orders of the public utilities commission of Ohio:

> "In the matter of the joint application of The Home Telephone Company of Ironton, county of Lawrence, Ohio, and of The Central Union Telephone Company for consent and approval of the commission for the purchase of certain property of The Central Union Telephone Company by The Home Telephone Company, and for a connecting arrangement for an exchange of service between the applicants."

By virtue of these orders The Central Union Telephone Company is authorized to sell its property within the exchange area of Ironton, Ohio, to The Home Telephone Company, and an agreement for the physical connection of the two systems at Ironton for the interchange of service is approved. In these orders, also, the public utilities commission has ascertained and determined the valuation of the property within said exchange territory authorized to be sold upon which rates, tolls, charges and rentals are based, and also has fixed and determined such rates, tolls, charges and rentals so to be charged.

Section 614-60 of the General Code under which the sale of the Ironton exchange by The Central Union Telephone Company to The Home Telephone Company is authorized, is as follows:

> "Section 614-60. With the consent and approval of the commission, but not otherwise:
> "(a) Any two or more public utilities, furnishing a like service or product and doing business in the same municipality or locality within this state, or any two or more public utilities whose lines intersect or parallel each other within this state, may enter into contracts with each other that will enable such public utilities to operate their lines or plants in connection with each other.

"(b) Any public utility may purchase, or lease the property, plant or business of any other such public utility.

"(c) Any such public utility may sell or lease its property or business to any other such public utility.

"(d) Any such public utility may purchase the stock of any other such public utility.

"The proceedings for obtaining the consent and approval of the commission for such authority, shall be as follows:

"There shall be filed with the commission a petition, joint or otherwise, as the case may be, signed and verified by the president and secretary of the respective companies, clearly setting forth the object and purposes desired, stating whether or not it is for the purchase, sale, lease or making of contracts or for any other purpose in this section provided and also the terms and conditions of the same. The commission shall, upon the filing of such petition, if it deem the same necessary, fix a time and place for the hearing thereof. If, after such hearing, or in case no hearing is required, the commission is satisfied that the prayer of such petition should be granted and the public will thereby be furnished adequate service for a reasonable and just rate, rental, toll, or charge therefor, it shall make such order in the premises as it may deem proper and the circumstances require, and thereupon it shall be lawful to do the things provided for in such order."

The above quoted section contains no requirement that any order of the public utilities commission issued under its provisions shall be filed with the secretary of state. Under section 614-61 of the General Code, which is a part of the same act, in which section 614-60 above quoted is found providing for the consolidation of certain defined telephone companies, the order of the public utilities commission authorizing such consolidation before going into effect must be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and I am informed that it is because of this provision that the orders of the public utilities commission in the present matter are presented to you for filing.

There is reason why the order of the public utilities commission issued under section 614-61 should be filed in your office, while no such requirement is made as to orders issued under section 614-60. The latter section confers authority for and prescribes the method and procedure whereby one public utility company may enter into contracts with another such company furnishing a like service to operate the plant or lines in connection with each other, or whereby one public utility company may purchase, sell or lease property, or purchase the capital stock of any other such company.

Section 614-61 of the General Code on the other hand authorizes and provides machinery for the consolidation of two or more telephone companies, which means a merging of their corporate management.

I therefore advise you that the law does not require the filing in your office of the orders of the public utilities commission enclosed in your letter.

The answer to your first question removes the reason for answering your second and third questions.

I am enclosing herewith the orders submitted to me.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

MOTHERS' PENSION ACT—CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTE AS TO "LEGAL RESIDENCE"—SUFFICIENT IF MOTHER AND CHILDREN RESIDE FOR THREE YEARS IN ONE COUNTY OF THIS STATE IMMEDIATELY PRIOR TO MONTH'S RESIDENCE IN ANOTHER COUNTY OF THIS STATE.

The residence of a mother and her children for three years in one county of this state immediately prior to a residence of one month in another county of this state meets the requirement of section 1683-2 G. C., 103 O. L. 877, as to the mother and children having a legal residence in any county for two years, and if in all other respects qualified, the mother may be granted an allowance under said section in the latter county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 13, 1916.

HON. W. S. SPENCER, Probate Judge, Marion, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of September 8, 1916, is as follows:

> "I am enclosing you copy of application of Salvina Miku for mother's pension and ask for opinion from your department as to the legality of payment of pension on said application, in view of that part of section 1683-2 which reads 'and such mothers and children have been legal residents in any county of the state for two years.'
> "I find that the judges differ in their opinions upon this particular part of the law, some holding that the mother and children must have been legal residents of their respective counties for two years before they are eligible to draw the mothers' pension.
> "Kindly advise me the meaning of the above quoted part of section 1683-2 and oblige."

With your inquiry you submit a copy of the application of M. for a mother's pension, in which it is stated that the applicant is the mother of four children not entitled to receive an age and schooling certificate and that the applicant "became a resident of Marion county August 1, 1916," and that "she and her said children have continued to reside therein since that time, prior to August 1, 1916, residing three years in Belmont county, Ohio."

Section 1683-2 G. C., 103 O. L. 877, to which you refer in your inquiry, provides as follows:

> "For the partial support of women whose husbands are dead, or become permanently disabled for work by reasons of physical or mental infirmity, or whose husbands are prisoners or whose husbands have deserted, and such desertion has continued for a period of three years, when such women are poor, and are the mothers of children not entitled to receive an age and schooling certificate, and such mothers and children have been legal residents in any county of the state for two years, the juvenile court may make an allowance to each of such women, as follows: Not to exceed fifteen dollars a month, when she has but one child not entitled to an age and schooling certificate, and if she has more than one child not entitled to an age and schooling certificate, it shall not exceed fifteen dollars a month for the first child and seven dollars a month for each of the other children not entitled to an age and schooling certificate. The order making such allowance shall not be effective for a longer period than six months, but upon the expiration of such period, said court may from time to time, extend such allowance for a period of six months, or less. Such homes shall be visited from time to time by a probation officer, agent of an associated charities organization, a humane society, or such other agents as the court may direct, provided that the person who actually makes such visits shall be thoroughly trained in charitable relief work, and the report or reports of such visiting agent shall be considered by the court in making such order."

In construing the above quoted section, my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, held in an opinion under date of June 29, 1914, addressed to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, found at page 921 of the Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1914, that:

"Under the provisions of section 1683-2 General Code, a mother is not required to have resided two years in a county before applying in that county for a mothers' pension, but residence for two years on the part of the mother and children in any county in the state, whether that county be the county in which the two years' residence is established or not, entitles the mother to an allowance within a county of the state. Legal residence is not to be computed or ascertained by adding together periods of residence less than two years in different counties of the state. The mother and children must have resided legally for two years in some one county of the state."

In an opinion of this department under date of December 13, 1915, addressed to Hon. George M. Hoke, probate judge of Seneca county, found at page 2368 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915, it was held:

"A mother of dependent children returning to Seneca county, Ohio, where she formerly resided for the greater part of her life, after an absence of several years, in a sister state, is eligible to file application for mother's pension under the provisions of section 1683-2 G. C., and under the facts presented an award of such pension by the juvenile court judge would not be regarded as an abuse of discretion."

In consideration of the foregoing opinions, it follows that if the applicant and her children resided three years in Belmont county of this state, prior to August 1, 1916, as stated in the application, such residence in Belmont county, together with that in Marion county, would bring the applicant within the requirements of section 1683-2 G. C. supra, in respect to residence.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION—AUTHORITY UNDER BUILDING CODE TO ISSUE GENERAL ORDER FIXING REQUIREMENTS FOR HEATING PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The industrial commission of Ohio is without authority to include in any general order fixing the requirements for the heating of theaters, assembly halls and school buildings, any system of heating not included within the provisions of sections 12600-31 and 12600-64 G. C., but such commission with the concurrence of the proper municipal authorities may permit the use of any system of heating in said buildings when said system meets the requirements of section 12600-277 G. C.

An order of said commission limiting the use of standard ventilating stoves to rooms seating less than one hundred persons in buildings of one story without basement is in conflict with the provisions of section 12600-64 G. C., which said section contains no such limitation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 13, 1916.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have the following letter, under date of August 30, 1916, from your secretary, submitting certain inquiries:

> "I enclose herewith a copy of the minutes of the industrial commission of Ohio as of August 17, 1916, relative to the requirements for heating public buildings.
> "On the second and third pages of this copy, you will notice the 'Revised Requirements for Heating Public Buildings,' which were adopted by the industrial commission on the aforesaid date. Since some objection has been raised, as shown by the record submitted herewith, to the action of the commission in adopting these revised requirements, you are respectfully requested to render an opinion to this commission as to whether or not it acted within the scope of its legal rights when it adopted the revised requirements set forth in the minutes.
> "Inasmuch as further hearing in this matter has been continued until September 15, 1916, at two o'clock P. M., the commission is very anxious to receive your opinion on this matter before the date set for the hearing."

There is also attached to your letter certain copies of endorsements made by those advocating the adoption of the revised requirements aforesaid, and also a copy of your minutes of the date of August 29, 1916, wherein it appears that certain protests were made against the adoption of said revised requirements which resulted in your commission rescinding its former action, as shown by the minutes of August 17, 1916, whereby said revised requirements were adopted, and continuing the matter of their adoption until September 15th. It further appears from the foregoing records that the protests aforesaid were made upon the ground that your commission was without authority to adopt said revised requirements and that the same were in contravention of various sections of the building code of this state in that said revised requirements provide for a plan of system of heating not recognized or named in said sections, said plan or system being designated in your revised requirements aforesaid as the "Direct-indirect Steam or Hot Water System, Mechanical or Gravity."

Referring now to the statutory provisions as found in the building code in respect to the subject under consideration, it must be observed that titles 1 and 3 of said code were the only titles under the classification made in section 12600-1 G. C., which were enacted by the legislature into law. This section provides:

> "Under part two which follows, will be found under their respective titles, the various classes of buildings covered by this code together with the special requirements for their respective design, construction and equipment.
> "The classification of the various buildings will be found under the following titles, viz.:
> "Title 1. Theaters and assembly halls.
> "Title 2. Churches.
> "Title 3. School buildings.
> "Title 4. Asylums, hospitals and homes.
> "Title 5. Hotels, lodging houses, apartments and tenement houses.
> "Title 6. Club and lodge buildings.
> "Title 7. Workshops, factories and mercantile establishments."

Title 1 as aforesaid includes theaters and assembly halls. Title 3 includes school buildings. The buildings included in the terms "theaters and assembly halls" are defined in section 12600-2 G. C., and the buildings included in "school buildings" are defined in section 12600-44 G. C. Neither of the two last named sections include hospitals or churches and as Title 2 and Title 4, above noted, specifically refer to churches and hospitals it is apparent that the statutory provisions hereinafter referred to as applying to theaters, assembly halls and school buildings may not apply to churches and hospitals, and as to the latter buildings, which are named in your revised requirements, there being no statutory provisions covering the matter of their heating, it follows therefore that your commission as to hospitals and churches may not adopt any regulations and requirements except such as are calculated to prevent fire or other casualty. Lodge rooms are also named in your revised requirements and it appears also that lodge buildings are specified in Title 6 aforesaid, but in the buildings defined in section 12600-2 supra, under the head of assembly halls, there is specified "halls used as lodge rooms" which in my judgment is sufficient to bring lodge rooms within the provisions of the law applying to theaters and assembly halls.

Coming now to consider the direct question whether the revised requirements so as aforesaid adopted by your commission conflict with any statutory provisions of the building code, we find that by section 12600-31 G. C., which applies to theaters and assembly halls, it is provided, among other things:

> "A heating system shall be installed which will uniformly heat all parts of the building to a temperature of sixty-five degrees in zero weather. * * *
> "The system to be installed where a change of air is required shall be either a gravity or mechanical furnace system, gravity indirect steam or hot water, or a mechanical indirect steam or hot water system."

The provisions of the building code in respect to the heating of school buildings are found in section 12600-64 G. C., which provides in part as follows:

> "A heating system shall be installed which will uniformly heat all corridors, hallways, play rooms, toilet rooms, recreation rooms, assembly rooms, gymnasiums and manual training rooms to a uniform temperature of 65 degrees in zero weather, and will uniformly heat all other parts of the building to 70 degrees in zero weather. * * *
> "The heating system to be installed where a change of air is required shall be either standard ventilating stoves, gravity or mechanical furnaces, gravity indirect steam or hot water, or a mechanical indirect steam or hot water system."

It is unnecessary, and it would be impossible for me to discuss in detail the various systems of heating specified in the two foregoing sections of the building code. It is contended by those objecting to the adoption of the direct-indirect system aforesaid, that it is not included among the systems specified in said statutory provisions; while upon the other hand it is claimed by its advocates that it is in fact included in said statutory provisions, but not so designated therein. This controversy presents an issue of fact only, which of course is properly within your exclusive province to determine. If you decide that said system is not included in the systems named in said foregoing statutes, then we have the question of law as to whether said statutory provisions are mandatory or merely directory. I am of the opinion that they must be held to be mandatory, not only by reason of the language and expression of their enactment, but also because any other interpretation would be inconsistent with the purpose and policy of the building code and with its provisions which impose a penalty for any violation of any of its requirements, said penal provisions being found in sections 12600-279 and 12600-280 G. C., as well as in the provisions of sections 12600-274, 12600-275 G. C.

In view of this interpretation of the law it follows that your commission was and is without authority in issuing any general order or requirements for the heating of theaters, assembly halls and school buildings, to include therein any system not named in the sections aforesaid. This, however, does not mean that any system other than those named in said section may not be adopted and used in theaters, assembly halls and school buildings, for it is provided in section 12600-277 that:

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed to limit the council of municipalities from making further and additional regulations not in conflict with any of the provisions in this act contained, nor shall the provisions of this act be construed to modify or repeal any portions of any building code adopted by a municipal corporation and now in force which are not in direct conflict with the provisions of this act. Where the use of another fixture, device or construction is desired at variance with what is described in this statute, plans, specifications and details shall be furnished to the proper state and municipal authorities mentioned in section 1 (G. C., section 12600-281) for examination and approval, and if required actual tests shall be made to the complete satisfaction of said state and municipal authorities that the fixture, device or construction proposed answers to all intent and purposes the fixture, device or construction hereafter described in this statute. Instead of actual tests satisfactory evidence of such tests may be presented for approval with full particulars of the results and containing the names of witnesses of said tests."

Under the authority of this section, therefore, your commission, with the concurrence of the proper municipal authorities, may permit the use of any heating system which answers the requirements of the statute as completely as the systems named therein when this fact has been shown as required by said section.

Attention is further directed to the fact that by the revised requirements so as aforesaid adopted by your commission, the use of standard ventilating stoves is limited to rooms seating less than one hundred persons in buildings of one story without basement. No such limitation as this appears in section 12600-64 supra, which is the only section which permits of the use of ventilating stoves, and such limitation in your revised requirements, in so far as it may apply to school buildings, is not warranted by law.

Some criticism is made of the omission in said revised requirements of the provision in both sections in respect to the heating of theaters, assembly halls and school houses, that a system shall be installed which will uniformly heat to a certain temperature of a certain degree in zero weather. While these provisions might well have been included in your revised requirements, a failure so to do can not in anywise modify or repeal the provisions of the law in this matter, and any and every system placed in the buildings named must meet the standard fixed in this respect by the aforesaid sections of the code regulating the heating of said buildings.

Answering your inquiry, therefore, specifically, I must advise that your commission was and is without authority to include in any general order, and in the revised requirements aforesaid, in so far as they may apply to theaters, assembly halls and school buildings, any heating system not included within the provisions of sections 12600-31 and 12600-64 G. C., provided, however, that any system which complies with the requirements of said section 12600-277 supra, may, with your permission, and the concurrence of the proper municipal authorities, be used in the buildings named.

I am further of the opinion that the limitation that standard ventilating stoves may be used for rooms seating less than one hundred persons in buildings of one story without basement is in conflict with the provisions of section 12600-64 supra, which said section contains no such limitation.

I desire to observe in conclusion that the foregoing observations are made without any knowledge or consideration of the respective merits of the system or systems involved in this controversy, and are confined entirely to the legal questions involved in your inquiry.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

DENTAL COLLEGE GRADUATES—NO INSTITUTION OF LEARNING MAY LEGALLY CONFER DEGREES FOR ANY COURSE OF STUDY UNLESS SECTIONS 9922 AND 9923 G. C. ARE COMPLIED WITH—OHIO STATE DENTAL BOARD MAY DEFINE A "REPUTABLE DENTAL COLLEGE"—LACK OF AUTHORITY TO CONFER DEGREES NOT CONCLUSIVE AGAINST ANY SUCH COLLEGE.

No institution of learning may legally confer any degree pertaining or in respect to any course of study, unless as to that particular course of study such institution has complied with the provision of sections 9922 and 9923 G. C. as amended 104 O. L. 236,

Under the provisions of section 1321 G. C. the Ohio state dental board is vested with the authority and right to define what shall be a reputable dental college, and want of legal authority to confer degrees is not conclusive against any college to be so defined by said board.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 14, 1916.

Ohio State Dental Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have received your letter of August 19, 1916, requesting my advice in the matter of issuing licenses to practice dentistry to certain graduates of two dental colleges in this state. Attached to your communication is a copy of a protest filed against issuing the licenses aforsaid, which protest is made upon the ground that neither of the colleges in question has complied with the provisions of sections 9922 and 9923 G. C.

It appears from subsequent correspondence had with you and the colleges in question that while said colleges have operated under independent names, in each case it is claimed that the college in question is affiliated with, and a department of, another well known institution of learning, which last named institution has conferred the proper degrees upon the graduates, whose right to receive a license to practice dentistry is now questioned.

It is provided in section 9922 G. C. that:

> "When a college, university, or other institution of learning, incorporated for the purpose of promoting education, religion, morality or the fine arts, has acquired real or personal property, of twenty-five thousand dollars in value, has filed in the office of the secretary of state a schedule of the kind and value of such property, verified by the oaths of its trustees, such trustees may appoint a president, professors, tutors, and any other necessary agents and officers, fix the compensation of each, and enact such by-laws consistent with the laws of this state and the United States, for the government of the institution and for conducting the affairs of the corporation, as they deem necessary. On the recommendation of the faculty, the trustees also may confer all the degrees and honors conferred by colleges and universities of the United States, and such others having reference to the course of study, and the accomplishments of the student, as they deem proper."

Section 9923 G. C. provides, as amended 104 O. L. 236, as follows:

> "But no college or university shall confer any degree until the president or board of trustees thereof has filed with the secretary of state a certificate issued by the superintendent of public instruction that the course of study of such institution has been filed in his office, and that the equipment as to faculty and other facilities for carrying out such course are proportioned to its property and the number of students in actual attendance so as to warrant the issuing of degrees by the trustees thereof."

It appears from the subsequent course above mentioned that neither of the dental colleges in question has complied with the provisions of said section 9922 G. C., and further, that neither of the institutions of learning, which conferred the degrees aforesaid, has filed with the secretary of state the certificate provided by section 9923 G. C., that the course of study in said dental colleges or any course of study in any dental college controlled by said institution of learning, has been filed in the office of the superintendent of public instruction.

In short, it appears that the course of study completed by the graduates named is not on file either in the office of the secretary of state or the superintendent of public instruction.

An examination of the legislative history of section 9922 G. C. shows that from its first enactment to the present time there has been a gradual increase in the property qualifications required by said section, and indicates that it was not only the purpose of the legislature to demand the proper educational facilities and training, but also to require such substantial financial resources as to reasonably guarantee the perpetuation of any institution of learning.

By the provisions of said section 9923 G. C., as amended as aforesaid, no institution possessing the necessary property requirement may confer any degree until there is filed with the secretary of state the certificate of the superintendent of public instruction, that the course of study in such institution has been filed in his office and that the equipment as to faculty and other facilities for carrying out such course are proportioned to its property and number of students in actual attendance.

What is meant by the phrase "course of study" as here used? Manifestly it means the course of study in respect to which a degree may be conferred. It certainly would not be claimed that an institution filing a course of study as a college of liberal arts would, upon the approval of such course and the further compliance with the statutes by said institution as to the certificate aforesaid, thereby be authorized to confer a degree having reference only to a college of medicine, of law or of dentistry.

If, therefore, any institution of learning, which claims to operate as one of its departments a college of dentistry, has not filed with the secretary of state a certificate from the superintendent of public instruction, setting forth the matters required by section 9923 G. C. in respect to a course of study in a college of dentistry, such institution is without legal authority to confer any degree which pertains or has reference to a course of study in a college of dentistry.

The fact, however, that the institutions from which the applicants in question have graduated are without authority to confer the proper degrees, or that the institutions which conferred the degrees have not complied with the provisions of section 9922 G. C. is not conclusive against the right of such applicants to receive or your right to grant a license to practice dentistry, because it is provided by section 1321 G. C.

> "Each person who desires to practice dentistry within this state shall file with the secretary of the state dental board a written application for a license and furnish satisfactory proof that he is at least twenty-one years of age, of good moral character, and present evidence satisfactory to the board that he is a graduate of a reputable dental college, as defined by the board. Such application must be upon the form prescribed by the board and verified by oath."

This section vests in your board the discretion and right to define which shall be regarded and held by you to be a reputable dental college. The fact that a dental college is authorized by law to confer degrees does not necessarily constitute it a reputable college, nor impose upon you the unqualified duty of so defining it. Nor does the fact that a dental college, by reason of not possessing the necessary property qualifications or for any other reason, not affecting its efficiency, is not authorized to confer degrees, necessarily deprive it of the right to be regarded by your board as a reputable college.

A question very similar to the one here presented was determined by the supreme court in the case of state ex rel Medical College v. Coleman et al., 64 O. S. 377. In that case the relator, a medical college, had complied with all of the provisions of law authorizing it to confer the necessary degrees, but the state board of medical registration and examination refused to recognize it as a medical institution in good standing. Thereupon a suit in mandamus was instituted to compel said board to issue certificates to practice medicine to the holders of diplomas from said college. The court, in commenting upon the right of the board to refuse to issue said certificates, made the following comments:

> "The statute does not define what shall constitute a medical institution in good standing. Its language is that 'if the board shall find the diploma to be genuine, and from a legally chartered medical institution in good standing as determined by the board,' etc., thus leaving the standing of the institution whose diploma is presented by an applicant, to be determined according to the best judgment of the board.
> "It is unnecessary to inquire here whether there may be cases in which the courts would undertake to correct or control the judgment of the board on this question. It is clear that the standing of a medical college within the meaning of the statute is not to be determined alone from the course of study it has prescribed for graduation. The statute imports, at least, that the institution shall be one which has established a favorable reputation among members of the medical profession; and the board should not be required to recognize one that, from the brief period of its existence, or the novelty of its system of treatment has not yet acquired such reputation, but might, in the judgment of the board, be considered as still in an experimental state. The statute has undoubtedly left much in this respect to the sound discretion of the members of the board, who, in passing upon the various applications presented to them, it must be assumed, will act as their official position requires, fairly, impartially, and justly to all concerned."

I am therefore of the opinion that notwithstanding the fact that the students in question have graduated from institutions not authorized by law to confer degrees, or have received degrees from institutions not so authorized to confer them, yet your board in its discretion, if said students have successfully passed the examination, may grant them licenses to practice dentistry.

However, I respectfully suggest that your board at once take such steps as will prevent a recurrence of the present situation and establish and promulgate such rules, with respect to what shall be deemed by your board to constitute a reputable dental college, as will prevent your refusal in the future to issue licenses, working any injustice to worthy applicants.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CIVIL SERVICE—AUTHORITY TO DETERMINE WHETHER ANY POSITION NOT NAMED IN UNCLASSIFIED SERVICE SHOULD BY REASON OF ITS CONFIDENTIAL CHARACTER BE EXEMPT FROM THAT OF COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION RESTS WITH STATE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

The authority to determine whether any position not named in the unclassified service should, by reason of its confidential character, be exempted from the test of a competitive examination, rests primarily with the state civil service commission, and it is its duty in the first instance to decide any claim made upon this ground.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 14, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of September 11, 1916, as follows:

"The duties of the assistant statistician or inspector of the bureau of vital statistics in the office of the secretary of state is purely of a confidential nature, in this to wit:

" 'Where local registrars fail to properly make their reports according to law it is the duty of said inspector to call upon the delinquent registrar and have said registrar make a proper report, or in case of said registrar's neglect or refusal to make a proper report to have said registrar removed and prosecuted according to law. Said inspector shall report his said action to the bureau of vital statistics and to the secretary of state.'

"In your opinion as to the inspectors of the state fire marshal's office my understanding is that you held that the inspectors in said department were exempt from civil service.

"Will you please give me your opinion as to whether or not the position of assistant statistician or inspector in the bureau of vital statistics of this department is or is not exempt from civil service under the law."

Your information in regard to my opinion as to assistant fire marshals is incorrect. I advised in that opinion that the duties imposed by statutory law upon such officers were of the character of a secret service, and that the positions held by them were confidential. I did not hold that they were thereby exempt from a competitive civil service examination, but expressly advised that the question as to whether or not it was practicable to ascertain their merit and fitness by competitive examination was a matter to be determined by the state civil service commission. It must be observed that in all cases where a position, which is not classified by statutory law as exempt from the requirement of an examination, is claimed to be exempt therefrom by reason of the confidential service it involves, the authority and power in the first instance to so determine such exemption rests entirely with the state civil service commission, and their right in this respect, until exercised, may not be invaded by any other authority.

The case presented in your inquiry involves a position not specifically exempted by statutory law from the test of examination. Therefore, if it is claimed to be exempt upon the ground of being a confidential one, the matter of deciding whether it is practicable to ascertain the merit and fitness of applicants therefor by competitive examination is one belonging in the first instance entirely to the administration of the state civil service commission, and presents solely a question of fact, for the reason that the duties involved in said position are not specifically prescribed by statute. The determination, therefore, of the facts in reference to the duties of the position in question, being one primarily for the disposition of said state civil service commission, it would not be proper for this department by any advice or opinion to anticipate any action of said commission unless such opinion was requested by the commission itself.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION—ANNUAL REPORTS—CONSTRUCTION OF SECTIONS 2264-1 G. C. AND 486-7 G. C., PARAGRAPH 7, 106 O. L.—ONLY ONE ANNUAL REPORT REQUIRED.

The report prescribed by section 2264-1 G. C., 106 O. L. 508, is the only annual report now required of the state civil service commission, but such report must contain the information required by the provisions of paragraph 7 of section 486-7 G. C., 106 O. L. 404.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 15, 1916.

State Civil Service Commission, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of September 13, 1916, as follows:

"Section 486-7, paragraph 7, of the civil service law provides that the state civil service commission shall:

"'Make a report to the governor annually, on or before the first day of January of each year, showing its own actions, the rules and all exceptions thereto in force, and any recommendations for the more effectual accomplishment of the purposes of this act. The commission shall also furnish any special reports to the governor whenever the same are requested by him. Such reports shall be printed for public distribution, under the same regulations as are the reports of other state officers, boards or commissions.'

"Section 2264-1 of the laws of Ohio, 1915, page 509, provides that the state civil service commission along with other departments shall make:

"'A report of the transactions and proceedings of the department for such fiscal year, excepting however receipts and disbursements unless otherwise specifically required by law. Such report shall contain a summary of the official acts of such officer, board or corporation, and such suggestions and recommendations as may be proper. On the first day of August of each year one of said reports shall be filed with the governor of state, one with the secretary of state, and one shall be kept on file in the office of such officer, board, commission, institution, association or corporation.'

"The question has arisen as to whether under these two sections the civil service commission is required to make two annual reports, or whether the report required to be submitted by section 2264-1 is to take the place of the report required by section 486-7 of the civil service law."

The civil service act (106 O. L. 400) of which said paragraph 7 of section 486-7 G. C., quoted in your letter, is a part, was filed in the office of the secretary of state on the 1st day of June A. D. 1915. The act (106 O. L. 508) of which said section 2264-1 G. C., also quoted in your letter, is a part, was filed in the office of secretary of state on the 4th day of June, 1915.

It is further provided in section 2264-2 G. C., which said section is also a part of the act last named, that:

"Sec. 2264-2. Wherever in the statutes of this state annual reports are required to be made to the governor, or annual reports to the governor are referred to, the words 'to the governor' shall be held to mean annual reports in triplicate as provided in section 2264-1 and the special information required by any such statutes to be included in such annual report to the governor shall be included in such triplicate reports."

The provisions of this last section are decisive of your inquiry. Being a statute of later enactment than that of said section 486-7 supra, it must control and be considered supplementary to said last named section in the sense that it makes the report provided for by section 2264-1 aforesaid the report required by said section 486-7 aforesaid, and directs that matters specified in said section 486-7 shall be included in the reports prescribed by section 2264-1 supra.

Answering your question, therefore, specifically, I must advise that you are not required to make two annual reports, but that the report prescribed by section 2264-1 supra, is the only report now required by law of your commission, and that such report, as before observed, must contain all the information required by paragraph 7 of section 486-7 G. C. aforesaid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—BARNESVILLE-HENDRYSBURG ROAD IN BELMONT COUNTY—UNDER FACTS SUBMITTED OHIO VALLEY CONTRACTING COMPANY MAY CONTINUE IMPROVEMENT WITHOUT ENTERING INTO NEW CONTRACT.

Under the facts relating to the improvement of the Barnesville-Hendrysburg road inter-county highway No. 101, in Belmont county, as submitted by the state highway commissioner, the state highway department may permit the receiver for the Ohio Valley Contracting Company to continue the work of improving said road without entering into any new contract or taking any new bond, pay the estimates on account of work performed and for which no payment has yet been made, and continue to make payments on estimates from time to time as the work progresses.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 16, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of September 12, 1916, relating to the improvement of the Barnesville-Hendrysburg road, inter-county highway No. 101, in Belmont county, which communication reads as follows:

"Permit me to direct your attention to a condition confronting us in the improvement of section 'M' of the Barnesville-Hendrysburg road, I. C. H. No. 101, in Belmont county, Ohio.

"This department has in its files a certified copy of a final resolution by the board of county commissioners of Belmont county, appropriating $32,000.00 toward the expense of improving 2.56 miles of inter-county highway No. 101 north of the north corporation line of the village of Barnesville. This final resolution contemplated the use by the state of $21,000.00 in inter-county highway funds. Inter-county highway No. 101 is also known as Main Market road No. XXII and in order to furnish sufficient funds for the completion of the improvement, and also to prevent the commingling of inter-county highway and main market road funds, this department set aside from the main market road fund $11,000.00 for the improvement of the above mentioned road.

"After notice by publication, bids were received and two contracts entered into with The Ohio Valley Contracting Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, one in the sum of $8,999.00, covering the grading and building roadbed; main market road funds were to be used in making payments on this contract. The other contract was in the sum of $46,898.00 and covered the construction of bridges and culverts and paving the roadway, and inter-county highway funds were to be used by the state in paying its proportion of the cost of this contract.

"On both these contracts the name of the Illinois Surety Company appears as surety by C. H. Bancroft, attorney-in-fact. Mr. Bancroft presented to this department a power of attorney from the Illinois Surety Company.

"The Ohio Valley Contracting Company failed to make the proper progress on these contracts and we received this year many protests from citizens of Belmont county, and the county officials, requesting us to take over the work and we determined early this summer to complete the work in some manner other than by the original contract. On June 16th, however, Mr. L. G. Jennings was appointed receiver in the common pleas court of Hamilton county. I am quoting herewith for your information the body of the entry appointing him receiver, a certified copy of which is in our files:

" 'Upon motion of the plaintiff, and the court being fully advised in the premises, L. G. Jennings is hereby appointed receiver of said The Ohio Valley Contracting Company. Said receiver is hereby ordered to give a bond to the satisfaction of the clerk for the faithful discharge of his duties as receiver in the sum of $20,000.00. Said receiver is hereby authorized and directed to continue the business of said company, to fulfill the said contracts and to employ labor and purchase materials so that said work may be continued and completed.'

"The receiver, however, failed to proceed with the work as we had desired and on August 4, 1916, we notified the receiver that this department would enter upon and complete the work under force account. Copies of our letters of August 2nd to Mr. C. H. Bancroft of the Illinois Surety Co. and August 4th to Mr. L. G. Jennings, receiver, of the Ohio Valley Contracting Company are attached.

"On the third day of August this department entered into an agreement with The Adams Bros. Contracting Co. of Zanesville, Ohio, under which agreement the contracting company agreed to furnish certain equipment and act as agent for this department in the employment of all necessary labor and the purchase of all necessary materials. In consideration of the equipment furnished and services rendered, this department agreed to pay 12 per cent. of the amount paid by the state for labor, etc., employed by the above named contracting company for the state. The state agreed to honor all payrolls when presented, and bills for material.

"Immediately upon receipt of our notification, the receiver of The Ohio Valley Contracting Co. placed a very substantial force upon the work and commenced to prosecute the work with extreme vigor. The Adams Bros. Contracting Co. moved their equipment on the site of the improvement but did no work upon the road. The work which the receiver was doing without authority progressed very rapidly and he made representation to this department that if restored to the work as of right, his progress would be continuous and rapid. We advised him verbally that if he could adjust the matter with The Adams Bros. Contracting Co., we would agree to permit him to proceed with the work. Shortly thereafter and on the 24th day of August, the Adams Bros. Contracting Company executed a release to the state from all claims arising under our agreement of August 3rd.

"Subsequently, on the 5th day of September, 1916, Mr. Jennings resigned as receiver and the court appointed Mr. Frank Farley receiver. The body of this entry, a certified copy of which is in our files, reads as follows:

" 'This day this cause came on to be heard, and the court having received the resignation of Mr. L. G. Jennings, as receiver, does hereby accept same.

" 'IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Frank Farley be and he hereby is appointed receiver of The Ohio Valley Contracting Company, to succeed said L. G. Jennings; said receiver is ordered to give a bond to the satisfaction of the clerk of this court for the faithful discharge of his duties as rereceiver, in the sum of $20,000.00.'

"And said Frank Farley having appeared in open court, accepted said appointment, and was duly sworn to faithfully discharge his duties as such receiver.

" 'Said receiver is hereby authorized and directed to continue the business of said company, fulfill the state contracts, employ labor and purchase materials, so that the road building contracts which said company has, may be continued and completed, to receive and receipt for any and all estimates due or to become due from the state of Ohio, or any of the counties where roads are being built by said company, and to do any and all things necessary or incident to the above.'

"On April 19, 1916, a receiver was appointed for the Illinois Surety Company, surety on the above contracts, so that on August 23d we wrote Mr. James S. Hopkins, the receiver, asking him to say whether or not he would regard our original contract with The Ohio Valley Contracting Company as continuing obligations upon the surety if we restored the receiver to the work. I quote from his answer:

" 'Replying to your letter of August 23d and your telegram of this date, I beg to advise that the Illinois Surety Company was enjoined from doing further business on April 19, 1916, at which time I was appointed receiver. My attorneys advise me that all liability on the part of the Illinois Surety Company ceased and terminated as to future liability from that date and I have no authority whatsoever to consent to the release of estimates.'

"This department has not made any payments for work done on the above road subsequent to August 3d.

"I am desirous of permitting the receiver of the Ohio Valley Contracting Company to proceed to complete the improvement but wish proper legal protection in so doing.

"I, therefore, respectfully request an opinion from you as to what steps are necessary to safeguard the interest of the state in paying for the work done subsequent to August 3d and in entering into arrangements with the receiver for the completion of the improvement."

Your letter to Mr. C. H. Bancroft, agent for the Illinois Surety Company, under date of Auagust 2, 1916, reads as follows:

"On account of the slow and unsatisfactory progress being made on section 'M' of the Barnesville-Hendrysburg road, I. C. H. No. 101, Pet. No. 1191, Belmont county, the Ohio Valley Contracting Company will be relieved of this contract and the work will be completed by this department. The contract was let on July 23d, 1915."

Your letter to the receiver for the Ohio Valley Contracting Company, under date of August 4, 1916, reads as follows:

"You are hereby notified that the Ohio Valley Contracting Company is relieved of the contract covering section 'M,' I. C. H. No. 101, Barnesville-Hendrysburg road, in Belmont county, and that this department will enter upon and complete the work under force account.

"Our men will be upon the work probably not later than August 7th or 8th.

"You have probably been advised of this action by your superintendent, Mr. Farley, who received notice to this effect under date of July 27th."

The situation with reference to this road improvement may be briefly stated as follows:

Your department entered into two contracts with the Ohio Valley Contracting Company for the construction of this road. Thereafter the Surety Company, signing the bonds of the Ohio Valley Contracting Company, decided to wind up its affairs and a receiver was appointed to take charge of its business. Subsequent to this action on the part of the surety company a receiver was appointed to take charge of the business of the contractor. After the appointment of this receiver, your department sought to take over the work and complete the same by force account and notified the receiver for the contractor and the agent, or former agent, of the surety company that you were taking this action. You thereupon entered into an agreement with the Adams Bros. Contracting Company to furnish the necessary equipment, take charge of the work on behalf of the state and complete the same by force account, and this company moved its equipment on to the road but did no work thereon. The receiver for the original contractor disregarded your notice to the extent of continuing the work and immediately thereon such a force as to indicate that if allowed to continue he would complete the road promptly and satisfactorily. The receiver also negotiated with the Adams Bros. Contracting Company, and, as I understand the situation, secured the withdrawal of this company by paying the company a substantial sum for materials delivered on the work and for its labor in moving its equipment. In any event, the Adams Bros. Contracting Company has withdrawn from the work and has relinquished all claims for compensation under its contract and has waived its right to proceed with the work, and I understand that your department has agreed to this action on its part. As a matter of fact, the receiver for the original contractor has never surrendered possession of the work and, since you took your action looking toward the completion of the work by force account, the second receiver has been vigorously prosecuting the work of construction, has done a considerable amount of work and if present conditions continue will complete the work within a reasonable time and in a satisfactory manner.

The original contracts for this work were let on July 23, 1915, prior to the taking effect of the Cass highway law. The section of the General Code then in force and applicable to a situation where a contractor was not carrying forward his work with reasonable progress was section 1203-1 G. C., 103 O. L. 456, which section reads as follows:

> Sec. 1203-1. If the contractor has not commenced or carried forward with reasonable progress or is improperly performing or has abandoned, or fails or refuses to complete a contract under the provisions of this chapter, the state highway commissioner shall have full power and authority to enter upon and construct, either by contract, force account or in such manner as he may deem for the best interests of the public, paying the full cost and expense thereof from any moneys that may be due or become due such contractor, and in case there is not sufficient moneys due the contractor to pay for such work, the highway commissioner shall require the contractor or his bondsman to pay for it. It is the duty of the attorney-general or any prosecuting attorney of the county in which said highway is situated, to collect the same from the contractor and his bondsman."

This section was repealed by the Cass highway law, 106 O. L., 574, but the above quoted provision was preserved in substantially the same form in section 202 of that act, section 1209 G. C., 106 O. L. 635, which section reads as follows:

> "If, in the opinion of the state highway commissioner, the contractor has not commenced his work within a reasonable time, or does not carry the same forward with reasonable progress, or is improperly performing his work, or has abandoned, or fails or refuses to complete a contract entered into under the provisions of this chapter, the state highway commissioner shall have full power and authority to enter upon and construct said improvement either by contract, force account or in such manner as he may deem for the best interest of the public, paying the full costs and expense thereof from the balance of the contract price unpaid to said contractor, and in case there is not sufficient balance to pay for said work, the state highway commissioner shall require the contractor or the surety on his bond to pay the cost of completing said work. It shall be the duty of the attorney-general or the prosecuting attorney of the county in which said improvement or some part thereof is situated, upon request of the state highway commissioner, to collect the same from the contractor and the surety on his bond."

Under either of the above quoted sections the state highway commissioner, in a case where a contractor is not carrying forward his work with reasonable progress, is authorized to enter upon and complete the work, either by contract, force account, or in such manner as the state highway commissioner may deem for the best interest of the public. The state highway commissioner is by these provisions given a wide discretion in the matter, being authorized to proceed not only by contract or force account, as he may deem best, but also "in such manner as he may deem for the best interest of the public." In the case now under consideration, while you have sought to remove the representative of the original contractor from the work, your action in the premises has not served as yet to accomplish that result, and no third person has any rights which would be affected by allowing the receiver to continue the work, the Adams Bros. Contracting Company having for a consideration paid by the receiver relinquished all its rights under its agreement with your department, and you having consented to this action on its part. The original contracts are still in full force and effect, and in view of the wide discretion vested in you by the statute it is clear that the surety of the original contractor would have no cause for complaint if such contractor be allowed to complete the work of construction. The fact that the company signing the bond of the original contractor is in process of liquidation does not affect the present matter, and is to be given consideration only to the extent of suggesting unusual caution in the allowance and payment of estimates to the end that the road may be completed for the amount in the fund available for its construction, and that there may thereby be avoided the necessity of proceeding against a surety company which is in process of liquidation, and may or may not be able to pay in full the just claims against it.

In view of the foregoing I advise you that, if in your judgment the receiver for the Ohio Valley Contracting Company is now carrying forward the work with reasonable progress, and performing the same in a proper manner, you may, without taking any additional bond, or entering into any further written agreement with him, notify him that at his request your action in taking the work away from him is rescinded, pay him estimates on account of work performed, and for which no payment has yet been made, and continue to make payments from time to time as the work progresses. It is not necessary to take any steps to safeguard the interests of the state other than to observe the precaution above suggested of exercising unusual care in the allowance and payment of estimates, in view of the possible insolvency of the surety company, and, as before stated, there will be no necessity for entering into any further contract with the receiver or taking any additional bond.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY BOARD OF REVISION—INCREASE OF PROPERTY VALUATION—NOTICE NECESSARY TO PROPERTY OWNERS—WHERE COUNTY AUDITOR NEGLECTED OR WAS UNABLE TO GIVE NOTICE IN TIME REQUIRED—TAX COMMISSION MAY EXTEND TIME FOR COMPLETION OF WORK OF COUNTY BOARD OF REVISION SO AS TO GIVE OPPORTUNITY TO FILE COMPLAINTS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 16, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of September 13th is as follows:

"The commission respectfully requests your written opinion upon the following questions:

"Has the tax commission, or the county auditor, or the board of revision power to extend the time of filing complaints against the valuations of real or personal property on the tax list for the current year beyond the period of thirty days from and after the first Monday of August as fixed by section 5609 of the General Code?

"If there is no power to extend the time for filing complaints what is the last day upon which complaints may be legally filed for the year 1916?

"In some of the counties of the state county auditors were unable to print and circulate the pamphlets required by section 5608 of the General Code until after the expiration of the thirty day period, above referred to, and, therefore, the taxpayers received no notice of any increase in the value of their real estate until that time had expired, and had no opportunity to present complaints.

"In connection with these questions the commission also calls your attention to the fact that section 5593 of the General Code provides that boards of revision shall convene at such times other than the second Monday in June and the first Monday in August, as the tax commission may order. If complaints cannot be filed after the expiration of thirty days from the first Monday of August, this provision for the convening of the board by the tax commission would seem to be of no use."

The provisions of the statutes pertinent to your inquiry are found in the following sections of the act of the general assembly known as the Parrett-Whittemore law (106 O. L. 246-272).

Section 40 of the act (section 5593 G. C.):

"County boards of revision shall hold sessions beginning on the second Monday of June and the first Monday of August, respectively, and convene at such other times as the tax commission of Ohio may order. Such boards may adjourn from day to day, and shall complete their work within such times as may be fixed by the tax commission of Ohio for the completion thereof."

Section 43 of the act (section 5596 G. C.):

"The county board of revision shall in all respects be governed by the laws respecting the valuation of real and personal property, and shall make no change of valuation except in accordance with such laws. The county board of revision may call persons before it and examine them under oath as to their own or other's property, moneys, credits and investments to be placed on the tax list and duplicate for taxation, or the value thereof. If a person notified to appear before the board refuses or neglects to appear at the time required, or appearing, refuses to be sworn or answer any question put to him by the board or by its order, the chairman of the board shall make complaint thereof, in writing, to the probate judge of the county, who shall proceed against such person in like manner as is provided for in the last subdivision of chapter three, title one, part second, of the General Code."

Section 44 of the act (section 5597 G. C.):

"It shall be the duty of the board of revision to hear complaints relating to the assessment of both real and personal property laid before it by the county auditor, and it shall investigate all such compliants and may increase or decrease any valuation or correct any assessment complained of, or it may order a re-assessment by the original assessing officer. At a hearing before the board the assessing officer and the county auditor may appear to defend such assessments."

Section 45 of the act (section 5598, G. C.):

"The county board of revision shall have power to investigate all assessments on the tax list with respect to the amount of property listed as well as with respect to the valuation at which the same is listed. The power of the board shall extend to all cases in which real or personal property has been assessed for taxation for the current year, but not to assessments, additions or corrections hereafter made by the tax commission of Ohio."

Section 46 of the act (section 5599 G. C.):

"The county board of revision shall not increase any valuation complained of, nor increase the listed amount of any taxable property complained of without giving reasonable notice to the person in whose name the property affected thereby is listed, and affording him an opportunity to be heard. Such notice shall be served in the manner prescribed herein, and shall describe the real or personal property the tax value of which is to be acted upon, by the description thereof as carried on the tax list of the current year, and shall state the name in which it is listed."

Section 47 of the act (section 5601 G. C.):

"The county board of revision shall not decrease any valuation complained of, nor reduce the listed amount of any taxable property complained of, unless the party affected thereby, or his agent, makes and files with the board a written application therefor, vertified by oath, showing the facts upon which it is claimed such decrease or reduction should be made, and not without affording the county auditor an opportunity to be heard thereon."

Section 48 of the act (section 5602 G. C.)

"The county board of revision shall certify its action to the county auditor, who shall correct the tax list and duplicate according to the deductions and additions ordered by the board in the manner provided by law for making corrections thereof. If the tax duplicate has been delivered to the county treasurer the county auditor shall certify such corrections to him, and he shall enter such corrections on his tax duplicate."

Section 52 of the act (section 5609 G. C.):

"Complaints against any valuation or assessment on the tax list for the current year may be filed with the county auditor before the meeting of the county board of revision on the first Monday of August or within thirty days thereafter if the board remains in session so long. Any taxpayer may file such complaint as to the valuation or assessment of his own or other's property, and the county commissioners, the prosecuting attorney, county treasurer or any board of township trustees, any board of education, mayor or council of any municipal corporation in the county shall have the right to file such complaint. The county auditor shall lay before the county board of revision all complaints filed with him."

Section 58 of the act (section 5606 G. C.):

"When the board of revision has completed its work of equalization, and has transmitted the statements and returns to him, the county auditor shall give notice, by advertisement in two newspapers of opposite politics, published in and of general circulation throughout the county, that the tax statements and returns for the current year have been revised and the valuations completed and are open for public inspection in his office, and that complaints against any valuation or assessment, except the valuations fixed and assessments made by the tax commission of Ohio, will be heard by the county board of revision, stating in the notice the time and place of the meeting of such board. Such advertisements shall be inserted in a conspicuous place in each such newspaper, and be published daily for ten days, unless there be no daily newspaper published in and of general circulation throughout such county, in which event such advertisement shall be so published once each week for two weeks. The county auditor shall, upon request, furnish to any person a certificate setting forth the assessment and valuation of any tract, lot or parcel of real estate, or any specific personal property, and mail the same, when requested to do so, upon receipt of sufficient postage."

Section 59 of the act (section 5607 G. C.)

"On or before the 15th day of July, annually, the county auditor shall cause to be printed a list showing all changes made in the assessment of any tract, lot or parcel of real estate or improvement thereon, or minerals or mineral rights therein, and shall cause a copy of such list to be mailed to each owner whose assessment has been changed, if known, and if not, then to his agent, if known."

Section 60 of the act (section 5608 G. C.):

"On or before the first day of September, nineteen hundred and sixteen, and every fourth year thereafter, the county auditor shall cause to be printed separate lists showing the assessment of all real estate in each ward in municipal corporations divided into wards, and in each township and municipal corporation not divided into wards, in his county. Such lists shall be in such form and shall contain in detail such information as the tax commission of Ohio may prescribe. The county auditor shall cause a copy thereof to be mailed to each owner of real estate in the ward, township or municipal corporation, if known, and if not known, then to his agent, if known. In such years the county auditor shall not print and mail the lists provided for in the next preceding section."

Pursuant to the provisions of section 5593 G. C. supra, county boards of revision were required to begin their session as boards of complaints on the first Monday of August, 1916, and by the further provision of said section said boards are required to complete their work as such boards of complaints within such times as may be fixed by your commission for the completion thereof.

The authority of such boards to hear complaints, to call and examine witnesses and to increase or decrease any valuation of real or personal property complained of, is found in sections 5596 and 5597 of the General Code as above quoted, provided that notice is given in case of an increase in valuation as required by section 5599 G. C. and in the manner prescribed by sections 5606, 5607 and 5608 of the General Code as above set forth, and provided further that any decrease in valuation of property is made upon the written application under oath of the owner of such property or his agent, as required by section 5601 G. C. supra.

Section 5609 G. C., as above quoted, by its terms provides that complaints against any valuation or assessment of property may be filed with the county auditor (who by provision of section 5592 G. C. as amended 106 O. L. 433 is ex officio secretary of the board of revision) before the first Monday of August or "within thirty days thereafter if the board remains in session so long."

You first inquire whether, in view of this provision of section 5609 G. C. supra, there is any authority to extend the time of filing complaints against valuations of property beyond the period of time prescribed in said section.

It may be argued that said provision of said section 5609 G. C. is mandatory; that no authority is vested in your commission, the county auditor or the board of revision itself by provision of any statute now in force to extend the time of filing complaints beyond the period of time prescribed as aforesaid, and that any complaint filed after the expiration of said period of time may not therefore be considered by said board of revision, and if the provisions of said section be considered by themselves without reference to the provisions of the other statutes hereinbefore set forth and as prescribing a time limit of general application, much might be said in support of said argument.

In this connection your commission will remember that in opinion No. 1208 of this department rendered to you on January 28, 1916, the somewhat similar provision of the Warnes law was under consideration. Section 19 of that law (103 O. L. 792) as in force prior to January 1, 1916, the date when the Parrett-Whittemore law became effective, provided as follows:

"The district board of complaints shall begin its session on the first Monday of August annually, and may adjourn from day to day The board shall complete its work within such time as may be fixed for the completion thereof by the tax commission of Ohio.'

and section 24 of said law as then in force (103 O. L. 793) provided:

"Complaints against any valuation or assessment on the tax list for the current year may be filed with the county auditor before the meeting of the district board of complaints or thereafter during its session. Any tax payer may file such complaint as to the valuation or assessment of his own or other's property, and the county commissioners, the prosecuting attorney, county auditor, county treasurer or any board of township trustees, any board of education, mayor or council of any municipal corporation in the county shall have the right to file such a complaint."

It was observed in said opinion that under provision of section 19 of said law as above quoted the time within which the district board of complaints was required to complete its work was fixed by the tax commission and that under the above provision of section 24 of said law complaints against any valuation or assessment on the tax list for the current year had to be filed with the county auditor before the meeting of the district board of complaints or thereafter during its session. It was held in said opinion that the district board of complaints was neither required nor authorized to consider complaints against any valuation or assessment on the tax list for any year filed with the county auditor, as secretary of said board, after its adjournment in said year at the time fixed by the tax commission for the completion of its work for said year.

It will also be remembered that in opinion No. 1391 of the department rendered to your commission under date of March 17, 1916, section 31 of said Warnes law was under consideration and I held that the time within which an appeal from the decision of the district board of complaints could be taken to the tax commission was limited to the thirty day period therein prescribed and that your commission was without jurisdiction to consider complaints filed after the expiration of said period of time.

In considering this latter holding it must be observed, however, that the parties having the right to appeal were the district assessor on the one hand and any complainant on the other hand as provided in section 24 of said act as above set forth. Both of said parties were present at the hearing before the district board of complaints and had knowledge of just what the finding of said board of complaints was, so that neither could complain of not having had notice of such finding and of being unable on that account to file said appeal within said thirty day period. Said limitation of time prescribed by the legislature for the filing of said appeal was therefor reasonable and fair to all concerned and consistent with a diligent administration of the law governing the return of property for taxation.

As I view it the situation out of which the question under consideration arises is materially different from the one presented by your inquiry in answer to which opinion No. 1391 of the department was rendered.

As a condition precedent to the exercise by the county board of revision of its authority to increase any valuation of property complained of or to increase the listed amount of any taxable property complained of, section 5599 G. C. supra, requires that reasonable notice shall be given to the person in whose name the property affected thereby is listed and an opportunity afforded such person to be heard. The notice referred to is the notice by publication prescribed by section 5606 G. C., the mailing of a printed list of changes in the assessment of real estate to each owner whose assessment has been changed, if known, and if not,. then to his agent if known, and in this year and every fourth year thereafter section 5608 G. C. requires the printing and mailing to each owner of real estate, of the lists containing the information prescribed in said section, the latter part of said section providing that:

> "In such years the county auditor shall not print and mail the lists provided for in the next preceding section."

Under the provision of the latter part of section 5606 G. C. supra, the county auditor is required to furnish to any person upon request "a certificate setting forth the assessment and valuation of any tract, lot or parcel of real estate or any specific personal property, and mail the same, when requested to do so, upon receipt of sufficient postage."

In view of the foregoing provisions relative to notice, and of your statment that in some of the counties of the state county auditors were unable to print and circulate the pamphlets required by section 5608 supra, until after the expiration of the thirty day period hereinbefore referred to and that on this account the taxpayers received no notice of the increase in the value of their real estate until that time had expired and had no opportunity to present complaints, to hold that complaints filed since the expiration of said thirty day period may not be considered by county boards of revision would, as I view it, be giving to said section 5609 G. C. a construction unreasonable and unfair to the property owner and contrary to the intention of the legislature in enacting the same.

It will readily be observed from what has already been said, that the opportunity afforded a property owner to file a complaint is by no means equal to that of a complainant to appeal to your commission under authority of section 5610 G. C. (106 O. L. 260) from the finding of the board of revision sitting as a board of complaints.

The fixing of the time for the completion of the work of the county boards of revision, sitting as boards of complaints at the August session, is within the discretion of your commission under provision of section 5593 G. C. supra, and must be determined by you in view of the amount of work to be done by each board in its respective county. The provision of the latter part of section 5602, G. C. supra, that "if the tax duplicate has been delivered to the county treasurer, the county auditor shall certify such corrections to him and he shall enter such corrections on his tax duplicate," makes it plain that the legislature contemplated the possibility of the August session of the board of revision being continued until after the tax duplicate has been delivered to the county treasurer.

The plain terms of section 5599 G. C. supra, require the giving of reasonable notice to the property owner and the offering to him of an opportunity to be heard. It is clear that in those cases where, due to the neglect or inability of the county auditor to give the notice required by the foregoing provisions of the statutes to be given to owners of property, such notice was not in fact given, the time limit prescribed by section 5609 G. C cannot be said to apply.

I am of the opinion therefore in answer to your first question that in such cases the tax commission, acting under authority of section 5593 G. C. supra, may in the exercise of its discretion fix a time for the completion of the work of the county board of revision beyond the expiration of the thirty day period prescribed by said section 5609 G. C., or having fixed said date for the completion of said work prior to September 6, 1916, the expiration of said thirty day period, said commission has the right to extend the time for such completion beyond said date and fix a time limit prior to said completion date for the filing of complaints with said board of revision sitting as a board of complaints.

Your second question has been answered in determining the answer to your first question.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—BONDS ISSUED UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 3298-8 G. C.—THE FACT THAT SUCH BONDS ARE TO BE REDEEMED SOLELY OUT OF PROCEEDS OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS DOES NOT OBVIATE NECESSITY OF FIRST SUBMITTING QUESTION OF ISSUING SUCH BONDS TO ELECTORS OF TOWNSHIP.

Where bonds are issued under authority of section 3298-8 G. C., the fact that such bonds are to be redeemed solely out of the proceeds of special assessments does not obviate the necessity of first submitting the question of issuing such bonds to a vote of the qualified electors of the township.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 16, 1916.

HON. CHARLES T. STAHL, Prosecuting Attorney, Wauseon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your request for an opinion under date of September 12, 1916, which request reads as follows:

"Fulton township, this county, is seeking to improve a road under authority of the Code, 3298-1 et al., upon petition, by abutting land owners (invoking 3298-15 G. C.), sixty per cent. of the cost to be paid by general taxation and forty per cent. by levy upon abutting real estate, payable in installments.

"It is purposed to issue bonds of the township to secure the deferred payments to be paid by future levies as above stated, and sixty per cent. (township portion) will be paid in cash.

"This office is asked, and we submit the question to you: Is it necessary to hold an election pursuant to section 3298-1 et al., of the Code before such bonds can issue.

"You will see that 'Rockel's Ohio Roads and Bridges,' 154, notes that the question is a doubtful one.

"It will be seen that the statute (3914-1 G. C.) requires pledging the full revenue of the township and the bonds are a 'general obligation.'

"So then, it would seem that the township is interested in the bond issue, though it occupies a quasi surety position.

"Indeed, independent of this consideration and aspect, it seems to me that the language (3298-9 G. C.) 'Before the bonds of the township are issued to provide funds for improving the roads thereof,' the question shall be submitted is so plain as to construe itself.

"These bonds, pledging the full credit of the township, being 'general obligations,' are unquestionably the 'bonds of the township', and they certainly 'are issued to provide funds for improving the roads.' The only distinction in the purpose of the two issues, i. e., the issue for the township's portion and the issue for the abutter's portion, is in the method of acquiring funds wherewith to liquidate at maturity, the one by general and the other by special taxation, and whichever method is pursued the fact remains in either event the general taxpayer might suffer for the poor judgment of the trustees.

"I am, therefore, of the opinion, that an election must be held and carried to validate the bond issue in question.

"Insomuch as the proceedings are being held up pending your answer, I would ask for as early a reply as possible."

There may be some question as to the applicability of section 3914-1 G. C., 106 O. L. 495, in the case of bonds of the class referred to by you. The section in question reads as follows:

"Bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments shall be full, general obligations of the issuing municipal corporation, and for the payment of the principal and interest of the same, the full faith, credit and revenues of such municipal corporation shall be pledged. To provide for any deficiency in the payment or collection of said assessments as the same fall due, the council of the issuing municipal corporation shall, prior to the issuance of the bonds above mentioned, provide for the levy of a tax upon all the taxable property of said corporation."

While the term "municipal corporation" is often held to include townships, yet reference in the above quoted section to "the council" might be taken as indicating that the legislature, in the enactment of this section, intended to use the term "municipal corporation" in its more narrow signification. In the view that I take of the statutes relating to township road improvements, it will be unnecessary, however, to pass upon this question.

Rockel, in section 154 of his work on Ohio roads and bridges, makes the following observation as to the question submitted by you.

"If bonds are issued, and the same are to be redeemed by money raised by assessments, it is not clear that there must be a vote thereon before they can be issued. Perhaps to be safe there ought to be a vote, etc."

The statutory provisions to be considered in determining the question submitted by you are to be found in chapter III of the Cass highway law, relating to road construction and improvement by township trustees. The section authorizing the issuance of bonds, being section 67 of the act, section 3298-8 G. C., reads as follows:

"If the money raised by the levy aforesaid does not furnish sufficient funds for the construction and repair of the designated roads in such township, the trustees may issue and sell the bonds of said township to provide funds for the construction or reconstruction of such roads. Such bonds may be issued at such times and in such amounts as in the judgment of such trustees shall be necessary. The bonds shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, and in denomination of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than one thousand dollars each, and shall mature in not more than ten years, as may be determined by such trustees. Such bonds shall be signed by the trustees, or a majority thereof, on behalf of the township, and attested by the township clerk. The interest thereon shall be evidenced by proper coupons attached to each bond, and such coupons shall be authenticated by the signature of the township clerk."

The section requiring the question of a bond issue to be submitted to a vote of the electors, being section 68 of the act, section 3298-9 G. C., reads as follows:

"Before the bonds of the township are issued to provide funds for improving the roads thereof, the question of issuing said bonds shall be first submitted to the qualified electors of the township at a general or special election therefor. The trustees shall provide by resolution for the submission of such question to the qualified electors of the township, and shall give notice by publication once each week for three consecutive weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation in said township, of the date of such election, and the purpose for which it is held. Said notice shall state the amount of the proposed bond issue."

The section relating to assessments, being section 73 of the act, section 3298-14 G. C., reads as follows:

"The township trustees may assess, not to exceed all or any part of the cost of improving said road against the lands, not more than one mile from either side or terminus of said improvement, or against the lands abutting upon said improvement, as the trustees may determine. Such assessments shall be made in proportion to the benefits resulting to the property included in the plan of assessment adopted by said trustees. The trustees shall cause the county highway superintendent to apportion against the lot and land owners benefited that part of the cost of said improvement as determined and ordered by the trustees. The trustees shall determine the number of installments in which such assessment shall be paid, and the time of payment thereof. The number and time of payment of said installments shall be so fixed as to meet the principal and interest on the bonds as the same become due. Before making such assessments the township trustees shall give notice by publication once each week for two successive weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, of the amount apportioned to each tract of land to be assessed. Such notice shall give the name of the owner in addition to a description of the land in each instance. The description by which said lands are designated upon the tax duplicate shall be sufficient for such notice. Said notice shall fix a date for hearing objections to said assessment, and the trustees after such hearing shall approve such assessments as modified by them, and they shall order them certified to the auditor to be placed upon the tax duplicate for collection as the same become due."

The section relating to petitions, being section 74 of the act, section 3298-15 G. C., is as follows:

"Under the provision of this section, the owners of real estate in any township may petition the township trustees, asking for the construction, reconstruction or improvement of any public road or part thereof, in said township. The petition shall state that the cost and expense of the proposed improvement, which shall not be less than fifty nor more than seventy-five per cent. of the total, shall be paid out of the proceeds of any levy or levies against the taxable property of the township in which the road is situated, and the balance of such cost and expenses shall be assessed and collected from the owners of the real estate within one mile or one-half mile on either side or terminus of the highway, as requested by the petitioners, in proportion to the benefits accruing to such real estate, as determined by said township trustees. The petition shall be signed by at least fifty per cent. of the land or lot owners whose property lies as specified in said petition within one mile or one-half mile of the proposed improvement and who are to be assessed and taxed for such improvement as hereinafter provided. The petition shall be signed by the owners of real estate within the limits prescribed, whose property is benefited by such improvement, but it shall not be signed by resident land and lot owners whose only real estate within the territorial bounds of such road is located in a municipality, nor shall it be signed by the owners of life and leasehold estates, or minors not represented by legal guardians, or tenants in common of an undivided estate unless they are united in favor of the improvement. No person signing such petition shall be permitted to withdraw therefrom unless it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the township trustees that fraud was committed in obtaining his signature. When the petition is presented to the township trustees they shall place it on file and within sixty days after such presentation shall go upon the line of said proposed improvement. After viewing the same they shall determine whether or not the public convenience and welfare require that such improvement shall be made. When they have determined that any road shall be constructed, improved or repaired as requested in the petition submitted under the provisions of this section, the board of township trustees shall direct the county surveyor to make, subject to their approval, such survey, plats, profiles, cross-section, estimates and specifications as may be required and such improvement shall be made and paid for in accordance with the provisions of this act relating to the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of highways by township trustees."

It will be noted that the provisions of section 3298-9 G. C. are general in their terms and there is nothing to indicate that the legislature intended that such section should apply only where bonds are to be redeemed out of the proceeds of a general tax levy and intended to exempt from the operation of the section bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments.

It is provided by section 3298-14 G. C. that the number and time of payment of the installments in which assessments are to be paid shall be so fixed as to meet the principal and interest on bonds as the same become due, indicating that the legislature had in mind only one scheme or method for the issuance of bonds and intended that the same should apply without regard to whether the bonds were to be redeemed out of the proceeds of a general tax, or out of the proceeds of a general tax and special assessments, or out of the proceeds of special assessments only.

In view of the general nature of the provisions requiring a bond issue under chapter III of the Cass highway law to be submitted to the qualified electors of the township, and in view of the fact that there is no provision whatever found in the act to indicate that the legislature did not intend that this provision should apply where the bonds were to be redeemed entirely out of the proceeds of special assessments, I am of opinion that your conclusion upon this question is correct and that it will be necessary to submit to the qualified electors of the township a bond issue of the character referred to by you and to secure a favorable vote thereon, in accordance with the provisions of section 3298-11 G. C., before such bonds may be lawfully issued.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

EVAPORATED SKIMMED MILK—SALE PROHIBITED IN OHIO—"HEBE"—COMPOUND OF EVAPORATED SKIMMED MILK AND VEGETABLE FATS ACCORDING TO LABEL.

Under existing laws, evaporated skimmed milk can not be sold in the state of Ohio.

"HEBE" said to be a compound of evaporated skimmed milk and vegetable fat according to the label used on it is an article the sale of which is prohibited by the laws of Ohio.

Be it a compound or something else, its makeup is such that it can not be sold in the state under the label used or any other label.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 19, 1916.

The Board of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion relative to the sale of "HEBE" in the state of Ohio is as follows:

> "I have felt for some time that evaporated milk sold under the label known as 'HEBE' does not comply to Ohio laws. It seems to me the label in itself is evidence of this when it states 'Evaporated Skimmed Milk.'
> "Section 12725 provides:
> " 'Condensed milk must be made from pure, clean, fresh, healthy, unadulterated milk from which the cream has not been removed.'
> "I will appreciate an early opinion as to whether the manufacturer will be permitted to sell these goods under this label."

Immediately upon receipt of your request investigation into the matter referred to was begun, but it having been learned from outside sources that the particular product known as "Hebe" had been approved and specifically permitted to be sold by the former commissioner of the dairy and food department, S. E. Strode, upon receiving this information from one of the attorneys who appeared before Mr. Strode in connection with the matter a request was made of your office that a search of your files be made in order that the previous action of the department might be thoroughly understood and taken note of. Following the request you found and transmitted to me the originals and copies of letters from your files which clearly show that the department under Mr. Strode specifically approved the sale of "Hebe" in the state of Ohio. Particular attention is directed to the letter of Mr. Hubert Fuller, attorney for the proprietors of "Hebe," under date of June 4, 1915, to Hon. S. E. Strode, state dairy and food commissioner, which letter is as follows:

> "CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 4, 1915.
> "HON. S. E. STRODE, State Dairy and Food Commission, Columbus, Ohio.
> "MY DEAR MR. STRODE:—Mr. Stevens, of The Hebe Company, and I were very much pleased with the result of our conference with you and Mr. Bartlow, yesterday.
> "In line with my suggestion, I am writing this letter to you in order that there may be no possible room for misunderstanding as to just what agreement was reached.
> "First of all, for The Hebe Company, we agree that we will not ship into Ohio any more of our products known as 'Hebe' except that which bears the label approved yesterday by you and Mr. Bartlow. As soon as we can secure them from the lithographers we will send you two copies of this label; one to be retained for your files and the other to be stamped and returned to us.

"On the other hand, your office, as we understand it, agrees to permit the sale of all Hebe bearing the old label now in the state of Ohio, which was shipped to May 1st, last. We do not know what the exact amount of this is, but it is not large, because we have in this state only three distributive houses. These houses are The Monypeny-Hammond Company of Columbus; The Dahl-Milliken Grocery Company of Washington Court House, and The Weakly-Worman Company of Dayton.

"Will you kindly acknowledge receipt of this letter and confirm the correctness of this statement of the situation?

"Very truly yours,

"(Signed) HUBERT B. FULLER."

Mr. Strode's reply to the above letter under date of June 5, 1915, is as follows:

"June 5, 1915.

"MR. HUBERT B. FULLER, 1110 Williamson Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

"DEAR MR. FULLER:—Yours of June 4th, stating your understanding of the verbal agreement between Mr. Stevens of The Hebe Company, and this department, received.

"I wish to say that your statement is entirely in accord with my understanding. The Hebe Company agrees to change its labels to conform to the rulings and regulations of the National and Ohio pure food departments. Copy of label is to be submitted and approved by this department. The company further agrees not to ship any goods into the state until these labels have been approved. The department agrees to permit the sale of all Hebe products bearing the old label which was shipped into the state prior to May 1, 1915, and distributed by The Monypenny-Hammond Company, Columbus, Ohio; The Dahl-Milliken Grocery Company, Washington Court House, and The Weakly-Worman Company, Dayton, Ohio.

"Very respectfully,

"Commissioner in Charge."

With reference to the subject under consideration I am also in receipt of a letter from Mr. E. C. Morton, of the law firm of Morton, Irvine & Blanchard, Columbus, Ohio, who also appeared before Mr. Strode in connection with the investigation concerning "Hebe," Mr. Morton at that time representing one of the Ohio distributors. His letter is as follows:

"COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 20, 1916.

"HON. E. C. TURNER, Attorney-General, Columbus, Ohio.

"MY DEAR SIR:—Confirming my verbal statements to you concerning the approval of 'Hebe' by the dairy and food department, and the labeling of that product in accordance with the requirements of the department, permit me to advise you that in the spring and early summer of 1915, Mr. S. E. Strode, who was Mr. Calvert's predecessor in charge of the department, stated to me and to the representative of the company engaged in the manufacture of 'Hebe' that there was no legal objection to the sale of that product if properly labeled. Question was raised concerning the label, and the manufacturer undertook to meet the department's objections. Two or more suggestions were made and designs and labels submitted illustrating them, and, after pointing out objections to one or more of the sketches or designs, the last one was approved and that approved label has been in use for a year or more.

"I recall distinctly that the nature of the product, the fact that it was a compound of evaporated skimmed milk to which vegetable fats had been added, and that it was marketed under a trade name, were discussed, and Mr. Strode clearly and definitely stated to us that the product was unobjectionable if the manufacturer would label it according to his requirements.

"You will understand that we did not represent the manufacturer of 'Hebe' and that we appeared because our client, having notice that the sufficiency of the label had been questioned by the department, did not wish to distribute the article until all objections had been met. Having been assured by the head of the department that the product itself was not objectionable, we watched the proceedings carefully in order that we might advise our client concerning the label, which was disposed of in the manner above related.

"We are advised that counsel representing the manufacturer will be here within a day or two, probably before the end of this week, to present their views of the matter, and, having in mind the department's approval pursuant to which the product has been marketed in Ohio, it occurs to us that definite and final action should be postponed until these gentlemen can be heard.

"Very truly yours,
"(Signed) E. C. MORTON."

While, so far as I have been able to learn, this matter was never presented to this department, yet in its present consideration the action of your department through the former commissioner places the department on record as to a departmental interpretation, and makes the present consideration of the matter somewhat embarrassing.

It was also learned upon investigation that the question of the sale of "Hebe" had also been before the federal authorities and immediately upon receipt of this information a letter was addressed to Dr. C. L. Alsberg, chief of the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., whose reply has just been received.

Sometime after the receipt of your request for an opinion concerning this matter, a memorandum was forwarded by Mr. Charles J. Pretzman, as attorney for the Ohio Dairyman's Association.

In view of the former action, as indicated by the foregoing recital of facts, as well as the conditions surrounding the submission of the request for an opinion, it was believed only fair to afford the proprietors of "Hebe" an opportunity to be heard through counsel as to their right to continue the sale of their product in this state. Accordingly a hearing was given to Messrs. Healy and Stevens, of The Hebe Company, who were accompanied by their attorney, Mr. Hubert B. Fuller, of Cleveland, and subsequently Mr. Fuller submitted a brief in support of the contention being made by The Hebe Company.

On account of the matters referred to above, the rendering of the opinion asked for has been somewhat delayed.

Section 12725 of the General Code, which is made the basis of your request for an opinion is as follows:

"Whoever manufactures, sells, exchanges, exposes or offers for sale or exchange, condensed milk unless it has been made from pure, clean, fresh, healthy, unadulterated and wholesome milk, from which the cream has not been removed and in which the proportion of milk solids shall be the equivalent of twelve per cent. of milk solids in crude milk, twenty-five per cent. of such solids being fat, and unless the package, can or vessel containing it is distinctly labeled, stamped or marked with its true name, brand, and by whom and under what name made, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, and, for each subsequent offense, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and imprisoned not less than ten days nor more than ninety days."

The label under which "Hebe" is sold bears a statement as follows:

"A compound of evaporated skimmed milk and vegetable fat."

The term "skimmed milk" indicates milk from which cream has been removed, and in this connection the court, in the case of Commonwealth v. Elizabeth Hufnal, appellant, 185 Pa., 376, at page 380, says:

"* * * And 'skimmed milk' we understand to be the generic term by which is meant milk from which its natural cream has been taken in whole or in part."

It appearing clearly that by skimmed milk is meant natural milk from which the cream has been removed, we must look to the purpose and intent of section 12725 of the General Code supra, and its relation to the product known as "Hebe."

Section 12725 of the General Code supra, in its original form, prior to codification was section 13 of house bill No. 185, "An act to prevent adulteration of and deception in the sale of dairy products, and supplementary to Chapter II, title I, part IV, of the Revised Statutes," passed May 17, 1886, to be found in 83 Ohio Laws, at page 178 to 181, inclusive.

Section 5778 of the General Code provides, in part, as follows:

"Food, drink, confectionery or condiments are adulterated within the meaning of this chapter: (1) If any substance or substances have been mixed with it, so as to lower or depreciate or injuriously affect its quality, strength or purity; (2) if any inferior or cheaper substance or substances have been substituted wholly, or in part, for it; (3) if any valuable or necessary constituent or ingredient has been wholly, or in part, abstracted from it; * * *"

It has been represented to this department that in manufacturing "Hebe" in the first place the cream is removed from the milk, and according to the ordinary and common understanding that the cream constitutes a valuable constituent of milk, that would constitute an adulteration of milk under the provisions of section 5778 of the General Code supra, in that:

"Food * * * or condiments are adulterated * * * if any valuable or necessary constituent or ingredient has been wholly, or in part, abstracted from it. * * *"

It is further claimed that to replace the butter fat removed by the separation of the cream, another and inferior substance has been added to the milk in place of the cream, and this would also constitute an adulteration under the provisions of section 5778 of the General Code, supra.

These, of course, are facts to be determined by your department in arriving at the conclusion as to whether the compound or product known as "Hebe" is an adulteration under the provisions of section 5778 of the General Code, supra.

In this connection, section 12716 of the General Code should be taken into consideration as it defines adulterated milk. The section is as follows:

> "Section 12716. In all prosecutions under this chapter, if milk is shown upon analysis to contain more than eighty-eight per cent. of watery fluid, or to contain less than twelve per cent. of solids or three per cent. of fats, it shall be deemed to be adulterated."

Section 12717 of the General Code is, in part, as follows:

> "Whoever sells, exchanges, or delivers, or has in his possession or custody with intent to sell or exchange, or exposes or offers for sale or exchange, adulterated milk, or milk to which water or any foreign substance has been added, * * shall be fined, etc., * * *."

The provisions in section 12716 of the General Code to the effect that milk shall be deemed to be adulterated if it contains "less than twelve per cent. of solids or three per cent. of fat" can mean but one thing, and that is, that the twelve per cent. of solids referred to are milk solids, and the three per cent. of fats are the natural fats of pure milk.

Section 12725 of the General Code, supra, is specific in referring to the proportion of milk solids, and among other things in the section is to be found the following:

> "* * * and in which the proportion of milk solids shall be the equivalent of twelve per cent. of milk solids in crude milk, twenty-five per cent. of such solids being fat."

From all of the foregoing it appears clear to me that the laws of the state will not permit the sale of milk from which the cream has been removed or to which a foreign substance has been added, save and except under the provisions of section 12720 of the General Code, which provides for the sale of skimmed milk as follows:

> "Whoever sells, exchanges, delivers or has in his custody or possession with intent to sell, exchange or deliver, milk from which the cream or part thereof has been removed, unless in a conspicuous place above the center and upon the outside of each vessel, can or package, from which or in which such milk is sold the words 'skimmed milk' are distinctly marked in uncondensed gothic letters not less than one inch in length, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars."

Under the provisions of the section just quoted it will be noted that the right to sell skimmed milk is recognized and provided for with the condition that the vessel, can or package from which or in which such skimmed milk is sold is to be plainly marked with the words "skimmed milk" in letters of a specified size and style.

In considering a case under a statute almost identical with section 12725 of the General Code supra, which was as follows:

> "No condensed or preserved milk shall be manufactured, sold or exchanged or offered or exposed for sale or exchange, unless the same be manufactured from or out of pure, clean, healthy, fresh, unadulterated and wholesome milk from which the cream has not been removed either wholly or in part, or unless the proportion of milk solids of same shall be in quantity the equivalent of twelve and fifty-one hundredths per centum of milk solids in crude milk, and of which milk solids three and fifty-one hundredths per centum > shall be butter fats. No person shall manufacture, sell or exchange, or offer or expose for sale or exchange any condensed or preserved milk unless the same be put up, packed or contained in packages with the name of the manufacturer of the solid milk distinctly branded or stamped thereon."

the court, in the case of Nicholas A. Reiter v. State of Maryland, 109 Maryland Reports 235, at page 239, says:

> "A glance at section 235 (supra) shows that the intention of the legislature was not only to prevent fraud and deception from being practiced on consumers of condensed milk, by prohibiting the sale of any product of milk, not manufactured from milk of the quality required, under the name of condensed milk, but to absolutely prohibit the sale of condensed milk manufactured out of milk not possessing all the qualities required by the statute. This section does not say that condensed milk of the kind prohibited shall not be sold unless marked and branded as provided, but requires, as one of the means of preventing the sale of condensed milk prohibited by the section, that it shall be packed in the way provided, with the name of the manufacturer stamped thereon. In other words, the primary object of this legislation was not to prevent fraud and imposition, but to prohibit the sale of any article deemed by the legislature either injurious to health, or lacking some of the qualities of healthy food."

The chief contention of the "Hebe" representatives is that "Hebe" is a compound, and not condensed milk, and hence it does not come under the inhibition of section 12725 of the General Code supra.

Section 5774 of the General Code is as follows:

> "No person, within this state, shall manufacture for sale, offer for sale, sell or deliver, or have in his possession with intent to sell or deliver, a drug or article of food which is adulterated within the meaning of this chapter, or offer for sale, sell or deliver, or have in his possession with intent to sell or deliver, a drug or article of food which is misbranded within the meaning of this chapter."

If for the sake of argument the contention of the "Hebe" representatives that "Hebe is a compound," which contention is supported by the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., be admitted, it is to be borne in mind that its principal constituent—evaporated skimmed milk—is a product which cannot under the provisions of section 12725 of the General Code supra, be sold in the state of Ohio under any circumstances, it being clearly understood and, in fact, admitted by the representatives of The Hebe Company, that the term "evaporated milk" is synonymous with "condensed milk," is it to be said that the adding of a minor constituent to an adulterated product under the law places the resulting compound in a position whereby by changing the name the law can be evaded and the adulterated product sold? Such an interpretation of a law, which clearly has for its purpose not the regulation of the sale of an article of food under the standard, but its absolute prohibition, would be ridiculous and defeat the purpose of the law.

The condition to be remedied through the enactment of various pure food statutes is not theoretical, but practical, and that the product known as "Hebe" is regarded as condensed milk by a large percentage of the public is beyond a question of doubt.

While the manufacturers of the product may in no way be responsible for its being sold as condensed milk, the widespread practice of dealers is to sell it as such and on account of its adaptability to that purpose it finds a ready market as condensed milk.

In the brief submitted by counsel for The Hebe Company the case of the United States v. McConnon & Company is cited as saying in respect to pure food laws that one of their objects is:

> "* * * to prevent people from so labeling an article that a man buying it will think that he is buying one thing when in reality he is buying another."

While this may be one of the purposes of the law, and it unquestionably is, it must be borne in mind that the intention of the manufacturer or of the seller of an article otherwise prohibited does not govern. That is to say, that the intention of the Hebe Company to sell "Hebe" as a product other than condensed milk does not operate to legalize the sale, when in fact the product which is sold under another name is in reality condensed milk.

While it is to be regretted that the manufacturers of "Hebe" may have been misled through the holding of a former departmental official, such holding is not of itself binding as is contended by counsel for the Hebe Company; nor is it within the power of an official of the state to estop the state in a criminal prosecution. Regardless of any finding by an officer of the state, the judicial determination of any question involved would prevail.

In view of the provisions of sections 12716, 12717, 12725, taken in connection with sections 5774 and 5778 of the General Code, it is my opinion that the product known as "Hebe," be it a compound or otherwise, the major portion of which is evaporated skimmed milk, cannot be sold in the state of Ohio under the label at present used, or any other label under existing law.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

WHERE ATTORNEY IS EMPLOYED TO ASSIST PROSECUTING ATTORNEY TO BRING SUIT FOR COUNTY TREASURER TO COLLECT TAXES—FEES NOT APPORTIONABLE TO VARIOUS SUBDIVISIONS ENTITLED TO SHARE IN SUCH TAXES.

If an attorney is employed to assist the prosecuting attorney under section 2412 G. C. to bring suit for county treasurer to collect taxes, the attorney's fees paid are not apportionable to the various subdivisions entitled to share in such taxes, under section 5700 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 19, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of July 7, 1916, you requested my opinion as follows:

> "We desire an opinion from your department upon a question arising upon the semi-annual settlement of liquor traffic tax collections.
> "It appears that the auditor and treasurer of Henry county employed counsel to undertake certain defenses and actions at law to recover upon Dow tax charges in a matter in which the then prosecuting attorney of the county could not, with a due regard to the ethics of his profession, undertake owing to the fact that he had been employed against the county and state in the same matters before his qualifying as prosecuting attorney.

"We attach hereto statements prepared at our request by the auditor of that county.

"We desire to know whether this contract of employment of Mr. Conway is a legal one binding upon the county, and also whether payment under such contract may be made out of the undivided liquor tax fund."

A brief statement of the facts in the case has been furnished by Mr. Rafferty, county auditor, as follows:

"T. A. Conway, prosecuting attorney, Henry county, 1904-1905.

"The Christ Diehl Brewing Company placed on liquor duplicate under the Cain law.

"Conway asked by county treasurer to render an opinion on the legality of such tax.

"Prior to this, said company enjoined the collection of taxes similarly assessed at Continental, Putnam county, and the circuit court had held that they were illegal.

"Conway advised the county treasurer that the taxes were legal and should be collected.

"In 1905 said company brought an action against the county auditor and treasurer, enjoining the collection of said taxes.

"Mr. Conway succeeded in office by E. N. Warden, who had appeared in a court of record in this county as an attorney for said company in said case.

"Injunction sustained in common pleas court, which followed the decision rendered by the circuit court in Putnam county.

"Mr. Conway, employed August 24th, 1907, to represent defendants, auditor and treasurer, in said case.

"The circuit court held that said company was liable for the tax on the undisputed facts in said case.

"The Supreme court sustained the circuit court.

"Personal judgment not asked for upon promise, by counsel for said company, that when the supreme court had passed upon the validity of the tax that the company would pay it.

"The Brewing Company refused to pay anything.

"On May 14th, 1912, $238.14 collected by county treasurer on distraint.

"Commenced an action for foreclosure of lien and personal judgment.

"On April 28, 1914, recovered judgment in common pleas court for $7,869.32.

"Judgment confirmed by the court of appeals.

"Motion filed in the supreme court to certify record for review.

"On two different attempts to levy on personal property of said company, each time suit was brought against the treasurer, sheriff and Mr. Conway for damages as tresspassers.

Accompanying said statement is a letter from Mr. Rafferty under date of June 29th to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, which is in part as follows:

"Shall the fees of Thomas A. Conway, as counsel for the defendants, auditor and treasurer of this county, in this case, be deducted by myself from the shares or portions of revenue of the subdivisions entitled to share in the distribution of such taxes and assessments?

"I wish to state further, that the record here in this office shows that Mr. Conway was employed by the auditor and treasurer as counsel to defend them in this action, and that his compensation was fixed at a sum equal to thirty-five per cent. of the amount collected from said company.

"Neither the commissioners' journal nor any other records on file in this office disclose any evidence that the prosecuting attorney filed a request with the board of county commissioners for any assistants, help or additional counsel in this case at the time Mr. Conway was originally employed on August 24th, 1907.

"Mr. Conway has been working on this case for over ten years, and I assure you that I think he has earned his fee of thirty-five per cent., which will be due him in case the supreme court reviews this case (which is doubtful) and sustains the decision of the lower courts.

"It certainly would be unjust to have Henry county pay the whole fee and thus be the looser when neither county, state or municipality would have ever received a cent of those taxes or assessments had it not been for the bull dog tenacity and staying qualities of Mr. Conway. Had he been willing to follow the decision rendered in the Putnam county case, which was identically the same, the matter would undoubtedly have been dropped and never been heard of again.

"This is a case so out of the ordinary that I think your bureau should permit me to withhold Mr. Conway's fees as he has paid all his own personal expenses, which has been no small amount, in this case, and no subdivision as yet has paid any expense unless it may be so ordered by the court.

"Your attention is particularly called to the provisions of section 5700 of the General Code of Ohio, which I think is broad enough in its terms to permit the fees of Mr. Conway to be deducted from the amount of the judgment before the balance is distributed according to law.

"I am withholding my July liquor settlement until I may receive a reply from your bureau, and trusting that the same will be favorable, I beg to remain."

After reading over the facts submitted by Mr. Rafferty I considered it proper that I should write to Mr. Conway and get the entire history of the case from him. Under date of July 26th, Mr. Conway wrote to me as follows:

"Your communication of the 20th inst., addressed to me atNapoleon, Ohio, was forwarded to Elyria, which place has been my home since September, 1907. I was prosecuting attorney of Henry county from 1904 to 1907. During my incumbency in that office I was called upon by the county treasurer for an opinion as to the legality of certain taxes and assessments which had been placed on the liquor duplicate of that county against the Christ Diehl Brewing Company on account of investigation made by representatives of the dairy and food commissioners' office. After considerable investigation, I informed the treasurer that the taxes were legal and properly on the duplicate. This same company maintained a storage house in Continental, Putnam county, and conducted its business so far as I could learn, identically the same at this storage house as it did in its storage houses in Holgate and Deshler, Henry county.

"The company brought an action against the treasurer of Putnam county to enjoin him from collecting the taxes and assessments by distraint. Judge Donnelly, who was on the common pleas bench, held that the company was not liable for the tax. The case was appealed to the circuit court of Putnam county, the judgment rendered by the common pleas court was affirmed by the circuit court of Putnam county. Notwithstanding the decision rendered by the circuit court, I was still of the opinion that the sales were made at the storage houses and that therefore, the brewing company was liable for the payment of the Dow tax. The company brought an action to enjoin the treasurer of Henry county from collecting the tax by distraint. Donovan & Warden, of Napoleon, were the counsel for the brewing company in that case. Mr. Warden succeeded me as prosecuting attorney of Henry county in 1907. This case against the treasurer was still pending at that time. Judge Cameron, of Defiance, heard the case in common pleas court, and following the decision rendered in the Putnam county case granted the injunction to enjoin the treasurer from collecting the tax by distraint, and held that the company was not liable for the payment of the tax. It was perhaps in August, 1907, that I entered into a contract with the commissioners of Henry county, to represent the treasurer in that case, Mr. Warden being disqualified to represent the treasurer on account of having formerly represented the brewing company in that particular case. The case was appealed to the circuit court, who rendered a decision in favor of the treasurer in the fall of 1907. The brewing company prosecuted error to the supreme court and the supreme court rendered a decision in the fall of 1909 affirming the decision of the circuit court of Henry county. I did not ask for a personal judgment against the brewing company in the case which went to the supreme court thinking that the only question was whether or not the company was liable for the payment of the tax, and that in the event that the court held that it was, the tax would be paid without any further trouble. However, the company refused to pay the tax and on the written request of the prosecuting attorney of the county under the provisions of section 1274 R. S., I entered into a contract with the commissioners to assist the prosecuting attorney in bringing a suit against the brewing company for a personal judgment and for the foreclosure of the statutory lien. My contract provided that I should receive from the county a sum equal to thirty-five per cent. of the amount of taxes and penalties collected as a result of that suit. My brother, Lawrence F. Conway, of Toledo, was assisting me and when I was appointed probate judge of Lorain county, in 1912, I was too busy to look after the litigation and I canceled that contract with the county and had the commissioners enter into a similar contract with my brother who was to take up the work instead of me. He died in February, 1913, in Columbus, while a member of the legislature. After his death, I went to Napoleon, and in view of the fact that I had spent a great deal of time and money in my efforts to collect this tax and in further view of the fact that I was thoroughly familiar with all the intricacies of the case, at the request of the present prosecuting attorney, R. W. Cahill, and at the request of the then county treasurer, Louis W. Schultz, I entered into a contract with the county commissioners which was identical with the contract which I had originally entered into with the commissioners of that county, by which it was agreed that I should receive a sum equal to thirty-five per cent. of the amount of taxes and assessments collected from the said company. I think the county auditor of Henry county sent a copy of the letter signed by the prosecuting attorney requesting my appointment, a copy of the resolution adopted by the board of commissioners and a copy of the contract to the state auditor. I have not a copy of it here or would send it to you, but was very careful to come within the provisions of the statute authorizing the commissioners to employ counsel to assist the prosecuting attorney.

"I have been working on this case with a great deal of regularity for over ten years. As a result of my efforts and aggressiveness in attempting to collect this tax I was sued twice by the brewing company for trespass at the time that I accompanied the county treasurer to take possession of the personal property of the brewing company to sell the same by distraint, and was compelled to employ counsel to defend me in both of those cases. I have also spent several hundred dollars in paying expenses in traveling back and forth from Elyria to Napoleon, Toledo, Wapakoneta and Lima.

"In 1907 the county commissioners had so little faith in my contention that the company was liable for the tax that they would not have given me a straight fee of fifty dollars to take the case to the supreme court, but they were willing to let me attempt to collect it on a contingent basis.

"This briefly is a history of the case. I think it would be inequitable to say the least, in the event that the tax should be finally collected, to require the county to pay me my fee out of the portion of the tax which goes to the county, for the reason that the county would not receive enough of the taxes to pay my fee, and would thus be the loser. If there is any way to do it I think the fee should first be deducted from the total amount collected before distribution is made to the several taxing districts entitled to the same, and I trust that it can be so deducted, and distribution made thereafter. I might add in conclusion that I never received a cent of compensation for all my labor in the case of The Christ Diehl Brewing Company against Beck et al., which went to the supreme court. There was a small amount of money collected by distraint, something over two hundred dollars, of which I was paid my percentage. This was the only compensation which I have ever received for my labor in this matter for a period of over ten years.

"I will probably be in Columbus some time next month, and if you desire any further information from me in regard to this case I will gladly call at your office when in the city."

It appears, therefore, that so far as the employment of Mr. Conway in 1907 was concerned the contract of employment was canceled, as well as the contract which was made prior to his appointment as probate judge; that a new contract was entered into under the provisions of section 5700 G. C. on the 12th day of February, 1913, under a resolution of the county commissioners, which is to the following effect:

"In the matter of the employment of T. A. Conway as legal counsel for the purpose of collecting the taxes standing charged against The Christ Diehl Brewing Company and Christ Diehl upon the tax duplicate of Henry County, Ohio	Employment of Counsel.

"Whereas, there is now pending in the court of common pleas of Henry county, Ohio, a case entitled Louis W. Schultz, as Treasurer of Henry County, Ohio, Plaintiff, vs. The Christ Diehl Brewing Company, et al., Defendants, which suit was brought for the collection of certain Dow-Aiken taxes and penalties charged against the said defendant on the tax duplicate of this county, and whereas Lawrence F. Conway, formerly employed in this case, is now deceased,

"Whereas, the prosecuting attorney has this day filed a written request with this board that we employ T. A. Conway, an attorney-at-law, as legal counsel to assist him in the prosecution of said case so pending, and

"Whereas, the county treasurer has this day filed a written request asking that the board employ, and that he be authorized to employ the said

T. A. Conway for the purpose of acting as legal counsel to assist the prosecuting attorney in the prosecution of the said case, and in the collection of the taxes and penalties involved therein, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that we deem it for the best interests of the county to employ the said T. A. Conway, and that he be and is hereby employed and appointed as legal counsel to assist the prosecuting attorney in the prosecution of said case, and in the collection of the taxes and penalties involved therein, and that the said T. A. Conway be authorized to assist the prosecuting attorney in all suits that in the judgment of the county treasurer it may be necessary to bring against the said The Christ Diehl Brewing Company, and to do such other things as may be necessary and proper for the collection of said taxes.

"Be it further resolved, that the compensation which the said T. A. Conway shall receive for the service rendered by him shall be a sum equal to thirty-five per centum (35%) of the amount of taxes and penalties collected from or paid by said company, whether by suit or otherwise, said compensation to be paid to said T. A. Conway as soon as the taxes so collected shall be paid into the county treasury, and said sum to be paid in full compensation for all services which may be rendered and expenses incurred by the said T. A. Conway under this resolution.

"Be it further resolved, that the county treasurer be and hereby is authorized and empowered to employ the said T. A. Conway as legal counsel to assist the prosecuting attorney in the prosecution of said suit, and in any other suits that in his judgment it may be necessary for him to bring for the collection of said taxes and penalties owing by the said The Christ Diehl Brewing Company for trafficing in intoxicating liquors in Henry County, Ohio, and that the compensation of the said T. A. Conway for his services in said matter shall be a sum equal to thirty-five per centum (35%) of the amount of taxes collected from or paid by said company, whether acting under his contract of employment made with this board, or under a contract of employment made with the county treasurer as hereby authorized, or both.

"The foregoing resolution was offered by John Rice, seconded by Geo. Harmon. Upon roll call upon the same the vote was as follows:

"The terms and conditions of the foregoing resolution are hereby accepted this 12th day of February, A. D., 1913.

"Signed, T. A. Conway.

"Signed, Wm. Stoner,
Jno. Rice,
G. E. Harmon } County Commissioners."

Section 5700 of the General Code provides as follows:

"When an action has been commenced against the county treasurer, county auditor, or other county officer, for performing or attempting to perform a duty authorized or directed by statute for the collection of the public revenue, such treasurer, auditor, or other officer shall be allowed and paid out of the county treasury reasonable fees of counsel and other expenses for defending the action. The amount of damages and costs adjudged against him, with the fees, expenses, damages, and costs shall be apportioned ratably by the county auditor among all the parties entitled to share the revenue so collected, and be deducted by the auditor from the shares or portions of revenue at any time payable to each, including as one of the parties, the state itself, as well as the counties, townships, cities, villages, school districts, and organizations entitled thereto."

Section 5700 G. C. supra, was in full force and effect at the time of the passage of the resolution of the county commissioners, hereinbefore set forth, and is the only section that I have been able to find which permits of an apportionment of the expenses of attorney's fees among the various political subdivisions entitled to share in the revenues of tax collection, and the question arises as to whether or not said section is sufficiently broad to permit of the apportionment of the fees due to Mr. Conway against the various subdivisions including the state.

The fees that are to be paid to Mr. Conway are to be paid in pursuance of the resolution of the county commissioners, hereinbefore set forth, which was passed on September 12, 1913, and are not to be paid by reason of any previous employment since in the statement submitted by Mr. Conway he distinctly states that the original contract of employment was canceled.

Section 5700 G. C. has reference solely to an action commenced against a county treasurer, auditor or other county officer for performing or attempting to perform the duty of collection of public revenue, and does not by its terms in any way authorize the payment of such expenses in a suit of the county treasurer seeking to collect taxes. Therefore, the apportionment of the expenses of such collection cannot be made in the present matter.

In the case of State ex rel. v. Cappeller, 39 O. S. 207, the first branch of the syllabus is as follows:

> "The state is not liable for any part of the fees or expenses of the county treasurer or county auditor, or their assistants, except where such liability is created by statute. The state is not bound by the terms of a general statute unless it be so expressly enacted."

In view of the decision in the above case I am of the opinion that section 5700 G. C. cannot be given an interpretation broader than is contained expressly in the provisions thereof. I am therefore of the opinion, in answer to your question, that while the employment of Mr. Conway is a legal one binding upon the county, under the provisions of section 2412 G. C., there is no authority in law for the apportionment of the compensation, to be received by Mr. Conway by reason of said employment, among the various political subdivisions entitled to share in the amount of taxes collected.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE—DEPOSIT WITH CLERK OF COURT OF TEN CENTS PER MILE—WHEN FUGITIVE ESCAPES—CONTINGENCIES PREVENTED FROM HAPPENING—HOW DEPOSIT MAY BE DEMANDED AND RECEIVED FOR SISTER STATE.

When a deposit of ten cents per mile is made under the provisions of section 115 G. C. and thereafter before the trial of the defendant, he escapes from the custody of the state, making such deposit thereby preventing the happening of either of the contingencies named in said section under which said deposit may be paid to the defendant or returned to the demanding state, the latter upon proper proof of the fact of said escape may demand and receive said deposit.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 19, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of September 8, 1916, as follows:

> "Your official opinion is requested respecting the following:
> "A requisition is made by the governor of the state of Virginia upon the governor of Ohio for an alleged fugutive, and warrant issued on such requisition for the arrest of said alleged fugitive. A deposit was demanded of the agent appointed by the state of Virginia, under the provisions of section 115 of the General Code of Ohio, and a deposit of fifty dollars was accordingly made by said agent with the clerk of the courts of the county wherein the said alleged fugitive was under arrest, and the said alleged fugitive delivered to said agent of the state of Virginia and returned by said agent to the state of Virginia, but while awaiting trial the said alleged fugitive escaped from jail and is still at large. Is the clerk of the courts of the county in which the said alleged fugitive was arrested and with whom the deposit was made entitled, under the Ohio law, to retain the amount so deposited until the supposed fugitive is either convicted or acquitted.
> "Correspondence between the governor of Virginia and the governor of Ohio is herewith submitted for your information."

It appears from the correspondence attached to your letter that one I. D. Sanger was indicted in the county of Frederick, Virginia, and was thereafter arrested in Champaign county, this state, and a requisition from the governor of Virginia was thereupon duly honored by you and the said defendant was returned to Virginia for trial. Under the provisions of section 115 G. C. the sheriff of said county of Frederick was required to deposit with the clerk of the courts of Champaign county the sum of fifty dollars, representing a charge of ten cents a mile from the place where the arrest was made to the place of prosecution. The defendant pending his trial in said county escaped from the county jail and is now at large. Attached also to your letter is an opinion from the attorney-general of the state of Virginia to the governor of said state in which the governor is advised that the money so deposited constitutes a trust fund and that by reason of the escape of the prisoner the object of the trust is ended and that the state of Virginia is now entitled to the return of the deposit aforesaid.

Sectio 115 G. C., whose provisions are involved in this inquiry, as it now stands, provides:

> "On payment of costs by the agent, and the deposit of a sum of money with the clerk of the court, equal to ten cents a mile from the place where the arrest was made to the place for prosecution, the fugitive shall be delivered to such agent to be returned for prosecution. If the agent does not appear within the time so fixed, pay the costs, and make such deposit, the sheriff shall discharge the person so imprisoned. If the supposed fugitive is not found guilty of the crime charged in the warrant, the deposit shall be paid to him; but, upon the conviction of the fugitive of the crime so charged, such sum shall be paid to the agent making the deposit."

The deposit required by this section is in the nature of a guaranty that the accused shall not be put to any unnecessary expense by reason of the action of the state of Ohio in delivering him to the demanding state, and the fund thus created is clearly for the purpose of providing transportation for him from the demanding state back to the point at which he was delivered to the agent of that state, in case he is acquitted of the charge against him. This is the only condition which can give rise to any right on his part to the money so deposited and it must not be overlooked that the reason for the requirement of this deposit by the state of Ohio is to prevent the accused from being subjected to any unnecessary expense by reason of its act.

It follows, therefore, that in order for the accused to have any claim on the money, his presence in the demanding state, released by acquittal from the charge against him, must be the result of the action of the state of Ohio in delivering him to the authorities of that state. By his escape he has made it impossible for that situation to be brought about, for if he should now be arrested and brought to trial, or should voluntarily submit himself to the jurisdiction of the courts, his presence there for trial could not then in any sense be said to be the result of any action of the state of Ohio. On the other hand, his escape has rendered impossible his conviction, for it can not be assumed, for the purposes of this question, that he will ever be apprehended and brought to trial, and as stated above, even if he should be, it would be entirely independent of the proceedings in extradition.

There is, therefore, in the hands of the clerk of courts a fund placed there in accordance with section 115 G. C. which can not be distributed in accordance with the provisions of said section, and this question must necessarily be answered on general grounds without reference to the statute. So answering, I can see no escape from the conclusion that the clerk of courts should now return the money to the source from which it was received, and this I think he would be entirely justified in doing. Clearly, the clerk has no right to retain the deposit indefinitely, and the accused has voluntarily placed himself beyond the possibility of ever having any claim against it but the party depositing it has a right to it which I believe could be maintained in a proper proceeding, and to this party the money should be paid.

I am therefore of the opinion that the clerk of the court of the county in which the accused was arrested is not entitled, under the circumstances stated by you, to retain the money so deposited, but that he should now, upon proper showing that the accused has escaped from the custody of the authorities to whom he was delivered, return the money to the party from whom he received it.

The application for the return of said deposit may be made by the attorney-general of the state of Virginia and should be addressed to the court of common pleas of Champaign county and be supported by affidavits showing the facts as claimed in respect to the escape of said defendant.

Should the attorney-general of Virginia desire this department to represent him in this matter before said court I shall be pleased so to do upon his request to that effect, and the receipt of the proper application and the proof aforesaid.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

CHILDREN'S HOME—CHILDREN OF DIVORCED WOMAN—CANNOT SECURE LEGAL SETTLEMENT UNTIL TWELVE MONTHS HAVE ELAPSED FROM DATE OF DECREE—CHILDREN NOT ELIGIBLE TO BE RECEIVED IN CHILDREN'S HOME IN COUNTY OF RESIDENCE OF MOTHER UNTIL SUCH TIME HAS ELAPSED.

The children of a divorced woman cannot secure a new legal settlement through the mother in whose custody they have been placed through the decree until twelve months have elapsed from the date of the decree.

Until such time has elapsed the children are not eligible to be received in a childrens' home in the county of the residence of the mother whose residence before the decree of divorce was granted was in another county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 19, 1916.

Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request of August 10, 1916, for an opinion is as follows:

"We submit to your consideration the following statement and query for an opinion as to proper procedure:

"About three years ago John Doe deserted his wife and two children in 'A' county. His wife Mary Doe, applied to the children's home of that county for the admission of her two children. Upon investigation it was found that they had not resided in the county for one year. In accordance with the provisions of section 3094 G. C. the superintendent of the home removed the children to the home of 'B' county within which this family had previously resided. The children were received by the superintendent of the home of 'B' county, where they were kept and cared for for more than two years. Nearly one year ago the mother instituted divorce proceedings against her husband. The divorce was granted by the common pleas court of 'A' county wherein she has continued to reside since the time of desertion. The court also granted her the custody of her two children, although she has never maintained a home of her own, being employed as a domestic. She has secured the release of these children from the home in 'B' county and now seeks to have them admitted to the home of 'A' county. The trustees of the home of 'A' county decline to receive these children on the ground that Mary Doe has not obtained a poor law settlement because she was receiving a form of public aid through the care of her children in the home of 'B' county. (See section 3477 G. C.). They contend that they are still liable to be cared for in 'B' county.

"Query: Is the home of 'A' county, through its board of trustees warranted in accepting these children, provided they need institutional care, or should they be returned to the home in 'B' county?"

At the outset, it will be observed that while the wife referred to in your communication was deserted in 'A' county about three years ago, an application for divorce was instituted by the wife less than one year ago in 'A' county, where she has continued to reside since the time of desertion by her husband. At the time of the granting of the divorce the custody of her two children was given to her, and I understand from statements made by your Mr. Shirer that they are now being maintained in the home in which the mother is employed as a domestic in 'A' county.

Section 3089 G. C., as amended 103 O. L. page 890, which refers to what children may be admitted to county children's homes, is in part as follows:

> "The home shall be an asylum for children under the age of eighteen years, of sound mind and not morally vicious and free from infectious or contagious diseases, who have resided in the county not less than one year, and for such other children under such age from other counties in the state where there is no home, as the trustees of such home and the persons or authority having the custody and control of such children, by contract agree upon, who are, in the opinion of the trustees, suitable children for admission by reason of orphanage, abandonment or neglect by parents, or inability of parents to provide for them."

Reference is made in your letter to the fact that the trustees of the children's home in 'A' county decline to receive the children, claiming that the mother has not obtained a poor law settlement because she was receiving a form of public aid through the care of her children in the home of 'B' county, reliance being placed by the trustees upon the provisions of section 3477 of the General Code which defines legal settlement in language as follows:

> "Sec. 3477. Each person shall be considered to have obtained a legal settlement in any county in this state in which he or she has continuously resided and supported hinself or herself for twelve consecutive months, without relief under the provisions of law for the relief of the poor, subject to the following exceptions: * * *"

The fact that the children of the mother referred to were inmates of the children's home of the county in which the mother formerly resided is not to be taken as a bar to the mother's securing a legal settlement in another county where she may have continuously resided and supported herself for twelve consecutive months without relief under the provisions of law for the relief of the poor. There is, however, another feature to this case which to my mind is controlling, and which embraces the principles laid down in the case of The Trustees of Spencer township in Guernsey county v. The Trustees of Pleasant township in Perry county, reported in 17 O. S. at page 32. The opinion of the court in that case is in part as follows:

> "1. The legal settlement of a minor child, member of his father's family, continues to be in the township where his father was last legally settled, notwithstanding the father removes with his wife and children to a township in another county and there abandons them, if neither he nor his family remain in such township long enough to acquire a new settlement.
> "2. The abandoned wife, during coverture, is not legally able to acquire for herself or minor child a legal settlement different from that of her abandoned husband, the father of the child.
> "3. After such abandoned wife procures a divorce from her husband, she then, but not before, becomes able, as a femme sole to acquire for herself a legal settlement; and if her custody of the minor child, granted by the decree of divorce, has any effect, to make her legal settlement instead of her former husband's, the settlement of the child, such effect cannot follow until time enough elapses after the divorce and before her subsequent second marriage, to enable her to acquire a legal settlement as a femme sole."

Up to and including the time when the decree of divorce was granted to the mother

her legal settlement was in "B" county, notwithstanding the fact that she may have resided for two years or thereabouts in "A" county, as it is specifically held in the case above that "the abandoned wife, during coverture, is not legally able to acquire for herself or minor child a legal settlement different from that of her abandoned husband, the father of the child."

Immediately upon the granting of the decree of divorce the status of the mother, a feme sole, became such that she might begin to acquire a legal settlement of her own independent of the one formerly had by reason of the fixing upon her of the legal settlement of her husband.

In the case of Trustees of Bloomfield v. Trustees of Chagrin, reported in 5 Ohio Rep. page 316, it is held that:

> "The mother of an infant pauper settled in one township, does not change the infant's residence, by marrying a second husband settled in another township, and there residing without the infant pauper."

In the case under consideration the decree of divorce provided that the mother should have the custody of her children, and notwithstanding the fact they may have for some time remained in the children's home in "B" county, that fact would not interfere with the operation of the provisions of section 3477 G. C. supra, in so far as the mother was able to establish a legal settlement for herself from which a legal settlement might be derived by the children.

Under the facts presented by you it is my opinion that until twelve months shall have elapsed from the date of the granting of the divorce decree the mother could not be said to have acquired a new legal settlement different from the one cast upon her during coverture. However, when such time has elapsed and the mother has resided continuously and supported herself for twelve consecutive months in any county without relief, under the provisions of law for the relief of the poor, she will have acquired a legal settlement, and when such settlement has been acquired, her children, who have been placed in her custody through the operation of the court's decree in the divorce proceedings, will derive a legal settlement from her. Until such time the trustees of the children's home of "A" county have no authority to receive the children referred to, and if such children are public charges the responsibility for their maintenance rests upon "B" county.

Respectfully
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX—WHERE PERSON OTHER THAN THOSE EXEMPTED BY PROVISION OF SECTION 5331 G. C. TAKES AN ESTATE BY VIRTUE OF PROVISIONS OF SECTION 10581 G. C. —SAID ESTATE SUBJECT TO SAID TAX PRESCRIBED IN SECTION 5331 G. C.

Where a person, other than those exempted by the provision of section 5331 G. C., 103 O. L., 463, takes an estate by virtue of the provisions of section 10581 G. C., said estate is subject to the collateral inheritance tax prescribed by said section 5331 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 20, 1916.

HON. GEORGE THORNBURG, Prosecuting Attorney, St. Clairsville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of September 11th you request my opinion as follows:

"Wm. F. Fletcher died January, 1916, leaving a will which bequeathed all his property to his mother, Martha Fletcher, to her and her heirs forever.

"Martha Fletcher died several years before her son, William F. Fletcher, died. Martha Fletcher left a daughter, Sarah E. McKirahan, her only child and heir, who is still living. Sarah E. McKirahan gets all the property by virtue of section 10581 of the General Code.

"Is this estate liable for the collateral inheritance tax?

"The mother would not have been liable for the tax if she had been living and received the estate under the will. The daughter who is a sister of Wm. F. Fletcher, would have been liable if willed to her direct. Does the fact that the sister takes the property 'as the devisee would have done, if she had survived the testator' as provided by section 10581 defeat the collection of the tax?

It seems to me that since this estate passed to the sister direct without passing through the mother that the estate is liable for the tax. The estate amounts to about $25,000.00, and the attorneys for the estate think the tax should not be collected, hence I would like to have your opinion on the matter."

Section 10581 G. C. provides as follows:

"When a devise of real or personal estate is made to a child or other relative of the testator, if such child or other relative was dead at the time the will was made, or dies thereafter, leaving issue surviving the testator, in either case such issue shall take the estate devised as the devisee would have done, if he had survived the testator. If such devisee leaves no such issue, and the devise be of a residuary estate to him or her, and other child or relative of the testator, the estate devised shall pass to, and vest in such residuary devisee surviving the testator, unless a different disposition be made or required by the will."

As observed by you, by the foregoing provisions of section 10581 G. C., Sarah E. McKirahan, sister of William Fletcher, the testator, and daughter of Martha Fletcher, mother of the said William Fletcher, who is named as the beneficiary in the will in question and who died prior to the date of the death of the said William Fletcher, takes the property mentioned and referred to in said will as the said Martha Fletcher would have done if she had survived the testator; the manifest purpose of the legislature in enacting said provisions of said statute being to prevent the lapsing of a legacy or devise under the conditions therein prescribed.

However, said section must be read in connection with the provisions of the will itself and it cannot be said that the said Sarah E. McKirahan has any greater rights, in so far as the collateral inheritance tax is concerned, than she would have had if she had been named in said will in place of her mother, Martha Fletcher, and had taken directly by the terms of said will. In this connection it must be observed that section 5331 G. C., providing for the collateral inhertiance tax, is a statute of later enactment than section 10581 G. C. and the provisions of the latter section must be considered as modified by the limitations of the former section in respect to the right of the said Sarah E. McKirahan to take the estate in question.

Section 5331 G. C. (106 O. L. 463) provides in part that:

> "All property within the jurisdiction of this state, and any interests therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of this state or not, and whether tangible or intangible, which pass by will or by the intestate laws of the state, or by deed, grant, sale or gift, made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to a person in trust, or otherwise, other than to or for the use of father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant or adopted child, shall be liable to a tax of five per cent. of its value above the sum of five hundred dollars. * * *"

In view of the above provisions of said section 5331 G. C. it is evident that the said Sarah E. McKirahan, as sister of the testator, is not exempted by said provisions from the tax therein prescribed. I am of the opinion therefore, in answer to your question that the estate, referred to in your letter, in excess of the sum of five hundred dollars mentioned in said section, is subject to said collateral inheritance tax.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE, BELMONT, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 20, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Belmont county, Ohio, in the amount of $78,960, in anticipation of the collection of taxes and assessments for the improvement of McMahon's Creek road in Richland township, being one bond of $960 and 78 bonds of $1,000 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the county commissioners and other officers of Belmont county in connection with the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form submitted by The Columbus Blank Book Manufacturing Company, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of Belmont county.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY MONROE TOWNSHIP RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MADISON COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 20, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Monroe township rural school district, Madison county, Ohio, in the sum of $5,000, being ten bonds of $500 each numbered consecutively from 81 to 90 inclusive, and being the remaining unsold part of a bond issue of $45,000, of which bonds amounting to $40,000 have been heretofore purchased by and delivered to the commission."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education of Monroe township rural school district, Madison county, Ohio, relatively to said original issue of $45,000; also the transcript of the supplementary proceedings authorizing the sale of the remaining $5,000 of said bonds; also the bond and coupon form submitted, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted, when executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said Monroe township rural school district.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—NOT DUTY OF BUREAU TO INSTALL SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTING FOR CITIES—DUTY OF CITY AUDITOR OR VILLAGE CLERK—COUNCIL APPROPRIATES IN CITIES AND CITY AUDITOR EMPLOYS EXTRA CLERKS FOR SUCH PURPOSE—IN VILLAGE COUNCIL PROVIDES EMPLOYES.

It is not the duty of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices to install system of accounting prescribed by it for municipalities.

It is the duty of the city auditor or village clerk so to do.

If council creates the positions and appropriates money necessary therefor, city auditor may employ extra clerks. In villages council provides employes.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 20, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of September 13, 1916, you wrote to me as follows:

> "The bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices has recently formulated a new system of accounting for municipalities. In consideration of the provisions of section 277 G. C., together with section 4284 G. C.
> "(1) Is it a duty of the bureau to install such system in the various municipalities?
> "(2) Has the bureau authority to assign state examiners to do the installation and charge the taxing district therefor in the same manner as charge is made for examinations?
> "(3) Is it the duty of the city auditor of such municipality to install such system, the forms and procedure being furnished him by the bureau?
> "(4) If so, has the city auditor the power, with authority of council, to engage extra help to enable him to install such system?"

Section 4283 of the General Code provides as follows:

> "In the following provisions of this chapter, the word 'city' shall include 'village', and the word 'auditor' shall include 'clerk'."

Section 4284 of the General Code, referred to in your letter, provides in part as follows:

> "At the end of each fiscal year, * * * the auditor shall examine and audit the accounts of all officers and departments. He shall prescribe the form of accounts and reports to be rendered to his department, and the form and method of keeping accounts by all other departments, and, subject to the powers and duties of the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, shall have the inspection and revision thereof. * * *"

This section as it appears in the General Code is a codification of the section as the same was enacted in 98 O. L. 196.

Section 277 G. C. referred to in your letter provides as follows: (101 O. L. 382).

> "The auditor of state, as chief inspector and supervisor, shall prescribe and require the installation of a system of accounting and reporting for the public offices, named in section two hundred seventy-four. Such system shall be uniform in its application to offices of the same grade and accounts of the same class, and shall prescribe the form of receipt, vouchers and documents, required to separate and verify each transaction, and forms of reports and statements required for the administration of such offices or for the information of the public."

Since section 277 G. C. is the later enactment it must govern in so far as the same is not in harmony with section 4284 G. C.

Section 277 G. C. provides that the auditor of state shall prescribe and require the installation of a system of accounting and reporting for public offices, but does not state that the same shall be installed by the bureau. Therefore, in answer to your first question I am of the opinion that it is not the duty of the bureau to install the system prescribed by it in the various municipalities.

Not being required to install the system, an answer to your second question becomes unnecessary.

Since the auditor of state, as chief inspector and supervisor, is given the duty to prescribe and require the installation of a system of accounting and reporting for public offices, it necessarily follows, in answer to your third question, that it is the duty of the city auditor or village clerk to install the system required, the forms and procedure being furnished by the bureau.

Section 4214 G. C. provides that council shall determine the number of clerks and employes in each department of the city government and fix by ordinance or resolution their compensation. Under section 4216 G. C. council may provide such employes for the village as they may determine, and section 4219 G. C. provides that council shall fix the compensation of all employes in the village government.

Since the matter of the employment of employes in both the city and village governments is left to council, I am of the opinion, in answer to your fourth question, that in cities if council prescribes extra clerks to install a system of accounting prescribed by the bureau and fixes the compensation of the same the city auditor would have the power to employ such extra clerks and pay them the amount as fixed by council. In villages council provides the employes.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—WHEN PUPILS WHO ARRIVE AT AGE OF SIX YEARS AFTER BEGINNING OF SCHOOL YEAR MAY ENTER UPON FIRST YEAR'S WORK—BOARD MAY ADOPT REASONABLE RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE SAME.

Boards of education may adopt reasonable rules and regulations governing the time at which pupils who arrive at the age of six years after the beginning of the school year may enter upon the first year's work of the elementary schools.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 21, 1916.

HON. MILTON HAINES, Prosecuting Attorney, Marysville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of September 15, 1916, is as follows:

"Section 7681 of the General Code of Ohio (106 O. L., 489), provides in part as follows:

" 'The schools of each district shall be free to all youth between six and twenty-one years of age, who are children, wards or apprentices of actual residents of the district, including children of proper age who are inmates of a county or district or of any public or private children's home or orphans' asylum located in such a school district, but the time in the school year at which beginners may enter upon the first year's work of the elementary schools shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the local boards of education.'

"The Darby township rural school board of our county at a regular meeting of the board passed the following rule: 'That no pupil who has not attained the age of six years before November 1st of the school year shall be admitted during said school year, and must enter at beginning of the year.'

"I would greatly appreciate the favor if you would give me an opinion as to this rule being legal and can the board enforce it.

"I am very much in doubt as to this rule being enforcible, but because of the reading of the section which I have underscored, I desire your opinion."

Under date of January 13, 1911, my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, rendered an opinion to Hon. George D. Klein, prosecuting attorney Coshocton county, found at page 1018 of the report of the attorney-general for that year, on the question of whether or not the board of education of an incorporated village has the legal authority to refuse to admit pupils, who become six years of age in the middle of the school term after the holidays, to the first grade, as follows:

"Upon careful examination it is the opinion of this department that under section 7681 of the General Code, which provides:

" 'The schools of each district shall be free to all youth between six and twenty-one years of age, who are children, wards or apprentices of actual residents of the district, including children of proper age who are inmates of a county or district children's home located in such a school district, at the discretion of the board of education, etc.', there is no power given to the board of education in any district to refuse the right of admission to any pupil of school age to enter such school upon becoming of said lawful age.

"Further, under section 4750 of the General Code, the board or boards of education have the statutory authority to make such rules and regulations as it deems necessary for its government and the government of its employes and the pupils of the schools, but it does not give authority to the board of education to make any rule which will deprive a student of the proper school age, under said section above referred to, admission to said school."

The foregoing opinion was rendered prior to the amendment of section 7681 G. C., 103 O. L. 897, and its subsequent amendment in 106 O. L. 489. At the time the above opinion was rendered, that part of section 7681 G. C., therein quoted, was followed in the same sentence by the following provision:

> "but the time in the school year at which beginners may enter upon the first year's work of the elementary schools shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the local boards of education."

This provision my predecessor failed to consider. Here in plain and unequivocal language was the same provision as at present found in section 7681 G. C., which confers upon local boards of education full authority to control, by rules and regulations, the time in the school year at which beginners may enter upon the first year's work of the elementary school. This provision has no other meaning than that the board of education may determine by rule or regulation the time or times within the school year at which children, who are not six years of age at the beginning of the school year, but who arrive at that age within the school year, may enter school and begin the first year's work. That is to say, this provision vests in the boards of education power to exercise their sound discretion in the adoption of reasonable rules and regulations governing this matter.

Section 4750 G. C. also confers upon boards of education power to make such rules and regulations as it deems necessary for its government and the government of its employes and the pupils of the schools. This provision, however, adds nothing to the power conferred by section 7681, supra, in respect to the time when pupils may begin the first year's work in the elementary school.

There being vested in the board the authority to exercise its discretion in the matter, its action would not be interfered with by courts except for fraud or gross abuse of its discretion.

I am hardly prepared to say that the rule stated by you would constitute such gross abuse of discretion, but in the absence of further facts tending to show a substantial foundation in reason for such rule, I am much inclined to the view that it approaches very nearly the limit of such discretion. Each case may involve facts peculiar to itself, which would be controlling, thus rendering it difficult to lay down a fixed rule which may be applied to all cases. Many schools have adopted the rule that pupils may begin the first year's work in the elementary school either at the beginning of the year or at the term beginning after the holiday vacation. This I consider a reasonable rule and one in the nature of which the necessity in the case, in most instances, demands.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

FISH AND GAME LAWS—PROSECUTIONS INSTITUTED BY AFFIDAVIT OF GAME WARDEN—OFFENSE NOT COMMITTED IN PRESENCE OF SUCH WARDEN—COSTS CANNOT BE COLLECTED FROM COUNTY IN CASE OF ACQUITTAL OR DISCHARGE OF DEFENDANT FROM CUSTODY—PROVISO WHEN COSTS CAN BE COLLECTED FROM COUNTY.

Where a prosecution is instituted under the fish and game laws, by affidavit of a warden or other officer authorized by law to prosecute such cases, and the offense was not committed in the presence of such warden or officer, costs incurred therein can not be collected from the county in case of an acquittal or discharge of the defendant from custody, unless the prosecution was instituted with the approval of the prosecuting attorney of the county where the offense was committed, or the attorney-general.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 21, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of September 15, 1916, asking my opinion, received and is as follows:

> "We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following questions:
> "Where a prosecution is instituted under the fish and game laws of the state, and the provisions of section 1397, General Code, are not observed, may the costs incurred be paid from the county treasury in cases where the defendant is acquitted, pursuant to the provision of section 1404, G. C.?"

Section 1393 G. C. (106 O. L. 170) provides in part as follows:

> "The chief warden, special wardens and deputy state wardens shall enforce the provisions of this act and the laws relating to the protection, preservation and propagation of birds, fish and game."

Section 1397 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "Sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, constables and other police officers shall enforce the laws for the protection, preservation and propagation of birds, fish and game."

Section 1404 G. C. provides that:

> "A person authorized by law to prosecute a case under the provisions of this chapter shall not be required to advance or secure costs therein"; and further provides that in case the defendant be acquitted or discharged from custody, the costs shall be certified to the county auditor and after correction by him shall be paid to the person or persons entitled thereto.

Section 1397 G. C. supra also provides:

> "Prosecutions by a warden or other police officer for offenses not committed in his presence shall be instituted only upon the approval of the prosecuting attorney of the county in which the offense is committed or upon the approval of the attorney-general."

It is quite evident from the foregoing provisions of law that one of the purposes, if not the moving purpose, of the legislature, in providing for approval by the prosecuting attorney or attorney-general of prosecutions for offenses not committed in the presence of the officer, instiuted by a warden or other police officer, none of whom are required to advance or secure costs, was to prevent the institution and the consequent incurring of costs in cases in which the facts or the available evidence did not justify such action.

Aside from the plain provisions of section 1397 G. C. supra, to the effect that such prosecutions "shall be instituted only" upon the approval of the prosecuting attorney or attorney-general, it is clear that this very proper intention of the legislature can be carried out only by a proper showing to the court, before the affidavit is filed and a warrant issued thereon, that the provisions of said section have been complied with. I believe it was the intention of the legislature that the requirements of said section 1397 supra should operate not only to place a duty upon the officer, but as well to place a limitation upon the court, and that if costs are incurred in such a case without the required approval, such costs can not be collected from the county treasury.

In conferring the jurisdiction upon the courts to hear and determine these cases, the legislature undoubtedly had the right to place such limitations and conditions upon the right to exercise the jurisdiction as it deemed best, and in view of the very evident purpose of the legislature to protect the county from the payment of unnecessary costs, I am forced to conclude that the language used must be interpreted as a limitation upon the court. No other interpretation will adequately accomplish such protection.

In other words, the provisions of said section 1397 affect the jurisdiction of the court and failure to comply with them has the same effect upon the payment of costs as the absence of any other element of jurisdiction, and "a court dismissing a case for want of jurisdiction has no power to render judgment for costs." Moore v. Boyer, 42 O. S. 312.

Specifically answering your question, you are advised that where a prosecution is instituted under the fish and game laws of the state by a warden or other officer authorized by law to prosecute, and the provisions of section 1397 are not observed, costs incurred therein should not be paid from the county treasury. It should be remembered that this opinion applies only to prosecutions instituted by affidavit filed by a warden or other officer authorized by law to prosecute this class of cases.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY VILLAGE OF GRANDVIEW HEIGHTS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 22, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of the village of Grandview Heights in the sum of $700.00 issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the improvement of Fairview avenue from the north line of First avenue to the north corporation line, by the construction of sidewalks, being three bonds of $100.00 each and two bonds of $200.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the council and other officers of the village of Grandview Heights relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds when executed and signed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of the village of Grandview Heights.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY VILLAGE OF GRANDVIEW HEIGHTS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 22, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of the village of Grandview Heights in the sum of $5,850, issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments on benefitted property and to pay the village's portion of the cost of improving First avenue from Grandview avenue to the west corporation line by constructing sidewalks, being five bonds of $1,000, each, one bond of $200, one bond of $300, and one bond of $350."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the council and other officers of the village of Grandview Heights relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds when properly drawn and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of the village of Grandview Heights.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY BELMONT COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 22, 1916.

Indutrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Belmont county, Ohio, in the sum of $20,000 for the purpose of purchasing and equipping an experiment farm, being twenty bonds of one thousand dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the county commissioners and other officers of Belmont county relative to the above bond issue, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that Belmont county, by virtue of the proceedings set forth in the transcript, is authorized to issue bonds in the amount and for the purpose indicated, and that said bonds, when properly drawn and executed, will constitute valid and binding obligations of Belmont county. As no bond form has as yet been submitted for my consideration, I suggest that I have an opportunity to examine them before they are finally accepted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JUSTICE OF PEACE, POLICE JUDGES AND MAYORS—FEES OF CONSTABLES, CHIEF OF POLICE, MARSHAL OR OTHER OFFICER UNDER SECTION 13426 G. C. REFER TO ALL CLASSES OF CASES ENUMERATED IN SECTION 13423 G. C.—IF OTHER SERVICES BESIDES MAKING ARRESTS AND SUBPOENAING WITNESSES ARE REQUIRED OF OFFICERS MENTIONED IN SECTION 13436 G. C. THEY ARE ENTITLED TO ADDITIONAL FEES.

1. Section 13436 G. C. refers to all the classes of cases enumerated in section 13423 G. C. wherein imprisonment is a part of the punishment.

2. If other services besides making arrests and subpoenaing witnesses are required of officers mentioned in section 13436 G. C. they are entitled to fees for such additional service.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 22, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of September 18, 1916, to the following effect:

"Kindly give us your opinion on the following propositions at an early date:

"1st. Does section 13436 G. C. refer to all the classes of cases enumerated in section 13423 or only to those originally mentioned in section 3718a R. S.?

"2nd. If other services besides making arrests and subpoenaing witnesses should be required of the officers mentioned in section 13436 G. C., are they entitled to fees for such additional service?"

Section 3718a of the Revised Statutes gave final jurisdiction to a justice of the peace, police judge or mayor of any city or village in certain offenses designated therein. When the statutory law of Ohio was codified by the codifying commission in 1910 the jurisdiction provided for in section 3718a R. S. was united with other jurisdictions, and the combination of such jurisdiction was enacted in section 13423 of the General Code. The provisions of section 13436 G. C.—which was prior to codification a part of section 3718a R. S.—were separated from said section and enacted as a general provision of law under section 13432 et seq. G. C.

A comparison of the provisions of section 13423 G. C. with the provisions of section 3718a R. S., so far as final jurisdiction is concerned, will disclose that there are many matters contained in section 13423 that were not contained in section 3718a R. S. An examination of said section will also disclose that it has since been amended in 103 O. L. 539. Section 13423 as it now exists sets forth the final jurisdiction of justices of the peace, police judges and mayors of cities and villages in the cases mentioned.

Section 13432 G. C. is general in its application and provides as follows:

"In prosecutions before a justice, police judge or mayor, when imprisonment is a part of the punishment, if a trial by jury is not waived, the magistrate, not less than three days nor more than five days before the time fixed for trial, shall certify to the clerk of the court of common pleas of the county that such prosecution is pending before him."

Section 13436 G. C., which is contained under the same chapter as section 13432 G. C., provides as follows:

"In pursuing or arresting a defendant and in subpoenaing the witnesses in such prosecutions, the constable, chief of police, marshal or other court officer shall have like jurisdiction and power as the sheriff in criminal cases in the common pleas court, and he shall receive like fees therefor."

The words "in such prosecutions," as found in section 13436 G. C. undoubtedly apply to the prosecutions mentioned in section 13432 G. C. I therefore advise, in answer to your first question, that section 13436 G. C. refers to all the classes of cases enumerated in section 13423 G. C.

Coming now to a consideration of the second question submitted:

Section 13436 G. C. provides that in prosecutions wherein imprisonment is a part of the punishment and in which final jurisdiction is granted, the constable, etc., in pursuing or arresting a defendant or subpoenaing witnesses "shall have like jurisdiction and power as the sheriff in criminal cases in the common pleas court, and he shall receive like fees therefor."

As I view the provisions of this section of the statutes it prescribes solely what the fees for pursuing or arresting a defendant or subpoenaing witnesses shall be. It does not limit in any way the payment of any other fees.

I am therefore, of the opinion, in answer to your second question, that if other services besides pursuing or arresting a defendant or subpoenaing witnesss are required of the officers mentioned they would be entitled to the fees prescribed in other sections of the statutes for such services by such officers.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

CORPORATION—TAX ON INCREASE OF CAPITAL STOCK—EXEMPTION OF SECTION 5519 G. C. NOT APPLICABLE TO INCREASE OF ISSUED AND OUTSTANDING CAPITAL STOCK AS A PART OR ALL OF THE INCREASE IN AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK OF CORPORTION MADE WITHIN SIX MONTHS PERIOD PRESCRIBED BY SAID SECTION—WHERE ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION FILED AND ORGANIZATION EFFECTED PRIOR TO SIX MONTHS PERIOD.

The exemption provision of section 5519 G. C. is not applicable to the increase of issued and outstanding capital stock as a part or all of the increase in the authorized capital stock of a corporation made within the six months period prescribed by said section, where the articles of incorporation of said corporation were filed and its organization effected prior to said six months period.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 23, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of September 7, 1916, is as follows:

"The commission respectfully requests that you furnish it your written opinion upon the following question:

"The National-Acme Manufacturing Company, a corporation organized under the laws of Ohio with its principal office at Cleveland, Ohio, on the 29th day of February, 1916, increased its authorized capital stock from $2,500,000 to $9,000,000—the original $2,500,000 of stock had been subscribed and issued. On the first day of May, 1916, the company made its report to this commission showing that its authorized capital stock was $9,000,000 and that the amount of its subscribed, issued and outstanding stock was $6,500,000. The commission certified to the auditor of state the item of $6,500,000 and the company was charged upon the duplicate in the hands of the treasurer with 3/20 of one per cent upon that amount. The company now makes application to the commission for review and correction of its finding that the amount upon which it is required to pay taxes for the year 1916 is $6,500,000, claiming in its application that the amount of the increase of its capital stock over and above $2,500,000 is not subject to the franchise tax for the year 1916 by reason of the exemption provided for in section 5519 of the General Code. The company also refers to an opinion of the attorney general under date of February 5, 1903 (Volume 5, page 865).

"Since the creation of the tax commission, its ruling has been contrary to the opinion of the attorney-general above cited. It has been the uniform practice of the commission to charge corporations with the increased amount of capital stock regardless of whether it was increased within six months prior to the making of the report or not.

"Please advise the commission as to your interpretation of the law in this and in similar cases.

"If it is in accordance with your practice, Mr. W. E. Guerin, Jr., of Cleveland, attorney for the above named company, desires to submit to you his views in this matter."

I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. Guerin, of counsel for the above mentioned company, under date of September 11th, enclosing memorandum in support of the application filed with your commission by said company under authority of section 5504 G. C. Reference will hereafter be made to the argument presented in said memorandum by Mr. Guerin in support of his contention that the amount of the increase of the issued and outstanding capital stock of said company over and above the original issue of $2,500,000, which increase was made within the six months next preceding May 1, 1916, is not subject to the franchise tax for said year.

From your statement of facts it appears that The National Acme Manufacturing Company is a domestic corporation. The annual report, referred to in your letter, was filed with your commission by said company on May 1, 1916, pursuant to the requirement of section 5495 G. C., which provides:

"Between the first day of May and the first day of July, 1911, and annually thereafter during the month of May, each corporation, organized under the laws of this state, for profit, shall make a report, in writing, to the commission, in such form as the commission may prescribe."

Section 5497 G. C. provides:

"Such report shall contain * * *

"5. The amount of authorized capital stock and the par value of each share.

"6. The amount of capital stock subscribed, the amount of capital stock issued and outstanding, and the amount of capital stock paid up.

"8. The change or changes, if any, in the above particulars, made since the last annual report."

As stated by you the report of the aforesaid company shows that on May 1, 1916, the aforesaid company had an authorized capital stock of $9,000,000; that on said date the subscribed, issued and outstanding capital stock of said company was $6,500,000 and that on February 29, 1916, said company had increased its authorized capital stock from $2,500,000 to $9,000,000.

Section 5498 G. C. provides:

"Upon the filing of the report provided for in the last three preceding sections, the commission, after finding such report to be correct, shall, on the first Monday of July, determine the amount of the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of each such corporation. On the first Monday in August, the commission shall certify the amount so determined by it to the auditor of state, who shall charge for collection, on or before August fifteenth, as herein provided, from such corporation, a fee of three-twentieths of one per cent. upon its subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock, which fee shall be payable to the treasurer of state on or before the first day of the following October."

In view of the foregoing it is evident that in certifying to the auditor of state the $6,500,000 of the capital stock of said company as subscribed, issued and outstanding, your commission complied with the requirement of section 5498 G. C., supra, and it became the duty of the state auditor to charge against said company on the duplicate in the hands of the state treasurer the fee of three-twentieths of one per cent. as prescribed by said section, on or before August 15, 1916, unless it can be said that said company comes under favor of section 5519 G. C. in so far as the $4,000,000, representing the increase in the issued and outstanding capital stock, is concerned.

Section 5519 G. C. provides:

"A corporation shall not be required to file its first annual report under sections one hundred and six to one hundred and fifteen, (G. C. 5495 to 5504) inclusive, of this act, until the proper month, hereinbefore provided, for the filing of such report, next following the expiration of six months from the date of its incorporation or admission to do business in this state."

It will be observed that under the above provisions of section 5519 G. C. a corporation organized under the laws of this state, which was incorporated within the six months next preceding May 1, 1916, was not required to file for said year the annual report provided for in section 5495 G. C. et seq. of the General Code. Can it be said that this exemption applies to the increase of issued and outstanding capital stock as a part or all of the increase in the authorized capital stock of a company made within said six months period, where the articles of incorporation of said company were filed and its organization effected, as in the case under consideration, prior to said six months period? Mr. Guerin contends that this question must be answered in the affirmative and the memorandum hereinbefore referred to is submitted in support of this contention.

In said memorandum attention is first called to the cases of Emmerman v. Specialty Company, 14 O. F. D. 289, and Bank v. Altman, 14 O. F. D. 298, in which it was held that the fee or tax in question is for the privilege of exercising the corporate franchise for the ensuing and not for the preceding year.

The opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Wade H. Ellis (Attorney General's Reports 1904-1905, pages 69, 70), is cited in which it was held that the tax is for the whole year and that the statute does not provide for fractional parts of a year nor permit the return of a part of the fee where a corporation discontinues business during the year. This opinion was rendered to the then secretary of state under date of July 19, 1904, and was an interpretation of the latter part of section 1 of the so-called Willis law as originally enacted in 95 O. L. 124, requiring corporations to file annual reports with the secretary of state and to pay annual fees therefor, said part of said section providing that:

> "Upon the filing of such report, the secretary of state shall charge and collect from such corporation a fee of one-tenth of one per cent. upon the subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock of said corporation, to be not less than ten dollars in any case."

As stated by Mr. Guerin the act as originally introduced in the general assembly provided an annual tax of one-tenth of one per cent. on the amount of authorized capital stock of a domestic corporation. But before the bill was finally passed it was amended so as to provide a tax upon the subscribed, or issued and outstanding capital stock of such corporation and was further amended by the insertion of the exemption clause which now appears in section 5519 G. C. By subsequent amendment the per centum of the tax was increased to three-twentieths of one per cent. and the statute now requires said annual report to be filed with the state tax commission instead of the secretary of state (see section 5495 G. C.).

In view of these facts it is argued by Mr. Guerin that the apparent intention of the general assembly was to permit domestic corporations incorporated within said six months period to escape the payment of this tax for the reason that in filing its articles of incorporation it had paid to the state the exact fee required by law for the purpose of exercising its corporate function within the state; that at the next period after said six months period it was required to file its report under the law as all other domestic corporations, but it was intended that each domestic corporation, new and old, should only be required to pay this tax or fee once in each year and that the purpose of the provisions of section 5519 G. C. is not only to encourage the incorporation of new companies, but to equalize the levying of the tax upon old and new corporations alike.

I am unable to concur in this reasoning. The fee of one-tenth of one per cent. required by the state to be paid at the time of the filing of articles of incorporation (section 176 G. C.) is not a fee for the privilege of exercising the corporate franchise and is not to be considered as taking the place of the annual tax, required by provision of section 5498 G. C., of a corporation for the exercise of such franchise during the first year of its corporate existence or any part of such year. Mr. Guerin observes that the exemption clause in section 5519 G. C., supra, refers to the "date of incorporation" and does not use the words "articles of incorporation." He contends that the term "incorporation" as used in said section is broad enough to include an increase of capital stock as well as the original filing of articles of incorporation.

I have already held in opinion No. 585 of this department rendered to your commission on July 3, 1915, that, within the meaning of section 5519 G. C., the date of incorporation is the date upon which the certificate is filed in the office of the secretary of state showing that ten per cent. of the capital stock of the corporation has been subscribed, and inasmuch as said section limits the exemption to the filing of the first annual report, it seems clear to my mind that the term "incorporation" cannot be said to comprehend proceedings for the increase of the capital stock of a corporation already organized. The provisions of the statutes as found in section 8625 et seq. of the General Code, governing incorporation proceedings, are separate and distinct from the provisions of section 8698 et seq. of the General Code authorizing the increase of capital stock of a corporation and prescribing the proceedings relative thereto.

Mr. Guerin calls attention to a later opinion of my predecessor, Mr. Ellis, (Attorney General's Report 1908-9, p. 83) in which it was held that where a corporation resulting from the proper and legal consolidation of two or more corporations in this state, filed its certificate of consolidation with the secretary of state during April, 1898, said corporation was not required to make an annual report and pay the annual franchise tax for said year. In support of this conclusion Mr. Ellis cited the case of Ashley v. Ryan, 49 O. S. 504, affirmed 153 U. S. 436, the court holding in this case that the effect of the consolidation is to form a new company by the extinguishment of the old ones.

In view of this holding it is argued that an old corporation desiring to employ new capital in its business might in any year form a subsidiary corporation within said exemption period and then consolidate itself with said subsidiary corporation by filing a certificate of consolidation with the secretary of state and in this way avoid the payment of the franchise tax for said year on the increase of issued and outstanding capital stock.

I do not think the holding in the opinion above referred to supports this contention. I am of the opinion that such an evasion could not operate to defeat the foregoing requirements of the statutes governing the filing of the annual report and the charging of the franchise tax. It is sufficient to observe, however, that the validity of such proceeding is not under consideration in determining the answer to your question.

It is further contended that if the corporation in question is liable for the tax on said increase of issued and outstanding capital stock for the year 1916 by virtue of the provisions of the statutes above quoted, said statutes are in conflict with the constitutional requirement of uniformity. In other words, Mr. Guerin contends that this construction gives to a new corporation filing its articles of incorporation within said six months period an unfair advantage and places on the corporation in question an unjust burden of taxation which is prohibited by said constitutional requirement.

In view of what has already been said relative to the fee required by the statute to be paid at the time of filing of articles of incorporation and it being conceded that parts of a fractional year are not to be recognized for the purpose of determining said franchise tax and collecting the same, I do not think it can be said that any greater burden results to The National Acme Manufacturing Company from the aforesaid construction of the statute than that borne by any other domestic corporation organized prior to the six months period hereinbefore referred to. In exacting from said corporation the tax on all of its issued and outstanding stock on May 1, 1916, the statute operates the same on said corporation as on every other domestic corporation of the same class, i. e., those organized prior to said six months period. The error of Mr. Guerin is in assuming that the corporation in question belongs to the class of new corporations which were incorporated during said six months period.

In view of the foregoing, I am unable to concur in the opinion of my predecessor, Hon. J. M. Sheets, referred to in your inquiry, rendered to the secretary of state, under date of February 5, 1903, in which it was held that the Willis law does not exact an annual fee on increased capital stock of a corporation within six months from the time the increase was effected. The conclusion of Mr. Sheets is based on the mere statement that:

"There would seem to be no more reason for exacting the annual tax on the increase of capital stock within six months from the time the increase was effected, and the initial tax paid, than to exact the annual tax on the subscribed stock of a company within six months from the time of its organization or admission into the state and the payment of the initial fee or tax of one-tenth of one per cent."

As I view it, Mr. Sheets, in making this statement, committed the same error relative to the purpose of the intial fee required at the time of filing articles of incorporation and in respect to the class in which the corporation, organized prior to the six months period in question and increasing its capital stock within said six months period, must be placed, as that committed by Mr. Guerin in the respects hereinbefore set forth.

I am of the opinion therefore in answer to your question that your commission properly charged the tax prescribed by section 5498 G. C., supra, against all of the capital stock of The National Acme Manufacturing Company, subscribed, issued and outstanding on May 1, 1916, including the $4,000,000 of the increase in said capital stock referred to in your inquiry. This ruling will, of course, apply to similar cases where increases of capital stock are made in any year within said six months period.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS CANNOT SUBMIT QUESTION OF BOND ISSUE TO ELECTORS UNDER SECTION 9904 G. C. UNLESS SECTION 9901 G. C. IS COMPLIED WITH —NEW SITE MUST BE SELECTED FOR SAID PURPOSE AND NOTICE MUST BE GIVEN TO COMMISSIONERS.

Before the commissioners of a county can submit to the qualified electors of such county the question of issuing bonds under section 9904 G. C. the county agricultural society must comply with the requirement of section 9901 G. C., i. e., must select or secure an option to purchase or lease a new site for holding county fairs and must give to said county commissioners the notice provided for in said section, containing the information therein prescribed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 23, 1916.

HON. JOHN E. BETTS, Prosecuting Attorney, Findlay, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of September 15th is as follows:

"Sections 9900-04 provide the method of selling and procuring grounds for use of agricultural societies. There are grounds in this county for that purpose, and my information is the county has paid the entire costs therefor.

The agricultural society has notified the commissioners as provided by section 9900, that the present grounds are insufficient and unfit, etc., for the purposes of the society; that it is desired to purchase a new site; a certified copy of the resolution of the directors of the agricultural society was attached to the notice. The notice further reads: 'further we would say that we do not recommend any particular site, leaving that question for further determination." This notice is dated September 6th, and has been served on the commissioners since that time, requesting that an election be ordered by the commissioners, authorizing thirty-five thousand dollars bonds for the purpose of purchasing a new site.

"It is apparent to me that a new site may be purchased before the old one is disposed of, and by section 9902, but whether or not an election can properly be authorized by the commissioners for the issuance of bonds to purchase a new site, without a new site having been selected or held under option, as provided by section 9901, is not clear. There is some indication in the kindred sections that such may be done, and also I think a stronger indication that it may not be done until a new site is selected and a definite amount designated to pay for the same, in order that a sum certain, and an amount necessary for the purpose may be provided for in the resolution authorizing the election.

"As it is desired to have this question submitted to the voters of this county, at the coming election, and as it is a matter of public interest here, I think it my duty to first obtain your opinion as to whether or not the commissioners are authorized by law to pass a resolution providing for an election, for the purpose of issuing bonds to purchase a new site, without a new site having been selected or an option obtained therefor."

Section 9900 G. C. provides:

"When a county society desires to sell its site in order to purchase another, or if for any reason such site is unfit or insufficient for the purposes for which it is used, and at a regular meeting, by a vote of at least a majority of all the members of its board of directors, upon a call of the yeas and nays, it adopts a resolution for the purpose of securing the benefits hereof and declaring a desire to sell such site in order to buy another, or that the site has become unfit or insufficient, and that it is for the best interests of the society and county that such site be sold or leased, and a new one bought or leased, the society may sell or lease such old site and buy or lease a new one for holding county fairs as hereinafter provided. But in cases where the county paid all or any portion of the purchase money for the site to be sold or leased, the written consent of the county commissioners shall first be given to such sale or lease. Within thirty days after its passage, such board of directors shall give notice in writing to the commissioners of such county of the adoption of such resolution declaring the necessity of selling or leasing such site and of buying or leasing a new site, which notice shall contain or have annexed thereto a certified copy of the resolution, signed by the president and secretary of the board of directors."

It appearing from your statement of facts that the cost of the grounds now used by your county agricultural society was paid by the county, it follows that by provision of the latter part of the statute above quoted the notice therein prescribed and the securing of the written consent of your county commissioners are conditions precedent to the valid sale of said grounds.

Section 9901 G. C. provides:

"When such society has given notice to the commissioners as above provided, and has selected or secured options for the purchase or lease of a new site for holding county fairs in such county, its board of directors shall immediately give notice of all of such facts to the commissioners, which notice, if such old site is sold or leased before the purchase or lease of the new one, shall state the amount for which it was sold or leased, also the amount of money necessary to acquire such new site, and the terms and conditions of the purchase or lease thereof, together with a full description of the tracts or parcels of land and improvements thereon, included therein. After the filing of such notices, the commissioners may complete and carry into effect any contract or contracts which such society made for the purchase or lease of the new site."

Section 9902 G. C. provides:

"Payment for the purchase or lease of the land included in such site, and the improvements thereon, may be made by the county commissioners from any unappropriated funds in the county treasury at the time it is to be made. If no such funds are then in the treasury, the commissioners may issue the bonds of the county for such amounts as are necessary for the purchase or lease of the land and the improvements thereon. But if such old site is sold or leased before the new site is purchased or leased, in making the payment such society first shall apply the moneys realized from the sale or lease to the purchase or lease of the new site. If the old site is sold or leased after the purchase or lease of the new site, the amounts realized from such sale or lease shall be placed to the credit of the sinking fund for the redempion of bonds issued as hereinafter provided. Such bonds shall bear not more than five per cent. interest per annum, payable semi-annually, not be sold at less than their par value, and shall be payable at such place, times, and in such denominations as the commissioners determine."

Section 9904 G. C. provides:

"Before issuing such bonds, the commissioners by resolution shall submit to the qualified electors of the county at the next general election for county officers held not less than thirty days after receiving from such agricultural society the notice provided for in section ninety-nine hundred, the question of issuing and selling such bonds, in amount and denomination as necessary for the purpose in view, and shall certify a copy of such resolution to the deputy state supervisors of elections of the county."

In view of the plain terms of the foregoing provisions of the statutes it seems clear to my mind that before the commissioners of your county can issue bonds under authority of said statutes for the purpose mentioned in your inquiry, your agricultural society must have selected or secured an option for the purchase of a new site, and said county commissioners must be notified of this fact, which notice, if the old site is sold before the purchase of the new one, must state the amount for which it was sold, also the amount of money necessary to acquire such new site and the terms and conditions of the purchase together with a full description of the tract or parcel of land and improvements thereon to be included in said purchase, all as required by section 9901 G. C.

Unless this information is given to the county commissioners they will have no means of knowing what the new site will cost and determining the amount of money that will have to be provided for by said bond issue. This determination should properly be made and the qualified electors of the county, to whom the question of issuing and selling such bonds in the amount and denomination necessary for the purpose hereinbefore mentioned, are entitled to this information.

I am of the opinion therefore in answer to your question that before your county commissioners can submit to the qualified electors of your county the question of issuing said bonds, your county agricultural society must comply with the requirement of section 9901 G. C., i. e., must select or secure an option to purchase a new site for holding county fairs and must give to said county commissioners the notice provided for in said section, containing the information therein prescribed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY HUDSON VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 26, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Hudson village school district in the sum of $2,500 issued under authority of a vote of the electors for the purpose of completing a partially constructed school building, being five bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education and other officers of Hudson village school district relative to the above bond issue, also the bond and coupon form, and I find the same regular and in conformity to the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds when executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of Hudson village school district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE BOARD OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS—WYANDOTTE BUILDING—BOARD REQUIRED TO FOLLOW PROVISIONS OF SECTION 2314 ET SEQ. G. C. IN CONTRACTS OVER THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS.

The state board of public buildings comes within the provisions of section 2314 et seq. G. C. which require in contracts over three thousand dollars advertisement and securing of bids.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 26, 1916.

State Board of Public Buildings, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of September 22, 1916, to the following effect:

"The state board of public buildings has requested me to secure an opinion from your department as to whether it is possible for the commission to make the needed changes in the Wyandotte building by force contract? It has been suggested to the board that they employ a contractor under a contract to make these changes of partitions, etc., for the different departments, bureaus and commissions of the state government, by giving the contracor ten per cent. premium of the total cost for his services in securing men and overseeing the work.

"The board would also like to have an opinion as to whether contracts which might in the aggregate amount to over $3,000, such as making all the repairs on the Wyandotte building, could be made without advertising and the necessity of securing bids? For instance, probably all the repair work would amount to more than $3,000, now would it be necessary, in order to do this work, that board advertise for bids and select the lowest and best bidder, or could the board secure a contractor under a force contract of ten per cent. and have him go ahead and make these changes?"

Your board was created by amended Senate Bill No. 304 passed May 27, 1915, and found in 106 Ohio laws at page 463.

Section 5 of said act authorizes the board, after it has decided upon the method and plan which will efficiently and economically house the offices, etc., upon and with the approval of the governor to do various things.

Subdivision 3 of section 5 authorizes the board:

"To purchase a suitable building or site contiguous to or conveniently near the state house grounds at the prevailing market price or value, on which to erect such building or buildings."

Under the provisions of this subdivision of section 5 your board has purchased what is known as the "Wyandotte" building referred to in your inquiry.

Under subdivision 1 of section 5 your board is authorized:

"To proceed with additions to or alterations in or repair of the state house, judiciary building, or other building or buildings which may be acquired for the use of the state."

Under subdivision 5 of said section your board is also authorized:

"To employ an architect or architects to prepare the necessary drawings and specifications, and supervise the construction of such additions, improvements, building or buildings, or both."

There is no provision in the law creating your board and defining its duties which, so far as repairs or additions to any building purchased by it are concerned, exempts such alterations or repairs from the provisions of section 2314 G. C. although under section 6 of the act creating your board it is provided that the state board of administration shall furnish to your board, so far as may be found practicable, such building materials, labor and service as may be necessary for the repair of or additions "to the state house or the judiciary building or for the construction and completion of any new building or buildings for which provision is made in this act."

Your inquiry is as to whether or not your board can employ a contractor to make changes and alterations in the Wyandotte building the contractor to be compensated for his own services by receiving an amount equal to ten per cent. of the amount paid out for such repair for material and labor.

Section 2314 G. C. provides as follows:

> "Before entering into contract for the erection, alteration or improvement of a state institution or building or addition thereto, excepting the penitentiary, or for the supply of materials therefor, the aggregate cost of which exceeds three thousand dollars, each officer, board or other authority by law charged with the supervision thereof, shall make or cause to be made the following: full and accurate plans, showing all necessary details of the work, with working plans suitable for the use of mechanics and other builders in such construction, so drawn and represented as to be plain and easily understood; accurate bills showing the exact amount of different kinds of material necessary to the construction to accompany such plans; full and complete specifications of the work to be performed, showing the manner and style required with such directions as will enable a competent mechanic or other builder to carry them out and afford bidders all needful information; a full and accurate estimate of each item of expense and of the aggregate cost thereof."

Under the provisions of section 2315 G. C. the plans, etc., required under section 2314 G. C. shall be submitted to the governor, auditor of state and secretary of state for approval; and under section 2316 G. C. publication of notice for sealed proposals for performing the work and furnishing the materials, etc., is provided for. The time of notice is provided in section 2317 G. C., and under section 2318 G. C. it is provided that "on the day named in the notice, such officer, board or other authority shall open the proposals and award the contract to the lowest bidder."

If I read your letter correctly the changes in the building to be made by way of partitions, etc., will amount to over three thousand dollars ($3,000), and such changes would undoubtedly constitute an alteration or at least an improvement in the building. Such being the fact, I am of the opinion that your board is without authority to proceed other than as provided in section 2314 G. C. and that consequently the method suggested in your letter cannot be followed but your board is required to proceed under the provisions of section 2314 et seq. of the General Code.

The method suggested is that your board employ a contractor under a contract to make the changes. The contract price would therefore be the amount necessary to pay for labor and material plus ten per cent., and is simply another method for arriving at the amount which would be due to the contractor under the contract. As you state in your letter the amount would be above three thousand dollars ($3,000), that method could not be followed.

Therefore, it will be necessary for you to do this work under the provisions of section 2314 et seq. of the General Code which requires advertising and competitive bidding, and upon receipt of the bids to award the contract to the lowest bidder unless under the provisions of section 2319 G. C. in the opinion of your board the acceptance of the lowest bid would not be for the best interests of the state, whereupon upon the written consent of the governor, auditor of state and secretary of state another bid received may be accepted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF SALEM-ALLIANCE ROAD IN COLUMBIANA COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 26, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of September 15, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolution relating to the improvement of section "J" of the Salem-Alliance road, Pet. No. 2197, I. C. H. No. 84, in Columbiana county.

I find this resolution to be in regular form and am therefore returning the same with my approval indorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—ANY DISTRICT BOARD MAY CONTRACT WITH BOARD OF ANOTHER DISTRICT FOR ADMISSION OF PUPILS INTO ANY SCHOOL IN ANOTHER DISTRICT.

A board of education of any district may contract with the board of another district for the admission of pupils into any school in another district.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 27, 1916.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS, Prosecuting Attorney, Elyria, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of September 19, 1916, is as follows:

"In Brownhelm township, Lorain county, the school authorities have closed three one-room schools and are transporting the pupils of two of these schools to the central building of the township. The pupils of the other closed school are being sent to schools of an adjacent township, located in Erie county, and transportation and tuition paid by the Brownhelm authorities.

"The school district from which pupils are sent to Vermillion, as above stated, is located in the northern part of the township, and through this school district runs the Lake Shore Electric Trolley line. Because of rumors that this condition would be changed and that the pupils now being sent to Vermillion would be obliged to attend the central building in Brownhelm, a petition signed by more than seventy per cent. of the electors requesting that the territory embracing the district containing the electric line, and from which district the pupils are now being sent to Vermillion, transferring this territory to the Vermillion schools has been prepared and filed. If this transfer is made it will reduce the school tax of the Brownhelm school board approximately $3,000.00.

"By the present arrangement the total cost of transportation and tuition of the pupils of the Vermillion school does not exceed $1,000.00; the less to Brownhelm township would therefore be about $2,000.00. The school authorities desire to know whether the present arrangements can be continued legally, in which event the petition will be amicably dismissed."

While it is not so stated in your communication it is learned upon investigation that "Vermillion" is located in Vermillion township in Erie county.

As I understand from your inquiry the board of education of Brownhelm township rural school district has arranged with the board of education having control of the schools of Vermillion for the admission of the pupils of a certain part of Brownhelm district to the Vermillion schools, as authorized by the provisions of section 7734 G. C., and you inquire if such arrangement may be legally continued.

Section 7734 G. C. provides as follows:

"The board of any district may contract with the board of another district for the admission of pupils into any school in such other district on terms agreed upon by such board. The expense so incurred shall be paid out of the school funds of the district sending such pupils."

I think your question is fully answered in the affirmative in opinion No. 1880 of this department, under date of August 26, 1916, addressed to Hon. John M. Markley, prosecuting attorney of Brown county, in which it is held that:

"The board of education of a township rural school district may contract with the board of education of another such school district for the admission of the pupils of the former into the schools of the latter school district and may compel pupils, subject to the compulsory attendance statute, to attend the schools, when properly assigned thereto, of the district so contracted with, if such pupils live within one and one-half miles of such school, or do not live nearer to another school, when the distance to the school to which they are assigned is more than one and one-half miles. If the pupil who is not subject to the compulsory attendance statute chooses to attend school, he may attend the school only to which he is assigned, unless he lives more than one and one-half miles therefrom, in which case such pupil may, under the provisions of said section 7735 G. C., attend any other nearer school in his district, or if there be none any other school in another district."

A copy of the above mentioned opinion is enclosed for your information and consideration.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE—RELATION OF T. P. RIDDLE WHO CONDUCTED CORN BOYS' TRIP FOR 1915 THAT OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR—BOARD ONLY AUTHORIZED TO PAY EXPENSES OF SECRETARY.

The relation of Mr. T. P. Riddle to the board of agriculture in conducting the corn boys' trip for 1915 was that of an independent contractor.

The board is only authorized to draw vouchers to pay for the expenses of the trip of the secretary of the board.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 28, 1916.

The Board of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of September 19, 1916, your board, through Mr. G. A. Stauffer, secretary, submitted for my opinion the following:

> "I respectfully request you to render me an opinion relative to the junior contest trip that was conducted in the year 1915, upon the following questions:
> "First. Did T. P. Riddle conduct that trip as an independent contractor, or was it conducted by him as the agent of the board of agriculture?
> "Second. On that trip were T. P. Riddle, Florence Jackson, his stenographer; R. W. Dunlap, secretary of the board of agriculture, and several members of the board. Is there any provision in the law authorizing the board to pay the expenses of the trips of the individuals above named?"

From the records contained in your department it appears that on August 25, 1915, your board employed Mr. Riddle until January 1, 1916, for services in connection with the junior contest work. On September 20, 1915, your board submitted for my consideration a plan of handling the 1915 corn boys' tour, which plan was suggested in a letter received by your board from Mr. Riddle, in which letter Mr. Riddle said:

> "I respectfully recommend the following plan for handling this year's tour. Secure some person, who is not an employe of the state, to agree to handle the financial end of the tour. Require of that person that he deliver a certain service at a certain cost. Require no accounting other than the delivery of that service at that cost. Protect the state by a bond. The service should equal the service of last year's tour and the cost should not be increased materially. I believe some public-spirited citizen, financially responsible, can be secured to assume this responsibility mainly for the honor involved. If such person cannot be secured, and it becomes necessary for me to handle it, I hope some arrangement can be made so that I shall be relieved from being responsible for everything except delivering a certain service at a certain cost. The question of the legality of handling the tour on such a plan should be determined."

On September 29, 1915, an opinion was rendered on said request, in which opinion I reached the following conclusion:

> "If the plan, as suggested above, in the judgment of said board offers any advantages over the old system, I know of no legal obstacle or objection to its adoption."

(See Opinions of Attorney-General for 1915, page 1834.)

On October 4, 1915, the chairman of the committee of your board on junior contest and club work submitted the following recommendation:

"We recommend that T. P. Riddle be allowed the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) for postage, to be used in advertising the coming 'corn boys' special trip' to Washington and other cities this fall."

And also the following:

"That we recommend further that Mr. T. P. Riddle, director of the 'boys' corn special trip' to Washington be required to report to Secretary Dunlap the names of such assistants as he may need in the management of that trip; also any musical bands that may be desired, and that Secretary Dunlap refer all such names to the committee on boys' and girls' contest work for their consideration before appointments are made."

both of which recommendations were accepted by the board.

On November 4, 1915, the following appears in the minutes of your board:

"Mr. T. P. Riddle appeared before the board regarding the coming trip of the Ohio corn boys to Washington and other cities, and requested that the board appoint some person who was not interested in the trip to handle the trip as he would rather be relieved, and also requested $1,100 in addition to $250 already given him to be used in paying for extra office help, postage and advertising the trip. This additional $1,100 to cover the entire cost to the state of the trip and to be used only in advertising the trip, extra help and postage."

At such meeting the chairman of the committee of your board on junior contest and club work recommended that Mr. Riddle have entire charge of the trip of the corn boys to Washington, which report, on motion duly seconded, was adopted, and it was resolved that Mr. Riddle be given entire charge of the corn boys' trip to Washington. Also on motion duly seconded, it was resolved that the sum of $1,100 in addition to $250 already granted be allowed Mr. Riddle to cover the entire cost to the state for the corn boys' trip to Washington, said sum to be expended on postage, advertising, extra help, etc., and to cover the entire cost to the state of this Washington trip.

At the meeting held on November 4, 1915, it appears that Mr. Riddle after submitting his proposition advised the board that he desired at his own expense to take certain newspaper men along on the trip, and it was stated to him at that time that none of the $1,100 which was granted to him at said meeting in addition to the $250 already granted, was to be used to pay for the trips of anybody, and was to cover all the costs the state was to have in the trip and to be used only for postage, advertising and paying for extra help, to which Mr. Riddle assented. Mr. Riddle further stated at said meeting that he was willing to render to the board an itemized account of what the $1,100 was spent for, and assured the board that it would be used for postage, advertising, extra help, etc.

It was then stated to him at that meeting that the amounts granted to him should cover everything, and that the board would expect Mr. Riddle to return all the money over and above what was expended by him, which Mr. Riddle agreed to do. It was only after this conversation between Mr. Riddle and the board that the committee recommended that Mr. Riddle have entire charge of the trip.

The fact that Mr. Riddle was employed to have charge as director of the junior contest from August 25, 1915, to January 1, 1916, would make it appear that Mr. Riddle was contracted with solely in the capacity of an employe of the state, and if so, of course would not be an independent contractor.

However, so far as the corn boys' trip proper is concerned it appears that Mr. Riddle wrote to the board recommending a plan for handling the tour wherein it was distinctly stated that the board should not require any accounting from the person handling the same other than the delivery of a certain service at a certain cost; that his plan was submitted to this department for an opinion as to its legality, and this department advised that it was legal; and furthermore on this basis Mr. Riddle entered into the negotiations with the board on November 4th wherein the matters considered are as hereinbefore set forth.

Taking into consideration the fact that your board submitted Mr. Riddle's plan for approval as to legality, and that it was distinctly stated at the meeting on November 4th that the state should be at no expense whatever save and except the sum of $1,350, which was granted to Mr. Riddle by way of preliminary expenses, leads me to believe, in spite of the entry of his employment to January 1, 1916, that so far as the conducting of the corn boys' trip was concerned he did so as an independent contractor. Otherwise, if Mr. Riddle were acting solely as an agent of the board, it seems to me there would have been no discussion relative to the liability of the board over and above the $1,350.

I therefore conclude, in view of the facts as above stated, that the matter of Mr. Riddle's employment by the board, so far as the actual conducting of the corn boys' trip is concerned, was that of an independent contractor and not as an employe of the board. That is to say, he was to furnish a certain service at a certain cost, and having done so would have performed the contract on his part to be performed.

Specifically answering your first question, therefore, I advise that Mr. Riddle conducted the corn boys' trip of 1915 as an independent contractor and not as the agent of the board of agriculture.

Your second question is as to the right of the board to pay the expenses of Mr. Riddle, Miss Florence Jackson, his stenographer, R. W. Dunlap as secretary of the board of agriculture, and several members of the board.

I understand that there was a resolution placed on the minutes of your board at some meeting authorizing said persons to take said trip. But the question then arises as to whether or not the attempted authorization by the board was legal. Mr. Riddle being an independent contractor required to furnish a certain service at a certain price, and his stenographer taken along to act as secretary, would not, as I view it, be entitled to their expenses from the state.

Section 1081 G. C. provides:

> "Each member of the state board of agriculture shall be paid his necessary expenses while engaged in the discharge of his official duties, but he shall receive no compensation for his services."

I do not find any provision in the law governing the duties of the members of the board of agriculture which could be construed to in any way authorize them to take at state expense a trip to Washington on the corn boys' tour. It may be since the secretary is given general powers that his expenses of the trip might properly be included as an expense to be paid for by the state for the reason that it was necessary that somebody should go along, on behalf of the board, to see that the contract made by Mr. Riddle with the board was properly carried out.

Answering your second question, therefore, I am of the opinion that the only expense referred to therein that is a proper expense to be borne by the state is the expense of the secretary of the board.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY DETENTION HOME—CONSTRUCTION OF SECTIONS 2434 AND 5638 G. C.—PURCHASE OF LAND AND ERECTION OF SUCH HOME—SECTION 1670 G. C. CONFERS NO AUTHORITY ON COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO CONSTRUCT OR ERECT DETENTION HOME—MAINTENANCE OF SUCH HOME AUTHORIZED BY SECTION 1671 G. C.—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS APPOINT PERSONS NECESSARY TO CARE FOR CHILDREN THEREIN WHERE COUNTIES HAVE POPULATION LESS THAN FORTY THOUSAND.

The county commissioners may not under authority of the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C. in any year make a tax levy, for any or all of the purposes therein named, which tax levy will continue over a number of years.

The power conferred by the first paragraph of section 2434 G. C. with a vote of the electors is subject to the fifteen mill limitation of section 5649-5*b G. C.,* 103 O. L., on the combined maximum rate in any year for all taxes and further limited to the amount approved by the vote of the electors for any of the purposes therein named.

The authority to borrow money and issue bonds under the first paragraph of section 2434 G. C. without a vote of the electors, for the purpose of purchasing a site and erecting, or acquiring a detention home is subject to the $15,000 limitation of section 5638 G. C. except where, upon the recommendation and advice of the judge referred to in the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C. in writing a levy of two-tenths of one mill to be applied exclusively to any one or more of the purposes mentioned in the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C., in a single year will produce an amount in excess of $15,000, in which case the amount so produced controls to the exclusion of the provisions of section 5638 G. C. Such authority is further subject to the three mill limitation of section 5649-3a for county purposes and to the ten mill limitation of section 5649-2 G. C., 103 O. L. 552, for all purposes.

The exemption of a tax levy for the purpose of purchasing land and erection of a detention home, from a vote of the electors under the provisions of the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C. operates in preference to and to the exclusion of the limitations of section 5638 G. C. on the expenditures for a detention home in those cases only in which the judge referred to in section 2434 G. C. advises and recommends, in writing, the purchase of land for and the erection of a detention home.

Section 1670 G. C., 103 O. L., 875, confers no authority on the county commissioners to construct or erect a detention home.

The expense of the maintenance of a detention home is required to be paid from the fund a levy for which is authorized by section 1671 G. C. after the funds produced by such levy are available.

In counties having a population of less than forty thousand the county commissioners shall employ or appoint persons necessary to the care of the children therein and the maintenance of the detention home.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 29, 1916.

Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of September 20, 1916, is as follows:

"This board, through its appointed officers, has been called into consultation in three counties in regard to the question of establishing a county detention home, as is authorized by section 1670 of the General Code (105 O. L. 875). Some of these counties are contemplating the submission of the question to popular vote at the November election. As the whole matter is coming before the board at its meeting on September 26, and in order that it may be able to declare a policy in regard to a number of matters, which are related to the establishment of such homes, we hereby submit to you, with the hope of an early opinion, the following proposition:

"1. May the commissioners under section 2434 of the General Code levy a tax for a series of years when the rate of two-tenths of one mill will not in one year produce an adequate amount for the purchase of land and the erection of a detention home?

"2. What limitation should govern the county commissioners in borrowing money, as authorized in the first paragraph of section 2434, for the erection of a detention home?

"3. Does the exemption from referendum vote in section 2434 take precedence over the limitations set forth in section 5638, the latter section having been amended more recently than the former?

"4. Does section 1670 in itself give the commissioners any authority to construct a detention home, except as in the manner described in the other sections mentioned above?

"5. Is it not the meaning of the last sentence of section 1671 that the expenses for maintenance of a detention home shall be included in the levy for 'the expenses of the court'?

"6. What legal authority is there for the appointment of caretakers and other necessary employes of a detention home in a county having a population less than 40,000 and who shall make such appointments, if allowable, the judge of the juvenile court or the county commissioners?

"As an example of one county's trouble the following data is submitted: It has a population of about 30,000 and a tax duplicate of $54,000,000. The commissioners desire to submit a vote on bond issue for $25,000 for a detention home. Two-tenths of one mill tax levy in one year will yield only $10,800."

Section 2433 G. C., 106 O. L. 423, confers upon county commissioners authority to purchase sites for certain public buildings therein enumerated, among which is a detention home.

Section 2434 G. C., to which you refer in your first, second and third inquiries, provides as follows:

"For the execution of the objects stated in the preceding section, or for the purpose of erecting or acquiring a building in memory of Ohio soldiers, or for a court house, county offices, jail, county infirmary, detention home, or additional land for an infirmary or county children's home or other necessary buildings or bridges, or for the purpose of enlarging, repairing, improving, or rebuilding thereof, or for the relief or support of the poor, the commissioners may borrow such sum or sums of money as they deem necessary, at a rate of interest not to exceed six per cent. per annum, and issue the bonds of the county to secure the payment of the principal and interest thereof.

"Provided, that if the judge designated to transact the business arising under the jurisdiction provided for in section 1639 of the General Code of the state of Ohio, shall advise and recommend in writing to the county commissioners of any county the purchase of land for and the erection of a place to be known as a detention home, or additional land for an infirmary or county children's home, the commissioners without first submitting the question to the vote of the county may levy a tax for either or both of such purposes in an amount not to exceed in any one year two-tenths of one mill for every dollar of taxable property on the tax duplicate of said county."

Section 1670 G. C., 103 O. L. 875, provides as follows:

"Upon the advice and recommendation of the judge exercising the jurisdiction provided herein, the county commissioners shall provide by purchase or lease a place to be known as a 'detention home' within a convenient distance of the court house, not used for the confinement of adult persons charged with criminal offenses, where delinquent, dependent or neglected minors under the age of eighteen years may be detained until final disposition, which place shall be maintained by the county as in other like cases. In counties having a population in excess of forty-thousand, the judge may appoint a superintendent and matron who shall have charge of said home, and of the delinquent, dependent and neglected minors detained therein. Such superintendent and matron shall be suitable and discreet persons, qualified as teachers of children. Such home shall be furnished in a comfortable manner as nearly as may be as a family home. So far as possible delinquent children shall be kept separate from dependent children in such home. The compensation of the superintendent and matron shall be fixed by the county commissioners. Such compensation and the expense of maintaining the home shall be paid from the county treasury upon the warrant of the county auditor, which shall be issued upon the itemized voucher, sworn to by the superintendent and certified by the judge. In all such homes the sexes shall be kept separate, so far as practicable."

Your first question involves a construction of the last paragraph and sentence of section 2434 G. C., supra. The language of this proviso of section 2434 G. C., relative to the authority of the county commissioners to levy a tax for the purposes therein mentioned without submitting to the vote of the county, is ambiguous and apparently susceptible of more than one interpretation. The language "in any one year" would seem to give foundation for argument at least that this provision contemplated a continuance of this levy for more than one year.

It will be observed that the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C., supra, is operative only upon the recommendation and advice of the judge designated to transact the business arising under the jurisdiction provided for in section 1639 G. C. in writing, that is to say such recommendation and advice is a condition precedent to the operation of the proviso in section 2434 G. C. in every case.

In view, however, of the purpose to which the tax referred to in this proviso is to be applied, I am of opinion that this provision contemplates the levying of a tax not in excess of two-tenths of one mill as therein provided for a single year. The answer to your first question is, therefore, in the negative.

It should not be overlooked that the levy of two-tenths of a mill in any one year may be made for any one or all of the purposes named in the proviso of section 2434 G. C., supra. If such levy is made for more than one of such purposes it may not exceed two-tenths of one mill in any one year. A levy for any one of the objects named in one year would not preclude the right to make a levy in a subsequent year for any or all of the other purposes mentioned therein under the proviso of section 2434 G. C.

All that is meant to be said in the above answer to the first question is that the proviso of section 2434 G. C. does not authorize the making in a single year a levy which will continue for a number of years subsequent to the first year for which it is made.

Your second question is in its terms limited to the first paragraph of section 2434 G. C., supra. The first paragraph of this section is a general grant of authority to borrow money for the purposes therein mentioned and to issue bonds to secure the payment thereof. The provisions of this paragraph comprehend the borrowing of money and issuance of bonds both with and without a vote of the electors of the county.

The authority to borrow money and issue bonds, pursuant to the authority here conferred upon the approval of a majority of the electors of the county, is subject only to the limitation of fifteen mills for the combined maximum rate for all taxes prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C., 103 O. L. 57, and to the further limitation to the amount approved by the vote of the electors.

The limitations of the power to borrow money and issue bonds for the purchase or erection of a detention home pursuant to section 2434 G. C., without a vote of the electors of the county, is somewhat more difficult to determine.

Under section 11 of Article XII of the Constitution of Ohio, no bonded indebtedness of any political subdivision of the state may be incurred unless provision is made in the legislation under which such indebtedness is incurred for levying and collecting a tax sufficient to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds at maturity.

By section 5649-1 G. C., 104 O. L. 12, it is provided that every taxing district shall, within the limits prescribed by law, levy a tax sufficient for interest and sinking fund purposes for all bonds issued by any political subdivision, which levy shall be placed before and in preference to all other items. Section 5649-3a G. C. provides that the maximum levy for all county purposes shall be three mills and section 5649-2 G. C., 103 O. L. 552, provides that, with certain exceptions, within which that under consideration does not fall, the aggregate amount of taxes that may be levied in any county, township, city, village, school district or other taxing district shall not in any one year exceed ten mills on each dollar of taxable property therein. So that any bonded indebtedness incurred, pursuant to said section 2434 G. C., without a vote of the electors of the county, will at all events be subject to the three mill limitation in any year for county purposes and the ten mill limitation in any year for all purposes above referred to.

Section 5638 G. C. must also be considered in connection with secion 2434 G. C. The former section provides as follows:

> "The county commissioners shall not levy a tax, appropriate money or issue bonds for the purpose of building county buildings, purchasing sites therefor, or for land for infirmary purposes, the expenses of which will exceed $15,000.00, except in case of casualty, and as hereinafter provided; or for building a county bridge, the expense of which will exceed $18,000.00 except in case of casualty, and as hereinafter provided; or enlarge, repair, improve, or rebuild a public county building, the entire cost of which expenditure will exceed $10,000.00; without first submitting to the voters of the county, the question as to the policy of making such expenditure."

This latter section was enacted in its present form May 31, 1911, 102 O. L. 447, but is not now materially different, so far as concerns the present consideration, from section 2825 R. S., 99 O. L. 456, which it superseded and which was in operation at the time of the enactment of section 2434 G. C., 102 O. L. 55, March 28, 1911.

Section 2434 G. C., which was, prior to its amendment in 102 O. L. 55, a part of section 871 R. S., contained no such proviso as that found in the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C. It seems manifest that the purpose of the amendment of section 2434 G. C. in this respect was to modify the provisions of section 5638 G. C., carried into the code from section 2825 R. S., supra, in so far as the same would otherwise have been applicable to the authority to levy taxes and appropriate money for a detention home or the purchase of additional land for infirmary or county children's home under section 2434 G. C.

Thus the proviso of section 2434 G. C. was plainly intended in its enactment as an exception to section 5638 G. C.

Section 5638 G. C., supra, is a general provision and limitation in its terms applicable to the levying of taxes, appropriation of money or issuance of bonds for the purpose of building county buildings, purchasing sites therefor or for land for infirmary purposes in every case, the expenses of which will exceed $15,000.00, except in case of casualty.

As above stated, the proviso of section 2434 G. C. is special in character and therefore operates as a further exception to section 5638 G. C., and under familiar rules of construction as to its subject matter will control to the exclusion of the general provision in so far as they may be found to conflict notwithstanding the later enactment of the general provisions of section 5638 G. C.

Fosdick v. Perrysburg, 14 O. S. 472;
Shunk v. Bank, 22 O. S. 508;
State v. Kelly, 25 O. S. 29;
State v. Newton, 26 O. S. 200;
State v. Board of public Works, 39 O. S. 629.

Applying to the proviso of section 2434 G. C., the maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius, it may be argued with much force that this provision operates to reduce in certain cases and to increase in others the $15,000.00 maximum expenditure, without a vote and is exclusive in every case. On the other hand, it may be said that the purpose of the special provision of section 2434 G. C. was only to authorize an expenditure for detention homes and land for infirmaries and children's homes in excess of $15,000.00, without a vote, when a levy not in excess of two-tenths of one mill for any one year would produce more than that amount. This latter theory was apparently adopted in an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, addressed to Hon. David F. Griffith, probate judge, under date of January 24, 1912, found at page 1041 of the report of the attorney-general for that year, in which it was held:

> "The county commissioners have authority under section 2434 General Code to purchase land to establish a detention home without the vote of the electors within the limitations of this section and also those of section 5638 General Code."

In the course of the above opinion, in discussing the above mentioned sections and their limitations on the power conferred by the first paragraph of section 2434 G. C., and stating the conclusion, it is said:

> "Stated in a word, whichever of those two limitations is the greater, governs."

This statement modifies to some extent the language of the syllabus of the opinion above quoted.

I therefore hold, in accordance with the opinion above referred to, that the power to borrow money and to issue bonds to secure the payment thereof conferred by the first paragraph of section 2434 G. C., supra, for the purpose of purchasing a site and erecting or acquiring a detention home without a vote of the electors of the county, is subject to the limitations following:

The $15,000.00 limitation of section 5638 G. C., except where, upon the recommendation and advice of the judge referred to in the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C. in writing, as therein provided, a levy of two-tenths of one mill to be applied exclusively to any purpose or purposes mentioned in the last paragraph of section 2434 G. C. in a single year will produce an amount in excess of that sum, in which case the amount produced by such levy controls to the exclusion of the limitation of section 5638 G. C. The levy for interest and sinking fund for such purpose is subject to the three mill limitation of section 5649-3a G. C. for county purposes and to the ten mill limitation of section 5649-2 G. C., 103 O. L. 552, for all purposes.

From the above answer to your second question it follows that the exemption of a tax levy from a vote of the electors under the provisions of the last paragraph of section 2434 operates in preference to and to the exclusion of the limitations of section 5638 G. C. on the expenditures for a detention home in those cases only in which the judge referred to in section 2434 G. C. advises and recommends in writing the purchase of land and erection of a detention home and to that extent only is the answer to your third question in the affirmative.

From an examination of section 1670 G. C., 103 O. L. 875, it will be readily disclosed that it confers no power or authority whatever to construct a detention home. In specific terms the authority conferred therein is limited to providing a place to be known as a "detention home" by purchase or lease.

In answer to your fourth question, I am of opinion that section 1670 G. C., supra, confers no authority to construct a detention home.

Section 1671 G. C., to which reference is made in your fifth question, provides as follows:

> "When such detention home is provided by the county commissioners, and upon such home being recommended by the judge, the commissioners shall enter an order on their journal transferring to the proper fund from any other fund or funds of the county, in their discretion, such sums as may be necessary to purchase or lease such home and properly furnish and conduct it and pay the compensation of the superintendent and matron. The commissioners shall likewise upon the appointment of probation officers, transfer to the proper fund from any other fund or funds of the county, in their discretion, such sums as may be necessary to pay them, and such transfers shall be made upon the authority of this chapter. At the next tax levying period, provision shall be made for the expenses of the court."

The last sentence of this section is indeed an awkward expression, but reading it with the remainder of the section and in view of the provision of the previous section, that detention homes "shall be maintained by the county as in other like cases," and being unable to find further provision for levying taxes for the maintenance of such home, I am of opinion that the answer to your fifth question must be in the affirmative.

Coming to consider your sixth question, I note that in an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. U. G. Denman, addressed to Hon. R. H. Patchin, prosecuting attorney, under date of November 29, 1910, found at page 701 of the report of the attorney-general for that year, it was held that in a county having a population of less than forty thousand, the county commissioners may, pursuant to sections 1670 and 1671 G. C., establish a detention home and provide, from time to time, as necessity warrants, the necessary persons to care for the same and to care for the children in said home, but that such county is without power to provide a superintendent and matron for such home.

In this opinion I fully concur, as above indicated, from reading the above mentioned sections together, in view of the purposes thereof.

By section 1670 G. C., supra, it is provided that a detention home established thereunder "shall be maintained by the county as in other like cases." It is difficult to point to a very like case. Both the infirmary and children's home have some similarity to a detention home and the county jail in some respects as well. No two of these are exactly similarly maintained. I am, however, of opinion, in consideration of the duty of maintenance being imposed upon the county commissioners, and in the absence of specific authority being conferred upon the judge of the juvenile court by statute, to appoint the persons necessary to the care of the children and maintenance of the home, that the authority to do so in counties having a population of less than forty thousand rests in the county commissioners.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—FORM OF NOTICE TO BE GIVEN UNDER SECTION 7204 G. C.—METHOD OF SERVING SAME—ENCROACHMENT BY OHIO ELECTRIC RAILWAY COMPANY ON NATIONAL ROAD—SEE OPINION NO. 1888, AUGUST 31, 1916.

Form of notice to be given under Section 7204 G. C. and method of serving such notice, with especial reference to the encroachment by The Ohio Electric Railway Company on the National road in Licking County.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 29, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your communication under date of September 7, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "I am in receipt of your opinion No. 1888, under date of August 31, dealing with the removal of the Ohio Electric Railway Company's property from the improved portion of the National road in Licking county.
> "The properties of the above named company which it is necessary to move in order to permit of the proper construction of the highway are all poles, wires, rails, ties and other appurtenances of the electric railway which is operated by the Ohio Electric Railway Company within the following described limits:
> "Beginning at the point where the east corporation line of the village of Kirkersville intersects the highway known as the National road in Licking county, said point being noted as station 343+20 on the plan for improving the National road. (The plan here referred to is the plan, now on file in the office of the state highway commissioner and the office of the commissioners of Licking county for improving the National road from the Franklin county line to the south fork of the Licking river, about one mile east of the village of Hebron, in Licking county. A print of this plan was furnished the Ohio Electric Railway Company through their chief engineer, Mr. J. H. Sundmaker, about the first of September, 1915.) Thence following in an easterly direction along the National road a distance of 2.16 miles to the concrete arch bridge of the Ohio Electric Railway Company over Licking Creek.

"The east line of said bridge is at station 229+30 as shown on the road plan referred to above.

"Within these limits the north end of the ties of the railway track are now distant from the center of the highway from 11 to 15 feet and the poles supporting the power line and trolley wire for the track are distant from the center of the highway from 7 to 11 feet.

"The line outside of which the ties, rails, poles and other appurtenances of the Ohio Electric Railway Company must be moved, in order to permit of the proper completion of the improvement, is a line parallel with the center line of the highway and 20 feet to the south thereof.

"A print of the proposed improvement, showing the present position of the road, poles, track, etc., will be prepared to accompany your notice to the Ohio Electric Railway Company if you so desire."

The order which you should prepare and serve upon the Ohio Electric Railway Company should be drawn in the following form:

"OFFICE OF THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER OF THE STATE OF OHIO.

"Columbus, Ohio,----------, 1916.

"To The Ohio Electric Railway Company:

"You are hereby notified that your poles, wires, rails, ties and other appurtenances as now located within the bounds of the following described public highway, towit:

"Beginning at the point where the east corporation line of the village of Kirkersville intersects the public highway known as the National road, in Licking county, Ohio, which point is noted as station 343 plus 20 on a plan for improving said public highway, which plan is on file in the office of the state highway commissioner of the State of Ohio and in the office of the county commissioners of Licking county, Ohio; thence following in an easterly direction along said National road a distance of 2.16 miles to the concrete arch bridge of The Ohio Electric Railway Company over Licking creek, the east line of said bridge being at station 229 plus 30 as shown on the road plan referred to above; constitute an obstruction in said public highway.

"You are therefore ordered to relocate your poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances upon said public highway above described, and place said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances to the south of a line parallel with the center line of said highway and twenty (20) feet to the south thereof.

"You are required to proceed within five days after the receipt of this notice to re-locate said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances upon said public highway above described in the manner above indicated and to complete said work of re-location within a reasonable time.

"A print showing the present position of the road, poles and tracks, the center line of said public highway and the line parallel with said center line and twenty (20) feet to the south thereof is hereto attached.

"Respectfully,

"----------

"State Highway Commissioner of the State of Ohio."

As to the method of serving this order and making a record of your action, I suggest that you prepare and sign duplicate copies of the order and then through a representative of your department serve one of the copies upon the president of The Ohio Electric Railway Company, if he be found in the state, but if he be not found in the state that service be made upon the highest officer of the company found at its principal office.

The representative of your department making the service should then indorse upon the other copy of the notice the date of service and the name and official position of the person served, and if service be not made on the president of the company the indorsement should further state that the president was not found within the state and that the person served was the highest officer of the company found in charge of its principal office. The indorsement should further show that personal service was made and should be signed and sworn to by the person serving the notice. The copy of notice should then be placed on your files.

As pointed out in opinion No. 1888 of this department, referred to by you, your department is the proper authority to make an order for the re-location of the tracks of the company, in view of the fact that this highway is being improved by the state.

I understand, however, that Licking county is contributing the sum of $11,620.00 toward this improvement, all of said sum being applied toward the construction of drainage structures, and in view of this fact and in view of the provisions of section 161 of the Cass Highway law, section 7204 G. C., which section is quoted in full in opinion No. 1888, I recommend that in order to avoid all future question as to proper notice, the cooperation of the county authorities of Licking county be invited in the premises and that if it is possible to secure such cooperation the county officials be requested to take the action pointed out by the first paragraph of section 7204 G. C. This action would involve a notification or report to the county commissioners by the county highway superintendent and a notice by the county commissioners to The Ohio Electric Railway Company.

I understand that the county highway superintendent of Licking county shares your views in reference to the nature of the obstructions maintained by the company, and the fact that the commissioners have already made a written request upon the company indicates that their cooperation may be secured.

I am not advised as to the character of the written request previously made by the commissioners upon the company or as to the method of service, and if the further assistance of the county officials of Licking county may be secured would suggest that the county highway superintendent of that county make a written report to the county commissioners in the following form:

"OFFICE OF THE COUNTY HIGHWAY SUPERINTENDENT OF LICKING COUNTY, OHIO.

"Newark, Ohio,----------, 1916.

"To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Licking County, Ohio:

"You are hereby notified that The Ohio Electric Railway Company has obstructed and is obstructing with its poles, wires, rails, ties and other appurtenances, as now located, the following described public highway, towit:

"Beginning at the point where the east corporation line of the village of Kirkersville intersects the public highway known as the National road in Licking county, Ohio, which point is noted as station 343 plus 20 on a plan for improving said public highway, which plan is on file in the office of the state highway commissioner of the state of Ohio and in the office of the county commissioners of Licking county, Ohio; thence following in an easterly direction along said National road a distance of 2.16 miles to the concrete arch bridge of The Ohio Electric Railway Company over Licking creek, the east line of said bridge being at station 229 plus 30 as shown on the road plan referred to above.

"In order that said obstruction may be removed from said highway, it will be necessary for said The Ohio Electric Railway Company to relocate its said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances upon said public highway and place the same to the south of a line parallel with the center line of said highway and twenty (20) feet to the south thereof.

"Respectfully submitted,

"----------

"County Highway Superintendent of Licking County, Ohio."

Upon receipt of this notice the county commissioners should order the same spread upon their minutes and should thereupon adopt and place upon their journal a resolution in the following form:

"RESOLUTION.

"WHEREAS, The board of county commissioners of Licking county, Ohio, has been notified by the county highway superintendent of Licking county, Ohio, that The Ohio Electric Railway Company has obstructed and is obstructing, with its poles, wires, rails, ties and other appurtenances as now located, the following described public highway, towit:

"Beginning at the point where the east corporation line of the village of Kirkersville intersects the public highway known as the National road in Licking county, Ohio, which point is noted as station 343 plus 20 on a plan for improving said public highway, which plan is on file in the office of the state highway commissioner of the State of Ohio and in the office of the county commissioners of Licking county, Ohio; thence following in an easterly direction along the said National road a distance of 2.16 miles to the concrete arch bridge of The Ohio Electric Railway Company over Licking creek, the east line of said bridge being at station 229 plus 30 as shown on the road plan referred to above: and

"WHEREAS, Said county highway superintendent has notified this board that in order for said The Ohio Electric Railway Company to remove said obstructions, it will be necessary for said company to re-locate its said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances upon said public highway above described, and place the same to the south of a line parallel with the center line of said highway and twenty (20) feet to the south thereof.

"NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the board of county commissioners of Licking county, Ohio, that the following notice be served upon said The Ohio Electric Railway Company:

"OFFICE OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF LICKING COUNTY, OHIO.

"Newark, Ohio, ----------, 1916.

"To The Ohio Electric Railway Company:

"Your are hereby notified that you are obstructing with your poles, wires, rails, ties and other appurtenances, as now located, the following described public highway, towit:

"Beginning at the point where the east corporation line of the village of Kirkersville intersects the public highway known as the National road in Licking county, Ohio, which point is noted as station 343 plus 20 on a plan for improving said public highway, which plan is one file in the office of the state highway commissioner of the state of Ohio and in the office of the county commissioners of Licking county, Ohio; thence following in an easterly direction along said National road a distance of 2.16 miles to the concrete arch bridge of The Ohio Electric Railway Company over Licking creek, the east line of said bridge being at station 229 plus 30, as shown on road plan referred to above.

"You are therefore ordered to remove your said poles, wires, rails, ties and other appurtenances, as now located within the bounds of said public highway above described, and to re-locate said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances upon said public highway and place said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances to the south of a line parallel with the center line of said highway and twenty (20) feet to the south thereof.

"You are required to proceed within five days after the receipt of this notice to re-locate said poles, wires, rails, ties and all other appurtenances upon said public highway above described in the manner above indicated and to complete said work of re-location within a reasonable time.

"A print showing the present position of the road, poles and tracks, the center line of said public highway and the line parallel with said center line and twenty (20) feet to the south thereof is hereto attached.

"Respectfully,

"_____

Clerk of the Board of County Commissioners of Licking County, Ohio.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the county highway superintendent of Licking county, Ohio, be directed to forthwith serve a copy of the notice above set forth upon said The Ohio Electric Railway Company."

Upon the passage of the above resolution by the county commissioners, a copy of the notice as therein set forth should be prepared and signed by the county commissioners and the county highway superintendent should thereupon serve the same upon the company in the same manner suggested for the service of the notice signed by you. The county highway superintendent should then report his action to the county commissioners, which report should be in writing and may be in the following form:

"OFFICE OF THE COUNTY HIGHWAY SUPERINTENDENT OF LICKING COUNTY, OHIO.

Newark, Ohio,_____, 1916.

"To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Licking County, Ohio:

"In compliance with your order contained in a resolution passed by you on the_____day of_____, 19____, I served upon the

The Ohio Electric Railway Company a copy of the notice set forth in said resolution by (here set forth the manner of service.)

"_____

"County Highway Superintendent of Licking County, Ohio."

This written report should be verified by the affidavit of the county highway superintendent and presented to the county commissioners and they should spread the same upon their minutes, in order that a record of the service of the notice may be preserved.

If the cooperation of the county officials may be had in this matter, I suggest that the service of the notice to be given by you be deferred until the county highway superintendent and the county commissioners have taken the necessary preliminary steps and the county highway superintendent is ready to serve the notice signed by the county commissioners. The representative of your department designated by you to serve the notice signed by you and the county highway superintendent may then deliver to the president or other officer of The Ohio Electric Railway Company the notices from the state and county authorities at the same time.

If the company fails to act in the premises after being notified in the manner herein pointed out, I will take the necessary action, upon being advised by you of that fact.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—BONDS SOLD UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 6929 G. C.—PROCEEDS IN COUNTY TREASURY—COMMISSIONERS NOT AUTHORIZED TO ADVANCE SUCH PROCEEDS TO TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES—EVEN UPON AGREEMENT TO LATER REIMBURSE COUNTY.

When bonds have been sold under authority of Section 6929 G. C. and the proceeds have come into the county treasury, the county commissioners are not authorized to advance such proceeds to township trustees, even upon an agreement to later reimburse the county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 29, 1916.

HON. E. A. SCOTT, Prosecuting Attorney, West Union, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion under date of September 20, 1916, received at this office on September 27, 1916, reads as follows:

"A levy of three mills has been made on the property of Green township, Adams county, Ohio, under section 6927 for road purposes and to be paid by township.

"The money available from this levy will not be ready for use until March and September of next year or 1917. Can or can not the county commissioners borrow the township's proportion for said township and advance same to township trustees and then later let township trustees reimberse said county? Has your department rendered an opinion on this question? I am aware that the statute says that bonds can be issued for such purposes."

Section 6927 G. C., being section 106 of the Cass law (106 O. L. 603), reads as follows:

"For the purpose of providing by taxation a fund for the payment of the proportion of the costs and expenses of such improvement to be paid by the township or townships interested, in which such road may be in whole or in part situated, the county commissioners are hereby authorized to levy a tax not exceeding three mills in any one year upon all the taxable property of such township or townships. Such levy shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for road purposes, but subject to the limitation on the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force."

This section is a part of Chapter VI of the Cass highway law relative to road construction and improvement by county commissioners.

The funds produced by the levy provided for in this section are to be used by the county commissioners in the payment of that part of the cost and expense of constructing a road improvement apportioned to the township in which the road in question is situated. Township trustees have no power to levy taxes under this section and no control whatever over the funds produced by such a levy.

The issue and sale of bonds of the county, in anticipation of the collection of levies made under this section, is expressly authorized by section 6929 G. C., but there is no authority whatever for advancing to township trustees any part of the proceeds of bonds sold in anticipation of the collection of levies made under section 6927 G. C. The proceeds of such bonds must be used by the county commissioners, and until such funds are used by the county commissioners they must remain in the county treasury.

Answering your question specifically, I advise you that county commissioners are authorized by section 6929 G. C. to issue and sell the bonds of the county in anticipation of the collection of taxes levied under section 6927 G. C., but that when such bonds have been sold and the proceeds have come into the county treasury, the county commissioners are not authorized to advance such proceeds to township trustees, even upon an agreement to later reimburse the county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SALE TO THE AUSTIN POWDER COMPANY OF CLEVELAND, OHIO, PORTION OF ABANDONED OHIO CANAL BASIN.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 29, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of September 27, 1916, transmitting to me a resolution providing for the private sale to The Austin Powder Company of Cleveland, Ohio, of a portion of an abandoned Ohio canal basin for a consideration of $500.00.

I find that this resolution recites the proper jurisdictional facts and that under those facts the sale of the land in question is authorized by the statutes. I am therefore returning the duplicate copies of the resolution in question, with my signature attached thereto.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—BOND OF COUNTY TREASURER—HOW REDUCED DURING TERM OF OFFICE.

When county commissioners deem it advisable to reduce the official bond of the county treasurer during the term of office for which said bond is given, they may, by the mutual consent of the treasurer, his surety and themselves, surrender said bond and accept a new bond for the reduced amount to cover the remainder of his said term of office. Such action should be by resolution of said commissioners duly entered on their journal, which resolution must fully protect all the rights of the county under said first bond for the time during which it subsisted as a legal indemnity of the county against loss by reason of any default of said treasurer, which time will be from the date of its acceptance and continuing until the acceptance of the new bond.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 29, 1916.

HON. HENRY W. CHERRINGTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Gallipolis, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have you letter of September 18, 1916, as follows:

"The county treasurer of this county gave a bond in the sum of $100,000 before entering upon the duties of his office, the county commissioners having previously fixed the amount. Prior to the expiration of the first year of the treasurer's term, the commissioners, by resolution, fixed the treasurer's bond at $40,000. The surety on the treasurer's bond is a surety company. The bond is for the term of office of the treasurer. The surety company claims that if the bond is reduced, that it will still be liable for the full $100,000. Section 12195 provides one way in which the company could be released. Would the action of the county commissioners release the surety from liability? If not, is there any way they can be released except by compliance with the provisions of section 12195, et seq.?"

Section 12195 G. C., to which you refer, provides as follows:

"A surety of any county officer, except a commissioner, may notify the county commissioners by giving at least five days' notice that he is unwilling to continue as surety for such officer, and will at a time to be then named make application to them to be released from further liability upon his bond. He also shall give at least three days' written notice to each of such officers of the time and place at which his application will be made."

It is provided in the succeeding section that if the commissioners in the hearing of such application find there is good reason therefor they may require the officer in question to give a new bond.

It is apparent that the action contemplated by your county commissioners, under the facts stated in your letter, is not covered by the provisions of said section 12195 aforesaid, because said provisions may apply only in cases wherein a surety is unwilling to continue as such surety and desires to be wholly released from any further responsibility on a bond.

There is nothing, however, to prevent your county commissioners from surrendering the present bond of $100,000 and accepting a new bond in the sum of $40,000 to cover the remainder of the term of said county treasurer. This action of the commissioners should be by resolution duly entered upon their journal, which resolution should state the reasons for surrendering the old bond and accepting the new bond and said resolution should also carefully protect the county from any waiver or release of any claim which it might have resulting from any default of said treasurer made during the term of the bond surrendered.

In answer therefore to your inquiry I must advise that your county commissioners by the mutual consent of the treasurer, his surety and themselves may surrender the present bond of $100,000 and accept a new bond for $40,000 to cover the remainder of the term of said county treasurer, but such surrender must be made under a resolution that will fully protect all the rights of the county under said first bond for the time during which it subsisted as a legal indemnity of the county against loss by reason of any default of said treasurer and the time so specified will be that period beginning from the date of the acceptance of the first bond and continuing until the acceptance by the county commissioners of the second bond.

In this connection it must be remembered that in this and all other cases in which the amount of the official bond of the treasurer is sought to be reduced, due regard must be had to the requirements of section 2633 G. C. as amended 103 O. L., 540, that said bond must be sufficiently adequate in amount to cover all moneys that may come into the possession and control of said treasurer.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—WHERE JUDGMENT RENDERED AGAINST BOARD—LIABLE FOR COSTS INCLUDING WITNESS FEES—HOW COLLECTED.

When a judgment of a court is rendered in a civil cause against a county board of education for the cost of the plaintiff in such action such defendant county board of education is liable for all the costs of the cause including lawful witness fees, which may be collected in the same manner as the judgment is collected.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 30, 1916.

HON. MILTON HAINES, Prosecuting Attorney, Marysville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have the communication addressed to me under date of September 19, 1916, by yourself and Honorable D. M. Cupp, prosecuting attorney of Delaware county, Ohio, as follows:

"Early in the year 1915, the Union county board of education filed a petition in the common pleas court of Delaware county, Ohio, against the board of education of Delaware county, Ohio, in which the prayer was that a writ of mandamus issue commanding the county board of education of Delaware county, to place certain resolutions and maps upon its records and to file a certified copy of said resolutions and maps with the auditors of Union and Delaware counties, and to certify a copy of said resolutions and maps to the presidents and clerks of each the Union county board of education, the Delaware county board of education, the Magnetic Springs board of education, the Thompson township board of education (Del. Co.), the Scioto township board of education (Del. Co.), and to place the determination of the funds and indebtedness of the Magnetic Springs board of education, the Thompson township board of education, and the Scioto township board of education upon its minutes as of August 3d, 1914, and to certify the same to the said different boards, and to direct the payment of said funds and indebtedness thereof accordingly.

"The order as prayed for in the petition of the plaintiff board was granted in full by Judge Jewell and costs taxed against the Delaware county board.

"This action grew out of a transfer of territory from Scioto and Thompson township, Delaware county, to the Magnetic Springs board of education of Union county, the transfer being by joint action of the two county boards.

"There were court costs and quite a large amount of witness fees assessed against the Delaware county board and it has refused to pay all costs especially the witness fees.

"Under section 4749 of the General Code, boards of education shall be a body politic and corporate, and as such capable of suing and being sued, contracting and being contracted with, is not the Delaware county board liable for all costs made and by order of the court assessed against it? And will not that order hold good as to the fees of witnesses duly subpoenaed to appear in said court?

"This matter being in dispute, we would greatly appreciate an opinion from you relative thereto."

From the above communication it is observed that an action in mandamus was begun in the common pleas court of Delaware county, Ohio, against the county board of education of that county in which the writ sought was issued to the defendant board of education and judgment of the court entered against the defendant board for the costs, including witness fees.

Section 3012 G. C. provides in part as follows:

"Each witness in civil causes shall receive the following fees: For each day's attendance at a court of record to be paid on demand by the party at whose instance he is summoned, and taxed in the bill of costs, one dollar, and five cents for each mile from his place of residence to the place of holding such court, and return; for testifying before an officer authorized to take depositions, under a subpoena, seventy-five cents, and five cents for each mile from his place of residence to the place of taking depositions, to be paid on demand by the party at whose instance he is summoned; * * * * No mileage shall be allowed if the distance from the place of residence of the witness to the place where called to testify is less than one mile."

Section 3026 and section 3027 of the General Code provide as follows:

"Sec. 3026. G. C.: On the rendition of judgment, in any cause, the cost of the party recovering, together with his debt or damages, shall be carried into his judgment, and the costs of the party against whom judgment is rendered shall be separately stated in the record, or docket entry. No party in whose favor judgment for costs is rendered in a cause, may release, satify, or discharge, in whole, or in part, any of such costs, unless previously paid by him to the clerk of the court, or to the person entitled thereto, or they shall have been legally assigned, or transferred to such party by the person, or persons in whose name or names such costs stand taxed upon the record or docket."

"Sec. 3027 G. C.: The clerk or justice of the peace, issuing execution for such judgment, shall indorse thereon the amount of the costs of the party condemned, which costs shall be collected by the officer to whom such writ is directed, in the same manner and at the same time as the judgment mentioned in the execution."

It is thus required that the costs of the party recovering, in the above case the plaintiff, including witness fees prescribed by section 3012 G. C., shall be carried into the judgment and the costs of the defendant, the county board of education of Delaware county, are required to be separately stated in the record or docket entry and in issuing execution for the judgment the clerk of the court is required to endorse thereon the amount of the costs of the defendant, the county board of education of Delaware county, and it is the duty of the officer to whom such execution is directed to collect the costs of such defendant at the same time and in the same manner as the judgment including the costs of the county board of education of Union county. That is to say, answering the questions submitted by you specifically, the Delaware county board of education is liable under the judgment of the court for the costs of the Union county board including witness fees and is liable under section 3027 G. C., supra, for its own costs including witness fees which may be collected in the same manner as the judgment and the answer to your questions must therefore be in the affirmative.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

INSTITUTIONS OF PUBLIC CHARITY—WHEN PART OF REAL ESTATE OF SUCH INSTITUTION IS RENTED FOR COMMERCIAL PURPOSES, SAID PART NOT EXEMPT FROM TAXATION — YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

When a part of the real estate of an institution of public charity only is rented for commercial purposes, said part being certain rooms of a building owned and occupied by said institution, such rooms so rented may not be exempt from taxation under the provisions of section 5353 G. C.

Authority for the enactment of that part of section 5349 G. C. which provides "public colleges and academies and all buildings connected therewith and all lands connected with public institutions of learning not used with a view to profit shall be exempt from taxation" may be found in the provisions of section 2 of article XII of the constitution which exempts from taxation the property of institutions of public charity.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, September 30, 1916.

HON. CHARLES E. BALLARD, Prosecuting Attorney, Springfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of September 20, 1916, submitting the following statement and inquiries:

"The Young Men's Christian Association of Springfield, Ohio, is a corporation not for profit organized under the laws of this state. It owns a tract of real estate on which a building stands, the value of both being probably $150,000.00. Said association conducts its affairs along the usual lines of such associations. It is supported largely by voluntary contributions, gifts and bequests for permanent endowment. It charges a membership fee ranging from $5.00 to $8.00 per year. There are two classes of members, active and associate. All active members must be at least eighteen years of age and a member in good standing of a Protestant evangelical church, and pay such fees as are fixed by the board of directors, and sign the constitution. Associate members need not belong to any church or may belong to a church other than a Protestant evangelical church, and enjoy all the privileges of the association except voting in the election of the directors. Only active members are allowed to vote for the directors. Worthy young men may be admitted as associate members in the association by the board of directors if said board of directors find that such young men are financially unable to pay the annual fee. Two of the rooms of the building are rented for commercial purposes, the income being used to support the association, and a number of rooms in the building are rented to members as living rooms and fees are charged therefor. Said association maintains reading rooms, swimming pool, baths, pool and billiard tables. Night school for the use of its members is conducted in said building. Those who attend such school are required to pay if able.

"Neither the ground nor the building is on the tax duplicate of Clark county, Ohio, for the purpose of taxation.

"(1) Should they be placed on the tax duplicate for taxation as other commercial property?

"(2) If the ground and building of the association are exempt from taxation, what section of the General Code exempts the same?

"(3) Does the phrase, 'public school houses, * * * may, by general laws, be exempted from taxation,' found in section 2 article XII of the constitution authorize the legislature to exempt, as it has undertaken to do by section 5349 General Code, 'public colleges and academies and all buildings connected therewith, and all lands connected with public institutions of learning, not used with a view to profit?'

"(4) Would the real estate and building of said association be exempt under section 5353 General Code, on the theory that it is 'property belonging to institutions of public charity only?'

"Throwing light upon the questions proposed, I refer to Kenyon College v. Schnebly, 12 O. C. C. (N. S.) 1, affirmed without report in Schnebly v. Kenyon College, 81 O. S. 514, The Benjamin Rose Institute v. Myers, 92 O. S. 252, and cases therein cited."

It is provided in section 5353 G. C. as amended 103 O. L. 549, that:

"Lands, houses and other buildings belonging to a county, township, city or village, used exclusively for the accommodation or support of the poor, or leased to the state or any political subdivision thereof for public purposes, and property belonging to institutions of public charity only, shall be exempt from taxation."

In an opinion reported in volume II at page 1298 of the opinions of the attorney-general for the year 1915, I considered and fully discussed what constitutes an "institution of purely public charity" as contemplated by the provisions of section 2 of article XII of the constitution as they stood prior to the amendment of 1912. Under the authorities cited and collated in said opinion to which I refer without further discussion, I am of the opinion that the institution named in your inquiry is one of public charity only and its property is therefore exempt from taxation under the provisions of said section 5353 aforesaid, except in the particulars hereinafter noted. In reaching this conclusion I am amply sustained by former opinions of this department.

In an opinion under date of June 8, 1894, found in volume IV of the opinions of the attorney-general, the Hon. J. K. Richards held:

"Under the rule generally adopted in this state Y. M. C. A. buildings are exempted from taxation."

There is no other or further comment made in said opinion in respect to the matter in question.

Again, on page 897, in the same volume is found an opinion by the Hon. Frank S. Monnett, in answer to the following question:

"Should Young Men's Christian Associations' real estate and real estate of like societies be exempted from taxation where it is in part used for secular purposes?"

In answer to said question reference is made to the case of Library Association v. Pelton, 36 O. S. 253, from which the following quotation is made:

"It may be said, that the entire building may become necessary for the objects of the association. When this shall become the case, and the entire building or any additional parts are so used, the parts thus withdrawn from renting, cease to be leased or otherwise used with a view to profit, and fall within the exemption.

"The fact that the building is so constructed that the parts leased or otherwise used with a view to profit cannot be separated from the residue by definite lines, is no obstacle to a valuation of such parts for purposes of taxation, having due reference to the taxable value of the entire property."

The opinion then further states:

"If, as is implied by your questions, that portion of the building is used for other purposes than those provided by section 2732 of the Revised Statutes, such parts of said building and the appurtenances thereto as are rented or otherwise used would not be exempt from taxation, and the value of such part can be found by the taxing officer by comparing such part of said building with the taxable value of the entire property. I would, therefore, hold in answer to this question, that such building, if used entirely for public charity, or for similar purposes, as are mentioned in subdivision 1 of section 2732 Revised Statutes, the same would be exempt from taxation, but if any portion of it is used for other purposes than those contemplated by that section, I would hold that such part so used for any other purpose would be liable for taxation."

In volume V of the opinions of the attorney-general at page 709, a like conclusion is announced by Hon. J. M. Sheets. I quote from said opinion as follows:

"I am in receipt of your communication of this date in which you seek an opinion as to whether certain property in the city of Cleveland is exempt from taxation. The first tract mentioned is the property of the Young Men's Christian Association of that city, consisting of the ground and the building erected thereon. Part of the building is used as quarters for the association, and a part of it is leased as business rooms to persons engaged in mercantile pursuits—the money received from the leases, however, is used in supporting and maintaining the organization.

"That part of the building used with a view to profit, i. e., from which rentals are received, is clearly taxable, and, as it appears that the whole property has escaped taxation for a number of years the part leased should be placed on the tax duplicate, not only for the current year, but for previous years back to the last decennial appraisement."

In this opinion reference is also made to the case of Library Association v. Pelton supra, and the opinion further continues as follows:

"The Young Men's Christian Association can claim no exemption unless its property can be classed as either an 'institution of purely public charity,' or a 'house used exclusively for public worship.' Surely it cannot be claimed that that part of the property occupied by merchants is used as an 'institution of purely public charity,' or as a 'house used exclusively for public worship.' It matters not that the proceeds of the leases are used for the purpose of maintaining the organization."

It appears from the statements made in your inquiry that two rooms of the building owned by the association in question are rented for commercial purposes. In view of the observations in the opinions heretofore quoted, with which I concur, and particularly under the authority of the recent case of Rose Institute v. Myers, 92 O. S. 252, wherein it is held that:

"It is the use of the property which renders it exempt or non-exempt, not the use of the income derived from it."

I conclude that so much of said building as is rented for commercial purposes, said part being the two rooms specified, should be assessed by the proper officers for taxation purposes and placed on the tax duplicate.

In answer therefore to your first, second and fourth inquiries, I advise that only that part of the property of the association named which is rented for commercial purposes, said part being the two rooms specified in your letter, should be placed upon the tax duplicate, and that the residue of said property is exempt under the provisions of section 5353 aforesaid.

In answer to your third inquiry, wherein you ask if the provisions

> "* * * 'public school houses * * * may, by general laws, be exempted from taxation;' found in section 2 article 12 of the constitution, authorize the legislature to exempt, as it has undertaken to do by section 5349 General Code, 'public colleges and academies, and all buildings connected therewith, and all lands connected with public institutions of learning, not used with a view to profit."

it must be observed that the provisions of said section 5349, as quoted in said inquiry are ordinarily considered as applying to institutions of public charity, and that, therefore, said provisions are referable more particularly to that clause of the constitution found in section 2 of article XII, which exempts from taxation institutions of public charity.

In the opinion first referred to herein, being the opinion found at page 1298 of volume II of the Attorney-General's Opinions for 1915, I held that > "* * * schools, colleges and hospitals are charities in the legal sense of the term, as well as homes and asylums for indigent and afflicted persons."

This conclusion is fully supported by the case of Gerke v. Purcell, 25 O. S. 229, wherein it is held that by the term "public school house," referred to in your inquiry "is meant such as belong to the public, and are designed for schools established and conducted under public authority."

It was further held in said opinion that:

> "A charity, in a legal sense, includes not only gifts for the benefit of the poor, but endowments for the advancement of learning, or institutions for the encouragement of science and art, without any particular reference to the poor."

And, further

> "Schools established by private donations, and which are carried on for the benefit of the public, and not with a view to profit, are 'institutions of purely public charity' within the meaning of the provision of the constitution, which authorizes such institutions to be exempt from taxation."

The supreme court thus clearly distinguishes between what is a public school house, as contemplated in the constitutional provisions aforesaid, and what institutions of learning may be considered as institutions of public charity, and it is apparent from the distinction thus made that the institutions included within the last clause of section 5349 are institutions of public charity, and that said provisions of said section are intended to apply to institutions of that character.

In answer, therefore, to your third inquiry, I am of the opinion that the provisions of section 5349 G. C., therein referred to, are authorized by that clause of said section

2 of article XII of the constitution which exempts from taxation the property of institutions of public charity.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, ORDER OF STATE BOARD OF HEALTH IN REGARD TO POLLUTION OF OTTAWA RIVER BY SEWAGE FROM CITY OF LIMA.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 2, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Enclosed herewith you will find an order of the state board of health to the city of Lima, Ohio, in regard to the pollution of the Ottawa river by sewage from said city of Lima.

I have examined said order, which is issued pursuant to section 1251 G. C., and find the same to be regular.

It is my opinion that it should be approved and I have therefore approved the same and am transmitting it to you for your approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS AND INSPECTORS OF ELECTIONS—WHEN NIGHT WATCHMAN CAN BE EMPLOYED——PAID FROM COUNTY TREASURY.

When it is necessary for the board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections to employ a night watchman the employment of such employe is required to be paid from the county treasury upon the allowance of the county commissioners.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 2, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of September 21, 1916, is as follows:

> "We would respectfully ask your written opinion upon the following question:
> "In the event that a board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections find it necessary to employ a night watchman at the office of the board, how is the compensation of such employee to be paid?"

Numerous special provisions will be found for the payment of specific election expenses necessary to the proper conduct of elections. It is unnecessary to refer to each of such provisions but it is deemed sufficient to say that a careful examination of the statutes will fail to disclose any specific statutory provision by which the method of payment of the compensation of a night watchman as such is prescribed.

Section 4946 G. C., 103 O. L. 545 provides among other things in reference to election expenses in registration cities that the "cost for the rent, furnishings and supplies for rooms hired by the board for its offices and as places for registration of electors in the holding of elections in such city shall be paid by such city from its general fund." This provision, however, does not include within its terms the employment of a night watchman.

Section 4821 G. C. provides as follows:

> "All proper and necessary expenses of the board of deputy state supervisors shall be paid from the county treasury as other county expenses, and the county commissioners shall make the necessary levy to provide therefor. In counties containing annual general registration cities, such expenses shall include expenses duly authorized and incurred in the investigation and prosecution of offenses against laws relating to the registration of electors, the right of suffrage and the conduct of elections."

It is here provided that all proper and necessary expenses of the boards of deputy state supervisors of elections, which by virtue of section 4802 G. C. include as well deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections, shall be paid from the county treasury as other county expenses.

If then, the employment of a night watchman is necessary, a question to be determined in the first instance by the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, the compensation of such employe, would then constitute a necessary and proper expense of the board and is required to be paid from the county treasury as other county expenses. That is to say, upon the allowance of the county commissioners and the warrant of the county auditor.

It may be observed, however, that it is not conceived that the employment of a night watchman by a board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections would be necessary in any case except in the larger counties for the short time in which the official ballots are in the custody of the board prior to the delivery of the same to the precinct election officers, and for the period of time after the election prior to the completion of the canvass of the returns, where the facilities for the safe keeping of the ballots and returns are insufficient without personal attendance at all times and the city fails or refuses to provide proper police protection for the safe keeping of the ballots and returns which I am informed the cities in many, if not most cases do.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, PROPOSED ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF "THE AMERICAN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 2, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I return to you herewith with my approval endorsed thereon the proposed articles of incorporation "THE AMERICAN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 2, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Washington township rural school district in the sum of $3,500.00, to improve the public school property of said district, being seven bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education and other officers of Washington township rural school district; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code of Ohio.

I am of opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of Washington township rural school district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES—TOWN HALL OR TOWNSHIP HOUSE TO COST IN EXCESS OF $2,000—QUESTION MAY BE SUBMITTED TO ELECTORS AT NOVEMBER ELECTION, 1916—ELECTORS OF VILLAGE SITUATED WITHIN SAID TOWNSHIP HAVE RIGHT TO VOTE ON SAID QUESTION.

The question of building a town hall or township house, the estimated cost of which is in excess of $2,000, may be submitted to the qualified electors of said township at the November election, 1916. The qualified electors of a village situated within said township have the right to vote on said question.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 3, 1916.

HON. J. W. WATTS, Prosecuting Attorney, Hillsboro, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of September 28th you request my opinion upon two questions which may be stated as follows:

"1. May the question of building a town hall or township house, the estimated cost of which is $3,000, be submitted to the qualified electors of said township at the coming November election?

"2. Have the qualified electors of a village situated within said township the right to vote on said question, the proposed site of said township house being located outside the corporate limits of said village?"

Section 3260 G. C. provides in part:

"* * * If a majority of the electors of the township or a precinct thereof, voting at any general election vote in favor thereof, the trustees may purchase a site and erect thereon a town hall for such township or precinct and levy a tax on the taxable property within such township or precinct to pay the cost thereof, which shall not exceed two thousand dollars. * * *"

It is evident that the above provision of the statute does not afford the authority to the trustees of the township referred to in the first question above stated to secure the proposed building in the manner therein provided, upon the approval by the electors of such township of the tax levy authorized by the latter part of said section, as it appears that the estimated cost of said building is in excess of $2,000. This authority is found in sections 3395 to 3398, inclusive, of the General Code and must not be confused with the authority conferred upon the electors of a township and a village situated therein to jointly enlarge, improve or erect a public building as found in section 3399 et seq. of the General Code.

Section 3395 G. C. provides:

"If in a township, it is desired to build, remove, improve or enlarge a town hall, at a greater cost than is otherwise authorized by law, the trustees may submit the question to the electors of the township, and shall cause the clerk to give notice thereof and of the estimated cost, by written notices, posted in not less than three public places within the township, at least ten days before election."

Section 3396 G. C. provides:

"At such election the electors in favor of such hall, removal, improvement or enlargement shall place on their ballots 'Town Hall—Yes,' and those opposed 'Town Hall—No.' If a majority of all the ballots cast at the election are in the affirmative, the trustees shall levy the necessary tax, but not in any year to exceed four mills on the dollar valuation. Such tax shall not be levied under such vote for more than seven years. In anticipation of the collection of taxes, the trustees may borrow money and issue bonds for the whole or any part therefor, bearing interest not to exceed seven per cent. payable annually."

It will be observed that the question of the policy of expending the funds of the township for the purpose under consideration is to be submitted to "the electors of the township," and the condition precedent to the valid levy of the necessary tax for said purpose is that "a majority of all the ballots cast at the election" are in favor of said expenditure.

The statutes do not by their terms exclude the electors of the village referred to in your second inquiry from voting on the question referred to in your first inquiry, I have already held in former opinions that in the absence of an express provision of a statute excluding from the tax levy therein authorized to be made on the taxable property of a township, the taxable property of an incorporated village located in such township, said tax must be levied upon all the taxable property of such township including that within the corporate limits of said village.

In keeping with my former holding I am of the opinion in answer to your second question that the tax levy mentioned in section 3396 G. C. supra, when authorized as therein provided, must be made on all of the taxable property in the township, referred to in your first inquiry, including that located in the incorporated village therein situated, and that the qualified electors of said village have the right to vote on the question of the policy of the expenditure of the funds of said township for the aforesaid purpose.

As I understand your first question you desire to be advised as to whether or not, in my opinion, the election to be held Novmber 7th, of this year, is an election within the meaning of sections 3395 and 3396 of the General Code, as above quoted.

In this connection my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in considering the provisions of said sections in an opinion found in the annual report of the attorney-general for the year 1913, Vol. II, page 1252, observed that said sections do not expressly provide for a special election on the question therein mentioned, and held that said question must be submitted at a regular election as required by section 4840 G. C., which provides:

> "Unless a statute providing for the submission of a question to the voters of a county, township, city or village provides for the calling of a special election for that purpose, no special election shall be so called. The question so to be voted upon shall be submitted at a regular election in such county township, city or village, and notice that such question is to be voted upon shall be embodied in the proclamation for such election."

I concur in this holding of my predecessor, and it only remains to be determined whether the coming November election is a "regular election" within the meaning of section 4840 G. C. supra.

I quote the following from opinion No. 778 of this department, referred to in your letter, rendered to Hon. John C. D'Alton, prosecuting attorney of Lucas county, on August 28, 1915:

> "Elections are throughout the statutes termed general, regular and special elections. These terms are deemed to have a fairly well established meaning, and unless used with special application or qualifying terms, 'general election' is understood to mean the regular recurring November election, at which state and county officers are elected. The term 'regular elections' includes all those elections at which public officers are elected to fill the vacancies occurring by reason of the expiration of the terms of such officers as established by law, whether such officers be state, county, township or other officers whose terms of office are definite and determinate, the time of holding which election is definitely fixed by law. A special election is generally understood to mean an election held at a time not definitely fixed by law for the election of an officer to fill a vacancy occasioned by some exigency other than the expiration of the term fixed, or an election which is held for the submission to the electorate of a question usually other than the selection of an officer, and at a different time from that at which a regular or general election is being held."

Reference was made in said opinion to the provisions of section 4840 G. C. supra, as distinguishing between the terms "special election" and "regular election" as above defined.

In view of the foregoing it is evident that the election to be held on November 7, 1916, will be both a general election and a regular election within the meaning of those terms as defined in my former opinion above referred to.

Answering your first question specifically, I am of the opinion that the question of building a town hall or township house, the estimated cost of which is $3000.00, may be submitted to the qualified electors of such township at the coming November election.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—TELEPHONE COMPANIES—MUST PLACE POLES IN HIGHWAY SO AS NOT TO INCOMMODE PUBLIC IN USE THEREOF—SEE OPINIONS NOS. 1888, AUGUST 31, 1916, AND 1950, SEPTEMBER 29, 1916.

Telephone companies must so place their poles in the highway as not to incommode the public in the use thereof. If this result cannot be accomplished by a telephone company without acquiring the rights of adjoining owners in the overhanging limbs of shade trees, it will be necessary for such company to acquire said rights.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 3, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of September 20, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

"I am transmitting herewith a letter submitted to me by Mr. H. M. Sharp, our chief highway engineer, relative to difficulties we are having where we have requested The Ohio State Telephone Company to move back its poles and the telephone company has been enjoined from interfering with trees in front of certain property.

"We are not interested in the adjustment of differences between the telephone company and property owners other than to have the poles removed and as this must be done, I respectfully request that you advise me what course to pursue in the matter cited by Mr. Sharp and on similar occasions which may arise in the future."

The attached communication from Mr. Sharp is as follows:

"Since July 24, 1916, we have been troubled with the telephone poles owned by the Ohio State Telephone Company interfering with the contractor's work on the Springfield-Urbana road, I. C. H. No. 187, section 'I,' Clark county.

"We have ordered the telephone company to move back their poles but they have encountered serious difficulties with the property owners on account of the poles and lines interfering with trees to such an extent that if the poles are moved back the trees will have to be cut and trimmed to a considerable extent.

"Some of the property owners have objected very seriously to this, and in one case the telephone company has been enjoined by a property owner from interfering with the trees in front of his property, although the trees are in the right-of-way or project over the right-of-way.

"While I realize that the statutes provide that in such cases the telephone company shall be given notice to move such obstructions that interfere with the road work, yet the telephone company represents to us that they are unable to move because of the opposition from property owners owning trees which interfere with the moving back of the poles and lines, and it would seem that it is a proposition for the telephone company to fight out with the property owners in the matter of interference with trees. However, in this particular case the telephone company claims that they are not able to move their poles and lines for the reason cited above and at the present time the poles are seriously interfering with the carrying on of the work.

"I am submitting this proposition to you with a view of having your judgment in the matter, to the end that something may be done so as to get the telephone poles out of the contractor's way."

Owners of lands adjoining a public highway and whose title extends to the center thereof enjoy certain rights therein, subject, of course, to the convenience of public travel. This matter was before the court in the case of Daily, et al. v.State, 51 O. S. 348. The facts in this case and the holding of the court, as set forth in the syllabus, is as follows:

"1. An owner of land adjoining a public highway whose title extends to the center of the road, who has cultivated shade trees, planted partly on his own land and partly in the line of the highway within the bounds of his deed, has a property interest in such trees, and the right to their enjoyment subject only to the convenience of public travel.

"2. The legislature may authorize the construction of a telegraph line by a telegraph company upon a public highway, in such manner as not to incommode the public in the use of such highway, but authority so given does not empower such company to injure the property of an adjoining landowner, nor to appropriate any of his property rights in the highway except upon the condition that compensation be first made. Nor is warrant given to injure such property, nor to appropriate such property rights without compensation, by the act of congress of July 24, 1866, known as section 5263 et seq. of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

"3. The property right of such owner in trees thus cultivated by him is a proper subject of legislation for its protection. And one who, having knowledge of the rights of such landowner in the trees, proceeds against the protest of such owner heedlessly, recklessly and carelessly to injure them, may be prosecuted under section 6880 of the Revised Statutes for a wrongful injury to property.

"4. The simple fact that the landowner did not, at the time the telegraph line was built, although aware of the purpose to build, object and prevent its construction by injunction proceedings, will not estop him, after the expiration of ten years from the date of such construction, from asserting his property interest in the highway and in the trees growing upon and in front of his premises."

See also the case of Callen v. The Columbus Edison Electric Light Company, 66 O. S. 166.

Telegraph and telephone companies, in their occupancy of public highways, are not authorized to inconvenience the public in the use thereof.

Section 9170 G. C. provides as follows:

"A magnetic telegraph company may construct telegraph lines, from point to point, along and upon any public road by the erection of the necessary fixtures, including posts, piers and abutments necessary for the wires; but shall not incommode the public in the use thereof"

The terms of the above quoted section are made applicable to telephone companies by the provisions of section 9191 G. C. found in the same chapter of the General Code, and which section reads as follows:

"The provisions of this chapter apply also to a company organized to construct a line or lines of telephone; and every such company shall have the powers and be subject to the restrictions herein prescribed for magnetic telegraph companies."

You correctly state the position which should be taken by your department when you observe that you are not interested in the adjustment of differences between the telephone company and property owners. If the poles of the telephone company, as at present located, incommode the public in the use of the highway or constitute an obstruction in such highway, it is the duty of the company to relocate its poles and so place the same that they will not obstruct the highway. If this result cannot be accomplished by the company without acquiring the rights of adjoining owners in the overhanging limbs of shade trees, it will be necessary for the company to acquire such rights, but this is a matter solely between the company and the owners of the abutting lands and one in which the public officials have no interest whatever. The fact that the company is unable to move its poles without acquiring such rights from the owners of abutting real estate does not excuse the company from relocating its pole line and so placing the same that it will not constitute an obstruction in the public highway.

The form of notice to be given the company, the method of serving such notice and the manner of making a record of your action in the premises has been pointed out in opinion No. 1950 of this department, rendered to you on September 29, 1916, and relating to certain obstructions maintained by the Ohio Electric Railway Company in the National road in Licking county. The form of notice prescribed in that opinion will suggest the form that should be served upon the Ohio State Telephone Company in the present instance and the method of service of the notice and manner of preserving a record of your action will be the same as that suggested in the opinion in question. I also suggest that, as in the case of the Ohio Electric Railway Company and for the purpose of avoiding all future question as to proper notice, the co-operation of the county authorities of Clark county be invited and that if it is possible to secure such co-operation the county officials be requested to take the action pointed out by the first paragraph of section 7204 G. C. and set forth in detail in opinion No. 1950 of this department, referred to above. If after this action has been taken and the proper notice given the company fails to act in the premises, I will take the steps necessary to secure the removal of the poles in question upon being advised by you of the facts.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER
Attorney-General.

STATE LIQUOR LICENSING BOARD—ONE EMPLOYED AS COUNSEL FOR VILLAGE NOT PUBLIC OFFICER—IS NOT INELIGIBLE TO APPOINTMENT AS COUNTY LIQUOR LICENSING COMMISSIONER.

One employed as counsel for a village or a department or an officer thereof, pursuant to section 4220 G. C. is not a public officer within the meaning of section 1261-22 G. C. 103 O. L. 218, and is not therefore ineligible to appointment as county liquor licensing commissioner.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 3, 1916.

State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your communication under date of September 26, 1916, you submit for an opinion the question which may be stated as follows:

"May a county liquor license commissioner hold the position of or be employed as legal counsel for a village or any department or official thereof?"

Section 1261-22 G. C. (103 O. L. 218) provides in reference to county liquor license commissioners that:

"The said license commissioners shall not hold any other public office for profit except that of notary public, * * *."

and it is presumably in view of this provision that your question is submitted.

Section 4220 G. C., in which is found the authority for providing counsel for villages or the departments or officers thereof, provides as follows:

"When it deems it necessary, the village council may provide legal counsel for the village, or any department or official thereof, for a period not to exceed two years, and provide compensation therefor."

The question then resolves itself into whether counsel for a village, a department or officer thereof is a "public officer" within the terms of section 1261-2 G. C. (103 O. L. 218)supra.

In section 7 of Throop on public officers it is said:

"One appointed or elected in a manner prescribed by law, having a designation or title given to him by law, and exercising functions concerning the public assigned to him by law, is a public officer."

It is stated in 29 Cyc. 1366, as to the distinction between an office and an employment, that:

"While an office is based upon some provision of law, an employment is based upon a contract entered into by the government with the employe."

In support of the above proposition, there is cited by the authority mentioned the case of state v. Jennings, 57 O. S. 415, in which it is held:

"To constitute a public office against the incumbent of which quo warranto will lie, it is essential that certain independent public duties, a part of the sovereignty of the state, should be appointed to it by law, to be exercised by the incumbent, in virtue of his election or appointment to the office, thus created and defined, and not as a mere employe, subject to the direction and control of some one else."

The above was a case in which it was sought to oust city firemen employed by the city council, upon the theory that such firemen were officers. The court in the course of the opinion by Minshall, J, said:

"But the character of an office can not be attached to a position by a name merely. Whether it be an office or not, will depend upon the nature and character of the duties attached to it by law.

"Many efforts have been made to define a public office; and it is only the incumbent of such an office whose rights can be challenged in a proceeding in quo warranto. But it is easier to conceive the general requirements of such an office, than to express them with precision in a definition that shall be entirely faultless. It will be found, however, by consulting the cases and the authorities, that the most general distinction of a public office is, that it embraces the performance by the incumbent of a public function delegated to him as apart of the sovereignty of the state. Thus in Meachem's Offices and Officers, section 4, it is said: 'The most important characteristic which distinguishes an office from an employment or contract, is that the creation and conferring of an office involves a delegation to the individual of some of the sovereign functions of government, to be exercised by him for the benefit of the public; that some portion of the sovereignty of the country, either legislative, executive, or judicial, attaches, for the time being, to be exercised for the public benefit. Unless the powers conferred are of this nature, the individual is not a public officer.' So in High on Extraordinary Legal Remedies, section 625, it is said: 'An office, such as to properly come within the legitimate scope of an information in the nature of a quo warranto, may be defined as a public position, to which a portion of the sovereignty of the country, either legislative, executive, or judicial, attaches for the time being, and which is exercised for the benefit of the public.'"

In consideration of the foregoing statement of the character of the public office, I am of the opinion that counsel provided for a village, a department or officer thereof, pursuant to section 4220 G. C. supra, is not a public officer.

I believe none of the essential attributes of a public officer, as above indicated, attach to one who pursuant to law stands in the relationship of a legal counsel to a village, its departments of officers. One acting as such counsel exercises no function of government imposed upon him by law. He is required to take no oath of office nor to give an official bond. His duties are such only as the council may choose to impose and he stands in a contractual relationship to the village council. His functions are neither legislative, executive nor judicial.

A partnership may not hold public office; yet I think it would not be seriously contended that under section 4220 G. C. the council of the village would not be authorized to enter into a contract for the services of a firm of attorneys as counsel for the village, its departments of officers; neither could it be maintained that such services so contracted for would not be wholly subject to the control of the council itself and that there would devolve upon counsel so employed no duty which is imposed by law.

That the relationship of a person chosen under section 4220 G. C. is, in contemplation of the legislature, contractual, is rendered conclusive from the provision of section 3809 G. C. (103 O. L. 526), that the requirement of a certificate that the necessary money is in the treasury shall not apply to "contracts made by a village for the employment of legal counsel."

It was held in opinion No. 217, addressed to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, found at page 412 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915, "that the position of village solicitor is not an office within the meaning of section 5617 G. C.;" and in an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, addressed to Hon. Frank W. Miller, found at page 487 of the report of the attorney-general for the year 1912, it was also held that "the village solicitor is not an 'official' within the meaning of section 4762, General Code."

Answering specifically your question whether a county liquor licensing commissioner may be employed as counsel for a village or any department or official thereof, I am of opinion that employment as legal counsel for a village or a department or an officer does not render a person, otherwise qualified, ineligible to appointment as county liquor licensing commissioner. In other words, one may be at the same time county liquor licensing commissioner and counsel for a village or a department or an officer thereof.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—BONDS—MAY NOT BE ISSUED FOR PURPOSES MENTIONED IN SECTION 7630-1 G. C. EXCEPT UPON APPROVAL OF ELECTORS OF SCHOOL DISTRICT IN MANNER PROVIDED BY SECTIONS 7625 AND 7626 G. C.—BONDS MAY NOT BE ISSUED IF PRACTICABLE TO SECURE FUNDS BY SECTION 7625 G. C. ET SEQ. AND SECTION 5649-5b G. C.—ERECTION OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Bonds may not be issued for the purposes mentioned in section 7630-1 G. C. except upon the approval of the electors of the school district in the manner provided by sections 7625 and 7626 G. C.

Bonds may not be issued for the purposes therein mentioned pursuant to section 7630-1 G. C. if it is practicable to secure necessary funds for such purposes, pursuant to section 7625 G. C. et seq., and within the fifteen mill limitation of section 5649-5b G. C., 103 O. L. 57.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 5, 1916.

HON. H. C. FISH, Prosecuting Attorney, Pomeroy, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of September 25, 1916, is as follows:

"I wish your opinion on the following, viz.:

"On May 24, 1915, the state department of inspection issued order No. 954, Success school building.

" 'Discontinue the use of this building for school purposes as it is old, unsafe and unsanitary, and is not fit for school purposes any longer, this order to be complied with at once.'

"Also to make repairs on other school buildings.

"Last fall the board of education submitted the proposition to the voters of the township for the right to issue bonds in the sum of $3,000.00, and make levy to take care of the same (which would be over and above the 5 mill levy), for the above purposes, and the same was voted down.

"Again on August 8, last, the same proposition was submitted to the voters and was again defeated.

"Now, can the board of education, under section 7630-1 and 5649-4, Vol. 103, page 527 O. L., issue bonds for the purpose?

"I am of the opinion that they now have such right, but I want your opinion, as it would have the effect to make the bonds sell higher, and probably they would not sell at all without such opinion."

Section 7630-1 G. C. (103 O. L. 527) and section 5649-4 G. C. (103 O. L. 527), to which your question refers, provide as follows:

"Section 7630-1 G. C. If a school house is wholly or partly destroyed by fire or other casualty, or if the use of any school house for its intended purpose is prohibited by any order of the chief inspector of workshops and factories, and the board of education of the school district is without sufficient funds applicable to the purpose with which to rebuild or repair such school house or to construct a new school house for the proper accommodation of the schools of the district, and it is not practicable to secure such funds under any of the six preceding sections because of the limits of taxation applicable to such school district, such board of education may, subject to th provisions of sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy six hundred and twenty-seven, and upon the approval of the electors in the manner provided by sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-five and seventy six hundred and twenty-six, issue bonds for the amount required for such purpose. For the payment of the principal and interest on such bonds, and on bonds heretofore issued for the purposes herein mentioned, and to provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity, such board of education shall annually levy a tax as provided by law.

"Section 5649-4 G. C. For the emergencies mentioned in sections forty-four hundred and fifty, forty-four hundred and fifty-one, fifty-six hundred and twenty-nine. seventy-four hundred and nineteen, and 7630-1 of the General Code, the taxing authorities of any district may levy a tax sufficient to provide therefor irrespective of any of the limitations of this act."

Of the six preceding sections referred to in section 7630-1 G. C. supra, particular consideration need be given only to sections 7625 and 7629 G. C., which provide as follows:

"Section 7625. When the board of education of any school district determines that for the proper accommodation of the schools of such district it is necessary to purchase a site or sites to erect a schoolhouse or houses, to complete a partially built schoolhouse, to enlarge, repair or furnish a school house, or to purchase real estate for playground for children, or to do any or all of such things, that the funds at its disposal, or that can be raised under the provisions of section seventy-six hundred and twenty-nine and seventy-six and thirty, are not sufficient to accomplish the purpose, and that a bond issue is necessary, the board shall make an estimate of the probable amount of money required for such purpose or purposes, and at a general election or special election called for that purpose submit to the electors of the district the question of the issuing of bonds for the amount so estimated. Notices of the election required herein shall be given in the manner provided by law for school elections."

"Section 7629. The board of education of any school district may issue bonds to obtain or improve public school property, and in anticipation of income from taxes for such purposes, levied or to be levied from time to time, as occasion requires, may issue and sell bonds under the restrictions, and bearing a rate of interest specified in sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty seven. The board shall pay such bonds and the interest thereon when due, but provide that no greater amount of bonds be issued in any year than would equal the aggregate of a tax at the rate of two mills for the year next preceding such issue. The order to issue bonds shall be made only at a regular meeting of the board, and by a vote of two-thirds of its full membership, taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon its journal."

Section 7629 G. C. authorizes the issuance of bonds for the improvement of school property in anticipation of income from taxes for such purposes, levied or to be levied. From the submission of the question of issuing bonds, it is assumed that it is not practicable to secure sufficient funds for the purposes mentioned in your inquiry, pursuant to the provisions of this section.

It appears that the school building referred to comes within the terms of section 7630-1 G. C., in that its use is prohibited by an order of the chief inspector or workshops and factories. It is inferred that your inquiry contemplates the issuance of bonds for the purposes mentioned therein, without a vote of the electors of the school district, and it is to the authority therefor that the same is directed.

Section 5649-4 G. C. supra, operates to take a levy made for any of the purposes mentioned in section 7630-1 G. C. out of all the limitations of the Smith law upon the rate of taxes which may be levied. It does not, however, operate to abrogate or suspend all conditions and restrictions upon the authority to issue bonds for the purposes mentioned in section 7630-1 G. C., otherwise prescribed. In short, the only force which may be given to section 5649-4 G. C. in the present consideration is, that if bonds are issued pursuant to section 7630-1 G. C., the levy for interest and sinking fund purposes is not subject to any of the tax limitations of the Smith law.

It is yet to be determined, however, what the conditions are as prescribed therein under which bonds may be issued for the purposes mentioned in section 7630-1 G. C. supra, and upon consideration of the provisions of the same it is found that bonds may be issued pursuant thereto only upon the approval of the electors in the manner provided by sections 7625 and 7626 G. C., so that if all of the further conditions of section 7630-1 G. C. are fully met, bonds may not be issued pursuant thereto in any case except upon the approval of the electors, and if your question contemplates the issuance of bonds, pursuant to that section, without a vote of the electors, it must in any event be answered in the negative, notwithstanding the provisions of section 5649-4 G. C. which, as pointed out, does not operate to remove any of the conditions and limitations imposed upon the authority to issue bonds found in section 7630-1 G. C. itself.

Section 7625 G. C. et seq. serves to confer upon boards of education authority to issue bonds for all the purposes mentioned in section 7630-1 G. C., subject only to the fifteen mill limitation on the combined maximum rate of taxes to be levied, prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C., 103 O. L. 57. It therefore follows that if a sufficient levy for interest and sinking fund may be made within the fifteen mill limitation for the purposes mentioned in your inquiry, there is neither occasion nor authority to proceed under section 7630-1 G. C., which by its terms is limited to those cases in which it is impracticable, by reason of the tax limitations, to secure the necessary funds under the provisions of certain sections, among which is section 7625 G. C.

It is not stated by you whether a sufficient levy for interest and sinking fund may be made for the purposes referred to by you within the fifteen mill limitation of section 5649-5b G. C. supra, but I think it is only fair to assume, from all the facts, that such levy could be made within the fifteen mill limitation and that it was pursuant to section 7625 G. C. that the question of issuing bonds was heretofore submitted. That is to say, it is assumed that the resolution of the board of education, declaring the purpose and necessity of issuing bonds and providing for the submission of the question to the electors of the district in either case, did not show, in addition to the fact that the use of the school house in question was prohibited by an order of the chief inspector of workshops and factories, that it was then impracticable to secure sufficient funds, under sections 7625 to 7630 G. C., both inclusive, because of the limitation of taxation applicable to school districts—that is, within the fifteen mill limitation—and hence the elections were held pursuant to section 7625 G. C. et seq.

Section 7630-1 G. C., by its terms, is not available so long as funds necessary for the purposes mentioned in section 7630-1 G. C. may be secured, pursuant to the provisions of section 7625 G. C. et seq. If it is a fact that a sufficient levy for interest and sinking fund may not be made within the fifteen mill limitation, rendering it thereby impracticable to secure the funds necessary under section 7625 G. C., and the board of education so finds, it may then proceed to submit the question of issuing bonds pursuant to section 7630-1 G. C., all the other conditions thereof being fully met.

From the foregoing it follows, and I am of opinion, in answer to your question whether the board of education, under the facts stated by you, may issue bonds pursuant to section 7630-1 G. C. and section 5649-4 G. C., 103 O. L. 527, that it may do so only where it is found that a levy for interest and sinking fund, for the payment of the interest and discharge of the principle of such bonds, when they become due, can not be made within the fifteen mill limitation of section 5649-5b, 103 O. L. 57. In no case may bonds be issued pursuant to section 7630-1 G. C., except upon the approval of the electors of the district in the manner provided by sections 7625 and 7626 G. C.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TEACHERS' PENSION FUND—WHERE TEACHER RETIRES PURSUANT TO PROVISIONS OF SECTION 7882 G. C.—ELIGIBLE TO PENSION UNDER SECTION 7883 G. C.—RIGHT TO PENSION NOT DEFEATED BY SUBSEQUENT EMPLOYMENT.

Where a teacher who retires pursuant to the provisions of section 7882 G. C. is eligible to a pension as provided by section 7883 G. C., the right of such teacher to such pension is not defeated or affected by his or her subsequent employment in a college or academy not supported in any way by the state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 6, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. PEARSON, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of October 2, 1916, is as follows:

> "The department of public instruction wishes to submit to your department the following question involving an interpretation of section 7882 G. C.:
>
> "A teacher has stated the circumstances of his case thus:
>
> " 'I am now beginning my thirty-first year of teaching in the public schools and have been contributing to the pension fund for about twelve years. In case I wish to resign and accept a position in a college or academy not supported in any measure by the state may I go on the pension list when thus engaged?'
> "Under the circumstances as described above will the teacher be considered as having retired from teaching in the sense that he will be entitled to a pension according to section 7882 G. C.?"

Mr. Cook, of your department, advises that the question sought to be submitted may be stated thus:

> "May a teacher, who is eligible to retire under the provisions of section 7882 G. C., voluntarily retire and subsequently be entitled to a pension under section 7883 G. C., although employed in a college or academy not supported in any measure by the state?"

Section 7882 G. C., to which reference is made in your inquiry, provides as follows:

> "Any teacher may retire and become a beneficiary under this chapter who has taught for a period aggregating thirty years. But one-half of such term of service must have been rendered in the public schools or in the high schools of such school district, or in the public schools or high schools of the county in which the district is located, and the remaining one-half in the public schools of this state or elsewhere."

Under the provisions of this section a teacher who has taught for a period aggregating thirty years, one-half of which service has been rendered in the public schools or in the high schools of the school district in which a teacher's pension fund is provided, or in the public schools or high schools of the county in which such district is located, and the remaining one-half in the public schools of this state or elsewhere may voluntarily retire and become a beneficiary of the teacher's pension fund. If, then, the teacher referred to meets all the requirements of the above section, he or she is eligible to retire voluntarily and become a beneficiary of the pension fund. Provision is also found in section 7880 G. C. for the retirement of teachers who have taught for a period aggregating twenty years, by the board of education.

Section 7883 G. C. provides as follows:

"Each teacher so retired or retiring shall be entitled during the remainder of his or her natural life to receive as pension, annually, twelve dollars and fifty cents for each year of service as teacher, except that in no event shall the pension paid to a teacher exceed four hundred and fifty dollars in any one year. Such pensions shall be paid monthly during the school year."

In an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, under date of April 24, 1914, addressed to Hon. George M. Hoaglin, member of the house of representatives, found at page 496 of the Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1914, it was held that:

"If a teacher is forced to retire by virtue of the provisions contained in section 7880 supra, and also comes within the provisions of said section as to the length of time such teacher has taught, then such teacher can teach in other public schools of the state than the one from which such teacher has retired, or in the public institutions of the state and continue to draw her pension.

"If a teacher requests to voluntarily retire from teaching in accordance with the provisions contained in section 7882 and provided further that such teacher comes within the requirement as to the length of time taught in such school from which such teacher so voluntarily retires, then such teacher may teach in other public schools of the state than the one from which such teacher so voluntarily retires, or in public institutions of the state, and continue to draw her pension."

As oberved by my predecessor in the above mentioned opinion, it is provided by section 7883 G. C., without qualification, limitation or further condition than those found in section 7880 and section 7882, that a teacher retired or retiring, in accordance and full compliance with the provisions of said last mentioned section, shall be entitled, during the remainder of his or her natural life, to receive the pension provided by section 7883 G. C., without regard to the employment of such teacher after such retirement. That is to say, the employment of a teacher after retirement is immaterial to the continuance of the right of such teacher to a pension, and if the teacher referred to in your inquiry meets all the conditions of section 7882 G. C., and pursuant to the provisions thereof voluntarily retires from service in the schools, whereby he is entitled to the pension provided by section 7883 G. C., his right thereto will not in any way be effected by his future employment in any college or academy not supported by the state.

I concur in the above mentioned opinion of my predecessor.

In answer to your question whether a teacher who is eligible to retire under the provisions of section 7882 G. C. may voluntarily retire from the service of the school district and subsequently be entitled to a pension under the provisions of section 7883 G. C., although employed in a college or academy not supported in any measure by the state, I am of opinion that a teacher who has taught for a period aggregating thirty years, in full compliance with all the provisions of section 7882 G. C., he or she may voluntarily retire from the service of the school district in which he or she has been employed and be entitled to the pension provided by section 7883 G. C. if there is in such school district a teacher's pension fund, and that the employment of such teacher subsequent to such retirement in a college or academy, not in any measure supported by the state, will not defeat or in any way affect the right of such teacher to such pension.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—CASS HIGHWAY LAW—LEVIES FOR ROAD PURPOSES UPON TAXABLE PROPERTY OF TOWNSHIP, DISTINGUISHED.

Distinquishment of the several levies that may be made for road purposes under the provisions of the Cass highway law upon the taxable property within a given township or part thereof.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 6, 1916.

HON. P. A. SAYLOR, Prosecuting Attorney, Eaton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your request for an opinion under date of September 26, 1916, which request reads as follows:

> "A question has been raised as to the proper construction of section 3298-18 General Code of Ohio, the same being section 239 of the Cass highway act, which is as follows:
> " 'Section 239. After the annual estimate for each township has been filed with the trustees of the township by the county highway superintendent, they may increase or reduce the amount of any of the items contained in said estimate, and at their first meeting after said estimate is filed, they shall make their levies for the purposes set forth in the estimate upon all of the taxable property of the townships, not exceeding in the aggregate two mills in any one year upon each dollar of the valuation of such taxable property in said township, outside of any incorporated village or city. Such levies shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for township purposes, but subject, however, to the limitation upon the combined maximum rate for all taxes now in force. The amount levied to cover the estimate made for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of highways, shall be known as the township highway fund. The provisions of this section shall not prevent the expenditure of any portion of the regular levy of two mills for township purposes, but the levies herein provided for are in addition thereto. Such levy shall amount to at least twenty dollars for each mile of township road within such township.'

"The township trustees of Monroe township in Preble county, Ohio, raises the question as to whether the amount of $20.00 to be levied for each mile of township road within such township is for the sole use and purpose of the township's share of the cost of said highway. If it is not used, or to be used, for the township proportion or portion of the cost of said highways that are being put through some of our townships, then how is the township to raise the funds necessary to meet the township portion?

"I will give you an example. There has been put through Jackson township in Preble county, Ohio, such a road. Jackson township levied for their general road purpose, one and nine-tenths mills. This rate raised just about enough money to pay the township's portion of the said road and left the township nothing to apply on the balance of the roads in the township. The township has a centralized high school and this left the roads in a pretty bad shape. Is 3298-18 intended to cover just such a case as Jackson township, or is the minimum of $20.00 that is to be levied there to be applied on all the roads of the township, and in figuring this $20.00 would you adhere strictly to the definition of township roads?"

I note your reference in the first sentence of your letter following your quotation of section 3298-18 G. C. to "said highway," but observe that prior to the use of this term you do not refer to any highway. I gather from your letter, however, that you have in mind two classes of road work in which townships may be interested, to wit.; (1) improvements of considerable magnitude, the cost of which is being met in part by the township and in part from other sources, and (2) minor repairs, the entire cost of which it is desired shall be met out of township funds. It is somewhat difficult to determine from your communication the exact question upon which the township authorities in your county are in doubt and upon which you desire my opinion, and I have concluded that your inquiry may be best answered by a brief reference to the several road levies which may be made upon the taxable property within a township or part thereof, either by the township trustees or other authorities, and the purposes for which such levies may be used.

It should first be observed that there cannot at the present time be, either in the county or township treasury, any funds produced by a levy made under the Cass highway law. Under the terms of section 304 of the Cass highway law that act went into effect on the first Monday in September, 1915. It will thus be seen that all tax levies for road purposes made in the year 1915 were made under the statutes in existence prior to the taking effect of the Cass highway law. Levies under the Cass highway law were made for the first time in the year 1916 and the funds produced by such levies will not be available for appropriation and expenditure until the beginning of the fiscal half year commencing on March 1, 1917. It was held by this department, however, in opinion No. 1910, rendered to Hon. Dean E. Stanley, prosecuting attorney of Warren county, on September 9, 1916, that where in the year 1915 a tax levy was made by county commissioners upon the grand duplicate of the county for the purpose of paying the county's share of road improvements or repairs carried forward by the county commissioners under any one of the several statutes under which the same might have been made, such levy being general in character and designed to produce funds for the payment of the county's share of the cost and expense of improving or repairing roads generally, the proceeds of such levy, coming into the county treasury and being available for appropriation and expenditure after the taking effect of the Cass highway law, are available for the purpose of paying the county's share of the cost and expense of improving roads under chapter VI of the Cass highway law. The same principle would apply in the instance of funds produced by a levy made by township trustees for road purposes. As an illustration, a levy made by township trustees in the year 1915, under authority of section 7019 G. C., now repealed, for the purpose of improving by macadamizing and graveling the public highways in the township and coming into the treasury after the repeal of said section 7019 G. C. and the succeeding sections, is to be expended by the township trustees for the purpose for which it was levied but the machinery provided by the Cass highway law is to be used in making such expenditure. I am enclosing for your information a copy of the opinion rendered to Mr. Stanley and referred to above and believe that the same, together with the further explanation herein added, will be a sufficient guide in the expenditure of funds levied prior to the taking effect of the Cass highway law and coming into the treasury of the county or any given township, after the taking effect of such act.

Coming now to consider the several levies which, under the provisions of the Cass highway law, may be levied by the township trustees or other authority upon the taxable property of a township or part thereof for road purposes, section 60 of the Cass highway law, section 3298-1 G. C. should first be considered. The levy provided for by this section is to be made by the township trustees on all the taxable property of a township, including that within any municipal corporation or corporations therein situated. The proceeds of this levy may be used for improving, dragging, repairing or maintaining public roads where the work is carried forward by the township trustees. Funds produced by this levy should not be used by the township trustees in co-operation either with the county or with the state.

The levy provided for by section 72 of the act, section 3298-13 G. C., is to be made by township trustees on all the taxable property of the township, including that within any municipal corporation or corporations therein situated. This levy is purely for sinking fund purposes and the proceeds thereof can be used only for the payment of the principal and interest on bonds issued by the township trustees under the preceding sections of the Cass highway law.

The levy provided for by section 106 of the act, section 6927 G. C., is to be made by the county commissioners upon all the taxable property of a township or townships interested in any specific improvement, including that within any municipal corporation or corporations therein situated and the proceeds of this levy are to be expended by the county commissioners in the manner provided in chapter VI of the Cass highway law. The township trustees have no authority whatever in connection with this levy either in the making of the same or in the expenditure of the proceeds.

The levy provided for by the second paragraph of section 215 of the act, section 1222 G. C., is to be made by the township trustees on all the taxable property of a township interested in the construction of an inter-county highway or main market road carried forward by the state highway department, including the taxable property within any municipal corporation or corporations therein situated. Funds produced by this levy are to be expended under the supervision of the state highway department.

The levy provided for by section 239 of the act, section 3298-18 G. C., is to be made for the purposes set forth in the annual estimate of the county highway superintendent, which estimate, under the provisions of section 144 of the act, section 7187 G. C., is to cover the improvement, maintenance and repair of roads, bridges and culverts and the construction of new roads. This levy is to be made by the township trustees on the taxable property of a township outside of any incorporated village or city therein situated and must amount to at least twenty dollars for each mile of township road within such township. This last named provision sets forth a minimum requirement and not a limitation on the size of the levy, and in construing the same the expression "township road" is to be given the meaning set forth in the definition of "township roads" found in section 241 of the act.

The proceeds of this levy should not be used in co-operating either with the county or state, and while the proceeds of such levy may be used for construction work, if construction work be covered in the annual estimate of the county highway superintendent, yet the primary purpose of the levy, at least to the extent of its minimum requirement, is the creation of a maintenance and repair fund to be applied by the township trustees upon township roads, as defined in section 7464 G. C.

The levy provided for by section 257 of the act, section 3298-20 G. C., is to be made by the township trustees on all taxable property of the township, including that within any municipal corporation or corporations therein situated, for the purpose of purchasing real property containing suitable stone or gravel and the necessary machinery for operating the same and can be made only in the event of a favorable vote by the qualified electors of the township had in the manner provided for in the section in question.

I am sending you under separate cover, and for your further information, copy of a pamphlet containing, at page 105 thereof, opinion No. 1408 of this department, rendered to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, on March 22, 1916, and relating to the limitations upon the several levies herein discussed. As previously stated, the character of your inquiry has rendered necessary a general discussion of tax levies for road purposes upon townships or parts thereof, but I trust that this opinion, read in connection with opinion No. 1408 and opinion No. 1910 of this department, will constitute a complete answer to the questions confronting the township authorities in your county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY VILLAGE OF CRESTLINE.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 6, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of the village of Crestline, Ohio, in the sum of $4,044.24, issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the improvement of North Seltzer street, being one bond of $444.24 and nine bonds of $400.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the council and other officers of the village of Crestline, Ohio, in reference to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached; and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds, drawn in accordance with the form submitted, and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said village.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, CONTRACT BETWEEN BOARD OF CONTROL OF OHIO AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION AND FIRM OF LONG & BOGNER FOR CONSTRUCTION OF ANIMAL HUSBANDRY BUILDING.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 6, 1916.

Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have examined the contract entered into on August 17, 1916, between the board of control of your station and the firm of Long & Bogner for the construction and completion of an animal husbandry building for the sum of four thousand four hundred and eighty-seven dollars ($4,487.00), together with the personal bond securing the performance of said contract, and find the same to be within the estimate and in compliance with law.

I have likewise received from the auditor of state a certificate that there is money available under an appropriation made to your board.

Therefore, I have this day noted my approval upon the contract and caused the same to be filed in the office of the auditor of state.

I am herewith returning to you a duplicate of said contract together with the other papers which you have submitted in this matter.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SALE OF WOOD AND DENATURED GRAIN ALCOHOL——STATUTES REGULATING SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS AND ALSO THOSE GOVERNING ADULTERATED FOOD AND DRUGS HAVE NO APPLICATION—MAY BE SOLD BY GARAGE MEN AND HARDWARE DEALERS—CONTAINERS—HOW LABELED.

Statutes regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors and those governing the sale of adulterated food and drugs have no application to the sale of wood and denatured grain alcohol.

Wood and denatured grain alcohol may be sold by garage men, hardware dealers and other persons who are not registered pharmacists, or regular druggists, and by persons who have neither a saloon nor a wholesale liquor license.

The containers and packages in which wood or denatured grain alcohol are sold are not required to be so labeled as to show the percentage of purity, strength and quality thereof when below the standard laid down in the United States Pharmacopoeia.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 7, 1916.

The Board of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a communication from Mr. T. L. Calvert, chief dairy and food division, as follows:

> "Complaints have come to me that dealers are selling alcohol and are not registered pharmacists. Owing to the large amount of alcohol used in automobiles in winter it has become a practice of many garages and other dealers to sell alcohol. I therefore request an opinion as to whether alcohol, either wood or grain, can be lawfully sold by garage men, hardware dealers or any firm or person not a registered pharmacist, also if each container or package should be labeled as to kind of alcohol, giving the percent. if it does not come up to the standard required by the United States Pharmacopoeia. An early opinion will be greatly appreciated."

Reference is made in the above inquiry to both wood and grain alcohol, but in view of the purpose mentioned for which the same is to be used, it is assumed that the grain alcohol contemplated is necessarily only denatured grain alcohol, and it is upon this assumption that the questions submitted are considered.

Manifestly the above inquiry is directed to the application of the statutes regulatory of the sale of intoxicating liquors and to those governing the sale of food and drugs within this state.

It is impracticable to here refer to and give particular consideration to all the statutes in operation regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors.

The phrase "intoxicating liquor," is defined, for the purpose of the statutes regulating the sale of the same, by section 6064 G. C. as follows:

> "The phrase 'intoxicating liquor,' as used in this chapter and in the penal statutes relating thereto, means any distilled, malt, vinous or any intoxicating liquor except in sub-divisions II and VI of this chapter, entitled 'taxation' and 'local option in municipal corporations' respectively, and the penal statutes relating thereto, in which cases such phrase means any distilled, malt, vinous or any other intoxicating liquor."

This definition of "intoxicating liquor" must, however, be considered in the light of, and in connection with, the statutory provisions to which it is to be applied, and particularly with a view to the purpose of such statutory provisions.

That the sole purpose of the liquor license law, the local option laws and further statutes regulatory of the sale of intoxicating liquors as defined by section 6064 G. C. supra, is the regulation of the sale of those liquors only which are intoxicating and which are or may be used as a beverage, it is believed would not be controverted. The primary, if not the only, purpose of section 6064 G. C. is to set at rest all questions of fact as to the intoxicating property of those classes of liquors therein referred to manifestly having in contemplation their use as a beverage. In short, the term liquor, throughout the law of the state regulatory of the sale of intoxicants comprehends only those liquids or liquors which are used as beverages.

In the case of Pennell v. State, 141 Wis., 35, the court in the course of the opinion said:

> "The word 'liquor' and the associated word 'drinks' in the statutes regulating or forbidding the sale of intoxicants, should be taken to mean an alcoholic beverage."

The force of this interpretation of the term "liquor" is to confine its application, where found in that class of statutes referred to, to beverages.

While both wood alcohol and denatured grain alcohol are distilled liquors, neither is used as a beverage. Though wood alcohol may have in some degree the intoxicating properties of grain alcohol, it is of so highly a poisonous nature that it may not be used as a beverage and though grain alcohol, when denatured, may retain its intoxicating property, it also may no longer be used as a beverage.

Since then neither wood nor denatured grain alcohol is a beverage and therefore not within contemplation of the statutes regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, including the provisions for such sales by registered pharmacists, those statutes have no application to the sale thereof.

We may next consider whether the sale of wood or denatured grain alcohol are subject to the statutes governing the sale of food and drugs.

That neither wood nor denatured alcohol is a food is too palpable to necessitate discussion. Whether either or both are drugs within contemplation of the statutes applicable to the sale of drugs involves a consideration of the definition of the term "drug" for the purposes of the food and drug laws, as found in section 5775 G. C., which provides in part as follows:

> "The term 'drug' as used in this chapter includes all medicines for internal or external use or inhalation, antiseptics, disinfectants and cosmetics."

There seems no ground for argument that as a matter of common understanding neither wood nor denatured grain alcohol comes within any of those classes of articles mentioned in the above definition. Neither is a medicine for internal or external use nor inhalation, an antiseptic, a disinfectant or a cosmetic, and hence not a drug as that term is used in the chapter of the statutes regulating the sale of drugs, viz., chapter 1, title II of part second of the General Code.

Section 5777 G. C. defines the adulteration of drugs and makes reference to the standard of strength, quality and purity of drugs as laid down in the eighth decennial revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia. The term "drug," as here used, is subject to the above definition in section 5775 G. C. and hence comprehends neither wood nor denatured grain alcohol. That is to say, chapter I, title II of part second of the General Code has no application to the sale of wood or denatured grain alcohol.

Coming to answer your first question, whether either wood or (denatured) grain alcohol can be lawfully sold by garage men and hardware dealers or persons or firms not registered pharmacists, specifically, I am of opinion that wood and denatured alcohol may be sold by garage men, hardware dealers and other persons who are not registered pharmacists, or regular druggists, and by persons who have neither a saloon nor wholesale liquor license.

As to your second question as to whether each container or package should be labeled as to kind of alcohol, giving the per cent. if it does not come up to the standard required by the United States Pharmacopoeia, I am of opinion that the statutes regulating the sale of adulterated food and drugs have no application to the sale of the articles mentioned and that the containers or packages of same are not required to be so labeled as to show the percentage of purity, strength and quality of the alcohol sold when below the standard laid down in the United States Pharmacopoeia.

While your inquiry, perhaps, does not contemplate the same, it should here be observed that in the sale of wood alcohol and denatured grain alcohol, which by the process of denaturing becomes highly poisonous, regard must be had to the provision of section 12666 G. C. et seq.

Said section 12666 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "Whoever, knowingly sells or delivers to any person otherwise than in the manner prescribed by law, or sells or delivers in the manner prescribed by law but without the written order of an adult, to a minor under sixteen years of age, any of the following described substances or any poisonous compounds, combinations or preparations thereof, to wit: the compounds and salts of antimony, arsenic, chromium, copper, * * * or other virulent poison, shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense."

The manner of the sale and delivery of the articles mentioned in section 12666 G. C., "provided by law" as therein referred to, is found in sections 12667 to 12671 G. C., both inclusive, and in the sale of wood alcohol and denatured grain alcohol the provisions of said sections above mentioned should be complied with.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGES—ADDITIONAL SALARY—HOW PAID—SOURCE —SEE OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL FOR YEAR 1915, PAGE 206.

The provisions of section 2252-2 G. C. as enacted 104 O. L. 250, apply to common pleas judges appointed prior to the date when the act became effective, as well as to such judges elected by the people prior to such date. Accordingly, after said act became effective, the additional salary of a common pleas judge, serving under such an appointment, should have been paid solely from the treasury of the county in which such judge resided.

The principles of the opinion of March 1, 1915 (Opinions of the Attorney-General, 1915, 206) applied to the determination of the salaries payable to judges in (original) subdivision 2 of the fourth judicial district, from July 1, 1913, to July 1, 1915, and the sources from which such additional salaries should have been paid.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 7, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of September 30, requesting my opinion as follows:

"Following is a statement showing the dates of election, appointment and resignation of the judges of the common pleas court of the second subdivision of the fourth judicial district as originally constituted, in office at any time during the period from July 1, 1913 to July 1, 1915, and similar facts as to the immediate predecessors of some of them.

County.	Judge.	Term Began.
Lorain	Stroup	Jan. 1, 1911	Resigned Aug. 31, 1914.
Lorain	Redington	Sept. 1, 1914	Expires Dec. 31, 1916.
Summit	Wanamaker	May 2, 1911	Resigned Dec. 31, 1912.
Summit	Ahern (by appointment)	Jan. 2, 1913	Expired Dec. 8, 1914.
Summit	Ahern (by election)	Dec. 9, 1914	Expires May 1, 1917.
Summit	Doyle	Jan. 1, 1913	Expires Dec. 31, 1918.
Summit	Rogers	Feb. 9, 1913	Resigned Nov. 9, 1914.
Summit	Fritch (by appointment)	Nov. 17, 1914

"At the November, 1914, election, Hon. N. H. McClure, of Medina County, Ohio, was elected resident judge of Medina county, Ohio, (section 1532 G. C. as amended Ohio Laws 243) and after qualifying, assumed the duties of his office January 1, 1915.

"Please advise to what additional salaries each of said judges in office during such period were entitled during the same, and from what sources such salaries should have been paid."

For the sake of brevity I shall not retrace the steps taken by me in dealing with similar questions in the opinion to the bureau under date of March 1, 1915, Opinions of the Attorney-General for that year, page 206. All but one of the questions presented by your inquiry are answered by that opinion, which embodied an interpretation of sections 2252, 2252-2 and 2253 of the General Code as amended 104 O. L. 250; section 1532 G. C. as amended 104 O. L. 243; article IV, section 3 of the constitution as amended in 1912; the general schedule of the constitutional amendments of 1912, and the schedule of article IV of the constitution as then amended.

Without repeating either the general conclusions or the underlying reasoning therefor, expressed in that opinion, I shall proceed first to apply its principles to so much of the situation described by you as is governed thereby.

Judge Stroup was on January 1, 1913, holding office as a regularly elected judge. On June 8, 1914, when the amendments in 104 O. L. 250 became effective, he was a "judge of the court of common pleas heretofore elected," and thenceforth, until the end of his term, he was entitled to the additional salary provided for by law at the time of his election, payable, however, on and after June 8, 1914, from the treasury of the county in which he resided, viz., Lorain county; that is to say, Judge Stroup was entitled, for the period beginning with June 8, 1914 and ending on August 31, 1914, both days being included, to additional salary at the rate of $16.00 for each one thousand population of Lorain county, the annual salary so determined to be not less than $1,000.00 nor more than $3,000.00, payable during that period solely from the treasury of Lorain county. Prior to that date Judge Stroup was entitled to the same salary, payable, however, from the treauries of the counties of the subdivision as it then existed, in proportion to their respective populations.

During Judge Stroup's entire term the subdivision consisted of the three counties named by you: so that from July 1, 1913, to June 7, 1914, inclusive, the above described salary was payable from the treasuries of the three counties proportionally, and during the remainder of his term he was entitled to the same salary, payable, however, solely from the treasury of Lorain county.

Judge Redington was appointed September 1, 1914, to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Stroup, and, as I am advised by the report of your examiner, he held his office until July 1, 1915, and is still holding same by virtue of such appointment, because, though an election was attempted to be held under the provisions of the constitution and statutes, for the purpose of filling out the unexpired term begun by Judge Stroup, it has been judicially determined by the supreme court that such election was void.

It thus appears that throughout Judge Redington's tenure of office during the period described by you, viz., from September 1, 1914 to June 30, 1915, inclusive, Judge Redington had the status of a judge appointed to fill out the unexpired term of a judge elected as a district judge prior to January 1, 1913. He took office after section 2252 of the General Code was amended (104 O. L. 250) and accordingly was entitled to additional salary at the rate of $25.00 per one thousand population of Lorain county, not to exceed, however, $3,000.00 per annum. His status was that of a judge of the subdivision, and accordingly at the outset of his tenure his salary should have been paid quarterly from the treasuries of the several counties of the subdivision in proportion to the population thereof.

At the time he assumed office under his appointment, viz., September 1, 1914, the subdivision still consisted of Lorain, Medina and Summit counties, but on December 9, 1914, Judge Ahern assumed office in Summit county under an election to fill out an unexpired term, and he (Judge Ahern), by virtue of such election, was "the resident common pleas judge" of Summit county and his election and qualification had the effect of taking Summit county out of the subdivision.

Similarly, on January 1, 1915, Judge McClure, who had been regularly elected under the statute as resident common pleas judge of Medina county, qualified and assumed the duties of his office; and this had the effect of taking Medina county out of the subdivision.

Therefore, Judge Redington's additional salary, at the rate of $25.00 per thousand population of Lorain county, etc., should have been paid from September 1, 1914 to December 8, 1914, inclusive, proportionally from the treasuries of the three counties from December 9, 1914 to December 31, 1914, inclusive, proportionally from the treasuries of Lorain and Medina counties, and from January 1, 1915 to July 1, 1915, both inclusive, solely from the treasury of Lorain county.

Turning to Medina county and considering the case of Judge McClure, it is clear that his case offers no special difficulty. His salary should have been paid from the outset solely from the treasury of Medina county, as he was the resident county judge of that county. The amount of his salary was fixed of course by section 2252 G. C. as amended, viz., $25.00 for each one thousand population of Medina county, and not to exceed $3,000.00 per annum.

Coming now to Summit county, the first case which I shall consider is that of Judge Doyle. He was a common pleas judge, elected prior to January 1, 1913, and one to whom of course the provisions of section 2252-2 G. C. (as enacted 104 O. L. 250) apply. During the entire period covered by the examination then, his additional salary was determined in amount by original section 2252, viz., $16.00 per thousand population of Summit county, to be not less than $1,000.00 nor more than $3,000.00 per annum. From July 1, 1913 to June 8, 1914, that additional salary was payable to Judge Doyle from the treasuries of the three counties proportionally; but from and after June 7, 1914, it should have been paid solely from the treasury of Summit county.

The same observations apply fully to the case of Judge Rogers. Judge Fritch was appointed on November 17, 1914, and of course held under this appointment during the entire period covered by the examination, there being no opportunity to fill out Judge Rogers' unexpired term by election during that period.

When Judge Fritch took his office on November 17, 1914, Summit county was still a part of the subdivision and until Judge Ahern's qualification as an elected judge took place on December 9, 1914, it continued to be a part thereof. Therefore, from November 17 to December 8 inclusive, Judge Fritch's additional salary, which was at the rate of $25.00 for each one thousand population of Summit county, and not more than $3,000.00 per annum, was payable proportionally from the treasuries of the three counties. On and after December 9, 1914, however, Summit county ceased to be a part of the subdivision, and thereafter Judge Fritch's additional salary should have been paid solely from the treasury of Summit county.

The case of Judge Ahern offers the greatest difficulty, because it is the only case, of those brought to light by the examination, which is not explicitly covered by the previous opinion referred to. It appears that during the period of the examination up to and including December 8, 1914, Judge Ahern was serving by virtue of an appointment to succeed Judge Wanamaker, such appointment having been made on January 2, 1913, prior to the amendments in 104 O. L. 250.

From December 9, 1914, to the end of the period covered by the examination, Judge Ahern was serving, as above stated, as a regularly elected resident judge of Summit county. For this last described period his additional salary was of course determined by section 2252 as amended and he was entitled to such additional salary, at the rate of $25.00 for each one thousand population of Summit county, but not more than $3,000.00 per annum, payable solely from the treasury of Summit county.

During his tenure by appointment, however, the question as to his additional compensation must be decided by principles developed in the previous opinion, though not applied therein to any case just like that of Judge Ahern. For reasons stated in that opinion, the amount of Judge Ahern's additional compensation could not be increased or diminished during his term of office (article IV, section 14 of the constitution). Therefore, irrespective of the provisions of section 2252-2 G. C., the question of the application of which to the case of Judge Ahern will be hereinafter considered, his additional salary during his tenure by appointment remianed unchanged in amount.

The question now arises as to the source or sources from which this salary should have been paid. This question of course does not exist with respect to the period of time within the purview of the examination prior to June 8, 1914. During that time Judge Ahern's additional compensation was of course paid from the treasuries of the several counties proportionally.

On and after June 8, 1914, however, the source from which Judge Ahern's additional compensation should have been paid is to be determined by consideration of the force and effect of section 2252-2 G. C. In terms this provision applies only to judges "heretofore elected," and as to them it has the effect not only of prescribing the amount of the additional salary which they shall receive (in which respect its provision may be regarded as unnecessary, because of the existence of article IV, section 14 of the constitution), but also of changing the source from which such additional salary was to be paid.

Is the word "elected" in section 2252-2 G. C. to receive a liberal interpretation so as to make the section applicable to all judges in office at the time of its enactment; or is it to be given a strict and literal interpretation, so as to exclude from its operation such judges so in office as were holding by virtue of appointment instead of election? This question is not answered by the holding in the opinion above referred to, respecting a judge appointed after June 8, 1914; for it is manifest that whatever significance is given to the word "elected" in section 2252-2 G. C., the presence therein of the word "heretofore" precludes its application to a judge either elected or appointed after it became effective.

In my opinion this question is to be resolved in favor of a liberal interpretation. While many incongruous results are produced by an application of the plain and unmistakable terms of section 2252-2 of the General Code, as worked out in the former opinion referred to, yet such results follow only because they are unavoidable; and where the section is susceptible of more than one interpretation, I am convinced that it should receive such an interpretation as to avoid further absurdities.

I do not think that the legislature intended to discriminate between elected judges and appointed judges in section 2252-2, and I take it that the word "elected" is susceptible of both meanings. The context here shows that the primary legislativ intention was to enact the rule for the payment of salaries of judges to whom, because of the limitation of the constitution, the amendment of section 2252 G. C., then made, could not apply. I think that the form of the act is such as to evince a disposition to cover every conceivable case and to leave no case to be provided for merely by the implication resulting from the force of the constitutional provision above cited, without the aid of section 2252-2 G. C.

In other words, the legislature intended to cover the whole field in the act found in 104 O. L. 250. But in order that the whole field may be covered, it will be necessary to read the word "elected" in the broad sense, as if it included the idea of appointment as well as that of technical election by the people.

For all the foregoing reasons I advise that Judge Ahern's additional salary from January 2, 1913 to June 8, 1914, should have been paid proportionally from the treasuries of the several counties of the subdivision; and from June 8, 1914 to December 8, 1914, inclusive, solely from the treasury of Summit county. The amount to which he was entitled, while holding by virtue of his appointment, was of course to be determined, as hereinbefore stated, according to original section 2252 G. C., viz., at the rate of $16.00 for each one thousand population of Summit county, and not less than one thousand dollars nor more than three thousand dollars per annum.

I understand that your question relates exclusively to the additional salaries of the several judges referred to and the source of payment thereof. Accordingly, I express no opinion herein as to the expenses and additional compensation receivable by any of them under section 2253 G. C.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

DISAPPROVAL, RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF WOODSFIELD-BARNESVILLE ROAD IN MONROE COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 10, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of October 9, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolution relating to the improvement of section "E" of the Woodsfield-Barnesville road, Pet. No. 2714, I. C. H. No. 104, in Monroe county.

I am returning this resolution without my approval for the reason that it appears by the certificate of the chief clerk of the state highway department that main market road funds are to be used for the improvement in question and does not appear either by the description of the highway in question or by an attached certificate that the road to be improved is a main market road.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—HOW PERSONS WHO TRAFFIC IN SAME CAN BE PLACED UPON DUPLICATE FOR DOW-AIKEN LIQUOR TAX WHO HAVE NOT BEEN SO CHARGED—PROSECUTING ATTORNEY'S DUTY WHEN HE HAS KNOWLEDGE OF SUCH VIOLATION.

There is no further method prescribed by statute for entering upon the assessment duplicate of the county the names of persons, firms and corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors than those found in section 6085 G. C., section 6087 G. C., 104 O. L. 166, section 6088 G. C. and section 6089 G. C., 103 O. L. 442.

There is not by statute imposed upon the prosecuting attorney the duty of causing to be entered upon the assessment duplicate of the county the names of persons, firms and corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors whose names have not already been so entered upon such assessment duplicate.

It is the duty of the prosecuting attorney, as the legal adviser of the county auditor and county treasurer, to bring to the attention of such auditor and treasurer, when the same comes to the knowledge of the prosecuting attorney, the fact that persons, firms or corporations, whose names are not already entered upon the assessment duplicate of the county, are engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors and liable to assessment.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 11, 1916.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of September 26, 1916, is as follows:

> "Aside from the methods provided by section 6085 General Code, and sections 6087, 6088 and 6089 General Code, as amended 103 O. L. 442, is there any other way provided by law to cause a person who trafficks in intoxicating liquors, to be placed upon the liquor duplicate for the Dow-Aiken liquor tax, who has not been so charged?
> "In the event that a prosecuting attorney secures official knowledge of violations of liquor laws by prosecuting persons for the offense of selling without license, is it his legal duty, under provisions of section 2921 General Code, or any other section of law, to see to it that such person or persons are placed upon the liquor duplicate for such tax?"

It is provided by section 6071 G. C., 103 O. L. 241, that:

> "Upon the business of trafficking in spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors, there shall be assessed yearly and paid into the county treasury, as provided by section 6072, and following of the General Code, by each person, corporation, or co-partnership engaged therein the sum of one thousand dollars."

By section 6072 G. C., 104 O. L. 166, it is provided, with certain exceptions not necessary here to be considered, that such assessment, with any penalty thereon, shall attach and operate as a lien upon the real property on and in which such business is conducted, as of the fourth Monday of May of each year, and that the same shall be paid at the times provided for the payment of taxes on real or personal property within this state, to-wit: one-half on or before the twentieth day of June, and one-half on or before the twentieth day of December of each year.

Section 6077 G. C. provides as follows:

> "If a person, corporation or copartnership refuses or neglects to pay the amount due under the provisions of this chapter within the time therein specified, the county treasurer shall forthwith collect such amount with the penalties thereon, and four per cent. collection fees and costs, by distress and sale, as on execution, from any goods and chattels of such person, corporation or co-partnership."

By section 6081 G. C. it is provided that each assessor shall return to the county auditor a statement as to each place within his jurisdiction where the business is conducted, showing the name of the person, firm or corporation so engaged, with a description of the premises. Section 6085 G. C. requires that the county auditor shall make and preserve duplicates of the assessments and that "upon receiving satisfactory information of such business liable to assessment or increased assessment, not returned by the assessor, he shall forthwith enter an assessment thereon and place it upon such duplicate and upon the county treasurer's copy thereof."

Under section 6087 G. C., 104 O. L. 166, and sections 6088 G. C. and 6089 G. C., 103 O. L. 442, it is required that liquor licensing inspectors appointed by the state liquor licensing board shall make investigation to secure the names of all persons, firms or corporations liable to such assessment or increased assessment, whose names are not already on the duplicate, and report such names to the state liquor licensing board; that the state liquor licensing board shall, upon the report and information submitted, determine and forthwith certify to the auditor of state the names of all persons, firms and corporations liable to such assessment or increased assessment, whose names are not already on the duplicate, together with a description of the premises, and that the auditor of state shall cause all such names to be entered upon the assessment duplicate of the proper county by the auditor thereof. There is thus provided, under the statutes referred to in your inquiry, two methods by which the assessments upon the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquor may be entered upon the assessment duplicate of the county in which such business is being conducted.

Upon careful investigation I find no further method prescribed by statute whereby the assessment upon the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquor may be entered upon the assessment duplicate required to be made and preserved by the county auditor.

As to your first question, whether there is any method prescribed by law for placing upon the assessment duplicate the names of persons, firms or corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors, whose names do not already appear on such duplicate other than those methods provided by section 6085, section 6087 G. C., 104 O. L. 166, and sections 6088 and 6089 G. C., 103 O. L. 442, I am of the opinion that there is no further statutory provision for entering or causing to be entered upon the assessment duplicate of the county, the names of persons, firms or corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors than that found in section 6085 G. C., section 6087 G. C., 104 O. L. 166, section 6088 G. C. and section 6089 G. C., 103 O. L. 442.

Section 2921 G. C. to which reference is made in your second question provides as follows:

> "Upon being satisfied that funds of the county, or public moneys in the hands of the county treasurer or belonging to the county, are about to be or have been misapplied, or that any such public moneys have been illegally drawn, or withheld from, the county treasury, or that a contract in contravention of law has been, or is about to be entered into, or has been or is being executed, or that a contract was procured by fraud or corruption, or that any property, real or personal, belonging to the county is being illegally used or occupied, or is being used or occupied in violation of contract, or that the terms of a contract made by or on behalf of the county are being or have been violated, or that money is due the county, the prosecuting attorneys of the several counties of the state may apply, by civil action in the name of the state, to a court of competent jurisdiction, to restrain such contemplated misapplication of funds, or the completion of such illegal contract not fully completed, or to recover, for the use of the county all public moneys so misapplied or illegally drawn or withheld from the county treasury, or to recover, for the benefit of the county, damages resulting from the execution of such illegal contract, or to recover, for the benefit of the county, such real or personal property so used or occupied, or to recover, for the benefit of the county, damages resulting from the non-performance of the terms of such contract, or to otherwise enforce it, or to recover such money due the county."

It will be observed that it is here provided, among other things, that prosecuting attorneys upon being "satisfied * * * that money is due the county * * * may apply by civil action * * * to recover such money due the county." There is not, however, even indirect reference to any duty of the prosecuting attorney to cause to be entered upon the duplicate of the county any tax or assessment which may be due the county.

The general duties of the prosecuting attorney are prescribed by section 2916 G. C., 103 O. L. 419, and section 2917 G. C. as follows:

"Section 2916. The prosecuting attorney shall have power to inquire into the commission of crimes within the county and except when otherwise provided by law shall prosecute on behalf of the state all complaints, suits, and controversies in which the state is a party, and such other suits, matters, and controversies as he is directed by law to prosecute within or without the county, in the probate court, common pleas court and court of appeals. In conjunction with the attorney-general, he shall also prosecute cases in the supreme court arising in his county. In every case of conviction, he shall forthwith cause execution to be issued for the fine and costs, or costs only, as the case may be, and faithfully urge the collection until it is effected, or found to be impracticable, and forthwith pay to the county treasurer all moneys belonging to the state or county, which come into his possession as fines, forfeitures, costs or otherwise.

"Section 2917. The prosecuting attorney shall be the legal adviser of the county commissioners and all other county officers and county boards and any of them may require of him written opinions or instructions in matters connected with their official duties. He shall prosecute and defend all suits and actions which any such officer or board may direct or to which it is a party, and no county officer may employ other counsel or attorney at the expense of the county except as provided in section twenty-four hundred and twelve. He shall be the legal adviser for all township officers, and no such officer may employ other counsel or attorney except on the order of the township trustees duly entered upon their journal, in which the compensation to be paid for such legal services shall be fixed. Such compensation shall be paid from the township fund."

It will readily be observed from an examination of the foregoing statutes that they impose upon the prosecuting attorney no duty to cause to be entered upon the duplicate assesssments due from persons engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquor. While he is made the legal adviser of the county auditor and county treasurer, upon whom is imposed the duty of entering upon the duplicate the names of all persons, firms and corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquor and the collection of all assessments so entered, the duty of causing such assessments to be so entered is not by law imposed upon the prosecuting attorney.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your second question, that there is not imposed upon the prosecuting attorney by law any duty to cause to be entered upon the duplicate of the county assessments against persons, firms or corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors, although he has knowledge of the conviction of persons, firms or corporations selling intoxicating liquors without having been duly licensed. The duty of causing such assessments to be entered upon the duplicate is imposed upon the state liquor licensing board, the auditor of state and the county auditor, as pointed out in the answer to your first question herein.

While the statutes do not specifically impose upon the prosecuting attorney the duty of causing to be entered upon the assessment duplicate the names of persons, firms and corporations engaged in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors, yet as the legal adviser of the county auditor, whose duty it is to enter the names of such persons, firms or corporations upon the assessment duplicate, and the county treasurer, whose duty it is to collect such assessment, it would seem there could be no doubt that there is a duty imposed upon the prosecuting attorney by the general policy of the law to bring to the attention of those officers, who are specifically charged by law with duties in regard thereto, the fact, when the same comes to his official knowledge, that persons, firms and corporations, whose names have not been entered on the assessment duplicate, are engaging in the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors and liable to the assessment charged by law upon such business.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SUBPOENA MAY ISSUE OUT OF ANY UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT IN ANY CRIMINAL CASE FOR PRISONER IN OHIO STATE REFORMATORY TO APPEAR AS WITNESS, WHEN DULY SERVED.

A subpoena may issue out of any United States district court in any criminal case to any district in the United States and any person on whom such subpoena is duly served is required to answer the same in the court from which such subpoena issued.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 11, 1916.

HON. J. A. LEONARD, Superintendent Ohio State Reformatory, Mansfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of October 7, 1916, is as follows:

> "The superintendent of the reformatory has been served with a subpoena issued by the United States district court for the western district of Kentucky to bring Earl Nelson, a prisoner in the reformatory, before the grand jury at Louisville, Kentucky, on October 11th, next. A subpoena has also been served upon Nelson, commanding appearance at that time.
> "Please advise me as to what action I should take in this matter in view of the fact that the place named in the subpoena is without the state of Ohio."

Your inquiry involves a consideration of sections 876 and 877 U. S. R. S., being sections 1487 and 1488 U. S. Comp. St. 1913, which provides as follows:

> "Section 1487. Subpoenas for witnesses who are required to attend a court of the United States, in any district, may run into any other district: Provided, That in civil causes the witnesses living out of the district in which the court is held do not live at a greater distance than one hundred miles from the place of holding the same."
> "Section 1488. Witnesses who are required to attend any term of a circuit or district court on the part of the United States, shall be subpoenaed to attend to testify generally on their behalf, and not to depart the court without leave thereof, or of the district attorney; and under such process they shall appear before the grand or petit jury, or both, as they may be required by the court or district attorney."

Under authority of section 1487, supra, a subpoena for a witness in a criminal cause may issue out of a United States court in any district to any other district in the United States and by section 4488, supra, any witness so subpoenaed is required to appear before the grand or petit jury, or both, in the court from which such subpoena has issued.

It therefore follows that you and the prisoner mentioned in the inquiry are required, under the subpoena of the United States district court for the western district of Kentucky, to appear in such court on the date mentioned therein, notwithstanding such court is not within the state of Ohio or the district in which the Ohio State reformatory is located.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—NO AUTHORITY FOR ASSESSING TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. OF COST OF ROAD IMPROVEMENT ON PROPERTY LOCATED WITHIN ONE MILE THEREOF—WHEN TWO BOARDS OF TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES ARE AUTHORIZED TO MAKE JOINT APPLICATION FOR STATE AID ON INTERCOUNTY HIGHWAY—ONLY ON COUNTY OR TOWNSHIP LINE ROAD—BONDS CAN BE ISSUED ONLY BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR CO-OPERATION WITH STATE FOR INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAY—TAX LEVIES ARE MADE BY TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES WHERE TOWNSHIP CO-OPERATES WITH STATE.

In re: improvement under the supervision of the state highway department of an inter-county highway in Turtlecreek and Salem townships, Warren county.

There is no authority for a petition to township trustees signed by interested land owners and asking for the improvement of an inter-county highway under the supervision of the state highway department.

Joint applications by two boards of township trustees for state aid on an inter-county highway are authorized only when the highway is upon a county or township line.

Bonds issued for the purpose of raising funds for co-operating with the state in the construction of inter-county highways can be issued only by county commissioners.

Funds for the payment of the proportion of the cost of highway work carried forward by the state highway department to be paid by interested townships are to be raised by tax levies made by township trustees.

Where a township co-operates with the state, the necessary tax levies are to be made by the trustees, but if it is necessary to issue bonds, the same are to be issued by the county commissioners.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 11, 1916.

HON. DEAN E. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of September 23, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "The board of trustees of Salem and Turtlecreek townships in Warren county, Ohio, have consulted me as to the proper course for them to follow in connection with a road improvement, they having already taken certain steps. The facts surrounding this matter and the procedure they have taken in regard to it, as near as I can ascertain, are substantially as follows:
> "On April 22, 1916, a petition was presented to these boards, a substantial copy of which with the description of the proposed road and the signatures omitted, marked No. 1, is enclosed.
> "On April 24, 1916, a resolution was passed by the boards of trustees in joint session, a substantial copy of which, omitting descriptions, is enclosed on the second page.
> "On August 26, 1916, the board of trustees in Turtlecreek township passed what they denominated a 'final resolution,' a substantial copy of which, omitting description, is found on pages three and four of the enclosures herewith.
> "The state highway commissioner having divided the proposed improvement into two sections, one section that part of the road in Turtlecreek township and the other that part of the road in Salem township.
> "I understand that the trustees of Salem township never passed the 'final resolution.' The state highway commissioner advertised the road for sale, but failed to receive a bid. The estimates were then revised and the road has been again advertised by the state highway commissioner. No further resolutions have as yet been passed, the state highway commissioner having requested the several boards to pass a resolution similar to the 'final resolution' above referred to.

"At this point in the proceedings, the trustees consulted me as to their duties and powers in the matter. It seems, from what I can learn of the intention of the parties, that at the time the petition was filed it was thought that the trustees could co-operate with the state under section 1178 to section 1231-4, and at the same time utilize section 3298-15 for the purpose of making assessments against the property located within one mile of the proposed improvements, it being the intention of the parties that the state highway commissioner should furnish 75% of the cost of the improvement and that the remaining 25% should be assessed, by the use of section 3298-15 above referred to, upon property within one mile of the proposed improvement. It will be observed that this course of procedure would have resulted in no money being paid by either board of trustees out of the township funds.

"I desire to inquire as follows:

"First. May this road be constructed by the state highway commissioner paying 75% of the cost and the remaining 25% being assessed on property within one mile?

"Second. If so, what resolutions, if any, should the trustees of the several townships pass in regard thereto and under what sections should they operate?

"Third. In the event the answer to the first question is in the negative, is there any procedure by which the trustees may complete the above proceedings in such a way that the road may be built and if so, what? (Could the state pay 75%, 10% be assessed on abutting property and the remaining 15% be paid by the trustees, considering the proceedings that have already been taken?)

"Fourth. If the answer to the third question is in the affirmative, what resolutions should be passed by the trustees?

"The persons who signed the petition seem to be willing to pay 25% of the cost, but of course some of the parties to be assessed did not sign the petition.

"The funds of Salem township are in such condition that the board of trustees has not in the treasury in their road fund, or in the process of collection, an amount equal to 25% of the cost of the improvement in their township and the entire road tax assessed in Salem township by the trustees, to be collected next December and next June, will not produce more than 15% or 16% of the cost of the improvement in that township.

"All of the parties interested, including the two boards of trustees, are very anxious that the road improvements be made, if it can be legally done, as the road is one of importance to a large number of people and to the public at large.

"I understand that the advertisement of the state highway commissioner provides for receiving bids on the 28th day of September, 1916, on this road, and I am writing him today and telling him that I have submitted questions to you concerning this improvement, thinking that possibly his action on the matter may be dependent upon the steps taken by the trustees in these two townships.

"I regret that the record is in the condition that it is in this matter, but the question was not submitted to me until after the various resolutions and proceedings above referred to had been had by the trustees."

The petition presented to the boards of trustees of Turtlecreek and Salem townships is as follows:

"Road Petition to Construct or Improve.

"To the Boards of Trustees of Salem and Turtlecreek Twps., Warren County, Ohio.

"The undersigned petitioners, being at least fifty-one per cent. of the land or lot owners, residents of said county, who would be specially taxed or assessed for the improvement, hereby petition you for the improvement by grading and graveling at a total cost of not to exceed $2,500 per mile of a public road on the following line, to-wit:

(Here follows description of road.)

"They ask that the following method be used for paying the compensation, damages, costs and expenses thereof, to wit: 25% of the total costs and expenses of said improvement to be assessed by the trustees, upon the real estate, within one mile of either side or terminus of said improvement, in proportion to the benefits accruing therefrom, as may be determined by the trustees, and the balance to be paid by the state highway department upon petition by the township trustees, as provided in sections 3298-15 and 1192 G.C.

"Whereupon we pray that your combined boards will take such measures to the improvement of said road as the statute requires and suggest that said improvement be designated and named the_____Road improvement.

"Dated this 22d day of April, A. D., 1916."

The resolution adopted by the boards of trustees of Salem and Turtlecreek townships, in joint session, reads as follows:

"Resolution of Township Trustees Applying for State Aid.

"Be it resolved by the boards of trustees of Turtlecreek and Salem townships of Warren county, Ohio, in joint meeting assembled, that the public interest demands the improvement, at a total cost not to exceed $2,500.00 per mile, under the provisions of sections 1178 and 1231-4 of the General Code of Ohio, of that part of inter-county highway No. 252 situate in the townships of Turtlecreek and Salem, in the county of Warren, and described as follows (here follows a description of the road):

"Further resolved that whereas the county commissioners of Warren county, Ohio, filed before January 1, 1916, an application for state aid for the construction, improvement. maintenance or repair of highways from funds which be available for said purpose during the present year, but have now, by resolution, relinquished their claim on a part of same, now therefore, we, the trustees of said Turtlecreek and Salem townships in said county, in joint meeting assembled, do hereby make application to the state highway commissioner for aid from any appropriation by the state from any fund available for the construction of inter-county highways, and we do hereby agree for and on behalf of said townships to pay in the first instance from the funds of said townships one-half of the cost and expense of survey and other expense preliminary to the construction of said highway."

The so-called final resolution adopted by the trustees of Turtlecreek township is as follows:

"Final Resolution.

"Whereas at a meeting of the trustees of Turtlecreek township of Warren county, Ohio, held in the office of said township on the 26th day of August, 1916, the improvement of that part of (inter-county highway) No. 252 hereinafter described, under the provisions of sections 1178 and 1231-4 inclusive of the General Code of Ohio, came on for further consideration; said section of road as described in the preliminary application of this board to the state highway department, on the 16th day of April, 1916, being as follows (here follows description of proposed improvement):

"Whereas the state highway commissioner has approved said application and has caused a map of the following described section of said highway to be made in outline and profile, to wit: (here follows description of road in Turtlecreek township) and has caused plans, specifications, profiles and estimates to be made for the improvement above described and has transmitted the same to this board.

"Therefore be it resolved that the section of highway above described in paragraph 2 be improved under the provision of the aforesaid law: that said work be done under the charge, care and supervision of the state highway commissioner and that said maps, plans, specifications, profiles and estimates for this improvement as approved by the state highway commissioner are hereby approved and adopted by this board.

"Resolved that the sum of $2,566, being 25% of the total estimate of the cost and expense of said improvement (which total cost and expense amounts to $10,264) be and the same hereby is appropriated for improving, under the provisions of said law, the highway described in paragraph 2 above, and the township clerk is hereby authorized and directed to issue his order on the township treasurer for said sum, or part thereof, upon the requisition of the state highway commissioner, to pay the cost and expense of said improvement, as the same may become due under the provisions of said law.

"We hereby agree to assume, in the first instance, the share of the cost and expense over and above the amount to be paid by the state and guarantee the state highway commissioner that such money shall be available at such time or times as may be needed in the construction of said highway.

"It is also hereby agreed that the state highway commissioner is relieved from the maintenance and repair of the above road after it is improved and that the trustees of said township agree to be responsible for all necessary maintenance and repair."

It should first be observed that the petition presented by interested land owners may be disregarded in the consideration of the question submitted by you. There is no authority for a petition of this character and the subsequent proceedings have no reference thereto and are not dependent upon the petition for their validity. Petitions addressed to county commissioners for the construction of inter-county highways or main market roads are authorized by section 1204 G. C., 106 O. L. 633, but there is no authority for addressing such petitions to township trustees. Even if such were not the case, the petition suggests an unauthorized method of dividing the cost, inasmuch as under the provisions of section 1214 G. C., 106 O. L. 637, only ten per cent. of the cost of a highway improvement carried forward by the state, excepting therefrom the cost and expense of bridges and culverts, may be specially assessed and such ten per cent. must be assessed upon the property abutting on the improvement.

Coming now to consider the resolution adopted by the boards of trustees of Turtlecreek and Salem townships, in joint session, it should be observed that there is no statutory authority for joint action under the facts of this case as I understand them. I am informed by representatives of the state highway department that inter-county highway No. 252 is not upon the line between Turtlecreek and Salem townships, but that it crosses the line between the two townships and is situated partly within one township and partly within the other. Under the provisions of section 1220 G. C., 106 O. L. 639, two or more townships may make application for state aid in the construction or improvement of inter-county or main market roads upon a county or township line, but there is no authority for two townships making a joint application for state aid in the construction of a road situated partly in one township and partly in the other and not on the line between the two townships. The proper method of procedure in such a case is for each township to make an application for state aid on that part of the highway within its own limits. However, in view of the fact that the joint application was made by the unanimous vote of the trustees of both townships, I am of the opinion that this informality is not fatal and that if as appears in this case the joint application is thereafter treated both by the state highway commissioner and by the trustees of the two townships as a separate application by each board of township trustees for state aid on that part of the highway within its limits, any infirmity existing by reason of the informality or irregularity of the original application may safely be regarded as cured.

Coming now to consider the final resolution adopted by the board of trustees of Turtlecreek township, I find the same to be in substantial compliance with the statute and if the township clerk was able to and did make the certificate required by section 5660 G. C., the final resolution in question is to be regarded as consummating the agreement between the township and the state and looking toward the construction of that part of the inter-county highway in question located in said Turtlecreek township. When the certified copy of this final resolution, with the approval of the attorney-general endorsed thereon as to form and legality, is filed in the office of the state highway commissioner, as provided by section 1218 G. C., 106 O. L. 638, the state highway commissioner will be authorized to enter into a contract for the construction of so much of the highway as lies in Turtlecreek township.

I have deemed it proper to consider the petition, application and final resolution before taking up the specific questions submitted by you for the reason that such petition, application and final resolution suggests certain questions not expressly raised in your letter.

Answering your first question, I advise you that there is no authority for assessing twenty-five per cent. of the cost of the improvement on the property located within one mile thereof. The assessment must be made in the manner provided by section 1214 G. C., which section provides for an assessment of ten per cent. of the cost and expense of the improvement, excepting therefrom the cost and expense of bridges and culverts upon the property abutting on the improvement.

The answer to your first question renders it unnecessary to answer your second.

Your third and fourth questions will be considered in connection with your observation relating to the condition of the funds of Salem township. It should first be observed, however, that if at the time the trustees of Turtlecreek township adopted the so-called final resolution on August 26, 1916, the clerk was able to and did make the certificate required by section 5660 G. C. the only further action necessary to be had before a contract may be let for the improvement in Turtlecreek township is the filing in the office of the state highway commissioner of a certified copy of the final resolution, with the certificate of the township clerk and the approval of the attorney-general endorsed thereon. As the construction of the improvement proceeds, the townships and property owners' share of the cost and expense, twenty-five per cent. will be paid out by the township officials on the requisition of the state highway commissioner. When the improvement is completed and the total cost and expense thereof ascertained and apportioned by the chief highway engineer, and certified to the township trustees, an assessment of ten per cent. will be made upon the owners of the abutting real estate and of course the other fifteen per cent. will necessarily be a charge upon the entire township. If the above condition does not obtain as to Turtlecreek township, then the further observations herein contained and in terms referring only to Salem township, will also be applicable to Turtlecreek township.

Referring to the method to be followed by Salem township in raising the necessary funds to meet the share of the township and property owners, it should be observed that under section 1222 G. C., 106 O. L. 640, the fund for the payment of the proportion of the cost and expense to be paid by a township for the construction of highways, under the supervision of the state highway department, is to be created by a tax levy made by the township trustees. Under the provisions of the next section, section 1223 G. C., bonds issued in anticipation of such taxes and in anticipation of special assessments are to be issued by the county commissioners, and there is no authority for the issuing of bonds of this class by boards of township trustees. It will be necessary, therefore, for the township trustees of Salem township to make the necessary tax levy or levies under section 1222 G. C. and certify their action to the county commissioners, who will then be authorized to issue bonds in anticipation of the collection of such levies, which levies are, of course, to be made only on the taxable property of the township in question and in anticipation of the special assessments to be thereafter made. It will also be necessary for the commissioners, in the issuance of such bonds, to observe the provisions of section 5630-1 G. C., 106 O. L. 495, and prior to the issuance of such bonds it will be necessary for the county commissioners to provide for the levying of a tax upon all the taxable property of the county to cover any deficiency in the payment or collection of the special assessment or township tax.

While the above statement is in terms limited to Salem township, yet as previously observed the statement is also to be regarded as applying in the case of Turtlecreek township, if it be a fact that the necessary funds had not been provided by the trustees of that township prior to the adoption of the final resolution on August 26, 1916.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF WOODSFIELD-BARNESVILLE ROAD IN MONROE COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 11, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of October 11, 1916, submitting for examination final resolution relating to the improvement of section "E" of the Woodsfield-Barnesville road, I. C. H. No. 104, in Monroe county.

I find this resolution to be in regular form and am therefore returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF MORROW-LEBANON ROAD IN WARREN COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 13, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of October 9, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolution relating to the improvement of the Morrow-Lebanon road, section "B," I. C. H. No. 252, petition No. 3054-T, in Turtlecreek township, Warren county.

I find this resolution to be in regular form and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

THE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE OF OHIO—WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO ENTER INTO CONTRACT WITH COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO PAY PORTION OF COST AND EXPENSE OF DITCH IMPROVEMENT —STATE SERUM FARM.

The board of agriculture of Ohio is without authority to enter into a contract with a board of county commissioners whereby the board of agriculture agrees to pay a portion of the cost and expense of the location and construction of a ditch improvement located, established and caused to be constructed by the county commissioners.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 14, 1916.

The Board of Agriculture of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of October 4, 1916, is as follows:

"During the time of ditching and improving the present state serum farm it appears that the superintendent of the said farm closed up the main water course passing through the farm, beginning about the center of the north side of the farm and put in a tile sewer which seemingly is too small to carry off the water, causing the water to back up on the farms on the north side of the highway, which highway lies on the north side of the serum farm.

"The farmers interested have petitioned the commissioners of Licking county to reopen this main water course. If it is reopened and an open ditch passes over the state serum farm it will greatly damage the lawn along the front of the farm and destroy the beauty thereof, and will also make it inconvenient to farm the fields at the western part of the serum farm.

"I have gone into this matter with the commissioners of Licking county and they have proposed to lay a sewer along the north side of the farm and on the south side of the public highway and not interfere with the farm, but the sum of $800.00 has been assessed against the state serum farm as a tax for this outlet. They were going to take final action on the matter today and asked me whether the board of agriculture would sign a contract to the effect that they would pay the amount assessed and not in the future ask for a removal of the sewer laid along the north side of the farm, and to reopen the main water course through the farm.

"In my judgment this is the proper thing to do, to have the sewer on the north side of the farm between the road fence and the highway. Is there any authority whereby this board is authorized to enter into that kind of a contract with the commissioners of Licking county? And has this board the right to agree to pay the $800.00 assessment and make a contract with the commissioners to run the water along the north side of the farm instead of through the farm on the main water course?

"The commissioners of Licking county have postponed their hearing until one week from today, October 11th. Will you advise me so that I can report to them?"

I am further informed by Mr. Stauffer, in personal interview, that there is not now in the state treasury, and appropriated by the legislature, any funds which are available for the purpose referred to in the above inquiry.

This latter statement involves a consideration of the provisions of section 17 of the General Code, which are as follows:

"An officer or agent of the state or of any county, township or municipal corporation, who is charged or intrusted with the construction, improvement or keeping in repair of a building or work of any kind, or with the management or providing for a public institution, shall make no contract binding or purporting to bind the state, or such county, township or municipal corporation, to pay any sum of money not previously appropriated for the purpose for which such contract is made, and remaining unexpended and applicable thereto, unless such officer or agent has been duly authorized to make such contract. If such officer or agent makes or participates in making a contract without such appropriation or authority, he shall be personally liable thereon, and the state, county, township or municipal corporation in whose name or behalf the contract was made, shall not be liable thereon."

The state serum farm is owned, maintained and operated by the state of Ohio by and through its officers and agents who are entrusted with its improvement and management and is manifestly either a "work" or "public institution" within the terms of the above quoted section, and hence the officers and agents of the state, charged and entrusted with the management thereof, are subject to its provisions.

In view of the statement that there is not any fund in the state treasury appropriated and unexpended and applicable to the payment of the expenses of the ditch improvement in question, the provisions of section 17 G. C. supra render it conclusive that it is not within the authority of the board of agriculture to enter into any contract of the character mentioned in the above quoted inquiry.

If there were, however, funds heretofore appropriated and remaining unexpended and applicable to the purpose in question, there is no authority in the county commissioners to enter into any contract in respect to the location or construction of a ditch or drain. County commissioners may, by authority of law, apportion the costs of a ditch improvement among the several owners of private property, according to the benefits derived from such improvement and order the assessments so made placed upon the duplicate against the lands benefited, but are without authority to contract in respect to such assessments. The county commissioners are charged by law with the performance of certain prescribed duties in the location and construction of ditch improvements and the apportionment of the cost and expense thereof and assessment of the same against the lands benefited thereby, but no provision of law relative to the location and construction of a ditch improvement operates to confer upon the county commissioners authority to enter into any contract with the owners of lands benefited by such improvement with respect to the apportionment of the cost of the same among the several owners of lots and lands. Nor is there found, upon careful examination of the statutes, any authority vested in the board of agriculture to enter into any contract whereby the board of agriculture assumes or agrees to pay any portion of the expense of the location or construction of a county ditch such as is referred to in your inquiry.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your question, that the board of agriculture may not lawfully enter into any contract with the county commissioners of Licking county whereby the board of agriculture would be bound to pay any part of the cost and expense of the location and construction of the ditch improvement referred to in the above inquiry.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE—BARNYARD MANURE—INTERPRETATION OF STATUTE REGULATING SALE OF FERTILIZERS.

Barnyard manure includes "Sheep and Hog Manure" as contemplated by section 1150 G. C. The mere drying and preparing "Sheep and Hog Manure" for shipment would not rob it of its character as barnyard manure.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 18, 1916.

The Board of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion as to the term "barnyard manure" is as follows:

> "Section 1150 of the Ohio fertilizer law, as per copy enclosed, exempts from registration and license the sale of barnyard manure. There is a Chicago firm shipping sheep manure into the state which they claim is exempt from license and proper labeling, as in their opinion it is barnyard manure.
>
> "For some years past companies have paid license fees covering shipments of sheep and hog manures and I hardly believe it was the intention of the legislature to exempt from license the sale of these materials. Possibly the term has reference more to chicken dung and stable manures than to sheep and hog manures, which are dried and mechanically prepared before shipping.
> "We will be pleased to have your interpretation of the term 'Barnyard Manure' and whether or not it would include sheep and hog manures when dried and made ready for shipments."

Section 1150 G. C. as amended (103 O. L. 319 and 320) is as follows:

> "Section 1150. Each person, firm or corporation who manufactures, sells, or offers for sale in the state a commercial fertilizer which means any substance for fertilizing or commercial purposes, except barnyard manure, marl, lime and plaster, shall affix to each package in a conspicuous place on the outside thereof, a plainly printed certificate which shall state the number of net pounds contained therein, the name, brand or trade mark, under which it is sold, or offered for sale, the name of the manufacturer, with his or its postoffice address * * *."

The further provisions of the statute direct what the certificate shall show as to the various ingredients of the commercial fertilizer which may be offered for sale, etc.

Barnyard manure is expressly excepted from the operation of the statute, which is penal in its nature, and must, therefore, be construed strictly.

From a reading of the statute, quoted above, it is clear that its purpose is to protect the purchasers of commercial fertilizers from fraud by providing that all such commercial fertilizers, with the exception of barnyard manure, marl, lime and plaster, shall bear a certificate which will contain a chemical analysis showing that it contains certain constituent parts or elements.

By barnyard manure is meant the natural manure to be found in a barnyard, or on the farm, as the result of the keeping of animals of husbandry.

The various kinds of manure mentioned in your letter, when sold in their natural state are to be considered as barnyard manure, as it is my opinion that section 1150 supra applies only to artificially prepared fertilizers as distinguished from manure in its natural state. The mere drying and preparing "Sheep and Hog Manures" for shipment, without the addition of any other ingredient, would not rob it of its character as barnyard manure, as contemplated by the law.

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, LEASE TO IRA M. MILLER, AKRON, OHIO, PORTION OF WATER FRONT ALONG EAST BANK OF SUMMIT LAKE.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 18, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of October 10, 1916, transmitting to me for examination a lease to Ira M. Miller, of Akron, Ohio, covering a portion of the water front along the east bank of Summit Lake.

I find this lease to be in regular form and am therefore returning the same with my approval endorsed upon the triplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,

APPROVAL, SALE OF PORTION OF ABANDONED OHIO CANAL PROPERTY IN ROSS COUNTY TO MISS OLIVE MACE AND ALSO TO MARY A. PRATHER AND MARGARET S. STITT.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 18, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of September 26, 1916, relating to the sale of a portion of the abandoned Ohio canal property in Union township, Ross county, Ohio, to Miss Olive Mace, and also your communication of October 7, 1916, relating to the sale of a portion of the abandoned Ohio canal property in the same vicinity to Mary A. Prather and Margaret S. Stitt.

I find that in each instance the resolution prepared by you recites the existence of the proper jurisdictional facts and I have therefore attached my signature to the duplicate copies of the resolutions and am herewith returning the same to you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—ELECTION OF SECRETARY—CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTES AND RULES AND BY-LAWS OF SAID BOARD REGULATING REGULAR AND SPECIAL MEETINGS.

The meeting of the state board of health held at Cedar Point on August 4, 1916, being held on a day other than the third Thursday of the month, the day fixed by the rules of the board for regular meetings, was a special meeting.

The only business which could be transacted at that meeting was that growing our of the conference with the boards of health for the northern half of Ohio, except by general consent of the members of the board, hence the steps taken to elect a secretary to the board were not properly before the meeting.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 18, 1916.

State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion relative to the "suspension of rules and by-laws" is as follows:

"At a meeting of the state board of health, September 21, 1916, I was instructed to ask for your opinion as to the regularity of actions of the board as recorded in the minutes of the meeting of August 4, 1916.

"In the minutes referred to, a copy of which was sent you on or about August 10, 1916, you will find the following:

" 'Dr. Hasencamp moved that the rules be suspended and that the board proceed with the election of a secretary.

" 'The motion was seconded by Dr. Sutton.

" 'Those voting in the affirmative were Drs. Sutton, Miller, Hasencamp and MacIvor.

" 'In the negative, Dr. Ryall.

" 'Dr. Ryall raised the point of order that the rules could not be suspended except with the consent of a majority of the members of the board.

" 'The president ruled the point of order not well taken.

" 'Dr. Sutton nominated Frank G. Boudreau, M. D., of Columbus, as secretary.

" 'The nomination was seconded by Dr. Hasencamp. There were no other nominations.

" 'Those voting for Dr. Boudreau were Drs. Sutton, Miller, Hasencamp and MacIvor.

" 'Dr. Ryall left the room while the vote was being taken.

" 'The president announced the election of Dr. Boudreau as secretary.'

"Two questions have been raised: First, can less than a majority of the whole membership of the board suspend its rules and by-laws, there being no provisions in the rules and by-laws for a suspension of the rules?

"Second, the record shows that while the vote was being taken on the election of a secretary the member who had protested the suspension of the rules was leaving the room. Query: Was the quorum broken when that member announced his intention of withdrawing from the meeting?

"A copy of the rules and by-laws of the state board of health is attached and your attention is called to rules 7, 27 and 28.

"An early reply will oblige."

Sections 1232 and 1233 of the General Code are as follows:

"Sec. 1232. There shall be a state board of health, consisting of eight members, seven of whom shall be appointed by the governor. Each year the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a member of the board, who shall serve for a term of seven years from the thirteenth day of December. The attorney-general shall be ex-officio a member of the board.

"Sec. 1233. The state board of health shall meet in Columbus during the month of January of each year and at such other times as it may direct. A majority of its members shall constitute a quorum. The board shall choose one of its members as president, and, subject to the provisions of this chapter, may adopt rules and by-laws for its government."

It is provided in section 1234 of the General Code that the state board of health shall elect a secretary and that such secretary may be removed from office for cause "by a vote of a majority of the members of the board."

With your communication you enclose a copy of the rules and by-laws of the Ohio state board of health, and make special reference to rules 7, 27 and 28, which were adopted pursuant to the provisions of section 1233 of the General Code supra. Rule 7 is as follows:

"Five members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business as provided by law."

Section 28 is as follows:

"These rules and by-laws may be amended at any regular meeting of the board by a majority vote of the members of the board."

The situation referred to in the minutes of the meeting of August 4, 1916, an extract of which is presented in your letter, reduced to its simplest form, is that a meeting of the state board of health was called at which there was present a sufficient number of the members to constitute a quorum, namely, five members, or a majority of the board, which, under the provisions of section 1232 G. C. consists of eight members; further, that while the meeting was in progress a motion was made by Dr. Hasencamp that the rules be suspended and that the board proceed with the election of a secretary. The motion was duly seconded and was carried by a vote of four to one, and that following the carrying of the motion Dr. Frank G. Boudreau was nominated as secretary, a vote was taken, four members voted for the nominee, while the fifth member attending the meeting retired from the room during the progress of the voting.

Answering your question specifically, it is clear that the authority given by section 1233 to the board to adopt rules and by-laws for its government may be invoked by the board for the purpose of altering or amending rules made by it. However, the action of the board in suspending the rules was an extraordinary proceeding for which provision is not made by the statutes nor by the rules adopted by your board.

In Cushing's Manual of Parliamentary Practice, which is an authority on parliamentary procedure, it is provided in section 21 that:

"When a code of rules is adopted beforehand it is usual also to provide therein as to the mode in which they may be amended, repealed or dispensed with. Where there is no such provision it will be competent for the assembly to act at any time and in the usual manner on the question of amendment and repeal, but in reference to dispensing with a rule or suspending it in any particular case if there is no express provision on the subject it seems that it can only be done by general consent."

Sections 5 and 6 of the rules and by-laws of the Ohio state board of health are as follows:

> "Section 5. The board shall hold a regular meeting each month and when necessity demands may hold special meetings. Regular meetings shall be held on the third Thursday of the month with the exception of the meeting in December, which shall be held on or before the thirteenth of the month. The time and place for holding a regular meeting shall be fixed at a preceding regular meeting, but the time and place may be changed by the president at the request of three members of the board; provided, however, that the regular meeting in January of each year must be held in Columbus as required by law.
> "Section 6. A special meeting may be arranged for at a regular meeting or may be called by the secretary on the order of the president, or by four members of the board. In arranging for, or in making a call for, a special meeting, the matters to be considered at such meeting must be definitely stated and no other business shall be considered except with the unanimous consent of the board."

From a reading of section 5 it will be found that the time fixed for the holding of regular meetings is the "third Thursday of the month, with the exception of the meeting in December."

By referring to the minutes of the meeting of the board of health held June 13, 1916, it is found that the meeting of August 4, which was arranged for at that time, was for the purpose of having a conference with local boards of health of the northern half of the state and was a special meeting as it was held on a day other than the third Thursday of the month as provided for in section 5 of the rules and by-laws, supra. In the minutes of June 13, 1916, referred to above, appears the following:

> "It was moved by Dr. Brown and seconded by Dr. Ryall that the next meeting of the state board of health be held at the same place, and that this meeting be in lieu of the regular meetings of July and August."

This motion, which was carried by a vote of Messrs. MacIvor, Sutton, Miller, Hasencamp, Brown and Ryall, all the members present, followed the action with reference to the conference to be held with the representatives of boards of health referred to above, and under the provisions of section 6 of the rules and by-laws, supra, if any matters were to be considered at that meeting in addition to the holding of a conference with the representatives of the boards of health referred to such matters should have been stated in the call for the meeting, otherwise they could not be considered, except with the unanimous consent of the members of the board present.

The provisions of section 6 of the rules are clear and under that rule the only matters that could properly be considered by the board at the meeting on August 4, which was held on a day other than the time fixed by the rules for regular meetings, would be those growing out of the conference with the boards of health referred to.

It is not made clear from your minutes what rules were referred to by Dr. Hasencamp when he moved that "the rules be suspended and the board proceed with the election of a secretary" nor, in fact, is it necessary for the purposes of this opinion to enquire into that subject. In view of the absence of a unanimous consent on the part of the members of the board present to take up a question other than the particular business for which the meeting had been called, it is my opinion that the matter of the election of a secretary could not be considered at the special meeting at which only five members were present, for two reasons: First, the absence of unanimous consent to consider business other than that for which the meeting was called; and for the further reason that a rule of the board made for the purpose of governing its deliberations should not be suspended except by the general consent of the members of the board. Therefore, the matters relating to the election of a secretary of the board were not properly before the meeting of August 4, 1916.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ELECTIONS—REGISTRARS—COMPENSATION NOT TO EXCEED SIX DAYS—QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTOR AS TO RESIDENCE—LENGTH OF TIME HE HAS RESIDED IN WARD OF VILLAGE OR CITY DETERMINING FACTOR RATHER THAN PRECINCT.

Registrars of electors in registration cities are entitled to compensation for one day for applying to the deputy state supervisors of elections for lists, registers and maps and making and delivering the alphabetical lists of registered electors where such compensation is allowed, and ordered by the deputy state supervisors of elections according to the provisions of section 4944 G. C. and the total number of days for which compensation is so allowed does not exceed six.

The qualifications of an elector in respect to residence is determined from the length of time he has resided in the ward of a village or city as distinguished from the period of residence in the precinct in which he seeks to vote.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 18, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—With yours under date of October 3, 1916, you submit to me, requesting an opinion thereon, a communication from the deputy state supervisors of elections of Mahoning county, which is as follows:

> "There is some question in our minds as to the correct interpretation of the following sections of the election laws:
> "Under section 4944 registrars shall be allowed not more than $4.00 per day for not more than six days. Five of those days are taken up by registering and transferring of electors and in the even numbered years we allow registrars compensation for six days, the sixth day being given to them for the making of the alphabetical lists of registered voters.
> "Section 4864 provides among other things that no person shall be permitted to vote unless he shall have been a resident of the ward of a city for twenty days next preceding the election, making exception in the case of the head of a family. Section 5061 provides that if a person is challenged his time of residence in the precinct shall be asked as one of the questions.
> "In the former case, kindly inform us if registrars are entitled to the extra day for making the alphabetical lists in the latter, if the twenty days residence required is determined by ward or precinct."

In registration cities, prior to the general or regular November election held in the even numbered years, the registrars of each precinct are required by section 4893 G. C. to apply on Wednesday in the fifth week before such election to the deputy state supervisors of elections for registers, maps, etc., for their respective election precincts.

Section 4894 G. C. provides as follows:

> "The days for the general registration of electors in cities wherein annual general registration is required and for the quadrennial general registration and yearly registration of new electors in cities where general registration is required only in presidential years, shall be Thursday in the fifth week, Thursday in the fourth week and Friday and Saturday in the third week next before the day of the general election in November in each year."

Section 4919 G. C. provides as follows:

> "On Monday, the day preceding the November election in each year, the registrars of each election precinct shall meet at two-thirty o'clock afternoon at the polling place appointed for holding elections therein, and there remain in session until five-thirty o'clock afternoon, central standard time. At this meeting they shall receive and act upon any applications for either granting or receiving certificates of removal or correction of mistakes, as herein provided for. If material error or mistake in the description of any elector in such precinct has been discovered, he may appear at this meeting and on good cause shown, the registrars may then correct it. Any change in the registers allowed by the registrars at such meeting must immediately be noted by them in the registers and also in the books containing the duplicate lists for the use of the judges, as herein provided, and, if not then and there so noted, shall be wholly null and disregarded by the judges of election."

There is thus required the services of the registrars of the several election precincts on five different days, exclusive of the Wednesday in the fifth week before the election in even numbered years, on which they are required to make applications for the registers and necessary supplies for the registration of electors of their precinct and exclusive of the days on which alphabetical lists of registered electors are required to be made under section 4916 G. C., which provides in part as follows:

> "On the day following each registration day, unless such day be Sunday or a registration day, in which event on the next succeeding day, each year, the registrars of each election precinct shall make and deliver to the board of deputy state supervisors at its office in such city a true list of the names of all the electors registered by them in their respective precincts on the preceding day or days, arranged in the alphabetical order of their surnames, followed by their full Christian names and residences, and having the registry number of each prefixed. * * *"

From the language of the foregoing provision it is clearly not contemplated that it shall be the duty of the registrars to make the alphabetical lists of registered electors therein required on the registration days named in section 4894 G. C., supra. On the contrary, these lists are required to be made on a succeeding day with the exceptions mentioned.

Section 4944 G. C., to which reference is made in the inquiry, provides, in so far as pertinent to the question under consideration, as follows:

> "The registrars of each election precinct in such cities shall be allowed and paid for their services as registrars four dollars per day and no more for not more than six days at any one election. * * * No registrar, judge or clerk shall be entitled to the compensation so fixed except upon the allowance and order of the board of deputy state supervisors made at a joint session, certifying that each has fully performed his duty according to law as such, and stating the number of days' service actually performed by each. Such allowance and order shall be certified by the chief deputy and clerk of the board to the city or county auditor."

In view of the specific requirement of the performance of the prescribed duties on five days, exclusive of Wednesday in the fifth week before such election and the manifest contemplation of making the alphabetical lists of registered electors on other days than the registration days mentioned in section 4894 G. C., and of the provisions of section 4944 G. C. supra, fixing a maximum number of days for which compensation may be allowed in excess of five days, I am led to conclude that it was intended that there should be conferred upon the deputy state supervisors of elections authority to allow to registrars compensation, if not in excess of one day, for or in lieu of their services in making application for supplies and in making the alphabetical list of registered electors. So that in the even numbered years the aggregate number of days of service, making an allowance of one day for making application for supplies on the Wednesday in the fifth week before the election and making the alphabetical lists of electors, will be six, the maximum prescribed by section 4944 G. C. supra. I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your first question, whether in the even numbered years the registrars of electors in registration cities are entitled to compensation for one day in addition to the five days on which registrations and corrections thereof are required to be made, when the compensation for such additional day is allowed and ordered by the board of deputy state supervisors of elections for making the alphabetical lists of registered electors, as required by law, that registrars are entitled to compensation for one day in addition to the five days on which registrations and corrections thereof are required to be made in the even numbered years, when the same is allowed and ordered by the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, according to the provisions of section 4944 G. C. supra.

This rule would apply in any year to the November election in cities in which general registration is required each year.

While the board of deputy state supervisors of elections may in the exercise of its discretion allow compensation to registrars for six days as stated in the foregoing conclusion, this opinion may not be construed to hold that the provisions of section 4944 G. C. impose upon the deputy state supervisors of elections any duty to allow compensation for the maximum number of days therein prescribed.

Your second question involves a consideration of a number of sections of the statute hereinafter referred to. Section 4863 G. C. provides as follows:

"No person shall be permitted to vote at any election unless he shall have been a resident of the state for one year, resident of the county for thirty days, and, except as provided in the next section, resident of the township, village or ward of a city or village for twenty days next preceding the election at which he offers to vote."

Section 4864 G. C. to which reference is made in the above inquiry, provides as follows:

"A person who is the head of a family and has resided in the state and in the county in which such township, village or ward of a city or village is situated the length of time required by the preceding section, and who bona fide removes with his family from a ward to another ward in such city or village, or from a ward of such city or village to a township or village in the same county, or from a township or village to a ward of a city or village in the same county, or from one township to another in the same county, shall have the right to vote in such township, village or ward of a city or village without having resided therein the length of time so prescribed by such section."

It will be observed that there is in neither of the above sections reference to a precinct. In connection with the above provisions consideration must be given also to the provisions of section 4906 G. C. in reference to entries required to be made in the registration of electors, that:

"In the column as to 'term of residence,' the periods of years and months of his residence in the precinct and state must both be stated."

This provision would indicate an intention on the part of the legislature that the length of time of residence in the precinct was an element to be considered in determining the qualifications of an elector. An opposite conclusion would, however, be suggested from a consideration of section 4941 G. C. relative to registration of electors for special elections, wherein it is provided in subdivision 2 thereof, that:

"2. The registrars shall deliver certificates of cancellation to any registered elector who is not the head of a family and who may apply to them to cancel his registration on account of his removal from the precinct in which he was registered to another precinct, and they shall receive such certificate from any elector presenting it, and allow him to register, if he be otherwise qualified, in the precinct to which he has removed, if on the day of election he will have been an actual resident in such ward for twenty days immediately preceding such election."

Here it will be observed that the legislature clearly recognized the distinction between a precinct and ward and specifically declared that the registrars shall receive certificates of cancellation from any elector presenting it and allow him to register if he be otherwise qualified in the precinct to which he has removed, if on the day of election he will have been an actual resident in such ward for twenty days, thus making the determinating element for consideration the period of residence in the ward as distinguished from that of a residence in the precinct.

Section 5061 G. C., 106 O. L. 323, to which reference is made in the above inquiry, requires that when an elector is challenged on the ground that he is not a resident of the county or precinct where he offers to vote, the judge, or one of them, shall put to him, among others, the following question:

"(2) Have you resided in this precinct for twenty days last past?"

The apparent conflict between the provisions of sections 4863, 4864 and 4941 G. C. supra, and those of sections 4906 and 5061 G. C., 106 O. L. 323, it is believed may be reconciled without doing violence to the language or purpose of either. It will be borne in mind that there may be more than one voting precinct in a township, yet the only statutory provision relative to the qualifications of electors in townships as to residence is the requirement that the elector shall have been a resident of the township twenty days prior to the election.

Electors in registration cities may not vote unless duly registered in the precinct in which they reside. The requirement of section 4916 G. C. supra, that the register show the term of residence in the precinct, serves to give notice that the elector has, within the period of twenty days, become a resident of the precinct, if such is the fact and gives opportunity for investigation as to the length of residence in the ward.

Likewise the answer to the second question in section 5061 G. C. above quoted, serves to show whether the elector has come into the precinct in which he seeks to vote within the period of twenty days preceding the day of the election, and in connection with other facts may be of weight in determining whether the elector has been a resident of the ward for a period of twenty days next preceding the date of the election.

In view of the absence of reference of the period of residence in the precinct in sections 4863 and 4864 G. C. supra, and the clear recognition of the distinction between wards and precincts in section 4941 G. C. supra, and the explicit declaration therein that an elector shall be allowed to register if he will have been an actual resident of such ward for twenty days immediately preceding a special election, I am of opinion, in answer to your second question, that the qualification of an elector as to residence is required to be determined from the length of time he has resided in the ward of a city, as distinguished from the period of residence in the precinct in which he seeks to vote, and that it was not the purpose of either section 4906 or of section 5061 to require that an elector should reside in a precinct the full period of twenty days next preceding the day of the election at which he seeks to vote in order that he may be qualified to vote in such precinct.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF HEALTH—COUNCIL MAY BE COMPELLED BY MANDAMUS TO ESTABLISH SUCH BOARD—COUNCIL WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO THEN ABOLISH SUCH BOARD—BOARD IS A CONTINUING BODY—CITY OF CONNEAUT.

Under the provisions of section 4404 G. C. council may be compelled by mandamus to establish a board of health.

When council has exercised the power given it by section 4404 G. C. and established a board of health it is without authority to abolish said board, and the state bocrd of health is without authority to act under the provisions of section 4405 G. C.

A board of health when established is a continuing body.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 18, 1916.

State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion concerning the appointment of a health officer at Conneaut, Ohio, is as follows:

> "At a meeting of the state board of health held September 21st, I was instructed to refer to you for advice, the question of complying with the request of the council of the city of Conneaut that the state board of health appoint a health officer for that city.
> "The general situation in Conneaut, as respects health administration, is partially explained in the enclosed letter from the city solicitor of that city. The history of proceedings, as shown by letters, etc., on file in this office, indicates that at some date prior to July 24, 1916, the Conneaut city council adopted an ordinance abolishing the board of health which had been created by an ordinance passed February 12, 1912. This ordinance was submitted to the mayor and was vetoed by him. On July 24, 1916, the ordinance was passed over the mayor's veto, and at the same session of council the following motion was adopted:

" 'Moved by Mr. Frederick, seconded by Mr. Martin, that the council of the city of Conneaut, state of Ohio, does hereby refuse to establish a board of health in said city and recommends for appointment by the state board of health Dr. W. W. Wetmore as health officer for said city and also recommends and requests that his salary be fixed by said board at a sum not exceeding three hundred and sixty ($360.00) dollars per year, payable in monthly instalments not exceeding thirty dollars ($30.00) each, and that his term of office be fixed at a period of two years.

" 'That the clerk of this council be and he is hereby ordered and directed to certify a copy of this motion to the state board of health at Columbus, Ohio, requesting its action under section 4405 of the General Code.'

"The accuracy of this transcript is certified by the clerk of the council.

"When the matter was brought to my attention in the letter from the city solicitor, under date of July 26th, I placed the matter on the schedule for the regular meeting of the board to be held on August 4th. Owing to lack of quorum, the matter was not considered, and on August 10th, I sent to the city solicitor the attached communication.

"The view of the matter as taken by me does not agree with the views expressed by the solicitor, and at our recent meeting a request from the solicitor was presented to the board asking that the matter be referred to you for your opinion as to whether a condition exists in the city of Conneaut that gives to the state board of health the authority to appoint a health officer for that municipality and to fix his term of office and compensation.

"Your opinion in regard to this matter will be appreciated."

With your letter you enclose copies of correspondence between your office and the city solicitor of Conneaut concerning the matter, and the same has been noted in connection with the preparation of this opinion

Sections 4404 and 4405 of the General Code are as follows:

"Sec. 4404. The council of each municipality shall establish a board of health, composed of five members to be appointed by the mayor and confirmed by council who shall serve without compensation and a majority of whom shall be a quorum. The mayor shall be president by virtue of his office. But in villages, the council, if it deems advisable, may appoint a health officer, to be approved by the state board of health, who shall act instead of a board of health, and fix his salary and term of office. Such appointee shall have the powers and perform the duties granted to or imposed upon boards of health, except that rules, regulations or orders of a general character and required to be published, made by such health officer, shall be approved by the state board of health.

"Sec. 4405. If a municipality fails or refuses to establish a board of health or appoint a health officer, the state board of health may appoint a health officer therefor and fix his salary and term of office. Such health officer shall have the same powers and duties as health officers appointed in villages in place of a board of health and his salary as fixed by the state board of health, and all necessary expenses incurred by him in performing the duties of a board of health shall be paid by and be a valid claim against such municipality."

It will be noted from a reading of the provisions of the sections quoted above that two means are provided by which a health officer may be appointed in municipalities. The provisions of section 4404 are mandatory, and it has been held in the ca e of State ex rel. v. Massillon, 2 O. C. C. (N. S.) 167, that the provisions of the section may be enforced by a writ of mandamus. On the other hand, section 4405 gives to the state board of health the authority to appoint a health officer for a municipality when it "fails or refuses to establish a board of health or appoint a health officer." This is an enabling statute which, of course, makes it discretionary with the state board of health as to whether or not it will act in the premises.

From the statements contained in the correspondence and from the verbal statements of your assistant secretary, Mr. Bauman, it appears that if resort were had to the provisions of section 4404 of the General Code supra to the exclusion of section 4405, the condition in Conneaut would not be changed materially from what it is at present; whereas, a resort to section 4405 of the General Code supra would enable the state board of health to take action and appoint a health officer, either the one now serving or some other, and thereby at least take the matter out of the chaotic state in which it has remained for some time past.

In enacting section 4405 General Code, which vests in the state board of health the power to appoint a health officer in case a municipality fails or refuses to establish a board of health or appoint such health officer, there can be no doubt but that the general assembly had in mind conditions where no board has ever been established, and this view is strengthened by the mandatory provisions of section 4404. However, the municipality having exercised its powers to establish a board of health under section 4404 General Code supra, it is without any authority of law to abolish the board of health, and consequently the alternative method of providing a health officer under the provisions of 4405 does not become operative. That the board of health in a city is a continuing body is made clear by the provisions of section 4406 General Code and succeeding sections.

Section 4406 of the General Code is as follows:

> "The term of office of the members of the board shall be five years from the date of appointment, and until their successors are appointed and qualified, except that those first appointed shall be classified as follows: One to serve for five years, one for four years, one for three years, one for two years, and one for one year, and thereafter one shall be appointed each year."

In view of the fact that the city of Conneaut has established a board of health under the provisions of section 4404 and that there is no authority for the abolition of the board, it is my opinion that the action of council referred to in your communication is without force and effect, and the state board of health is not called upon nor has it the authority to act in the premises under the provisions of section 4405 General Code supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—BONDS ISSUED PURSUANT TO SECTION 7625 G. C. FOR CONSTRUCTION OF SCHOOL BUILDING—TAX LEVY CERTIFIED TO COUNTY BUDGET COMMISSION AFTER ELECTORS HAD VOTED FAVORABLY FOR BOND ISSUE—WHERE BUDGET COMMISSION HAD COMPLETED WORK AND CERTIFIED ITS FINDINGS TO COUNTY AUDITOR, IF LEVY WITHIN FIFTEEN MILL LIMITATION, SAID BUDGET COMMISSION MAY CERTIFY SAME TO COUNTY AUDITOR—DUTY OF COUNTY AUDITOR TO DETERMINE TAX RATE NECESSARY TO PRODUCE AMOUNT NEEDED.

Where the board of education of a school district, acting under section 7625 et seq. G. C. and pursuant to the authority resulting from the favorable vote of the qualified electors of such district held at the August primary, issues bonds for the construction of a school building, and having complied with the requirement of section 11 of article No. XII of the constitution as well as of section 7628 G. C., certifies to the county budget commission a tax levy for interest and sinking fund incident to said bond issue and it appears that the combined rate for all purposes of said district, including the levy in question, does not exceed the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C. (103 O. L. 57). said budget commission may certify said levy to the auditor of the county in which such school district is located and it will then be the duty of said auditor to determine the rate of tax necessary to produce the amount needed for said interest and sinking fund and place the same on the duplicate of said school district for the year in which said levy is made.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 20, 1916.

HON. ROGER D. HAY, Prosecuting Attorney, Defiance, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of October 6th is in part as follows:

> "As a member of the budget commission for Defiance county, Ohio, I am writing you for an opinion on the following proposition which has been put up to the commission.
> "The people of the city of Defiance voted for the issuance of $200,000.00 worth of bonds for the building of a high school building. The board of education has certified over to the budget commission the amount of interest necessary to take care of the bonds which will become due and payable next year.
> "The vote for this issue was held at the primary election in August. The law provides that all budgets must be handed in by the first Monday in June and the board of education not knowing whether or not this issue would pass could not certify the amount necessary to levy.
> "The board of education have asked the budget commission to place the necessary levy upon the duplicate and of course we will if the law will allow it."

From your statement of facts I understand that the board of education of Defiance city school district, acting under authority of section 7625 G. C., submitted to the qualified electors of said district the question of issuing the bonds mentioned in your inquiry for the purpose of providing the necessary funds for the construction of a high school building; that this question was submitted to said electors at the primary election in August; that a majority of the electors voting on said proposition voted in favor thereof and that pursuant to the authority resulting to said board of education from said election said bonds have been duly issued.

By provision of section 11 of article XII of the constitution as well as of section 7628 G. C., said board of education was required to provide in its resolution to issue said bonds for levying and collecting annually by taxation an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for their final retirement at maturity. I assume that said board complied with this requirement.

Section 7628 G. C. provides:

> "When an issue of bonds has been provided for under the next three preceding sections, the board of education, annually, shall certify to the county auditor or auditors as the case may require, a tax levy sufficient to pay such bonded indebtedness as it falls due together with accrued interest thereon. Such county auditor or auditors must place such levy on the tax duplicate. It shall be collected and paid to the board of education as other taxes are. Such tax levy shall be in addition to the maximum levy for school purposes, and must be kept in a separate fund and applied only to the payment of the bonds and interest for which it was levied."

This section must, of course, be read in connection with the several sections of the so-called Smith law subsequently enacted and is subject to the limitations of said law in so far as they affect the levy under consideration.

It may be observed, however, that inasmuch as said levy is for interest and sinking fund on account of bonds issued by a vote of the electors it is not subject to the five mill limitation provided in section 5649-3a G. C. or to the ten mill limitation contained in section 5649-2 G. C., 103 O. L. 532. Said levy is subject only to the fifteen mill limitation provided for in section 5649-5b G. C. (103 O. L. 57), and by provision of section 5649-1 G. C. (104 O. L. 12), said levy must be made by said board of education and must be placed on the duplicate before and in preference to all other items for current expenses and for the full amount thereof.

In view of the foregoing it seems clear that if the bonds in question had been issued before June 1st or thereafter during the session of the county budget commission, and said board of education had certified to said budget commission the amount necessary for interest and sinking fund for said bonds, it would have been the duty of said budget commission to certify said amount without modification and in preference to items for current expenses, to the county auditor and it would then have been the duty of said auditor to determine the rate necessary to produce said amount and place said rate on the duplicate. This conclusion is in keeping with my former opinion rendered to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices on July 22, 1915, as found in the Report of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for said year at page 1314 in volume II of said report.

It is true that your budget commission has completed its work and certified its finding to the county auditor in so far as the consideration of the annual budget of said board of education is concerned. Inasmuch, however, as the levy in question is for interest and sinking fund on account of bonds issued by a vote of the electors and is therefore in addition to all other levies made by the board of education as set forth in its annual budget and is subject only to the fifteen mill limitation above referred to, the placing of said levy on the duplicate would in no way disturb the levies already made by said board of eduaction, allowed by the county budget commission and placed on said dupicate by the county auditor, providing said levy taken together with the other levies above referred to does not exceed said fifteen mill limitation.

I have just been informed by you in a conversation over the telephone that the combined rate in said school district for all purposes, including the levy in question, will not exceed said fifteen mill limitation, and it appearing that said levy represents the amount of interest that will become due and payable in the year 1917, I think in view of the provisions of the constitution and of the statutes hereinbefore referred to, said board of education is entitled to have said levy placed in this year's duplicate.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your question, that your budget commission may at this time certify the aforesaid amount to the auditor of your county and it will then be the duty of said auditor to determine the rate of tax necessary to produce said amount and place the same on the duplicate of said school district for the year 1916.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ELECTIONS—A PERSON IS TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF AGE FOR ELECTION PURPOSES ON DAY PRECEDING THE TWENTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF DAY OF HIS BIRTH.

A person is twenty-one years of age for election purposes on the day prec ding the twenty-first anniversary of the day of his birth and is entitled, if otherwise qualified, to vote at any election held on the day of his becoming twenty-one years of age.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 20, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of October 16, 1916, is as follows:

> "We are herewith submitting to you for an opinion the following question, to wit:
> " 'A man was born on the 8th day of November, 1895. Is he entitled to vote on the 7th day of November, 1916?' "

The qualifications of electors are prescribed by section 1 of article V of the constitution of Ohio, as follows:

> "Every white male citizen of the United States, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of the state one year next preceding the election, and of the county, township or ward, in which he resides, such time as may be provided by law, shall have the qualifications of an elector, and be entitled to vote at all elections."

It should be here observed that the word "white," in the foregoing constitutional provision is rendered inoperative and of no effect by section 1 of article XV of the constitution of the United States.

The question above submitted involves the calculation or determination of the age of a person who was born on the 8th day of November, 1895, on the 7th day of November, 1916.

From the above constitutional provision it is conclusive that if it be determined that the person in question has all the other requisite qualifications of an elector and is on the 7th day of November, 1916, twenty-one years of age, he shall be entitled to vote at any election held on such date.

The calculation of the age of persons is subject to the general common law rule that consideration will not be given to a fraction of a day, and from the application of this rule if it be determined that a person otherwise qualified as an elector shall become twenty-one years of age at any moment of a particular day, such person will in legal contemplation, be for all purposes twenty-one years of age for and during the entire day. So that if the person in question shall be determined to attain the age of twenty-one years at any moment within the 7th day of November, 1916, such person will, in contemplation of law, be twenty-one years of age for all purposes during that entire day.

In 1 Am. & Eng. Ency., 927 (2nd Ed.), it is stated:

> "By a large number of authorities it is said that an infant attains the age of twenty-one years on the first moment of the day next before the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday, and this doctrine has the support of the United States cases. On the contrary, it is strongly argued that the precise period when one attains the age of twenty-one years is on the first moment of the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday and not on the day preceding."

Cited in support of the first above stated rule are a number of cases, among which are those hereafter noted:

In the case of Ross v. Morrow, 85 Tex. 172, it is stated in the syllabus:

> "Edward Ross was born April 17, 1860. He became of age on April 16, 1881. Suit was filed for land adversely held in the interval April 16, 1886. HELD, that the five years adverse possession, and in which he had a right to recover, ended on the 15th of April, and that the action was barred."

In Erwin v. Benton, 120 Ky. 536, it is held:

> "One who was born on June 9, 1883, was entitled to vote at an election on June 8, 1904. In law a man is twenty-one years old on the day preceding his twenty-first birthday."

In Wells v. Wells, 6 Ind. 447, the court held:

> "A minor attains twenty-one years on the day preceeding the twenty-first anniversary of his birth."

Similar holdings of the court will also be found in the case of State v. Clarke, 3 Harr. (Del.) 557, and in the case of In re Griffiths, 1 Culp (Pa.) 157.

A different rule prevails in Louisiana, as shown by the case of State ex rel. Flemming v. Joyce, 123 La. 638, the court there following the civil law as distinguished from the common law rule adhered to in the above noted cases in the computation of the ages of persons.

I am not aware that the question submitted has been passed upon by any court in this state, but for the reasons above suggested and upon the authority cited I am of the opinion that a man born on the 8th day of November, 1895, will become twenty-one years of age on the 7th day of November, 1916. Whether he will have arrived at such age on the first moment of that day or on the last moment of that day is not material here to consider.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your question, that a male person who was born on the 8th day of November, 1895, and who is possessed of all the other requisite qualifications of an elector prescribed by law, will be entitled to vote at the election which will be held on the 7th day of November, 1916.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

CONSTABLES—WHERE NO VACANCY, NO AUTHORITY TO APPOINT ADDITIONAL CONSTABLE—SUCH SPECIAL CONSTABLE WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO PERFORM DUTIES—NOT ENTITLED TO FEES—NO FINDING FOR RECOVERY—MOTOR VEHICLE SPEED LAWS.

After the number of constables have been designated and elected according to law in any township and no vacancy has occurred in that office, there is no authority in the township trustees to appoint an additional constable or constables for any purpose.

A person whom the township trustees have attempted to appoint as a special constable otherwise than to fill a vacancy in the office, as provided by sections 3329 and 12199 G. C., is without authority to perform the functions and duties of constable and is not entitled to the fees and costs allowed by law for the official services of regularly elected or appointed constables.

A finding for recovery may not be made for costs collected by a person who assumes to act as constable under an attempted appointment made by the township trustees which is wholly unauthorized by law.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 20, 1916.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of October 13, 1916, is as follows:

"Please let us have your written opinion on the following propositions at an early date:

"Statement of facts upon which the following questions are based: It is alleged that in July, 1916, the trustees of Marion township, Franklin county, Ohio, appointed one John F. Gilson, as constable, to arrest violators of the motor vehicle speed laws, but the minutes of said board do not disclose any record of said action. Moreover, there was no vacancy existing in the office of constable.

"The bond of said appointee, which is on file with the township clerk, however, shows that it was approved by two of said trustees, evidenced by their names signed thereto, but said action of approval as indicated by the said bond does not appear of record in the minutes of said board.

"Said appointee has been arresting drivers of motor vehicles and taking them before justices of the peace in at least four townships of Franklin county, and charging them with violating the speed limit. In each instance he has taxed the fees to which constables are entitled, including an assistant; and, in addition thereto, has charged up a fee of '$2.50 for conveyance.' Said conveyance being the motor vehicle used by said appointee in chasing and arresting the alleged speeders. Said fees were allowed and collected by the justice and paid to said constable. In the hundreds of cases which we have examined no fines have been collected, only the costs.

"1. After the number of constables have been designated and elected according to law (see sections 3271 and 3327 G. C.) and there is no vacancy in said office, may the trustees legally appoint additional constables for their township?

"2. If such additional appointments be made by the trustees for the purpose of regulating motor vehicle traffic, or for any other specific purpose, may such appointed officers legally perform the functions of a regularly elected and qualified constable and be entitled to the fees provided in sec. 3347 G. C.

"3. If it should be held that such appointed constables are not legally qualified to perform the duties and receive the fees of an elected constable, what finding should be made relative to prosecutions brought about through their efforts?"

By the provisions of section 3271 G. C., township trustees are required to meet on the last Monday of December in each year and fix and give notice of the number of constables to be elected for the township.

By section 3327 G. C. it is provided that such number of constables as directed by the trustees of the township shall be elected for a term of two years.

Section 3329 G. C. provides as follows:

> "When, by death, removal, resignation, or non-acceptance of the person elected, a vacancy occurs in the office of constable, or when there is a failure to elect, the township trustees shall appoint a suitable person to fill such vacancy until the next biennial election for constable, and until a successor is elected and qualified. If there is no constable in a township, the constable of an adjoining township in the county shall serve any process that a constable of such township is authorized by law to serve."

Under certain conditions therein prescribed the township trustees may, pursuant to sections 12198 and 12199 G. C. require a constable to give a new bond, and by section 12199 G. C. it is further provided:

> "If the constable or marshal fails to give a new bond within ten days after receiving such notice, such failure shall be deemed a resignation of his office, and the trustees or council shall proceed to fill such vacancy as in other cases."

The township trustees are authorized by the provisions of the foregoing sections to appoint a constable only when there exists a vacancy in the office by reason of the death, removal, resignation or non-acceptance of a person elected to such office or by reason of the failure or neglect of a person so elected to such office to give a new bond when directed so to do by the township trustees.

Section 3348 G. C. provides in part as follows:

> "The trustees of a township may designate any duly elected and qualified constable as police constable * * *."

The appointment of a police constable here authorized to be made is specifically limited to duly elected and qualified constables, so that township trustees would have no authority to appoint a person as police constable under the provisions of this act who was not at the time such duly elected and qualified constable.

Manifestly, the appointment referred to in your inquiry could not have been made under authority of either of the foregoing statutes.

Upon careful examination of the statutes of this state, no further authority for the appointment of constables by township trustees is found. Numerous provisions for the appointment of constables by justices of the peace may be found, but such provisions operate in no way to authorize the appointment of special or additional constables by township trustees.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your first question, that after the number of constables have been designated and elected according to law in any township and no vacancy has occurred in that office, there is no authority in the township trustees to appoint an additional constable or constables for any purpose.

Since the township trustees are without authority to appoint constables in addition to the number designated to be elected in the township and may appoint such officers only in case of vacancies in such elective office, it follows that persons attempted to be appointed by township trustees in other cases are wholly without authority to exercise the functions of constable and are not entitled to the fees of such officers.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your second question, that township trustees may not appoint constables except to fill vacancies, as provided in sections 3329 and 12199 G. C., and that persons whom the trustees have attempted to otherwise appoint to such office are without authority to perform the functions and duties of the same and are not entitled to the fees allowed by law for the official services of regularly elected or appointed constables.

By section 284 G. C., 103 O. L. 507, it is required that upon examination of public offices, inquiry shall be made into the legality of the accounts. This provision renders it necessary to inquire into the legality of costs taxed by justices of the peace or charged by constables when examination of such offices are made.

Section 286 G. C., 103 O. L. 507, requires that:

> "The report of the examiner shall set forth * * * the result of the examination with respect to each and every matter and thing required into * * *."

From the foregoing, it follows that, if upon examination it be found that costs have been collected by a justice of the peace for and on behalf of one who assumes to act as constable without having been lawfully appointed or elected thereto, or costs have been collected by a constable whose appointment was wholly unauthorized by law, such illegal charge and collection of costs should be set forth in the report of such examiner.

In opinion No. 580, under date of July 3, 1915, addressed to Hon. A. A. Slaybaugh, prosecuting attorney, found at page 1183 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915, it was held:

> "The bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices is unauthorized to make a finding for recovery of fees and costs collected and received by a special constable appointed by a justice of the peace, although none of the grounds therefor as set forth in section 3331 G. C. in fact exist."

The same principle is involved in the case submitted by you and here under consideration, and the rule above stated is therefore applicable and serves to fully answer your third question.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your third question, that upon examination wherein it is found that costs have been charged or collected for the services of a constable assuming to act as such under an alleged appointment by the township trustees other than to fill a vacancy as provided by sections 3329 and 12199 G. C., the report of such examination should set forth all such costs so charged and collected by or on behalf of such constable, together with all the facts relating to his alleged appointment. A finding for recovery is, however, unauthorized.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CAPITOL TRUST COMPANY—CONTINUED CORPORATE EXISTENCE AT REQUEST OF STATE—MINIMUM WILLIS TAX FEE CHARGED.

The Capitol Trust Company having continued its corporate existence at the request of the state authorities, only the minimum Willis tax fee should be charged.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 20, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Sometime ago you submitted to me a letter to the following effect:

> "The amount of subscribed and issued or outstanding capital stock was $400,000. No certificate of reduction of capital stock or dissolution has been filed. Is the Capitol Trust Company liable for reports and franchise fees under the 'Willis Law?' If so, upon what amount should the fee be based?"

After the receipt of your letter I had several conferences with Mr. James M. Butler, attorney at law, representing The Capitol Trust Company, and Mr. A. W. Mackenzie, who is secretary-treasurer of The Capitol Trust Company, and have obtained from Mr. Mackenzie what is termed a plan of consolidation of The Capitol Trust Company with The State Savings Bank and Trust Company, which consolidation took place in the year 1911. In the plan of consolidation as agreed upon by the committees of the two companies in question it was agreed that The State Savings Bank and Trust Company should increase its capital stock and that The Capitol Trust Company should go into voluntary liquidation and that thereafter the stockholders of The Capitol Trust Company were permitted to acquire a certain amount of the capital stock of the State Savings Bank and Trust Company, and to turn over in payment thereof certain assets of The Capitol Trust Company, the remaining assets to be distributed among the stockholders. The plan of consolidation, as I construe it, clearly shows that the initial step to be taken by The Capitol Trust Company was a voluntary liquidation. That is to say, that the stockholders of The Capitol Trust Company were to take steps to voluntarily dissolve the corporation and thereafter to use the assets of said company in the purchase of the shares of capital stock of The State Savings Bank and Trust Company.

From a letter received from Mr. James M. Butler it appears that at the time the stockholders of the Capitol Trust Company had agreed to the plan proposed for the absorption of The Capitol Trust Company by The State Savings Bank and Trust Company had on deposit with the treasurer of the state of Ohio bonds aggregating in value one hundred thousand ($100,000.00) dollars, which had been deposited to secure the due performance of its trust; that The Capitol Trust Company desired to surrender the said bonds to The State Savings Bank and Trust Company, but that the then attorney-general thought that The Capitol Trust Company should defer this action so that there could be no criticism in the event that some claim arose under a trust which had been assumed by it, and that The Capitol Trust Company agreed thereto. It appears, therefore, that by request of the state authorities The Capitol Trust Company did not at that time go into voluntary liquidation, but deferred such action on account of the request made by said state authorities, and it may well be assumed that had no such request been made the stockholders of The Capitol Trust Company would have taken such action as to voluntarily dissolve the said The Capitol Trust Company.

It further appears from the facts that I have before me that subsequent thereto, the corporation still being in existence because of the view taken by the state authorities, it was thought that, still being a corporation, a report should be made and the Willis law tax assessed, but due to the fact that the corporation remained in existence solely by request of the state authorities only the minimum fee should be charged.

Taking the question from a purely legal standpoint, there was no authority to pay over the assets of The Capitol Trust Company to The State Savings Bank and Trust Company in payment of the shares of stock subscribed for by the stockholders of The Capitol Trust Company until the said The Capitol Trust Company had been dissolved, and therefore The Capitol Trust Company, still being in existence, would be required to make a report of its entire subscribed and issued or outstanding capital stock and pay the proper fee thereon.

However, in view of the fact that the said The Capitol Trust Company was not dissolved in accordance with the plan agreed to solely because of the position taken by the state authorities at the time, I consider that it is only fair and just that the rule heretofore adopted in regard to the reports and Willis tax fees be followed. That is to say, that The Capitol Trust Company makes its report and pay the minimum fee. However, as soon as The Capitol Trust Company is discharged from the trusts imposed upon it, it should immediately dissolve and on failure so to do the rule heretofore adopted in regard to the reports and Willis tax fees should no longer be followed, but the company held upon its entire subscribed or issued and outstanding capital stock.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY MONTVILLE TOWNSHIP ROAD DISTRICT IN GEAUGA COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 19, 1916.

Industrial Commis ion of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE: Bonds of Montville Township road district in the amount of $30,000 for road improvement purposes, being sixty bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the township trustees and other officers of Montville township road district relative to the above bond issue and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds when properly drawn and executed will constitute valid and binding obligations of the Montville township road district.

As no bond and coupon form have been submitted with the transcript I should have an opportunity of examining the form of the bonds when presented to the treasurer of state for delivery.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY WARREN COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 21, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Warren county, Ohio, in the sum of $26,000.00 for repairing, improving and rebuilding bridges and culverts in said county, being 52 bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the county commissioners and other officers of Warren county relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form submitted and the amendments thereto, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds, drawn in accordance with the form submitted, and the amendments thereto authorized by the resolution of the county commissioners, adopted October 16, 1916, and executed by the proper officers, will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said county.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—BUILDING OWNED BY MUNICIPALITY CONDEMNED BY STATE INSPECTOR OF WORKSHOPS AND FACTORIES—WHEN LEVY CAN BE MADE OUTSIDE OF TEN MILL LIMITATION AND WITHIN FIFTEEN MILL LIMITATION FOR SAID IMPROVEMENT.

Where the council of a municipality, acting under authority of, and for the purpose mentioned in, section 5629-1 G. C., 103 O. L. 488, levies a tax and issues bonds in anticipation of the collection thereof as provided in said section, said levy is subject to the five mill limitation contained in section 5649-3a G. C., the ten mill limitation provided for in section 5649-2 G. C. and the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C. (103 O. L. 57).

Said municipality may issue bonds for the aforesaid purpose under authority of section 3939 G. C., 106 O. L. 536, and the issue of said bonds under authority of this latter section without a vote of the electors is subject to the limitations upon the creation of bonded indebtedness contained in sections 3940 and 3941 G. C. and the tax levy for interest and sinking fund incident to such bond issue will be subject to all the limitations above referred to, applicable to a levy under authority of said section 5629-1 G. C. If, however, the question of issuing bonds for said purpose under authority of said section 3939 G. C. be submitted to a vote of the electors in the manner provided in section 3942 et seq. G. C. and the vote of said electors is favorable to said issue, the same is subject only to the limitation upon the creation of bonded indebtedness contained in section 3948 G. C., and the tax levy for interest and sinking fund in connection with such bond issue will be outside of the five and ten mill limitations above referred to and subject only to the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by said section 5649-5b G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 24, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of October 19th is in part as follows:

"A building owned by the municipality of Somerset, Ohio, has been condemned by the state industrial commission and certain repairs have been ordered made. The city is without funds with which to make the ordered improvements and cannot secure the same except by a rate of taxation that must be levied outside of the 10 mill limitation for current expenses, but within the 15 mill limitation of the Smith one per cent. law. Is it lawful to make this levy outside of said 10 mill limitation and within the said 15 mill limitation, or must the same come within the 10 mill limitation?"

Section 5629-1 G. C., 103 O. L. 488, provides:

"If any public building in any county, township or municipality in this state, erected from funds raised by general taxation, be condemned, by the proper officials, as unsanitary or unfit for the purposes for which it was erected, and such county, township or municipality is without the necessary funds to make said building sanitary and fit for the purposes for which it was built, the proper officials of said county, township or municipality, at a regular or called meeting, shall levy a tax that will produce the sum required to remedy the defects in said building, not to exceed in any case five thousand dollars: Provided, however, such tax shall be subject to all limitations upon interior rate, aggregate amount, maximum rate and combined maximum rate provided by law. If the officials deem it advisable they may anticipate the collection of such special tax by borrowing not exceeding the amount so levied at a rate of interest not exceeding 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, and may issue notes or bonds therefor, payable when the tax is collected."

While the council of the village of Somerset have authority under the foregoing provisions of the statute to levy a tax for the purpose mentioned in your inquiry, it is expressly provided in said statute that said levy shall be subject to all the limitations upon interior rate, aggregate amount, maximum rate and combined maximum rate provided by law. This provision of section 5629-1 G. C. supra clearly has reference to the five mill limitation contained in section 5649-3a G. C., the ten mill limitation provided for in section 5649-2 G. C. and the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C. (103 O. L. 57).

If the legislature, in enacting the above statute vesting in the municipality the authority to levy a tax for the emergency mentioned in your inquiry, had made no reference to the Smith law limitations, above set forth, and had seen fit to amend section 5649-4 G. C. so as to include said statute in the list of sections therein enumerated as was done in the act supplementing section 7630 G. C. (103 O. L. 527), the levy in question would not be subject to any of said limitations.

It is sufficient to observe, however, that no such exemption was provided. On the contrary said section 5629-1 G. C. by its terms subjects said levy to all of said limitations and it cannot be said that because said section is supplemental to section 5629 G. C., which latter section is one of those enumerated in section 5649-4 G. C., the levy authorized by said section is on that account referable to said section 5649-4 G. C. and therefore outside of any of the Smith law limitations.

I am of the opinion therefore in answer to your question that if the municipality referred to in your inquiry levies a tax for the purpose mentioned in said inquiry under authority of section 5629-1 G. C. supra, and issues bonds in anticipation of the collection of said tax as therein provided, said levy will be subject to all the limitations of the Smith law hereinbefore referred to.

It must be observed, however, that the authority contained in said section 5629-1 G. C. is not exclusive and that said municipality may issue bonds for the aforesaid purpose under authority of section 3939 G. C. (106 O. L. 536). The issue of said bonds under authority of this latter section without a vote of the electors would, of course, be subject to the limitations upon the creation of bonded indebtedness contained in sections 3940 and 3941 of the General Code and the tax levy for interest and sinking fund incident to such bond issue would be subject to all the limitations hereinbefore referred to as applicable to a levy under authority of section 5629-1 G. C. supra.

If, however, the question of issuing bonds for said purpose under authority of said section 3939 G. C. should be submitted to a vote of the electors in the manner provided in section 3942 et seq. of the General Code, and the vote of said electors should be favorable to said issue, the same would be subject only to the limitation upon the creation of bonded indebtedness contained in section 3948 G. C. and the tax levy for interest and sinking fund in connection with such bond issue would be outside of the five and ten mill limitations and subject only to the fifteen mill limitation prescribed by said section 5649-5b G. C.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

NAVIGABLE RIVERS—DEFINITION—LITTLE MIAMI RIVER.

Those rivers are to be regarded as navigable rivers in law which are navigable in fact. Rivers constitute navigable waters of the United States within the meaning of the acts of congress when they form in their ordinary condition, either by themselves or by uniting with other waters, a continuous highway over which commerce is or may be carried on with other states or foreign countries in the customary modes in which such commerce is conducted by water.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 24, 1916.

HON. DEAN E. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of October 5, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "The commissioners of Warren county, Ohio, contemp'ate some improvement of the Little Miami river within said county, under section 8443 G. C. I write to inquire whether or not the Little Miami river is considered by the state or the federal government to be a navigable stream and if so, whether or not the permission of the federal government (more especially the war department) is required before such improvement could be made.
> "I am not familiar, to any great extent, with the federal statutes, but would call attention to the sections found in 6 Federal Statutes Annotated 804, 805 and 818 and in the Consolidated Statutes 3540, 3541, 3545 and 698."

There are no general statutory laws in this state defining a navigable stream. As a general rule it may be said that the navigability of any given stream is a question of fact to be determined under all the circumstances and conditions of each particular case. This rule is recognized in Ohio in the case of Hickok et al. v. Hine, 23 O. S. 527. The following is quoted from the opinion of the court:

> "Having no tidal waters in the state, the word 'navigable,' as applied to our rivers, is not used in the technical sense of the common law; but is applied as in the popular sense to all rivers that are navigable in fact.
> "A river is regarded as navigable which is capable of floating to market the products of the country through which it passes, or upon which commerce may be conducted; and, from the fact of its being so navigable, it becomes in law a public river or highway. The character of a river, as such highway, is not so much determined by the frequency of its use for that purpose as it is by its capacity of being used by the public for purposes of transportation and commerce."

In commenting upon the foregoing the court in the case of Jeremy v. Elwell, 5 C. C. 383, made the following observation:

> "This authority is to this point that whether a certain stream is navigable or not is a question of fact and not a question of law. It was then a question for the jury to determine the fact whether this is a navigable stream."

There is ample authority for the proposition that a stream may be declared navigable by statute and in the case of Cooper v. Hall, 5 Ohio, 321, the court made the following observation:

> "There is another consideration which it may be proper to mention. The Little Miami is by statute declared to be a navigable river."

A thorough search of legislative enactments prior to the date of these remarks (1832) fails to disclose, however, the statute to which the court intended to refer.

The rule to be followed in determining the navigability of a stream, as laid down in the case of Hickok, et al., v. Hine, supra, finds ample support in the decisions of the federal courts. The following is quoted from the opinion of the court in the case of The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 557, 563:

> "The doctrine of the common law as to the navigability of waters has no application in this country. Here the ebb and flow of the tide do not constitute the usual test, as in England, or any test at all of the navigability of waters. There no waters are navigable in fact, or at least to any considerable extent which are not subject to the tide, and from this circumstance tide water and navigable water there signify substantially the same thing. But in this country the case is widely different. Some of our rivers are as navigable for many hundreds of miles above as they are below the limits of tide water, and some of them are navigable for great distances by large vessels, which are not even affected by the tide at any point during their entire length. A different test must, therefore, be applied to determine the navigability of our rivers and that is found in their navigable capacity. Those rivers must be regarded as public navigable rivers in law which are navigable in fact, and they are navigable in fact when they are used, or are susceptible of being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce, over which trade and travel are or may be conducted in the customary mode of trade and travel on water. And they constitute navigable waters of the United States, within the meaning of the acts of congress, in contradistinction from the navigable waters of the states when they form in their ordinary condition by themselves, or by uniting with other waters, a continued highway over which commerce is or may be carried on with other states or foreign countries in the customary modes in which such commerce is conducted by water."

The case of The Daniel Ball, supra, was cited and followed in the case of The Montello, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 411, and in the case of Packer v. Bird, 137 U. S. 661. In the last cited case the court observed at page 667 that "those rivers are regarded as public navigable rivers in law which are navigable in fact." To the same effect see the following cases:

> United States v. Irrigation Company, 174 U. S. 690.
> Leovy v. United States, 177 U. S. 621.

In view of the foregoing I advise you that the question of whether the Little Miami river, or that part thereof within the territorial limits of Warren county, is to be regarded as navigable within the meaning of that term as used in the federal statutes referred to by you and other federal statutes of a similar character, is a question of fact and not of law, upon which I do not feel that I should assume to pass in the absence of full and complete information as to all the facts, and is to be determined by the public officials called upon to deal with the question of river improvement by an application of the rules laid down in the cases herein cited.

If, upon a consideration of the facts, there should remain a doubt as to the navigable or non-navigable character of the stream, I would suggest that the question be referred to the war department by the county officials, together with a statement of the nature of the improvement contemplated and a request for information as to the claims of the federal government.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—WHERE BY TERMS OF WILL A PERSON BECOMES SEIZED OF LIFE ESTATE IN REAL PROPERTY—HOW TITLE CAN BE TRANSFERRED ON TAX DUPLICATE FROM NAME OF TESTATOR TO LIFE TENANT.

Where, by the terms of a will, a person becomes seized of a life estate in land the title to which stands on the duplicate in the name of the testator and such person desires to have title to said land or part thereof so devised to him transferred on said duplicate from the name of the testator to his name, said life tenant may make application to the probate court for an order directing such transfer and if the court upon consideration of said application finds that the facts stated therein are true, that the applicant is entitled to such transfer and that no injury will result therefrom, and make such order, said life tenant can then make application to the county auditor as provided in the first part of section 2573 G. C. and it will be the duty of said auditor upon such application being made and upon the presentation of said order of court, to transfer said title on said duplicate in compliance with the requirement of said section 2573 G. C.

The county auditor is neither required nor authorized to make such transfer until said application is made and the proper order of court presented to him as provided in said section 2573 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 24, 1916.

HON. JOHN H. SCHRIDER, Prosecuting Attorney, Bryan, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of October 7th is as follows:

> "Your opinion upon the following questions is respectively requested.
> "Facts: 'A' dies testate, leaving an estate of 1000 acres of land. 'A' specifically described and devises a 200 acre parcel of said estate to each of his five children, as and for a life estate, only, and upon the deaths of said children, the estate of each to vest absolutely in their children share and share alike.
> "The land now stands in the name of the testator 'A', upon the tax duplicates in the office of the county auditor, as one undivided parcel of land.
> "Question 1. Is the life estate as devised, such an estate as should be transferred to and in the individual name of the life-tenant upon the county tax duplicates?
> "Question 2. What documentary proof is requisite to have the auditor make such transfer, if question number 1 is answered yes?"

Section 5680 G. C. provides in part that:

> "Each person shall pay tax for the lands or town lots of which he is seized for life, * * *"

Under this provision of the statute each of the life tenants referred to in your inquiry is required to pay the taxes on the two hundred acres of land of which he is seized for life during the term of such life estate.

If said life tenant neglects to pay said taxes so that said tract of land is sold for the payment thereof, and within one year after such sale does not redeem the same according to law, section 5688 G. C. provides that:

"He shall forfeit to the person or persons next entitled to such lands in remainder, * * * all the estate which he has in such lands."

If said life tenant desires to have the title to said two hundred acre tract of land transferred on the duplicate from the name of the testator, in which said tract now stands for taxation, to his name, he can make application to the probate court for an order directing such transfer and, if the court upon consideration of said application, finds that the facts stated therein are true, that the applicant is entitled to such transfer and that no injury will result therefrom, and makes such order, said life tenant can then make application to the county auditor as provided in section 2573 G. C. and it will be the duty of said auditor, upon the presentation of said order of court to transfer said title on said duplicate in compliance with the requirement of said section 2573 G. C., which provides in part as follows:

"On application and presentation of title, with the affidavits required by law, or the proper order of a court, the county auditor shall transfer any land or town lot or part thereof charged with taxes on the tax list from the name in which it stands into the name of the owner, when rendered necessary by a conveyance, partition, devise, descent or otherwise."

It must be observed, however, that no duty is imposed upon the county auditor to make such transfer of title until the aforesaid application is made and the proper order of the court presented to him and unless the life tenants referred to in your inquiry take the initial steps in the manner above set forth the title to the acreage in question will continue to stand on the duplicate in the name of the testator referred to in said inquiry, and if said life tenants neglect to pay the taxes on said land devised to them as aforesaid and of which they are now seized for life, so that said taxes become delinquent and said land is sold for the payment thereof, said life tenants will subject themselves to the forfeiture provided for in section 5688 G. C., supra.

In view of the foregoing I am of the opinion in answer to your first question that the life estates referred to in your inquiry may be transferred on the duplicate in the manner hereinbefore set forth, but that the county auditor is neither required nor authorized to make such transfers until application is made and the proper order of court is presented to him as provided for the in first part of section 2573 G. C., supra.

Your second question has been answered in determining the answer to your first question.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATIONS—PAR VALUE OF AUTHORIZED PREFERRED STOCK CAN NEVER EXCEED TWO-THIRDS OF PAR VALUE OF ALL ITS AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK—KELLY-SPRINGFIELD MOTOR TRUCK COMPANY.

The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company cannot have an authorized capital stock of $7,000,000 of which $5,000,000 is preferred and $2,000,000 common stock, and the secretary of state may refuse to file a certificate of increase purporting to give it that authority.

The par value of the authorized preferred stock of a corporation can never exceed two-thirds of the par value of all its authorized capital stock.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 24, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of October 11, 1916, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "We are herewith submitting to your department certificate of increase of capital stock 'preferred' of 'The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company,' voucher No. 51691 and check to the amount of $3,986.
> "The aforesaid certificate increases the capital stock of The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company to the amount of $7,000,000 divided into $5,000,000 of preferred stock and $2,000,000 of common stock.
> "We also beg to call your attention to section 8667 of the General Code, which provides as follows:
>
> "'If a corporation be organized for profit, it must have a capital stock, which may consist of common and preferred, or common only; but at no time shall the amount of preferred stock at par value exceed two-thirds of the actual capital paid in in cash or property.'
> "We kindly request an early opinion on the question of whether or not a corporation can have an amount of authorized preferred stock in excess of two-thirds of the amount of total capital stock."

Whether or not The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company can have an authorized capital stock of $7,000,000 of which $5,000,000 is preferred and $2,000,000 is common stock depends upon the construction to be given to the language of section 8667 of the General Code, which is fully quoted in your letter. The pertinent part of this section is as follows:

> "* * * but at no time shall the amount of preferred stock at par value exceed two-thirds of the actual capital paid in in cash or property."

The term "actual capital paid in" must of necessity mean the amount paid in and credited upon capital stock account, from which no dividends may lawfully be paid, and the effect of the language is, therefore, that a corporation can at no time have outstanding preferred stock with a par value in excess of two-thirds of the par value of all its fully paid in capital stock, or, in other words, that the par value of outstanding preferred stock must never exceed twice the par value of the paid in common stock.

It has been suggested by counsel for The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company that the phrase "actual capital paid in in cash or property" means assets including any surplus which the corporation may have. A sufficient answer to this suggestion is that if such had been the legislative intent they would doubtless have used the word "assets" and thus have shortened and simplified the sentence instead of employing several words to give doubtful expression to that intent. This suggested interpretation woud also result in uncertainty and confusion. For example: If the corporation having an authorized capital of $300,000 divided into $200,000 preferred and $100,000 common and having no surplus should suffer a loss of $50,000, it would be under the necessity of reducing the amount of its preferred stock in order to comply with the statute quoted.

It would be vain to permit The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company to file a certificate of increase purporting to give it the potential authority to issue $5,000,000 of preferred stock when by the specific provisions of law it can never without first increasing its authorized common stock issue more than $4,000,000 of such preferred stock.

Therefore, I am of the opinion that the corporation can not have an amount of authorized preferred stock in excess of two-thirds of the amount of the total paid in capital stock, and advise you that you should not accept or file the certificate of increase of capital stock presented by The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company.

I am returning the enclosure mentioned in your letter.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, ABSTRACT OF TITLE AND DEED FROM LENA DE S. SLATTERY TO TRUSTEES OF OHIO UNIVERSITY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 25, 1916.

DR. ALSTON ELLIS, President, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of abstract of title and deed from Lena de S. Slattery to the president and trustees of the Ohio University, for the following described real estate situate in the City of Athens, Athens county, Ohio, to-wit:

"Beginning at a point two hundred thirty-two and 1-10 (232.1) feet south, and one hundred and twenty (120) feet west of the northeast corner of Inlot No. 74 in the City of Athens, Athens county, Ohio, being the southwest corner of that part of Inlot No. 77 in said city conveyed to Della B. Sleeper by John Welch and wife by their deed dated February 28, 1882, and recorded in Book 52, at page 172, of Record of Deeds in said county, and thence running west thirty-three and one-half (33½) feet, more or less, to the west line of the premises formerly owned by John Welch; thence north, along the west line of the premises formerly owned by said Welch, forty-five (45) feet; thence east thirty-three and one-half (33½) feet, more or less, to the west line of the premises conveyed to Della B. Sleeper by the said John Welch as aforesaid; thence south forty-five (45) feet to the place of beginning.

"Excepting and reserving to grantor, her heirs and assigns, a right of way ten (10) feet wide across said premises along the east side of said above described tract.

"Said tract herein above described is a part of Inlots Nos. 77, 170 and 171 in said City of Athens, and constitute the same premises conveyed to Della B. Sleeper by John Welch and wife by their deed dated April 9, 1886, and recorded in Book 61, at page 64, of Record of Deeds in said county."

I have carefully examined said abstract and beg leave to call to your attention the following:

1. That Mrs. Slattery holds the title to such part of said premises as is within Inlot No. 77 under lease for ninety-nine years, renewable forever.

2. That the premises herein described were improperly dropped from the rental records of The Ohio University and that they do not now appear upon said records.

3. That the description in the deed for premises now owned by the Phi Delta Theta club, which first dates from May 1, 1903, overlaps for two and one-half feet the west side of the premises herein described, but that such club is without legal rights to the title of said premises and I am informed by you and by Mr. W. E. Peters, attorney at law and abstractor, of Athens, Ohio, that there has been no claim of adverse possession upon this ground.

4. That the undetermined taxes for the year 1916 are unpaid.

If, as I am informed you contemplate doing, a quit claim deed is secured from the Phi Delta Theta club for that part of the premises described in the deed above referred to wherein the description in the deed to the Club overlaps, this will in my judgment clear up the cloud on the title now resting thereon.

While the abstract shows a number of technical defects, I believe that, with the exception of the things above specifically noted, it discloses a good and sufficient perpetual leasehold in Mrs. Slattery to said premises.

The deed is in proper legal form, is duly signed, acknowledged and witnessed and conveys all the title and estate of Mrs. Slattery in said premises to The President and Trustees of Ohio University, subject of course to the above exceptions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY REYNOLDSBURG VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT, FRANKLIN COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 27, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

> "RE:—Bonds of Reynoldsburg village school district, Franklin county, Ohio, in the sum of $2,000.00 for the purpose of installing heating system and erecting fire escapes on the school building in said district, being four bonds of $500.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education of Reynoldsburg village school district relative to the issuance of said bonds, also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of the village school district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COMBINED NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT OF WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY—APPROVAL OF CONTRACTS FOR ERECTION OF GYMNASIUM AND ALSO FOR ERECTION OF RECITATION BUILDING.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 27, 1916.

Board of Trustees, Combined Normal and Industrial Department, Wilberforce University, Wilberforce, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your architect, Frank L. Packard, has handed to me:

1. The contract between your board and The Cullen and Vaughn Company, dated September 21, 1916, for the erection of a gymnasium at Wilberforce, Ohio, the contract calling for the sum of $37,646.21.

2. The contract entered into by your board with The Cullen and Vaughn Company of Hamilton, Ohio, under date of September 21, 1916, for the erection and completion of a recitation building at Wilberforce, Ohio, for the sum of $56,989.79.

3. The bond to cover the erection and completion of both of said buildings.

I have carefully examined the contracts and the bond covering the same, and find them to be in compliance with law, and have ascertained from the auditor of state that there are sufficient moneys available in each of the appropriations to cover the amount of the contract.

The governor, secretary of state and auditor of state have granted permission to your board of trustees to enter into a contract upon the combined bid of said The Cullen and Vaughn Company for the gymnasium and recitation buildings.

I have this day approved the said contracts and filed the same in the office of the auditor of state, and have returned to the architect the balance of the papers submitted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS—MAY INVEST FUNDS IN SECURITIES THAT ARE ACCEPTED BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT TO SECURE POSTAL SAVINGS DEPOSITS IN NATIONAL BANKS.

Building and loan associations of Ohio may invest their idle funds in such securities as are accepted by the United States government to secure postal savings deposits in national banks.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 30, 1916.

HON. L. G. SILBAUGH, Inspector of Building and Loan Associations, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of October 20, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

"Among the powers granted to building and loan associations in this state is the following:

"General Code section 9660. 'To invest any of its idle funds, or any part thereof, in bonds of interest bearing obligations of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, or of the state of Ohio, or of any county, township, school district, or other political division in the state of Ohio, or of any incorporated city or village, in the state of Ohio; and in such other securities as now are or hereafter may be accepted by the United States to secure government deposits in national banks. But such investments at no time shall amount in the aggregate to more than twenty per cent. of the assets of such corporation.'

"Does this section of the General Code authorize building and loan associations of this state to invest their idle funds in such securities as are accepted by the United States government to secure postal savings deposits in national banks?"

Your question will be answered by determining whether or not the securities accepted by the United States government to secure postal savings deposits in national banks are, within the language of the section quoted in your letter, government deposits.

Section 9691 of the United States Compiled Statutes of 1913, relative to deposits of public moneys of the United States government, is as follows:

"All national banking associations, designated for that purpose by the secretary of the treasury, shall be depositaries of public money, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the secretary; and they may also be employed as financial agents of the government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties, as depositaries of public money and financial agents of the government, as may be required by them. The secretary of the treasury shall require the associations thus designated to give satisfactory security, by the deposit of United States bonds and otherwise, for the safekeeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the government: Provided, that the secretary shall, on or before the first of January of each year, make a public statement of the securities required during that year for such deposits. And every association so designated as receiver or depositary of the public money shall take and receive at par all of the national currency bills, by whatever association issued, which have been paid into the government for internal revenue, or for loans or stocks: Provided, that the secretary of the treasury shall distribute the deposits herein provided for, as far as practicable, equitably between the different states and sections."

This section contained substantially the same language at the time section 9660 of the General Code, quoted in your letter, was enacted.

Section 7588 of the United States Compiled Statutes of 1913, relative to the deposit of postal savings funds in banks, so far as pertinent, is as follows:

"Postal savings funds received under the provisions of this act shall be deposited in solvent banks, whether organized under national or state laws, being subject to national or state supervision and examination, and the sums deposited shall bear interest at the rate of not less than two and one-fourth per centum per annum, which rate shall be uniform throughout the United States and territories thereof; but five per centum of such funds shall be withdrawn by the board of trustees and kept with the treasurer of the United States, who shall be treasurer of the board of trustees, in lawful money as a reserve. The board of trustees shall take from such banks such security in public bonds or other securities, supported by the taxing power, as the board may prescribe, approve, and deem sufficient and necessary to insure the safety and prompt payment of such deposits on demand. The funds received at the postal savings depository offices in each city, town, village and other locality shall be deposited in banks located therein (substantially in proportion to the capital and surplus of each such bank willing to receive such deposits under the terms of this act and the regulations made by authority thereof, but the amount deposited in any one bank shall at no time exceed the amount of the paid-in capital and one-half the surplus of such bank. * * *"

Postal savings funds deposited in banks under authority of said section 7588 of the United States Compiled Statutes above quoted, by virtue of the language of that section and other sections of the same act, are clearly government deposits within the meaning of said section 9660 of the General Code of Ohio. Such funds, strictly speaking, may not be public funds, yet they are under the custody and control of the Federal government acting through its duly authorized agency, and are deposited in banks by direct authority of the Federal government.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that building and loan associations of Ohio may invest their idle funds in such securities as may be designated by the board of trustees for the control, supervision, and the administration of the postal savings depository offices acting under the authority conferred upon them by said section 7588 of the United States Compiled Statutes herein quoted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SECRETARY OF STATE—CERTIFICATE FOR REGISTRATION OF MARK OF OWNERSHIP OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—WHERE NAME "BOY SCOUTS" USED—EXCELSIOR SHOE COMPANY.

Secretary of state advised that he may refuse to file certificate presented by The Excelsior Shoe Company for the registration of a mark of ownership of personal property which contains as a distinguishing part of the mark and in large type the name "Boy Scouts."

The secretary of state can not be compelled to perform a ministerial duty except by one rightfully entitled to demand the performance of such act.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 30, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of October 17, 1916, in which you request my opinion as follows:

"We are submitting to your department certificate of registration of marks of ownership on personal property of 'THE EXCELSIOR SHOE COMPANY,' money order to the amount of $1.00, and a communication from James Hamilton, and kindly beg to request an early opinion on the question of whether or not said certificate of registration should be filed in this department."

The following is a copy of the certificate of registration referred to in your letter:—

REGISTRATION OF MARKS OF OWNERSHIP ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

"Application of The Excelsior Shoe Company, an Ohio Corporation of Portsmouth, Ohio.

"Witnesseth: That The Excelsior Shoe Company above named, in compliance with an 'An Act' of the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, passed May 31, 1911, and approved June 7, 1911, (102 O. L., 513), 'to provide for the registration of marks of ownership on personal property, and to make such registered mark prima facie evidence of ownership of property bearing such mark,' hereby makes application for the registration in the office of the secretary of state of the state of Ohio and in the office of the clerk of the court of common pleas of Scioto county, Ohio, said The Excelsior Shoe Company having its principal place of business in the City of Portsmouth, County of Scioto and state of Ohio, by filing this written statement or description verified by affidavit of said mark of ownership used by said The Excelsior Shoe Company, to wit:

"The trademark consists of the picture of a scout.

"The class and particular description of goods to which the said trademark has been and is intended to be appropriated are:

"Class: Footwear. Particular description of goods: Shoes.

"The said trademark has been continuously used in the business of said corporation since about the fifteenth day of October, 1910.

"The said trademark is usually applied by stamping the same directly on the goods or by means of printed labels showing the trademark or by stamping or printing the same upon the package containing the goods.

"The Excelsior Shoe Company.
"By J. W. Bannon, Jr.,
"Secretary.

"State of Ohio, Scioto County, ss:

"J. W. Bannon, Jr., being duly sworn says that he is the secretary of the above named corporation, in whose behalf the foregoing application is made; that said The Excelsior Shoe Company has the right to use such mark of ownership, and that no other person, firm, association, union or corporation has the right to use such mark of ownership either in the identical form or any such near resemblance thereto as may be calculated to deceive, and that the fac similies or counterparts filed therewith are true and correct.

"J. W. Bannon, Jr.,
"Secretary, The Excelsior Shoe Company.

"Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me this 25th day of September, A. D., 1916.

"E. H. Hamner,
"Notary Public."

The trademark referred to in the certificate, copy of which is attached thereto, consists of a picture or representation of a boy dressed in the uniform or garb of a scout and seated on a horse. This label has written on it, in large type, the words: "Boy Scouts," and also the words, in smaller type: "Manufactured by the Excelsior Shoe Company, Portsmouth, Ohio."

The communication from James Hamilton, who is attorney for The Excelsior Shoe Company, is a memorandum and argument advocating the right of his client to use said mark of ownership and to secure its registration in your office.

I am also in receipt of your letter of October 18th, 1916, enclosing a communication from Mr. James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, denying on behalf of that association the right of The Excelsior Shoe Company to use the name "Boy Scouts" and protesting against the proposed registration of that name in your office. To the latter communication is attached a copy of the Act of Congress approved by the president on June 15, 1916, entitled "An Act to Incorporate the Boy Scouts of America, and for other purposes."

Sections 6240-1, 6240-2 and 6240-3 of the General Code, relative to the registration of trademarks, brands, etc., are as follows:

> "Sec. 6240-1. That any and all persons or corporations who may be the owners of cans, tubs, firkins, boxes, bottles, casks, barrels, kegs, cartons, tanks, fountains, vessels or containers, with his, her, its or their names, brands, designs, trade marks, devices or other marks of ownership stamped, impressed, labeled, blown in or otherwise marked thereon, may file with the secretary of state, and also with the clerk of the court of common pleas of the county in which such person or persons or corporation may have his, her, its or their principal place of business, a written statement or description verified by affidavit of such owner or his, her or its agent, of the names, brands, designs, trade marks, devices or other marks of ownership so used by him, her, it or them, and of the said article or articles upon which the same are used; or if such principal place of business be without this state, then such written statement or description so verified may be filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas, of any county in this state."
> "Sec. 6240-2. The statement provided for in section one (G. C. 6240-1) of this act shall be published once a week for four successive weeks in a newspaper printed in the English language, and of general circulation in the county in which such notice may have been filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas as aforesaid; a copy of which publication proved in the same manner as proof of publication is now required to be made by law, when no special mode of proving the same is provided, shall also be filed with the secretary of state, and with the clerk of the court of common pleas of the county, where such statement is filed.
> "All such written statements or descriptions and all such certificates of publication so filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas, shall be recorded by him in a book to be kept by him for such purpose; and such book shall be subject, at all reasonable hours, to the inspection of all persons who may choose to inspect the same."
> "Sec. 6240-3. The secretary of state and the clerk of the court of common pleas, of the county where such statement is filed, shall deliver to any person who may apply therefor, upon payment of the fees herein provided, copies of all such written statements or descriptions of names, brands, designs, trade marks, devices, or other marks of ownership, and of all certificates of publication so filed with them, duly certified to by them in the usual manner; and such certified copies, so made by either the secretary of state or the clerk of the common pleas court of the county where such statement is filed, shall be admissible in evidence in any suit, action or proceeding in law under this act, and shall be prima facie evidence that the provisions of this act have been complied with, and also prima facie evidence of the title of the owner or owners named therein, to the property upon which the name, brand, design, trade mark, device or other mark or marks of ownership of such owner or owners may appear as described therein."

Section 7 of the Act of Congress incorporating the Boy Scouts of America is as follows:

"The said corporation shall have the sole and exclusive right to have and to use, in carrying out its purposes, all emblems and badges, descriptive or designating marks, and words or phrases now or heretofore used by the Boy Scouts of America in carrying out its program, it being distinctly and definitely understood, however, that nothing in this Act shall interfere or conflict with established or vested rights."

The first question raised, therefore, is whether or not The Excelsior Shoe Company has an established or vested right in the use of the name "Boy Scouts."

The verified certificate of registration above quoted recites that the trade mark sought to be registered has been continuously used by The Excelsior Shoe Company since October 15, 1910, and I have no reason to doubt the truth of that statement. I am informed that the association known as the Boy Scouts was in active existence under that name for a number of years prior to October 15, 1910; that the association at its origin adopted and has ever since claimed and used the words "Boy Scouts" as a distinguishing part of its name. The fact that the association was not incorporated does not signify that it did not have, or could not acquire, an enforceable proprietary right in a picture, design, name or trade-mark originated and adopted by it.

Irrespective of statutory law, but upon well established equitable principles, the association could have enjoined The Excelsior Shoe Company from using the name "Boy Scouts."

I believe a further remedy is provided in Section 13155 of the General Code, which is as follows:—

"Whoever in any way uses the genuine label, union shop card, trade mark, term, design, device or form of advertisement, or the name of (or) seal, or any imitation, likeness, or counterfeit of the genuine label, union shop card, trade mark, term, design, device or form of advertisement, or name or seal, of any association or union or officer thereof, in and about the sale of goods or otherwise, not being authorized to so use the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00.)"

The term "Boy Scouts" is the name adopted by the association of Boy Scouts and The Excelsior Shoe Company is now, and, according to the recital in its certificate of registration, has for several years past been using that name or term "in and about the sale of goods or otherwise, not being authorized to so use the same," and is therefore subject to the penalty prescribed in the section just quoted.

In this connection I call attention to a decision of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, May 26, 1913. In re The Excelsior Shoe Company, Vol.

40 of the reports of that court, at page 480, wherein the decision of the commissioner of patents denying registration of this same trade-mark or name by this same company was sustained and confirmed. I quote the opinion of the court in full.

"These separate appeals from decisions of the commissioner of patents denying registration of a trademark involve substantially the same question, and have been heard as one.

"The trademark is the word 'Boy Scouts' applied to leather and canvas shoes for boys, youths and men. In No. 841 a representation of the mark consists of a youth on horseback, dressed in the garb of a cowboy or scout, with the words 'Boy Scouts' printed thereunder in conspicuous letters; this is stamped or printed on the sole of a shoe. It was shown in the course of the application that there was affixed to the boxes containing each pair of shoes a label in colors, on which appears not only the scout on horseback, but pictures of boy scouts engaged in various sports. The most conspicuous thing in this label is the words 'Boy Scouts' in white letters on a red back ground. It also shows that the shoes are manufactured by The Excelsior Shoe Company, of Portsmouth, Ohio. Each application states that the trademark has been 'continuously used in the business of said corporation since July 1, 1910.'

"The mark described in No. 842 is a picture of a youth dressed for an outing, who holds in his hands a line intended to represent a lasso, the noose embracing a shoe, and the intermediate convolutions forming the letters of the word 'Scout.' It does not appear what labels were used on the shoe boxes.

"The mark described in No. 843 is the figure of a fully equipped boy scout or cowboy on horseback. The accompanying label used on the shoe boxes shows this figure on a circular background with the words 'Boy Scouts' in large letters overhead, and The Excelsior Shoe Company, Portsmouth, Ohio, underneath. The trademark is claimed to be affixed to the goods or the packages containing them by means of a printed label.

"The examiner of trademarks denied registration in each case on two grounds: 1. That the mark is the name of a well-known organization. 2. That it is descriptive or deceptive. The commissioner affirmed the examiner's decision on the second ground, and declared it unnecessary to pass upon the other.

"The appellant contends that, as there was no evidence introduced to show that there is such an association or organization as the Boy Scouts, the commissioner cannot take notice of the same. The rule that a judge is not to shut his eyes to what everybody else of intelligence knows applies with peculiar force in proceedings in the patent office, for reasons that are obvious. Taking notice that the 'boy scouts' is an association comprising a great number of youths throughout the United States devoted to out-of-door exercises and sports, the commissioner was right that their name applied as a trademark for shoes was either descriptive or deceptive, or both, as indicating to purchasers that the particular shoes were of a superior quality approved by the association of boy scouts, and marked with their name by their authority.

"It is unnecessary to consider other grounds of objection. It may be remarked, also, that the several applications for the registration of these marks are fatally defective in that the accompanying affidavit does not show that the mark has been used in commerce among the states, or with foreign nations, or with the Indian tribes, as expressly required by the trademark act, Secs. 1 and 2. We are not to be understood as holding that the applicant might not obtain registration of the figure represented on this label, provided it has not been appropriated by some other manufacturer. What we hold is that he cannot obtain registration for it with the accompanying words 'Boy Scouts.'

"The decision in each appeal is affirmed, and this decision will be certified to the commissioner of patents. Affirmed."

A motion for a rehearing in this case was overruled by the court October 9, 1913.

My information that the name "Boy Scouts" was adopted and used by the association of that name prior to its use by The Excelsior Shoe Company beginning October 15, 1910, is confirmed by the decision in the case above referred to; otherwise the association could have had no proprietary right in the name valid as against The Excelsior Shoe Company.

I, therefore, conclude that the Excelsior Shoe Company at the date of the passage of the federal act incorporating the Boy Scouts of America had no established or vested right to use the name "Boy Scouts" within the meaning of the exceptions contained in Section 7 of that act, and that the Boy Scouts of America have the sole and exclusive right to have and use the same in carrying out its purposes.

It is suggested by Mr. Hamilton in his memorandum that your duty under the sections of the Ohio General Code herein quoted are purely ministerial and that you are given no discretion in the matter and are without authority to enquire into or to determine the rights of the contending parties, but must receive and file the certificate as presented.

I recognize the fact that your duties in this connection are of a ministerial character, but the courts of this state have uniformly held that a ministerial duty cannot be enforced at the suit of one who is not lawfully entitled to demand the performance of that duty.

"A mandamus will not be awarded in the absence of a clear right, in the party seeking the writ, to the object sought to be obtained by it." State ex rel. Ban v. Yeatman, 22 O. S., 546; State ex rel. v. Smith, 71 O. S., 13."

Therefore, if you conclude, as I believe the facts warrant, that The Excelsior Shoe Company is not entitled to use the name "Boy Scouts" for the purpose recited in its certificate of registration, you will be justified in refusing to file such certificate of registration.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY BOARD OF SCHOOL EXAMINERS—WITNESSES—AUTHORITY TO ISSUE SUBPOENAS—FEES OF WITNESSES—NECESSARY EXPENSES OF SENDING FOR WITNESSES—HOW PAID—BOARD MAY REVOKE A FIVE-YEAR CERTIFICATE.

The county board of school examiners have no authority to issue subpoenas and compel attendance of witnesses upon a hearing held pursuant to the provisions of section 7827 G. C.

Witnesses sent for by the county board of school examiners may be allowed and paid such reasonable fees for their attendance upon such hearing as the examiners may determine, not in excess of the witness fees and mileage allowed by law in ordinary cases, under the provisions of section 7828 G. C.

The county board of school examiners may certify to the county auditor for payment the necessary expense of sending for witnesses as authorized by section 7827 G. C., and such necessary expense may be paid pursuant to the provisions of section 7828 G. C.

The county board of school examiners may, under the provisions of section 7827 G. C., revoke a five-year certificate heretofore issued and still in force.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 30, 1916.

HON. D. FINDLEY MILLS, Prosecuting Attorney, Sidney, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of October 21, 1916, is as follows:

"Written charges have been preferred and filed with the board of school examiners of Shelby county, against a certain teacher charging him with intemperance, immorality, etc., and asking for the revocation of this teacher's certificate, under the provisions of section 7827 G. C. The latter part of this section provides as follows:

" 'The examining board may send for witnesses and examine them on oath or affirmation, which may be administered by any member of the board touching the matter under investigation.'

"I would like very much to have your construction of this statute, as to whether or not the examining board is authorized to issue subpoenaes for the respective witnesses, and compel attendance; if so, who is authorized to serve the subpoenaes and what fee shall be allowed for such service. Also what if any fees shall be paid the witnesses who are compelled to attend and testify at this hearing.

"The teacher in question now holds a five-year certificate which was granted prior to the adoption of the new school code. Section 7821-1 G. C. provides as follows:

" 'All five-year and eight-year certificates now granted shall continue in force until the end of their terms, and shall be renewed by the superintendent of public instruction upon proof that the holders thereof have taught successfully until the time of each renewal. * * *'

"I would like to know as to whether or not in your opinion the fact that the county board of school examiners have no authority to grant a five-year certificate under the present school law, and the matter of renewal is left exclusively to the superintendent of public instruction, would deprive the county board of school examiners of the authority or jurisdiction to revoke such certificate under the provisions of section 7827 G. C"

Section 7827 G. C., to which reference is made in your inquiry, provides as follows:

"No certificate shall be issued to any person who is less than eighteen years of age. If at any time the recipient of a certificate be found intemperate, immoral, incompetent or negligent, the examiners, or any two of them, may revoke the certificate; but such revocation shall not prevent a teacher from receiving pay for services previously rendered. Before any hearing is had by a board of examiners on the question of the revocation of a teacher's certificate, the charges against the teacher must be reduced to writing and placed upon the records of the board. He shall be notified in writing as to the nature of the charges and the time set for the hearing, such notice to be served personally or at his residence; and be entitled to produce witnesses and defend himself. The examining board may send for witnesses and examine them on oath or affirmation which may be administered by any member of the board touching the matter under investigation."

Section 7828 G. C. provides as follows:

"The fees and the per diem of examiners for conducting such investigation at three dollars a day each and other expenses of such trial shall be certified to the county auditor by the clerk and president of the examining board and be paid out of the county treasury upon the order of the auditor."

While it is above provided that the county board of school examiners may send for witnesses, there is found no statutory provision making attendance of witnesses sent for compulsory, and no penalty is prescribed for the failure or refusal of a witness so sent for by the county board of school examiners to attend, nor is there specific provision for sending for such witnesses in any particular manner, and no fee or compensation prescribed for any person whom the examiners may send for as a witness. If, however, the sending for witnesses, as authorized by section 7827 G. C., necessitates the incurring of any expense by the county board of school examiners, the provisions of section 7828 G. C. are applicable thereto. The necessary expenses thus incurred would be of similar nature to the further expense which may be necessary to procure the attendance of witnesses.

In an opinion of this department under date of June 30, 1916, addressed to Hon. E. A. Scott, prosecuting attorney of Adams county, a copy of which is herewith enclosed, it was held that the necessary expenses of procuring the attendance of witnesses, in no case in excess of witness fees and mileage, in ordinary cases may be paid pursuant to the provisions of section 7828 G. C., supra.

There being found no statutory provision therefor, I am of opinion, in answer to your first question, that the county board of school examiners is without power to issue subpoenaes and to compel the attendance of witnesses in hearings authorized by them to be held by the provisions of section 7827 G. C., supra. Such fees as are reasonable and not in excess of the witness fees and mileage allowed by law in ordinary cases may be allowed to and paid witnesses sent for, for their attendance at such hearing, under the provisions of section 7828 G. C. Under the provisions of said section 7828 G. C., the county board of school examiners may also allow and certify to the county auditor, for payment as an expense of such hearing, the reasonable and necessary expense incurred in sending for such witnesses.

Coming to consider your second question, it must be observed that while formerly the county board of school examiners was authorized to grant a five-year certificate, and that there is now no such authority in the board, the power to revoke certificates, under the provisions of section 7827 G. C., supra, is not to such extent dependent upon the authority to grant the same that the abrogation of the authority to grant a certificate for five years would operate as a repeal of the authority conferred by section 7827 G. C., for the revocation of such certificate. So long as such certificates continue in force, the power to revoke the same is provided by said section 7827 G. C., remains, the operation of that section not being affected by a modification of the authority to grant certificates. The terms of said section are general and applicable to any certificate which has been or may hereafter be issued by the county board of school examiners.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your second question, that county boards of school examiners are authorized to revoke a five-year certificate heretofore granted and yet in force, pursuant to the provisions of section 7827 G. C., supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TRUSTEES OF OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY—NOT AUTHORIZED TO DEDICATE LAND FOR STREET PURPOSES WITHOUT EXPRESS LEGISLATIVE AUTHORIZATION.

The trustees of the Ohio State University are not authorized to dedicate any portion of the university property for street purposes without express legislative authorization.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 30, 1916.

HON. CARL E. STEEB, Secretary Board of Trustees, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication under date of October 10, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

> "I am in receipt of a communication from the city of Columbus, asking the board of trustees to dedicate twenty or thirty feet on Tenth avenue, from Neil avenue to Perry street, to the city of Columbus, for street purposes. This communication will be presented to the board of trustees at its meeting to be held November 7th, and in order that I may be properly advised before presenting said communication, I wish to inquire whether or not legislative permission would be necessary before the trustees could dedicate any portion of the university property to the city of Columbus for street purposes?"

Section 7950 G. C. provides that the board of trustees of the Ohio State University shall have general supervision of all lands, buildings and other property belonging to the university. Section 7951 G. C. authorizes the board of trustees to receive and hold in trust for the use and benefit of the university any grant or devise of land and donation or bequest of money or other personal property to be applied to the general or special use of the university. Section 7952 G. C. provides that the title for all lands for the use of the university shall be made in fee simple to the state of Ohio. None of these sections, however, authorizes the board of trustees of the university to dedicate for street purposes any of the real estate belonging to the state of Ohio and used for the purposes of the university. If the trustees should dedicate for street purposes land belonging to the university they would be exceeding the authority conferred on them by the statutes relating to the control and management of the university.

I am therefore of the opinion, in answer to your question, that legislative permission would be necessary before the trustees of the university could dedicate any portion of the university property for street purposes.

This situation seems to have been recognized by the legislature of the state which, by an act passed April 15, 1892, and found in 89 O. L. 301, granted to the city of Columbus the right to construct and improve a certain public road or street through the lands of the university. The opinion herein expressed is also in accordance with the general principle supporting opinion No. 1289 of this department, rendered to Hon. W. O. Thompson, president of the university, on February 21, 1916, in which opinion it was held that the trustees of the university would not be authorized to enter into an arrangement to permit a hospital owned by the city to be erected on land controlled by the university trustees, in the absence of an authorization of such an arrangement by the legislature. The same principle has been recognized by the legislature in an act found in 103 O. L. 660, authorizing the erection by an incorporated alumni association of a dormitory on the campus of the university, and by an act found in 102 O. L. 297, authorizing the construction of a high school building on the campus of the university, upon such terms as might be agreed upon by the trustees of the university and the board of education of the Columbus city school district. The legislature in these acts manifestly had in mind the principle that the trustees of the university would not be authorized to surrender their custody and control of any part of the university grounds or permit the use of any part of such grounds for any purpose other than those of the university without express legislative authorization.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE, SALT CREEK TOWNSHIP RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, PICKAWAY COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, October 31, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

> "RE:—Bonds of Salt Creek township rural school district, Pickaway county, Ohio, in the sum of $4,500.00 to improve public school property in said district, being nine bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of proceedings of the board of education of Salt Creek township rural school district relative to the above bond issue, also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds, drawn in accordance with the form submitted, and executed by the proper officers, will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said school district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT WHICH MAINTAINS NO HIGH SCHOOL—HOW AMOUNT OF TUITION FOR BOARD MAINTAINING HIGH SCHOOL IS TO BE COMPUTED.

The amount of tuition to be paid by the board of education of a rural school district which maintains no high school to the board of education of the school district maintaining a high school, will be the aggregate of the per capita amounts for the several pupils residing in said rural school district and attending said high school, to be computed in the manner provided in the first part of section 7747 G. C., 104 O. L. 125, and to be ascertained by dividing the total expense of conducting said high school, exclusive of permanent improvements and repair, by the average monthly enrollment of all pupils attending said high school, including said non-resident as well as the resident pupils of the school district maintaining said high school.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 6, 1916.

HON. D. M. CUPP, Prosecuting Attorney, Delaware, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of October 18th, which was not received at this office until October 31, 1916, you request my opinion as follows:

> "Genoa rural school district of Delaware county, Ohio, maintains no high school. This rural school district has twenty pupils who are eligible for admission to high school. These pupils are attending the high school at Westerville, Franklin county, Ohio.
> "(a) What tuition shall be paid the school board of the Westerville high school by the school board of the Genoa rural school district?
>
> "(b) Do you divide the total expense of conducting the high school exclusive of permanent improvements and repairs, by the enrollment in the high school including the tuition or foreign pupils, or do you divide by the monthly enrollment in the high school excluding all foreign and tuition pupils?"

Section 7747 G. C. (104 O. L. 125) provides in part:

> "The tuition of pupils who are eligible for admission to high school and who reside in rural districts, in which no high school is maintained, shall be paid by the board of education of the school district in which they have legal school residence, such tuition to be computed by the month. An attendance any part of the month shall create a liability for the entire month. No more shall be charged per capita than the amount ascertained by dividing the total expenses of conducting the high school of the district attended, exclusive of permanent improvements and repair, by the average monthly enrollment in the high school of the district."

From your statement of facts it is evident that the board of education of the rural district referred to in your inquiry has not entered into an agreement with the board of education of the Westerville village school district, as authorized by provision of the first part of section 7750 G. C. and I assume that the several pupils residing in said rural school district and attending the high school in said village school district have complied with the requirement of the latter part of said section 7750 G. C. which provides that:

> "In case no such agreement is entered into, the school to be attended can be selected by the pupil holding a diploma (or the certificate of the county superintendent issued under authority of section 7747 G. C. supra), if due notice in writing is given to the clerk of the board of education of the name of the school to be attended and the date the attendance is to begin, such notice to be filed not less than five days previous to the beginning of attendance."

The per capita tuition of said pupils is to be computed in the manner provided in the first part of section 7747 G. C. as above quoted, and by the plain terms of said part of said section the amount per capita is to be ascertained by dividing the total expense of conducting the high school in said village school district, exclusive of permanent improvements and repair, by the average monthly enrollment in said high school. This average monthly enrollment clearly includes non-resident as well as resident pupils of said village school district attending said high school.

I am of the opinion therefore, in answer to your questions, that the amount of tuition to be paid by the board of education of the rural district referred to in your inquiry to the board of education of the Westerville village school district will be the aggregate of the per capita amounts for the several pupils residing in said rural school district and attending said high school, to be computed in the manner provided in the first part of said section 7747 G. C. and to be ascertained by dividing the total expense of conducting said high school, exclusive of permanent improvements and repair, by the average monthly enrollment of all the pupils attending said high school including said non-resident as well as the resident pupils of said village school district.

The question as to what constitutes "permanent improvements and repair" was considered in opinion No. 1718 of this department, rendered to Hon. George W. Porter, prosecuting attorney of Darke county, on June 21, 1916. A copy of said opinion is enclosed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

AUDITOR OF STATE—BOND AND CERTIFICATE REQUIRED FOR SALE OF GENUINE STEAMSHIP AND RAILROAD TICKETS FOR TRANSPORTATION TO AND FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES—HOW SAME MAY BE RELEASED AND NEW CERTIFICATE AND BOND FILED—SECTIONS 290 TO 295 G. C. CONSTRUED.

Under the provisions of sections 290 to 295 G. C., inclusive, the auditor of state, if a person holding a certificate desires to surrender same and take out a new certificate, would be authorized to accept old certificate, cancel same and issue new certificate and accept bond to cover new certificate.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 9, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of October 23, 1916, which is to the following effect:

> "In the above matter I am enclosing herewith letter of The American Surety Company of New York, bearing date of the 20th instant, in which I am requested to obtain 'an official ruling' from you on certain questions propounded therein, relative to this company's connection with and liability under certain bonds mentioned therein.
> "Our records show that the Mr. Charles Ganitch referred to on November 8th, 1912, filed with the auditor of state, in accordance with sections 290-295 General Code, a bond by the Title Guaranty and Surety Company as surety. On the same date the auditor of state issued certificate No. 306, certifying that Charles Ganitch had filed bond in accordance with the above mentioned statute.
> "On May 23, 1916, Mr. Ganitch surrendered the above mentioned certificate and it was cancelled on our records. On this date he filed a bond by the American Guaranty Company and another certificate—No. 452—was issued him, certifying that he had filed bond in accordance with the statute. He still retains this last mentioned certificate.
> "Both the above mentioned bonds are on file with this office and are available for your inspection. Certificate No. 306 is also on file here and may be seen. The copy of the bond forwarded by the American Surety Company, which is enclosed herewith, is a true copy of the bond of which it is a copy. We are also enclosing the blank form of bond and certificate which we are using so that you may have them for reference if needed.
> "We join with the American Surety Company in the request for an official opinion and shall be grateful for any consideration given the matter."

The letter enclosed with your inquiry and addressed to you by The American Surety Company is to the following effect:

> "The Title Guarany & Surety Company of Scranton, Pennsylvania, became surety for Mr. Charles Ganitch of Akron, by its bond of $5,000.00, dated October 25, 1912, and conditioned for his faithful and honest transmission of moneys, etc., abroad, and the sale of genuine steamship and railroad tickets for transportation to and from foreign countries, etc., under requirements of the General Code, sections 290-295, a copy of such bond is herewith attached. Under the said bond it is our understanding that a certificate was issued by the auditor of state bearing No. 306, dated November 8, 1912, such certificate in usual form to certify that Mr. Ganitch had complied with the act of the general assembly passed May 1, 1908, upon the subject noted.

"Thereafter The American Surety Company reinsured the liability of The Title Guaranty & Surety Company upon said bond. Mr. Ganitch has now expressed his desire to supersede the bond above noted by another and different bond, given by a different surety and has taken steps to that end. It is our understanding that he has actually filed a new bond, and that the same has been accepted and approved by the auditor of state, and that on the basis thereof a new certificate has been issued to him similar to certificate No. 306 in lieu of the latter.

"Mr. Ganitch now requests the acceptance by our company of his action as constituting evidence to show our liability for him is at an end and has also requested that certain security given to the surety on the bond shall be surrendered.

"There is no stated procedure for cases of this sort which are unusual and infrequent in their occurrence, and if the request is a proper one we desire to ask that an official ruling of the attorney-general be obtained upon the following points:

"First. Has the auditor of state authority to accept the new bond given as above for and in lieu of one originally given?

"Second. If so, has the auditor of state authority then to issue new certificate effective from the date that the new bond became effective?

"Third. In the event of a claim established against the principal upon such a bond, and where he has given two or more different bonds, each covering a part of the total period during which he has been acting as ticket agent and foreign banker, is any liability which may exist against the principal on the bond and which may consequently be chargeable against the surety to be recovered under the bond in force at the time of commission of the wrongful act, or is the liability to be recovered under bond in force at the time of discovery of the act, or may recovery be had against either or both of the sureties?

"Fourth. Under a bond of the sort above described, at what time does liability on the part of the surety cease, so that no action can be maintained against such surety for liability under its bond?"

Copies of the certificate and bond furnished to us by you are as follows:

"CERTIFICATE.

"State of Ohio.

"WITNESS our hands and seals this_____day of_____ 191____"

The statutes covering the matter are sections 290 et seq. of the General Code. Section 290 G. C. provides as follows:

"No person, firm or corporation shall engage in selling steamship or railroad tickets for transportation to or from foreign countries, or in the business of receiving deposits of money for the purpose of transmitting the same, or the equivalent thereof, to foreign countries, until it has obtained from the auditor of state a certificate of compliance with the provisions of the two sections next following. The certificate shall be conspicuously displayed in the place of business of such person, firm or corporation."

Section 291 G. C. provides as follows:

"Such person, firm or corporation shall make, execute and deliver a bond to the state of Ohio in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful holding and transmission of any money, or the equivalent thereof, delivered to it for transmission to a foreign country, or conditioned for the selling of genuine and valid steamship or railroad tickets for transportation to or from foreign countries, or both if to be engaged in both of such businesses."

Section 292 G. C. refers to the execution and filing of the bond and further provides:

"Upon the relation of any party aggrieved, a suit to recover on such bond may be brought in a court of competent jurisdiction."

My predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in an opinion rendered to you under date of July 12, 1913, Annual Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1913 at page 142, reached the conclusion that a surety on a bond given for the purposes under consideration, since the statutes do not prescribe the length of time for which the certificate shall be issued, could at any time, on reasonable notice, be released from the bond. The bond is to cover the proper discharge of the authority contained in the certificate. The certificate not being limited as to time would be continuous and it would seem to me that the only way a certificate under such statutes could be cancelled would be by the return thereof to the auditor of state, since under the provisions of section 2901 G. C. the certificate is required to be conspicuously displayed in the place of business. Upon the return of the certificate the authority of the person named therein to transact the business would terminate and the bond given for faithful performance would not cover any transaction after the return of such certificate.

In answer to your first question, as to whether the auditor of state has the authority to accept a new bond in lieu of one already on file without the surety requesting release from the old bond, I am of the opinion that the auditor of state would not be authorized to accept a new bond on the certificate already issued, but that if the person holding the certificate desires to surrender the same and take out a new certificate, said auditor would be authorized to accept the old certificate and cancel same and issue a new certificate, and accept a new bond to cover the new certificate.

The above answer effectually disposes of your second question as to whether the auditor of state has authority to issue a new certificate effective from the date the new bond becomes effective.

You ask in your third question as to the liability of the sureties in the event a claim is established against a principal where different bonds have been given, each covering a part of the total period during which the principal has been acting as ticket agent and foreign banker, the specific question being whether the liability which may exist against the principal upon the bond and consequently chargeable to the surety is to be recovered under the bond in force at the time of the commission of the wrongful act or to be recovered under the bond in force at the time of the discovery of the act or against either or both.

Since under the provisions of section 292 G. C. the bond is for the benefit of persons aggrieved and suit on such bond is to be brought on the relation of such party aggrieved, I do not feel that any opinion should be expressed on this matter by me, since it would be a question between private parties. However, I am of the opinion that section 11226 G. C. would apply, said section reading as follows:

> "An action on the official bond, or undertaking of an officer, assignee, trustee, executor, administrator, or guardian, or on a bond or undertaking given in pursuance of statute, shall be brought within ten years after the cause thereof accrued."

The above section likewise answers your fourth question as to the time the liability on the part of the surety ceases, so that no action can be maintained against such surety for liability under its bond.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—SHARES OF CAPITAL STOCK OF CLEVELAND & PITTSBURGH RAILROAD COMPANY ARE NOT TAXABLE IN OHIO.

Shares of the capital stock of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company are not taxable in this state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 9, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of October 19th you request my opinion as follows:

> "In assessing the property of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, the commission is confronted with the statement that the shares of capital of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Co. are not taxable when held by residents of this state. The enclosed affidavit of Mr. J. E. Kloss, secretary and treasurer of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Co., has been filed with the commission and sets out the manner of the incorporation of the company.
> "The commission requests your opinion as to whether or not the stock of this company when held by residents of this state is taxable. The commission calls your attention to the fact, which is not shown in the affidavit, that the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Co. has not in the past paid any franchise tax upon its capital stock and that the question as to the liability of the company to pay franchise taxes is now pending in the courts."

From your statement of facts it appears that the Standard Oil Company of Ohio owns a number of shares of the capital stock of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company. From the statement of facts set forth in the enclosed affidavit of Mr. Kloss, secretary and treasurer of said railroad company, it appears that the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company was organized as an Ohio corporation under authority of an act of the general assembly of Ohio passed March 14, 1836, 34 O. L. 576; that in connection with extensions into the state of Pennsylvania, the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company was also incorporated as a Pennsylvania corporation, under an act of the legislature of that state, passed April 18, 1853, laws of Pennsylvania, 1853, page 473; that prior to December 1, 1871, said corporation owned and operated its lines, but on said date a lease executed on October 25, 1871, became effective, under which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company took possession of, and has since operated, all of the property of said company, which lease is for the term of nine hundred and ninety-nine years; that the main line of railroad of said corporation consists of an aggregate of 205.14 miles, including branches; that of this mileage there is in the state of Pennsylvania 14.70 miles, leaving in the state of Ohio 190.44 miles, or 92.83 per cent. of the total main track mileage owned by the corporation; that the total mileage of all tracks, including double tracks and side tracks owned by the corporation, is 722 miles; and of this there is in the state of Pennsylvania 54.80 miles, leaving in Ohio 667.20 miles, or 93.79 per cent. of the total mileage of all tracks; that of all the other property owned by the company, an amount greatly in excess of two-thirds is within the state of Ohio; that under the terms of the lease above referred to, the lessee pays taxes in Ohio upon all of the property of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company lying therein; and upon the portion of the property in the state of Pennsylvania said lessee pays taxes in that state. It is further stated by Mr. Kloss that said lessee also pays all other taxes required to be paid by the laws of the state of Ohio in connection with its operation of the railroad property of said the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company.

As stated by Mr. Kloss, the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company was organized as an Ohio corporation pursuant to the authority conferred by an act of the general assembly passed March 14, 1836, 34 O. L. 576, and entitled "An act to incorporate the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company."

Section 11 of said act provides in part that

> "The said corporation shall be, and they are hereby vested with the right to construct a double or single railroad or way from Cleveland, in the county of Cuyahoga, on the most direct and least expensive route, to some point in the direction of Pittsburgh, on the state line between Ohio and Pennsylvania, or on the Ohio river."

Section 2 of an act of the general assembly, passed March 11, 1845, 43 O. L.401, entitled "An act to revive and amend the act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company,' passed March 14, 1836," provides:

> "The railroad, mentioned in the above recited act, shall commence at a convenient place in the city of Cleveland, in the county of Cuyahoga, and thence on the most direct practicable and least expensive route to the Ohio river, at the most suitable point; and if the said railroad shall not be commenced in five years from the passage of this act, and if said railroad shall not be completed within twelve years from the commencement thereof, then this act shall be null and void; provided that said company may unite said railroad, by them constructed, at some point southeasterly of the city of Cleveland, with any other railroad, authorized by law, which may be constructed on the easterly side of the Cuyahoga river, leading to Cleveland, and to make such arrangements as to the division of labor and earnings as the directors of the companies owning such united railroads may deem equitable."

Section 3 of said act provides:

> "That it shall be lawful for said corporation to commence the construction of said railroad or way, and enjoy all the powers and privileges conferred by this act, and the act hereby revived, as soon as the sum of fifty thousand dollars shall be subscribed to said stock (referred to in section 1 of the act), and the payment thereof considered safe and secure."

Section 4 of the act passed February 21, 1850, 48 O. L. 248, entitled "An act to authorize The Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company to increase their capital stock and for other purposes" provides:

> "Said company is further authorized to extend its road, under power obtained from the state of Pennsylvania, to the city of Pittsburgh in said state, or any point in the direction of Pittsburgh at which this road may be connected with any other road leading from said city, and to increase its capital to the amount necessary for the construction and equipment of such extension; provided, that the aggregate amount of the capital stock of said company shall not exceed four millions of dollars."

Section of the act of the general assembly of Pennsylvania, referred to by Mr. Kloss, passed April 18, 1853, laws of Pennsylvania 1853, page 473, entitled "An act to incorporate the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company" provides as follows:

> "Section 1. Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in general assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the full and entire assent of this commonwealth be and the same is hereby given to all and each of the provisions contained in an act of the general assembly of Ohio, passed March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six, entitled 'An act to incorporate the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company,' and also an act of said general assembly of Ohio, passed March eleventh, one thousand eight hundred and forty-five, entitled 'An act to revive and amend the act entitled "An act to incorporate the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company," ' and also an act authorizing said company to extend their road into the state of Pennsylvania, and the said acts of the general assembly of the state of Ohio are hereby adopted, ratified and confirmed and enacted into laws of this commonwealth, and all and each of the provisions, conditions and restrictions thereof, as fully and effectually as if the same were enacted section by section, so far as the same can apply in this commonwealth, reserving always to this commonwealth the same and like rights and powers in all respects, in and over that part of the contemplated railroad which may be in the state of Pennsylvania, as has been reserved and provided in the said recited acts of the state of Ohio in and over that part of the said railroad which may be in the state of Ohio, and the said acts shall be in full force and effect, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, wheresoever the same is applicable, as well within as without this commonwealth, to incorporate the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company for all, every object and purpose therein set forth and provided, and all the acts and proceedings of the corporators, stockholders and directors of the said Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company, which have been legally done in pursuance of the above recited acts of the state of Ohio, shall have the same validity, force and effect, in this state and elsewhere, as if they had been subsequent to the passage of this act, and in pursuance thereof."

Section 5 of said act provides:

"That said company is hereby authorized to increase the capital stock of their company to an amount equal to the cost of the construction and equipment of their road within the state of Pennsylvania."

Section 7 of the act provides:

"That said company is hereby authorized to extend their railroad into this state from the point where it may cross the west line of this state, in the county of Beaver, and to continue it up the valley of the Ohio river and connect with any railroads running in the direction of or terminating in Pittsburgh."

and section 8 of the act provides:

"That two of the directors of said Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad shall be citizens of Pennsylvania."

In view of the above legislation I do not think that it can be said that the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company, organized as an Ohio corporation under the act of 1836 and the acts of the general assembly of Ohio amendatory thereto, by availing itself of the authority conferred by the legislature of Pennsylvania to extend its line into that state, ceased to be an Ohio corporation within the meaning of the provision of section 192 G. C. hereinafter set forth. In the case of Lander v. Burke, 65 O. S. 532, it was held that:

> "A corporation organized under the laws of this state does not cease to be such, nor become a foreign corporation, by accepting from another state or country a grant of the privilege of owning and using real and other property therein necessary or convenient in carrying on its corporate business." (See second branch of syllabus.)

While said company was incorporated prior to the adoption of the constitution of 1851, it was held in the case of C. H. & D. Railroad Company v. Cole, 29 O. S. 126, (first branch of syllabus) that:

> "Railroad companies incorporated prior to the adoption of the constitution of 1851, and which avail themselves of the twenty-fourth section of the general corporation act of 1852 (S. & C. Stat. 281), either by taking leases of the roads of other companies, or by leasing their own roads to other companies, are to be regarded as thereby accepting a 'provision' of said act, within the meaning of its seventy-first section, and relinquishing all rights under their charters inconsistent with the provisions of said act."

In entering into the lease hereinbefore referred to the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company acted under authority of the provision of said section 24 of the act of 1852 now found in section 8807 G. C., the first part of which is as follows:

> "A company may lease or purchase any part or all of a railroad constructed, or in course of construction by another company, if the lines of their roads are continuous or connected, and not competing, upon terms agreed upon between the companies."

The general authority conferred on a railroad company to extend its lines into another state is now found in section 8756 G. C. which provides as follows:

> "A company organized for the purpose of constructing a railroad to the boundary line of this state, may extend its road into and through an adjoining state under the regulations which may be prescribed by such state. The rights, powers and privileges of the company over the extension, in the construction and use of its road, and in controlling the property and applying the money and assets thereon, shall be the same as if the road were built wholly within this state."

Section 5372 G. C. as originally enacted in 56 O. L. 175, provided in part that,

> "No person shall be required to list for taxation any shares of the capital stock of a company, the capital stock of which is taxed in the name of such company."

While this section has been amended by subsequent legislation and as now in force is found in 106 O. L. 247, the provision of said section above quoted has never been changed, the language of said provision as now in force being identically the same as that found in the original enactment.

In interpreting this provision the courts have defined the corporate stock of a corporation as consisting of the money and property which has been subscribed and paid in, in order to carry on the purpose of such corporation.

Jones v. Davis, 35 O. S. 474;
Lee v. Sturges, 46 O. S. 153;
Hubbard v. Brush, 61 O. S. 252;
Lander v. Burke, 65 O. S. 532;
Sturges v. Carter, 114 U. S. 511.

In the case of Jones v. Davis, supra, the second branch of the syllabus provides:

> "The personal property which a corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of this state, was required to list for taxation by section 11 of the act of May 11, 1878, 75 O. L. 436 (section 5404 G. C.), embraced the capital stock of the corporation, and such being the case, an owner of shares of the capital stock of such company was not required to list his shares for taxation."

It was further held by the court in the case of Lander v. Burke, supra, that investments by residents in this state in the shares of stock of a corporation, whether domestic or foreign, are not exempt from taxation under the above provision of section 5372 G. C. except when the property of the corporation is taxed in its name in this state and that said provision of said statute does not therefore authorize the exemption of stock in an Ohio corporation, the property of which is practically all situated in the Dominion of Canada and is taxed there and not in Ohio.

While it was held by the court in the case of Lee v. Sturges, and Insurance Co. v. Ratterman, 46 O. S. 153, that the above exemption provided for in section 5372 G. C. does not apply to shares of stock in a corporation which is formed by the consolidation of an Ohio corporation with corporations of other states, even though such consolidated corporation pays taxes in Ohio upon its property which is situated in said state. The Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company is not a corporation resulting from such a consolidation and the holding in said cases would not apply to the shares of the capital stock of said company.

It appears that by the terms of the lease above referred to the lessee company pays taxes in Ohio upon all the property of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company lying therein. It might well be argued, however, in view of the holding of the court in the case of Lander v. Burke, supra, that inasmuch as a part of the property of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company is located in the state of Pennsylvania and is returnable for taxation in that state, the shares of stock in said company are not exempted from taxation by the above provision of section 5372 G. C. were it not for the provision of the first part of section 192 G. C. that:

> "No person shall be required to list for taxation a share of the capital stock of an Ohio corporation," which provision was enacted subsequent to the time said decision was rendered. (97 O. L. 496.)

This provision of section 192 G. C. is general in its terms and exempts the owner of shares of stock in an Ohio corporation from the duty of returning the same for taxation regardless of whether all the property of said corporation is located in this state and returnable for taxation here in the name of the corporation.

Inasmuch as the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company, organized under authority of the act of 1836 and the subsequent acts of the general assembly of Ohio amendatory thereto, has continued to exercise its right to exist as a corporation under the laws of Ohio, I am of the opinion that said company is an Ohio corporation within the purview of the above provision of section 192 G. C. It was so treated by counsel and by the courts in the case of State v. the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company, 2 O. App. Rep. 228, which involved the question of the liability of said railroad company to pay the fee of one-tenth of one per cent. upon the outstanding capital stock of said company for the years 1902 to 1907, inclusive, under section 1 of the act of the general assembly, commonly known as the Willis law, as enacted in 95 O. L. 124, and as in force during said years.

In view of the foregoing, I am of the opinion in answer to your question, that shares of the capital stock of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad Company are not taxable in this state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—NO AUTHORITY OF LAW FOR INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION TO REQUEST STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT TO WITHHOLD PAYMENT OF MONEY EARNED BY AN EMPLOYER, TO PAY AN AWARD ALLOWED BY SAID COMMISSION—HOW MONEY MIGHT BE OBTAINED.

1. There is no authority of law for industrial commission to request the state highway department to withhold the payment of money earned by an employer, to pay an award for compensation allowed by said commission under and by virtue of the provisions of section 27 of the Ohio workmen's compensation act, or section 1465-74 G. C., 103 O. L. 82.

2. Money in the possession of the state highway department due an employer might be reached by proceedings in court after a judgment in favor of an employe, if the money were still in the hands of the department, provided that the highway department has no claim against the fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 9, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of October 27, 1916, requesting my opinion is before me and is as follows:

> "The commission now has pending before it the claim of one Albertus B. Swank, filed under the provisions of section 27 of the compensation act, on account of an inquiry sustained by said Swank while in the employ of Robbing & McDaniels, contractors, of Springfield, Ohio.
>
> The proof on file in the claim has a tendency to indicate that the injury sustained by the claimant will cause a permanent and total disability.
> "The commission, under date of October 20, held a hearing in the claim and at that time found that claimant's injury occurred in the course of employment and ordered the employer to pay to him compensation at the rate of $12.00 per week, beginning July 8, 1916, until March 31, 1917, at which time the case was continued for a further hearing.
> "It appears from the records that counsel for the employer appeared before the commission and stated that the employer herein is bankrupt. However, the state highway department is now holding certain money earned by the employer under a contract for the construction of a public highway in Clark county. This money is being held at the request of the commission in order that the funds might be provided for the payment of such award as may be allowed to claimant in the above numbered claim. (Claim No. 631.)

"We request your opinion on this matter as to the method of proceedure to be followed by the commission in obtaining for the claimant herein from the fund now in the hands of the state highway department such amount of compensation as may be due to him under the provisions of the compensation act."

The award of compensation in this claim has been made under and by virtue of the provisions of section 27 of the Ohio workmen's compensation law, or section 1465-74 of the General Code (103 O. L. 82.) In your letter you state that:

"The proof on file in the claim has a tendency to indicate that the injury sustained by the claimant will cause a permanent and total disability.

"The commission, under date of October 20th, held a hearing on the claim and at that time found that claimant's injury occurred in the course of employment and ordered the employer to pay him compensation at the rate of $12.00 per week, beginning July 8, 1916, until March 31, 1917, at which time the case was continued for a further hearing."

From this quotation it appears that there is great likelihood that the claimant will sustain a permanent and total disability and that additional compensation will be allowed the claimant on March 31, 1917 if the same condition exists as to the disability on that date.

This department, on December 3, 1915, rendered an opinion to your commission, it being opinion No. 1066, and found in Vol. III, page 2322 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for the year 1915, upon the question of the right of your commission to commence an action for the recovery of compensation in claims arising under section 27, where the entire amount of the award had not been determined. We held in that opinion that the action should not be commenced until the entire award had been determined. This holding was based on the principle that a single cause of action cannot be divided so as to sustain two or more actions. I quote from the conclusion of the opinion above referred to as follows:

"A civil action should not be commenced for the collection of a partial amount of the award already found due, but that the action should be for the full amount due the employe by reason of his said injuries."

Therefore, no action should be commenced in this claim until after March 31, 1917, or until such time as the total amount of compensation due the employe is determined and fixed by your commission, for the reason that if an action is instituted for the recovery of a partial award we might well be met with the objection on a subsequent action to recover further compensation that a recovery had been made in a former suit and that the question of recovery on an allowance by your commission had been adjudicated in a former action.

Your letter further states that:

"It appears from the records that counsel for the employer appeared before the commission and stated that the employer herein is bankrupt. However, the state highway department is now holding certain money earned by the employer under a contract for the construction of a public highway in Clark county. This money is being held at the request of the commission, in order that the funds might be provided for the payment of such award as may be allowed to claimant in the above numbered claim."

There is no authority of law for your commission to request the state highway department to withhold the payment of money earned by the employer in this claim. Such a request, if complied with, is in effect a garnishment.

In the absence of legislation authorizing same the request of your commission to the state highway department to withhold earned money due the employer would be without warrant of law. The money now in the possession of the state highway department due the employer in question might be reached by proceedings in court after a judgment in favor of the employe, if the money were still in the hands of the department at that time; provided always that the highway department has no claim against the fund.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SECRETARY OF STATE—ADVISED NOT TO FILE PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF LIMA COLLATERAL LOAN COMPANY—CORPORATION ORGANIZED UNDER SPECIAL ACT—PROPOSED AMENDMENT CHANGES ORIGINAL PURPOSE.

Secretary of state advised to refuse to file proposed amendment to the articles of incorporation of The Lima Collateral Loan Company because said corporation is organized under a special act and because the proposed amendment substantially changes the purpose of its original organization.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 10, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of November 3, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "We are submitting to your department certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of 'THE LIMA COLLATERAL LOAN COMPANY.'
> "The aforesaid incorporation filed articles of incorporation under section 9857 of the General Code, which reads as follows:
> " 'Corporations may be organized for the purpose of making loans on pledges of goods and chattels and upon mortgage thereof; but they shall not receive money on deposit, engage in banking, nor make loans upon security other than herein is provided. The names of such corporations shall begin with the word "The" and end with the words "Collateral Loan Company." '
> "The aforesaid certificate changes the name of the corporation and also enlarges the corporate powers.
>
> "The purpose clause of 'THE LIMA COLLATERAL LOAN COMPANY' reads as follows:
> " 'Said corporation is formed for the purpose of making loans upon pledges of goods and chattels and upon mortgages on goods and doing all things incident thereto.'
>
> "We kindly request an opinion upon the question as to whether the submitted certificate of amendment should be filed in this department."

The Lima Collateral Loan Company, by the certificate of amendment attached to your letter, seeks to amend its articles of incorporation in two particulars, which I quote from the certificate:

> "First. The corporate name be changed from The Lima Collateral Loan Company to The Buckeye Finance Company;
>
> "Second. That the corporate powers of this company be amended to read as follows:
> " 'Said corporation is formed for the purpose of buying, loaning money upon, selling, transferring, assigning, discounting, borrowing money upon and pledging as collateral, and otherwise dealing either as principal, agent or broker in bills of lading, warehouse receipts, evidences of deposit and storage of personal property, bonds, stocks, promissory notes, commercial paper, accounts, invoices, bills of exchange, choses in action, interest in estates, contracts and mortgages on real or personal property, pledges of personal property and other evidences of indebtedness of persons, firms and corporations, and own, hold and convey such real estate as my be necessary in the operation of its business and doing all things incidental thereto.' "

Section 9857 of the General Code, quoted in your letter, and the six succeeding sections of the General Code constitute an act of the general assembly of Ohio, found in 97 Ohio Laws, page 134, and authorize the organization, limit the powers and prescribe the duties of a particular class of corporations designated as "Collateral Loan Companies" which latter term must by the provisions of said section 9857 constitute a part of the name of every such corporation.

It appears that The Lima Collateral Loan Company was organized under the provisions of this special act and for the purpose therein authorized.

The only authority of Ohio corporations to amend their articles of incorporation is found in section 8719 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "A corporation organized under the general corporation laws of the state, may amend its articles of incorporation as follows:
> "1. So as to change its corporate name—but not to one already appropriated, or to one likely to mislead the public.
> "2. So as to change the place where it is to be located, or its principal business transacted.
> "3. So as to modify, enlarge or diminish the objects or purposes for which it was formed.
> "4. So as to add to them anything omitted from, or which lawfully might have been provided for originally in such articles. But the capital stock of a corporation shall not be increased or diminished, by such amendment, nor the purpose of its original organization substantially changed."

It will be observed that the provisions of this section apply only to corporations "organized under the general corporation laws of the state" and that even as to such a corporation the power to substantially change the purpose of its original organization is specifically denied.

The Lima Collateral Loan Company is not a corporation organized under the general corporation laws of Ohio, but is organized under the special act referred to. Further, the proposed amendment clearly effects a substantial change in the purpose of its original organization.

I therefore advise you that you should not file the certificate of amendment referred to in your letter.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

SCHOOL LANDS—NO AUTHORITY FOR GRANTNG OF AN EASEMENT ON SUCH LANDS TO PIPE LINE COMPANY—PURPOSE LAYING PIPE LINE—THE BUCKEYE PIPE LINE COMPANY.

There is no authority in law permitting of the granting of an easement on school lands to a pipe line company for the purpose of laying a pipe line.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 10, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. C. F. McCrum, right of way agent of The Buckeye Pipe Line Company, whose address is Lima, Ohio, relative to a certain matter which I consider of such importance as that an opinion should be rendered and consequently I am rendering an opinion to you thereon.

The matter concerning which Mr. McCrum writes is as follows:

> "The Buckeye Pipe Line Company is about to lay a crude oil pipe line across lands supposedly owned by the Woodard Brothers and Leroy Woodard, in the southwest quarter Sec. 16, and the north east quarter Sec. 16, Starr township, Hocking county, Ohio, to care for the oil production in and around that section of the Hocking county oil field.
> "In going over some correspondence which I find in the office of Mr. Bates, our secretary,—correspondence between your office and his—in regard to certain oil rights on properties owned by these Woodards, I find there is a question as to the ownership of surface rights and it is because of this I write you.
> "Will a right of way for this crude oil line, signed by the Woodards, be sufficient for our purpose or will the state of Ohio, by yourself as attorney-general, have to grant this right to us, and if so, will you advise me as to the procedure.
> "I understand the Woodards have a 99 years' lease of surface rights. How much longer this right has to run I am unable to state. At the expiration of that time, providing the oil line is still in use, to whom would the title revert? It is hardly possible that oil will be produced from this land so long a period, but should this happen and our line remains in use, we would like to be protected after that time."

From the above letter I assume that what is desired by the company is an easement in the lands mentioned for the purpose of laying and maintaining a pipe line.

While I do not have the papers before me, yet I know that as a matter of fact the Woodards have an agricultural lease on these lands, the said lands being school lands. A lease of school lands such as acquired by the Woodards is solely for agricultural purposes and for no other. An easement in lands creates an interest in the lands and must be obtained from the owner thereof. Consequently, an attempt by the Woodards to grant an easement in the lands in question would not be sufficient authority for the laying of the pipe line. The title to these school lands is vested in the state of Ohio in trust for the beneficiaries created by the trust.

By an act passed by the legislature in 1914, 104 O. L. 224, the auditor of state was authorized to lease for oil, gas or other minerals any unsold portions of section sixteen or section twenty-nine of original surveyed townships, upon such terms and for such time as will be for the best interest of the beneficiaries. This act was subsequently amended at the special session held in 1914, see 105 Ohio Laws, page 6. By that section the auditor of state is authorized to lease for oil, gas, coal, or other minerals, any unsold portions of section sixteen and section twenty-nine, and he is further authorized to grant "to such lessee the right to use so much of the surface of such land as may be reasonably necessary to carry on the work of prospecting for, extracting, piping, storing, and removing all oil or gas * * *; provided, however, that such lease shall require the lessee to pay all damage to the holder of the lease holding under a lease from the trustees of the original township." This section, however, only authorized the auditor of state to grant the right of piping oil to the lessee who is producing the oil and does not extend the right to the auditor of state to grant an easement in any of the lands in question to a company for the sole purpose of laying a pipe to transport oil.

Answering the question raised by the letter hereinbefore set out, therefore, I would state that there is at present no authority in any one to grant an easement to a pipe line company for the purpose of laying down and maintaining a pipe line across the lands in question, and there will not be any such authority until the legislature has granted the same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JUSTICE OF PEACE—COSTS—IF JUDGMENT OF CONVICTION IN FISH AND GAME CASE IS REVERSED IN COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, JUSTICE IS ENTITLED TO HIS COSTS—SEE SECTION 1404 G. C.

If a judgment of conviction in a fish and game case by a justice of the peace is reversed in the court of common pleas the justice is entitled to his costs under section 1404 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 10, 1916.

HON. P. A. SAYLOR, Prosecuting Attorney, Eaton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of November 1, 1916, wherein you submit for opinion the following:

> "On the 12th day of April, 1916, C. C. Acton, deputy state game warden, filed a complaint in the court of L. T. Stephens, justice of the peace in and for Washington township, Preble county, Ohio, charging Forest Crismer with having in his possession a devise for catching fish other than a bait and line with hook and lure. Trial was had in the court of the justice of the peace and conviction secured. Later the case was taken to the court of common pleas of Preble county, Ohio, in proceedings in error and the decision of the justice was reversed.
> "The justice now puts in his criminal cost bill under section 1404 of the General Code of Ohio, and asks the county auditor of Preble county, pay him the costs in these proceedings. The county auditor, under my instructions, has refused to pay, there being some doubt in my mind as to the proper construction of 1404. I now ask you whether this justice is entitled to his costs under the statement of the case already given, from the county or the state."

Section 1404 G. C. provides as follows:

"A person authorized by law to prosecute a case under the provisions of this chapter shall not be required to advance or secure costs therein. If the defendant be acquitted or discharged from custody, or if he be convicted and committed in default of payment of fine and costs, such costs shall be certified, under oath by the justice to the county auditor who shall correct all errors therein and issue his warrant on the county treasurer, payable to the person or persons entitled thereto."

Said section was originally enacted in 99 O. L., page 368, being the second paragraph of section 17, providing as follows:

"In all cases prosecuted under the provisions of this act, no costs shall be required to be advanced or be secured by any person or persons authorized under the law to prosecute such cases; and if the defendant be acquitted or discharged from custody, by nolle or otherwise, or if he be convicted and committed in default of paying fine and costs, all costs of such case shall be certified by said justice of the peace under oath to the county auditor, who, after correcting any errors in the same, shall issue a warrant on the county treasury, in favor of the person or persons to whom such costs and fees shall be paid."

After the justice of the peace had pronounced judgment of conviction in the instant case the matter was taken on error to the court of common pleas and I assume that a bond was given to stay the execution of the sentence. The court of common pleas having reversed the decision of the justice of the peace undoubtedly a mandate to that effect was sent to the justice of the peace, provided of course, no further proceedings were taken in the court of common pleas. It therefore became the duty of the justice of the peace to discharge from custody the person charged with the offense, and upon the justice discharging the defendant from custody he is authorized to certify the costs to the county auditor for payment.

Specifically answering your question therefore, I am of the opinion that the justice in question is, under the provisions of section 1404 G. C. in the instant case, entitled to his costs from the county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY CHILDREN'S HOME—CONTRACT FOR ELECTRIC CURRENT MADE BY OHIO LIGHT AND POWER COMPANY WITH COUNTY COMMISSIONERS IS LEGAL—KNOX COUNTY.

The charge for electric current made by the Ohio Light & Power Company to the commissioners of Knox county for furnishing such current to the children's home of said county according to the terms of the contract herein set forth, is not prohibited by the provisions of section 614-2 et seq. G. C. as unjust and unreasonable and that said contract is legal.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 11, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of September 23rd is as follows:

"In your annual report for the year 1915, Vol. 2, page 1032, we find an opinion rendered by you to Hon. Chas. L. Bermont, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, in which you held that the county commissioners are without authority to enter into a contract with an electric company to construct at county's expense electric line from company's plant to children's home.

"We enclose herewith copy of a contract that the commissioners of Knox county did enter into with an electric company to furnish electricity to the children's home, and we would ask whether said contract is a legal one. We are also sending you a letter of our examiner in regard to said contract as he finds it."

The copy of the contract enclosed in your letter reads as follows:

"CONTRACT FOR ELECTRICITY AT CHILDREN'S HOME.

"The undersigned requests The Ohio Light & Power Company to supply electric current upon the premises children's home, Coshocton road, owned by Knox county and occupied as children's home.

"Applicant agrees to pay said company monthly for the service rendered at schedule No. 4 as appears in published rate schedule of said company, which rate schedule and rules and regulations appearing therein are made part of this application.

"No change shall be made in the equipment or in the type, size or number of lamps or other appliances connected. The current shall not be used except for the equipment scheduled by the company's inspectors, no other electric service shall be used in connection with the equipment supplied hereunder without previous written consent of The Ohio Light and Power Company. The service rendered hereunder shall continue for a term of 120 months and continuously thereafter until terminated by either party upon thirty days' written notice to the other party. The undersigned guarantee the monthly consumption of current hereunder shall be equal to at least $20.20, and acknowledges the receipt of a copy of the rate schedule, rules and regulations referred to and the same have been read and are understood. It is mutually agreed that at the end of ten years from date of this contract, the county has the privilege of renewing same at the same rates allowed other consumers in Mt. Vernon.

"It is further agreed that the minimum herein specified covers a consumption of 188 kilowatt hours, approximately. The company agrees to keep in good repair the line supplying the children's home. Rate 6 cents per K. W. H., less 10 per cent. for prompt payment.

"Signed:

"A. J. DARRAH,
"Superintendent.

"JNO. EARLEYWINE,
"L. BRITTON,
"T. M. DILL,
"County Commissioners."

At the time the opinion above referred to was rendered to the prosecuting attorney of Knox county, I was informed, as stated in said opinion, that the commissioners of said county were about to abandon the plan of making the contract with The Ohio Light and Power Company, which I held was unauthorized, and had about decided to provide their own lighting system for the new county children's home, as they had found that this would be much less expensive than the plan proposed by the said The Ohio Light and Power Company.

It appeared that said county commissioners, acting under authority and in compliance with the provisions of section 3077 G. C. had submitted to a vote of the electors of said county the question of establishing a county children's home and the issue of bonds or notes of the county to provide funds therefor, and the vote being favorable said commissioners had proceeded to purchase a site and erect buildings thereon for said home under authority of section 3078 G. C.

It was held in said opinion that said commissioners might issue additional bonds for the purpose of securing the necessary funds to provide for the proper lighting of said building, in compliance with the provisions of section 3079 G. C., if, upon submitting the question of said additional issue to a vote of the electors of the county, in the manner provided by section 3077 G. C. as amended 103 O. L. 889, the vote of said electors should be favorable to said additional issue.

It now appears that said commissioners did not choose to avail themselves of this authority for said purpose and you inquire whether the contract as above set forth, made by said county commissioners with said light and power company is legal.

The letter of Mr. Edward J. Ott, your examiner, is in part as follows:

"Am herewith enclosing a copy of the contract between the Ohio Light and Fuel (Power) Company and the county commissioners of Knox county, O., under which said company is supplying the Knox County Children's Home with electric current for lighting. Under this contract said institution pays said company approximately $30.00 per month.

"This seemed an exorbitant amount to pay for electric current for said institution and upon further investigation the following situation was disclosed: It seems that the Ohio Light and Fuel company proposed to furnish current at regular rates for lighting the children's home, if they were permitted to construct a line from the city of Mt. Vernon to said home at the expense of the county, over which to transmit their current to said home.

"In an opinion rendered in this matter to the prosecuting attorney of Knox county, Attorney-General Edward C. Turner holds that county commissioners have no authority in law to enter into such a contract. See Opinions of the Attorney-General of Ohio, Vol. 2, 1915, page 1032.

"Thereupon the Ohio Light and Fuel Company constructed a line to the children's home at its own expense and the county commissioners made the contract here under consideration by the terms of which the county will pay for a term of 120 months an excess rate over and above the regular rate charged other consumers.

"On the face of it this transaction appears only to be a subterfuge because at the end of 120 months the county will have really paid for the construction of said electric line by the excess rate required to be paid under the contract."

Mr. Ott calls attention to Section 2435-1 G. C. which provides:

"The commissioners of any county may, at any time, either before or after the completion of any county building, invite bids and award contracts for supplying such building with light, heat and power, or any of the same, for any period of time not exceeding ten years; but none of the provisions of section fifty-six hundred and sixty of the General Code shall apply to any such contracts."

In view of the above provisions of section 2435-1 G. C. it is evident that the commissioners of Knox county in entering into a contract above set forth sought to avail themselves of the authority conferred by said section.

The right of said county commissioners under said section to invite bids and to award a proper contract for supplying the buildings at the children's home with light, heat and power, or any of the same, can not be questioned.

The Ohio Light and Power Company, being engaged in the business of supplying electricity for light, heat and power purposes to consumers within this state is an electric light company as defined by section 614-2 G. C. and as such is a "public utility" as defined by section 614-2a G. C. Said utility is therefore subject to the provisions of section 614-12 G. C. that "Every public utility shall furnish necessary and adequate service and facilities which shall be reasonable and just, and every unjust or unreasonable charge for such service is prohibited and declared to be unlawful."

and to the further provisions of sections 614-14 and 614-15 of the General Code prohibiting rebates and special rates, and the subjecting of any person, firm, corporation or locality to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

The question arises whether the contract above referred to provides a rate for electric current that is prohibited by the foregoing provisions of the statutes.

In answer to my request for additional information I am in receipt of a letter from Hon. Charles L. Bermont, prosecuting attorney of Knox county, under date of October 11, which is as follows:

> "I am in receipt of your letter of October 5, requesting a statement of the facts in connection with the making of the contract with the Ohio Light and Power Company, by the commissioners of this county, for furnishing the Knox County Children's Home with electric current.
> "When this home was about ready for occupancy it was necessary that the same be furnished with electric current for lighting and also for the operation of a motor used in connection with the heating and ventilating system.
> "The home is about three miles from the city of Mt. Vernon and the Ohio Light and Power Company, which operates in this city, would not build a line to this home and furnish electric current to the county for the same rate as it was receiving in the city.
> "The matter was taken up with the attorney-general's office in regard to the commissioners building the line and it was held that the commissioners had no authority to do this.
> "The next thing considered was the building of a plant at the home. The matter was gone into and it was ascertained that this proposition would cost between $3,000.00 and $3,500.00, which did not include the cost of operation, which would cost for an engineer, alone, the sum of $60.00 per month, judging from what we are paying at the county infirmary, which is $60.00 per month and board.
> "The Ohio Light and Power Company then made a proposition upon which a contract was entered into and I think you have the contract now in your office. Under this contract the bills for current have been running as follows: January, 1916, $20.20; February, $28.50; March, $26.39; April, $34.44; May, $27.21, June and July, which were paid in one bill, $42.06, and August, which was the last bill in, was $21.53.

> "You can readily see from a glance the reason that the contract was made with the power company."

In view of the facts as set forth in Mr. Bermont's letter I do not think it can be said that the charge for electric current made by the Ohio Light and Power Company according to the terms of the aforesaid contract is unjust or unreasonable, and I am of the opinion in answer to your question that said contract is legal.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—CONTRACT BETWEEN LOGAN NATURAL GAS AND FUEL COMPANY AND THE CITIZENS GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY OF ELYRIA, OHIO, CONSTRUED—QUESTION AS TO WHETHER CONTRACT IS ONE OF SALE OR AGENCY MUST BE DETERMINED BY EACH AGREEMENT.

Whether or not a contract between a local or distributing gas company and a producing or supplying company has the legal effect of a contract of sale or that of a contract of agency or factorage can be determined in a given case only by inspection of the entire agreement and the ascertainment of its predominating characteristics.

Where the predominating characteristics of such a contract indicate that the relation of factor and principal is created thereby such a legal effect is not prevented by a stipulation on the part of the local or distributing company which amounts to a guaranty of the collection of the supplying companies' proportion of the price of all gas sold to consumers.

The contract between The Logan Natural Gas and Fuel Company and The Citizens Gas and Electric Company of Elyria, Ohio, examined and held to amount to an agreement of agency and not a sale.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 11, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I return herewith copy of a contract between The Logan Natural Gas and Fuel Company, a gas producing company, and The Citizens Gas and Electric Company of Elyria, a distributing company, which I have carefully examined in accordance with the request of your letter of September 20.

The general principles of law in the decision of the case of State v. The Coshocton Gas Company have been dwelt upon in other opinions addressed to your commission. I shall not repeat such discussion here.

My examination of the above mentioned contract convinces me that it witnesses an arrangement for the undertaking of a joint enterprise in which the efforts of both companies are to be put forth to a common end, viz.: supplying natural gas to consumers in the city of Elyria.

I call attention to the following material provisions of the contract which reflect upon the main question involved and evidence the character of the relation which it creates, as I have described it:

"Second Paragraph

"Commencing with the date hereof, the Logan Company agrees to supply and deliver to the Distributing Company a quantity of natural gas for distribution and sale in the said contract territory sufficient to meet and supply the demands therein for domestic consumption. The said gas shall be delivered at the point of delivery hereinafter fixed, at a pressure sufficient to maintain a pressure of not to exceed four ounces to the square inch on the principal low pressure lines of the distributing system of the Distributing Company in the said contract territory:

"But

* * * * * * * *

"The Distributing Company declares that it understands and expressly agrees that the Logan Company shall not be liable, directly or indirectly, for any loss, damage or injury sustained by the Distributing Company and resulting directly or indirectly from any shortage in the supply of gas or interruption in the delivery thereof or failure of the pressure or volume thereof arising from any cause whatsoever, except the negligence or wilful default of the Logan Company.

"Third Paragraph

"The Distributing Company agrees that it will at all times during the life of this contract have and keep its system of distributing pipes and mains in the said contract territory, including all necessary attachments, connections, service pipes and appliances in, through and under the streets, avenues, alleys, public grounds and places in the said contract territory, of such a size, length and capacity that with a pressure not exceeding four ounces to the square inch on the principal low pressure lines of its said distributing system, it will be able to fully supply natural gas for domestic, industrial and manufacturing purposes to all inhabitants of the said contract territory, who may desire to purchase the same for domestic, industrial and manufacturing consumption.

* * * * * * * *

"Fifth Paragraph

"The Distributing Company agrees that beginning with the date hereof, it will commence to receive under this contract the said gas from the Logan Company and distribute and sell the same through its said distributing system to consumers thereof within the said contract territory, upon the terms and conditions, and in the quantity herein provided for, and will continue so to do during the term of this contract as hereinafter fixed.

* * * * * * * *

"Seventh Paragraph

"The point of delivery of all gas hereunder shall be the low or outlet side of such reducing station or stations.

"Eighth Paragraph.

"The Distributing Company agrees that at all times during the life of this contract it will fully keep and perform the following covenants and undertakings:

"(A) Exercise and use the highest degree of care in keeping and maintaining the mains, lines, pipes, connections and appliances of its said distributing system, including service lines to the consumer, in the highest and best order, repair and condition and free from leakage.

* * * * * * * *

"(E) Properly connect and attach its distributing system to the said reducing station or stations of the Logan Company.

"(F) Locate and furnish an office or offices at some convenient point or points in the said contract territory (the number and location of such offices to be approved by the Logan Company), and employ therein clerks and employees necessary to carry on the business of selling natural gas within said territory.

* * * * * * * *

"(H) At all times during the continuance of this contract, to do any and all things necessary to build up, extend, enlarge, manage and conduct the said business of furnishing natural gas within the contract territory.

* * * * * * * *

"Ninth Paragraph.

"The Distributing Company agrees that the Logan Company may whenever it desires, and from time to time, send its properly accredited agents or representatives into the contract territory, and canvas the same from house to house and from business plant to plant, soliciting customers or consumers of gas for the Distributing Company at the then current rates, but the Distributing Company shall not be charged with any of the cost or expense of such agents or representatives or of such solicitation, the whole thereof to be borne by the Logan Company; but the Distributing Company agrees that whenever a list of such new consumers or old consumers for additional consumption so secured by such solicitors is furnished it, it will make and enter into proper contracts with them and furnish and supply gas to all such consumers so secured, provided they are entitled to demand the same under the terms of the present or any new franchise granted to the Distributing Company, and provided such customers or consumers are to the satisfaction of the Distributing Company financially responsible, or make a cash deposit, or give other satisfactory evidence to cover future gas bills, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Distributing Company and the laws of the state of Ohio.

"Tenth Paragraph.

"The Distributing Company further agrees that at all times during the life of this contract it will fully keep and perform the following covenants and undertakings:

* * * * * * * *

"(C) Assume and discharge all and every expense, cost, labor and risk incurred in the distribution and sale of natural gas within the contract territory between the point where delivery is made hereunder to the Distributing Company at the low or outlet side of the said reducing station or stations and the several points of delivery by the Distributing Company to consumers;

"(D) Pay and discharge all taxes (this to include any tax or license, state, municipal or otherwise, upon the sale of the said gas within the said contract territory, whether based upon the sale of gas generally or upon the gross or net sales thereof or receipts therefrom or otherwise), and assessments levied at any time whatsoever on any property of the Distributing Company within the contract territory, except only any taxes levied or assessed directly against the Logan Company and based upon its percentage of the sales of gas within the contract territory.

"It being the intent and meaning of this contract and particularly of sub-paragraphs (C) and (D) above that all and every tax, charge, cost and expense of whatsoever nature and kind incurred in the building, extension, repair and operation of the said distributing system and in the transportation, marketing and sale of the said gas after it leaves the low or outlet side of the said reducing station or stations, except only any taxes levied or assessed directly against the Logan Company, and based upon its percentage of the sales of gas within the contract territory, shall be borne and paid for exclusively by the Distributing Company, and that all mains, pipes and appliances used in the transportation and marketing of the said gas after it leaves the said point or points of delivery shall be laid, maintained, used and owned exclusively by the Distributing Company, and that it, and it alone, and not the Logan Company, shall be liable for any damage arising from the negligent or careless construction, repair, maintenance or operation of such mains and pipes between the said point of delivery and the consumer.

"Eleventh Paragraph.

"The Distributing Company further covenants and agrees that at all times during the life of this contract it will

"(A) Furnish all meters used by the consumers;

"(B) Require each consumer, domestic, industrial or manufacturing, to sign a contract for gas before connections are made with its pipes or mains or gas turned into the house or service pipe of such consumer, which contract for domestic, industrial or manufacturing purposes shall be of a form furnished by the Logan Company or first submitted to and approved by it;

* * * * * * * *

"(F) Keep a record of the number of each meter, and the readings thereof, which is connected or disconnected from its said distributing system, and forward each month to the Logan Company a record, giving the number of meters set, connected and disconnected, and showing the total number of consumers at the end of each month;

"(G) Keep at its office all contracts with consumers, and also a full and complete record of the same and all meters used; and also such books of account as will fully and clearly show all accounts and contracts with consumers and all other transactions and matters relating to the sale and delivery of the gas hereunder;

"(H) Give to the Logan Company and its officers, agents, attorneys or employees, full and free access, at all reasonable business hours the books of account, contracts and records, and also any and all papers relating to or connected with the business of distributing and marketing the gas under this contract, so that such account books, contracts, records and papers shall be at all reasonable times open to the examination and inspection of the officers, agents, attorneys or employees of the Logan Company;

* * * * * * * *

"Twelfth Paragraph.

"Inasmuch as the return to the Logan Company for the gas delivered hereunder is a percentage of the price which the Distributing Company charges the consumers thereof, it is necessary for the Logan Company to protect itself from the sale by the Distributing Company of its gas at ruinous rates, and the Distributing Company therefore now covenants and agrees with the Logan Company,

"(A) That it will not furnish gas free of charge to anyone without the written permission of the Logan Company, and then only for such a period of time and in such quantities as it may in writing stipulate.

"(B) That the price charged by it for the natural gas furnished to it by the Logan Company distributed and sold by it to domestic consumers within the said city limits during the life of this contract shall not be less (after allowing the discount for prompt payment in the next sub-paragraph (C) provided for) than thirty (30) cents net per thousand cubic feet, measured on a four-ounce pressure basis;

"(C) That it will allow to each domestic consumer a discount of approximately ten per cent. of each month's gas bill for prompt payment thereof before the tenth day of the month following that in which the gas was consumed, provided the net price to domestic consumers, after allowing such discount, shall not be less than the minimum price fixed in the last preceding sub-paragraph (B).

* * * * * * * *

"(G) Inasmuch as it is for the public good that the Logan Company prefer domestic consumers along its system and conserve its supply of gas as long as possible for domestic consumption, the Distributing Company now agrees that it will sell for other than domestic consumption without the express written consent of the Logan Company first had and obtained.

"But

"It agrees that upon the written direction of the Logan Company, and not otherwise, it shall and will sell gas for industrial and manufacturing purposes within the said city, but then only for such prices and upon such percentages thereof to the Logan Company, and upon such terms as that company may in writing direct, and such direction may, at the pleasure of the Logan Company, be at any time withdrawn, such withdrawal to be absolute, or the Logan Company may name new prices and new percentages and fix new terms upon which the Distributing Company will thereafter sell gas for industrial and manufacturing purposes, and which new prices, percentages and terms may at the pleasure of the Logan Company be likewise at any time and from time to time modified or withdrawn absolutely or new prices, percentages and terms from time to time again named;

* * * * * * * *

"Thirteenth Paragraph.

"The Distributing Company further agrees that during the life of this contract it shall and will fully keep and perform the following covenants and undertakings:

* * * * * * * *

"(B) Make and deliver to the Logan Company at its general office, wherever the same may be located, on or before the tenth day of each and every month during the continuance of this contract, a full and complete statement upon a form approved or furnished by the Logan Company, showing in detail the total quantity of gas sold and delivered to consumers during the preceding month, analyzed in a form and manner directed by the Logan Company and the gross amount charged therefor, including minimum charges.

"(C) Pay to the Logan Company at its principal office, wherever the same may be located, on or before the fifteenth day of each and every month during the running of this contract:

"(1) A sum of money equal to (70%) seventy per cent. of the gross sales of gas for domestic consumption during the preceding month, including therein minimum charges; and also,

"(2) A further sum of money equal to such a per cent. of the gross sales of gas for industrial purposes and for manufacturing purposes (gas for either of said purposes to be sold only upon the written direction of the Logan Company as hereinbefore provided for) as the Logan Company may in its notices directing such sales stipulate and fix.

"It is distinctly understood that the Distributing Company guarantees the payment of all gas bills and that the above percentage shall be based upon the gross amount of the gas bills after allowing the discount for prompt payment before the tenth day of the month as provided for in sub-paragraph (C) of the TWELFTH paragraph hereof, and the Logan Company shall not be charged with any part of bad accounts.

* * * * * * * *

"Seventeenth Paragraph.

"The Distributing Company expressly covenants and agrees that if it shall default in the payment of any month's settlement or payment of gas for a period of fifteen days after the same falls due by the terms of this contract, then this contract shall, at the option of the Logan Company, be cancelled and annulled, and all rights of the Distributing Company hereunder forfeited; except, however, that default in payment of any month's bill which shall arise over a bona fide dispute as to the same or any part thereof, shall not operate to terminate this contract for fifteen days after such dispute is settled, provided the Distributing Company pays promptly when due the amount of such bill which is not disputed."

The above quoted material provisions of the contract clearly show that the transactions referable to it do not constitute sales. This is not a case wherein one party buys fungible goods from another party, with the right to dispose of the same according to his own will. On the contrary, the Distributing Company, which is to deal directly with the consumer, is to dispose of the gas only in such manner as is or may be consented to by the supplying company. Not all gas which passes through the consumers' meters even is to be settled for by monthly payments; for provision is made in the contract for furnishing gas free of charge by the mutual consent of both parties; and such gas so furnished is not to be paid for.

It is true that the Distributing Company must settle for such gas as is sold to consumers, whether it has collected from the consumers or not; but the exact attitude of the parties toward this stipulation is made very clear by their description of it as follows:

"It is distinctly understood that the Distributing Company guarantees the payment of all gas bills."

While, then, the Distributing company guarantees the payment of all gas bills, it does not agree to pay for all gas which passes into its distributing system, nor even for all gas which passes out of the same through the consumers' meters, because it may, with the consent of the supplying company, furnish gas free to some consumers.

Again, the contract expressly provides that the Distributing Company shall pay all taxes upon the sale of gas "except only any taxes levied or assessed directly against the Logan Company and based upon its percentage of the sales of gas within the contract territory."

It is true, as it was in the case of State v. Coshocton Gas Co., commented upon in previous opinions to the commission, that the local company most probably is conducting its business under a franchise granted by the council of the City of Elyria, and that by such municipal action it is recognized as the sole agency engaged in the business of furnishing and selling gas to consumers. Nevertheless, by this contract it appears that the local company is not a free agent in the sale of such gas within the city of Elyria, but that it is subject in important particulars to the direction and control of the supplying company, so long as it continues to procure its gas from that source.

On the whole, then, the relation between the two is best described as that of factor and principal, and the Distributing Company, regarded as a factor, may be likened to one doing business under a del credere commission.

The following observations of Professor Mechem upon the general subject are applicable here: (2nd Ed. Mechem on Agency, sections 2499, 2534:)

"It is not at all inconsistent with the factor's situation as an agent merely, that he has, by special contract, undertaken to be personally responsible for the payment of the price of the goods he sells. That ordinarily is the common case of the del credere commission. When, however, the contract goes beyond that, the case is not so clear. There comes constantly before the courts for interpretation * * * a great variety of contracts * * * which present some of the aspects of an agency and some of the aspects of a sale, and which * * * the courts, with more or less of consistency determine in one case to show sale and in another to indicate agency, as the characteristics of agency or sale may seem to predominate. * * *

"In these cases * * * names and titles applied by the parties are not conclusive, but the case must be determined by the essential characteristics of the relation attempted to be created.

"It is ordinarily the characteristic of an agency rather than of a sale that the principal retains the title to the goods consigned, and to the thing for which they may be exchanged * * * and that the proceeds of them when sold are to be held as such and are to be accounted for as his property; * * * that the risk of their loss shall be his unless specially assumed by the other party; that the consignor shall have the right to determine the price and the terms and conditions of sale; that he shall not have the right to demand the proceeds until the goods are sold, * * * that the non-payment of the price for which the goods are sold shall be the loss of the consignor unless the other party has specially agreed to indemnify. * * *

"A factor is said to act under a del credere commission when in consideration of an additional commission he guarantees the payment to the principal of debts that become due through his agency * * *.

"The del credere commission of course does not mean that the factor agrees that he will sell the goods; or that he will either sell them or pay for them, or that he will pay for those which he does not sell,— though special contracts of that sort are sometimes made;—but merely that, if he does sell them, the owner shall get his pay for them.

"A factor acting del credere, is not on that account relieved from any of the duties which attach to other factors, nor is he clothed with any greater authority.

"Neither does the factor by acting under a del credere commission cease to be an agent, nor, does the principal lose his title to the goods or their proceeds or the right to pursue the purchaser for the price."

These general observations state clearly the principles upon which the several opinions of this department to the commission, relative to the interpretation of similar contracts, have proceeded.

Faced as we are by the decision of the courts in the Coshocton Gas Company case, which decision was placed upon the broad ground indicated by Professor Mechem, viz., that the predominating characteristics of the arrangement will determine its character as a sale or an agency, we must resolve all questions which arise by the application of a like principle.

Particular provisions of such contracts, therefore, are not determinative. Each contract must be examined to ascertain the predominating characteristics; and in the event that provisions are found therein which if isolated would be mutually inconsistent, the whole contract must be examined with a view to ascertaining what sort of provisions predominate.

Thus, in the case of the contract between the Springfield Gas Company and the Ohio Fuel Supply Company, dealt with in my opinion to the commission under date of May 15, 1915, Opinions of the Attorney-General, volume 1, page 766, in spite of a recital to the effect that upon the delivery of the gas to the distributing company it should be the sole property of the company, and in spite of a further provision for the making of settlements on the basis of gas supplied and delivered. I came to the conclusion that the contract was one of factorage or agency, as distinguished from sale, and that the question raised thereby was determined by the Coshocton Gas Case. The whole contract was examined in this case, to ascertain what were its predominating characteristics.

Again, in the matter of the Alliance Gas & Power Company, I advised the commission on August 26, 1915, volume 2, Opinions of the Attorney-General, page 1621, that the contract between that company and a supplying company partook rather of the characteristics of a sale than those of the creation of an agency, reaching my conclusion in the face of provisions of the character similar to some which had been found in the Springfield Gas Company contract, because other provisions in the Alliance Gas Company contract tended to throw the balance on the side of a sale. In that particular case an express stipulation in the contract, to the effect that the parties agreed that the readings of the consumers' meters should conclusively determine the quantity of gas delivered by one party to the other and to be paid for by the latter, threw light upon the effect of another provision for periodical payments based upon gross sales instead of collections, and showed that the parties did not regard the latter as having the effect merely of a guaranty of the collection of the bills, but rather that it has the effect of payment for a commodity sold and delivered.

In the case of the Ada Natural Gas Company, upon which no formal opinion was rendered, I reached my conclusion that the question involved was governed by the Coshocton Gas case for substantially the same reasons which I have endeavored to express in dealing with the case now under consideration, being of the opinion then, as I am now, that provisions as to the basis of settlement between the Supplying Company and the Distributing Company, which, in connection with the whole contract, can not be said to have any greater effect than a mere guaranty of the collection of the bills, are not inconsistent with the idea of agency, but are merely analogous to the agreements which characterize the relation of principal and factor under a del credere commission.

For all the foregoing reasons, then, I advise that the excise tax of the Citizens Gas and Electric Company should be based only upon the proportion of the receipts, which under its contract with the Logan Natural Gas and Fuel Company may be retained by it.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—CHIEF HIGHWAY ENGINEER NOT AUTHORIZED TO CERTIFY TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS AND TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES HIS APPORTIONMENT OF COST OF AN IMPROVEMENT UNTIL SAME IS COMPLETED.

The chief highway engineer is not authorized to certify to county commissioners and township trustees his apportionment of the total cost and expense of an improvement until the improvement is completed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 11, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of October 26, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

"Permit me to quote below a letter received from Mr. W. S. Howland, auditor of Ashtabula county, today:

"'In view of the fact that we had to overdraw the bond and interest funds of the following state roads, viz: the Hampden-Andover, Main Market, Jefferson-Andover, or repudiate the bonds on account of no frontage being certified by the state. We overdrew the various bond and interest funds, and did not repudiate the bonds. According to the holdings of the attorney-general and the bureau of inspection, this is a grievous offense, hence, the pilgrimage by Mr. Case and myself to Columbus to see if we could correct this condition so we would not have to overdraw these various funds again, or repudiate the bonds during the year of 1917.

"'We felt pleased, while in Columbus, with your attitude and also the manner in which the state auditor, Mr. Donahey, looked upon this condition in our county, and when Mr. Halbedel, the chief state inspector, requested an opinion of the attorney-general our ardor was dampened.

"'Now if the attorney-general holds against certifying by the highway department frontages of the above named roads, we do not see any reason why we should digress from the holdings of the attorney-general and the bureau of inspection, which would mean the repudiation of the bonds of the above named roads, but in view of the fact that we know you are willing to do anything in your power to aid us, therefore we are asking you to certify the frontages in the following roads, so we can place them upon our special assessment duplicate and collect the assessments at our next December installments, viz: No. 689 Hampden-Andover Inter-County Highway; No. 475 Section "I," petition No. 686; No. 816, Main-Market road, Inter-County highway; Section "K," petition 24-6 No. 870; Jefferson-Andover, Inter-County highway No. 151, Section "J," petition No. 248, Dorcet section.

"'Trusting that you will be able to certify the assessments into this office at an early date, and thanking you in advance, we remain.'

"We are able to comply with Mr. Howland's request to furnish the apportionment of the cost and expense of improving Section 'J' of Inter-County highway No. 475, Hampden-Andover road, for the reason that this road has just been completed, and we have, therefore, exact figures as to its cost.

"However, the other two sections of Inter-County highway mentioned by Mr. Howland have not yet been completed and it would be necessary to add an estimated amount to cover the probable cost of engineering and inspection to the contract price in order to arrive at an approximation of the total cost of the work.

"You will note from a copy of letter under date of October 20, from Mr. Ray N. Case, county highway superintendent of Ashtabula county, that he has made approximate estimates of the cost of engineering and inspection on the two improvements and indicates that the county is willing to pay any excess of these estimates.

"It appears that the county authorities are eager to collect the assessments from the abutting property owners this year and I respectfully request that you advise me whether or not it would be proper for this department to comply with the request of Mr. Howland."

The copy of the communication addressed to you by Mr. Ray N. Case, county highway superintendent of Ashtabula county, reads as follows:

"In compliance with your request that I file a statement of the engineering and inspection on various state improvements in this county, I beg to submit the following:

"On the Jefferson-Andover, I. C. H. No. 151, Section J, the cost of engineering and inspection to September 1, was $1,420.38. The September payroll was $190.40, and the October payroll estimated to be approximately $200.00, and to complete the work in November should not exceed $100.00. This would make a total of $1,910.78 as the cost of engineering and inspection to date. The preliminary plans on this improvement cost $571.43, which would leave a balance of $1.339.35 as the cost of engineering and inspection upon approximately one-half the length of the total contract. It is rather hard to estimate the cost of engineering and inspection to complete the work next year; the item of inspection is, in itself, indefinite, owing to the uncertainty in the progress of the work, weather conditions being taken into consideration, but in my judgment, we should allow approximately $1,400.00 to complete the work next year; that would make a grand total of $3,310.78, as the cost of engineering and inspection for the entire length of road. Any amount above that as agreed by Mr. Howland, while in Columbus, could be paid by the county, without being charged against this improvement.

"On Main-Market road No. 1, I. C. H. No. 2, section K, there has been expended to September 1, as engineering and inspection, $864.80. The September payroll amounted to $311.20; the October payroll will be approximately $391.30, and inspection for the month of November, I would estimate to be about $200.00, making a total of $1,767.30 as the total cost of engineering and inspection on that improvement. Should there be any payroll, engineering or inspection that would exceed this amount, the county will pay any excess of that amount. These amounts added to the estimated cost of the improvements would be as near the total cost as could be approximated."

The authority of your department in the matter of apportioning the cost of an improvement and certifying the same to the local authorities rests entirely upon the provisions of section 204 of the Cass highway law, section 1211 G. C., which section reads as follows:

> "Upon completion of the improvement, the chief highway engineer shall immediately ascertain the cost and expense thereof, and apportion the same to the state, county, township or townships and abutting property. He shall certify the total cost and expense of the improvement and his apportionment thereof to the county commissioners, and the trustees of the township or townships interested therein."

Under the terms of the above quoted section, the chief highway engineer has no authority in the premises until the completion of the improvement. I, therefore, advise you, in answer to your question, that your department is not authorized to apportion anything other than the actual cost and expense of the improvement, which, of course, cannot be ascertained until the improvement is completed, and that the chief highway engineer is therefore not authorized to make any certificate to the local authorities in Ashtabula county until the highways in question are completed.

Where bonds are issued under section 216 of the Cass highway law, section 1223 G. C., the dates of maturity of the bonds should be so fixed that none of the bonds will fall due in advance of a date when it may safely be assumed the road will have been completed, the cost and expense thereof ascertained, apportioned and certified, assessments made and the first assessment collected. A failure to observe the above precaution has evidently produced the situation existing in Ashtabula county, but even where such a situation exists a compliance with section 5630-1 G. C., 106 O. L., 495, provided, of course, the bonds have been issued since said section went into effect on September 3, 1915, would provide funds necessary for the redemption of bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments, where unforeseen contingencies result in delaying the collection of the assessments until after the date of maturity of the bonds, or the first installment thereof. This section provides, among other things, that bonds issued by county commissioners, in anticipation of the collection of special assessments, shall be full, general obligations of the county and that the county commissioners shall, prior to the issuance of the bonds above mentioned, provide for the levying of a tax upon all the taxable property of the county to cover any deficiency in the payment or collection of such special assessments.

The above observations indicate some of the methods of avoiding embarrassment in a matter of this kind, but in any event the authority of your department is fully defined by section 1215 G. C., supra, and the chief highway engineer is not authorized to act in advance of the completion of the improvement.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

AUTOMOBILES—PERSON WHO ALLOWS MOTOR VEHICLE TO STAND IN A PUBLIC ROAD IN NIGHT TIME WITHOUT ANY LIGHTS NOT GUILTY OF VIOLATION OF SECTION 12614 G. C.—MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS ARE AUTHORIZED TO REQUIRE SUCH VEHICLES TO DISPLAY LIGHTS IN NIGHT SEASON, ALTHOUGH NOT IN MOTION.

A person who allows an automobile to stand in a public road or highway in the night time without any light, is not guilty of a violation of Section 12614 G. C.

Under the provisions of section 3632 G. C. municipal corporations are authorized to require that automobiles display lights in the night season, although the vehicles are not in motion.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 13, 1916.

HON. JOSEPH W. HORNER, Prosecuting Attorney, Newark, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your inquiry under date of November 7, 1916, which inquiry reads as follows:

> "Section 12614 of the Criminal Code reads as follows:
> "'Whoever operates or drives a motor vehicle upon the public roads and highways without providing it with sufficient brakes to control it at all times and a suitable and adequate bell or other device for signaling, or fails during the period from thirty minutes after sunset to thirty minutes before sunrise to display a red light on the rear thereof and three white lights, two on the front and one on the rear thereof, the rays of which rear light shall shine upon and illuminate each and every part of the distinctive number borne upon such motor vehicle, the light of which front lamps to be visible at least two hundred feet in the direction in which such motor vehicle is proceeding, shall be fined not more than twenty-five dollars.'
> "A party here left their automobile standing in front of his place of business in the night time without any lights whatsoever.
> "I would ask your opinion whether or not this section would apply to a machine that is not in motion and without lights in the night season?"

While the changes which have been made in the section are not material in so far as your inquiry is concerned, it should be observed that section 12614 G. C. as quoted by you, was amended in 103 O. L., 766, and now reads as follows:

> "Whoever operates or drives a motor vehicle upon the public roads and highways without providing it with sufficient brakes to control it at all times and a suitable and adequate bell or other device for signaling, or fails during the period from thirty minutes after sunset to thirty minutes before sunrise to display a red light on the rear thereof and three white lights, two on the front and one on the rear thereof, the rays of which rear white light shall shine upon and illuminate each and every part of the distinctive number borne upon such motor vehicle, the light of which front lamps to be visible at least two hundred feet in the direction in which such motor vehicle is proceeding, shall be fined not more than twenty-five dollars. Provided, that motor vehicles of the type commonly called motor cycles shall display one white light in front to be visible at least two hundred feet in the direction in which such motor vehicle is proceeding, and one rear combination red and white light, showing red in the direction from which such motor vehicle is proceeding and such rear light to be so placed that it will reflect its white light upon and fully and clearly illuminate the distinctive license identification mark of such motor vehicle."

A motor vehicle which is not in motion could not be said to be operated or driven. It might be argued that the provision making it an offense to operate or drive a motor vehicle without sufficient brakes or without a signaling device is not related to the provision making it an offense to fail to display lights and that the latter provision applies to all motor vehicles on the public roads or highways without regard to whether they are being operated or driven. This construction of the statute is, however, rendered untenable by the provision that the light of the front lamps shall be visible at least two hundred feet in the direction in which the motor vehicle is proceeding. This latter provision is, to my mind, conclusive of the intention of the legislature to make the provisions of section 12614 G. C. applicable only to motor vehicles which are in motion.

I, therefore, advise you that a person who allows an automobile to stand in a public road or highway in the night time, without any lights whatever, is not guilty of a violation of the section in question.

Section 3632 G. C. expressly authorizes municipal corporations to regulate the use of automobiles and under this section municipal corporations are authorized to require that automobiles display lights in the night season, although the vehicles are not in motion. Possibly an examination will disclose that an ordinance of this character is in force in the municipality in which the act referred to by you was done, assuming that the occurrence took place within the limits of a municipal corporation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—HOW TO PROCEED WHERE PERSON CLAIMS TO HAVE BEEN INJURED BY REASON OF NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYEES OF STATE ENGAGED IN CONSTRUCTING ROAD BY FORCE ACCOUNT—CLAIM PRESENTED TO LEGISLATURE.

Where persons claim to have been injured by reason of the negligence of employees of the state engaged in constructing a road by force account, such persons may not bring a suit against the state, and there is no appropriation from which voluntary payment of damages may be made to them by the state highway department. The only duty of the state highway commissioner is to collect the facts and preserve a record of the same for use in case the persons who claim to have been injured should hereafter present a claim for damages to the General Assembly.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 13, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 8, 1916, which communication reads as follows:

"I am handing you herewith a letter from E. A. Merkel, county highway superintendent of Mansfield, describing an automobile accident which happened on the Mansfield-Wooster road, I. C. H. No. 164, Section 'N,' Richland county.

"You will note that this contract has been taken over from the original contractors, the Ohio Valley Construction Co., and is now being constructed by 'force account' by the highway department under the supervision of Mr. Merkel.

"I desire that you advise me what action, if any, on the part of the state highway department should be taken."

The letter addressed to you by Mr. E. A. Merkel, county highway superintendent of Richland county, reads as follows:

"Relative to an automobile accident on Sec. 'N' Mansfield-Wooster road, I. C. H. No. 164: This accident happened at the following location, to the following men and as near as I can state from personal investigation in the following manner:

"The names and addresses of the young men are Frank Wigton, owner of the machine, Howard Kulp, Charles Carr and Fred Moore, all of Big Prairie, Ohio.

"This accident happened at Sta. 77 on the Wooster road where a detour sign was placed in order to protect the portion of the road west of that and under construction. Sta. 77 is on a 7% grade and the automobile was descending the grade. The summit of this grade is so located that the detour sign and barricade could be observed at night by reasonably good lights at a distance of 200 feet. The barricade extended a part way across the road leaving it possible for a vehicle to pass at the south and conveniently, if they were running at a low rate of speed. About at this same point a road leads off of the Wooster road directly south and at right angles to the improvement.

"The instructions from me to the parties in charge of this work have been very strict and plain to at all times keep the barricades and detour signs properly lighted at night. We have had very serious trouble this entire season with disorderly parties stealing and destroying the lights especially on this road at this point.

"I have almost positive evidence that there was no light on this barricade when this accident happened about 8:30 p. m. In fact, it can be proved that there was no light on this barricade that night for the man in charge of lighting these lights, states that when he reached this barricade that evening, the lamp was gone. I also have evidence that this lamp was carried about 150 feet east of the accident, this being the direction the parties were approaching from, which indicates that they did not destroy the light. Also one of the workmen who passes this barricade on his way home at night states that he passed this barricade about six o'clock (after dark) and that there was no light on the barricade.

"The owner and driver of this Maxwell touring car, Frank Wigton, states that he was approaching the barricade at about ten miles per hour. This statement is evidently untrue, as he also states that he was aware of the detour sign and barricade and that he had so short a time to make up his mind the safest thing to do that he deliberately turned his machine into the bank to avoid crashing into the barricade, which machine, as the evidence discloses, was turned completely over and was found the next morning by myself, laying on its side with the front end of the car turned directly east, the direction from which it was approaching. All occupants of the car were bruised and hurt some, and one man, Howard Kulp, was taken to the hospital. I think this man had five ribs broken and is yet under the doctor's care in Mansfield.

"The automobile was badly demolished, and indications are that it will require at least $200.00 to repair the machine. The automobile is still where it was wrecked and the owner of the machine is awaiting the action of the state highway department in determining what shall be done. This young man has not to my knowledge employed an attorney nor has he made a claim for damage, but he does state that if the machine is properly repaired that he thinks all the injured men will be satisfied. Of this I have no assurance.

"The prosecuting attorney and the county commissioners will not make any offer of settlement until the state highway department has given some instructions. The question to determine is as to the liability of the county or state for the accident and who is liable.

"The contract for constructing this road was originally in the hands of the Ohio Valley Contracting Co., of Cincinnati, which company is now in the hands of the receiver and I also understand that this company's bondsmen have also gone into the hands of a receiver. I, as resident engineer, under the instructions of the state highway department, am constructing this road on the force account basis.

"Any other information, if desired, will be provided at your request, if possible."

While it is provided by section 16 of article I of the constitution of Ohio that suits may be brought against the state in such courts and in such manner as may be provided by law, yet this constitutional provision is not self-executing and the legislature has never conferred jurisdiction on any court or courts to entertain suits against the state and has never provided a manner in which such suits may be brought. The persons who claim to have been injured or to have suffered damage to their property, by reason of the automobile accident referred to by Mr. Merkel, are, therefore, unable to bring any suits against the state for the purpose of enforcing the payment of damages. A reference to the several appropriation measures passed by the eighty-first general assembly discloses that no appropriation was made for the uses and purposes of the state highway department from which appropriation it would be lawful for your department to make voluntary payment to the persons who were injured or whose automobile was damaged, even should an investigation disclose that the accident in question was due to the negligence of the agents of the state and that the injured persons were without fault.

I, therefore, advise you that there is no action which the state highway department may lawfully take in the premises other than to collect all the facts and preserve a record of the same on the files of the state highway department for the future use of any legislative committee to which the matter might be referred, in case the persons who claim to be injured should pursue the only course open to them in the matter of obtaining redress from the state and hereafter present a claim or claims to the general assembly.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TIMES OF HOLDING COURT—PUBLICATION OF ORDER REQUIRED BY SECTION 1519 G. C. SHOULD BE MADE IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 6252 G. C.—NEWSPAPER.

Publication of order required by section 1519 G. C. should be made in accordance with section 6252 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 13, 1916.

HON. HENRY W. CHERRINGTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Gallipolis, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter under date of October 18, 1916, which is as follows:

> "The clerk of courts asks me for an opinion on the following:
> "'By section 6252 the order fixing the times for holding court required publication in two newspapers of opposite politics. Since then section 1519 (103 O. L. 442) has been re-enacted and apparently is the latest law on the subject and permits publication of the order of the court of appeals in one or more newspapers. I now desire to know whether I am required to make publication as provided in section 6252.'"

Section 6252 G. C., to which you refer, provides in so far as the question at hand is concerned as follows:

> "Section 6252: * * *An order fixing the times of holding court * * * shall be published in two newspapers of opposite politics at the county seat, if there be such newspapers published thereat. In counties having cities of eight thousand inhabitants or more, not the county seat of such counties, additional publication of such notices shall be made in two newspapers of opposite politics in such city. * * * "

This statute was originally enacted in an act found in 73 O. L. page 75, which act was passed on March 25, 1876. In section 2 of said act (section 4357 R. S.) it was provided:

> " * * * Orders fixing times of holding courts * * * shall be published in two newspapers, one of each political party, if there be two papers of different political principles printed within said county in each of the several counties of this state * * * ."

In said act it is further provided for German advertisement. The provision for the additional publication in cities not county seats was provided for in an amendment to said section 4357 R. S., 86 O. L. 258, passed April 12, 1889. The said sections were not materially changed in the enactment of the general code in 1910 and stand as section 6252 of the general code.

Section 1519 G. C., (103 O. L. 412) provides:

> "Upon receipt of such order signed by the judges of his district, the clerk of the court of appeals shall immediately enter it on the journal of the court of appeals of his county, which entry shall be sufficient evidence as to the legal terms for holding the courts as therein ordered. The clerk shall cause a copy of the order to be published in one or more newspapers of general circulation in such county once a week on the same day of the week, for three consecutive weeks."

The original act from which section 1519 G. C. (103 O. L. 412) originated is found in an act to provide for the organization of circuit courts, 81 O. L. 168, passed April 14, 1884, at which time the original of section 6252 G. C. was in force, and was given the section No. 454b of the revised statutes.

Section 454b R. S. provided that immediately upon the first day of October the circuit judges should issue to the clerk in each county a written order fixing the time of the commencement of each term of the circuit court, which the clerk, upon receipt thereof, was to immediately enter upon the journals of the court, and it was further provided "such clerk shall cause a certified copy of such order or orders to be published in one or more newspapers of general circulation in such county once a week, on the same day of the week, for three consecutive weeks."

On February 7, 1885, there was an act passed to revise and consolidate the statutes relating to the organization and jurisdiction of the circuit and other courts, 82 O. L. 16. In section 449 it was provided that the clerk of the circuit court should cause a copy of the order of the court fixing the term of court "to be published in one or more newspapers of general circulation in his county, once a week, on the same day of the week, for three consecutive weeks." In section 458 of said act the clerk of the common pleas court of each county upon the receipt or an order fixing the term of court was required to cause a copy to be published "in one or more newspapers of general circulation in his county, once a week, on the same day of the week, for three consecutive weeks." Section 449 hereinbefore referred to was amended in 83 O. L. page 30.

A comparison of the language of section 1519 G. C. with the original thereof will disclose that there has been practically no change made in the phraseology.

It appears, therefore, that at the time of the enactment of the original of section 1519 G. C. the original of section 6252 G. C. was in full force and effect, and the question then arises as to whether or not the provisions of section 1519 G. C. having been later enacted should be considered as changing the provisions of section 6252 G. C.

The provisions of section 1519 G. C. are to the effect that a copy of the order is to be published in one or more newspapers of general circulation for three consecutive weeks.

Section 6252 G. C. provides that if there are two newspapers of opposite politics at the county seat publication shall be made there. And if there are one or more newspapers of opposite politics in a city of eight thousand inhabitants or more not a county seat in the county, such publication should be made there. There is nothing in the statute as to the number of insertions to be made. It may be possible that in certain county seats there are not two newspapers of opposite politics published, and if such is the case then the publication would be made in only one newspaper. It does not seem to me, therefore, that there is such a conflict between the two statutes that it can be said that section 1519 G. C. is exclusive of the provisions of section 6252 G. C. but rather that the two may be read together without in any way doing violence to the language of either. If there are two newspapers of opposite politics at the county seat an order fixing the time of holding court should be printed in such newspapers. If in such county there is a city of eight thousand inhabitants or more, not a county seat, additional publication shall be made in two newspapers of opposite politics if there be such in such city, and under the provisions of section 6253 G. C. publication shall be made in a newspaper printed in the German language. The time of publication is fixed by the provisions of section 1519 G. C., Section 6252 G. C. not providing for the time of publication.

Answering your question specifically, therefore, I am of the opinion that the order fixing the times of holding court is required to be made in accordance with the provisions of section 6252 G. C. in all cases wherein said provisions are applicable.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

AGRICULTURE—CORN BOYS' TRIP—CERTAIN ITEMS OF BILL OF T. P. RIDDLE APPROVED AND DISAPPROVED FOR 1916.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 14, 1916.

The Board of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of October 17, 1916, you wrote me a letter to the following effect:

> "In the opinion No. 1948, dated September 29, 1916, you advised that Mr. T. P. Riddle, who conducted the corn boys' trip to Washington in the year 1915, was an independent contractor in so far as the trip proper was concerned. I herewith hand you a letter which I received from Mr. Riddle, dated October 13th, which is self-explanatory, together with an itemized statement as furnished by him, which he asks the board of agriculture to pay.
>
> "I respectfully request your advice whether items Nos. 1, 2, 8, 9, 10 and 11 are just claims against the state, and should be paid by the board of agriculture."

The letter of Mr. Riddle, referred to above, is as follows:

> "I am enclosing herewith a copy of a statement to the amount of $1,067.24, addressed to the State Board of Agriculture over eight months ago.
>
> "Each item of this statement was substantiated by receipt or citation of authority. Further, every item of this statement was approved for payment by the State Board of Agriculture or by its duly authorized agents.
> "I presume that the payment of this account was being held up as a club to force my acquiescence to the demand of the State Board of Agriculture for the surrender of the records involved in the handling of last year's Buckeye corn special tour.
> "In view of the attorney-general's ruling No. 1948, which sustains me in my contention that I was an independent contractor in the handling of the 1915 Buckeye corn special tour, I fail to appreciate the cause for further delay, and I respectfully request hereby that the account be paid within the next ten days. The failure of the State Board of Agriculture to pay this account within the time limit stated will necessitate my suing for its collection."

Since that time we have had a conference in regard to the various items to which you refer.

Item I is as follows:

Office expense, on account, 10-1-15 to 12-31-15_____$208 28

In regard to this item I have examined the account which was submitted by Mr. Riddle wherein he set forth fully the items of expenditure and the receipted bills therefor. All of said expenditures seem to have been for legitimate office expenses. As Mr. Riddle was permitted to conduct his office at Lima, Ohio, as director of junior contests I can see no reason why this bill should not be audited and paid.

Item II is as follows:

Traveling expenses, on account, 10-19-15 to 12-31-15_____$67.86

I have examined the detailed account submitted by Mr. Riddle in this regard and find that it is for expenses incurred by him in traveling on behalf of the state and can see no reason why said bill should not be paid.

Items VIII and IX are as follows:

B. C. S. T. Ticket 1242, T. P. Riddle_____$59.25

B. C. S. T. Ticket 1099, Florence Jackson_____ 59.25

These items were distinctly covered in opinion No. 1948 to the effect that Mr. Riddle being an independent contractor required to furnish a certain service and at a certain price, and his stenographer taken along to act as secretary, would not be entitled to their expenses from the state.

Item X is as follows:

B. C. S. T. Ticket 1204, N. L. Bunnell_____$59.25

This item was also covered by opinion No. 1948 to the effect that the members of the board of agriculture would not be authorized to take the trip at the state's expense.

Item XI is as follows:

B. C. S. T. Ticket 1289, J. R. Clarke_____$59.25

I have personally consulted Mr. J. R. Clarke and am informed by him that he was at that time an employe of the state; that the committee of junior contests which was a committee of the board of agriculture in charge of the matter, and also the secretary of said board directed him to go on said trip in order to see that only those who were properly entitled to take the trip were carried on the trip and further to help see that the contract of Mr. Riddle was properly carried out. I am therefore inclined to the opinion that Mr. Clarke's expenses are properly chargeable.

This answers all of the items inquired about.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS—DEPOSITORS MAY WITHDRAW FUNDS BY NON-NEGOTIABLE ORDERS—SAME ASSIGNABLE—SECTION 9652 G. C. CONSTRUED.

Under section 9652 G. C., depositors in a building and loan association may withdraw funds by non-negotiable orders, which orders are assignable, and may be honored and paid by such building and loan association when presented by an association.

An order by a depositor upon funds in a building and loan association which is not payable "to order or to bearer" is non-negotiable within the meaning of section 9652 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 14, 1916.

HON. L. G. SILBAUGH, Inspector of Building and Loan Associations, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of October 20, 1916, in which you request my opinion as follows:

"In the enumeration of powers granted to building and loan associations of this state are the following:

"'General Code Section 9651. To permit members to withdraw all or part of their stock deposits, at such times, and upon such terms as the constitution and by-laws provide. * * *

"'Section 9652. To permit withdrawal of deposits upon such terms and conditions as the association provides except by check or draft. But no such association shall be permitted to carry for any member or depositor any demand, commercial or checking account. Nothing in this chapter shall prevent members or depositors from withdrawing funds by non-negotiable orders.'

"The _____ Savings Company, a building and loan association of this state, has allowed the withdrawal or deposits, copies of the requests of which are as follows:

"On the face is stamped 'paid March 27, 1916.' By 'The_____ Savings Company.'

"I also enclose full copies of the originals of these instruments for your inspection.

"The by-laws of this building and loan association contain the following provisions relative to withdrawal of these deposits:

"'Special depositors, and all other depositors, whose deposits are not pledged to the company, may as a general rule, upon written application to the secretary or general manager, withdraw all, or any part, of their credits or deposits, at any time without previous notice; but to protect the interest of depositors and borrowers, and avoid sacrifice of securities, sixty days written notice of withdrawal may at any time be required, and the right to interest on special or other deposits shall cease with any application to withdraw. All persons withdrawing shall be entitled to receive the amount of all credits, or any part thereof, at the time of the application to withdraw. The required notices to withdraw shall be filed in the order in which they are received, and paid from the regular receipts of the company in the order in which they are filed as fast as 75% of the regular receipts of the company will pay them; but, the board of directors may, at its discretion, use all the regular receipts to pay withdrawals. All withdrawals shall be taken from the oldest deposits, and no withdrawal from any one account or certificate shall exceed one thousand dollars in each thirty days of other pending applications for withdrawal; but, the board of directors may, at its discretion, pay withdrawals not exceeding twenty-five dollars at any one time, nor exceeding one hundred dollars within thirty days, regardless of the order of application.'

"The depositor is required to sign the following statement in the pass-book issued to him for such deposits:

"'It is understood that the account evidenced by this pass-book is not a demand, commercial or checking account, and that I have no right to demand the withdrawal or payment of any part thereof except upon the written application and notice above set forth, and then only by non-negotiable orders.

"'_____'

"I desire your opinion as to whether funds in a building and loan association in this state can be withdrawn in the manner and form as indicated by the foregoing instruments"

Under section 9652 of the General Code, quoted in your letter, a building and loan association is not permitted to carry a demand or checking account for any member or depositor, or to permit the withdrawal of deposits by check or draft. It may permit withdrawal of deposits in any other manner, however, upon such terms and conditions as it may choose to prescribe in its constitution and by-laws, and may permit withdrawals by non-negotiable orders.

The question presented is whether the so-called "request" upon which withdrawal or deposits by depositors is permitted by the building and loan association under consideration are checks or drafts, the use of which is forbidden by the General Code or non-negotiable orders the use of which are permitted.

Section 8106 of the General Code, defining the essentials of a negotiable instrument, is as follows:

> "An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements:
>
> "1. It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer;
>
> "2. It must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money;
>
> "3. Must be payable on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time:
>
> "4. Must be payable to order or to bearer; and
> "5. When the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty."

It will be observed that such an instrument, as one of the qualifications of negotiability, must be made payable to order or bearer.

Section 8290 of the General Code defines a check as follows:

> "A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this division applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check."

The term "draft" is commonly employed as a synonym for either a bill of exchange or check. (Cudahy Packing Company v. Smith, 75 Fed., 473.) Section 8231 of the General Code defines a "bill of exchange" as follows:

> "A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time a sum certain in money to order or to bearer."

It follows that the words of negotiability "to order" or "to bearer," which by virtue of the definition contained in section 8231 of the General Code, supra, are necessary in a proper bill of exchange are also essential in a check, and that checks and drafts are, within the meaning of section 9652, negotiable instruments.

In none of the "requests" set forth in your letter as exhibits (A), (B) and (C) are words of negotiability found which must be used before such an instrument can come within the definition of a check or draft.

The by-laws of the association under consideration, as quoted in your letter, and the statement which the depositor is required to sign are further indicative of the right of the parties, and that such orders are not intended or treated as negotiable. The fact that such orders are assigned and the assignment recognized and the assignee treated as the owner thereof does not add to them the quality of negotiability. The assignee takes such orders subject to all the equities which may exist between the drawer and the drawee, and therefore I am of the opinion that the funds deposited in a building and loan association may be withdrawn by a depositor in the manner and form indicated in exhibits (A), (B) and (C) set forth in your letter.

I am forced to the conclusion just expressed solely by reason of the provisions of section 9652 G. C., authorizing withdrawal of deposits from building and loan associations by non-negotiable orders. I believe, however, that the practice of permitting such orders to be assigned and of passing from hand to hand and being used to all intents and purposes as checks is an extension of power beyond the legislative intent and contrary to the spirit of the building and loan act as evidenced by other provisions of the General Code, and should be corrected by further legislation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—BONDS ISSUED FOR PURPOSE OF PURCHASING SITE WHEREON TO ERECT HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING—MAY NOT BE USED FOR ERECTION OF GRADE SCHOOL BUILDING.

The proceeds of bonds issued by the board of education of a school district for the purpose of purchasing a site whereon to erect a high school building and for the construction of such building, may not be used by said board for the erection of grade school buildings.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 15, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. PEARSON, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of November 13th is as follows:

> "The Middletown board of education has now on hands to the credit of the building fund $37,000, derived from sale of bonds without a vote of the people under section 7629 G. C., and under a resolution of said board worded in part as follows:
>
> "'That the bonds of said city school district of Middletown, Ohio, be issued and sold according to law in the sum of $37,000 for the purpose of purchasing real estate whereon a high school building may be erected and for the purpose of improving said land when so acquired.'
> "The board of education will be delayed seriously by coondemnation proceedings in securing land for a high school building, and in this connection it may be stated that on August 8, 1916, by vote of the people, the board now has the right to issue $200,000 in bonds for high school uses.
> "Can the board of education under the circumstances use the $37,000 above mentioned to erect grade school houses?"

From your statement of facts it appears that subsequent to the time the board of education of the Middletown city school district, acting under authority of section 7629 G. C., issued and sold bonds in the sum of $37,000 for the purpose of purchasing real estate whereon a high school building might be erected, and for the purpose of improving said land when so acquired, said board of education submitted to the qualified electors of said school district the question of issuing $200,000 of bonds for said purpose and the vote of said electors was favorable to said issue, so that it is not now the desire of said board of education to use said sum of $37,000 realized from the sale of the bonds first above referred to, for the purpose for which said bonds were issued. You inquire whether, upon the facts stated, said board of education may use said sum of $37,000 for another and different purpose, i. e., for the erection of grade school buildings.

Section 5654 G. C. (103 O. L. 521) provides:

> "The proceeds of a special tax, loan or bond issue shall not be used for any other purpose than that for which the same was levied, issued or made, except as herein provided. When there is in the treasury of any city, village, county, township or school district a surplus of the proceeds of a special tax or of the proceeds of a loan or bond issue which cannot be used, or which is not needed for the purpose for which the tax was levied, or the loan made, or the bonds issued, all of such surplus shall be transferred immediately by the officer, board or council having charge of such surplus, to the sinking fund of such city, village, county, township or school district, and thereafter shall be subject to the uses of such sinking fund."

In view of the above provisions of section 5654 G. C. it seems clear that inasmuch as the board of education of the school district referred to in your inquiry does not desire to use the proceeds of the bonds in question for the purpose for which said bonds were issued, it is the duty of said board to transfer said sum to the sinking fund of said district in compliance with the requirement of the latter part of said section.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your question that said board of education may not use said sum of $37,000 for the purpose of erecting grade school buildings.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—LAND LYING OUTSIDE AN INCORPORATED VILLAGE ABUTTING A ROAD IMPROVEMENT CARRIED FORWARD BY STATE WHICH LAND IS OWNED BY VILLAGE—IS ASSESSABLE FOR IMPROVEMENT.

Land lying outside an incorporated village and abutting on an inter-county highway improvement carried forward by the state highway department, which land is owned and used by said village in connection with its system of water works, may be assessed for a portion of the cost and expense of said inter-county highway improvement, subject to the limitation expressed in section 1214 G. C., which assessment must be made according to the benefits accruing to the land in question.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 15, 1916.

HON. FRED W. MCCOY, Prosecuting Attorney, Carrollton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your request for an opinion under date of November 10, 1916, which request reads as follows:

> "The trustees of Fox township, Carroll county, Ohio, will meet on the 2d day of December, 1916, to apportion the cost and expense of the improvement of section D, Carrollton-Salineville road, Inter-County highway No. 377, and desire to know if, in your opinion ,two or three acres of land abutting on said improvements used by the village of Salineville, Ohio, in connection with their system of water works for said village can be assessed their portion of the cost and expenses of said improvement."

I assume that the land to which you refer is owned by the village of Salineville.

I learn from the records in the office of the state highway commissioner that no part of the road improvement referred to by you extends into the village of Salineville and that the tract of land abutting on the improvement and used by the village of Salineville lies outside the corporate limits of that village. As a matter of fact, the entire road improvement is situated in Carroll county, while the village of Salineville is located entirely within the adjoining county of Columbiana.

A very similar question, and one the answer to which is decisive of the question submitted by you, was considered by me in opinion No. 1192, rendered to Hon. T. B. Jarvis, prosecuting attorney of Richland county on January 21, 1916. The third question considered in that opinion related to the right of the county to assess a part of the cost of a road improvement constructed under the provisions of section 6956-1 et seq. of the General Code, now repealed, against a tract of land owned by the city of Mansfield and lying immediately south of the improved road in question, which land was used for a sewage and garbage disposal plant and was situated outside the limits of the city. Section 6956-10 G. C., now repealed, being the section under which the assessment considered in that opinion was to be made, provided for an assessment upon the owners of real estate lying and being within one mile from either side, end or terminus of the improvement, according to benefits. It was pointed out that this provision was general in its nature and contained no exemption as to property owned by a municipality, and after citing and discussing a number of authorities in the opinion in question it was held that the land owned by the city, and lying outside the city limits and used for the purpose of a sewage and garbage disposal plant, might be assessed for a part of the cost and expense of the improvement in question, which assessment, like all others, must be made according to the benefits derived from the improvement.

The section under which assessments are to be made in the matter of the improvement referred to by you, being section 1214 G. C., is also general in its terms and contains no exception as to property owned by a municipality, it being provided in the section in question that ten per cent of the cost and expense of improvement, excepting therefrom the cost and expense of bridges and culverts, shall be a charge upon the property abutting on the improvement, providing the total amount assessed against any owner of abutting property shall not exceed 33% of the valuation of such abutting property, for the purposes of taxation, and that the township trustees shall apportion the amount to be paid by the owners of the abutting property, according to the benefits accruing to the owners of the land so located.

In accordance with the view expressed in opinion No. 1192 of this department, I advise you, in answer to your inquiry, that the land referred to by you, abutting on the improvement and owned and used by the village of Salineville, in connection with its system of water works, may be assessed for a portion of the cost and expense of the inter-county highway improvement referred to by you, subject to the limitation expressed in section 1214 G. C., which assessment must, of course, be made according to the benefits accruing to the land in question.

I am enclosing for your information a copy of opinion No. 1192, referred to above.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE LIQUOR LICENSING BOARD—CHARGES FILED AGAINST COUNTY LICENSE COMMISSIONER—STATE BOARD HAS POWER TO HEAR CHARGES—NOT AFFECTED BY REASON OF INDICTMENT AGAINST SUCH COUNTY LICENSE COMMISSIONER.

The power of the state liquor licensing board to hear and determine charges against a county license commissioner, pursuant to the provisions of section 1261-25 G. C., 103 O. L., 219, is not affected by the fact that such county license commissioner is under indictment for a criminal offense founded upon the same transaction upon which the charges before the state liquor licensing board are based.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 15, 1916.

THE STATE LIQUOR LICENSING BOARD, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of November 2, 1916, is as follows:

> "In view of the pending indictment against F. G. Searle, member of the Darke county liquor licensing board, we would like to ask your opinion as to whether this board would have authority to try Mr. Searle on the subject involved in that indictment while said indictment is pending.
> "The liquor license code provides that a member of a county board may be removed after a hearing of which the member has been given a thirty day notice, but we are at a loss to know whether we could compel Mr. Searle to go into a hearing of the matter while the indictment is pending."

Section 10 of the liquor license law, section 1261-25, 103 O. L., 219, provides as follows:

> "Any county license commissioner may be removed by the state board in case of misconduct in office, bribery, incompetency, any gross neglect of duty or gross immorality, upon a hearing, thirty days' notice having been given to the commissioner whose removal is considered, as well as to the attorney-general, who may attend the hearing and represent the state; and the decision of the state board shall be final."

This section confers upon the state liquor licensing board full authority to remove a county license commissioner for any of the causes therein enumerated, subject only to the conditions and limitations there prescribed. The provisions of this section relate only to the removal of the individual in question from the office of liquor license commissioner and in no sense operate to impose upon the individual any criminal penalty for any conduct which may be the subject of charges upon which the removal of the license commissioner is sought and the proceedings for the removal of such officer here authorized are wholly independent of any criminal prosecution which may be based upon any conduct of such county liquor license commissioner. That the transactions of a county liquor license commissioner are the basis of a criminal prosecution in no way impairs the authority of the state liquor licensing board to entertain charges against such commissioner, based upon the same transaction, when there is involved therein or the same constitutes misconduct in office, bribery, incompetency, any gross neglect of duty or gross immorality.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your inquiry that the fact that the county liquor license commissioner is under indictment in no way affects the authority of the state liquor licensing board to hear and determine charges against such county license commissioner, pursuant to the provisions of section 1261-25 G. C., supra.

The question of the policy or expedience of hearing such charges prior to a final disposition of the criminal prosecution is a matter for determination by the state liquor licensing board.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES—BOARD OF AGRICULTURE SHOULD INTERPRET ITS OWN RULES RELATIVE TO SUCH COUNTY SOCIETIES.

The rules adopted by the board of agriculture governing the conduct of the affairs of county and district agricultural societies are subject to the interpretation and application of the board of agriculture in issuing the certificate that the laws of the state and the rules of the board have been complied with as required by section 9880 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 15, 1916.

HON. P. A. SAYLOR, Prosecuting Attorney, Eaton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge your request for an opinion, which is as follows:

"My attention has been called to the rules 'for the organization and management of county agricultural societies, adopted by the state board of agriculture, January 24, 1916,' rule 5 of which is as follows:

"'Rule 5. Directors, other than the treasurer, shall receive an amount not exceeding $3.00 and mileage of five cents per mile one way in attending each meeting and conducting the affairs of the society. No allowance shall be made to exceed twelve meetings each year, nor shall any funds, accumulations, profits or property of the society, or any portion or part thereof, be in any manner, except as above used, expended, delivered to or for, the individual benefit of any member or officer of the board of directors, or any other person or persons, as a share, gift or dividend in the proceeds or property of the society. The treasurer and secretary may receive compensation for their services. The election of officers by the board of directors shall be by ballot in all cases.'

"The officers of said society asked for my interpretation of Rule 5, and gave me the following facts:

"Several of the officers of the society, in order to promote the welfare of their department and make that department a success, especially that department with reference to speed horses, have been compelled to visit other fairs and solicit entries from these fairs to attend at our fair here Mr. Haston of our board, and his predecessor in that department, have always gone to Troy, Ohio, and got as many of the speed horses to come from Troy to our fair as he could, by the use as to location and size of purse and the next point to be shipped to. It is the belief of our board that unless this effort was made by the speed department and probably some of the other departments, that our fair would be below the standard, because of lack of entries. Then, too, several members of the society have gone down to our fair grounds and have done manual labor on the grounds along with other hired laborers, in getting the buildings in shape to house the exhibits, etc. These members have expense accounts. None of them are so very heavy, but they are for moneys actually spent, or labor actually performed in order to make the fair a success. Is there no way that they can be reimbursed?

"I am mailing a copy of this letter to the state board of agriculture and ask that you take the matter up with them and advise with reference to the section, applied to the facts as given above.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is a moral obligation to pay these bills, but whether it can be done legally or not is another question."

Section 9880 G. C. provides as follows:

"When thirty or more persons, residents of a county, or of a district embracing one or more counties, organize themselves into an agricultural society, which adopts a constitution and by-laws, selects the usual and proper officers, and otherwise conducts its affairs in conformity to law, and the rules of the state board of agriculture, and when such county or district society has held an annual exhibition in accordance with the three following sections, and made proper report to the state board, then, upon presentation to the county auditor, of a certificate from the president of the state board attested by the secretary thereof, that the laws of the state and the rules of the board have been complied with, the county auditor of each county wherein such agricultural societies are organized, annually shall draw an order on the treasurer of the county in favor of the president of the county or district agricultural society for a sum equal to two cents to each inhabitant thereof, on the basis of the last previous national census. The total amount of such order shall not in any county exceed eight hundred dollars, and the treasurer of the county shall pay it."

Under the provisions of the above quoted section the expenditure of funds of the agricultural society for the purposes mentioned in your inquiry is governed by the rules of the board of agriculture applicable to the conduct of the affairs of such society.

The rules of the board of agriculture governing agricultural societies are subject to change or modification by the board of agriculture and subject as well to the interpretation and application thereof by the board of agriculture in the issuance of the certificate that the laws of the state and the rules of the board have been complied with, as required by section 9880 G. C., supra.

Such interpretation and application of the rules of the board of agriculture as it would adopt or make in the issuance of certificates would, it is believed, in the absence of fraud, gross negligence or abuse of discretion, be controlling in the courts and binding upon this department. Any attempt to interpret Rule 5, above quoted in this opinion, would, therefore, be futile, and the matter referred to in your inquiry is subject to determination by the board of agriculture.

The attention of the board of agriculture has been directed to the matter of your inquiry, by which board it will be given proper consideration.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SALE OF OHIO CANAL LANDS IN CITY OF MASSILLON TO HESS-SNYDER CO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 15, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works. Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 10, 1916, transmitting to me duplicate copies of a resolution providing for the sale of 9,903 square feet of the Ohio canal lands in the city of Massillon, Stark county, Ohio, to the Hess-Snyder Co. of said city.

I find that the sale of this land is authorized by an act of the general assembly, found in 106 O. L., 234, and that the resolution submitted to me is properly drawn.

I am therefore returning the same with my signature attached to the duplicate copies thereof.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—NOT AUTHORIZED TO APPOINT COUNTY SURVEYOR TO MAKE PLANS FOR SEWER IMPROVEMENT.

County commissioners are not authorized, under the provisions of section 6602-1 G. C., et seq., to appoint the county surveyor to make the necessary plans, specifications and estimates for a sewer improvement. This is true without regard to whether the county surveyor receives compensation for this work in addition to his regular salary.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 16, 1916.

HON. F. J. BISHOP, Prosecuting Attorney, Jefferson, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion, under date of October 27, 1916, reads as follows:

> "I would like your opinion on the following proposition:
> "Section 6602-2 giving the county commissioners power to build sewer system outside of municipalities provides that the commissioners shall have prepared the necessary plans, specifications and estimates of said proposed sewer improvement.
> "I would like your opinion as to whether or not the commissioners can appoint the county surveyor to prepare the plans, specifications and estimates and if so can the county surveyor receive compensation for this work in addition to his regular salary?"

Section 6602-I G. C. contains the following provisions:

> "The board of county commissioners may employ a competent sanitary engineer for such time and on such terms as they may deem best to assist them in performing any of their duties under this act and may provide for the payment of his necessary assistants and expenses.

"In any county of the state having a population exceeding 100,000 the board of county commissioners may create a sanitary engineering department to be under their supervision, and in charge of a competent sanitary engineer, for the purpose of assisting them in the performance of their duties under this act or their other duties regarding sanitation provided by law.

"The board of county commissioners shall provide suitable rooms for the use of such department and shall provide for the payment of all the expenses of such department which are authorized by said board."

Section 6602-2 G. C., referred to by you, provides in part as follows:

"Whenever the board of county commissioners of the county shall declare by a majority vote the necessity of the construction, maintenance, repair, or operation of a sewer improvement, or a sewage treatment works mentioned in section one, and shall declare that said construction, maintenance, repair or operation is for the purpose of drainage, public convenience, or public health, and welfare, or when a petition, signed by the freeholders of the majority of the acreage in a sewer district, petition the county commissioners for the construction within said district of such a sewer improvement, or when a petition signed by the owners of the majority of the foot frontage of a proposed local or lateral sewer improvement, petition the board of county commissioners for the construction within said district of such a local or lateral sewer improvement, then the county commissioners shall have prepared the necessary plans, specifications and estimates of said proposed sewer improvements; * * * "

It will be noted that neither of these sections makes any reference to the county surveyor. No duties are cast upon that official by the sections in questions which authorize the county commissioners to employ a competent sanitary engineer. Whatever might have been the proper answer to your question prior to the going into effect of the Cass highway law, amended senate bill No. 125, 106 O. L., 574, the provision of section 138 of that act, section 7181 G. C., that "the county surveyor shall give his entire time and attention to the duties of his office" is decisive of the matter at the present time. It is no part of the duty of the county surveyor to act as a sanitary engineer for the county commissioners where the commissioners are proceeding under section 6602-1 et seq. of the General Code, and since the county surveyor must, under the provisions of section 7181 G. C., devote his entire time and attention to the duties of his office, it follows that the county surveyor is not authorized to accept employment under the provisions of section 6602-1 G. C., et seq., and the county commissioners are not authorized to appoint or employ him to prepare the necessary plans, specifications and estimates. This is true without regard to whether the county surveyor receives compensation for this work in addition to his regular salary. He is required to devote his entire time to the duties of his office and would not be authorized to devote a part of his time to work in connection with which no duty is cast upon him by the statutes.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—MAY ISSUE BONDS FOR REPAIR OF BRIDGES WITHOUT VOTE OF ELECTORS, PROVIDED EXPENDITURE IS WITHIN LIMITATION PRESCRIBED BY SECTON 5638 G. C.—SEE ALSO SECTON 5649-1 G. C. FOR ITS LIMITATIONS.

By provision of section 2434 G. C. county commissioners may issue bonds for the purpose of providing funds for the repair of the bridges of the county and this may be done without a vote of the electors of said county so long as the expenditure for the repair of any one of said bridges is within the limitation prescribed by section 5638 G. C. Due regard, however, should be given to the limitation that will be affected by the levying of taxes for interest and sinking fund incident to said bond issue, upon tax levies for current expenses of the county, the levy for interest and sinking fund being preferred to levies for current expenses by provision of section 5649-1 G. C., 104 O. L., 12.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 16, 1916.

HON. CHARLES E. BALLARD, Prosecuting Attorney, Springfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of November 14 is as follows:

"I respectfully request your opinion upon the following questions:

"The commissioners of Clark county, Ohio, desire to issue $60,000.00 worth of bonds—the estimated cost of repairing about 200 different county bridges by block floor, concrete floor and repair of the walls and butments. The amount of money to be expended on any one bridge does not exceed $700.00, but the total cost of repairing all of said bridges will equal about $60,000.00.

"(1) Have the commissioners authority to issue bonds in the sum of $60,000.00 for the purpose of paying the cost of repairing said bridges, under section 2434 G. C., without first submitting the question to the voters of the county?"

"(2) Are the provisions of section 2434 G. C.—

" 'or other necessary buildings or bridges, or for the purpose of enlarging, repairing, improving or rebuilding thereof,'

"limited by the provisions of section 5638 G. C., as to the amount that can be expended without submitting it to a vote of the people?"

Section 2434 G. C. provides in part that:

"* * * for the purpose of erecting or acquiring a building in memory of Ohio soldiers, or for a court house, county offices, jail, county infirmary, detention home, or additional land for an infirmary or county children's home or other necessary buildings or bridges, or for the purpose of enlarging, repairing, improving, or rebuilding thereof, * * * the commissioners may borrow such sum or sums of money as they deem necessary, at a rate of interest not to exceed six per cent. per annum, and issue the bonds of the county to secure the payment of the principal and interest thereof."

The part of section 2434 G. C., above quoted, is a general grant of authority to borrow money for the purpose therein mentioned and to issue bonds to secure the payment thereof. As was stated in opinion No. 1949 of this department, rendered to the board of state charities on September 29, 1916, said provision of said statute comprehends the borrowing of money and the issuance of bonds both with and without the vote of the electors of the county.

The authority to borrow money and issue bonds pursuant to the above provision of the statute and upon the approval of a majority of the electors of the county, is subject only to the limitation of fifteen mills upon the combined maximum rate for all taxes prescribed by section 5649-5b G. C. (103 O. L. 57) and to the further limitation of the amount approved by the vote of the electors.

The authority to borrow money and issue bonds without a vote of the electors under said provision of said statute is subject to all the limitations of the so-called Smith law governing levies for county purposes and those limitations should be taken into consideration by county commissioners in determining the amount of money to be raised for any of the purposes mentioned therein.

By the terms of said provision of section 2434 G. C. one of the things for which county commissioners may borrow money and issue bonds is to repair the bridges of the county. I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your first question, that your county commissioners have authority under section 2434 G. C., supra, to issue bonds in the amount and for the purpose mentioned in said inquiry. Due regard, however, should be given to the limitation that will be affected by the levying of taxes for interest and sinking fund incident to said bond issue, upon tax levies for current expenses of your county. When said bonds are issued the tax levy for interest and sinking fund must be made in preference to levies for current expenses as required by section 5649-1 G. C. (104 O. L. 12.)

You further inquire whether the authority of said county commissioners to issue bonds for the aforesaid purpose, without a vote of the electors, is limited by the provisions of section 5638 G. C., which are as follows:

> "The county commissioners shall not levy a tax, appropriate money or issue bonds for the purpose of building county buildings, purchasing sites therefor, or for land for infirmary purposes, the expenses of which will exceed $15,000.00, except in case of casualty, and as hereinafter provided; or for building a county bridge, the expense of which will exceed $18,000.00, except in case of casualty, and as hereinafter provided; or enlarge, repair, improve, or rebuild a public county building, the entire cost of which expenditure will exceed $10,000.00; without first submitting to the voters of the county the question as to the policy of making such expenditure."

Under the above provisions of section 5638 G. C. county commissioners may not levy a tax, appropriate money or issue bonds for building a county bridge the expense of which will exceed $18,000.00, except in case of casualty, or for repairing or improving such bridge the entire cost incident to which will exceed $10,000.00, without first submitting to the electors of the county the question as to the policy of making such expenditure.

It will be observed, however, that these respective limitations apply to the construction or to the improvement or repair of a single bridge and it appears from your statement of facts that the amount of money desired to be expended on any one bridge in your county will not exceed $700.00.

It is evident, therefore, that in issuing bonds for the purpose of repairing the bridges referred to in your inquiry your county commissioners are not concerned with the limitations prescribed by said section 5638 G. C., supra.

The resolution of said commissioners providing for said bond issue should, however, enumerate the bridges desired to be repaired or improved, by proper reference to name or location, and should set forth the estimated cost of such repair or improvement with respect to each particular bridge. In this way no question can be raised as to the provisions of said section 5638 G. C. applying to said issue.

Answering your second question I am of the opinion that for the purpose for which the bonds above mentioned are to be issued, the authority of your county commissioners to proceed under the provision of section 2434 G. C., hereinbefore quoted, is not limited by the provisions of section 5638 G. C., supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE, VILLAGE OF CUYAHOGA FALLS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 16, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of the village of Cuyahoga Falls in the sum of $60,000.00 for the construction of sewers in said village, being sixty bonds of $1,000.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the council and other officers of the village of Cuyahoga Falls relative to said bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said village.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

DEPENDENT OR NEGLECTED CHILDREN—LAW RELATING TO SUCH CHILDREN DISTINGUISHED FROM PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO DELINQUENT CHILDREN—BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION ORDERS —JUVENILE COURT MAY ISSUE FURTHER ORDERS IN REGARD TO COMMITMENT OF SUCH CHILDREN—SEE SECTION 1643 G. C.

In view of the provisions of law relating to the care of dependent and neglected children as distinguished from delinquent children, the action of the Ohio Board of Administration in establishing branches of the Bureau of Juvenile Research at the Boys' Industrial School and the Girls' Industrial School insofar as it relates to dependent or neglected children is in opposition to the letter and spirit of the law and the commitment of neglected or dependent children to the institutions named, under the order of the board, is without force and effect.

Dependent or neglected children so committed under and by virtue of the orders referred to being wards of the juvenile court by virtue of section 1643 G. C. are subject to the further orders of the court which committed them.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 16, 1916.

The Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

"According to the provisions of section 1841-1 of the General Code, the juvenile court of Hardin county committed three children to the board of administration and, in accordance with instructions previously issued by the state board that all boys who are not feeble-minded should be delivered at the Boys' Industrial School, these three children were taken to that institution.

"The commitment papers stated that they were committed for the reason that 'they have not proper parental care and guardianship, and that such children are dependent upon the public for their support.'

"These boys were brought to the Boys' Industrial School during the temporary absence of the superintendent, who, on his return, communicated with the committing judge asking him to send for the boys as it was contrary to the law governing said institution for him to receive dependent children.

"This the judge refused to do claiming that they had been legally committed.

"A member of the board of administration requested the board of state charities to receive these children for placement in foster homes, as provided for in section 1352-5 of the General Code.

"The board of state charities thereupon accepted these children and placed them to board in private families pending the selection of suitable foster family homes.

"These children are difficult cases to establish in free foster homes. There has been considerable expense for payment of private board, and is likely to be for some time, especially in regard to one.

"Under these circumstances there seems to be no way to charge back to Hardin county the necessary expense for maintenance of these children. Such expenses are paid from a rotary fund; without reimbursement from Hardin county the fund will be partially depleted if the present status exists much longer.

"It has been suggested that the boys be returned to the industrial school, but this does not seem proper or legal, as they were committed to be dependent not delinquent.

"We desire to ascertain:

"First. Does section 1643, when construed in connection with sections 1680 and 1683, permit the committing judge to recall said children at any time?"

"Second. May the juvenile judge cancel his order of commitment to the board of administration and make a second entry committing them to the board of state charities?

"Third. If neither of the plans proposed in queries one and two is feasible or possible, has the board of state charities the legal right to charge incidental expenses of these children to Hardin county, as is done in the case of children committed directly to the board of state charities?

"Fourth. Was the commitment of these boys in the manner described above warranted by law when the judge of the juvenile court apparently knew that the only provision that the state had for the care of such cases would be at the Boys' Industrial School, which is exclusively restricted to the care of delinquent boys of certain ages? In other words does section 1841-1 taken in connection with the laws regulating state institutions for the care of juvenile wards permit the inclusion of dependent children?"

This office is just in receipt of a letter from the prosecuting attorney of Hardin county to the effect that the juvenile judge in dealing with the children referred to found that they were dependent and neglected children, and being in receipt of a notice from the Ohio Board of Administration to the effect that it had established a bureau of juvenile research for boys at the Boys' Industrial School, and for girls at the Girls Industrial School, committed the children to the Ohio Board of Administration under date of July 28, 1914, by an order as follows:

"That said Helen Augustus, James Augustus, Cleo Augustus and Virgil Augustus be committed to said the Ohio Board of Administration to be there received, cared for, educated and kept, subject to the control of and until discharged by the proper authorities of said institution."

The order of the Ohio Board of Administration issued under date of July 1, 1914, the date when the juvenile research act became effective, is as follows:

"TO JUDGES OF JUVENILE COURTS:—

"Section 1841-1 of the General Code, as enacted Laws of Ohio, volume 103, p. 175, provides:

"'All minors who, in the judgment of the juvenile court, require state institutional care and guardianship, shall be wards of the state, and shall be committed to the care and custody of the "Ohio Board of Administration," which board thereupon becomes vested with the sole and exclusive guardianship of such minors.'

"In accordance with the provisions of the act above quoted, boys who, in the judgment of the juvenile court, require state institutional care and guardianship, are to be committed to the care and custody of the Ohio Board of Administration at its bureau of juvenile research at the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, Ohio; and girls who, in the judgment of the juvenile court, require institutional care and guardianship, are to be committed to the care and custody of the Ohio Board of Administration at its bureau of juvenile research at the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware, Ohio.

"THE OHIO BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION."

The juvenile research act was passed March 25, 1913, and approved April 22, 1913, to become effective on the first day of July, 1914.

Section 1653-1 of the General Code (103 O. L. 873) is as follows:

> "The provisions of section 1652 shall not apply to the Girls' Industrial School or the Boys' Industrial School, so far as the same allows the commitment of a child under ten years or over eighteen years of age to such institution. In no case shall a child found to be a dependent or neglected child be committed to such institution, nor shall any child under ten years or over eighteen years of age be committed to such schools except as provided in section 2111 of the General Code."

Section 1653-1 in its amended form was passed April 28, 1913, and approved May 9, 1913, or about one month later than the passage of the juvenile research act.

In section 1653-1 there is to be found the specific provision that "in no case shall a child found to be a dependent or neglected child be committed to such institution." Hence it is clear that it was the intention of the general assembly that the policy of caring for dependent and neglected children insofar as they were not to be committed to the Boys' Industrial School or to the Girls' Industrial School was concerned, was to continue. The establishment of the bureau of juvenile research at the Boys' Industrial School and at the Girls' Industrial School by the Ohio Board of Administration was a violation of that policy and clearly in opposition to the provisions of section 1653-1 of the General Code, supra.

Section 2084 of the General Code, as amended (103 O. L. 879) is as follows:

> "Male youth, not over eighteen nor under ten years of age, may be committed to the Boys' Industrial School in the manner provided by law on conviction of an offense against the laws of the state."

Before the amendment the section read as follows:

> "Male youth, not over sixteen nor under ten years of age, may be committed to the Boys' Industrial School by any judge of the common pleas court, probate court or police court on conviction for an offense against the laws of the state."

It may be argued that this amendment to section 2084 of the General Code, which is a part of the law governing the Boys' Industrial School, opened the doors for the admission of dependent children to the Boys' Industrial School notwithstanding the provisions of section 1653-1 of the General Code, supra. However, in view of the various provisions of the juvenile court law it may be fairly assumed that the amendment to section 2084 was made with a view to having it conform to the related sections of the juvenile court law.

Standing alone under the bureau of juvenile research act (103 O. L. 175) the order of the Ohio Board of Administration of July 1, 1914, supra, would seem to be authorized, but when taken in connection with the positive provisions of section 1653-1 of the General Code, supra, legislation subsequent to the passage of the juvenile research act, grave question exists as to the right of the Ohio

Board of Administration to designate the Boys' Industrial School and the Girls' Industrial School as places where, under authority of any existing law, dependent or neglected children may be sent.

The second question propounded by you is as follows:

> "May the juvenile judge cancel his order of commitment to the board of administration and make a second entry committing them to the board of state charities?"

In view of what has been said with reference to the question as to the right of the Ohio Board of Administration to admit dependent and neglected children to the Boys Industrial School and the Girls' Industrial School your second question is pertinent. Viewing the matter as I do, I am of the opinion that the act of the Ohio Board of Administration in establishing the bureau of juvenile research at the Boys' Industrial School and at the Girls' Industrial School insofar as it related to dependent and neglected children was not only without authority of law, but is in direct opposition to the established practice and specific provision of law relative to the care of such children, and therefore without force and effect. It would necessarily follow that the commitment of dependent and neglected children to the Ohio Board of Administration under the order referred to, which called for their delivery at the Boys' Industrial School and at the Girls' Industrial School was without force and effect, and that as the dependent children referred to are, under the provisions of section 1643 of the General Code, wards of the juvenile court an order may be made by said juvenile court for their commitment to the board of state charities or elsewhere as provided in section 1653 of the General Code as amended, 103 O. L. 872. This will obviate the necessity for consideration o fthe other questions incident to your inquiry. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, FRANKLIN COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 16, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

> "RE:—Bonds of Jefferson township rural school district, Franklin county, Ohio, in the sum of $35,000.00 for the purpose of purchasing sites for and the erection and equipment of two elementary grade school buildings in said district, and for repairs and additional rooms for the high school building at Gahanna, being seventy bonds of $500.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education and other officers of Jefferson township rural school district relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and signed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said school district. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General

AUTOMOBILE FOR COUNTY INFIRMARY—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MAY PURCHASE OIL, GASOLINE AND TIRES FOR AUTOMOBILE FURNISHED BY SUPERINTENDENT OF COUNTY INFIRMARY—SUCH SERVICE MAY BE REQUIRED IN FIXING SUPERINTENDENT'S COMPENSATION.

Where the county commissioners find it necessary to provide for the county infirmary the use of an automobile they may do so by purchasing oil, gasoline and tires for an automobile furnished by the superintendent of the county infirmary.

The same service might be required by the county commissioners to be provided by the superintendent of the county infirmary and taken into consideration in fixing his compensation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 17, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of October 19th you enclose a copy of a resolution adopted by the board of county commissioners of Erie county, and request my opinion as to its validity. Said resolution reads as follows:

"Sandusky, Ohio, Oct. 18, 1916.

"Mr. Kelley offered the following resolution and moved its adoption. Same was duly seconded by Mr. Holzaepfel and carried. Upon roll call the following vote was had: Mr. Crecelius aye, Mr. Holzaepfel aye, Mr. Kelley aye.

"WHEREAS, the superintendent of the county infirmary recently purchased an automobile for his own personal use, and finds it to great advantage to use same in connection with his duties as infirmary superintendent, and,

"WHEREAS, before the purchase of the automobile the county boarded Mr. Herbel's driving horse, in consideration of its use while engaged in the service of the county, by the superintendent, and,

"WHEREAS, it appears to the board that maintenance of an automobile will cost less than the maintenance of a horse, and will be the means whereby the superintendent can handle his outside duties with dispatch, thus giving him more time to devote to matters claiming his attention in the institution, and,

"WHEREAS, the said superintendent appeared before the board, asking that a plan be arranged to reimburse him for the times, when the automobile is operated in transacting his official business for the county, it is therefore,

"RESOLVED, that in consideration of the above the county commissioners will authorize the purchase of gasoline, oil and tires for the automobile whenever necessary."

Section 2523 G. C. provides:

"The county commissioners shall appoint a superintendent, who shall reside in some apartment of the infirmary or other building contiguous thereto, and shall receive such compensation for his services as they determine. The superintendent shall perform such duties as the commissioners > impose upon him, and be governed in all respects by their rules and regulations. He shall not be removed by them except for good and sufficient cause. The commissioners shall not appoint one of their own number superintendent, nor shall any commissioner be eligible to any other office in the infirmary or receive any compensation as physician, or otherwise, directly or indirectly wherein the appointing power is vested in such board."

Section 2524 G. C. provides for the giving of a bond by the superintendent appointed by the county commissioners under the above provision of section 2523 G. C., and sections 2525 to 2528, inclusive, of the General Code, prescribe the duties of said superintendent.

It will be observed that section 2523 G. C. provides that the superintendent of the infirmary shall receive such compensation for his services as the county commissioners may determine. No express provision is made for allowing said superintendent for traveling expenses, in addition to such compensation, in connection with the performance of his duties. While section 2528 G. C. provides that at the request of the superintendent, the county commissioners shall set apart from the poor fund a reserve fund not to exceed at any time two hundred dollars, which upon their order shall be paid to the superintendent and expended by him as needed for current supplies and expenses; that the superintendent shall keep an accurate account of such fund, and all expenditures therefrom shall be audited by the board, and that when and as often as such amount is entirely disbursed, on the order of the commissioners, the county auditor shall pay the superintendent the amount so appropriated, I do not think it can be said that the term "expenses" as used in said section includes traveling expenses incurred by said superintendent as above set forth.

The right of certain officials to be reimbursed for actual and necessary expenses incident to the use of automobiles owned by said officials and used by them in the performance of their official duties has been considered by me in several of my former opinions.

In opinion No. 154 of this department rendered to Hon. Charles L. Bermont, prosecuting attorney of Knox county, on March 20, 1915 (Opinions of the Attorney General, Vol. II, page 295) I held that county commissioners may make an allowance to the sheriff for actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in paying for repairs on his automobile and in keeping it in good condition, when said machine is used by him in the discharge of his official duties. This was held to be authorized under provision of section 2997 G. C., the latter part of which provides that > "In addition to the compensation and salary herein provided, the county commmissioners shall make allowances quarterly to each sheriff for * * * all expenses of maintaining horses and vehicles necessary to the proper administration of the duties of his office," it having been held in the case of State ex rel. Sartain as Sheriff of Franklin County, Ohio, v. Sayre, as Auditor, etc., that the word "vehicles" as used in the above statute includes automobiles. To the same effect see opinion No. 625 of the department rendered to Hon. Meeker Terwilliger, prosecuting attorney of Pickaway county, on July 20, 1915 (Opinions of the Attorney-General, Vol. II, page 1276).

In opinion No. 618 of the department, rendered to your bureau on July 17, 1915, I held that, under section 4744-1 G. C., 104 O. L. 142, which provides that in addition to the salary therein prescribed "the county board may also allow the county superintendent a sum not to exceed three hundred dollars per annum for traveling expenses and clerical help," said county board of education may, within the limitation prescribed in said section, allow a county superintendent an amount sufficient to cover the actual and necessary expense of maintaining and operating an automobile owned by him and used in the discharge of his duties, having due regard for the expense of such use in public and private business.

In opinion No. 750 of the department, rendered to Hon. A. L. Duff, prosecuting attorney of Ottawa county, on August 20, 1915, I held that under section 4734 G. C. (104 O. L. 137) which provides that "each member of the county board of education shall be paid his actual and necessary expenses incurred during his attendance upon any meeting of the board," a member of the county board of education is entitled to reimbursement for the actual and necessary expense incurred by him in operating an automobile owned by him while used as a means of conveyance in attending a meeting of said board.

In opinion No. 758 of the department, rendered to Hon. Clark Good, prosecuting attorney of Van Wert county, on August 24, 1915 (Opinions of the Attorney-General, Vol II, page 1592) it was held that a county surveyor, when necessary in the discharge of his official duty, may hire an automobile, and that the expense incident to such hire may be paid by the county commissioners under authority of section 2786 G. C., which provides in part that:

> "The county surveyor and each assistant and deputy shall be allowed his reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of his official duties."

It was observed in said opinion that this authority would not be changed by the going into effect of the Cass highway law for the reason that that law contains a provision covering the payment of expenses of the county surveyor when acting as county highway superintendent, said provision being found in section 138 of said law (7181 G. C., 106 O. L. 612) as follows:

> "* * * The county highway superintendent and his assistants, when on official business, shall be paid out of the county treasury their actual and necessary traveling expenses, including livery, board and lodging."

It will be observed that in each of the foregoing opinions the conclusion therein reached was based on the express provisions of the statutes authorizing the reimbursement of the official in question for the expenses incurred as therein set forth.

As has already been stated no express provision is made by statute for allowing the superintendent of the county infirmary for traveling expenses in addition to the compensation fixed by the county commissioners under authority of section 2523 G. C. supra.

I call your attention, however, to an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, found in the Annual Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1913, volume II, page 1074, in which it was held that the county commissioners, in fixing the compensation of the superintendent of the infirmary under the above provision of said section 2523 G. C., may provide for the allowance of expenses when incurred by that official in making investigations incident to the performance of his official duties.

I concur in this holding and I am of the opinion that said commissioners may, in fixing the compensation of the superintendent of the infirmary of said county under authority of section 2523 G. C., supra, take into consideration the expenses incurred by said superintendent in making necessary investigations incident to the performance of his duties and make proper allowance for the same.

Consideration should be given, however, to section 2522 G. C., which provides in part as follows:

> "The board of county commissioners shall make all contracts and purchases necessary for the county infirmary and prescribe such rules and regulations as it deems proper for its management and good government * * *."

I think it would not be contended that county commissioners may not purchase and maintain for the county infirmary an automobile under the authority conferred by section 2522 G. C., supra, when they find the same to be necessary.

Under the provisions of section 2523 G. C., supra, it is required that the superintendent of the county infirmary shall perform such duties as the county commissioners impose upon him. All of this class of duties of the superintendent of the county infirmary is subject to the determination of the county commissioners, both as to character and extent, and while the commissioners might impose upon the superintendent, pursuant to this section, duties which would necessitate his incurring expenses without making any provision for his reimbursement therefor, other than his regular compensation, it is clearly within the power of the commissioners in prescribing the duties of the superintendent of the county infirmary to require that for the purposes of conveyance and transportation in certain cases he shall use such vehicles and means of conveyance as are provided by the county commissioners for the county infirmary. That is to say, the commissioners may eliminate traveling expenses of the superintendent in the performance of his duties, in many cases at least, by providing a conveyance for the use of the infirmary and requiring the superintendent to use the same in the performance of his duties, and this the commissioners it seems have sought to do by the arrangements evidenced by the resolution submitted. So that there is not here involved any question of payment or reimbursement of expenses incurred or to be incurred by the superintendent of the county infirmary. The resolution evidences a finding of the county commissioners of the necessity of purchasing for the infirmary, not an automobile as it must be conceded they might do, but gasoline, oil and tires for an automobile only, and the purchase of such articles for the county infirmary when necessary and of utility is authorized by the provisions of section 2522 G. C., supra.

While, as above stated, the county commissioners may take that matter into consideration in fixing the compensation of the superintendent of the county infirmary and require of him that he furnish his own conveyance and means of transportation necessary to the performance of all the duties imposed upon him just as they might require the superintendent to furnish his own farming implements in the cultivation of the farm as required by them, such method of providing means of conveyance and transportation for the infirmary is not exclusive. If the county commissioners find it necessary to provide for the county infirmary an automobile or the use of the same, the authority therefor is clearly conferred by section 2522 G. C., supra. This authority to provide an automobile for the county infirmary does not, however, make it necessary in order to make such provision that an automobile should be purchased outright.

If the county commissioners find it necessary to purchase gasoline, oil and tires for an automobile in order to enable the superintendent of the county infirmary to perform the duties imposed upon him by the county commissioners, the purchase of these articles may certainly not be rendered illegal by the mere fact that the county owns no automobile if these articles are of utility to the infirmary, and may be made to effect any reasonable and necessary purpose for which they are designed.

I see no legal objection to the commissioners entering into a contract with the superintendent for the use of his automobile for the infirmary. It is recited in the resolution that the commissioners have been feeding a horse which they did not own in consideration of its use for the infirmary, and I can see no objection to this as a method of providing proper and necessary conveyance for the infirmary. I know of no statute, rule or policy of law which operates as an inhibition against the county commissioners hiring a horse or automobile or other conveyance from the superintendent of the county infirmary at a fair and reasonable price therefor. There is no relationship between them that would prevent them from dealing with each other at arm's length.

A contract for the use of an automobile for the county infirmary is not a contract for the purchase of property, or supplies for the use of the county within the meaning of sections 12910 and 12911 G. C. which make it a criminal offense for any person holding an office of trust or profit or as agent, servant or employe of such officer or board of such officers to be interested in a contract for the purchase of property, supplies or fire insurance for the use of the county, township, etc.

I am therefore of opinion that where the county commissioners find it necessary to provide an automobile for the county infirmary they may do so by purchasing oil, gasoline and tires for an automobile owned and furnished by the superintendent for the infirmary, and that the resolution above quoted is therefore authorized by law, although the same service might be required by the county commissioners to be provided by the superintendent of the county infirmary and taken into consideration in fixing his compensation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BANKS AND BANKING—STOCKHOLDERS OF STATE BANKS NOT AUTHORIZED TO CUMULATE THEIR VOTES IN ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.

Stockholders of state banks are not authorized to cumulate their votes in the election of directors.

(Following opinion of Attorney-General Hogan, vol. 1, 445, Annual Report of Attorney-General, 1914.)

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 18, 1916.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of November 15, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "Will you please render this department at your earliest convenience an opinion on the question of stockholders of state banks cumulating votes in the election of directors?
> "Section 8636 of the General Code, applicable in such matters for general corporations, authorizes cumulative voting. Your predecessor held that stockholders in state banks could not cumulate their votes."

I have carefully read the opinion of my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, found in volume I, at page 445, of the Annual Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1914, which is referred to in your letter, and I am in full accord with the reasoning and conclusion therein expressed.

I, therefore, advise you that stockholders of state banks may not cumulate their votes in the election of directors. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE, LANIER TOWNSHIP, RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, PREBLE COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 18, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Lanier township rural school district, Preble county, Ohio, in the sum of $5,000.00 to improve the public school property of said district, being ten bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education and other officers of Lanier township rural school district; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said district. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MOBILIZATION OF OHIO NATIONAL GUARD—BAND OF ENGINEER BATTALION ENTITLED TO PAYMENT OUT OF STATE FUNDS FROM TIME SECRETARY OF WAR DIRECTED THAT SAID BAND WAS NOT INCLUDED IN CALL OF PRESIDENT UNTIL MUSTERED OUT.

The band of the engineer battalion is entitled to payment out of state funds.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 20, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—I am in receipt of your letter of November 11, 1916, to the following effect:

"I am enclosing herewith, first a copy of the order of the secretary of war touching the mobilization of state troops; second a copy of the order issued by the adjutant general of Ohio in pursuance of the order of the secretary of war; third, copies of telegrams which passed between the office of the adjutant general of Ohio and the office of the secretary of war touching the status of regimental bands and the band of the engineer battalion. In pursuance of the order originally issued by the secretary of war the order of the adjutant general of Ohio was sent out and particular attention is called to the last paragraph, section 1 of this order. It was understood at the time by the adjutant general's department that regimental bands and the band of the engineer battalion were included in the order of the secretary of war. Learning subsequently from the war department that the band of the battalion of engineers was not included in the order because of the fact that there was lack of two companies to make up a regiment of engineers negotiations were opened with the state of Michigan to secure an arrangement whereby their two companies of engineers be combined with our battalion and thus make a regiment. Pending these negotiations, which were carried on for some time, the band of the battalion of engineers was held in camp. It was finally decided by the war department that the combination of the Ohio and Michigan organizations was not feasible and subsequently the band of the battalion of engineers was ordered home. The government of the United States has paid the members of the band for the time which elapsed between the sending of the two conflicting telegrams by the war department. The question which I now propose for your consideration is whether under the existing state of facts the adjutant general's department has authority to pay the members of the band of the engineer's battalion for the time they were on duty at the mobilization of the camp."

I have examined the enclosures submitted with your letter and find that on the 18th day of June, 1916, the president of the United States, through the authority vested in him by the constitution and laws called into service two brigades of three regiments each of infantry, one squadron of cavalry, one battalion of field artillery, one battalion of engineers, one battalion of signal corps, three field hospitals, two ambulance companies of the Ohio National Guard, the said call being addressed to you and signed by the secretary of war.

On June 19th by command of yourself the adjutant general of Ohio in pursuance of the commands of the president of the United States called the following: First infantry brigade, consisting of the second, third and sixth regiments; second infantry brigade, consisting of the fourth, fifth and eighth regiments; first squadron of cavalry, first battalion of field artillery, first battalion of engineers, field battalion signal corps, first, second and third hospitals, first and second ambulance companies.

On the same day, to wit, June 19, the adjutant general of Ohio telegraphed to the chief division of militia affairs for advice as to whether or not the call of the president included regimental bands and the band of the engineer battalion. On June 20 the chief of the militia bureau advised that regimental bands were recognized as organized militia by the war department and the band of the engineer battalion was included in the call.

On June 24 the chief of the militia bureau again telegraphed that the secretary of war had directed that the band of the engineer battalion was not included in the call.

On July 20 the adjutant general of Ohio telegraphed to the chief of the militia bureau that the band of Ohio engineers was mobilized in pursuance of the telegram of June 20 and was awaiting muster, and referred in said telegram to section 11 of the act of June 3 as authorizing a band for the engineer corps, advising that the band was and always had been a part of the Ohio engineer corps and under said section was entitled to be mustered. On July 21 a reply telegram referred solely to the telegram of June 24.

Upon receipt of your request for advice I took the matter up with Colonel E. S. Bryant and learned the following facts:

That at the time the telegram of June 24 was received from the chief of the militia bureau to the effect that the band of the enginer battalion was not included in the call, said band was then mobilized in Cleveland, Ohio, but had not yet proceeded to Camp Willis, and that through some inadvertence said telegram of June 24 was not transmitted to the commanding officer at Cleveland; consequently the band was brought to the mobilization camp at Camp Willis and held there until finally discharged.

While the reason for the order of June 19 by the adjutant general of Ohio calling for the organizations hereinbefore mentioned was because of the order of June 18 issued, by the secretary of war, nevertheless the adjutant general of Ohio did not change his order, which then included the band of the engineer battalion, after the receipt of the telegram of June 24. Said band remained under orders of the adjutant general of Ohio and having proceeded to Camp Willis pursuant to said order it would amount, as I view it, to an order by the adjutant general of Ohio requiring the band to proceed to Camp Willis.

Such being the fact, I am of the opinion that the members of the band of the engineer battalion should be paid out of the appropriation made to the Ohio national guard in the same manner and for the same amount as if a separate and distinct order had been issued by the adjutant general of Ohio requiring said band to report at Camp Willis.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—SECTION 2416 G. C. DOES NOT AUTHORIZE SALE OF COSTS AND FEES CERTIFIED BY CLERK OF COURTS AS DUE COUNTY UNDER SALARY ACT.

Section 2416 G. C. does not authorize sale of costs and fees certified by Clerk of courts as due the county under salary act.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 20, 1916.

HON. ROBERT C. PATTERSON, Prosecuting Attorney, Dayton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of November 16, 1916, to the following effect:

> "Under the statutory requirements, the clerk of courts annually sends to me for collection, a list of costs and fees due the county under the salary act, and I have made every effort within my power with my present force in the office to collect these amounts, but the results have been negligible.
> "My object in writing to you is to inquire whether or not, in your opinion, General Code section 2416, authorizing the county commissioners "'to compound or release, in whole or in part, any claim or judgment due the county, etc.,' is broad enough to authorize the sale of these costs and fees."

The section to which you refer, to wit, section 2416 of the General Code, provides as follows:

"The board may compound or release, in whole or in part, a debt, judgment, fine or assessment due the county, and for the use thereof, except where it, or either of its members, is personally interested. In such case the board shall enter upon its journal a statement of the facts in the case, and the reasons for such release or composition."

I am of the opinion that said section is not broad enough to authorize the sale of the costs and fees in question. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE, VILLAGE OF CLYDE, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 21, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.
GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of the village of Clyde, Ohio, in the amount of $5,000.00 for the purpose of extending and enlarging the municipal water works plant, being ten bonds of five hundred dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of council and other officers of the village of Clyde in connection with the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds, drawn in accordance with the form submitted and signed by the proper officers will, upon delivery, constitute valid and binding obligations of said village. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE, BATAVIA VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT—BOND FORM, INCORRECT RECITAL.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 22, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.
GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of Batavia village school district issued for the purpose of completing, furnishing and equipping the new school building in the said village, in the amount of $4,000.00, being twenty bonds of $200.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the board of education and other officers of the Batavia village school district, relative to the above bond issue and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of opinion that said bonds when properly drawn and executed will constitute valid and binding obligations of the said district.

The bond form submitted with the transcript contains an incorrect recital to which I am calling the attention of the prosecuting attorney. I suggest, therefore, that before the bonds are accepted by the treasurer of state, I be given an opportunity of further examining the same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—MONEY MUST BE IN TREASURY BEFORE IMPROVEMENT IS STARTED—BY PROVISION OF SECTION 1218 G. C. CERTIFICATE OF COUNTY AUDITOR MUST COVER ENTIRE AMOUNT ASSUMED BY COUNTY, INCLUDING SHARES OF COUNTY, TOWNSHIP AND ABUTTING PROPERTY OWNERS—SECTION 5660 G. C. APPLICABLE—BONDS MUST BE SOLD BEFORE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS CAN MAKE AGREEMENT.

The provisions of section 5660 G. C. apply to the agreement required of county commissioners by section 211 of the Cass highway law, section 1218 G. C., and the certificate of the county auditor must cover the entire amount assumed by the county, including the shares of the county, township or townships and abutting property owners. Where a bond issue is necessary to meet the shares of the county, township or townships and abutting property owners, it is necessray that such bonds be issued and sold before the county commissioners enter into the agreement required by section 1218 G. C., in order that the county auditor may be authorized to make in reference to such agreement the certificate required by section 5660 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 23, 1916.

HON. JOHN V. CAMPBELL, Prosecuting Attorney, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your inquiry under date of November 18, 1916, which inquiry reads as follows:

"Plans and specifications have been completed by the state highway department for the improvement of two main market roads leading into the city of Cincinnati, in co-operation with Hamilton county, namely, the Hamilton pike and the Springfield pike. Contracts for these improvements will shortly be let. The state will contribute something over one hundred thousand dollars toward the two improvements. After bids have been received it will then be incumbent upon the county commissioners of this county to enter into a written agreement to assume all cost and expense of said improvement over and above the amount to be paid by the state (Cass highway law section 211). The portion to be so paid by the county will be secured by a bond issue under section 216 of the Cass highway law, but the amount to which such bonds shall be issued can not be determined until bids have been received.

"Inasmuch as the opinions heretofore rendered by your department are not clear upon the question involved, we are writing to ask your opinion as to the application of section 5660 of the General Code to such a situation. This, in our opinion, presents two specific questions: One, do the provisions of General Code section 5660 apply to the agreement required of the county commissioners by section 211 of the Cass highway law? Second, If the commissioners adopt a resolution to proceed with the improvement in conjunction with the state, to issue bonds under section 216 of the Cass highway law to pay the county's portion of the expense of such improvement and providing for the levy and collection of taxes sufficient to pay interest and sinking fund charges, must the actual award of the contract be postponed until such bonds are sold and the auditor can certify that the money is in the course of collection under General Code section 5660?

"In this connection we call your attention to the opinion heretofore rendered by you on October 8, 1915, appearing at page 1932 of your 1915 Annual Report and the opinion rendered October 13, 1915, appearing at page 1959, of your report, with a special reference to pages 1962 and 1963. By the first of these it would seem clear that you were of the opinion that a mere certificate that the county's portion will be provided for by a bond issue is insufficient while if the reasoning of the latter be applied, it would seem sufficient if the bonds had been duly authorized although not in fact sold. This latter opinion would also seem to be in harmony with the answer to the fifth question submitted by our letter of June 8, 1916, as such answer is given in your opinion No. 1797, under date of July 18, 1916. We also call your attention to the provisions of section 224, providing that 'no procedure for the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of roads as provided for in other acts of the general assembly shall apply to main market roads.'

"We are personally of the opinion that the state highway commissioner could let these contracts prior to the sale of bonds to pay the county's portion provided such bonds were in fact duly authorized, but inasmuch as the legality of the contract must eventually be approved by you, we feel that proper foresight requires the present submission of this question to you."

I note that in the first paragraph of your communication you indicate the order of procedure to be the taking of bids, the entering into a contract between the county commissioners and the state, as provided by section 1218 G. C., by the terms of which the county will assume in the first instance that part of the cost and expense of the improvement over and above the amount to be paid by the state and finally the issuing of bonds by the county. You also observe that the amount to which bonds shall be issued cannot be determined until bids have been received. As will be later indicated, my view of the proper order of procedure, as well as the general practice which has been followed in the state under these stautes, do not coincide with the views expressed by you, and it is further my opinion that from the very necessity of things bonds must be issued before the contract provided for by section 1218 G. C. can be made between the county and the state, and should, as a matter of good practice, be issued before the state highway commissioner advertises for bids.

Upon the first question submitted by you this department held in effect, in opinion No. 1774, rendered to Hon. G. A. Starn, prosecuting attorney of Wayne county, on July 11, 1916, that the provisions of section 5660 G. C. apply to the agreement required of the county commissioners by section 211 of the Cass highway law, section 1218 G. C. While the opinion rendered to Mr. Starn related in terms to the deductions to be made from available funds by the county auditor, upon the making of a certificate under section 5660 G. C., yet the opinion assumes that some certificate must be made by the county auditor at the time the county commissioners make the agreement provided for by section 1218 G. C. In other words, the opinion to Mr. Starn rests upon the assumption that a certificate must be made by the county auditor, under the provisions of section 5660 G. C., at the time the county commissioners make their written agreement to assume in the first instance that part of the cost and expense of the improvement over and above the amount to be paid by the state. The opinion deals with the question of whether the certificate must relate only to the county's share or whether it must relate not only to the county's share, but also to the shares of the interested township or townships and the abutting property owners. The conclusion expressed is that the certificate must relate to the entire amount covered by the agreement of the county commissioners, including the shares of the county, township or townships and property owners. While in the opinion to Mr. Starn there is found no discussion of the cases relating to the application of section 5660 G. C., yet I was not unmindful, at the time the opinion was rendered, of the holding in a number of cases to which I will now refer. In considering these cases I also had in view the fact that they had been well established and uniformly adhered to, both by this department and by the state highway department, the practice of requiring a certificate to be made by the auditor, under the provisions of section 5660 G. C., covering the shares of the county, township or townships and property owners in connection with the agreement required by section 1218 G. C., and earlier sections containing the same provisions, and as a matter of sound public policy I did not think this practice ought to be disturbed unless it could be clearly determined from the statutes and decisions of the courts that a change was required and a different procedure demanded.

In the case of the city of Cincinnati v. Holmes, administrator, et al, 56 O. S., 104, the court laid down the principle that where the general provisions of a statute, and those of a later one on the same subject are incompatible, the provisions of the latter statute must be read as an exception to the provisions of the earlier statute.

Applying this principle to the facts of that case, the court held that the provisions of section 2702 R. S., known as the Burns law, did not apply to the act passed May 4, 1891, 88 O. L., 527, authorizing villages of a certain class to make certain street improvements, and defray the cost and expense thereof by issuing bonds and levying taxes and assessments as therein provided, and that therefore a contract made with a village for the performance of such work, before all the money was in the treasury, was not for said reason void. This decision rests upon the conclusion of the court that the act in 88 O. L., 527, was incompatible with the provisions of the Burns law. I am unable to find in the statutes now under consideration any incompatibility with the provisions of section 5660 G. C. which would warrant the application of the principle supporting the decision in the case of city of Cincinnati v. Holmes, administrator, supra, especially as in a later case the supreme court of Ohio indicated that it was apprehensive that the decision in question might be given a force and effect not intended by the court and sought to limit the same.

In the case of Comstock, et al, v. village of Nelsonville, 61 O. S., 288, the court held that section 2702 R. S. was not applicable to so much of the cost and expense of a street improvement as is to be paid by an assessment on the property bounding and abutting on such improvement or adjacent thereto. In this case, in discussing the case of Cincinnati v. Holmes, supra, the court used the following language:

> "It was not held in that case (Cincinnati v. Holmes), as argued by counsel for defendant in error, that the Burns law does not apply to any part of the cost and expense of street improvements; but the holding was that the special acts under which the improvements were made in that case, and which had been previously held constitutional by this court, were to be read as an exception to the Burns law and that for that reason alone the statute did not apply in that case. The Burns law being one of a general nature, it is doubtful whether exceptions of a local nature can be constitutionally made thereto."

If contracts for the class of improvements now under consideration were let by the county, there might be a reason for the application of the decision in the case of Comstock v. Nelsonville to so much of the cost of the work as is assessable upon abutting real estate, but contracts for work of this class are let by the state and there is nothing in the decision in question which requires its application to the contract between the state and the county by the terms of which the county assumes in the first instance that part of the cost and expense of the improvement over and above the amount to be paid by the state.

In the case of Mt. Vernon v. State, 71 O. S., 428, the statute under consideration expressly provided that the Burns law should not apply to contracts made thereunder. In so far as the case of Emmert v. Elyria, 74 O. S., 185, is concerned, the argument of the opinion is directed solely to the law relating to municipalities, the court concluding its argument with the observation that, having found certain sections of the statutes inapplicable, their interpretation was not necessary.

In the case of Wood v. Village of Pleasant Ridge, 12 O. C. C., 177, the court expressed the view that section 2702 R. S., did not apply where the whole cost of the improvement was to be assessed upon the abutting lands under the statutes then in force, but the court decided the case upon other grounds. Even if this were not true, the same observation made above as to the case of Comstock v. Nelsonville would be applicable as to this case and also as to the case of Chittenden v. Columbus, 1 O. N. P. (n. s.) 420.

Opinion No. 900 of this department, rendered by me on October 8, 1915, and appearing at page 1932 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for that year, which opinion is referred to by you, is indicative of the uniform practice of this department, which has been to refuse approval to all agreements made by county commissioners and not bearing the certificate of the county auditor required by section 5660 G. C. In so far as opinion No. 914, rendered to Hon. Robert C. Patterson, prosecuting attorney of Montgomery county, on October 12, 1915, and found at page 1959 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for that year, which opinion is also referred to by you, is concerned, the statement that bonds must at least have been duly authorized is more in the nature of an argument than a conclusion, but without reference to what may be regarded as the scope and effect of that opinion, discussing an entirely different statutory proceeding, I am of the opinion that its reasoning could not be applied in this instance. The view expressed in answering the fifth question submitted by you in your letter of June 8, 1916, which letter was answered in opinion No. 1797, rendered to you on July 18, 1916, was based upon the decision of the court in the case of State ex rel v. Amlin, 1 N. P. (n. s.) 517, affirmed by the supreme court without report in 74 O. S., 447. The provision of section 224 of the Cass highway law, section 1230-1 G. C., that "no procedure for the construction, improvement and repair of roads, as provided for in any other acts of the general assembly, shall apply to main market roads" must be read in connection with the provision of section 226 of that act, section 1231 G. C., that "county commissioners, township trustees and village councils shall have the same power and authority to co-operate in the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of main market roads as is granted to them by this act in the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of inter-county highways; and in case the commissioners of any county, the trustees of any township and the council of any village, or of any such authorities, determine to co-operate in the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of any main market road, the procedure shall be the same as in the case of co-operation by such authorities in the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of inter-county highways, as provided in this act." It is evident from a consideration of both of the above provisions that the first provision referred to is not applicable where county commissioners co-operate in the improvement of a main market road.

In view of the foregoing it is my opinion, in answer to your first question, that the provisions of section 5660 G. C. apply to the agreement required of the county commissioners by section 211 of the Cass highway law, section 1218 G. C., and that the certificate of the county auditor must cover the entire amount assumed by the county, including the shares of the county, township or townships, and abutting property owners.

In answer to your second question, it is my opinion that under the provisions of section 1218 G. C., no contract may be let by the state highway commissioner until the agreement on the part of the county commissioners is on file in the office of the state highway commissioner, with the approval of the attorney-general endorsed thereon, as to its form and legality. Inasmuch as the county auditor must, as to this agreement, make the certificate required by section 5660 G. C. it follows that the county commissioners may not enter into such agreement until the bonds are sold and the county auditor authorized to make his certificate. While section 216 of the Cass highway law, section 1223 G. C., authorizes a bond issue in an amount necessary to pay the respective shares of the county, township or townships and the land specially assessed, it is my view that such bonds may, and indeed ordinarily should, be issued in an amount necessary to pay the county's, township's and property owners' share of the estimated cost and expense. In other words, a bond issue of this class may be based upon the estimated cost rather than upon the actual cost, as determined by the bids. After the preliminary proceedings have been disposed of, the ordinary course of procedure will be for the county to issue bonds for the county's, township's and property owners' share of the estimated cost and expense and after these bonds have been sold, to enter into the agreement with the state provided for by section 1218 G. C. In connection with the making of this agreement the county auditor will make his certificate under section 5660 G. C. The agreement will then be filed in the office of the state highway commissioner, with the approval of the attorney-general endorsed thereon as to its form and legality, and the state highway commissioner will then be in a position to advertise for bids and let the contract for the work. Should the state highway commissioner advertise for bids before the agreement on the part of the commissioners is filed in his office, with the approval of the attorney-general endorsed thereon, and even should the day of letting arrive before such agreement is made and filed, and should the bids be opened and the lowest and best bidder determined, yet the state highway commissioner would be without authority to award the contract to such lowest and best bidder until such time as the agreement by the county commissioners, bearing the approval of the attorney-general, should be filed in his office.

I am enclosing for your information a copy of the opinion rendered to Mr. Starn, and referred to above, and trust that the same, read in connection with this opinion, will furnish a complete answer to your questions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

FEES—MARSHALS—CHIEFS OF POLICE—SECTIONS 4387 AND 4534 G. C. CONSTRUED—COLLECTIONS UNDER SECTION 4581 G. C.—THREE CLASSES OF CASES—FEES OF WITNESSES AND JURORS UNDER FISH AND GAME LAWS, SECTION 1387 G. C.—OFFICERS WHO SHOULD SERVE PROCESSES ISSUING FROM VARIOUS POLICE COURTS—FEES IN SUCH CASES.

1 and 2. Under sections 4387 and 4534 G. C., marshals and chiefs of police are entitled to the same fees as are provided for sheriffs and constables for similar services, in so far as the schedule of fees for such officers are the same. No fee is chargeable for marshals and chiefs of police for the services for which the schedules of fees for sheriffs and constables differ.

3. In cases in which police courts act as examining magistrates only, the fees of the police judge are the same as the fees of justices of the peace when acting as examining magistrates.

In cases in which the police court has final jurisdiction concurrent with the probate court, and of which justices of the peace have no final jurisdiction, the fees chargeable in the police court are the same as those provided for the probate court.

In cases in which the police court, the probate court and justices of the peace each have final jurisdiction, the fees chargeable in the police court are the same as those chargeable in justices courts and probate courts, in so far as such fees are in accord, but to the extent that the fees provided for such courts are different for particular services, no fees are chargeable in the police court for such services.

4. In prosecutions under the fish and game laws, witnesses and jurors are entitled to the same fees as are provided for criminal cases in the common pleas court.

5. In proceedings before the police judges, mayors and judges of criminal courts, the process should be issued to the chief of police or other police officer or marshal of the corporation. For the fees of the chief of police and marshal, see syllabus 1 and 2.

6. The fees of other police officer serving process would be the same as the fees of a sheriff (sections 4581 and 13436 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 23, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of September 16, 1916, you submitted five inquires to me, which I shall consider in the order submitted:

Your first inquiry is as follows:

"(1) To what fees is a marshal entitled under the provisions of section 4387 G. C.?"

Your second inquiry is as follows:

"(2) To what fees is a chief of police in cities having no police court entitled under the provisions of section 4534 G. C.?"

Your first and second questions are so similar that a determination of the one determines the other.

Section 4387 G. C. referred to in your first inquiry fixing the fees of the marshal provides as follows:

"In the discharge of his proper duties, he shall have like powers, be subject to like responsibilities and shall receive the same fees as sheriffs and constables in similar cases, for services actually performed by himself or his deputies and such additional compensation as the council prescribes. In no case shall he receive any fees or compensation for services rendered by any watchman or any other officer, nor shall he receive for guarding, safekeeping or conducting into the mayor's or police court any person arrested by himself or deputies or by any other officer a greater compensation than twenty cents."

Section 4534 G. C., referred to in your second inquiry fixing the fees of the chief of police, provides as follows:

"In felonies, and other criminal proceedings not herein provided for, such mayor shall have jurisdiction and power, throughout the county, concurrent with justices of the peace. The chief of police shall execute and return all writs and processes to him directed by the mayor, and shall by himself or deputy attend on the sittings of such court, to execute the orders and process thereof and to preserve order therein, and his jurisdiction and that of the deputies in the execution of such writs and process, and in criminal cases, and in cases of violations of ordinances of the corporation, shall be co-extensive with the county, and in civil cases shall be co-extensive with the jurisdiction of the mayor therein. The fees of the mayor in all cases, excepting those arising out of violation of ordinances, shall be the same as those allowed justices of the peace for similar services and the fees of the chief of police or his deputies in all cases, excepting those arising out of violations of ordinances shall be the same as those allowed sheriffs and constables in similar cases."

The fees of the marshal are "the same fees as sheriffs and constables in similar cases." And the fees of the chief of police "the same as those allowed sheriffs and constables in similar cases."

It is to be noted at the outset that in the class of cases enumerated in section 13423 G. C., and of which justices of the peace, police judges and mayors are given final jurisdiction, the fees of the chief of police and marshal, for pursuing and arresting a defendant and in subpoenaing witnesses, are the same as the fees of the sheriff for similar services in the common pleas court.

Section 13436 G. C. provides:

> "Sec. 13436. In pursuing or arresting a defendant and in subpoenaing the witnesses in such prosecutions, the constable, chief of police, marshal or other court officer shall have like jurisdiction and power as the sheriff in criminal cases in the common pleas court, and shall receive like fees therefor."

There still remains for determination the fees chargeable for the chief of police and marshal in other misdemeanor cases of which the police courts and mayors have final jurisdiction, and in felony cases wherein said courts exercise jurisdiction only as examining magistrates. The general fee schedule for sheriffs is provided in section 2845 G. C., and for constables in section 3347 G. C.

An examination of the respective schedule discloses that for the most part the fees provided for constables and sheriffs for particular services are different. This difference in the fees provided does not seem to be referable, in the main, to apparent difference in the character of services of the respective officers, nor to any particular classification of cases, but the schedule seemed to have been determined entirely independently of each other.

In an opinion rendered to your bureau under date of August 30, 1911, by my predecessor, Honorable T. S. Hogan (Annual Report of the Attorney-General for 1911, vol. 1, page 327), it was held as follows:

> "By reason of all the foregoing I am of the opinion that in cases other than those arising out of violations of ordinances, the fees of a constable should be taxed in favor of the chief of police under section 4534, General Code, as amended, unless section 3347, which prescribes the fees of a constable, fails to provide a fee for the specific service performed by the chief of police; in which case the chief is entitled to the fee provided for the sheriff by section 2845 as amended."

However, in the case of State ex rel. Ribble, Prosecuting Attorney v. Kleinhoffer, decided by the supreme court, May 4, 1915, 92 O. S. 163, the supreme court held that if in section 10076 G. C., which provided for the fees allowed a humane officer, the pronoun "they," as used therein—

> "could be held to officers other than humane officers—for example, to a sheriff or constable—it would be impossible to determine to which it does refer. And it is important and necessary that this be known, for the fees of a sheriff and those of a constable, as fixed by sections 2845 and 3347, respectively, are different. It is well settled that the compensation of a public officer must be fixed by statute. The legislature has failed to provide for fees for services rendered by a humane officer and it is not the province of the court to make laws. We conclude, then, that as there is no statutory provision for the allowance of fees in the case under consideration, the payment made by the county was unauthorized."

It seems, therefore, that the supreme court has determined that wherever an officer is given the same fees as the sheriff and constable in similar cases, in so far as the fees of the sheriff and constable are different, it is impossible to determine which schedule of fees is to apply, and there has been no actual fixing of fees by the legislature; consequently none are chargeable.

In so far as the fees provided for sheriffs and constables are the same for similar services, the provision is definite and the fee so provided is chargeable for chiefs of police and marshals in similar cases.

Answering your first and second questions, therefore, I am of the opinion that in so far as the fees provided for sheriffs and constables for particular services are the same, such fees are also the measure of the compensation for chiefs of police and marshals for the same character of services; but in so far as the fees provided for sheriffs and constables for particular services are different, it is impossible to determine which of the provisions was intended as the measure of compensation for chiefs of police and marshals, and therefore no definite provision has been made and no fees are chargeable for such services.

Your third question is as follows:

> "(3) What fees may be collected under the provisions of section 4581 G. C.?"

Section 4581 G. C. is found in the chapter relative to police courts. Section 4579 G. C. provides for the fees to be received by jurors in said police courts, and section 4580 G. C. provides for witness fees to be allowed in such courts.

Section 4581 G. C. provides as follows:

> "Sec. 4581. Other fees in the police court shall be the same in state cases as are allowed in the probate court, or before justices of the peace, in like cases, and in cases for violation of ordinances such fees as the council, by ordinance, prescribes, not exceeding the fees for like services in state cases."

The jurisdiction of police courts embraces cases that may be classified in two groups:

1. Those in which the court acts as an examining magistrate; and
2. Those in which the court exercises final jurisdiction.

Section 4577 G. C. provides:

> "Sec. 4577. The police court shall have jurisdiction of, and to hear, finally determine, and to impose the prescribed penalty for, any offense under any ordinance of the city, and of any misdemeanor committed within the limits of the city, or within four miles thereof. The jurisdiction of such court to make inquiry in criminal cases shall be the same as that of a justice of the peace. Cases in which the accused is entitled to a jury trial, shall be so tried, unless a jury be waived."

Justices of the peace are also vested with general jurisdiction as examining magistrates, and in certain designated misdemeanors justices of the peace are given final jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of justices of the peace as examining magistrates is conferred by section 13511 G. C. Said section provides:

> "Sec. 13511. When the accused is brought before the magistrate and there is no plea of guilty he shall inquire into the complaint in the presence of such accused. If it appear that an offense has been committed and that there is probable cause to believe the accused guilty, he shall order him to enter into a recognizance, with good and sufficient surety, in such amount as he deems reasonable, for his appearance at the proper time and before the proper court; otherwise he shall discharge him from custody. If the offense charged is a misdemeanor and the accused, in a writing subscribed by him and filed before or during the examination, waive a jury and submit to be tried by the magistrate, he may render final judgment."

I do not find that the probate court has been vested with any general jurisdiction as an examining magistrate, but is given final jurisdiction of misdemeanors concurrent with the court of common pleas.

Therefore, in cases in which the police court acts only as an examining magistrate, under section 4577, the fees which will be allowable are the same as the fees provided in the fee schedule applicable to proceedings before justices of the peace in such cases.

Section 1746 G. C. provides in part:

"Sec. 1746. Except as otherwise provided, justices of the peace, for the services named, when rendered, may receive the following fees:" (then follows a schedule of fees.)

The foregoing schedule then would determine the fees chargeable for the police court in cases in which that court acts only as an examining magistrate.

Coming then to a consideration of the question of fees accruing in the police court in those state cases in which final jurisdiction is conferred, it is to be noted that while this jurisdiction of the police court extends to a larger class of cases than does the final jurisdiction of justices of the peace, it is identical with that of the probate court, save as to territorial limitations applicable to police courts.

The final jurisdiction with which justices of the peace are vested is conferred by section 13423 G. C. and a few others, such as section 1464 G. C., conferring final jurisdiction in cases arising under the fish and game laws, and section 871-52b G. C. (106 O. L. 327), conferring final jurisdiction in cases arising under the chapter relating to the regulation of the exhibition of motion pictures.

Section 13434 G. C., supra, as amended 103 O. L. 539, confers final jurisdiction on justices of the peace, police judges and mayors in fifteen classes of cases therein enumerated.

While justices of the peace have final jurisdiction concurrent with police judges and mayors in the designated cases above noted, yet the police court and probate court are vested with final jurisdiction as to all misdemeanors generally.

It is, then, but logical to conclude that as to these remaining cases, that is, all those misdemeanors of which the probate court has concurrent final jurisdiction with the police court and of which justices of the peace have not such jurisdiction, the fees taxable in the police court will be the same as those provided for such cases in the probate court.

The criminal jurisdiction of the probate court is conferred by section 13424 G. C., which provides:

"Sec. 13424. The probate court shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the court of common pleas in all misdemeanors and all proceedings to prevent crime."

The criminal jurisdiction of the common pleas court is provided in section 13425 G. C., which provides in part:

"Sec. 13425. The court of common pleas shall have original jurisdiction of all crimes and offenses, except in cases of minor offenses, the exclusive jurisdiction of which is vested in justices of the peace or in other courts inferior to the common pleas. * * * .'

I do not find that exclusive jurisdiction of particular misdemeanors has been conferred upon any court inferior to the common pleas court, but rather original and final jurisdiction has been conferred in certain criminal cases on the inferior courts.

The fees taxable in criminal cases in the probate court are the same as the fees taxable for similar services by the clerk of the common pleas court.

Section 1603 G. C. provides:

"Sec. 1603. For other services for which compensation is not otherwise provided by law, the probate judge shall be allowed the same fees as are allowed the clerk of the court of common pleas for similar services."

The fees to be charged by the clerk of court are provided by sections 2900 and 2901 G. C., which, because of their length, are not quoted.

Therefore, the schedule of fees provided in sections 2900 and 2901 G. C. determine the fees chargeable in the police court, for similar services, in all cases of which the police court has final jurisdiction concurrent with the probate court, and of which justices of the peace have not such final jurisdiction.

There still remains a third class of cases, namely, those specially designated cases above noted, in which concurrent jurisdiction is vested in all three of said courts. In this class of cases the schedule of fees applicable to probate courts and justices of the peace, in so far as they are in accord, for particular services, will be applicable and taxable also in the police court; but in so far as there is a conflict in said schedule of fees, under the ruling of the supreme court in the case of State ex rel. Ribble & Co. v. Kleinhoffer, supra, it is impossible to determine which of the conflicting provisions was intended to prevail, and therefore I hold that no fee has been determined by the legislature and none is chargeable.

Answering your third question specifically, I advise:

1. In those cases in which the police court exercises jurisdiction only as an examining magistrate, the schedule of fees provided for justices of the peace when acting as examining magistrates will be taxable in the police court for similar services.

2. In that class of cases in which the police court exercises final jurisdiction in state cases, concurrent with the probate court, and in which justices of the peace are not vested with such final jurisdiction, the schedule of fees provided for the probate court (the same fees as are chargeable by the clerk of court for similar services) will prevail in the police court for the same character of services.

3. In the remaining misdemeanor cases in which all three of said courts exercise final jurisdiction, the fees provided for particular services in the justices court and in the probate court, in so far as they are in accord, will prevail also in the police court, but in so far as such schedules of fees for similar services differ, it is impossible to determine which was intended to apply in the police court, and therefore no fee is chargeable for such services in the police court.

Your fourth question is as follows:

"4. To what fees are witnesses and jurors entitled under the fish and game laws, sections 1387 et seq.?"

An examination of the fish and game laws will disclose that there is no provision made therein for either witnesses' or jurors' fees.

Section 13438 G. C. provides:

> "Sec. 13438. In such prosecutions the jurors and the witnesses shall be entitled to like mileage and fees as in criminal cases in the court of common pleas."

In the foregoing section I am of the opinion that the term "such prosecutions" is to be construed as referring to all those cases comprehended by the special legislation conferring final jurisdiction on justices of the peace, police judges and mayors, and providing a distinct method of procedure to be pursued.

The substance of the provisions of section 13438 G. C., in fact of the whole chapter entitled "Justices of the Peace, Police Judges and Mayors (sections 13423 et seq. G. C.), was originally enacted as a part of section 3718a, Revised Statutes, and provided the procedure to be followed in all the classes of cases enumerated in the section, without regard to whether the case was triable to a court or to a jury.

In the codification of 1910, the provisions of section 3718a R. S. were subdivided into a number of sections and the substance of the section conferring jurisdiction in the cases therein enumerated, as well as certain later enactments conferring similar jurisdiction in other cases, was codified as section 13423 G. C., while the provisions relative to the procedure in such cases now appear in the separate chapter entitled "Justices of the Peace, Police Judges and Mayors."

The fact that the first section of this chapter, section 13432 G. C., relates to prosecutions in which a jury trial is authorized, may tend to confuse somewhat as to the meaning, in later sections, of the language "in such prosecutions," but there is no apparent legislative purpose in the codification to restrict the application of these provisions, and I am of the opinion that the provisions found in this chapter are applicable to all that class of cases which were originally comprehended in this special scheme of summary procedure, and that under the codification they are to have general application to all such cases as well as certain later enactments conferring jurisdiction on said lower courts by the same form of enactment, such as sections 1464 G. C. and 871-52b G. C. (106 O. L. 327), which respectively confer final jurisdiction on said courts in fish and game cases and cases arising under the laws providing censorship for motion picture films.

I, therefore, hold, in answer to your fourth question, that jurors and witnesses, in cases under the fish and game laws, are entitled to the same fees as are provided for criminal cases in the common pleas court.

Your fifth question is as follows:

> "(5) What officer should serve the process issuing from the various police courts and to what fees is he entitled? (See sections 4567 et seq. G. C., sections 14693 et seq. G. C. and O. L. vol. 106, p. 112.)

The sections of the statutes to which you refer pertain to police courts and criminal courts in the various cities.

Section 13500 G. C., which is a general statute, provides in part as follows:

> "Sec. 13500. The warrant shall be directed to the sheriff or to any constable of the county, or, when it is issued by an officer of a municipal corporation, to the marshal or other police officer thereof * * * ."

The phrase "an officer of a municipal corporation" refers to police judges, mayors and judges of criminal courts, and the process issued by them should be directed to the marshal or other police officer of the municipal corporation.

I am of the opinion that said section authorizes the issuance of warrants to patrolmen and that section 4581 G. C. would authorize taxing in their favor the same fees as are authorized for similar services in state cases in the probate court.

In an opinion rendered by my predecessor, Honorable T. S. Hogan, on April 4, 1914, to your bureau (Annual Report of the Attorney-General of that year, vol. 1, p. 449) it was held:

> "As regards service in the police court, which as aforesaid is authorized by section 13500 General Code, I am of the opinion that this statute contemplates that the warrant be issued to the officer who is to serve the same, and if the same is issued to the chief of police he must himself perform the service, and when so doing would be entitled to have taxed in his name the fees for such services. When, however, it is desired to have a patrolman execute such warrant, the warrant must be issued directly to that official, in which case, the patrolman would be entitled to receive and retain the fees allowed for such service under section 4581, General Code."

I have heretofore advised as to the fees chargeable for marshals and chiefs of police in the answers to your first and second questions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, LEASES OF CANAL AND RESERVOIR LANDS TO LON FISHER, ARTHUR STUTZ AND JOHN D. DOLEY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 24, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 22, 1916, transmitting to me for examination the following leases of canal and reservoir lands:

	"Valuation.
"Lon Fisher, land at Indian Lake	$250.00
"Arthur Stutz, land at Indian Lake	700.00
"John D. Doley, part of the abandoned Ohio canal in Scioto county	221.33"

I find these leases to be in regular form and am therefore returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—LIEN OF STATE FOR FRANCHISE OR EXCISE TAXES WHEN SAME IS INFERIOR TO LIEN OF A MORTGAGE—TWO SPECIAL KINDS—SECTION 5506 G. C. CONSTRUED.

The lien of the state for franchise or excise taxes, created by section 5506 G. C. is inferior to the lien of a mortgage given by the grantor of the corporation or utility or by some other mortgagor or lienor in the chain of title prior to the acquisition of the property by the corporation or utility, and inferior also to that of a purchase money mortgage given by the corporation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 24, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You have asked me to advise you upon the following question:

> "Is the lien of the state for franchise or excise taxes prior to that of a mortgage given by the grantor of the corporation or utility or by some other mortgagor or lienor in the chain of title prior to the acquisition of the property by the corporation or utility?"

This question involves an interpretation and application of section 5506 of the General Code, which provides in part as follows:

> "The fees, taxes and penalties, required to be paid by this act, shall be the first and best lien on all property of the public utility or corporation. * * *"

General statements will be found in all the books and encyclopedias to the effect that it is within the power of the state to give to its lien for taxes absolute priority; and there are certain decisions which will hereafter be cited, the apparent purport of which is to extend this power so far as to enable the legislature to make a secondary tax lien prior to an encumbrance placed upon the property subject thereto before the title thereto was acquired by the person primarily liable for the tax. Yet on all hands it is agreed that legislation for which this effect is claimed will be strictly construed, being in derogation of the rights of bona fide encumbrances. See Central Trust Co. v. Third Avenue Railroad Company, 186 Fed. 291; Bibbins v. Clark & Co., 90 Iowa 230.

There can be no ambiguity as to the purport of the phrase "first and best" as found in section 5506. It is very clear that with respect to the property or interests to which the lien is to attach the general assembly intended its priority to be absolutely paramount. So far as the expression of the legislative intent embodied in section 5506 is concerned, the only doubt arises with respect to the meaning of the phrase "all property of the public utility or corporation." Is the word "property" used to designate the entire corpus of any estate, chattel, investment or fund, the primary right to which the corporation may ever acquire, or is it limited in its application to the extent of the interest primarily acquired by the corporation? Some evidence, at least, that the word now under examination is used in the narrower sense above indicated is found in the fact that particular kinds of property are not pointed out thereby. It is not expressly recited that the taxes and penalties shall be the first and best lien on all "real estate" of the corporation nor upon all "personal property" thereof. If it had been we might have turned to the definitive sections found in the general property taxation code, which very clearly indicate that such terms are used to designate the corpus of the thing subject to taxation and lien. But the mere word "property" is not used in this sense in the general property tax statutes. The most similar use of this word which appears in the General Code is that found in section 5331 G. C. as amended 103 O. L. 363, which provides in part that:

> "Such (inheritance) taxes shall become due and payable immediately upon the death of the decedent and shall at once become a lien upon the property, and be and remain a lien until paid."

The phrase "and be and remain a lien until paid" has frequently been held to be synonymous with the phrase "first and best lien." That is to say, such a phrase as this naturally imports that the lien created by the statute shall have priority over all other liens. Eaton's Appeal, 83 Pa. St., 152. G. C. section 5671, creating the state's lien for taxes levied on real estate, is in this form, and has been given this interpretation, when read in connection with section 5724. Trust Co. v. Root, 72 O. S. 535. Yet under a similar provision of the New York inheritance tax law it was held in Kitching v. Shear, 26 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 436, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 464, that:

> "This lien, however, was not paramount to the lien of the mortgage, which was in existence prior to the decease of the testatrix. So far as the mortgagee is concerned, his rights could not well be impaired by subsequent devolutions of the title and the creation of liens associated therewith. The tax in question is not to be assimilated with the general taxes which are imposed by public authority, and which attach to property affected thereby as a whole, and without discrimination with respect to particular estates or interests therein. The right of the state in such cases is always paramount. It is not concerned with the particular estates or liens which affect the property, but, dealing with it as a whole, imposes the tax, leaving it to the parties interested in the property to secure, as between themselves, such an adjustment of the burden as the circumstances of the case may seem to require. But in the case of the transfer tax a different condition exists. It is imposed upon the right of succession, and is levied upon successors in respect to the shares to which they succeed. In re Hoffman, 143 N. Y. 327, 331, 38 N. E. 311. In no sense, then, can the tax be deemed to affect the interest of one who had a lien upon the property which was paramount to the ownership of the testatrix, and therefore superior to any estate or interest which the testatrix might assume to create in the property."

The franchise and excise taxes in question are similar in a way to inheritance taxes. Both are privilege taxes, not property taxes. In both cases the possibility that encumbered property will ever become surety for a tax, the primary liability for which is in personam, is contingent and speculative. The mortgagee could not be presumed to contemplate that the real estate, for example, upon which he was acquiring a lien would ever pass to a collateral relative by will or intestacy, though it is always within the bounds of possibility that it may so pass; so also the mortgagee of real estate would not be bound to take cognizance of the possibility that the land on which he had acquired an encumbrance might become the property of a corporation or a public utility.

In so far as the inheritance tax affords a fair analogy it tends to establish the conclusion that the word "property" as used in section 5506 imports the restricted meaning above set forth. It would seem that the question which you have raised is similar to one that might possibly arise under the law imposing a special tax on the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors. If the county treasurer is unable to collect such a tax from a person who has neglected to pay it, but is engaged in the business, the county auditor may, under favor of section 6080 G. C. place the amount thereof upon the tax duplicate of the county against the real estate in which the traffic is carried on, and it may be collected as other taxes and becomes by virtue of section 6072 G. C. (last amended 104 O. L. 166) "a lien upon the real property on and in which such business is conducted." It has been held in several cases that this lien is superior to the lien of any mortgage given by the owner of the premises on which the business is conducted regardless of the date thereof. See Trust Co. v. Stich, 71 O. S. 459; Loan Co. v. Hanson, 5 N. P., 162. However, in none of these cases was the exact question now under consideration, as it might have arisen under the liquor laws, concerned. Thus in Trust Co. v. Stich it appeared that the business on account of which the tax was assessed was carried on by the owner of the premises who had given the mortgage and created the lien, though the morgage was recorded prior to the assessment of the tax and the day as of which it became a lien. It is acknowledged by the supreme court, in referring with approval to the Hanson case, supra, that:

> "The question whether a mortgage might be made under such circumstances, that it would be held in equity to be superior to the subsequent lien for a Dow tax is argued. If such a defense could, under any circumstances, be maintained in equity, the burden would be upon the party claiming it to plead and prove the facts relied upon to sustain it. But that question does not arise in this case."

The court on this point held that the fact that at the time of the giving of the mortgage there was no reason whatever to suspect that any violation of the liquor law would occur on the premises and every reason to trust the owner of the premises not to violate the law, was not such an equitable consideration as would entitle the mortgagee to priority. Throughout the case, however, there is marked reliance upon the opinion of the common pleas court in the Hanson case There the priority of the lien over previously recorded mortgages is placed, in part at least, upon the ground that "the laws in force at the time and place where a contract is made, and where it is to be performed, which in their nature are applicable, enter into and become a part of the contract." It was accordingly held in that case that the lien did not acquire priority over encumbrances created before the passage of the act. If this is the true theory of priority as applied to the liquor tax, it would seem to affect only encumbrances created by the person who was the owner of the property at the time the business was being carried on, and who might therefore protect himself and his mortgagee against the consequences of the violation of the law. Thus it would seem hardly to extend to the case of a mortgage given by a prior owner and to make such mortgage subordinate to the lien of the liquor tax accruing against the premises after a change in the legal title thereof. However, as above stated, this question has not been decided in this state.

There is another provision of the liquor tax applicable to personal property which is more far reaching. I refer to section 6078 G. C. which authorizes a levy on the goods and chattels of the person carrying on the business, and those used by him in such business. That provision is as follows:

> "Such levy shall take precedence of all liens, mortgages, conveyances or incumbrances hereafter taken or had on such goods and chattels so used in carrying on such business; and no claim of property by a third person to such goods and chattels so used in carrying on such business shall avail against such levy by the treasurer."

It is clear that under this provision the lien of the levy attaches to all goods used in carrying on the business whether belonging to the person carrying it on or not. Accordingly under such a provision no question like the one now under consideration could arise. But section 5506 stops far short of the effect of the provision last quoted. The phrase "property of the public utility or corporation" clearly imports ownership; in fact such ownership is even more clearly indicated by the remainder of the section, which is:

> "Whether such property is employed by the public utility or corporation in the prosecution of its business or is in the hands of an assignee, trustee or receiver for the benefit of the creditors and stookholders thereof."

That is to say, the fact upon which the attachment of the lien is predicated is the ownership of the corporation or utility, not the use of the property in its business.

It would seem from Baldwin v. Pelton, 19 O. D. N. P., 546, that the personal property lien provision of the liquor tax law has been applied so as to defeat prior interests of the kind now under consideration, but for reasons above pointed out this case is not in point.

In the state of Indiana there is a law which creates in favor of the state a lien upon all the property of a person liable for personal property taxes. The supreme court of Indiana has repeatedly held that this lien attaching to the real estate of a taxpayer is prior to that of a mortgage executed by the taxpayer's grantor and to that of a purchase money mortgage or vendor's lien. Bodertha v. Spencer, 40 Ind. 353; Isaacs v. Decker, 41 Ind. 410; Peckham v. Milliken, 99 Ind. 352. However, it is also held in Indiana that such lien does not attach to property held by a husband and wife as tenants by the entirety on the ground that the husband (who was the delinquent personal taxpayer) had no separate interest in such property. The decisions laying down the general rule are not supported by any reasoning. It may be said, however, of these Indiana cases that they are distinguishable from the case now under consideration in that the tax, as security for the payment of which the secondary lien was created, is a general property tax, the certainty of the accrual of which may be taken for granted; so that a mortgagee accepting an encumbrance upon real estate in Indiana, at least from a resident of Indiana, would be cognizant of the extreme probability, not to say certainty, of the creation of a superior secondary lien for the payment of personal property taxes, not only those due or to become due from his mortgagor, but also those to become due from a possible grantee of his mortgagor.

In line with the Indiana decisions and under similar statutes is California Loan, etc., Co. v. Weiss, 118 Cal. 489; Bibbins v. Clark & Co., supra, is opposed to the Indiana cases. The law of Iowa involved in that case was quite similar to the Indiana law applied in the cases in that jurisdiction above cited, but the supreme court of Iowa gave the law a strict interpretation and reached accordingly an opposite result. In Central Trust Co. v. Third Ave. Railroad Co., supra, the court declined to give priority to a tax lien where the statute did not clearly create such priority.

The cases above cited from Indiana and California and the Ohio cases under the liquor tax laws are the only ones which I have been able to find in the course of a somewhat exhaustive search, which would tend in any degree to support the priority of the lien created by section 5506 over that of a mortgage given under the circumstances described in your question.

In addition to the New York inheritance tax decision, above referred to, there are cases in which substantially the very question submitted by you is raised and resolved in the negative. In Salt City v. Padgett (Texas Civil Appeals, 1916), 186 S. W. 391, it appears that a statute of Texas made the general personal property tax a "first lien" as against assignments for the benefit of creditors or levies and attachments by creditors. It was held that this lien was inferior to that of a purchase money chattel mortgage. This case is not exactly in point because the statute did not purport to make the tax a first lien except as against creditors of the taxpayer.

In Sweeney v. Arrowsmith, 1 Berks County (Pa.) 353, 23 York County 76, it seems to have been held that a tax lien quite similar to that of section 5506, in that it was given for the purpose of securing the payment of a corporation tax and was expressly made a prior lien, was held inferior to the lien of a purchase money mortgage which upon familiar principles was regarded as an encumbrance when the corporation acquired the land. It was admitted apparently that the lien of the tax would be superior to all encumbrances created upon its property by act of the corporation even when so created prior to the accrual of the tax lien, but it was denied that the priority of the latter obtained as to encumbrances existing when the corporation acquired the property.

I regret that I have not been able to see a full report of this case. The Pennsylvania county reports in which it appears are not in the library of the supreme court. I have had access only to an abbreviated and fragmentary report thereof in a note in Purdon's Digest of Pennsylvania statutes, page 4580, sections 64 and 65. This publication, however, does show that the Pennsylvania statute is practically as far reaching as section 5506.

The question is to my mind a very doubtful one and little help is obtainable from the adjudicated cases. Nevertheless I am of the opinion that the lien of the state for franchise or excise taxes is upon principle to be regarded as inferior to that of a purchase money mortgage given by the corporation or utility, or that of any other encumbrance placed upon the property before it became the "property of the corporation"; and that the phrase "property of the corporation" embraces only the interest acquired by the corporation or utility.

In the first place, while it may be admitted that the legislative power of the state is without limit, so far as the adjudicated cases are concerned, in giving priority to liens for taxes, yet this doctrine has never been applied, so far as I am able to ascertain, to cases in which the principal tax was in no sense a property tax and in which the lien was secondary merely and in the nature of a security for the discharge of a primary liability purely in personam.

In the second place it is generally agreed that tax liens are in this country of statutory origin only, and that the statutes creating them must be given a strict construction. This is particularly true, I think, where the tax is in no sense a property tax.

In the third place where the tax is a privilege tax it would seem that the property to which the secondary lien would attach would be limited to the interest acquired through the exercise of the privilege. This is the doctrine of the inheritance tax case above cited.

In the fourth place it would seem that the basis of or justification for the theory that the legislative power extends to creating priority in favor of a subsequent tax lien over a prior encumbrance is found in the fiction or presumption that parties are deemed to create their private liens in the light of all laws which may effect the consequences of the act in which they are then engagd. This is the theory of Loan Co. v. Hanson and Trust Co. v. Stich, supra. This doctrine in my opinion does not extend to cases in which the probability nor possibility of impairment of a contractual lien through the operation of a law then in force is so remote at the time of its creation as would be the case if it were applied to the solution of the question now under consideration. That is to say, I think it would be carrying the doctrine too far so to apply it as to hold that when two ordinary natural persons are engaged in the creation of a lien by the giving of a mortgage on the part of one of them, who is the owner of real estate, to the other, these parties must be held in contemplation of law to take into account the possibility of the sale of the property by the mortgagor to a corporation or public utility. The view which I express on this point does not, of course, account for the result which I have indicated with respect to purchase money mortgages. The other reasons which I have given, however, are applicable to that case, and while I am not so clear as to the correctness of my conclusions respecting the priority of a purchase money mortgage, yet on the whole I am inclined to adhere to the opinion which I have expressed thereon.

Lest my opinion be misunderstood, I wish to make it clear that the lien of the tax is superior to all other liens (excepting such charges as court costs) to the full extent of the largest interest in the property against which it is asserted, acquired by the corporation at any time. Thus if a corporation should acquire real estate encumbered by a mortgage and the corporation tax should accrue and be unpaid while the encumbrance still existed, but such encumbrance were subsequently removed, of course the lien of the state, on account of that tax, would apply to the entire property, because it would take priority over any interest therein that might subsequently be created by the corporation.

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SAFE DEPOSIT COMPANIES—NOT AUTHORIZED TO ACCEPT TRUSTS OR ACT AS TRUSTEE—CANNOT ISSUE "PARTICIPATING CERTIFICATES"—MAY ACCEPT FOR SAFE-KEEPING SUCH PARTICIPATING CERTIFICATES.

Safe deposit companies are not authorized by the provisions of the General Code of Ohio to exercise trust powers.

Safe deposit companies cannot issue "participating certificates" which entitle the holders thereof to participate in the interest and principal collected from the securities which are held in trust by said company for that purpose.

Safe deposit companies may, under section 9773 G. C. accept properly issued participating certificates or other securities, and as agent for the depositor thereof disburse the principal and interest upon agreed terms.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 25, 1916.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of October 5, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

"A copy of what is known as a 'Participating Certificate' is hereunto attached.

"Will you kindly favor this office with an opinion covering the following questions:

"First—Can these 'participating certificates' be properly issued by savings banks or safe deposit companies?

"Second—Can a safe deposit company accept these 'participating certificates' and collect and disburse the principal and interest thereon?

"Third—Can safe deposit companies issue these 'certificates' and also hold the mortgages under which said 'certificates' are issued without qualifying as trust companies?"

The following is a copy of the participating certificate and coupon referred to in your letter:

"COUPON.

"ON THE FIRST DAY OF APRIL 1920

This coupon will entitle the bearer to receive from funds collected the sum of SIX AND 87-100----------DOLLARS $6.87 upon presentation at the main office of The----------Company, Cert. No. ----------, Ohio, being three months' interest payable on said date on the First Mortgage Certificate, Series A, Series A subject to the terms and conditions of said certificate.

"FIVE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT.
FIRST MORTGAGE CERTIFICATE.

"Issued by

"----------

"No.---------- of $500.00

"Series A. ----------

"Series of two hundred certificates of five hundred dollars each, bearing like series letter herewith against notes secured by first mortgages aggregating One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

"THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT THE----------COMPANY, hereinafter called the 'Company,' has received from the registered holder hereof, hereinafter called the 'Participant,' the sum of FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS, for which said participant is entitled to a participating share equal to that amount in the promissory notes secured by first mortgages on real estate in ---------- county, Ohio, totaling One Hundred Thousand ($100,000) Dollars, deposited in the safe deposit department of the company, under the joint control of said department and the auditor of said company, and in any such notes and mortgages substituted therefor. Said notes and mortgages as per list marked 'Series A' are held by the company as depository and agent for the holders of this and other certificates of this series, upon the following terms and conditions which are agreed to by the holder of this certificate.

"FIRST. The company is appointed sole and irrevocable agent and attorney of all owners and holders of said certificates for the purpose:

"(a) Of collecting the interest and principal due on said mortgage notes and of satisfying, receipting for and discharging same in its own name on receiving full payment.

"(b) Of deciding when and how any provisions of said notes and mortgages shall be enforced and of enforcing them accordingly.

"(c) Of agreeing to any extension or anticipation of the time of payment of any of said notes and mortgages.

"SECOND. If the company decides that any action or proceeding should be begun, or for any other reason desires to withdraw any of said notes and mortgages, the company shall deposit with the safe deposit department of said bank other notes secured by like first mortgages of an equal amount and thereupon be entitled to make the desired withdrawal.

"THIRD. The company shall disburse out of the interest received from said notes 5½% per annum, payable quarterly on the first days of January, April, July and October each year upon presentation of the coupons hereto attached, to the bearer thereof, as they severally mature at the main office of the company, the company retaining from the interest received from said notes ½% per annum on the principal as compensation to it.

"FOURTH. The company may be the holder, or owner or pledgee of one or more of said certificates.

"FIFTH. The term of this certificate shall expire on the first day of October, A. D. 1920, and upon giving written notice to the undersigned on or before the expiration of this certificate, the registered holder hereof shall be entitled after such expiration to receive the amount represented hereby as rapidly as the undersigned in due course of business receives a sufficient amount of principal from said notes. Also, if sufficient principal be not collected and paid within thirty days after said expiration date, the registered holder hereof shall be entitled to receive in addition his pro rata share of any interest thereafter collected thereon, less one-half per centum upon the principal, deducted by the company for its compensation.

"SIXTH: If, prior, to the termination date hereof, any principal of said notes is collected, the company may, in its discretion, upon giving notice as hereinafter provided, use the same for the purpose of redeeming any of the then outstanding certificates upon any interest-paying date, and upon the final pro rata distribution of all principal collected this and all other certificates shall be deemed cancelled and be turned in for cancellation.

"SEVENTH. This certificate is assignable only upon the books of the company, upon proper endorsement and surrender hereof to the company for cancellation.

"EIGHTH. This certificate may be redeemed by the company at any time, upon mailing written notice of such redemption, directed to the registered holder hereof at his address last appearing upon the books of the company, after which this certificate shall cease to participate in the interest accruing upon said notes, and the company may, in its discretion, take from said safe deposit department an amount of notes equal to the certificate redeemed.

I also have your letter of November 3, 1916, enclosing the following additional information:

> "The A. Company, an Ohio corporation, has executed a mortgage deed on real estate for $100,000.00 to the B. Company as trustee, the purpose of which is to secure the payment of 100 bonds of $1,000.00 each.
>
> "The B. Company has certified each bond as follows:
>
> "'It is hereby certified that this bond is one of the issue of bonds described in the mortgage deed of trust within mentioned.
>
> "'The B. Company, Trustee,
>
> "'By John Roe, Sec'y.'
> "After the certification, the bonds above mentioned were delivered to the A. Company, which in turn gave its receipt covering the entire issue.
> "The B. Company is chartered as a safe deposit company under the Ohio statutes, and has at no time uncertified bonds in its possession; its practice being to certify entire issues and deliver same to issuing company upon their receipt—in other words, to act only as agent representing the several interests involved."

Section 9702 of the General Code, authorizing the organization of a "commercial bank, a savings bank, a safe deposit company and a trust company" is as follows:

> "Any number of persons, not less than five, a majority of whom are citizens of this state, may associate and become incorporated to establish a commercial bank, a savings bank, a safe deposit company, a trust company, or to establish a company having departments for two or more, or all of such classes of business, upon the terms and conditions and subject to the limitations hereinafter and by law prescribed."

The powers which may be exercised by savings banks are set forth in sections 9762 to 9771 of the General Code. No authority is given to savings banks by any of these sections to act either as trustee or agent in the manner indicated in the so-called participating certificate. Sections 9772 and 9773 of the General Code, prescribing the powers of safe deposit companies, are as follows:

> "Sec. 9772. A safe deposit company may purchase, lease, hold and convey real estate whereon is erected or may be erected a building or buildings useful for the convenient transaction of its business, including fire and burglar proof vaults or safes, and from portions of which, not required for its own use, a revenue may be derived. The cost of such buildings and the real estate whereon they are erected in no case shall exceed fifty per cent. of the paid-up capital and surplus of the corporation. Any sum not so invested in buildings and real estate may be invested in the manner provided herein for the investment of the funds of savings banks.
> "Sec. 9773. A safe deposit company may receive property of every kind for safe keeping, collect and disburse the interest or income or principal of securities on such terms as are agreed upon, and also act as agent, for the purpose of registering, countersigning or transferring the certificate of stock, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any corporation, association, municipality, state or public authority, on such terms as are agreed upon."

Safe deposit companies, under the sections just quoted, may act as the bailee or agent for certain purposes, but they are clearly not authorized therein or in any other section of the General Code to accept trusts or to act as trustee.

The question therefore arises whether the safe deposit company designated as the "B. Company" in the information furnished me in your letter of November 3, 1916, is in the transaction therein referred to acting as agent or as trustee.

In "Words and Phrases," Vol. I, page 270, an "agent" is defined as:

> "Any one who by authority performs an act for another."
> "A person authorized by another to act for him."

In the case of Taylor v. May, 110 U. S. 330, the court distinguished a "trustee" from an "agent" in the following language:

> "A trustee is not an agent. An agent represents and acts for his principal, who may be either a natural or artificial person. A trustee may be defined generally as a person in whom some estate, interest, or power in or affecting property is vested for the benefit of another. When an agent contracts in the name of his principal, the principal contracts and is bound, but the agent is not. When a trustee contracts as such, unless he is bound no one is bound, for he has no principal. The trust estate cannot promise; the contract is therefore the personal undertaking of the trustee. As a trustee holds the estate, although only with the power and for the purpose of managing it, he is personally bound by the contracts he makes as trustee, even when designating himself as such."

In the case of Everett v. Drew, 129 Mass. 150, the court say:

> "The trustee is in no sense an agent of the cestui que trust, and he cannot render them personally liable on his contracts without their consent."

The so-called participating certificate, a copy of which is above set forth, clearly indicates the relation created between the safe deposit company and a certificate holder is that of trustee and cestui que trust. The company has entire control of the property which it certifies that it holds for the payment of interest upon and the final redemption of the said certificates. The certificate holder has no control over this property or right therein except to participate with other certificate holders in a proper disposition of the proceeds thereof. The company, if it sees fit, may even substitute other property for that originally set aside for the payment of the certificates. If suit is brought for the collection of any of the trust securities such suit must of necessity be brought by and in the name of the company, and no certificate holder could maintain such suit in his own name. The language used by the company in certifying the bonds or participating certificate is further indicative of the nature of the transaction, viz:

> "It is hereby certified that this bond is one of the issue of bonds described in the mortgage deed of trust within mentioned."

The transaction simply amounts to this: The safe deposit company segregates and declares a trust in and names itself trustee for the distribution of certain securities or other property with the right of withdrawal or substitution, provided always that security equivalent in value shall be maintained in trust. The certificate holders are beneficiaries under the trust declaration.

Sections 9774 et seq. of the General Code, defining the powers and duties of trust companies, clearly indicate the legislative intent to limit the exercise of trust powers by corporations to such trust companies.

Sections 9778, 9779 and 9780 of the General Code are as follows:

> "Sec. 9778. No such corporation either foreign or domestic shall accept trusts which may be vested in, transferred or committed to it by an individual, or court, until its paid-in capital is at least one hundred thousand dollars, and until such corporation has deposited with the treasurer of state in cash fifty thousand dollars of its capital is two hundred thousand dollars or less, and one hundred thousand dollars if its capital is more than two hundred thousand dollars, except that the full amount of such deposit by such corporation may be in bonds of the United States, or of this state, or any municipality or county therein, or in any other state, or in the first mortgage bonds of any railroad corporation that for five years last past paid dividends of at least three per cent. on its common stock.
> "Sec. 9779. The treasurer of state shall hold such fund or securities deposited with him as security for the faithful performance of the trusts assumed by such corporation, but so long as it continues solvent he shall permit it to collect the interest on its securities so deposited. From time to time said treasurer shall permit withdrawals of such securities or cash, or part thereof, on the deposit with him of cash, or other securities of the kind heretofore named, so as to maintain the value of such deposit as herein provided.
> "Sec. 9780. No such corporation, foreign or domestic, authorized to accept and execute trusts, either directly or indirectly through any officer, agent or employe thereof, shall certify to any bond, note or other obligation to evidence debt, secured by any trust, deed or mortgage upon, or accept any trust concerning property located wholly or in part in this state without complying with the provisions of this and the two preceding sections. Any trust, deed or mortgage given or taken in violation of the provisions thereof shall be null and void."

It should be borne in mind that corporations have only such powers as are specifically conferred upon them by law and such additional powers as are incidental to the proper exercise of the conferred powers. The General Code confers no trust powers on safe deposit companies. It does confer such powers on trust companies and prescribed the conditions and terms upon which such trust powers may be exercised in Ohio. It follows that safe deposit companies cannot exercise trust powers, and that trust companies may exercise such powers only after full compliance with the mandatory provisions of the General Code.

Answering your several questions:

1. The participating certificate referred to in your enquiry cannot be issued by safe deposit companies.

2. A safe deposit company may, under section 9773 of the General Code, accept for safe-keeping such participating certificate (when properly issued by a qualified trust company) and as agent for the depositor thereof disburse the principal and interest upon agreed terms.

3. A safe deposit company cannot issue such certificate and also hold the mortgage under which said certificates are issued without also being and qualifying as a trust company.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE BOARD OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS—CERTAIN VOUCHERS DRAWN BY SAID BOARD SHOULD BE PAID—CASE OF LYONS V. SAID BOARD DECIDED IN COMMON PLEAS COURT OF FRANKLIN COUNTY DISTINGUISHED FROM ABOVE ITEMS OF EXPENSE.

Certain vouchers drawn by the state board of public buildings and presented to the state auditor should be paid.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 25, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion under date of November 24, 1916, reads as follows:

> "I have had presented to me various vouchers drawn by the state board of public buildings, which said vouchers I herewith enclose.
> "In view of the opinion of Judge E. B. Kinkead, one of the judges of the common pleas court of Frankin county, in the case of State ex rel George A. Lyons Company v. State Board of Public Buildings, I desire an opinion from you in regard to the payment of the various bills mentioned. Mr. H. M. Myers, secretary of said board, has advised me that he will inform you as to the purpose of each of said vouchers."

As indicated in your letter, Mr. H. M. Myers, secretary of the state board of public buildings, has given me the following information in regard to the vouchers referred to by you:

The voucher for $25.56, in favor of the Pennsylvania lines, covers two railway tickets from Columbus to Washington, D. C., used by two United States government engineers, called in consultation by the state board of public buildings, and whose services cost the board only the expenses of the engineers.

The two vouchers each for $19.88, one in favor of C. P. Gliem, and the other in favor of Elliott Woods, cover the railroad fare of the two engineers above referred to from Washington, D. C., to Columbus, and their other traveling expenses. Mr. Woods is superintendent of the United States capitol building and grounds and Mr. Gliem is the chief electrical engineer of the United States capitol building.

The voucher for $572.00, in favor of the Standard Paving Company, is for materials furnished in repairing walks on the state house grounds.

The item of $320.44, covering painters' payroll, is for work done on the Wyandotte building and on the state house.

The voucher for $302.80, in favor of D. W. McGrath, is for repair work and material used on the state house.

The voucher for $70.48, in favor of D. W. McGrath, is for plastering done in the adjutant general's office in the state house, a part of the plastering in that office having fallen.

The item of $1,849.56, in favor of D. W. McGrath, relates entirely to repairs and alterations in the Wyandotte building.

The voucher for $4.00, in favor of the Zettler Hardware Company, is for materials furnished for the Wyandotte building.

The voucher for $1,567.50, in favor of the Livingston Seed Company, is for nursery stock, fertilizer and planting in connection with the embellishment of the state house grounds.

The voucher for $76.00, in favor of John McCarty, is for dirt and planting in connection with the embellishment of the state house grounds.

The voucher for $16.00, in favor of the Doddington Company, is for material furnished for use in the Wyandotte building.

The voucher for $62.00, in favor of the Avery & Loeb Electric Company, is for fire extinguishers for the Wyandotte building.

Six vouchers for $26.92, $13.45, $8.40, $10.15, $9.05 and $10.45 cover necessary traveling expenses of the members of the state board of public buildings.

The voucher for $247.40, in favor of the Standard Paving Company, covers an asphalt roof placed over a new drafting room constructed in the basement between the state house and the judiciary building for the use of the department of public works.

The voucher for $10.97, in favor of the Westwater Supply Company, covers materials furnished for the Wyandotte building.

As to the six items of traveling expenses of members of the state board of public buildings, such items are in no way affected by the opinion of the court in the case of State ex rel. Lyons v. the State Board of Public Buildings, referred to you by you.

As to such expenses, it is provided by section 3 of the act creating the state board of public buildings, 106 O. L., 463, that the members of the board shall be paid their necessary and actual expenses incurred while engaged in the business of the board, and that all such expenses shall be audited and paid upon vouchers signed by the chairman and secretary of the board. All of these vouchers bear the written approval of the chairman and secretary of the state board of public buildings, and I advise you that they should be paid.

As to the vouchers relating solely to work done upon, and material furnished for, the Wyandotte building, it may also be observed that the opinion of the court in the case referred to by you has no application. It is provided by section 3 of the act creating the board that the compensation and expenses of employes and assistants, and other expenses authorized to be incurred, shall be audited and paid upon vouchers signed by the chairman and secretary of the board, and since the vouchers relating solely to work done upon, and material furnished for, the Wyandotte building bear the written approval of the chairman and secretary of the board, I advise you that they should be paid.

Coming now to consider the remainder of the vouchers submitted by you, which cover materials furnished for, or work done upon, the state house, judiciary building and state house grounds, it is necessary to state briefly the nature of the action in the case of State ex rel. Lyons v. the State Board of Public Buildings, referred to by you.

This is a proceeding in mandamus, brought to compel the defendant to enter into a contract for lighting and decorating the rotunda of the Ohio state capitol. The defendant had prepared plans and specifications and advertised and called for sealed bids and proposals for the work. The relator had filed and submitted a bid, which bid he alleged in his petition was the lowest one submitted. An alternative writ was allowed and a demurrer to the petition upon the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action was sustained by the court and the petition dismissed. The question of competitive bidding was involved in this suit, but the court seems to have based its decision upon other grounds, and the question of competitive bidding need not now be considered, especially as none of the bills now under consideration exceed the sum of $3,000.00. The court pointed out that by general statute the adjutant general was made superintendent of the state house grounds and that ordinary repairs about the state house and grounds, not connected with any general plan adopted by the state board of public buildings, were to be carried forward by him.

The following is quoted from the opinion of the court in the case in question:

"The design of the act was to create a new board to determine the needs of all offices, departments and commissions of the state concerning such matters as floor space, sanitation, light and economical and efficient operation, and to decide upon a general method and plan to efficiently and economically house the offices, departments and commissions.

"In carrying out this purpose the board may buy either a suitable building or site contiguous to or conveniently near the state house.

"It is authorized to let contracts to construct additions to present buildings.

"Pursuant to its general purpose to efficiently and economically house the offices, in matters of floor space, sanitation, light and economically and efficient operation, it is authorized to do the following things:

"1. To make additions to state house or judiciary building.

"2. To alter these buildings.

"3. To repair them only when it is pursuant to a general plan to efficiently and economically house the offices.

"4. To enter into contracts to carry out these purposes.

"But these functions and duties are to be exercised and performed only:

"'after it has been decided upon the method and plan which will efficiently and economically house the offices, departments and commissions of the state upon and with the approval of the governor.'

"And these duties are incidental to the paramount purpose and design to provide for an efficient and economical housing of the offices, departments and commissions of the state.

"None of these things, except to purchase a building, can be singly done or independently of a general method or plan to accomplish the general purposes of the act.

"The improvement or repair disclosed by the petition appears to have no connection with any general plan contemplated by the act."

The court held that the petition of the plaintiff was bad on demurrer in that it was not stated therein that the work for which the relator was a bidder was a part of any general scheme or plan adopted by the state board of public buildings, in connection with the adequate housing of the officers, departments and commissions of the state.

A careful examination of the minutes of the meetings of the state board of public buildings discloses that the board took the very action which was held to be jurisdictional by the court in the case of State ex rel. Lyons v. the State Board of Public Buildings. The court in its opinion pointed out that the state board of public buildings was authorized to let contracts to construct additions to present buildings and that pursuant to its general purpose to efficiently and economically house the offices in matters of floor space, sanitation, light and economical and efficient operation, it was authorized to do the following things:

First, to make additions to state house and judiciary buildings; second, to alter these buildings; third, to repair them only when it is pursuant to a general plan to efficiently and economically house the offices; fourth, to enter into contracts to carry out these purposes.

The court further held that these functions and duties are to be exercised and performed only "after it has decided upon the method and plan which will efficiently and economically house the offices, departments and commissions of the state upon and with the approval of the governor." The court held that the functions of the board, other than the purchase of a building, could not be exercised singly or independently of a general method or plan to accomplish the general purposes of the act. It appears from the minutes of the board that on February 16, 1916, the board determined that the most efficient and economical method and plan for the housing of the offices, departments and commissions of the state government was the purchase of a suitable site and the erection thereon of an office building, and indicated that the proper and appropriate location therefor was on Fourth street and that this site should be rendered accessible from the present state house grounds through a public park way or mall to be used in common with other state, county and city buildings to be erected in the future and the board determined upon this course of action, provided the chamber of commerce of the city of Columbus should, by purchase or otherwise, procure the dedication in fee for public park purposes, of certain real estate necessary therefor. The Chamber of Commerce of the city of Columbus, and other city organizations, being unable at the present time to meet these conditions, the State Board of Public Buildings, on July 25, 1916, having duly considered the inability of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Columbus to provide necessary real estate for a pubic park way or mall, and the fact that the several departments of the state government not then housed in the state house or judiciary building were located in numerous buildings remotely situated from each other, and that some of these departments were compelled to pay high rents to individuals and corporations owning the buildings in which they were housed, determined to purchase for temporary purposes the Wyandotte building, being influenced, as is shown by the minutes, by the further considerations that such building was conveniently near the state house and could be purchased at a reasonable price and could be sold without loss at such time in the future as the state deemed necessary after a permanent building had been erected by the board. It is further to be fairly and even necessarily inferred from the minutes of the State Board of Public Buildings, evidencing its proceedings on said 25th day of July, 1916, that the board, as a part of a general plan and scheme, contemplated by the act of the general assembly creating the board, and referred to by the court in deciding the case of State ex rel. Lyons v. the State Board of Public Buildings, determined that the method and plan then adopted of efficiently and economically housing the offices, departments and commissions of the state, by purchasing the Wyandotte building for temporary purposes and for use until such time as the board might erect a permanent building, would render it necessary to make a large number of repairs and alterations in the present state house and judiciary building and provide therein certain additional accommodations, utilizing space not theretofore used, and providing adequate sanitary and lighting accommodations for the same. This general plan and design on the part of the board fully appears from the minutes of the meeting of July 25, 1916, referred to above, and also from the minutes of subsequent meetings held on August 15, 16, 30, 31, September 1, 26, October 17, 31, November 9 and November 16, 1916.

In so far as the bills now under consideration are concerned, it is my opinion that they are in no way affected by the decision of the court in the case referred to by you, which decision, in so far as the present matter is concerned, may be regarded solely as upon a question of pleading, and it appearing from the examination of said bills and from the minutes of the State Board of Public Buildings that the bills were incurred pursuant to a general plan and design, on the part of the board, to alter and repair the state house and judiciary building, and to improve and embellish the state house grounds, and the vouchers bearing the approval of the chairman and secretary of the board, I advise you that the same should be paid.

In so far as the broad equities of the matter are concerned, both the board and the persons performing services and furnishing materials in connection with repair and improvement of the state house and judiciary building and the improvement and embellishment of the state house grounds, appear to have acted in the best of faith, and so far as I know there is no claim whatever on the part of any person that the state has not received full value for every dollar which it is now claimed is due and owing. Under such circumstances the courts would not incline to give weight to merely technical objections unless absolutely required so to do by the law. However, giving full weight to any merely technical objection that might be urged against the payment of these claims, I am unable to conclude that any sound reason exists why the same should not be paid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CLERK HIRE FOR COUNTY OFFICERS—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FIX AGGREGATE SUM FOR EACH OFFICER—CANNOT SUBSEQUENTLY INCREASE—WHEN COMMON PLEAS JUDGE CAN MAKE ALLOWANCE—LIMITATION AS TO EXPENDITURE FOR ANY YEAR—SECTIONS 2979, 2980 AND 2980-1 G. C. CONSTRUED.

When the commissioners of a county have fixed an aggregate sum for clerk hire for any office during any year at the time designated in section 2980 G. C., they have no power subsequently to take further action increasing the amount whether the aggregate amount thus fixed be equal to or less than the maximum amount then allowable by them on the basis fixed by section 2980-1 G. C.

Under authority of said section 2980-1 G. C. and in the manner therein provided the judge of the court of common pleas of said county may, upon application, make an additional allowance for clerk hire in any case where he finds the necessity therefor, whether the sum fixed by the commissioners for such purpose be the maximum amount to which the office is entitled or less.

Any one of the officers mentioned in section 2979 G. C. is limited in his expenditure for clerk hire for any year to the aggregate allowance made by the county commissioners in November of the preceding year pursuant to the authority conferred upon said commissioners by section 2980 G. C., and such sum in addition thereto as may be allowed by the common pleas court of the county under authority of section 2980-1 G. C. upon application made as therein provided.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 25, 1916.

HON. C. H. CURTISS, Prosecuting Attorney, Ravenna, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of November 21 is as follows:

> "As required under the provisions of section 2980 of the General Code, on November 20, 1915, our county treasurer filed with the board of county commissioners a detailed statement of the probable amount necessary to be expended in his office for the year commencing January 1, 1916, for deputies, assistants, bookkeepers, clerks and other employes, and in accord with the provision of such section said board fixed the said amount at $1,250.00.

"This aggregate amount so fixed was considerably less than thirty per cent. on the first $2,000.00, or fractional part thereof, forty per cent. on the next $8,000.00 or fractional part thereof, and eighty-five per cent. on all over $10,000.00, of the fees, costs, percentages, penalties, allowances and other amounts collected for the use of the county in such office, for official services during the year ending September 30, next preceding the time of fixing such sum, as is provided in section 2980-1 of the General Code as amended in volume 105-106 of Ohio Laws, page 14, limiting the amount such board could allow.

"Of this sum so allowed up to November 1, of this year said officer has expended all but $60.00 of such allowance, a sum wholly insufficient to provide for the necessary deputies, etc., required in said office for the remaining two months of this year.

"Can the commissioners allow an additional sum at this time, for such purpose, and if not, can such an additional allowance be made by the common pleas court of this county under favor of said section 2980-1 above referred to? Your early reply desired."

The postscript to your letter is as follows:

"Supplementing the above, can the service for such deputies, if performed this month or next, be paid from next year's allowance?"

Your first question was carefully considered in an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, found in the Annual Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1913, volume II, page 1322, in which it was held that when the county commissioners have fixed an aggregate sum for clerk hire during any year at the time designated in section 2980 G. C., they have no power subsequently to take further action increasing the amount of such allowance whether the aggregate amount thus fixed be equal to or less than the maximum amount then allowable by them on the basis fixed by the statute.

It was further held in said opinion that under authority of section 2980-1 G. C. and in the manner therein provided, the judge of the court of common pleas of the county may, upon application, make an additional allowance for clerk hire in any case where he finds the necessity therefor, whether the sum fixed by the commissioners for such purpose be the maximum amount to which the office is entitled or less.

I concur in the conclusions reached by my predecessor in said opinion as above expressed and therefore hold in answer to your first question that your county commissioners are without authority at this time to make an additional allowance to your county treasurer for clerk hire for the remainder of the year 1916, but application for an additional allowance may be made to the common pleas court of your county under authority of section 2980-1 G. C. and in the manner therein provided, and if upon such application being made the court finds that the necessity for an additional allowance exists he may allow such a sum of money as he deems necessary to pay the salaries of the employes, referred to in your letter, for the remainder of said year.

Your second question is answered by reference to the provisions of section 2980 G. C., which are as follows:

"On the twentieth of each November such officer shall prepare and file with the county commissioners a detailed statement of the probable amount necessary to be expended for deputies, assistants, bookkeepers, clerks and other employes, except court constables, of their respective offices, showing in detail the requirements of their offices for the year beginning January 1 next thereafter with the sworn statement of the amount expended by them for such assistants for the preceding year. Not later than five days after the filing of such statement, the county commissioners shall fix an aggregate sum to be expended for such period for the compensation of such deputies, assistants, bookkeepers, clerks or other employes of such officer, except court constables, which sum shall be reasonable and proper, and shall enter such findings upon their journal."

In view of the above provisions of the statute it is clear that no part of the aggregate sum fixed by your county commissioners to be expended by your county treasurer for clerk hire during the year commencing January 1, 1917, may be expended for such purpose for services rendered during the remainder of the present year.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your second question that your county treasurer is limited in his expenditure for clerk hire for the year 1916 to the aggregate allowance made by your county commissioners in November, 1915, pursuant to the authority conferred upon said commissioners by the above provision of section 2980 G. C., and such sum in addition thereto as may be allowed by the common pleas court of your county under authority of section 2980-1 G. C. upon application made as therein provided, and that no part of the allowance made by your county commissioners to the county treasurer for the year commencing January 1, 1917, may be used by said county treasurer in paying for services rendered in said office during the remainder of the present year.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS—MAY ENACT ORDINANCES TO PUNISH SAME ACTS AS ARE PUNISHED BY STATE LAWS—CITY LIMITED TO POWERS GRANTED—FINES COLLECTED UNDER SAID ORDINANCES GO INTO MUNICIPAL TREASURY.

A municipality, within the limits of the powers granted to it, may enact ordinances to punish the same acts as are punished by state laws, try cases under said ordinances and cover the fines collected thereunder into the treasury of the municipality.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 27, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of November 15, 1916, wherein you ask the following question:

"In cases in which the state laws provide fines and penalties for violation of state laws, and further provide, either specifically or by general statute, that such fines when assessed in municipal courts, police courts, mayors' courts, or other courts, shall be paid into the treasury of the county, may the council of a municipality legally pass ordinances covering the same points, try such cases under said ordinances, and thereby divert the fines into the treasury of the municipality?'

Your question is so general that I shall not undertake to answer same except generally. The rule of law in Ohio is that a municipality, within the limits of the powers granted to it, may enact ordinances to punish the same acts as are punished by state laws, and having done so may punish the offenders under said ordinances. A prosecution under the ordinance, however, would not bar a prosecution under the state statutes.

See Koch v. State, 53 O. S. 433.

In cities other than charter cities it has been held, prior to the amendment of section 3664 G. C., 103 O. L. 168, that an ordinance could not be passed punishing assault and battery.

Wellsville v. O'Connor, 1 O. C. C. n. s. 253.

The case of in re Smith, 14 N. P. n. s. 497, decided that an ordinance could not be passed punishing the act of resisting a person called to assist an officer.

In Hughes v. Cincinnati, 14 N. P. n. s. 494, it was held that drunkenness not amounting to a disturbance of the peace could not be punished by ordinance.

Jeffries v. Defiance, 25 W. L. B. 68;
In re Fitzsimmons, 13 N. P. n. s. 104.

It would seem from the foregoing decisions that the power of council of non-charted cities to pass ordinances prescribing a punishment is limited to the powers conferred on municipalities by the legislature, but that in certain cases council may pass ordinance punishing the same acts as would constitute misdemeanors under state laws.

Answering your question, therefore, I am of the opinion that council of non-chartered municipalities may legally pass ordinances within the powers granted to them by statute covering the same acts as are covered by the penal statutes of the state, try such cases under said ordinances and cover the fines collected thereunder into the treasury of the municipality.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE OFFICER OR EMPLOYE RECEIVING REGULAR SALARY OUT OF STATE TREASURY NOT ENTITLED TO RECEIVE ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION FOR OVERTIME OR NIGHT WORK.

A state officer or an employe of a state department or institution who is receiving the full regular salary out of the state treasury, as fixed by the appropriation of the legislature, is not entitled to receive additional compensation for overtime or night work.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 27, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of yours under date of November 15, 1916, wherein you submit the following question:

> "May a state officer or an employe of a state department or institution who is drawing a regular salary out of the state treasury, fixed by appropriation of the legislature, receive additional compensation for overtime or night work, and if so, from what character of appropriation should it be paid?"

I assume that your question is referable to the appropriations made by the eighty-first general assembly. In said budget the general assembly appropriated for each particular state officer and employe a definite salary, and I assume that in the cases referred to by you the said officers and employes are drawing the maximum amounts so fixed by the legislature.

The legislature having determined the regular annual salary of the officer and employe, there is no power that I know of which would authorize the payment of an additional salary for the work to be done by such officer or employe, nor do I know of any statute which specifically designates the number of hours which officers or employes are required to spend at their daily tasks. The legislature in fixing the annual salary undoubtedly contemplated that each officer or employe should put in so much time daily as the necessities of the office should require. Furthermore, in so far as the salary of officers is concerned the matter is covered by article II, section 20 of the constitution which provides as follows:

> "The general assembly, in cases not provided for in this constitution, shall fix the term of office and the compensation of all officers; but no change therein shall affect the salary of any officer during his existing term, unless the office be abolished."

Specifically answering your question, therefore, I am of the opinion that a state officer or an employe of a state department or institution who is receiving the full regular salary out of the state treasury, as fixed by the appropriation of the legislature, is not entitled to receive additional compensation for overtime or night work.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

OHIO NATIONAL GUARD—LIEUTENANT-COLONEL McQUIGG ENTITLED TO COMPENSATION HAVING PERFORMED SERVICES FOR NATIONAL GUARD.

Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg having performed the services, represented by the voucher presented, under orders of the adjutant general of Ohio is entitled to his compensation therefor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of November 15, 1916, which is as follows:

> "Herewith please find adjutant general's voucher No. 19465 in favor of Lieutenant Colonel John R. McQuigg of Cleveland, O., for $1,662.50 in payment of 133 days' services at Camp Willis and the Mexican border under general and special orders of the adjutant general thereto attached, payable from the appropriation for incidental expenses of camp and ask you to advise me at your earliest convenience if this bill may be legally paid out of said appropriation or any other appropriation made for the Ohio national guard."

The certified account presented by Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg is for "services as inspector-instructor under S. O. No. 101, G. O. No. 12, S. O. No. 197, S. O. No. 223 and S. O. No. 227, current series A G. D. from July 1, 1916, to November 10, 1916, both dates inclusive, and being 133 days at $12.50 per day_____$1,662.50." The voucher calls for a warrant to be paid from maintenance O. N. G., incidental expenses of camp.

Special order No. 101 was dated May 15, 1916, and paragraph 4 thereof reads as follows:

> "Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. McQuigg, chief engineer officer, Ohio national guard, in addition to his duties as chief engineer, will supervise the instruction and work of all engineer troops. He will from time to time, inspect the personnel and all state and government property in the possession of headquarters and the several companies, and he may issue orders for such inspections to the commanding officers at such times as he may deem proper. He will make written report of all such inspections to the adjutant general of Ohio."

Paragraph 5 of special order No. 101 reads as follows:

> "Whenever two or more companies of engineer troops are ordered on duty either within or without the state, the chief engineer officer shall accompany them, in the capacity of inspector-instructor, and at the end of such tour of duty he shall report, in writing, to the adjutant general of Ohio on the work performed and the general efficiency of officers and men."

Paragraph 6 of special order No. 101 reads as follows:

"The commanding officer, corps of engineers, will provide the chief engineer officer with transportation and quarters whenever necessary to carry out the provisions of these orders."

Special order No. 197 under date of September 7, 1916, paragraph 1, is to the following effect:

"Pursuant to paragraphs 4 to 6, S. O. 101, c. s. A. G. D., and in continuance of his duties therein prescribed, Lieutenant-Colonel John R. McQuigg, chief engineer officer, Ohio national guard, will proceed to Fort Bliss, Texas, with the Ohio engineers, and remain on duty with said organization until October 7, 1916, on which date Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg will return to his home station.

Special order No. 223 dated October 20, paragraph 4 is to the following effect:

"Paragraph 4. That part of special order No. 197, Par. 1, c. s. A. G. O., as reads 'October 7, 1916,, is changed to read October 27, 1916."

Special order No. 227, dated November 1, 1916, Par. 1 is to the following effect:

"That part of special order No. 223, paragraph 4, c. s. A. G. D. as reads 'October 27, 1916,' is changed to read November 10, 1916."

Special order No. 101 directed Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg to supervise the instruction and work of all engineer troops and from time to time inspect the personnel and all state and government property, etc., and paragraph 5 ordered said officer to accompany engineer troops in the capacity of inspector-instructor either within or without the state.

Special order No. 197 ordered Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg to proceed to Ft. Bliss with the Ohio engineers and remain with said organization until October 7.

Under special order No. 223 his time at Ft. Bliss was extended to October 27, and under special order No. 227 his time was again extended to November 10, 1916.

According to the certified account of Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg he reported for duty on July 1, 1916, and served until November 10, 1916, under the order of the adjutant general of Ohio, a part of said time being served within the state and part without. The duties of Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg were as inspector-instructor.

Section 5296 G. C. provides as follows:

"For service and attendance upon general courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and boards appointed by the commander-in-chief, as member, judge, advocate, recorder or witness, or upon inspection or other duty when ordered by the commander-in-chief, officers shall receive as pay the amount allowed by law for duty at annual encampments, together with transportation in kind and actual necessary expense for each day's service and the time actually employed in going to and returning from such duty, courts or boards.

The question of whether or not it is proper to send Lieutenant-Colonel Mc-

Quigg to Ft. Bliss, Texas, is a matter, as I view it, entirely within the discretion of the governor acting through the adjutant general of Ohio.

Having detailed Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg on the special service mentioned I am of the opinion that the voucher presented for his said services is properly payable out of the state treasury.

You also inquire out of what appropriation the compensation of Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg should be paid. The voucher drawn is drawn on the appropriation for incidental camp expenses.

The appropriation made to the Ohio national guard for the years 1916-1917 is found in 106 O. L. 790. Under personal service,

A-2, there is an appropriation for camp pay in the sum of.....$60,000.00
A-3 unclassified—Inspections and examinations..... 4,760.00
Under Maintenance—F, there is an appropriation made for "Incidental camp expense"..... 12,000.00

When Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg was ordered to Camp Willis he was ordered to such camp on a special detail. The camp expenses at Camp Willis were taken care of by the United States government, and I do not think, therefore, that the compensation of Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg on his special detail could in any way be considered as incidental camp expense.

If I understand the matter correctly Lieutenant-Colonel McQuigg was ordered to Camp Willis to perform services as inspector-instructor, but more particularly for the instruction rather than the inspection. Consequently, I do not think that his compensation should be paid out of the appropriation for inspections and examinations, but I think that his compensation should properly be paid out of "camp pay," since that is the appropriation from which the compensation of officers and men who attend camp is to be paid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS—ORDINANCES PROVIDING FOR COMPENSATION OF DISABLED OR TEMPORARY FIREMEN—WHEN TEMPORARY FIREMEN MAY BE EMPLOYED AND PAID COMPENSATION FOR PERFORMANCE OF DUTIES OF DISABLED FIREMEN —FROM WHAT FUNDS PAYMENT AUTHORIZED—CITY OF PIQUA.

There is no authority under the statutes and ordinance and rules of the city of Piqua herein considered for the payment of the compensation of firemen during periods of disability.

Where provision is made by an ordinance or resolution of the council of a city for the temporary employment of firemen to perform the services of disabled firemen, who are being paid their salaries during a period of disability, pursuant to an ordinance or resolution of council, providing therefor, such temporary firemen may be paid the compensation provided therefor within the appropriation of the fire fund.

Such temporary firemen may not be employed and paid compensation for the performance of the duties of disabled firemen who, pursuant to an ordinance or resolution of council, are paid their compensation during periods of disability, in the absence of provision by ordinance or resolution of council of a city for the employment and compensation of such temporary firemen.

Firemen may be paid from the contingent fund of a city only after the exhaustion of the appropriation of the safety fund for the fiscal half year, and when the council finds that the deficiency in the appropriation of the public safety fund has arisen from an unforseen emergency and passed an ordinance by a two-thirds vote of all members elected and approved by the mayor, authorizing payment from the contingent fund.

Payment of firemen may not be made from the general fund of a city.

There is no authority for the payment of firemen from any fund other than the safety fund and the contingent fund, in the manner pointed out herein.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of October 5, 1916, is as follows:

"We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following matters, in answer to request from the officials of the city of Piqua, Ohio.

"We enclose herewith copy of ordinance. Section 1 fixes the compensation of firemen, and we would call your attention to the provision for annual vacation in section 3, also to departmental rule No. 85. The city has no general ordinance covering the payment of firemen and policemen under the provisions of section 4383 General Code. The city has no firemen's pension fund, and it is claimed that the city does not pay anything to the workmen's compensation act.

"We respectfully ask the following questions:

"(1) Under the ordinance, laws and rules governing, if a fireman be disabled while on duty, can the city legally pay his salary for the time covering his inability to resume work owing to such injury?

"(2) If the city may pay such compensation legally, may the city also pay a special fireman appointed temporarily in his place, providing the appropriations for salary of firemen, or special firemen, are sufficient to cover?

"(3) In case such appropriations are not sufficient to cover, may they pay such compensation of special firemen from the contingent fund or the general fund, or any other funds of the municipality?"

Accompanying your above request is a newspaper publication of an ordinance, section one of which provides in part as follows:

"That the fire department of the city of Piqua, Ohio, shall be composed of the following members, who shall receive the respective salaries hereinafter provided, payable semi-monthly. * * *

"(4) Twelve firemen who shall each receive $840.00 per annum. But no fireman shall receive more than $60.00 per month for his first six months of employment as fireman, and not more than $65.00 per month for his second six months of employment as fireman dating from the time of the employment as fireman."

Section 3 of said ordinance, as shown by the above mentioned publication, provides:

"That the members of the fire department shall each be given ten (10) days' vacation annually, with full pay, the time of said vacation to be determined by the director of public safety."

There is also submitted a book entitled "Rules and Regulations for the Government of the Sub. Department of Fire in the Department of Public Safety, City of Piqua, Ohio," purporting to set forth certain rules and regulations over the signatures of the president, secretary and clerk of the board of public safety. No date of the adoption of the rules set forth is given. The date of the publication borne by the book, however, is 1908.

Rule 85 referred to in your inquiry, and found in the above mentioned book, provides as follows:

"All members of the department, under the rank of assistant chief, will be allowed one day off in every 14, and then only when the service will permit. The chief of the fire department shall keep a record of time for each member to use in reporting off duty and return to duty, on all regular leave of absence, and each special leave of absence.

"The clerk of the board shall receive, record and keep a permanent record of the same."

It is stated in your inquiry that it is claimed that the city of Piqua does not pay the premium required by the workman's compensation law. Upon investigation I find the fact to be that such premium has been fully paid.

General provision for the determination of the number of officers, clerks and employes in each department of the government and fixing their compensation in cities is found in section 4214 G. C., as follows:

"Except as otherwise provided in this title, council, by ordinance or resolution, shall determine the number of officers, clerks and employes in each department of the city government, and shall fix by ordinance or resolution their respective salaries and compensation, and the amount of bond to be given for each officer, clerk or employe in each department of the government, if any be required. Such bond shall be made by such officer, clerk or employe, with surety subject to the approval of the mayor."

Further provision applicable to the fire departments of cities is found in section 4377 G. C., as follows:

"The fire department of each city shall be composed of a chief of the fire department, and such marshals, assistant marshals, firemen, telephone and telegraph operators as are provided by resolution or ordinance of council. The director of public safety shall have the exclusive management and control of such other officers, surgeons, secretaries, clerks, and employes as are provided by ordinance or resolution of council."

Under the provisions of the foregoing sections, the number of regularly employed firemen, and the compensation of all firemen employed in cities, are subject to the determination of council by ordinance or resolution. In thus fixing the compensation of firemen it is clearly within the power of council to provide by ordinance or resolution that the salary or compensation of firemen may be paid during periods of disability within the term of their employment, resulting from injury received in the discharge of his duty.

The ordinance above quoted does not, in my judgment, however, contemplate the payment of firemen during such periods of disability. In order, therefore, that the payment of the compensation of firemen employed by the city of Piqua during periods of disability may be lawfully made, further provision therefor by resolution or ordinance of council would be necessary.

I have heretofore referred only to the payment of the compensation of firemen. Section 4383 G. C., to which reference is made, provides as follows:

"Council may provide by general ordinance for the relief out of the police or fire funds, of members of either department temporarily or permanently disabled in the discharge of their duty. Nothing herein shall impair, restrict or repeal any provision of law authorizing the levy of taxes in municipalities to provide for firemen's police and sanitary police pension funds, and to create and perpetuate boards of trustees for the administration of such funds."

This section gives to council authority to provide relief for firemen during periods of disability out of the fire funds by general ordinance. The term "relief" here used comprehends more than the mere payment of regular compensation during the period of disability and therefore operates to confer upon council a broader power than that derived from sections 4214 and 4377 G. C., supra. The power so conferred has, as you state, not been exercised, and there is no statutory provision directly conferring authority for the payment of the compensation of firemen during periods of disability. The authority for the payment of firemen during such periods of disability must be found in an ordinance or resolutioon of council.

Reference is made in the above inquiry to "Rule 85," supra. This rule must be considered in connection with section 4382 G. C., which provides as follows:

"The director of public safety shall classify the service in the police and fire departments in conformity with the ordinance of council determining the number of persons to be employed therein, and shall make all rules for the regulation and discipline of such departments, except as otherwise provided in this subdivision."

It will be noted that the authority to make rules here conferred is confined to rules for the regulation and discipline of the departments and does not extend to the regulation of the payment of the compensation of employes and firemen which, as above pointed out, is governed by ordinance or resolution of council alone. Rule 85 has no direct reference to the payment of the compensation of firemen. Further provision for regulations governing firemen is found in subdivision 11 of division V of title XII, part first, of the General Code, in which section 4382 G. C., supra, appears.

In this connection attention is called to section 4393 G. C., which provides as follows:

"The council may establish all necessary regulations to guard against the occurrence of fires, protect the property and lives of the citizens against damages and accidents resulting therefrom, and for such purpose may establish and maintain a fire department, provide for the establishment and organization of fire engine and hose companies, establish the hours of labor of the members of its fire department, but after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and eleven, council shall not require any fireman to be on duty continuously more than six days in every seven, and provide such by-laws and regulations for their government as is deemed necessary and proper."

There is thus conferred upon council specific authority to provide by-laws and regulations for the government of firemen, and the provisions of this section modify the power conferred upon the director of public safety to make rules and regulations by section 4382 G. C.

It is specifically provided by section 4393 G. C. that no fireman shall be required to be on duty continuously more than six days in seven, and rule 85, being in conflict therewith in that it allows only one day off in fourteen, is therefore inoperative and of no effect in so far as it may be construed to require a fireman to be on duty in excess of six days in seven.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your first question, that there is no authority under the ordinance and rules submitted for the payment of the compensation of firemen in the city of Piqua during periods of disability. There is no authority therefor directly conferred by statute, although council may make provision for the same by ordinance or resolution.

Each fireman is, nevertheless, entitled, under the provisions of section 3 of the ordinance submitted, to ten days' vacation annually with full pay for such time. The time of such vacation is to be determined by the director of public safety. If the director of public safety so determines, a period or periods of disability not in excess of ten days in one year may be taken by a fireman as his vacation, in which event payment of compensation during such vacation may be made.

Since it is stated that the city of Piqua has established no firemen's pension fund under authority of section 4600 G. C., if the relief afforded under such ordinance, as is authorized by section 4383 G. C., goes only to the payment of regular salary during disability, an injured fireman may be paid from the workmen's compensation fund a reasonable allowance for medical, nurse and hospital service and medicines, as held in an opinion addressed to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, under date of June 10, 1915, found at page 984 of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for 1915.

Further inquiry is made as to the authority for the payment of a "special fireman appointed temporarily" in place of a disabled fireman who is paid his salary during disability. This question is conditioned on the payment of the regular compensation of a fireman during a period of disability which, it has been heretofore held, is not authorized by law and the ordinance and rule of the city of Piqua above quoted and the answer thereto can, therefore, have no application to that city. It may nevertheless be observed that if in fixing the number of firemen to be employed provision should be made by council of a city, by ordinance or resolution, for the employment of temporary firemen to fill the places of injured firemen, as I think council would have power to do under the provisions of sections 4214 and 4377 G. C., then the fact that one fireman was being paid his compensation during a period of disability, under a provision therefor by ordinance or resolution of council, would be no bar to the payment of the compensation of a fireman temporarily employed to fill his place within the appropriation therefor and so long as the total number of firemen does not exceed the number authorized by ordinance or resolution to be employed.

In connection with the foregoing general provisions governing the fire department of cities, must be considered the provisions of section 4376 G. C., as follows:

> "The chief of the fire department shall have exclusive control of the stationing and transferring of all firemen and other officers and employes in the department, under such general rules and regulations as the director of public safety prescribes. In case of riot or other like emergency the mayor may appoint additional firemen and officers for temporary service who need not be in the classified list of the department. Such additional officers or firemen shall be employed only for the time during which the emergency exists."

The provisions of this section have no application to the employment of a fireman to temporarily perform the services of a disabled regular fireman, but is restricted in its operation to cases of riots and other like emergencies.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to the second question submitted, that in cases where provision is made by the council of a city for the temporary employment of firemen to perform the services of disabled firemen who are being paid their salaries during a period of disability, pursuant to an ordinance or resolution of council, such temporary firemen may be paid the compensation provided therefor within the appropriation of the fire fund. Such temporary firemen may not be employed and paid compensation for the performance of the services of disabled firemen who, pursuant to an ordinance or resolution of the council of a city are paid their compensation during the period of disability, in the absence of provision by ordinance or resolution of council of a city for the employment and compensation of such temporary firemen.

The compensation of firemen in cities is paid from the public safety fund, and is subject to the provisions of section 3797 G. C. and section 5649-3d G. C., only the latter of which it is necessary to here quote. Section 5649-3d G. C. provides as follows:

> "At the beginning of each fiscal half year the various boards mentioned in section 5649-3a of this act shall make appropriations for each of the several objects for which money has to be provided, from the moneys known to be in the treasury from the collection of taxes and all other sources of revenue, and all expenditures within the following six months shall be made from and within such appropriations and balances thereof, > but no appropriation shall be made for any purposes not set forth in the annual budget nor for a greater amount for such purpose than the total amount fixed by the budget commissioners, exclusive of receipts and balances."

Among the boards mentioned in section 5649-3a G. C. is the council of municipal corporation.

By force of the provisions of these sections, no expenditures of funds may be made within any fiscal half-year for any purpose in excess of the amount appropriated therefor.

The creation of a contingent fund is authorized by section 3800 G. C., as follows:

> "In making the semi-annual appropriations and apportionments herein required, council may deduct and set apart from any moneys, not otherwise appropriated, such sum as it deems proper as a contingent fund to provide for any deficiency in any of the detailed appropriations, which may lawfully and by any unforseen emergency happen. Such contingent fund or any part thereof may be expended for any such emergency only by ordinance passed by two-thirds of all the members elected to council, and approved by the mayor. Any balance remaining in such contingent fund at the end of the fiscal year shall thereupon become a part of the general fund, to be again appropriated as other moneys belonging to the corporation. This section shall not interfere with the provisions of law authorizing the transfer of funds by the court of common pleas."

Though the appropriation from the safety fund be insufficient to pay firemen for the fiscal half-year, the contingent fund would not be available for that purpose unless the deficiency in the safety fund should arise from some unforeseen emergency and the council, by a two-third vote of all members elected, pass an ordinance, with the approval of the mayor, authorizing such expenditures from the contingent fund.

Whether the deficiency in the appropriation for the payment of firemen has arisen from an unforseen emergency is a question to be determined in the first instance by the council and mayor in thus making provision for payment from the contingent fund, from all the facts in each particular case, no rule for which can be here laid down. Such determination by council and the mayor would not be disturbed by the courts unless upon consideration of all the facts and circumstances of the particular case it appear that such action was fraudulent or constituted a gross abuse of the discretion vested in them.

Obligations or claims against the city which are payable from a particular fund provided therefor may not be paid from the general fund in the absence of specific statutory authority therefor, and hence the compensation of special firemen may not be paid from the general fund of the city, nor is there any fund from which such compensation may be paid other than the firemen's fund and the contingent fund, in the manner above pointed out.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your third question, that firemen may be paid from the contingent fund of a city only after the exhaustion of the appropriation of the safety fund for the fiscal half-year and when the council finds that the deficiency in the appropriation of the public safety fund has arisen from an unforseen emergency and passes an ordinance by a two-thirds vote of all members elected and approved by the mayor, authorizing payment from the contingent fund. Payment of the compensation of firemen may not be made from the general fund of a city. There is no authority for the payment of the compensation of firemen from any fund of a city other than the safety fund and the contingent fund in the manner hereinbefore pointed out.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGE—TERM OF JUDGE ELECTED AT NOVEMBER ELECTION, 1916, TO FILL UNEXPIRED TERM OF JUDGE MATTHIAS WILL END DECEMBER 31, 1916.

The term of office of a common pleas judge elected November 7, 1916, to fill the unexpired term of a judge elected in November, 1910, for a term of six years, beginning January 1, 1911, and who resigned in January, 1915, will end on December 31, 1916.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. EDWARD C. STITZ, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Van Wert, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of November 21, 1916, is as follows:

"Having reference to the expiration of the short term of the judge of the court of common pleas, Van Wert county, present incumbent Edward C. Stitz:

"Inasmuch as I understand that this matter has been taken up with your office, and it has been suggested to me that I write you my notion of the matter, I beg to say I am filling this short term judgship, by election, and believe that my term expires on December 31, 1916. This short term is the unexpired term of Edward S. Matthias, who resigned to become a justice of the supreme court in January, 1915. There has been considerable discussion as to whether this term expires February 9 or January 1. This matter became a question of debate, because when Judge Matthias was first elected to the common pleas court his term began February 9. Mr. H. W. Blachly, who has been elected for the long term, would rather prefer that his term did not begin until February 9, for business reasons, and I would prefer that my term end before January 1, for business reasons. We desire the question to be decided positively so that there may be no question in the mind of anybody about this matter; so there may be no legal quibble.

"Judge Matthias was elected in 1904, for a term of five years, from February 9, 1905, under the act passed March 17, 1904, vol. 97 O. L., pages 41 and 42. His term was extended to January 1, 1911, by the act of March 22, 1905, vol. 98, page 120. In 1910 he was elected for six years, commencing January 1, 1911, and his term expires January 1, 1917. See vol. 98 O. L. page 120. These several acts have been passed in conformity to the various provisions of the constitution.

"I am handing a copy of this letter to Mr. Blachly."

By the provisions of article XVII of the constitution, section 2, as adopted November 7, 1905, the term of office of the judges of the court of common pleas was changed from five years, as then provided by section 12 of article IV, to six years. By section 1 of article XVII, as amended in 1905, it was required that all state and county officers be elected in the even numbered years. In order to make the terms and election of common pleas judges conform to the above constitutional provision, section 2 of the act of March 22, 1906, 98 O. L., 120, provided as follows:

> "The existing term of office of any judge or additional judge of said court which would otherwise expire in any even numbered year, or in November or December of any odd numbered year, shall be and is hereby extended to the first day of January of the odd numbered year next succeeding such expiration, and the incumbent of said office at the time when such existing term would otherwise expire, shall hold the same until the expiration of said term as so extended, subject to all the provisions of the constitution or laws, relative to impeachment, removals or vacancies therein. Provided, however, that the term of any said judge expiring in the year one thousand nine hundred and six, whose successor has been elected prior to the passage of this act, shall not be so extended.
> "Provided that nothing contained in this act shall affect the term of office or extension thereof fixed by any special act passed by the 77th general assembly."

By the operation of this provision the then current term of Judge Matthias was extended to January 1, 1911, as stated in your inquiry. The term of six years for which he was elected in 1910, began January 1, 1911, and will therefore expire December 31, 1916. When the vacancy occurred in January, 1915, by the resignation of Judge Matthias, it is assumed that such vacancy was filled by appointment by the governor, pursuant to the provision of section 13 of article IV of the constitution, as follows:

> "In case the office of any judge shall become vacant before the expiration of the regular term for which he was elected, the vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the governor, until a successor is elected and qualified; and such successor shall be elected for the unexpired term, at the first annual election that occurs more than thirty days after the vacancy shall have happened."

The appointee was, then, under this constitutional provision, entitled to serve until his successor was elected at the November election, 1916, and thereafter qualified. The successor of such appointee was required to be elected for the unexpired term, which, as we have heretofore pointed out, ends December 31, 1916.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your inquiry that the term of the judge elected at the November election, 1916, to fill the unexpired term of Judge Matthias, will end on December 31, 1916.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—WHERE PUPIL HAS RECEIVED BOXWELL DIPLOMA AT TIME OF LAW'S REPEAL—HAS ALL RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES CONFERRED BY SECTIONS 7747 AND 7748 G. C.—MAY ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL ALTHOUGH BOXWELL LAW IS REPEALED.

A pupil who held a diploma under the provisions of section 7744 G. C. at the time of its repeal, and is now of lawful school age, and has not completed the high school work, is entitled to all the rights and privileges conferred by sections 7747 and 7748 G. C., 104 O. L., 125, subject to the provisions of section 7750 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. ADDISON P. MINSHALL, Prosecuting Attorney, Chillicothe, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of November 15, 1916, is as follows:

> "I have been requested to obtain from you an opinion upon the following proposition:
> "Under the Boxwell law a pupil passed a satisfactory examination and took part in the commencement exercises as provided by law. Does this entitle him to attend a high school and have his tuition paid for the number of years he would have been entitled to attend the high school if the Boxwell law had not been repealed?"

Under the Boxwell law, section 7740 G. C., et seq., provision was made for holding examinations of pupils of townships, special districts and village districts by the board of county school examiners and for conducting a commencement for such pupils as passed such examinations. Section 7744 G. C. provided as follows:

> "The board of county school examiners shall provide for the holding of a county commencement not later than August fifteenth, at such place as it determines. At this commencement an annual address must be delivered, at the conclusion of which a diploma shall be presented to each successful applicant who has complied with the provisions hereof. Such diploma shall entitle its holder to enter any high school in the state."

Under the facts stated in your inquiry and the provisions of section 7744 G. C., supra, prior to its repeal, the pupil in question was entitled to a diploma, which diploma it is assumed was received by the pupil prior to the taking effect of the repeal of section 7744 G. C., 104 O. L., 125, May 20, 1914, and this diploma entitled the holder thereof to enter any high school in the state. That is to say, any pupil who held a diploma, presented to him pursuant to the provisions of section 7744 G. C., prior to the taking effect of the repeal thereof, May 20, 1914, was eligible to any high school in the state. The diploma so held then evidenced the completion of the elementary school work.

Sections 7740 to 7746 G. C., inclusive, were repealed in 104 O. L., 125, and sections 7747 and 7748 were, in the same act, amended to provide as follows:

> "Sec. 7747. The tuition of pupils who are eligible for admission to high school and who reside in rural districts in which no high school is maintained, shall be paid by the board of education of the school district in which they have legal school residence, such tuition to be computed by the month. An attendance any part of the month shall create a liability for the entire month. No more shall be charged per capita than the amount ascertained by dividing the total expense of conducting the high school of the district attended, exclusive of permanent improvements and repair, by the average monthly enrollment in the high school of the district. The district superintendent shall certify to the county superintendent each year the names of all pupils in his supervision district who have completed the elementary school work, and are eligible for admission to high school. The county superintendent shall thereupon issue to each pupil so certified a certificate of promotion which shall entitle the holder to admission to any high school. Such certificate shall be furnished by the superintendent of public instruction.

"Section 7748. A board of education providing a third grade high school as defined by law shall be required to pay the tuition of graduates from such school residing in the district at any first grade high school for two years, or at a second grade high school for one year. Should pupils residing in the district prefer not to attend such third grade high school the board of education of such district shall be required to pay the tuition of such pupils at any first grade high school for four years, or at any second grade high school for three years and a first grade high school for one year. Such a board providing a second grade high school as defined by law shall pay the tuition of graduates residing in the district at any first grade high school for one year; except that, a board maintaining a second or third grade high school is not required to pay such tuition when the maximum levy permitted by law for such district has been reached and all the funds so raised are necessary for the support of the schools of such district. No board of education is required to pay the tuition of any pupil for more than four school years; except that it must pay the tuition of all successful applicants, who have complied with the further provisions hereof, residing more than four miles by the most direct route of public travel, from the high school provided by the board, when such applicants attend a nearer high school, or in lieu of paying such tuition the board of education maintaining a high school may pay for the transportation of the pupils living more than four miles from the said high school, maintained by the said board of education to said high school. Where more than one high school is maintained, by agreement of the board and parent or guardian, pupils may attend either and their transportation shall be so paid. A pupil living in a village or city district who has completed the elementary school course and whose legal residence has been transferred to a rural district in this state before he begins or completes a high school course, shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of a resident pupil of such district."

While the method of determining the completion of the elementary school work and eligibility of pupils to high schools was changed by the repeal and amendment of the above mentioned sections of the General Code, it is not believed that it was intended that the eligibility of pupils to high schools theretofore determined and established should be in any way affected thereby. I am, therefore, led to conclude that upon the taking effect of the amendment of section 7747 G. C., supra, it was the duty of the district superintendent to certify to the county superintendent the names of all pupils in their respective supervision districts, of school age, who held diplomas under the provisions of section 7744 G. C., and it was the duty of the county superintendent to thereupon issue to such pupils a certificate of promotion, which would then have entitled the holder of such certificate to admission to any high school. The provisions of sections 7747 and 7748 G. C., supra, are subject, however, to modification by the provisions of section 7750 G. C., as follows:

> "A board of education not having a high school may enter into an agreement with one or more boards of education maintaining such school for the schooling of all its high school pupils. When such agreement is made the board making it shall be exempt from the payment of tuition at other high schools of pupils living within three miles of the school designated in the agreement, if the school or schools selected by the board are located in the same civil township, as that of the board making it, or some adjoining township. In case no such agreement is entered into, the school to be attended can be selected by the pupil holding a diploma, if due notice in writing is given to the clerk of the board of education of the name of the school to be attended and the date the attendance is to begin, such notice to be filed not less than five days previous to the beginning of attendance."

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that a pupil who held a diploma under the provisions of section 7744 G. C., at the time of its repeal, and is now of lawful school age, and has not completed the high school work, is entitled to all rights and privileges conferred by sections 7747 and 7748 G. C., 104 O. L., 125, subject, however, to the provisions of section 7750 G. C., supra.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SCHOOLS—NO POWER IN APPOINTING AUTHORITY TO INCREASE COMPENSATION OF DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT DURING TERM FOR WHICH HE WAS ELECTED AFTER APPOINTMENT HAS BEEN ACCEPTED BY PERSON SO ELECTED—WHEN CERTIFICATE ONCE MADE TO COUNTY AUDITOR NO SUBSEQUENT CERTIFICATION MAY BE MADE FOR THAT YEAR.

There is no power in the appointing authority provided by section 4739 G. C., 104 O. L., 140, to increase the compensation of a district superintendent during the term of service for which he was elected, and his compensation fixed pursuant to the provisions of section 4743 G. C., 104 O. L., 142, after the appointment has been accepted by the person so elected.

When a certification has once been made to the county auditor, according to the provisions of section 4744-2 G. C., 104 O. L., 142, no subsequent certification may be made for that year.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of November 25, 1916, is as follows:

"Will you kindly render us an opinion on the following:

"1st. When the compensation of a district superintendent is made pursuant to section 4743 G. C. (104 O. L., 142) can the salary be raised after October 1 next following?

"2nd. After the certification provided for in section 4744-2 (104 O. L., 142) has been made and the apportionment therein provided for has been made, may the board of education change such certification so as to increase the salary of the district superintendent, and ask that a sum be retained from the settlement of the following February sufficient to meet such increase?

"This situation has arisen in the village district of Byesville, Guernsey county, and will come before us under the provisions of section 4744-3 G. C. (104 O. L., 143.)"

Considering the first question submitted, it may be observed that by the provisions of section 4738 G. C., 106 O. L., 396, the county board of education is required to divide the county school district any year, to take effect the first day of the following September, into supervision districts, each to contain one or more village or rural school districts, and the county board of education is also thereby required, upon application of three-fourths of the presidents of the village and rural school district boards of the county, to redistrict the county into supervision districts.

Section 4739 G. C., 104 O. L., 140, and section 4743 G. C., 104 O. L., 142, provide as follows:

"Sec. 4739. Each supervision district shall be under the direction of a district superintendent. Such district superintendent shall be elected by the presidents of the village and rural boards of education within such district, except that where such supervision districts contains three or less rural or village school districts the boards of education of such school districts in joint session shall elect such superintendent. The district superintendent shall be employed upon the nomination of the county superintendent, but the board electing such district superintendent may by a majority vote elect a district superintendent not so nominated.

"Sec. 4743. The compensation of the district superintendent shall be fixed at the same time that the appointment is made and by the same authority which appoints him; such compensation shall be paid out of the county board of education fund on vouchers signed by the president of the county board. The salary of any district superintendent shall in no case be less than one thousand dollars per annum, half of which salary not to exceed seven hundred and fifty dollars shall be paid by the state and half by the supervision district, except where the number of teachers in any supervision district is less than forty, in which case the amounts paid by the state shall be such proportion of half the salary as the ratio of the number of teachers employed is to forty. The half paid by the supervision district shall be pro-rated among the village and rural school districts in such district in proportion to the number of teachers employed in each district."

District superintendents are not officers and are, therefore, not subject to the provisions of section 20, article II of the constitution, as follows:

"The general assembly, in cases not provided for in this constitution, shall fix the term of office and the compensation of all officers; but no change therein shall effect the salary of any officer during his existing term, unless the office be abolished."

A contrary holding in this regard would render that provision of section 4743 G. C., supra, authorizing the compensation of district superintendents to be fixed by the appointing authority, unconstitutional.

The presidents of the village and rural boards of education and the members of such boards, when in joint session, are, however, in the employment of district superintendents, subject to the familiar rule that public officers, in the discharge of their official duties, have only such powers as are expressly conferred by law or are necessary to the proper performance of duties imposed or the exercise of powers conferred by express provision of law.

The particular officers referred to, in the employment of district superintendents, and the fixing of their compensation, pursuant to sections 4739 and 4743 G. C., supra, have not conferred upon them the general power to contract and be contracted with, as in the case of boards of education, under the provisions of section 4749 G. C.

There is found no express statutory provision authorizing the presidents of the boards of education of rural and village districts, or the members of such boards in joint session, authorized by section 4739 G. C., supra, to increase or decrease the compensation of a district superintendent, after the same has once been determined, pursuant to the provisions of section 4743 G. C., supra, and the same accepted by the person so elected, and it is not believed that the exercise of such power is in any way necessary to a proper performance of the duties imposed by law upon such officers in respect to the election of and determining the compensation of district superintendents.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, in answer to your first question, that there is no power in the appointing authority provided in section 4739 G. C., supra, to increase the compensation of a district superintendent, during the term of service for which he was elected, and his compensation fixed pursuant to the provisions of section 4743 G. C., supra, after the appointment has been accepted by the person so elected.

Your second question involves a consideration of sections 4742 G. C., 104 O. L., 141, and 4744-2 G. C., 104 O. L., 142, which provide as follows:

"Section 4742. Not less than sixty days before the expiration of the term of any district superintendent, the presidents of the board of education within such supervision district, or in supervision district which contain three or less village or rural districts, the boards of education of such districts shall meet and elect his successor. The president of the board in the village or rural district having the largest number of teachers shall issue the call giving at least ten days' notice of the time and place of meeting. He shall also act as chairman and certify the results of such meeting to the county board of education.

"Sec. 4744-2. On or before the first day of August of each year the county board of education shall certify to the county auditor the number of teachers to be employed for the ensuing year in the various rural and village school districts within the county school district, and also the number of district superintendents employed and their compensation and the compensation of the county superintendent; and such board of education shall also certify to the county auditor the amounts to be apportioned to each district for the payment of its share of the salaries of the county and district superintendents."

Section 4742 G. C., supra, clearly requires that all district superintendents shall be elected prior to sixty days before September 1 each year, so that it is contemplated that on August 1 of each year the number and compensation of district superintendents will have been finally determined. As held, in answer to your first question, the compensation so fixed at the time of the election of district superintendents may not be changed after acceptance, during the term for which the superintendent is appointed, and this answers one branch of your second question. All elections of district superintendents should be made before July 2 of each year, and it is upon the election so made that the certification on or before August 1, required by section 4744-2 G. C., supra, is required to be made.

I am aware of no authority to make a second certification under this section and am of opinion that when a certification has once been made to the county auditor, according to the provisions of section 4744-2 G. C., supra, no subsequent certification may be made for that year.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION—WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO INSPECT BOILERS ON MUNICIPAL FIRE APPARATUS.

The industrial commission is without authority to inspect boilers on municipal fire apparatus and to collect fees for such inspection.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—On October 23 you sent to me a protest filed by the city solicitor of the city of Cincinnati against the jurisdiction of the industrial commission, chief boiler inspector and the board of boiler rules, in the matter of the inspection of fire apparatus and boilers and inspection fees therefor in the city of Cincinnati, together with a copy of a brief filed with the commission by the city solicitor of Cincinnati, and requesting my opinion as to the authority of the boiler inspection department of the industrial commission to inspect boilers on municipal fire apparatus and to collect fees for such inspection.

I have carefully run over the brief of the city solicitor and agree with the conclusions which he urges, though I am unable to agree with all the reasons therefor which he expresses.

The statute, the interpretation of which is involved, is section 1058-7 of the General Code as enacted 103 O. L. 649, Supplement to Page & Adams, vol. I, p. 289, which provides as follows:

> "Sec. 1058-7. All steam boilers and their appurtenances, except boilers of railroad locomotives, subject to inspection under federal laws, portable boilers used in pumping, heating, steaming and drilling, in the open field, for water, gas and oil, and portable boilers used for agricultural purposes, and in construction of and repairs to public roads, railroads and bridges, boilers on automobiles, boilers of steam fire engines brought into the state for temporary use in times of emergency for the purpose of checking conflagrations, boilers carrying pressure of less than fifteen pounds per square inch, which are equipped with safety devices approved by the board of boiler rules, and boilers under the jurisdiction of the United States, shall be thoroughly inspected, internally and externally, and under operating conditions at intervals of not more than one year, and shall not be operated at pressure in excess of the safe working pressure stated in the certificate of inspection hereinafter mentioned. And shall be equipped with such appliances to insure safety of operation as shall be prescribed by the board of boiler rules."

The first principal urged by the city solicitor in his brief is the familiar one that the state and its government agencies are not bound by or intended to be included in the statute unless expressly mentioned therein. The authorities cited show that this principle applies even to police regulations. In other words, as a general rule, police regulations are intended to apply to persons and corporations in their private or proprietary capacity, and not to municipal corporations or subdivisions of the state in the exercise of governmental functions.

It is next shown by citation of Frederick v. Columbus, 58 O. S. 538, that the fire department of a city is a branch of its government which is of a public or governmental nature, as distinguished from a private or proprietary nature.

Therefore, it is argued, and I think correctly, that the presumption above referred to has proper application to a municipal corporation in the management and conduct of its fire department and in the ownership and use of the property incident thereto.

There would be no difficulty in the application of these principles were it not for the underscored provision of section 1058-7 as above quoted. The fact that the general assembly deemed it necessary to exclude from the operation of the statute boilers of steam fire engines brought into the state for temporary use in times of emergency, for the purpose of checking conflagrations, tends to support the conclusion that the legislature thought that without this exception the statute would have applied to the boilers of all fire engines; and inasmuch as most fire engines at least are owned and operated by municipal corporations in the exercise of the public or governmental function defined by Frederick v. Columbus, supra, it is therefore to be inferred that the general assembly intended to make the boiler inspection law apply to all boilers, whether used governmentally or not.

Therefore it might be argued that there is in this way sufficient evidence of the legislative intent to overthrow the presumption above referred to, which is rebuttable and which is after all but an expedient employed by the law for the purpose of arriving at the true legislative intent.

In answer to this possible argument, the city solicitor urges that when the property of other states is brought temporarily into this state for a purpose like that mentioned in the exception, it loses whatever governmental character it might have had in the state from which it comes, and would be regarded as purely private property in Ohio; so that it would come within the general terms of the statute and would suffer a discrimination as compared with similar agencies governmentally owned and used in Ohio, unless a special exception were made in its favor. This argument is persuasive, though perhaps not conclusive.

I am not entirely satisfied that if fire engines of another state were brought into this state and here used in case of temporary emergency, for the purpose of checking conflagration, they would be regarded here as purely private property, especially if used under the direction of the proper officers of a fire department in the state of Ohio. However, there is enough question about this, perhaps, to justify the general assembly in making the matter entirely clear by creating the special exception which has been referred to.

In short, then, the special exception does not clearly show the legislative intent to make the general terms of the statute cover boilers used for governmental purposes. The rule of presumption, however, is that the purpose of the legislature to make a regulatory law apply to governmental agencies must be clearly expressed or necessarily implied. Black on Interpretation of Statutes. 94; State v. Board of Public Works, 36 O. S. 409.

An implication is relied upon by the argument above suggested to make the general terms of the statute cover governmental agencies. That implication, as has been seen, is by no means direct and conclusive. I find myself, therefore, unable to hold that there is such "necessary implication" derivable from the exception which has been discussed as is sufficient to overthrow the presumption referred to.

Aside from all this, however, there is another consideration which to my mind is equally as conclusive as anything which is urged by the city solicitor. Manifestly the substantive provisions of section 1058-7 G. C., above quoted, extend no further than the remedial provisions by which it is to be enforced.

Section 1058-28 G. C. provides in this respect as follows (103 O. L. 649):

> "Whoever being the owner, or operator of any steam boiler, herein required to be inspected, operated the same in violation of any provision of the law or of any rule promulgated by the board of boiler rules, and approved by the governor, or without having the same inspected and a certificate issued therefor as provided in this act, or who hinders or prevents a duly qualified inspector from entering any premises in or on which a steam boiler is situated for the purpose of inspection, shall be fined not less than twenty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars."

This offense in my judgment could not be committed by any fireman or fire chief, unless the municipality employing him should furnish the fee to be paid or otherwise authorize and direct him to have the inspection made. It is certainly not the duty of a city employe, under the related statutes, to have the inspection made at his own expense. No interpretation which can be given to the sections can create such a duty.

Therefore in my opinion a city employe could not be prosecuted and convicted, under section 1058-28 G. C. The liability, if any under this section, rests elsewhere.

Some question might be made as to whether the director of public safety of a city, or other similar officer exercising such authority as the director of pubic safety is authorized to exercise with respect to the police and fire departments governed by the general laws, could be punished under this section. However this may be, it is clear to my mind that the city itself can not be fined as "owner" as therein provided. Our laws of criminal procedure fail to provide any means of prosecuting a municipal corporation as a defendant charged with crime.

I conclude, therefore, that because the city could not be proceeded against under these statutes as an owner, it necessarily follows that the statutes do not apply to the city in such capacity, at least when acting in a governmental capacity.

What I have said does not of course apply to a city when acting in a proprietary capacity, as the decision in Frederick v. Columbus, supra, implies that it may act. I shall not, however, within the scope of this opinion, attempt to point out the circumstances under which a city may be said to be acting in such proprietary capacity.

For all the above reasons, then, I am of the opinion that the industrial commission of Ohio, the board of boiler rules and its inspectors are without authority to compel an inspection of municipal fire engine boilers and to exact fees therefor, under the present laws.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—APPROVAL OF ORDER REQUIRING CITY OF CANTON TO INSTALL SANITARY TRUNK SEWERS TO CORRECT POLLUTION OF EAST AND WEST BRANCHES OF NIMISHILLEN CREEK.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Enclosed you will find order of the state board of health, requiring the city of Canton to install and have in use the necessary sanitary trunk sewers to correct the pollution of the east and west branches of the Nimishillen creek, said order to become effective when you have approved the same.

I have examined the order which is issued under section 1251 of the General Code of Ohio and find the same regular, and it is my opinion that it should be approved. Having approved the same, under the provision of section 1251 of the General Code, I am transmitting the order to you for your approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—APPROVAL OF ORDER FOR SEWERAGE SYSTEM, VILLAGE OF WORTHINGTON.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Enclosed you will find order of the state board of health, directed to the village of Worthington, requiring the installation and operation of necessary sewers and sewage treatment works to correct the pollution of water courses tributary to the Olentangy river, said order to become effective when you have approved the same.

I have examined the order, which is issued under section 1251 of the General Code of Ohio, and find the same regular, and it is my opinion that it should be approved. Having approved the same, under the provision of section 1251 of the General Code, I am transmitting the order to you for your approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, ORDER OF STATE BOARD OF HEALTH REQUIRING CITY OF WOOSTER TO INSTALL SATISFACTORY WATER SUPPLY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Enclosed you will find order of the state board of health requiring that the city of Wooster shall install and have in operation prior to January 1, 1916, a public water supply satisfactory to the state board of health, said order to become effective when you have approved the same.

I have examined the order, which is issued under section 1254 of the General Code of Ohio, and find the same regular and it is my opinion that it should be approved. I have accordingly approved the same and am transmitting the order to you for your approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS—MAY PREVENT WITHDRAWAL OF STOCK OF DEPOSITORS BEFORE SUCH STOCK HAS BEEN PAID UP IN FULL—SECTIONS 9651 AND 9652 G. C. CONSTRUED IN CONNECTION WITH CONTEMPLATED CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS OF SUCH ASSOCIATION.

A building and loan association under sections 9651 and 9652 G. C. may so frame its constitution and by-laws as to prevent the withdrawal of stock of depositors before such stock has been paid up in full.

After such stock has been paid up in full the stockholder may, subject to the constitution and by-laws of the company, withdraw his stock deposits.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 29, 1916.

HON. L. G. SILBAUGH, Inspector of Building and Loan Associations, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of November 21, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "I respectfully request your opinion upon the following queries:
> "Under sections 9651 and 9652 of the General Code, can a building and loan association so frame its constitution and by-laws as to not permit anyone who has stock in the association to withdraw any part of what he has already deposited before the stock has been paid up in full?
> "Also, after the stock has once been paid up in full, can the stockholder withdraw his stock at will, subject to the by-laws of the company?"

Section 9643 of the General Code relative to the organization of building and loan associations is as follows:

> "A corporation for the purpose of raising money to be loaned to its members, and others, shall be known in this chapter, and in the laws relating to the bureau of building and loan associations, as a 'building and loan association,' or as a 'savings association.' Associations organized under the laws of this state shall be known as 'domestic associations,' and those organized under the laws of other states or territories, as 'foreign' associations. Associations may be organized and conducted under the general laws of Ohio relating to corporations, except as otherwise provided in this chapter."

Under authority of the above section, building and loan associations organized under the laws of Ohio are governed by the general corporation laws of the state unless they are granted special powers or otherwise limited by succeeding sections of the chapter relative to building and loan associations.

Section 9649 of the General Code, authorizing the issuance of stock by building and loan associations, is as follows:

"To issue stock to members on such terms and conditions as the constitution and by-laws provide. Each member may vote his stock in whole or fractional shares, as the constitution and by-laws provide, but no person shall vote more than twenty shares in any such corporation in his own right, nor have the right to cumulate his votes. But every subscriber for stock in accordance with the constitution of the association, may vote the amount of stock so subscribed for, in no event to exceed twenty shares."

Section 9651 and 9652 of the General Code, referred to in your letter, relative to the withdrawal of stock deposits and ordinary deposits, are as follows:

"Sec. 9651. To permit members to withdraw all or part of their stock deposits, at such times, and upon such terms, as the constitution and by-laws provide. Any member, however, who withdraws his entire stock deposit, or whose stock has matured, shall be entitled to receive all dues paid in and dividends declared thereon, less all fines or other assessments, and less the pro rata share of all losses, if any have occurred.

"Sec. 9652. To permit withdrawal of deposits upon such terms and conditions as the association provides except by check or draft. But no such association shall be permitted to carry for any member or depositor any demand, commercial or checking account. Nothing in this chapter shall prevent members or depositors from withdrawing funds by non-negotiable orders."

The powers conferred by the last two sections are clearly permissive and not mandatory.

I, therefore, advise you, in answer to your first question, that a building and loan association may so form its constitution and by-laws as not to permit one who has stock in the association to withdraw any part of the amount paid or deposited on said stock before such stock has been paid up in full.

Answering your second question, I advise you that after stock in building and loan associations has been paid up in full the stockholder may withdraw his stock deposit at will if authorized by and subject to the constitution and by-laws of said company.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL OF RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF OTTAWA-FINDLAY ROAD IN PUTNAM COUNTY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 29, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 24, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolution relating to the improvement of section "F" of the Ottawa-Findlay road, I. C. H. No. 223, petition No. 2844-T in Putnam county.

I find this resolution to be in regular form and am therefore returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY VILLAGE OF GREENFIELD, HIGHLAND COUNTY, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, November 28, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE:—Bonds of the village of Greenfield, Highland county, Ohio, in the sum of $12,000.00 for sewer construction purposes, being twenty-four bonds of $500.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of proceedings of the council and other officers of the village of Greenfield relative to the above bond issue, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds properly drawn and executed will constitute valid and binding obligations of said village.

As there was no bond form attached to the transcript I should be given an opportunity to examine the bonds when presented for delivery to the treasurer of state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, RESOLUTION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS IN BROWN, CARROLL AND WASHINGTON COUNTIES.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 1, 1916.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 29, 1916, transmitting to me for examination final resolutions relating to the improvement of the following roads:

"Brown County—Sec. 'B' Ripley-Hillsboro road, Pet. No. 2112-T, I C. H. No. 177.

"Carroll County—Sec. 'D' Carrollton-Salineville road, Pet. No. 1068, I. C. H. No. 377.

"Washington County—Sec. 'K' Marietta-McConnelsville road, Pet. No. 3058, I. C. H. No. 393. (Also duplicate.)"

I find these resolutions to be in regular form and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

RODMEN AND AXEMEN ON COUNTY ROAD WORK—NO AUTHORITY FOR SUCH EMPLOYMENT BY COUNTY SURVEYOR AS SUCH—MAY EMPLOY ASSISTANTS, SEE SECTION 7181 G. C.—RODMEN AND AXEMEN MAY BE EMPLOYED IN DITCH CONSTRUCTION.

In so far as county road work is concerned, there is no authority for the employment by the county surveyor of rodmen and axemen aside from the general authority for the employment of assistants conferred by section 7181 G. C. and the county commissioners are not authorized to allow a bill for services as rodman or axeman to any person other than an assistant of the county surveyor, appointed under authority of section 7181 G. C.

The county surveyor is authorized to employ rodmen and axemen when their services are necessary in supervising the construction of a ditch. It is not necessary that such rodmen and axemen be deputies or assistants of the county surveyor, giving their full time to the duties of that office and the commissioners are authorized to allow bills for their services at the rate provided in section 6530 G. C. Payment for their services should be made from the special fund created by a bond issue for the construction of the particular ditch in connection with which such services were performed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 1, 1916.

HON. A. A. SLAYBAUGH, Prosecuting Attorney, Ottawa, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion, under date of November 9, 1916, reads as follows:

"I wish to submit to you for your opinion the following proposition, to wit:

"What, if any, authority have the county commissioners to allow a bill to some person other than the surveyor or one of his assistants for services rendered as rodman or axeman in the construction of a county ditch or county road, where such services are performed after the ditch or road improvement has been sold and partly completed, and which service has been rendered after the original survey, and plans and specifications have been made, approved and confirmed by the board of commissioners? If such bill is allowable, out of what fund should the same be paid?

"For your information I enclose a copy of the bill presented to the board of county commissioners for allowance, with the O. K. of the county surveyor attached."

In so far as the services of rodmen and axemen on county road work are concerned, I find no unrepealed sections authorizing their employment. Services rendered by the county surveyor on county road work are now rendered under the provisions of the Cass highway law, amended senate bill No. 125, 106 O. L. 574. Section 138 of that act, section 7181 G. C., provides that the county surveyor shall be county highway superintendent, and that in the event the county highway superintendent cannot properly perform all the duties of his office, the county commissioners shall fix the aggregate compensation to be expended for assistants by the county highway superintendent during the year. Not only do I find no unrepealed sections of the General Code authorizing the employment of rodmen and axemen on county road work, but it is also true that the language of section 7181 G. C., taken in connection with the other provisions of the Cass highway law, indicates that it was the intention of the legislature that all duties in connection with county roads, not performed by the county surveyor in person, should be performed by the assistants, whose appointment is authorized by said section.

In view of the foregoing I advise you that in so far as county road work is concerned, there is no authority for the employment of rodmen and axemen aside from the general authority for the employment of assistants conferred by section 7181 G. C., and that the county commissioners are not authorized to allow a bill for services as rodman or axeman to any person other than an assistant of the county surveyor, appointed under authority of section 7181 G. C.

This condition does not exist, however, as to county ditch work. Section 6523 G. C., being a part of the chapter of the General Code relating to single county ditches, provides that for services actually rendered, under the provisions of said chapter, all officers and persons other than the county commissioners, shall receive compensation for their services, as provided in the subdivision of said chapter in which said section 6523 G. C. is found. Section 6530 G. C., which is a part of the same subdivision in which section 6523 G. C. is found, provides that each chainman, axeman and rodman shall receive two dollars per day for the time actually employed.

Sections 6454, 6455, 6482, 6484, 6485, and other related sections of the General Code, found in the chapter relating to single county ditches, enjoin upon the county surveyor certain duties to be performed in connection with surveying and leveling a proposed ditch, setting stakes, making and returning schedules of the lands that will be benefited and apportionments of the cost of location and construction, receiving bids, letting contracts and taking bond.

Section 6487 G. C. provides that the work shall be done under the supervision of the county surveyor. It is clear from this section that the duty of the county surveyor does not cease when the contract for a county ditch is let, but that it is his duty to supervise the work until the ditch is completed and allow estimates to the contractor from time to time. It is also clear, from a consideration of sections 6523 and 6530 G. C., that the surveyor in performing his duties in connection with county ditches is authorized to employ rodmen and axemen, and no distinction is made between the time preceding and the time following the letting of the contract. I find no statutory provision warranting the inference that it was the intention of the legislature to authorize the county surveyor to employ rodmen and axemen in the preliminary work and to deny him that right in carrying forward the work of supervision.

It is therefore my opinion that the county surveyor is authorized to employ rodmen and axemen when their services are necessary in supervising the construction of a county ditch, and that they may be employed as well after the contract is let and the work partly performed as they may at any time during the preliminary proceedings.

It is not necessary that such rodmen and axemen be deputies or assistants of the county surveyor, giving their full time to the duties of that office, and the commissioners are authorized to allow bills for their services at the rate provided in section 6530 G. C.

When bills for such services are allowed, payment should be made out of the special fund created by a bond issue for the construction of the particular ditch in connection with which such services were performed. It is customary for county surveyors, in making an estimate of the probable cost of a county ditch, to include an item covering the cost of supervision, and I am informed by the county surveyor of your county that such practice is followed by him.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

CLEVELAND MUNICIPAL CHARTER—WHETHER OR NOT PROVISIONS OF CHARTER OR STATE LAW GOVERN EXPENDITURES IN MUNICIPAL COURT—WHAT COSTS ARE TAXABLE FOR PUBLICATION IN LEGAL NEWS—WHEN NOTARY PUBLIC FEES ARE TAXABLE AS COSTS—DISCUSSION OF BAILIFF'S AUTHORITY IN SALE OF PROPERTY TAKEN ON EXECUTION—MUNICIPAL JUDGES WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO COMMIT PERSONS TO COUNTY JAIL WHO HAVE BEEN ACCUSED OR CONVICTED OF VIOLATION OF CITY ORDINANCES—SHOULD BE COMMITTED TO CITY PRISON.

1. The provisions of the Cleveland municipal charter govern the appropriation and expenditure of the city's portion of the cost and expense of maintaining the municipal court of the said city.

2. The clerk of the Cleveland municipal court is authorized by sections 1695 et seq. of the General Code to publish the calendar and other information pertaining to cases in the Legal News (a daily law journal published in Cuyahoga county) and to tax and collect therefor a charge of fifteen cents in each case.

3. The fees of a notary public for the administration of an oath to an affidavit of verification to a pleading are taxable as costs in the case in which such pleading is filed.

4. The bailiff of the Cleveland municipal court is not authorized by law or by virtue of his office to apply funds received by him from the sale of property taken on execution to the satisfaction of claims of holders of liens against such property. Such action on his part is purely voluntary and done at his own risk.

5a. The judges in the criminal branch of the Cleveland municipal court are not authorized to commit persons to the county jail who are accused of violation of city ordinances and pending trial are unable to furnish bond. Such persons should be committed to the city prison.

5-b. Judges in the criminal branch of the Cleveland municipal court are without authority to sentence persons convicted of violation of city ordinances to the county jail. Persons so convicted should be sentenced to city prison or workhouse.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 4, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Department of Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter requesting my opinion as follows:

"We are herewith transmitting you copy of the charter adopted by the city of Cleveland, Ohio, and respectfully request your written opinion upon the following matters:

"Sec. 45 of the city charter—'No money shall be drawn from the treasury of the city nor shall any obligation for the expenditure of money be incurred, except pursuant to appropriations made by the council.' * * *

"Sec. 124—'No contract involving an expenditure in excess of $1,000.00 shall be awarded except upon the approval of the board of control.' (Is not limited to the department of service and safety, as is the limitation in the statutes.)

"Sec. 118—'The commissioner of purchase and supplies shall make all purchases for the city in the manner provided by the ordinance. * * *'

"Section 50 of the act creating the municipal court of the city of Cleveland, among other things provides:

"'The expense of maintaining the court shall be paid out of the treasury of the city of Cleveland.'

"Question 1.—Do the provisions of the charter, above cited, govern expenditures in the municipal court, or does the state law give the clerk of the court unlimited control over the expenses of the court?

"Question 2.—The calendar of the court, and other information pertaining to cases, in the civil division, is published in the Legal News, and a uniform charge of 15 cents for each case is made, and the same is taxed by the clerk as a part of the costs and collected, together with other costs. Is this action on the part of the clerk legal?

"Question 3.—In many cases one or more notary fee is taxed as a part of the costs, and collected by the clerk, and the same is paid to the notary, usually a lawyer in charge of the case, or some one in his office. Is this legal?

"Question 4.—In many instances the bailiff, without order from the court, pays claim of parties, other than the litigants, out of moneys received on executions, for alleged liens on the property, incurred before the property was seized by the bailiff. In some cases he has paid out all the money received on such executions, to such claimants, and made no payment on the judgment. Has he the authority to do this? Should not a person who claims a lien on chattel property which has been taken on an execution, establish his lien in court before the bailiff can legally recognize it? Has the bailiff the authority to pay out any money received on executions except upon the order of the court?

"Question 5.—Have the judges in the criminal branch the right to send persons to the county jail who have been accused or convicted of the violation of city ordinances?"

Your several questions will be considered in the order asked.

In connection with question 1. I call attention to the following provisions of the act creating the municipal court of Cleveland, found in sections 1579-1 to 1579-45 of the General Code, as amended, 103 O. L., 683, and 106 O. L., 274.

Section 1579-3 of the General Code (103 O. L., 274) is, in part, as follows:

"Judges of the municipal court shall receive such compensation, payable out of the treasury of Cuyahoga county not less than two thousand five hundred dollars per annum, as the county commissioners may prescribe, and such further compensation, not less than two thousand dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments out of the treasury of the city of Cleveland, as the council may prescribe. * * * "

Section 1579-40 of the General Code (103 O. L., 693) provides, in part, as follows:

"* * * At the municipal election of 1911 and every four years thereafter, there shall be nominated and elected a clerk of the municipal court in the same manner as other municipal officers are nominated and elected, who shall serve until his successor is elected and qualified.

"He shall receive such compensation payable out of the treasury of Cuyahoga county not less than two thousand dollars per annum as the county commissioners may prescribe, and such further compensation not less than twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments out of the treasury of the city of Cleveland as the council may prescribe. Deputies to the clerk shall be designated as hereinafter provided for in this act."

Section 1579-44 of the General Code (103 O. L., 694) provides in part as follows:

"The chief deputy clerk shall receive such compensation, not less than one thousand five hundred dollars per annum as the council may prescribe. The other deputy clerks shall receive such compensation, not less than one thousand two hundred dollars per annum as the council may prescribe. * * * "

Section 1579-45 of the General Code (106 O. L., 278) provides in part as follows:

" * * * The bailiff shall receive such compensation, not less than three thousand six hundred dollars, per annum and deputy bailiffs shall each receive such compensation, not less than one thousand two hundred dollars per annum, as the council may prescribe, payable in monthly installments out of the treasury of the city of Cleveland. Before entering upon his duties, the bailiff shall make and file in the office of the auditor of the city of Cleveland a bond in the amount of not less than ten thousand dollars to be determined by the judge, with two or more securities to be approved by the chief justice. The terms of said bonds shall be subject to the approval of the judges of the court. The said bonds shall be given for the benefit of the city of Cleveland and of any persons who shall suffer loss by reason of a default in any of the conditions of said bond. The bailiff may require any of the deputy bailiffs to give a bond of not less than one thousand dollars, the terms whereof shall be subject to the approval of the judges of the court. The sureties on said bonds shall be approved and said bonds shall be filed in the manner prescribed for the approval and filing of the bailiff's bond. The bailiff may, with the consent and approval of the judges of the court, appoint a stenographer to be assigned to duty in the bailiff's department."

Section 1579-48 of the General Code (103 O. L., 696) provides as follows:

"The council of the city of Cleveland shall provide suitable accommodations for the municipal court and its officers including a private room for each judge and sufficient jury room. The council shall also provide for the use of the court complete sets of the reports of the supreme and inferior courts of Ohio and such other authorities as are deemed necessary, and shall provide for each court room the latest edition of the General Code of Ohio, and necessary supplies including telephone, stationery, furniture, heat and light. The expense of maintaining the court shall be paid out of the treasury of the city of Cleveland."

Section 1579-50 of the General Code (103 O. L., 696) provides in part as follows:

"The solicitor of the city of Cleveland shall also be the prosecuting attorney of the municipal court. He may designate such number of assistant prosecutors as the council of the city of Cleveland may authorize. The persons thus appointed shall be subject to the approval of the city council and such assistants shall receive for their services in city cases such salaries as the council may prescribe, and the county commissioners may allow such further compensation as they deem proper, which shall be paid from the county treasury.

* * * * * * * *

"Probation officers and interpreters shall be appointed by the judges of the municipal court, and serve at their pleasure. They shall receive such compensation as the council by ordinance may prescribe. * * * "

From the above provisions it is clear that the city's share of the cost and expense of maintaining the Cleveland municipal court is within the control of the council of that city, and that the funds therefor must be appropriated by council and disbursed in like manner as other city expenditures.

Sections 45 and 46 of the charter of the city of Cleveland are as follows:

"Section 45. No money shall be drawn from the treasury of the city, nor shall any obligation for the expenditure of money by incurred, except pursuant to appropriations made by the council; and whenever an appropriation is so made the clerk will forthwith give notice to the director of finance. At the end of each year all unexpended balances of appropriations shall revert to the respective funds from which the same were appropriated and shall then be subject to future appropriations; but appropriations may be made in furtherance of improvements or other objects or work of the city which will not be completed within the current year.

"Section 46. Moneys appropriated as hereinbefore provided shall not be used for other purposes than those designated in the appropriation ordinance without authority from the council. The mayor and director of finance shall supervise all departmental expenditures, and shall keep such expenditures within the appropriations."

Section 118 of said charter provides that the commissioner of purchase and supplies shall make all purchases for the city in the manner provided by ordinance. Section 119 requires the commissioner of purchase and supplies to give opportunity for competition under such rules and regulations as council may establish. Sections 122, 124 and 125 of the charter are as follows:

"Section 122. No contract, agreement, or other obligation, involving the expenditure of money, shall be entered into, nor shall any ordinance, resolution, or order for the expenditure of money be passed by the council, or be authorized by any officer of the city, unless the director of finance first certify to the council or to the proper officer, as the case may be, that the money required for such contract, agreement, obligation, or expenditure, is in the treasury, to the credit of the fund from which it is to be drawn, and not appropriated for any other purpose, which certificate be filed and immediately recorded. The sum so certified shall not thereafter be considered unappropriated until the city is discharged from the contract, agreement or obligation."

"Section 124. No contract involving an expenditure in excess of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) shall be awarded except upon the approval of the board of control.

"Section 125. All contracts, agreements, or other obligations entered into and all ordinances passed, resolutions and orders adopted, contrary to the provisions of the preceding sections, shall be void, and no person whatever shall have any claim or demand against the city thereunder, nor shall the council, or any officer of the city, waive or qualify the limits fixed by any ordinance, resolution or order, as provided in section 122, or fasten upon the city any liability whatever, in excess of such limits, or release any party from an exact compliance with his contract under such ordinance, resolution or order."

The Cleveland municipal court act confers no authority on the clerk of the court to purchase supplies or make expenditures, and its provisions imposing upon the city the duty of paying a part of the salary of the judges and certain other officers of the court and the entire expense of maintaining the court are not in conflict with the Cleveland charter.

I, therefore, advise you that the provisions of the Cleveland charter govern the appropriations and expenditures of the city's portion of the cost and expense of maintaining the municipal court of the said city. It is, however, the duty of the city, under the method of procedure set out in its charter, to appropriate and expend such funds as are reasonably necessary to properly maintain the court.

Question 2. Answering this question I call attention to sections 1695, 1696 and 1697 of the General Code, which are as follows:

"Section 1695. In the counties of Hamilton, Cuyahoga, Franklin and Lucas, the judges of the courts of record, other than circuit court, shall jointly designate a daily law journal published in the county, wherein shall be published all calendars of the courts of record in such county, which shall contain the numbers and titles of causes, and names of attorneys appearing therein, together with the motion dockets and such particulars and notices respecting causes, as may be specified by the judges, and each notice required to be published by any such judges.

"Section 1696. In all cases, proceedings, administrations of estates, assignments and matters pending in any of the courts of record of such counties wherein legal notices or advertisements are required by law to be published, such law journal shall once a week and on the same day of the week, publish an abstract of each such legal advertisement, but the jurisdiction over, or irregularity of a proceeding, trial or judgment, shall not be affected by anything therein.

"Section 1697. For the publication of such calendars, motion dockets and notices, the fees for which are not fixed by law, the publisher of the paper shall receive a sum to be fixed by the judges, not exceeding thirty-five cents for each case brought, to be paid by the party filing the petition, or transcript for appeal or lien, and to be taxed in the costs and collected as other costs, and for the publishing of abstracts of legal advertising, a sum to be fixed by the judges, not exceeding one dollar for each case, proceeding or matter, in which such advertising is had, to be taxed and collected as a part of the costs thereof."

The Cleveland municipal court, by section 1 of the act creating it (1579-1 G. C.) is made a court of record. I am informed that the Legal News referred to in your question is a daily law journal published in Cuyahoga county, and that the judges of courts of record of Cuyahoga, other than the court of appeals, have jointly designated it as a medium of publication for the court calendars under authority of the section of the General Code above quoted. Assuming that this information is correct, I advise you that the action of the clerk of the municipal court in publishing the calendar and other information pertaining to that case in the Legal News and taxing and collecting a charge of 15 cents in each case filed is legal.

Question 3. Answering this question I call attention to an opinion of my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, rendered to your bureau on November 17, 1914, found in vol. II, page 1444 of the Report of the Attorney-General for the year 1914, wherein you were advised that:

> "The fees of a notary public for the administration of an oath on an affidavit of verification to a pleading are taxable as costs in the case in which the pleading is filed."

I concur in this opinion, and in harmony therewith advise you that the clerk of the Cleveland municipal court is authorized to tax, collect and pay to the person entitled to receive the same the notary fees for taking and subscribing to the oath of verification to pleadings in cases filed in that court. Such notary fees, however, must be for services required in the prosecution or defense of the particular case.

Question 4. In connection with this question I have before me further information furnished in a letter from an examiner in your department, which by setting forth a concrete example of the practice referred to is intended as explanatory of the question. This letter is as follows:

> "I do not have the data to give you an exact case, to illustrate the question in point, but I remember the facts, which are as follows:
> "The bailiff has taken property on execution and sold the same, and then instead of paying the judgments, he has paid all or a part of the proceeds of the sale to persons who claimed liens on the property for accounts which were dated before the time the property was taken by the bailiff.
> "In one instance he sold an automobile, and instead of paying the proceeds on the judgment, he paid it to the proprietor of the garage, who claimed that the owner of the machine owed him for storage and repairs, which indebtedness was incurred prior to the time the judgment was rendered and the machine taken on the execution."

The bailiff of the Cleveland municipal court is not authorized by law or by virtue of his office to apply funds received from the sale of property taken by him on execution to the satisfaction of claims of holders or liens against such property. Such action on his part is purely voluntary and he assumes the risk of any mistake made by him in any such transaction. If all the parties, i. e., the owner of the property, the lienholder, and the execution creditor, consent to his action, then no harm is done and the rights of no person infracted.

Unless all parties interested consent to the seizure and sale of the property by the bailiff and agree upon a distribution of the proceeds, the better and safe practice is for him to insist that all claimants by proper action secure a judicial determination of the amount and priority of their respective claims.

Question 5. Two separate and distinct questions are embodied in your fifth question:

(a) Have the judges in the criminal branch the right to send persons to the county jail who are accused of violation of city ordinances and pending trial are committed for safe-keeping in default of bail?

(b) Have such judges the right to sentence persons to imprisonment in the county jail who have been convicted of violation of city ordinances?

Question 5-a will be first considered.

The jurisdiction of the municipal court of Cleveland is prescribed in section 1579-12 of the General Code, as amended 103 O. L., 685, as follows:

> "The municipal court shall have jurisdiction of all misdemeanors and of all violations of city ordinance of which police courts in municipalities now have or may hereafter be given jurisdiction. In felonies the municipal court shall have the powers which police courts in municipalities now have or may hereafter be given."

Section 4577 of the General Code, conferring jurisdiction upon the police courts in municipalities, is as follows:

> "The police court shall have jurisdiction of, and to hear, finally determine, and to impose the prescribed penalty for, any offense under any ordinance of the city, and of any misdemeanor committed within the limits of the city, or within four miles thereof. The jurisdiction of such court to make inquiry in criminal cases shall be the same as that of a justice of the peace. Cases in which the accused is entitled to a jury trial, shall be so tried, unless a jury be waived."

Two kinds of jurisdiction are conferred upon police courts, and consideration of the powers of police courts in enforcing these two kinds of jurisdiction will determine the corresponding powers of the municipal court of Cleveland.

Police courts have jurisdiction to make inquiry in criminal cases in the same manner as justices of the peace; that is to say, to conduct preliminary examinations to determine whether there is probable cause for holding the accused for trial in the proper court, and in exercising this jurisdiction they should follow the provisions of section 13506 et seq. of the General Code.

Section 13507 G. C. provides as follows:

> "If it is necessary, for just cause, to adjourn the examination of the accused, the magistrate may order such adjournment and commit him to the jail of the county, until such cause of delay is removed, but the entire time of such confinement in jail shall not exceed four days. The officer having custody of such person, by the written order of the magistrate may detain him in custody in a secure and convenient place other than the jail, to be designated by such magistrate in his order, not exceeding four days. The officer in whose custody any person is detained shall provide for the sustenance of such prisoner while in custody."

This section originally applied only to justices of the peace and was clearly limited to the matter of preliminary hearings to determine the question of probable cause for holding the accused for trial. The word "examination" appeared in the section as originally enacted and clearly means the same now that it did then; so that it does not furnish authority for a police court or the municipal court of Cleveland to commit a person accused of a violation of the city ordinance to the county jail, pending trial, but only permits such commitment by a police court or said municipal court in cases in which such courts are acting as examining magistrates.

Jurisdiction to hear and finally determine cases arising under violations of city ordinance is conferred upon police courts by virtue of section 4577 G. C., supra, and upon the municipal court of Cleveland by sections 1579-12, G. C., supra.

The power to issue writs of commitment before or during trial in such cases is conferred upon said courts by section 4576 G. C., which provides as follows:

> "Sec. 4576. The police court shall have power to issue process, preserve order ,punish contempts, summon and impanel jurors, grant new trials and motions in arrest of judgment, suspend executions of sentence upon notice of intention to apply for leave to file a petition in error, and such other powers incident to the court of common pleas as may be necessary for the exercise of the jurisdiction herein conferred, and the enforcement of the judgments and orders of the court."

The power to commit, of course, requires a place of commitment and the only provision for the place of committment before or during the trial is provided by sections 3616 and 3624 G. C., which provide:

> "Sec. 3616. All municipal corporations shall have the general powers mentioned in this chapter, and council may provide by ordinance or resotion for the exercise and enforcement of them.
> "Sec. 3624. To establish, erect, maintain and regulate jails, morgues, houses of refuge and correction, workhouses, station houses, prisons and farm schools."

Under these sections council has ample power to provide a city prison or a station house and permit its use for this purpose, and I have no doubt has done so in the city of Cleveland.

I, therefore, advise you that the judges in the criminal branch of the Cleveland municipal court may not commit persons to the county jail who are accused of violations of city ordinances and who pending trial are unable to furnish bond. Such persons should be committed to the city prison under proper action of council.

This question is not entirely free from doubt and I would suggest that while the practice of committing such persons to the county jail, under the circumstances described in your question, should be discontinued, at the same time I do not think findings for recovery should be made against officials who have been following this course.

Question 5-b is answered by my opinion No. 1699 given to your bureau on June 15, 1916, wherein I advised you, in answer to a similar question concerning the police court of the city of Columbus, that the judge of said court was without authority to sentence persons convicted of violations of city ordinances to the Franklin county jail, said city at that time owning and operating its own city prison and workhouse. The conclusion expressed in that opinion was based on the provisions of section 4564 of the General Code, which section is as follows:

"Sec. 4564. Imprisonment under the ordinances of a municipal corporation shall be in the workhouse or other jail thereof, if the corporation is provided with such workhouse or a jail. Any corporation not provided with a workhouse, or other jail, shall be allowed, for the purpose of imprisonment, the use of the jail of the county, at the expense of the corporation, until it is provided with a prison, house of correction or workhouse. Persons so imprisoned in the county jail shall be under the charge of the sheriff of the county, who shall receive and hold such persons in the manner prescribed by the ordinances of the corporation, until discharged by due course of law."

The provisions of the above section are equally applicable to the Cleveland municipal court, and assuming that the city of Cleveland has a workhouse or jail available, I advise you that the judges of the criminal branch of its municipal court are without authority to sentence to the county jail persons convicted of violations of city ordinances.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—NO AUTHORITY FOR INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION TO DIRECT AN EMPLOYER WHO IS SELF-INSURER TO PAY COMPENSATION DUE AN INJURED EMPLOYE, TO WIFE AND CHILDREN OF SAID EMPLOYE, SO LONG AS EMPLOYE IS LIVING.

1. There is no authority under section 41 of the Ohio Workmen's Compensation Act, section 1465-88 G. C., 103 O. L. 88, or any other section of said act, for the industrial commission to direct an employer who is a self-insurer to pay compensation due an injured employe, to the wife and children of said employe so long as the employe is living.

2. If an employer who is a self-insurer voluntarily pays the compensation due an injured employe to his wife and children, who have been abandoned by said employe, for their support and maintenance, the employer could set up such payment to said wife and minor children as a set-off should the employe afterward claim or seek to recover the amount of compensation due him.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 5, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your communication of November 23, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "The Industrial Commission of Ohio respectfully requests of you an opinion as to whether or not it is authorized by the provisions of section 41 of the compensation act, or any other provisions of the act or any other law, to direct the employer, who is a self-insurer under section 22 to pay the amount of compensation due the claimant to his dependents, namely his wife and children, under the following statement of facts:
> "Claimant is entitled to compensation for permanent partial disability, which the employer is willing to pay. Claimant has disappeared, leaving a family consisting of a wife and a number of minor children; when he left he was accompanied by another woman, the wife of another man, and his present whereabouts are unknown."

Section 41 of the Workmen's Compensation Law, or section 1465-88 of the General Code (103 O. L. 88), referred to in your letter, is as follows:

> "Compensation before payment shall be exempt from all claims of creditors and from any attachment or execution, and shall be paid only to such employes or their dependents."

This section provides that "compensation shall be paid only to such employes or their dependents." The answer to your question depends upon the definition to be given to the word "dependents" as used in the compensation act. Section 22 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, General Code section 1465-69 (103 O. L. 80), which provides the plan for the direct payment of the compensation is, in part, as follows:

> "* * * Provided, however, * * * that such employers who will abide by the rules of the state liability board of awards and as may be of sufficient financial ability or credit to render certain the payment of compensation to injured employes, or to the dependents of killed employes * * *."

Paragraph 2 of section 21 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, or section 1465-68 of the General Code (103 O. L. 79) provides, in part, as follows:

"Every employe mentioned in subdivision two of section fourteen hereof, who is injured, and the dependents of such as are killed in the course of employment * * * shall be entitled to receive * * * such compensation for loss sustained on account of such injury or death, * * *"

Section 25 of the Compensation Act, section 1465-72 of the General Code (103 O. L. 82) provides, in part, as follows:

"* * * All employers electing directly to compensate their injured employes, in compliance with this act, shall pay to such injured employes, or to the dependents of employes who have been killed in the course of their employment, * * *"

Section 35 of the General Compensation Act, section 1465-82 of the General Code (103 O. L. 86) provides, in part, as follows:

"In case the injury causes death within the period of two years, the benefits shall be in the amounts and to the persons following: * * *

"4. The following persons shall be presumed to be wholly dependent for support upon a deceased employe:

"(a) A wife upon a husband with whom she lived at the time of his death.

"(b) A child or children under the age of sixteen years * * * upon the parent with whom he is living at the time of the death of such parent." * * *

The last subdivision of paragraph 4 of section 35 provides in part as follows:

"But no person shall be considered a dependent unless a member of the family of the deceased employe. * * *"

It seems clear from the provisions of the compensation act, supra, that a wife or child or children of an employe cannot be classified as dependents unless the employe has been killed in the course of his employment, or that the injury has caused his death within the period of two years.

In your letter you state that the "claimant is entitled to compensation for a permanent partial disability which the employer is willing to pay, but that the claimant has disappeared, leaving a family consisting of a wife and a number of minor children and his whereabouts at present are unknown."

Section 33 of the Compensation Act, or section 1465-80 of the General Code (103 O. L. 85) is the section which provides for compensation for partial disability, and in part provides as follows:

"In case of injury resulting in partial disability the employe shall receive, * * *"

It seems clear that compensation payable for an injury which does not cause death is payable only to the injured employe. The fact that the claimant has abandoned his wife and children would in no way release the employer from paying compensation to the employe for such a disability as described in your letter, nor does the fact of abandonment of the wife and children make them his dependents as that word is used in the Workmen's Compensation Act. Your attention is called to section 7997 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "The husband must support himself, his wife, and his minor children out of his property or by his labor. If he is unable to do so, the wife must assist him so far as she is able."

It is here provided that a husband must support his wife and minor children out of his property or by his labor. If the employer in this claim would voluntarily pay the compensation due the injured employe to his wife and minor children for their support and maintenance under the facts as stated in your letter, I am of the opinion that the employer could set up payment to the said wife and minor children as a set-off should the employe afterward claim or seek to recover the amount of compensation due him.

Directly answering your question, I am of the opinion that there is no authority under the provisions of section 41 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, or any other provision of said act, for your commission to direct a self-insurer under section 22 to pay compensation to the wife and children of an injured employe as long as the employe is living.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SCHOOLS—TEACHER'S CERTIFICATE OF QUALIFICATION QUESTIONED BY STATE INSPECTOR—BOARD OF EDUCATION NOT LIABLE PERSONALLY FOR COMPENSATION PAID TEACHER ALTHOUGH CERTIFICATE OF GRADE OF HIGH SCHOOL IS WITHDRAWN.

If a teacher has a certificate of qualification, or a copy thereof, on file with the clerk of the board of education, evidencing the qualification of the teacher to teach in the school in which he is employed, covering the entire time of his service, so long as such teacher performs his duties according to the terms of his contract of employment, no liability will attach to members of the board of education for the compensation paid such teacher by reason of the withdrawal of the certificate of the grade of the high school in which such teacher is employed, by the superintendent of public instruction.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 6, 1916.

HON. JOSEPH W. HORNER, Prosecuting Attorney, Newark, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of November 28, 1916, is as follows:

"The board of education of one of our second grade high schools in Licking county, Ohio, hired a principal for the school year to teach said school. Some time during the month of October, I believe, a state inspector came over to Licking county and inspected said school, and as I have learned, owing to the fact that this teacher had not quite sufficient college work, as is required by law, and that the school was not properly equipped with apparatus, etc., he took from said school the charter.

"Since the taking of said charter, the board of education has refused to pay this principal. He is still teaching and so far as I know, has had no notice to discontinue. The question is if this school board shall pay said principal, whether or not they would be liable personally?"

Section 7831 G. C., 104 O. L. 100, provides as follows:

"No person shall be employed or enter upon the performance of his duties as a teacher in any recognized high school supported wholly or in part by the state in any village, or rural school district, or act as a superintendent of schools in such district, who has not obtained from a board of examiners having legal jurisdiction a certificate of good moral character; that he or she is qualified to teach six branches or more selected from the following course of study (three of which branches shall be algebra, rhetoric and physics): Literature, general history, algebra, physics, physiology, including narcotics, Latin, German, rhetoric, civil government, geometry, physical geography, botany and chemistry, and high school agriculture; and that he or she possesses an adequate knowledge of the theory and practice of teaching."

Section 7786 G. C., 104 O. L. 225, provides in part as follows:

"No clerk of a board shall draw an order on the treasurer for the payment of a teacher for services until the teacher files with him such reports as are required by the superintendent of public instruction and the board of education, a legal certificate of qualification, or a true copy thereof, covering the entire time of the service, and a statement of the branches taught. * * *"

While it is not so stated by you, it is assumed that the qualification of the teacher referred to is evidenced by a certificate issued by the proper authority, as required by the statutes above quoted. If the teacher, as is here assumed, has a certificate of qualification, as above required, covering the entire time of his service, and such certificate, or a copy of the same, is on file with the clerk of the board of education, and such teacher continues to perform all his duties, according to the terms of his contract of employment, no personal liability will attach to the members of the board of education for the money paid to the teacher, according to the terms of his contract of employment, by reason of the fact alone that the certificate of the grade of the high school in which such teacher is employed has been withdrawn by the superintendent of public instruction. The obligation of the contract of employment with the teacher is dependent in no way upon the grade of the high school in which he is employed to teach.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that if a teacher has a certificate of qualification, or a copy thereof, on file with the clerk of the board of education, evidencing the qualification of the teacher to teach in the school in which he is employed, covering the entire time of his service, so long as such teacher performs his duties according to the terms of his contract of employment, no liability will attach to the members of the board of education for the compensation paid such teacher by reason of the withdrawal of the certificate of the grade of the high school in which such teacher is employed by the superintendent of public instruction.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

DISAPPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY CITY OF MOUNT VERNON, OHIO.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE: Bonds of the city of Mount Vernon, Ohio, in the sum of $8,000.00 to refund an indebtedness to the water works, being sixteen bonds of $500.00 each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of council and other officers of Mount Vernon submitted to me relative to the above bond issue, and I am unable to approve the same or advise the purchase of the bonds for the reason that the transcript fails to show that the indebtedness which the city seeks to refund is an existing, valid and binding obligation of the city. The city is apparently attempting to pay a supposed indebtedness to the water works department of the city. I know of no provision of law under authority of which the city could become indebted to its own water works department.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 28, 1916, which reads as follows:

> "Herewith I transmit for your approval duplicate copies of resolutions providing for the sale of three small tracts of the abandoned Ohio canal property in Madison township, Licking county, Ohio.
> "The first is to Nellie M. Bolin for 2.5 acres, appraised at $250.00.
> "The second tract is to Mary C. Bolin for 2.5 acres, appraised at $450.00.
> "The third tract is to R. W. Lillard for 6.5 acres appraised at $487.50."

I find that the three resolutions transmitted to me are properly drawn and recite the existence of the necessary jurisdictional facts, and I am, therefore, returning these resolutions with my signature attached to the duplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

INSURANCE—TAXATION OF AGENTS' BALANCES FOR LIFE AND FIRE COMPANIES DISTINGUISHED—SEE OPINION NO. 1821, JULY 31, 1916, TO TAX COMMISSION OF OHIO.

This opinion being confined to, and the conclusions herein expressed being based upon the statements of facts herein set forth, holds that, generally speaking, balances, existing on the tax listing day in any year, belonging to a fire insurance company or a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state and arising out of business transacted in this state, must be returned for taxation by the proper officers of the company at the principal place of business of such company, and that such balances belonging to a foreign fire or life insurance company are not returnable for taxation as property of the company under any of the provisions of the statutes herein set forth governing such return.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 9, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of August 29th, in re taxation of balances belonging to insurance companies, you request me to consider the brief of Mr. J. W. Mooney, attorney for certain fire insurance companies, on the question of the taxability of such balances belonging to fire insurance companies.

This question was answered in opinion No. 1821 of this department rendered to your commission July 21, 1916. The conclusion in that opinion was based on the application of the laws now in force to the facts as stated in a brief filed with the department by Mr. O. B. Ryon, general counsel for the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The correctness of the conclusion expressed in said opinion in view of the statement of facts presented by Mr. Ryon does not seem to be questioned by any one concerned, but it is contended by Mr. Mooney that said statement is incorrect and does not express the true relation existing between the insurance companies doing business in this state and their agents. Said question will therefore be reconsidered in connection with the facts submitted by Mr. Mooney in his brief.

Permit me to state further that since receiving your letter of August 29th Mr. Arthur I. Vorys, of the firm of Vorys, Sater, Seymour & Pease, this city, representing certain insurance companies, has filed with the department a brief supplemental to that filed by Mr. Mooney and Mr. Frederic G. Dunham, of New York City, of counsel for the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, has filed with the department a memorandum of facts and law which, as stated by Mr. Dunham, is submitted in behalf of life insurance corporations transacting business in Ohio for the purpose of placing before the attorney-general the facts as to the methods of business pursued by such corporations, including the character of credits due companies and the limitations upon the authority of their agents in that state, and their view as to the application to such credits of the laws of the state of Ohio relative to the taxation of personal property. I am in receipt also of a letter from Mr. J. C. Campbell of this city, state agent for the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, Mass., in the states of Ohio and West Virginia, bearing on the question of the taxability of balances belonging to said company and arising out of business transacted in this state. Reference will hereafter be made to the above mentioned memoranda.

I shall consider first the question of the taxability of balances belonging to fire insurance companies doing business in this state and, second, the taxability of balances belonging to life insurance companies doing business in this state, as said balances are determined on the tax listing day in any year.

As stated in my former opinion to your commission, above referred to, the provisions of the statutes governing the return of the property of all incorporated companies, excepting banking or other corporations whose taxation is otherwise specifically provided for, are found in sections 5404, 5405 and 5406 of the General Code, as now in force, read in connection with sections 13, 14 and 15 of the Parret-Whittemore Law (sections 5406-1, 5406-2 and 5406-3 of the General Code, 106 O. L. 249), and section 6 of said law (section 5372-1 G. C., 106 O. L. 247). Said provisions are as follows:

> "Sec. 5404. The president, secretary, and principal accounting officer of every incorporated company, except banking or other corporations whose taxation is specifically provided for, for whatever purpose they may have been created, whether incorporated by a law of this state or not, shall list for taxation, verified by the oath of the person so listing, all the personal property thereof, and all real estate necessary to the daily operations of the company, moneys and credits of such company or corporation within the state, at the true value in money.
> "Sec. 5405. Return shall be made to the several auditors of the respective counties where such property is situated, together with a statement of the amount thereof which is situated in each township, village, city, or taxing district therein. Upon receiving such returns, the auditor shall ascertain and determine the value of the property of such companies, and deduct from the aggregate sum so found of each, the value as assessed for taxation of any real estate included in the return. The value of the property of each of such companies, after so deducting the value of all the real estate included in the return, shall be apportioned by the auditor to such cities, villages, townships, or taxing districts, pro rata, in proportion to the value of the real estate and fixed property included in the return, in each of such cities, villages, townships, or taxing districts. The auditor shall place such apportioned valuation on the tax duplicate and taxes shall be levied and collected thereon at the same rate and in the same manner that taxes are levied and collected on other personal property in such township, village, city or taxing district.

"Sec. 5406. The auditor of each county, on or before the first Monday of May, annually, shall furnish the president, secretary, principal accounting officer, or agent as provided in the next two preceding sections, the necessary blanks for the purpose of making such returns, but neglect or failure on the part of the county auditor to furnish such blanks shall not excuse such president, secretary, accountant, or agent, from making the returns within the time specified herein. If the county auditor to whom returns are made is of the opinion that false or incorrect valuations have been made, that the property of the corporation or association has not been listed at its full value, or that it has not been listed in the location where it properly belongs, or if no return has been made to the county auditor, he must have the property valued and assessed. This section and the next preceding section shall not tax any stock or interest held by the state in a joint stock company.

"Sec. 5406-1. If the property of an incorporated company is situated in more than one county, return shall be made to the county auditor of the county wherein the principal place of business of the company is located, or if the company has no principal place of business in this state, to the county auditor of any county wherein it transacts business or its property is situated. The county auditor to whom return is made shall certify the fact, together with the return and all information in his possession relating thereto, to the tax commission of Ohio, which shall ascertain and determine the aggregate value of the entire property of the company required to be listed in this state, and, from the aggregate sum so found, make the deductions provided in section fifty-four hundred and five of the General Code. The commission shall apportion the value of the property of such company, after making such deductions, among such counties in proportion to the value of the property located in each, and certify its findings to the county auditors, who shall severally apportion the amount certified to their respective counties, to the cities, villages, townships and other taxing districts, therein, in the manner prescribed in section 5405 of the General Code.

"Sec. 5406-2. The county auditor shall enter the apportioned valuation provided for in the preceding section on the tax list and duplicate, separately entering the real estate belonging to the company at the assessed value thereof.

"Sec. 5406-3. In determining the location of property for the purpose of the two preceding sections, all moneys and credits used in or appertaining especially to a separate business transacted by an incorporated company at a particular place shall be deemed to be located at such place where the business is transacted, and moneys and credits not used in or appertaining especially to such separate business transacted at any particular place shall be deemed to be located at the principal place of business of such company.

"Sec. 5372-1. Personal property, moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies or otherwise in the possession or control of a person as parent, guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, assignee, receiver, official custodian, factor, agent, attorney, or otherwise, on the day preceding the second Monday in April in any year, on account of any person or persons, company, firm, partnership, association or corporation, shall be listed by the person having the possession or control thereof and be entered upon the tax lists and duplicate in the name of such parent, guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, assignee, receiver, official custodian, factor, agent, attorney, or other person, adding to such name words briefly indicating the capacity in which such person has possession of or otherwise controls said property, and the name of the person, estate, firm, company, partnership, association or corporation to whom it belongs; but the failure to indicate the capacity of the person in whose name such property is listed or the name of the person, estate, firm, company, partnership, association or corporation to whom it belongs shall not affect the validity of any assessment thereof."

With respect to each of the questions above stated it is evident that on the tax listing day in any year the amount or balance, due the company, in the hands of an agent in this state of either a fire or life insurance company organized under the laws of Ohio, must be returned for taxation. The only question to be determined in so far as the domestic corporation of either of the above mentioned classes is concerned, is whether said balance must be considered as personal property of said corporation and deemed to be located at the principal place of business of such corporation and, as so located, must therefore be returned by the officers of the company referred to in section 5404 G. C., supra, or whether said balance is to be considered as "appertaining especially to a separate business" transacted by said corporation at a particular place within the meaning of section 5406-3 G. C., supra, and as "moneys or credits" in the hands of the agent within the meaning of section 5372-1 G. C., supra, and therefore returnable by such agent at the place where such agent resides and transacts such business.

I deem it advisable before determining the answer to this question to first determine the answers to the two questions hereinbefore stated as limited to foreign insurance companies, of the two classes referred to in said questions, doing business in this state.

As limited to foreign insurance companies doing business in this state the first question may be stated as follows: Are balances due foreign fire insurance companies from local agents in this state taxable under any of the foregoing provisions of the statutes?

The answer to this question necessarily depends upon the true relation existing between such a company and its agent, to be determined by your commission in view of the facts in each particular case. I can do nothing more in determining the answer to the question just stated than to consider the foregoing provisions of the statutes as applied to the facts stated in Mr. Mooney's brief. I quote the following from said brief:

"There has grown up in the state of Ohio a distinct business known as the local fire insurance business. The nature of this business is the sale of fire insurance contracts issued by companies engaged in the fire insurance business. There are individuals, partnerships, and corporations in Ohio engaged extensively in the sale of fire insurance contracts to their customers and this is the sole and exclusive business of these corporations, partnerships and individuals. There are many corporations, partnerships and persons in Ohio engaged in the sale of fire insurance contracts who have invested large sums of money in their business. They have extensive offices, employ a large corps of clerks, and are completely and fully equipped to engage in the sale of fire insurance contracts to their clients who come to them for insurance.

"Many of these individuals, partnerships and corporations are engaged in the sale of fire insurance contracts for a large number of companies. It is necessary to represent a large number of companies in order to cover large and extensive lines which many of these men engaged in the fire insurance business secure.

"From the above statement it will be seen that the sale of fire insurance contracts is a separate and distinct business in which a large number of men in the state of Ohio are engaged, and in which there is a large amount of capital invested.

"The men engaged in the sale of fire insurance contracts have organizations, and through these organizations have built up a uniform custom in reference to the sale of fire insurance contracts, and built up a uniform relation between the persons so engaged and the fire insurance companies for which they are engaged in selling fire insurance contracts.

"Usually there are no written contracts entered into between the fire insurance companies and the persons engaged in the sale of fire insurance contracts. This relation is formed by a uniform custom or practice which exists in Ohio between all companies engaged in the fire insurance business and the person, partnership, or corporation engaged in the sale of these contracts. Usually companies apply to the party engaged in the sale of fire insurance contracts asking that they represent their company in the sale of fire insurance contracts. This relation is formed and continues at the will of the parties. Either party can terminate the relation at any time. This is the uniform practice in the state of Ohio. This practice and custom also provides that the parties engaged in the sale of contracts must be responsible to the companies for all premiums whether or not the party engaged in selling the contracts collects from the insured the premiums. This, we desire to emphasize, is the uniform custom throughout the entire state of Ohio.

"The compensation for the sale of fire insurance contracts is a certain per cent. of the premiums. This is the uniform custom. It is also a uniform custom that the companies give to the parties selling fire insurance contracts a certain period of credit in which to pay premiums. At the end of the period of credit it becomes the legal duty of the party who has sold the contracts to remit to the companies the amount of premiums, less commissions, it being immaterial whether the party selling the contracts of insurance has collected the premium from the insured or not.

"It is also the uniform custom through the state that the parties selling the contracts of insurance shall give such period of credit to the insured as they see fit. The general custom is that the companies look exclusively to the party selling the contracts of insurance for their money due from the sale of these insurance contracts.

"Where it becomes necessary to sue an insured for an unpaid premium this suit is brought in the name of the party selling the contract of insurance for the reason that the title to the unpaid premium is in the party selling the contract of insurance under the uniform arrangement between the companies and the party selling the contracts of insurance. As between the party selling the contract of insurance and the insurance company, the companies have no legal right to sue an insured for an unpaid premium, and this because of the arrangement existing between the companies and the parties selling the contracts of insurance.

"It is the uniform custom of all of the agents in the state of Ohio to collect the premiums and deposit all of the same in their individual bank account, and to pay any money due to the different companies for premiums by giving their individual check drawn on their individual account at the end of the agreed period of credit. This practice is universally known to all of the companies and is authorized and acquiesced in by them. It is the uniform custom not to deposit the money collected in the way of premiums in the name of the company or in the name of the party selling the contracts of insurance as the agent of the companies. Parties engaged in selling contracts of insurance in the state of Ohio own the business, and it is through their influence and acquaintance that they are able to sell contracts of insurance to their customers. The insurance companies have no acquaintance and no good will with the majority of purchasers of insurance. When a customer applies to an agent for insurance the agent as a rule determines the company in which the policy of insurance is written. Occasionally a customer is familiar enough with the insurance companies to request an agent to place the insurance in a certain company.

"All contracts of insurance contain a cancellation provision which provides that the company may cancel upon five days' notice, and that the insured may cancel at any time. All contracts of insurance in Ohio are written with reference to the statutes of Ohio which expressly provide that the insured may cancel at any time.

"It therefore follows that every contract of fire insurance is sold with reference to the provision of cancellation contained in the policy and also the statutes. Policies are frequently cancelled at the request of the insured. Where this is done the insured is entitled to repayment of the unearned premium if the premium has been paid. If the premium has not been paid the insured is entitled to credit of the unearned premium and must pay the agent the earned premium. It is the uniform custom of the agent to pay out of his own money in his individual bank account all unearned premiums. If the premiums have been paid to the company by the agent, then the agent charges back to the company the amount of unearned premium paid. If the agent has retained his commission out of the unearned premium and the policy is cancelled, then the agent must credit the company with the proportion of the commission which was paid on the unearned portion of the premium. In other words, the company is only entitled to the earned premium and the agent is entitled to a commission only on the earned portion thereof.

"All sellers of insurance contracts in keeping their accounts with the insured charge the insured with the amount of premium and the transaction is had between the agent and the insured solely in so far as the money transaction is connected with the sale of the contract of insurance. The agent sends out bills for the premiums to the insured made out in his own name. Bills are never sent to the insured made out in the name of the companies. The bills upon their face show that the insured owes the agent as an individual the amount of premium, and all terms of credit for the payment of the premium of the insured are made between the insured and the agent.

"In the account kept between the seller of the contracts of insurance and the companies, the agent or seller of the contracts of insurance credits the company with the amount of premium less commission, and this amount is remitted at the end of the agreed period of credit by the seller of the contracts of insurance, unless the transaction has been modified by cancellation. In that event, the agent pays to the insured out of his individual bank account the amount of unearned premium and charges it to the company, and if the agent has already deducted his commission out of the entire premium he credits the company with that portion of the commission which has been collected on the unearned portion of the premium.

"The method of keeping accounts shows upon its face that the insured owes exclusively the agent, individually, for the amount of the premium and the agent or seller of the contracts of insurance owes the company the amount agreed upon shall be paid for these contracts, and that the company can look solely and only to the agent for its pay."

Atttached to said brief are certain exhibits which are in keeping with the foregoing statement of facts and which consist of (Exhibit A) copies of bills taken from the ledger of one of the insurance agents in this city showing the method of transacting the business as between said agent and the insured: (Exhibit B) a copy of an account taken from the ledger of said agent, and (Exhibit C) a statement showing how the insurance companies keep their accounts with the local agent.

The following authorities may be cited in support of the proposition that where the company charges the premium to the agent directly the relation of creditor and debtor exists. In other words, that the local agent is the owner of the credit against the insured for unpaid insurance premiums.

Walters v. Wandless, 35 S. W. 184 (Texas);
Lamb v. Connor, 146 Pac. Rep. 174 (Wash.)
Elkins & Co. v. Susquehanna Fire Ins. Co., 113 Pa. St. 387;
Lebanon Mutual Ins. Co. v. Hoover, 113 Pa. St. 591;
Long v. North British, etc., Ins. Co., 137 Pa. St. 335;
Wiley v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 77 Fed. 961.

If the foregoing statement of facts is correct, it seems clear that the true relation of the foreign fire insurance company doing business in this state to its local agent engaged in transacting such business, is that of creditor and debtor, i. e., the company being the creditor and the agent the debtor under said relation.

If this is the true relation between the agent and the company, then it must necessarily follow that the balance in question is a credit of the company arising out of said relation and must be so considered in determining the answer to the question first above stated. Moreover, if said statement of facts is correct it seems equally clear that this same relation exists between domestic fire insurance companies doing business in the state and their agents transacting such business, and the credit of the company arising therefrom is the basis for determining the answer to the question last above stated.

Section 5372-1 G. C., supra, provides that moneys and credits in the possession or control of a person as agent must be returned for taxation in the manner therein prescribed. If the conclusion that the agent is the owner of the moneys derived from premiums and the owner of credits on unpaid premiums be correct, then neither are in his possession as agent to be listed for taxation by him in his representative capacity under provision of said statute, but the same should be listed by him as his own personal property under the provision of the statutes governing such return.

If the balances in question are credits of the insurance company charged against the agent and considered as a debt of the agent to the company it is evident that such credits belonging to a domestic fire insurance company must be returned for taxation at the principal place of business of said company and cannot be considered as credits "appertaining especially to a separate business" transacted at a particular place in the state within the meaning of section 5406-3 G. C., supra, and therefore returnable at the place where the agent resides and transacts the business out of which such credits arise. In so far as the domestic company is concerned the business relation existing between the company and its agents and the business transacted in the state by said agents is the same throughout the state. It seems equally clear that such credits belonging to a foreign fire insurance company and arising out of business transacted in this state would not be returnable for taxation under the foregoing provisions of the statutes, it being well settled that, generally speaking, the situs of the credit is the domicile of the creditor which in the case of the foreign company is not within the jurisdiction of this state. The following authorities support this proposition:

R. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 15 Wall. 300;
Myers v. Seaberger, 45 O. S. 232;
Green v. Jones, 39 O. S. 506.

The possible exceptions to this general rule are in the case of a foreign corporation having all of its assets and doing all of its business within the state or of a foreign corporation having its principal place of business in a county in this state and transacting all its business here. The holding of the court in the case of Hubbard v. Brush, 61 O. S. 252, applies to a corporation of the first class above mentioned and the syllabus in that case is as follows:

"1. Where all the business of a foreign corporation is transacted in this state, and all of its property situated and taxed here, shares of its capital stock held in this state are exempt from taxation by force of section 2746, Revised Statutes.

"2. Choses in action, whether book accounts, promissory notes, or the like, of foreign corporations that are kept in this state and arise out of the corporate business transacted here, are subject to taxation under the provisions of section 2744, Revised Statutes.

"3. Such corporation, in listing for taxation its 'credits' liable to taxation in this state, may, under the provisions of section 2730, Revised Statutes, deduct from its claims and demands that arise out of the business it transacts in this state, such of its bona fide debts as arise from the same source."

In the case of Sims v. Best et al., 1 C. C. (n. s.) 41, it was held that:

"The residence of a foreign corporation having its principal office in a county in this state, from which office all its business is transacted, is for purposes of taxation in such county."

Coming now to a consideration of the second question above stated as limited to foreign life insurance companies doing business in the state, it will be remembered that my former opinion hereinbefore referred to was limited to the question of the taxability of balances in the hands of agents in this state, belonging to fire insurance companies doing business in the state, and did not deal with the taxability of such balances belonging to life insurance companies. It must further be observed that in said opinion, balances, as therein defined, belonging to fire insurance companies doing business in the state, were held to be taxable upon the ground, based upon the facts therein presented, that such balances in the hands of the agent on the tax listing day in any year were in the possession and control of such agent as the representative of the company in the particular locality in which said agent transacted the business of the company, and were not in his hands temporarily and merely for the purpose of transmitting the same to said company.

The conclusions reached in this opinion are based on the relation existing between such companies and their agents, as developed from the facts hereinbefore set forth.

As expressing the relation existing between life insurance companies doing business in this state and their agents I quote from Mr. Dunham's brief as follows:

> "Like the savings banks, life insurance companies are essentially trustees of savings; and their business consists principally in the receipt of deposits and their investment and return in accordance with the policy contract.
>
> "All of this business, except the bare collection of premiums from policy holders in foreign states, is transacted at the companies' home offices. As between such corporations and their agents and policy holders there is no system of business credits employed. Each policy specifies a periodic premium on consideration therefor; rules of the company, which are strictly enforced and are scrupulously observed by their agents, forbid the delivery of a policy until the first premium stipulated therefor has been paid. Neither under the terms of the policy nor otherwise, is there any obligation on the policy holder's part to pay either the initial or any renewal premium. On the contrary, the payment of each premium is wholly optional with the policy holder. If the initial premium be not paid the policy, which expressly provides that it shall not constitute an obligation on the company's part unless delivered during the good health of the assured, is not delivered. If renewal premiums be not paid on the anniversary date or within the period of grace allowed by law, the policy lapses.
> "At every stage the contract of insurance is unilateral (N. Y. Life Ins. Co. v. Stratham, 93 U. S. 24). It consists in a promise by the company to afford life insurance protection and certain other benefits or advantages in consideration of an annual premium, the payment of which is absolutely optional with the policy holder or his representative. This situation is not even changed by the statutory provision giving the policy holder one month's grace for the payment of renewal premiums. Although the company is liable for death within this period it has no means of collecting the cost of insurance therefor from surviving policy holders who may elect to discontinue their insurance. In other words, the policy holder's option to pay renewal premiums after the due date and during the period of grace remains unchanged, except for the obligation to pay interest upon the amounts overdue if required by the company.
> "The principal provisions of policies issued by life insurance companies are in substance uniform, being prescribed by statute, and their terms are generally familiar. They usually provide that all premiums are payable at the home office, and limit the right to pay premiums otherwise, to designated agents in exchange for receipts signed by an executive officer of the company and countersigned by such agents. The custom likewise prevails among companies of limiting the authority of their agents to represent them. Such power as it might otherwise be inferred they possessed to vary the terms of the company's policy contracts or change the time or manner of paying premiums is expressly denied them. Once the policy is delivered the collection of such renewal premiums as the policy holders may care to pay through them is their only function. They have no funds of the company in their possession or control for any purpose except for transmission to the home office; and the companies have no funds in the hands of agents employed in the transaction of their business in the state of Ohio."

In view of the foregoing, it is evident that balances belonging to foreign life insurance companies doing business in this state and arising out of such business may consist of moneys in the hands of the local agent or credits on account of unpaid premiums due the company. It is clear, however, that moneys in the hands of the agent on the tax listing day in any year are not in his permanent possession or control, but are in his hands temporarily and merely for the purpose of transmission to the company. Under these circumstances can it be said that said balances are taxable under provision of section 5372-1 G. C., supra?

The case of Myers v. Seaberger, supra, involved the attempted assessment of a levy of tax upon personal property of a non-resident consisting of loans secured by mortgages upon real property situated in Ohio which were in the hands of a resident attorney for collection. In that case the court in its opinion quoted the following from the opinion of Welch, J. in Worthington v. Sebastian, Treas., 25 Ohio St. 8.

"Intangible property has no actual situs. If, for the purposes of taxation, we assign it a legal situs, surely that situs should be the place where it is owned, and not the place where it is owed. It is incapable of a separate situs, and must follow the situs either of the creditor or the debtor. To make it follow the residence of the latter, is to tax the debtor and not the creditor."

Commenting on the rule laid down by Welch, J. the court said.

"Such has been the uniform view taken of the question in this state, and elsewhere, except in the state of Pennsylvania, and possibly some others. Bradley v. Bauder, 36 O. S. 28; Grant v. Jones, 39 O. S. 506. In Railroad Co. v. Pennsylvania, 15 Wall. 300, it was held by the supreme court of the United States, that a state cannot tax the credits of non-residents, though secured by mortgage on property in it, on the ground that the situs of a credit being that of the creditor, is not within the jurisdiction of the state, and therefore not subject to taxation by it. While in Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491, it was held that when the creditor resides in the state, his credits are subject to taxation by it, without regard to where the debtor may reside, because the credit, following the residence of the creditor, is within the jurisdiction of the state.

"The rule as above stated is qualified as to 'money' by section 2734 R. S. By this section every person of full age and sound mind is required to list for taxation 'all moneys invested, loaned, or otherwise, controlled by him, as agent or attorney, or on account of any other person or persons.' But the case before us does not come within this provision. The agent of the defendant had no power to loan or invest money for her in this state. His duties were confined to the collection of that which had been loaned, and transmitting it to his principal as fast as it was collected. The phrase, 'or otherwise controlled by him,' must be construed to mean, in a manner similar to the loaning and investing of money. For it is a settled rule of construction that, in accordance with the maxim noscitur a sociis, the meaning of a word may be ascertained by reference to the meaning of words associated with it; and again, according to a similar rule, the coupling of words together shows that they are to be understood in the same sense. * * * To loan or invest money is one thing; to collect and transmit it to the owner when collected, is another and different thing. Any other construction would require every attorney in the state engaged in making collections for non-residents, to return the same for taxation. Such could not have been the intention of the legislature, nor does the language of the statute require that such construction should be placed on it."

The case of Insurance Co. v. Hard, 10 O. D. 469, involved the question of the taxability in this state of uncollected premiums and agents' balances due the company from residents of other states. The court in its opinion said:

"I think it is not tenable that moneys and credits in the hands of agents in other states than Ohio and owned by the company are not taxable in Ohio. The company, in the prosecution of its business, issues its policies through its agents; these agents, wherever they are, in the state or out of it, collect the premiums; perhaps cash is paid, possibly in some instances notes are taken; the agents collect the notes and in due time, under such rules as the company prescribes, these credits are returned to the company in Ohio and to its general office in Medina county. My judgment is that such assets whether in the form of notes for premiums, or cash balances in the hands of agents, are assets taxable in the state of Ohio. * * *

"I think it is the rule in the state of Ohio; that is, that intangible personal property, choses in action, moneys and credits, have no situs apart from the domicile of the owner. A resident of Ohio investing money in the states of Indiana, Illinois or any other state, holding notes therefor which are secured by mortgage in other states, cannot shield himself from taxation for such property, even though the note is made payable in another state, is paid there. Many of our large industrial corporations extend their business into many if not all of the states of this Union, perhaps even farther. They are obliged to extend credit, take notes or hold accounts, and this business is often transacted in other states by the hands of agents who collect these choses in actions and remit the money to the principal office or place of business in this state. Such personal property is clearly taxable in this state where the owner or owners have their domicile and not in the state where the debtor lives or the notes may be payable."

It may be observed in this connection that while the decisions above cited involve the consideration of the statutes of this state as in force prior to the going into effect of the so-called Parrett-Whittemore Law (106 O. L. 246-272), the provisions of said statutes as then in force were not materially changed by said law in so far as they related to the question now under consideration. By provision of section 5370 of the General Code, formerly section 2734 of the Revised Statutes, considered by the court in the case of Myers v. Seaberger, supra, agents having possession or control of the personal property of non-resident principals were required to list such property for taxation. I think it may be said therefore that the holding of the court in said case operates as a limitation on the duty of the agent to list for taxation the principal's property in his "possession or control" on the tax listing day in any year under provision of said section 5372-1 G. C., supra.

The case of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. v. Newark, 62 N. J. L. 74, involved the interpretation of a statute which provided:

> "That every person shall be assessed in the township or ward where he resides for all personal estate in his possession or under his control as trustee, guardian, executor or administrator; and in case the owner or owners of personal estate shall be non-residents of this state, then and in that case the said personal estate shall be taxed in the township or ward where the same may be situated."

An attempt was made under this statute to levy and collect a tax upon an account standing in the name of the company's local superintendent through whom the weekly collections of the Newark district were transmitted to the home office in New York. The court in its opinion said:

> "This money is not the capital of such corporation used or to be used here. It has no situs here whatever. It is intangible, invisible, and in a state of transmission from one hand to the other, and whilst in that state cannot be the subject of taxation."

In the case of Commonwealth v. Prudential Life Insurance Co., 149 Ky. 380, an attempt was made to tax cash in the hands of defendant's agent and deposited in bank for the purpose of transmitting the same to the company's St. Louis office, as personal property in Kentucky. From the statement of facts in that case it appeared that the agent's practice was to forward all moneys collected by him from the business transacted in the state as soon as practicable after receipt of the same and the current expenses incident to the transaction of such business were paid out of other funds forwarded to the agent for that purpose. The court in its opinion said:

> "The exception to the general rule that money and intangible property has only a situs for taxation at the residence of the owner is put distinctly upon the ground that the owner by his conduct in relation to it, or his manner of doing business with it, has given it what may be termed a permanent situs in some other state or locality. It is the permanent feature of the thing which gives the property its situs for taxation in some locality or state other than the residence of the owner."

To the same effect see Board of Assessors of Orleans Parish v. New York Life Insurance Co., 216 U. S. 517.

In view of the foregoing I do not think it can be said that the balances in question are moneys or credits in the hands of the local agent and in his "possession or control" which must be returned for taxation under provision of section 5372-1 G. C., supra. It remains to be determined whether such balances are moneys or credits "appertaining especially to a separate business" transacted by the company in a particular place within the meaning of section 5406-3 G. C., supra, and as such returnable by the agent at the place where the business is transacted.

What has already been said in this connection relative to the business of fire insurance companies will I think apply with equal force to the business of life insurance companies and the holding of the court in the cases of Hubbard v. Brush and Sims v. Best et al., supra, can only relate to the possible case of the foreign fire insurance company having all of its assets in this state and transacting all its business therein or to the case of such a company having its principal place of business in this state and transacting all of its business here.

As observed by Mr. Vorys in his brief, the legislature in enacting the provisions of section 5406-3 G. C. supra > "intended to draw a line of demarcation between a company transacting the same business at several places and whose credits appertain to the general business of the company, and a company which transacts separate businesses at several particular places and whose credits respectively and especially appertain to the separate businesses so transacted at the several particular places."

Answering the questions above stated as specifically as the premises will permit and basing my conclusion on the facts hereinbefore set forth, I am of the opinion that balances, existing on the tax listing day in any year, belonging to a fire insurance company or a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state and arising out of business transacted in the state, must be returned for taxation by the proper officers of the company at the principal place of business of such company, and that such balances belonging to a foreign fire or life insurance company are not returnable for taxation as property of the company under any of the foregoing provisions of the statutes.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SECRETARY OF STATE—CERTIFICATE OF REGISTRATION OF TRADE MARKS—ADVISED TO ACCEPT AND FILE MARK OF OWNERSHIP SHOWING PICTURE OF BOY SCOUT OR COWBOY ON HORSEBACK—EXCELSIOR SHOE COMPANY, PORTSMOUTH, OHIO—SEE OPINION NO. 2002, OCTOBER 30, 1916.

Secretary of state advised to accept and file certificate of registration presented by the Excelsior Shoe Company of Portsmouth, Ohio, for mark of ownership consisting of a picture or representation of a boy scout or cowboy on horseback.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 9, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of November 10, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "We are submitting to your department certificate of registration of marks of ownership on personal property consisting of the picture of a boy scout and kindly request an opinion upon the question as to whether the same should be filed in this department.

"In view of a former opinion rendered by your department relative to the trade name 'Boy Scouts,' we have refused to file the aforesaid certificate.

"We are also enclosing postal money order to the amount of $1.00."

The certificate of registration which the Excelsior Shoe Company now seeks to file is as follows:

"REGISTRATION OF MARKS OF OWNERSHIP OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

"APPLICATION OF The Excelsior Shoe Company, an Ohio corporation of Portsmouth, Ohio.

"Witnesseth, That the Excelsior Shoe Company above named, in compliance with 'An Act' of the general assembly of the state of Ohio, passed May 31, 1911, and approved June 7, 1911 (102 O. L., 513), 'to provide for the registration of marks of ownership on personal property, and to make such registered mark prima facie evidence of ownership of property bearing such mark,' hereby makes application for the registration in the office of the secretary of state of the state of Ohio and in the office of the clerk of the court of common pleas of Scioto county, Ohio, said the Excelsior Shoe Company having its principal place of business in the city of Portsmouth, county of Scioto and state of Ohio by filing this written statement or description verified by affidavit of said mark of ownership used by said the Excelsior Shoe Company, to wit:

"The trademark consists of the picture of a scout.

"The class and particular description of goods to which the said trademark has been and is intended to be appropriated are: Class, footwear. Particular description of goods, shoes.

"The said trademark has been continuously used in the business of said corporation since about the fifteenth day of October, 1910.

"The said trademark is usually applied by stamping the same directly on the goods or by means of printed labels showing the trademark or by stamping or printing the same upon the packages containing the goods."

"(Here appears a copy of the trademark consisting of a picture of a fully equipped scout on horseback.)

"(Seal) The Excelsior Shoe Company,
"By J. W. Bannon ,Jr.,
"Secretary.

"State of Ohio, Scioto County, ss:

"J. W. Bannon, Jr., being duly sworn says that he is the secretary of the above named corporation, in whose behalf the foregoing application is made; that said the Excelsior Shoe Company has the right to use such mark of ownership, and that no other person, firm, association, union or corporation has the right to use such mark of ownership, either in the identical form or any such near resemblance thereto as may be calculated to deceive, and that the fac simile or counterparts filed therewith are true and correct.

"J. W. Bannon, Secretary,
"The Excelsior Shoe Company.

"Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me this 25th day of September, A. D., 1916. "E. H. Hammer,
"Notary Public."

In my former opinion to you to which reference is made in your letter I had under consideration an application made by the Excelsior Shoe Company of Portsmouth, Ohio, for the registration of a trademark consisting of a picture of a fully equipped scout on horseback, labeled over the head with the words: "Boy Scout" in large letters, and underneath with the words: "The Excelsior Shoe Company, Portsmouth, Ohio," in smaller letters.

In that opinion, upon the information before me that the Excelsior Shoe Company at the date of the passage of the federal act incorporating the Boy Scouts of America had no established or vested right to use the name "Boy Scouts" within the meaning of the exceptions contained in section 7 of that act, and that the association known as the Boy Scouts of America at that time had and now have the sole and exclusive right to have and use such name, I advised you that the Excelsior Shoe Company was not entitled to use the name "Boy Scouts" for the purpose recited in its certificate of registration and that you would be fully justified in refusing to accept and file the same.

The basis of my opinion at that time was the unauthorized use of the mark or term "Boy Scouts" by the Excelsior Shoe Company.

In the certificate of registration which the Excelsior Shoe Company now seeks to file, the words "Boy Scouts" do not appear on the trademark, which consists of a fully equipped scout on horseback. So far as I have been able to learn, the Boy Scouts of America do not claim to have originated or that they are the exclusive owners of this mark or emblem. They do protest against its registration and suggest that the purpose of the Excelsior Shoe Company in seeking to secure such registration is to evade or circumvent the effect of your former ruling.

The verified certificate of the Excelsior Shoe Company recites that the company is the owner of and for more than six years past has used the mark which it seeks to register. The Boy Scouts of America do not deny this claim or assert a prior right or claim to the mark or emblem, and it is not to be presumed that the Excelsior Shoe Company will make improper use of a trademark which it registers under section 6240-1, 6240-2 and 6240-3.

I, therefore, advise you upon the information before me that you should accept and file the certificate of registration presented by the Excelsior Shoe Company and enclosed in your letter.

I am returning the enclosures of your letter, also the correspondence belonging to your files which I later secured from your office.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

BANKS AND BANKING—CIRCULATION OF ADVERTISEMENT—STATEMENT THAT ALL BANKS ARE NOT SAFE AND BANKS WHICH CARRY BANK DEPOSITORS' INSURANCE ARE SAFER THAN THOSE WHICH DO NOT CARRY SUCH INSURANCE, NOT A VIOLATION OF SECTION 13383-1 G. C.

The circulation of an advertisement reciting in substance that all banks are not safe and that banks which carry bank depositors' insurance are safer than banks which do not carry such insurance is not a violation of the provisions of section 13383-1 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 11, 1916.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of November 21, 1916, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "The following is a copy of an advertisement which is being extensively circulated by certain banks in Ohio:
> "'Don't carry the money that you have saved in your pockets or in a belt around your waist.
>
> "'You might meet with an accident and have it stolen while unconscious.
> "'Don't bury it in the ground in a can—someone might dig it up and keep it.
>
> "'If you put it in the mattress of your bed or attempt to hide it somewhere in your house, burglars can find it or if your house catches fire the money will burn.
>
> "'There is only one SAFE place to put your money—in a SAFE BANK.
>
> "'Every bank is not a SAFE BANK.
> "'A safe bank insures your money against any loss just as your life or house is insured.
> "'This bank is a SAFE BANK, because it insures your money. This insurance costs you nothing. Don't put your money in any bank unless it is insured.
>
> "'When you open an account with this bank, we give you a certificate showing that your money is INSURED and will be given back to you whenever you want it.
> "'The United States postal banks are as strong and safe as we are, but they pay you only 2%, while we pay you more on all savings.'
> "Will you kindly advise if such an advertisement conflicts with section 13383-1 of the banking laws of Ohio?"

Section 13383-1 of the General Code (103 O. L. 469), to which you call my attention, is as follows:

> "Whoever, directly or indirectly, wilfully and knowingly makes or transmits to another, or circulates, or counsels, aids, procures or induces another to make, transmit or circulate, any false or untrue statement, rumor or suggestion derogatory to the financial condition, solvency or financial standing of any bank, savings bank, banking association, building and loan association or trust company, doing business in this state, or with intent to depress the value of the stocks, bonds or securities of any corporation, directly or indirectly, wilfully and knowingly makes or transmits to another, circulates or counsels, aids, procures or induces another to make, transmit or circulate, any false or untrue statement, rumor or suggestion derogatory to the financial condition, or with respect to the earnings or management of the business of any corporation, or resorts to any fraudulent means with intent to depress in value the stocks, bonds or securities of any corporation shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than two years, or both."

It is clear from the language of the above section that "the untrue statement, rumor or suggestion," which it is intended to prohibit must be directed against or made concerning a particular bank, savings bank, banking association, building and loan association or trust company. An affidavit or indictment charging the offense punishable under said section would be defective unless it named the bank or other institution injured or intended to be injured.

The advertising matter set forth in your letter does not name or indicate the identity of any bank which is represented to be unsafe. It is ostensibly issued to promote the business of banks which carry insurance for the benefit of their depositors as opposed to banks which do not carry insurance. Its chief purpose is perhaps to advertise the bank deposit insurance company. In substance, it expresses the opinion or conclusion that a bank which carries insurance guaranteeing payment to its depositors is safer than a bank which does not carry such insurance.

I, therefore, advise you that the advertising matter referred to in your letter does not constitute a violation of the provisions of section 13383-1 of the General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY CITY OF MOUNT VERNON, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 11, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

"RE: Bonds of the city of Mount Vernon, Ohio, in the amount of $11,653.65, for the improvement of Adams street sewer district No. 1, by the construction of sanitary sewers therein, being one bond of $653.65, two bonds of $500.00 each and ten bonds of one thousand dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the council and other officers of the city of Mount Vernon relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will constitute valid and binding obligations of the city of Mount Vernon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

YOUNGSTOWN ARMORY—APPROVAL OF ABSTRACT OF TITLE FOR CERTAIN REAL ESTATE IN CITY OF YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 12, 1916.

The Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—At your request I have examined the abstract of title to the following described premises:

> "Situated in the city of Youngstown, county of Mahoning, and state of Ohio, and known as being the west fifteen (15) feet of city lot number six hundred and forty-three (No. 643), all of city lots numbers six hundred and forty-four (No. 644) and six hundred and forty-five (No. 645), according to the latest enumeration of Youngstown city lots and out-lots, bounded and described in one parcel as follows:
> "Beginning on the south-westerly side of West Rayen avenue at a point which is distant north-westerly 275 feet from the intersection of the south-westerly line of West Rayen avenue, with the north-westerly line of Holmes street; thence south-westerly parallel with the north-westerly line of Holmes street, a distance of two hundred (200) feet to the north-easterly line of Pine alley; thence north-westerly along the north-easterly line of said Pine Alley, a distance of one hundred and fifty (150) feet to the south-easterly corner of city lot No. 646; thence north-easterly along the south-easterly line of said city lot No. 646, a distance of one hundred and ninety-nine (199) feet to the south-westerly line of West Rayen avenue; thence south-easterly along the south-westerly line of West Rayen avenue, a distance of one hundred and fifty (150) feet to the place of beginning; formerly known as a part of sub-lot No. 21 and all of sub-lot No. 22 of Parmelee's sub-division, plat of which is recorded in volume 1, page 25, Mahoning County Records of Maps."

From my examination of said abstract of title I am of the opinion that the state of Ohio has a good and indefeasible estate in said premises, subject only to the payment of the taxes for the year 1916.

The abstract and papers accompanying it, which you submitted to me, are herewith returned.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JUDGE OF COURT OF APPEALS—HOW COMMISSION SHOULD READ —"APPELLATE" INSTEAD OF "JUDICIAL."

A commission which describes the person to whom it is issued as "judge of the court of appeals, Sixth judicial district," is valid, but, to be exact, such commission should be drawn to read "judge of the court of appeals, Sixth Appellate district."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 13, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—You have handed me a communication addressed to you by Hon. Silas S. Richards, judge of the court of appeals of the Sixth appellate district, with the request that I advise you as to the matter referred to therein. The communication from Judge Richards reads as follows:

> "I have received through the clerk of courts my commission as judge of the court of appeals for this district. This commission reads in two places: 'Judge of the court of appeals, Sixth judicial district.' By the amendment to the constitution made in 1912, article IV, section 6, the state was divided into 'appellate' districts. It occurs to me that by reason of this provision, it would be preferable if the commission read: 'Sixth appellate district,' instead of 'Sixth judicial district.' If you or the attorney-general think the commission should be corrected to read as I suggest, I will return the same for that purpose, but the correction, if made, should be done promptly as the statute requires that the person holding the commission shall qualify within a limited time."

Section 6 of article IV of the constitution of Ohio contains the following provision:

> "The state shall be divided into appellate districts of compact territory bounded by county lines, in each of which there shall be a court of appeals consisting of three judges, and until altered by law the circuits in which the circuit courts are now held shall constitute the appellate districts aforesaid."

From the above it appears that the observation of Judge Richards as to the language proper to be used in his commission is correct. He should have been commissioned as "judge of the court of appeals, Sixth appellate district." An appellate district is, however, a judicial district. It is one of the districts into which the state is divided for judicial purposes. It can not, therefore, be said that the language used in the commission is wholly incorrect and Judge Richards aptly puts the matter when he says that the expression suggested by him would have been preferable to that actually used. The commission as actually drawn identifies its holder as a judge of the court of appeals and sets forth the number of the district in and for which he was elected.

I have no doubt whatever that any court called upon to consider the validity of this commission would reach the conclusion that the commission sufficiently identifies the office to which its holder was elected and it is my opinion that the commission in its present form is valid. However, if time permits and Judge

Richards is so disposed it might be well in the interest of exactness and in order to avoid any possible question in the future, to return the commission and have the same corrected to read "Sixth appellate district."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—WHERE COUNCIL AUTHORIZED TO ENACT ORDINANCES FIXING SALARY OF DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SERVICE PAYABLE PARTLY FROM SERVICE AND PARTLY FROM WATER WORKS FUNDS—PROPORTION WITHIN DISCRETION OF COUNCIL.

Council of a city is authorized to pass ordinances fixing the salary of the director of public service and making same payable part from the public service fund and part from the water works fund.

The division between the two funds is within the sound discretion of council and should be according to amount of time spent for each activity.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 13, 1916.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of November 28, 1916, you submitted for my opinion the following:

> "We respectfully request your written opinion on the following matter:
>
> "The council of the city of Ravenna, Ohio, on December 21, 1915, passed an ordinance fixing the salary of the director of public service at $1,800.00 per year, payable monthly, half to be paid from the public service fund and half from the water works fund.
> (1) In view of the provisions of sections 3956 and 3959 G. C., is such ordinance legal, and are such payments from the water works fund legal?
> (2) Under the provisions of the sections above mentioned, if part payment of the salary of the director of public service is legal from the water works fund, would it not be necessary to ascertain exactly what proportion of his time is devoted to the management and control of the water works?"

Section 4214 G. C. relative to council of cities provides:

> "Except as otherwise provided in this title, council, by ordinance or resolution, shall determine the number of officers, clerks and employes in each department of the city government, and shall fix by ordinance or resolution their respective salaries and compensation * * * ."

The title referred to is title XII, part first of the General Code. I do not find in the said title any provision of the statute for the fixing of the salary of the director of public service otherwise. Therefore, the salary of the director of public service is to be fixed by council.

While section 4327 G. C. authorizes the director of public service to establish such sub-departments as may be necessary and determine the number of superintendents, etc., necessary for the execution of the work and the performance of the duties of that department, nevertheless section 3956 G. C. provides as follows:

> "The director of public service shall manage, conduct and control the water works, furnish supplies of water, collect water rents and appoint necessary officers and agents."

Therefore, the director of public service is entrusted by virtue of the statutes with the duty of managing the water works department.

Section 3959 G. C. provides as follows:

> "After paying the expenses of conducting and managing the water works, any surplus therefrom may be applied to the repairs," etc.

It would seem to me, therefore, entirely proper for council to provide for the payment of a part of the salary of the director of public service from the revenues derived from the water works, and it would be entirely within the reasonable discretion of council to determine what part of the time of said director was so employed and could therefore determine the proportion of the salary that was to be paid from the water works revenues, the balance of course to be paid from the general revenue fund.

Specifically answering your questions, therefore, I am of the opinion:

First: That an ordinance of council fixing the salary of the director of public service, part to be paid from the public service fund and part to be paid from the water works fund, would be legal.

Second: In view of the discretion vested in council I do not believe that it is necessary to ascertain exactly what proportion of the time of the director of public service is devoted to the management and control of the water works, but that council should determine the approximate amount of time so devoted and pay from the water works revenues such proportion of the salary of said director of public service.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CORPORATIONS—FAILURE TO FILE CERTIFICATE REDUCING CAPITAL STOCK OF CORPORATION WHICH HAD REDUCED SAME BEFORE MONTH OF MAY—SUCH CERTIFICATE WHEN FILED WILL RELATE BACK TO TIME OF REDUCTION.

A corporation that has reduced its capital stock before the month of May, but has failed to file its certificate of such action with the secretary of state, must file such certificate before the tax commission can take cognizance of the fact. After such certificate is filed, it will, so far as the franchise tax is concerned, relate back to the time of the reduction.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 13, 1916.

Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of December 1, 1916, wherein you submit the following inquiry:

> "The Miles-Harvard Park Company, a domestic corporation for profit, by the board of directors upon the consent of the stockholders, reduced the authorized capital stock of said company on April 5, 1916, from $60,000.00 to $600. The certificate of reduction, as required by section 8700 G. C., was filed with the secretary of state July 14, 1916.
>
> "We inquire whether the company in making its report as a domestic corporation for profit in May, should have given the amounts of authorized, subscribed, issued and outstanding and paid-up capital stock as before or after the reduction was made?"

Section 8700 G. C. provides as follows:

> "With the written consent of the persons in whose names a majority of the shares of the capital stock thereof stands on its books, the board of directors of such a corporation may reduce the amount of its capital stock and the nominal value of all the shares thereof, and issue certificates therefor. The rights of creditors shall not be affected thereby; and a certificate of such action shall be filed with the secretary of state."

Said section authorizes the reduction of capital stock on the written consent of the person in whose name the majority of shares stands on its books. With such written consent the board of directors may reduce the amount of the capital stock and the nominal value of the shares and issue certificates therefor. In other words, whenever the written consent of the owners of the majority of the capital stock of a corporation is obtained, that constitutes sufficient authority for the board of directors to proceed to reduce the capital stock and to issue the certificates at the reduced value. The filing of the certificate of the action taken by the directors in reducing the capital stock, filed in the office of the secretary of state, is only evidentiary of the fact that the reduction has taken place.

Section 5495 G. C. requires each domestic corporation for profit to report during the month of May.

Section 5497 G. C. states what the report shall contain. Paragraph 5 thereof states as follows:

"The amount of authorized capital stock and the par value of each share."

Paragraph 6 states:

"The amount of capital stock subscribed, the amount of capital stock issued and outstanding, and the amount of capital stock paid-up."

The actual condition of the corporation as it exists during the month of May is what is to be reported.

If under section 8700 G. C. a corporation has proceeded to and has completed the reduction of the capital stock, all prior to the time of the filing of the report in May, the mere fact that the evidence of the reduction of the capital stock is not filed with the secretary of state would not, so far as the Willis law tax is concerned, change the actual fact that the reduction had taken place. The state could not take cognizance of the fact of the reduction until the certificate is filed, but after the certificate has been filed showing that the reduction took place prior to the time of the filing of the report, the amount of subscribed or issued and outstanding stock as shown by the report should be certified to the auditor of state.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that a corporation making its report as a domestic corporation for profit in May, having reduced its capital stock prior to that time should give the amount of authorized, subscribed, issued and outstanding, and paid-up capital stock as the same cannot be considered by the tax commission until the certificate provided for by section 8700 G. C. has been filed. After having been filed, however, the actual condition of the corporation at the time of the filing of the report should govern.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

LOCAL OPTION ELECTION—APPROVAL OF FORM OF PETITION AUTHORIZED BY SECTION 6119 G. C.—TOWNSHIP OUTSIDE OF A MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

Approval of petition for a township local option election, pursuant to section 6119 G. C. et seq, therein set forth, as to form.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 14, 1916.

HON. DEAN E. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your inquiry under date of December 12, 1916, as follows:

"I desire to inquire if the form of petition which follows will justify and make it the duty of township trustees in a township in which there is a village to call an election under G. C. 6119. You will note the last sentence says Salem township and makes no reference to the village and that it also sets forth the section of the code. The petition reads as follows:

"'To the trustees of Salem township, Warren county, Ohio: We, the undersigned, being qualified electors of the township of Salem, Warren county, Ohio, residing outside of any municipal corporation, respectfully petition your honorable body to order an election in accordance with section 6119, General Code, to ascertain the will of the voters of Salem township whether the sale of intoxicating liquor as beverage shall be prohibited therein.'"

Section 6119 G. C., to which reference is made, provides as follows:

"When one-fourth of the qualified electors of a township, residing outside of a municipal corporation, petition the trustees of such township for the privilege to determine by ballot whether the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage shall be prohibited within the limits of such township and without the limits of a municipal corporation, such trustees shall order a special election for such purpose to be held at the usual place or places for holding elections in the township."

No form of petition is specifically required by statute. The petition, however, makes specific reference to section 6119 G. C., which authorizes or requires elections to be held only in the territory of townships outside of a municipal corporation. It will be further noted that the petition itself states that the signers thereof are residents of the township named residing outside of any municipal corporation. The reference in the petition to section 6119 G. C. serves to direct the attention of the township trustees to the provisions of that section and it is the duty of the township trustees to take notice of said provisions, which by the terms thereof are applicable only to the territory of a township outside of a municipal corporation. It seems clear that the provisions of this section taken together with the statement of the petition that the signers thereof are residents only of the territory of the township outside of any municipal corporation, are amply sufficient to give full notice to the trustees and to such other persons as may be concerned therein of the character of election sought to be held.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the petition set forth in your inquiry is a substantial compliance with the provisions of section 6119 G. C. and, therefore, warrants the township trustees, upon their determination that the same has been duly signed by at least one-fourth of the qualified electors of the township residing outside of a municipal corporation, in ordering the election as prayed for in said petition pursuant to the provisions of section 6119 et seq. of the General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SALE OF CANAL LANDS IN LICKING COUNTY TO SYLVESTER A. MEARS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 14, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of December 11, 1916, transmitting to me a resolution providing for the private sale to Sylvester A. Mears of a tract of abandoned canal property in Madison township, Licking county, Ohio, appraised at $442.00.

I find that the resolution is properly drawn and recites the necessary jurisdictional facts and I am, therefore, returning the same with my signature attached to the duplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—PROPER EXCISE TAX TO BE CHARGED AGAINST D. B. TORPY AS RECEIVER OF MARIETTA, COLUMBUS AND CLEVELAND RAILROAD COMPANY.

It appearing that the property of the Marietta, Columbus and Cleveland Railroad Company was sold by the receiver of said company under the order of the court on July 18, 1916*; that said sale was confirmed by the court on the* 30*th day of September,* 1916, and that the operation of the property has been wholly discontinued since October, 31, 1916, this opinion recommends to the state tax commission that the offer of the receiver of said company to pay the excise tax for four months or one-third of the current year, be accepted.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 15, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of December 1 enclosing a letter and affidavit of Hon. D. B. Torpy relative to the excise tax charged against the Marietta, Columbus and Cleveland Railroad Company for the year 1916. You refer the same to me for such recommendation as I see fit to make.

Mr. Torpy's affidavit is in part as follows:

"D. B. Torpy, of Marietta, Ohio, being by me first duly sworn, deposes and says that on the 10th day of July, 1914, he was duly appointed and qualified as receiver of the Marietta, Columbus and Cleveland Railroad Company by the common pleas court of Washington county, Ohio, and was thereafter by said court duly appointed and qualified as a special master commissioner to sell all the property of said company; that he sold said property at public sale on the 18th day of July, 1916, to H. H. Isham, of Elizabeth, New Jersey, for one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000). Said sale was confirmed by the court on the 30th day of September, 1916, on which last named day the court ordered all passenger, mail and express business discontinued on the 10th day of October, 1916, and all freight business on the 31st day of October, 1916, owing to the unsafe condition of the track and trestles of the road, the owners being wholly unable to procure funds to put the property in safe condition. This order was strictly observed and the operation of the property wholly discontinued since October 31, 1916.

"The treasurer of the state of Ohio has notified affiant that the excise tax due the state for the year ending June 30, 1917, and payable by December 15, 1916, is $2,656.40, and, unless the same is paid by that date, a penalty will be added and the collection of the tax and penalty enforced."

From the above statement of facts it appears that while the property of the railroad company in question was sold at public sale on July 18, 1916, this sale was not confirmed by the court until September 30 and Mr. Torpy, as receiver for said company, continued to operate said road in respect to all kinds of traffic until after this latter date.

Section 5415 G. C. provides:

"The term 'public utility' as used in this act means and embraces each corporation, company, firm, individual and association, their lessees, trustees, or receivers elected or appointed by any authority whatsoever, and herein referred to as * * * railroad company * * * , and such term 'public utility' shall include any plant or property owned or operated, or both, by any such companies, corporations, firms, individuals or associations."

Section 5416 G. C. provides:

"That any person or persons, firm or firms, co-partnership or voluntary association, joint stock association, company or corporation, wherever organized or incorporated: .

* * * * * * *

"When engaged in the business of operating a railroad, either wholly or partially within this state, on rights-of-way acquired and held exclusively by such company, or otherwise, is a railroad company."

In view of the provisions of sections 5415 and 5416 G. C., supra, it is evident that the receiver of the railroad company in question, so long as he is engaged in operating said railroad, is a "public utility" within the meaning of that term as above defined.

Section 5470 G. C. (106 O. L., 571) provides:

"* * * each * * * railroad company, shall, annually, on or before the first day of September, under the oath of the person constituting such company, if a person, * * * make and file with the commission (the tax commission) a statement in such form as the commission may prescribe."

Section 5472 G. C. provides:

"In the case of each railroad company such statement shall also contain the entire gross earnings, including all sums earned or charged, whether actually received or not, for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June next preceding, from whatever source derived, for business done within this state, excluding therefrom all earnings derived wholly from interstate business or business done for the federal government. Such statement shall also contain the total gross earnings of such company for such period in this state from business done within this state."

Section 5477 G. C. provides:

"On the first Monday of October, the commission shall ascertain and determine the gross earnings as herein provided, of each railroad company whose line is wholly or partially within this state, for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June next preceding, excluding therefrom all earnings derived wholly from interstate business or business done for the federal government. The amount so ascertained by the commission shall be the gross earnings of such railroad company for such year."

Section 5482 G. C. provides:

"On the first Monday of November the commission shall certify to the auditor of state the amount of the gross earnings so determined of each street, suburban and interurban railroad and railroad company for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June next preceding."

Section 5486 G. C. provides:

"In the month of November the auditor of state shall charge for collection, from each railroad company, a sum in the nature of an excise tax, for the privilege of carrying on its intra-state business, to be computed on the amount so fixed and reported to him by the commission, as the gross earnings of such company on its intra-state business for the year as covered by its annual report to the commission, as required in this act, by taking four per cent. of all such gross earnings, which tax shall not be less than ten dollars in any case."

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutes it seems reasonably clear that the tax charged by the auditor of state in November of any year under the authority of section 5486 G. C., supra, and computed on the amount of the gross earnings for the year ending on the 30th day of June next preceding, is a tax on the privilege of continuing to do business as a public utility. My predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in an opinion to your commission under date of December 31, 1914, (Annual Report of the Attorney General for the Year 1914, vol. II, page 1697) so held and this conclusion is supported by the holding of the court in the case of Express Co. v. State 55 O. S. 69. The court in its opinion at page 81 said:

"The tax is not laid on the gross receipts for the year 1894, but those receipts are taken as the standard by which to determine the amount of the excise tax to be paid for the privilege of doing business in the state for the year 1895 (which was the year succeeding the making of the report.)"

It may be observed, however, that no provision of the statutes determines on what day the year for the privilege of conducting the public utility business during which the tax in question is exacted, commences. Nor has said day been fixed by any decision of the courts.

In this connection I quote the following from Mr. Hogan's opinion above referred to:

> "I do not find it necessary to determine whether, if the company had done business for a few days after June 30th, but had gone out of business on the date on which the report was required to be filed, viz., the first of August, it would have been liable for the tax. I incline, however, to the view, without officially stating it as such, that the division point is the thirtieth day of June; so that if a company continues in business after the thirtieth day of June it is exercising the privilege and is liable for the tax. In such a case the mere fact that after a few days have elapsed the company may go out of business does not change the result if the company had the privilege of doing business for a year or indefinitely in the future, and asserted that privilege by doing some business after the division date; so that if of its own volition it abandoned the exercise of the privilege before the year elapsed, this would not detract from the value of the privilege."

I do not find it necessary, however, to decide the question as to whether the first day of July or the first day of September, the last day on which the report provided for in section 5470 G. C., supra, is required to be filed, marks the beginning of the year for which the tax is assessed. It is sufficient to observe, as has already been stated, that the receiver of the railroad in question was operating said railroad in respect to all classes of traffic on the first day of September, 1916, the later of these two possible dates, and that on that date it did not clearly appear that the business of said public utility would be terminated at any particular time.

In view of the foregoing it is evident that the situation presented by the question decided by Mr. Hogan in his opinion hereinbefore referred to and the one now under consideration may be stated as follows: The year within which some business must be done in order to make a railroad company liable for the excise tax must begin not earlier than the first of July and not later than the first of September. In the case considered by Mr. Hogan, the utility, an express company, the dates with respect to which are the same, had ceased doing business on the first of July; and in the case now under consideratoin the utility was still doing business on the first day of September. Therefore, neither case requires an answer to the possible question as to which of the two dates suggested is the proper one.

I find no provision of the statutes authorizing a refunder of a part of the tax in case the privilege of doing business is renounced and the business discontinued after the commencement of the year for which the tax is assessed, and in view of the holding of my predecessor above set forth I would be warranted in advising you that as a matter of law the tax in question as applied to public utilities in general is collectible in its entirety even though the business is discontinued shortly after the commencement of the year for which the tax is asssesed.

In view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case under consideration, however, I think an equitable deduction from the claim for the tax for the entire year should be allowed. I understand that Mr. Torpy, as receiver for said company, is authorized and has offered to pay the tax for four months, or one-third of the current year, and I, therefore, recommend that this fractional amount, properly computed in the manner prescribed by section 5486 G. C., supra, and at the per cent therein named, be accepted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, LEASES OF CERTAIN CANAL AND RESERVOIR LANDS TO THE NORTHWESTERN OHIO LIGHT COMPANY AND HOWARD G. GOODWIN.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 16, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of December 13, 1916, transmitting to me for examination a lease to the Northwestern Ohio Light Company of certain canal lands at Delphos, and also a lease to Howard G. Goodwin of certain reservoir land in Summit county.

I find these leases to be in regular form and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed upon the triplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY—WHEN SAID OFFICER MAY ACCEPT EMPLOYMENT FROM COUNCIL OF VILLAGE—LIMITATIONS OF STATUTES AS TO SUCH EMPLOYMENT DISCUSSED—VILLAGE COUNSEL.

The prosecuting attorney of a county may not accept employment from the council of a village in such county, acting under authority of sections 4220 G. C., to represent such village in any matter in which the interest of the village is adverse to that of the county, township, school district or other taxing district in said county, or to that of either of the boards mentioned in section 2917-1 G. C., or in any matter involving the taxing authority of the council of said village and coming before the county budget commission, but said prosecuting attorney may accept employment from the council of said village in matters involving the rights of the village which are outside and independent of the relations above referred to, where the rendering of service by said prosecuting attorney in his personal capacity as an attorney at law to such village will not conflict directly or indirectly with the full performance of his official duties as prosecuting attorney of the county. It would be proper to place in such a contract of employment a provision to the effect that the employment by the village council shall not extend to any matter which may directly or indirectly conflict with the performance of the official duties of such prosecuting attorney.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 16, 1916.

HON. DEAN E. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of December 8 is as follows:

"Is it lawful for a prosecuting attorney of a county in this state to accept employment, under section 4220 of the General Code, as legal counsel for a village and the officers thereof, for a stated period of time, when such village is located within his county? And would such employment be incompatible with his holding the office of prosecuting attorney? Would it be proper to place in the contract of employment a provision to the effect that the employment by the village council should not extend to any matter which might directly or indirectly, conflict with the duties of such prosecuting attorney?"

Section 4220 G. C. provides:

"When it deems it necessary, the village council may provide legal counsel for the village, or any department or official thereof, for a period not to exceed two years, and provide compensation therefor."

By provision of section 2917 G. C. the prosecuting attorney of the county is made the legal adviser of the county commissioners and all other county officers and county boards and any of them may require of him written opinions or instructions in matters connected with their official duties. He is required to prosecute and defend all suits and actions which any such officer or board may direct or to which it is a party, and no county officer may employ other counsel or attorney at the expense of the county except as provided in section 2412 G. C. By the further provision of said section 2917 G. C. the prosecuting attorney is made the legal adviser for all township officers, and no such officer may employ other counsel or attorney except on the order of the township trustees duly entered upon their journal, in which the compensation to be paid for such legal services shall be fixed.

Section 2917-1 G. C. (106 O. L. 452) makes the prosecuting attorney the legal adviser of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, or the board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections, as the case may be, of his county and requires him to prosecute and defend all suits, actions or proceedings which said board may direct or to which it is a party.

By provision of section 4761 G. C. the prosecuting attorney of the county is the legal adviser of all boards of education of the county which he is serving, except boards of education in city school districts, and said provision of said section makes the prosecuting attorney the legal counsel of such boards or the officers thereof in all civil actions brought by or against them and he is required to conduct such actions in his official capacity, except in the case when such civil action is between two or more boards of education in the same county, in which case the prosecuting attorney shall not be required to act for either of said boards. The authority of a board of education in such case to employ an attorney other than the prosecuting attorney is recognized in section 2918 G. C., the first part of which provides that:

"Nothing in the preceding two sections shall prevent a school board from employing counsel to represent it, but such counsel, when so employed, shall be paid by such school board from the school fund."

The prosecuting attorney is ex officio a member of the county budget commission under provision of section 5649-3h G. C. (106 O. L. 180.)

In view of the foregoing provisions of the statutes it is evident that the prosecuting attorney of a county, in the performance of his duties therein prescribed, could not consistently represent a village in such county in any matter in which the interest of the village would be adverse to the county, township, school district or other taxing district above referred to, or in any matter involving the taxing authority of the council of said village and coming before the county budget commission of which, as has already been noted, the prosecuting attorney is ex officio a member. I am of the opinion that as to all such matters the prosecuting attorney of the county could not consistently represent the village and could not, therefore, accept employment from the council of said village acting under authority of section 4220 G. C., supra.

However, in matters involving the rights of such village which are outside and independent of the relations above referred to, as, for instance, where the interest of the village is adverse to that of an individual or where the proper performance of a contract between said village and an individual, firm or corporation is in dispute, it is evident that the rendering of service by the prosecuting attorney in his personal capacity as an attorney at law to such a village would not necessarily conflict with the performance of his official duties, and if it should appear that his employment by the council of a village in the county under authority of section 4220 G. C. in connection with these matters last above referred to does not conflict directly or indirectly with the performance of his official duties as prosecuting attorney of the county and that the rendering of service according to the terms of such employment will not interfere in any way with the full performance of said official duties, I can see no objection to such employment and I am of the opinion that as to said latter matters and subject to the limitations above set forth the prosecuting attorney of the county may accept employment from the council of a village, within such county, acting under authority of said section 4220 G. C.

Answering your question specifically, I am of the opinion that the prosecuting attorney of the county may not accept employment from the council of a village in such county, acting under authority of section 4220 G. C. supra, to represent such village in any matter in which the interest of the village is adverse to that of the county, township, school district or other taxing district in said county, or to that of either of the boards mentioned in section 2917-1 G. C. supra, or in any matter involving the taxing authority of the council of said village and coming before the county budget commission, but that said prosecuting attorney may accept employment from the council of said village in matters involving the rights of the village which are outside and independent of the relations above referred to, where the rendering of service by said prosecuting attorney in his personal capacity as an attorney at law to such village will not conflict directly or indirectly with the full performance of his official duties as prosecuting attorney of the county. I am of the further opinion that it would be proper to place in the contract of employment a provision to the effect that the employment by the village council shall not extend to any matter which may directly or indirectly conflict with the performance of the official duties of such prosecuting attorney.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SUPPLEMENTAL CONTRACT FOR CONSTRUCTION AND COMPLETION OF COTTAGE NO. 4 AT MASSILLON STATE HOSPITAL.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 16, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have gone over the supplemental contract entered into on the 16th day of September, 1916, by the Ohio Board of Administration and the Cullen & Vaughn Company, relative to the construction and completion of cottage No. 4 at the Massillon state hospital, and have this day approved the same and am returning the said contract with my approval duly endorsed thereon.

DITCH MAPS—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ARE NOT AUTHORIZED TO CONTRACT WITH COUNTY SURVEYOR FOR MAKING SAME.

Under the facts as submitted, the county commissioners of Hardin county were not authorized to contract with the county surveyor for the making of ditch maps, and payments to such county surveyor on acccount of said contract were unauthorized. The transaction does not, however, fall within the purview of section 12910 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 18, 1916.

HON. DONALD F. MELHORN, Prosecuting Attorney, Kenton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion, under date of November 29, 1916, reads as follows:

> "Mr. Edwin E. Hall, state examiner, on page 82 of his 1916 report of examination of Hardin county offices, makes a finding against ex-Surveyor L. R. Anspach, for the recovery of $375.00, paid said Anspach for ditch maps made by him while acting as surveyor of Hardin county. Said finding sets forth the whole transaction between the county commissioners and Mr. Anspach, and is in words and figures following:
> "'DITCH MAPS.
> "On the commissioners' journal under date of December 28, 1914, appears the following:
> "This day the commissioners contracted with L. R. Anspach to construct maps of each of the fifteen (15) townships of Hardin county, to scale of four inches to the mile, showing the exact location and watershed of all county ditches to date, same to be indicated by the name and number of the ditch and the volume and page of the ditch record in which said ditch is recorded. Said maps to show the farm lines and owners' names as near to date of construction as possible. Also that two copies of Van Dyke black lines prints be made on canvas, one copy to be placed in the county commissioners' office and one in Hardin county surveyor's office. The sum of the contract not to exceed the expenditure of the sum of $375.00.

"(Signed) L. R. ANSPACH.

"(Auditor's certificate attached.)

"Under and by virtue of the foregoing contract, County Surveyor L. R. Anspach made the maps designated and was paid the following amounts:

"Date.	Warrant.	To Whom.	Purpose	Amount
"1915.
"Jan. 9	27919	L. R. Anspach	Partial estimate ditch maps	$ 75.00
"Apr. 10	29145	L. R. Anspach	Final estimate ditch maps	300.00
"Total				$375.00

"Your examiner knows of no law authorizing the making of such a contract. The only ditch maps that we know of are those provided by sections 6454 and 6456 G. C., and the provision for maps in section 6565-9, a special act concerning joint ditches. None of these sections provide for maps such as were made and paid for.

"Finding:

"In consideration of the facts it is held that the sum of $375.00 was appropriated without any authority in law and that the same should be paid into the county treasury by ex-Surveyor L. R. Anspach.

"Before submitting my questions I would supplement the information contained in the above quoted excerpt by saying, first, that the ditch maps in question are of great utility in the surveyor's office; secondly, the price paid is reasonable, in view of the labor involved in their preparation; thirdly, the contract was let in good faith on the part both of the county commissioners and Mr. L. R. Anspach.

"I desire to know, first, whether the county commissioners had the legal right to enter into a contract for the purchase of said ditch maps; and, secondly, whether said contract comes within the purview of Code Section 12910."

Sections 6454 and 6456 G. C., referred to by Mr. Hall, are a part of the law relating to single county ditches and authorize the county commissioners, in case they find for any specific improvement petitioned for, to direct the county surveyor to make, among other things, a profile and plat of the proposed improvement, the plat to be drawn upon a scale sufficiently large to represent the meanderings of the proposed improvement and to distinctly show boundary lines, names of owners and other similar information.

In referring to section 6565-9 G. C., Mr. Hall evidently intended to refer to section 6563-9 G. C., which section is a part of the law relating to joint county ditches, and authorizes the making of a map showing all the lands benefited by any specific projected improvement, together with a description thereof, including the acreage and names of owners. None of these sections could be so construed as to authorize a contract of the character referred to in your communication. I know of no other section of the General Code authorizing the making of such a contract, and it is my opinion, in answer to your first question, that the commissioners were without legal right or authority to enter into the contract in question.

This conclusion is strengthened by the fact that during the period of time beginning December 28, 1914, the date of the contract between the county commissioners and Mr. Anspach, and ending April 10, 1915, the date of final payment on account of the completion of said contract, Mr. Anspach was allowed and paid a fee of $5.00 for each working day, the work being done on bridges, roads and ditches, and the allowance made under section 2822 G. C. During the same period Mr. Anspach was also compensated at the rate of $25.00 per month as tax map draughtsman, under authority of sections 5551 and 5552 G. C. These facts are set forth by you in a communication dated December 8, 1916, replying to my request for additional information. Even if the county commissioners were authorized to employ the county surveyor to make ditch maps, the county surveyor would not be authorized to do the work while supposedly employed continuously with other official duties and while being compensated for the same upon a basis requiring all his time.

Section 12910 G. C., referred to by you in your communication, reads as follows:

> "Whoever, holding an office of trust or profit by election or appointment, or as agent, servant or employe of such officer or of a board of such officers, is interested in a contract for the purchase of property, supplies or fire insurance for the use of the county, township, city, village, board of education or a public institution with which he is connected, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more then ten years."

A reference to the terms of the agreement between the county commissioners of Hardin county and L. R. Anspach indicates that the contract cannot be regarded as one for the purchase of property or supplies or fire insurance and for this reason it is my opinion, in answer to your second question, that the contract referred to by you does not come within the purview of section 12910 G. C. The contract is to be regarded merely as one for the services of Mr. Anspach in the making or constructing of certain maps. The thing for which the commissioners agreed to pay was the time and services of Mr. Anspach, and section 12910 G. C. could not be regarded as applicable for the reason that under the contract in question the county did not acquire "property" or "supplies" in the sense in which those terms are used in the section in question

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JOINT COUNTY ROAD IMPROVEMENT—PROPORTIONS OF EXPENSES PAYABLE BY EACH COUNTY MUST BE RAISED BY SAME METHOD IN EACH COUNTY—JOINT BOARD NOT LIMITED IN ITS POWER TO CONTRACT WITH VARIOUS BOARDS OF TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES—MAY OR MAY NOT CONTRACT WITH BOARDS INTERESTED.

Where a joint board of county commissioners, either upon a petition or by unanimous vote and without the presentation of a petition, determines to make a road improvement and specially assess any part of the cost thereof, adopting for that purpose any one of the methods provided in section 6919 G. C., the respective proportions of the compensation, damages, costs and expenses payable by each county must be raised by the same method in each county.

Where a joint board of county commissioners, proceeding without a petition and by a unanimous vote, determines to construct a road improvement, which improvement will necessarily extend into at least two townships, and further determines that the entire cost of the improvement shall be paid by general taxation and without any special assessments, the joint board is not limited in its power to contract with township trustees to the making of a contract with each board of trustees and involving the payment by it of the same proportion of the cost and expense assumed by the other interested board or boards of township trustees, but may make contracts with the several interested boards of township trustees, calling for the payment of varying proportions of the cost, or may make a contract with one interested board of trustees without making any contract whatever with the other interested board or boards.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 21, 1916.

HON. EARL K. SOLETHER, Prosecuting Attorney, Bowling Green, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your inquiry of December 4, 1916, which is as follows:

> "Proceedings for a joint county road improvement are being contemplated by the Wood and Seneca county boards of county commissioners. The proposed road improvement being on the county line between Wood and Seneca counties for a distance of six miles, and lying between Jackson township in Seneca county and Perry township in Wood county.
>
> "Heretofore, all roads improved in Jackson township, Seneca county, have been built by a general levy over Jackson township. The roads in Perry township heretofore have been constructed by a levy of two-fifths against the land owners within one mile of the improvement and three-fifths against the township. This improvement is to be constructed by the joint board by resolution and not upon petition. Further, the commissioners of Seneca county have agreed with the trustees of Jackson township, that they will pay ten per cent, of Jackson township's share of constructing this improvement, the balance of Jackson township's share to be assessed against Jackson township.
> "I have before me your opinion No. 1441, dated March 30, 1916, which states that you are of opinion that 'the respective portions of the costs and expenses payable by each county must be raised by the same method in each county, which method is to be set forth in the petition when the board is acting upon a petition and is to be determined by the board when acting without a petition.'

"The joint board has asked my opinion concerning this matter as they wish to proceed under a resolution and pay the damages, costs, etc., as outlined by me in my first statement. As this question is one which is of general interest over the state, I, therefore, respectfully solicit your opinion thereon.

"The question is then, whether the joint board, after granting the improvement under a resolution, is at liberty to allow each county to choose its own method of assessment.

"In connection with this, I wish to call your attention to section 6921 G. C., section 100 of the Cass road law, section 6927 G. C., section 106 Cass road law, 6928 G. C., section 108 Cass road law.

"In your opinion No. 1441 you do not mention either of the foregoing sections. It would seem from reading sections 6921, 6927 and 6928 G. C., that the legislature has enacted a law which is applicable to just such a case as we have here.

"The intention of the joint board in this case is to enter into an agreement with the trustees of the respective townships to pay for the improvement as hereinbefore set forth."

Opinion No. 1441, referred to by you and rendered by this department on March 30, 1916, to Hon. Franklin J. Stalter, prosecuting attorney of Wyandot county, and Hon. Donald F. Melhorn, prosecuting attorney of Hardin county, dealt with the situation presented where it is proposed by a joint board of county commissioners, either upon a petition or by unanimous vote without a petition, to pay the compensation, damages, costs and expenses of an improvement in some one of the several methods provided by section 6919 G. C. The opinion is not specifically so limited, but was intended to apply only where one of the methods of payment provided by section 6919 G. C. was adopted and some part of the compensation, damages, costs and expenses specially assessed, and the references in the opinion to special assessments indicate its limitations. I still adhere to the view expressed in the opinion in question and for the reasons fully set forth therein advise you that where a joint board of county commissioners, either upon a petition or by unanimous vote and without the presentation of a petition, determines to make an improvement and specially assess any part of the cost thereof, adopting for that purpose any one of the methods provided in section 6919 G. C., the respective proportions of the compensation, damages, costs and expenses payable by each county must be raised by the same method in each county.

Section 6921 G. C., referred to by you, was not considered in opinion No. 1441 G. C., supra, for the reason that such section is intended to apply where a board of county commissioners, or joint board, proceeds by unanimous vote and without a petition and determines that all the compensation, damages, costs and expenses shall be paid by general taxation. The language of the section in question, to the effect that the county commissioners, or joint board thereof, may enter into an agreement with the trustees of the township or townships in which said improvement is in whole or in part situated, whereby said county and township, or one or more of them, may pay such proportion or amount of the damages, costs and expenses as may be agreed upon between them, is sufficiently broad to warrant the conclusion that where a joint board of county commissioners is constructing an improvement of the character referred to by you, that is to say, a road upon a county line, and where it has been determined that the entire cost shall be paid by general taxation, then the joint board may make agreements of a different character with the two or more interested townships, and looking toward the assumption by such townships of varying proportions of the total cost; or the joint board may make an agreement of this character with one interested board of township trustees and refrain from making a similar agreement with the other interested board or boards of trustees.

I, therefore, advise you that where a joint board of county commissioners, proceeding without a petition and by a unanimous vote, determines to construct an improvement, which improvement will necessarily extend into at least two townships, and further determines that the entire cost of the improvement shall be paid by general taxation and without any special assessments, the joint board is not limited in its power to contract with township trustees to the making of a contract with each board of trustees and involving the payment by it of the same proportion of the cost and expense assumed by the other interested board or boards of township trustees, but may make contracts with the several interested boards of township trustees, calling for the payment of varying proportions of the cost, or may make a contract with one interested board of trustees without making any contract whatever with the other interested board or boards. As above set forth, however, this conclusion does not apply where any one of the several methods of payment set forth in section 6919 G. C. is adopted and where some portion of the compensation, damages, costs and expenses is therefore to be specially assessed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, LEASES OF CERTAIN RESERVOIR AND CANAL LANDS TO ALVA B. JONES AND T. V. TAYLOR, RESPECTIVELY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 21, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of December 12, 1916, transmitting to me for examination a lease to Alva B. Jones of certain reservoir lands at Indian Lake, valued at $3,000.00, and also a lease to T. V. Taylor of certain canal lands at Troy, valued at $200.00.

I find these leases to be in regular form and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed upon the triplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

LAND REGISTRATION—RULES TO BE FOLLOWED WHICH GOVERN DISPENSING WITH COMPLETE RECORD IN PROBATE COURT OF SUCH PROCEEDINGS.

The following rules govern the dispensing with a complete record of land registration proceedings in the probate court:

1. When an independent application for registration is dismissed without prejudice no complete record of the proceedings may be made except upon the order of the party and payment of the official fee.

2. When a "separate cause of action" for registration set up in a petition for partition or to sell land to pay debts is dismissed without prejudice, and the main case proceeds to judgment or is dismissed otherwise than without prejudice, the complete record of the main case need not include any of the proceedings for registration excepting so much of the petition as relates thereto, and the entry of dismissal of the application for registration; when the main case is subsequently or contemporaneously dismissed without prejudice no complete record should be made at all.

3. In no case has the probate court discretionary power to dispense with the making of a complete record in registration proceedings, but discretionary power does exist in such court to dispense with complete recordation of copies of voluminous papers, etc., attached to pleadings.

4. In no other case is there authority to dispense with the making of a complete record in registration proceedings in the probate court.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 21, 1916.

HON. ROGER D. HAY, Prosecuting Attorney, Defiance, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of recent date submitting the following inquiry:

> "Since the Torrens law was enacted several suits have been brought in the probate court of Defiance county, Ohio, to have real estate owned by decedents registered and for authority to sell such real estate for purpose of obtaining money with which to pay debts and costs of administration.
> "Shortly after the enactment of the Torrens law the late Humphrey Jones of Washington C. H., caused to be issued and circulated a pamphlet in the nature of a short treatise on the Ohio title registration law; in this pamphlet Mr. Jones lays down the doctrine that in proceedings to register title and sell real estate to pay debts of a decedent estate that the probate court may dispense with the making of a complete record.

"If the probate court can dispense with the making of a complete record in a proceeding therein to register title and obtain an order to sell real estate to pay debts of decedent estate, the revenue of the county derived from court costs will be considerably reduced.

"While I have found authority for the court of common pleas to dispense with the making of a complete record in certain cases, I have been unable to find any authority other than the opinion of Mr. Jones for the probate court to dispense with a complete record.

. "If you will render an opinion on the question of the right of probate courts to dispense with the complete records in the Torrens law proceedings, the favor will be much appreciated."

The general power of a probate court to dispense with the making of a complete record in any case within its jurisdiction must be determined by a consideration of the following sections:

"Section 1594: The following books shall be kept by the probate court: * * *

"A final record, which shall contain a complete record in each cause or matter of the petitions, answers, demurrers, motions, returns, reports, verdicts, awards, orders and judgments, which shall be made and completed within ninety days after the final order or judgment has been made in such cause or matter. * * *

"Section 11212 G. C. The provisions of law governing civil proceedings in the court of common pleas, so far as applicable, shall govern like proceedings in the probate court, when there is no provision on the subject in this title.

"Section 11605 G. C. (Applicable primarily to the common pleas court): Except as hereinafter provided, the clerk shall make a complete record of every cause as soon as it is finally determined, unless such record, or some part thereof, be waived.

"Section 11607 G. C. The record shall be made up from the petition, the process, return, pleadings subsequent thereto, reports, verdicts, orders, judgments and all material acts and proceedings of the court. If items of an account, or copies of papers attached to pleadings, are voluminous, the court may order the record to be made by abbreviating them or inserting a pertinent description thereof, or by omitting them entirely.

"Section 11611 G. C. A complete record shall not be made:

"1. When action has been dismissed without prejudice to a future action;

"2. In actions in which, in open court, at the term at which the final order or judgment is made, both parties declare their agreement that no record shall be made.

"Section 11612 G. C. When an action has been dismissed without prejudice to a future action, the clerk shall make a complete record of the proceedings, upon being paid therefor by the party requesting it."

It is apparent, I think, at a glance that the probate court can have at most no greater power to dispense with the making of a complete record of any case than that possessed by the court of common pleas. I am of opinion that the combined effect of the sections above cited is such that the power of the probate court at least in the exercise of its general jurisdiction is the same as that of the common pleas court. Therefore, so far as these sections are concerned the probate court may dispense with the making of a complete record only when an action has been dismissed without prejudice to a future action or when in open court and within term time "both parties declare their agreement that no record shall be made." However, if the exhibits, etc., are voluminous the probate court as well as the common pleas court may order them abbreviated in the complete record or omit them therefrom entirely.

It remains, however, to be determined whether or not the special proceeding to which your inquiry relates is of such a character as that the general powers of the probate court as above described may be exercised therein.

At the outset it may be remarked that the powers of the probate court as such in the particular inquired about by you are as extensive as those of the common pleas court. This is made apparent by the provisions of section 1 of the so-called Torrens law, being section 8572-1 G. C. as amended 104 O. L. 146. That section provides as follows:

> "Concurrent jurisdiction, except as otherwise provided, is hereby conferred upon the common pleas and probate courts in all matters arising under this act. The probate court, for the purpose of this act and as to the jurisdiction hereby conferred, shall have all the powers, both at law and in equity, of a court of general jurisdiction."

Because the jurisdiction to be exercised under the Torrens law is concurrent in the two courts therein mentioned and because the powers of the probate court when exercising such jurisdiction are to be those of a court of general jurisdiction (and the only court of general jurisdiction under the constitution and laws of Ohio is the common pleas court) it is made very clear that no distinction can be drawn between the power of a probate court and the power of a common pleas court when acting under the Torrens law. The question submitted by you, therefore, is to be answered by determining whether any court in which a proceeding for the registration of title may be brought has authority to dispense in whole or in part with the making of a complete record thereof.

I find it unnecessary for the present purpose to describe in detail the theory and practical operation of the so-called Torrens land law originally enacted in 103 O. L. 914. It is sufficient to observe that the jurisdiction and proceedings therein provided for culminate in a decree of registration a certified copy of which, required to be filed immediately upon the entry thereof in the office of the county recorder, seems to constitute the "registration" at which the whole proceeding is aimed. (See section 23 of the act, section 8572-23 G. C., 103 O. L. 936.)

The provisions of the related sections make is absolutely clear that a final record of the proceeding for registration or of the cause in which registration may be prayed for as incidental or ancillary relief is not a prerequisite to registration as such. Section 22 of the act, section 8572-22 G. C. as amended 104 O. L. 146, provides in very explicit terms for the making of the jurisdictional act that underlies registration. In part it is as follows:

> "If the court after a hearing finds that the applicant has title in whole or in part * * * and proper for registration, then to the extent of the title so found a decree of confirmation and registration shall be entered, which shall have the effect of a decree in rem and, subject only to (certain) exceptions * * * shall bind the land and all interests, rights, and estates therein and liens and charges thereon and * * * shall be absolutely conclusive upon and against all persons * * * whether mentioned * * * or included in the general description, 'all other persons if any, having any right or interest in or lien upon the lands or any part thereof,' and whether * * * unknown or unascertained * * * "

"Every decree of registration shall bear date * * * and shall be signed by the clerk. * * * The decree shall be stated in a form convenient for transcription upon or binding in the register of certificates of title hereinafter mentioned, and in a form suitable to constitute it a certificate of title * * * ."

The next succeeding section already referred to provides that:

"Immediately upon the entry of the decree of registration, the clerk shall send a certified copy thereof * * * to the recorder of deeds for the county in which the land or any part thereof lies, and the recorder shall transcribe or bind the decree in a book to be called register of titles, in which a leaf or leaves in consecutive order shall be devoted exclusively to each title * * * . The entry made by the recorder in this book in each case shall be the original certificate of title, and shall be signed by him * * * ."

From these sections it is clear that the Torrens act does not of itself require the making of a complete record as a condition of registration.

On the other hand it is equally clear to me that there is nothing in the nature of the registration proceedings provided for by the Torrens act nor in the provisions of the act itself which would enable any court exercising such jurisdiction to dispense with the making of a complete record under any circumstances other than those under which it is authorized to do so generally; that is to say, the power of the court to take such action is no greater in registration cases than in other cases. The general principle then which must govern the answer to your question becomes established in the statement that the probate court, when exercising in any way the jurisdiction vested in it by the so-called Torrens land act, may dispense with the making of a complete record under precisely the same circumstances under which it might do so when exercising any other jurisdiction committed to it. A complete record is a final memorial of the proceedings in a cause evidential in character and particular in form. It is not the primary record of the court's action and in the most exact sense is not the record at all. Were it not for the statutes which require a complete record to be made up save in certain cases there would be no necessity for making such record.

Bearing in mind, then, that a complete record must be made up in all cases except where the cause is dismissed without prejudice and where both parties in open court and in term time enter their agreement that such a record may be dispensed with, we may proceed to an examination of the registration act with the inquiry as to whether or not under that act either of these circumstances may arise.

Section 8572-20 G. C., being section 20 of the Torrens law, 103 O. L. 914, provides in part as follows:

"If the court finds that the applicant has not title proper for registration, a decree shall be entered dismissing the application, and such decree may be ordered to be without prejudice, in whole or in part; but unless it is so ordered it shall bind the parties, their privies and the land in respect of any issue of fact or law which has been tried and determined. * * * ."

In my opinion a complete record may and should be dispensed with in all cases in which the application or petition for registration is wholly dismissed without prejudice as authorized in this section. Such action comes squarely within the first provision of section 11611 G. C., and under that provision and section 11612 G. C. the dispensing with a complete record is not discretionary with the court and the clerk, but it is the duty of the latter officer not to proceed to make up a final record except upon demand of one of the parties and payment of the fees therefor. But if the application for registration is dismissed without prejudice in part only, such a dismissal would not be a dismissal of the "action" without prejudice within the meaning of section 11611 G. C. and in such case a complete record should be made.

It is to be observed in this connection that according to section 8572-7 G. C. section 7 of the Torrens law, the application to register is to be made "by petition as in the commencement of a civil action."

Another question which it is necessary to answer here is as to whether or not the probate court has authority to dismiss wholly without prejudice an application for registration made in the course of a proceeding to sell real estate to pay debts, or for partition, and whether or not such dismissal would be a dismissal of the action without prejudice within the meaning of section 11611 G. C.; for what I have previously said relates only to cases in which the application for registration constitutes the only proceeding in the cause.

Your inquiry involves a consideration of section 8572-64 G. C., being section 64 of the original Torrens law as amended 106 O. L. 24. The section in its present form provides as follows:

> "In all suits to sell an estate in fee in the whole of unregistered land brought by an assignee or trustee for the benefit of creditors, commissioners of insolvents, receiver, master commissioner, administrator, executor or other person appointed by a court and in all suits to partition unregistered land held in fee, proper allegations and parties necessary to a decree for original registration of the title to said estate may be made in the petition, the said allegations to be included in a separate cause of action, and said title, before any order of sale or partition is made or entered in the case may, with the approval of the court in which such action is pending, be registered as provided in this act, in the name of the person, whether living or dead, whose title is sought to be sold, or in the names of the tenants in common, as the case may be, except that, if the legal title is in any such assignee, trustee, receiver or other person appointed by a court, the same may be so registered and the purposes for which said legal title is held stated in the decree and certificate of title. * * * In any such suit where registration of title to land is prayed for all parties shall for all purposes of the case be brought before the court in the manner provided for original registration in other cases. The court may, for good cause shown, in any case provided for in this section, enter an order dispensing with registration or permit the withdrawal of the application to register."

While this section has the effect of making the application for registration in the suits of which it speaks merely a separate cause of action in a conventional sense, yet it is apparent, I think, upon consideration that in a very real sense it is more than a mere separate cause of action and is in point of fact a separate and distinct proceeding authorized to be joined merely for the sake of convenience. This is true because it appears not only that the service of summons in the main proceeding to sell or to partition will not be efficacious to bring the natural parties to such proceedings before the court for the purpose of registration; but in addition to such service of summons it is expressly required by the section as above quoted that such parties shall also be brought before the court

"in the manner provided for original registration in other cases," i. e., by publication as provided by section 8572-14 G. C. and by registered letter as provided by section 8572-15 G. C. Moreover, other parties may be brought into the case for the purpose of registration, and indeed must be, though not proper parties to the proceeding to sell or to partition. It is clear, therefore, that while the two proceedings may go on concurrently and be initiated by the same petition with separate causes of action they do not constitute a single civil action for the purpose of the code of civil procedure, but for that purpose must be regarded as separate and distinct actions.

Section 8572-64 G. C. expressly authorizes the court to dispense with registration in causes to which it relates and to permit the dismissal of the application to register, and in my opinion this authority, together with the general authority already referred to, is sufficient to empower the court exercising such jurisdiction to permit the dismissal of the application for registration without prejudice. When that is done the complete record of the proceeding to sell or the suit in partition may, and in my opinion must, be made up without recording any of the proceedings therein relative to registration excepting the petition, which I do not think should be split up for this purpose. That is to say, where the "separate cause of action" for registration is stated in the petition to sell real estate or for partition and then the proceedings in registration are dismissed without prejudice, while the main proceeding goes on to a conclusion. The complete record of the main proceeding should contain the petition in full, but need not contain any of the other proceedings therein relative to registration, except the entry of dismissal.

The third question remains to be considered, namely, as to whether or not a complete record may be dispensed with in any registration proceedings under the second subdivision of section 11611 G. C.

In my opinion this cannot be done. That provision requires the agreement in open court of "both parties" to dispense with the complete record. This language is appropriate only to ordinary adversary proceedings, and can have no reference to proceedings under the Torrens law which are purely in rem. At the very most the defendants in a registration proceeding are all those persons who may claim or have any interest in the premises desired to be registered ad verse to that of the applicant. It is obvious, therefore, that the language, "both parties," cannot apply to such a case.

From what I have said it will be apparent that I cannot agree with Mr. Humphrey Jones in his broad statement that in any registration proceeding the court may dispense with the making of a complete record, but on the other hand I am convinced that under certain circumstances such a complete record may be dispensed with.

To recapitulate, those circumstances are as follows:

1. Where there is an independent application for registration under the Torrens law and the same is dismissed without prejudice as it may be, the probate judge, acting as clerk of his court or the clerk of the common pleas court, is not authorized to make a complete record of the proceedings thus dismissed except upon the order of a party and payment of his fees.

2. Where, in a proceeding to sell real estate to pay debts or a suit for partition, a "separate cause of action" is set up in the petition applying for registration and such "separate cause of action" is subsequently dismissed without prejudice, and the main case proceeds to judgment or is dismissed otherwise than without prejudice, the complete record which must then be made need not include any of the proceedings for registration, excepting so much of the petition as relates thereto, and the entry of dismissal; of course, when the main case is itself subsequently or contemporaneously dismissed without prejudice no complete record should be made at all.

3. In no case has the probate court or any other court discretionary power to dispense with the making of a complete record. Such a record is either to be dispensed with under the circumstances above stated or must be made. The court has no control over the matter.

4. The probate court has, however, the authority in common with the common pleas court to permit the abbreviation of a complete record in registration proceedings as in other proceedings, by the omission therefrom of the contents of voluminous exhibits, etc., attached to pleadings, as provided by section 11607 G. C. This authority, as the section cited shows, does not extend to the omission of any process or pleading, but merely to the abbreviation or omission of items or an account (which of course does not apply in registration proceedings) or copies of papers attached to pleadings.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, LEASE FOR PORTION OF ABANDONED OHIO CANAL TO THE SCIOTO VALLEY TRACTION COMPANY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 21, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of December 19, 1916, transmitting to me for examination a lease to The Scioto Valley Traction Co., of a portion of the abandoned Ohio canal.

I find this lease to be in regular form and am, therefore, returning the same with my approval endorsed upon the triplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

JUDGE OF COMMON PLEAS CCURT—VOTES CAST FOR CONGRESSMAN WHO HOLDS COMMON PLEAS JUDGESHIP—CONSTITUTIONAL LIMITATION NOT APPLICABLE TO SUCH OFFICE—CERTIFICATE OF ELECTION.

The governor is not authorized to withhold a certificate of election to the office of representative to congress by reason of the fact that the person so elected is at the time a judge of a court of common pleas under authority of the laws of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 22, 1916.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Yours under date of December 16, 1916, is as follows:

"At the recent election held November 7, John S. Snook was elected to congress in the Fifth district of Ohio. It happens that he is and was at that time and had for some time preceding this election been judge of the common pleas court of Paulding county, Ohio.

"Will you please advise me officially whether or not Mr. Snook is entitled to his certificate in view of the fact that article 4, section 17 of the constitution, and section 4826 of the General Code provides that 'all votes for any judge for an elective office, except a judicial office, under the authority of this state, given by the general assembly, or by the people shall be void.'"

Section 14 of article IV of the constitution of Ohio provides as follows:

"The judges of the supreme court, and of the court of common pleas, shall at stated times, receive, for their services, such compensation as may be provided by law; which shall not be diminished or increased, during their term of office; but they shall receive no fees or perquisites, nor hold any other office of profit or trust, under the authority of this state, or of the United States. All votes for either of them for any elective office, except a judicial office, under the authority of this state, given by the general assembly, or the people, shall be void."

Section 4826 G. C., 103 O. L., 23, provides:

"All general elections for elective state and county offices and for the office of judge of the court of appeals shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November in the even numbered years. All votes for any judge for an elective office except a judicial office, under the authority of this state, given by the general assembly, or by the people, shall be void."

The only change effected by the amendment in 103 O. L., 23, of the last sentence of section 4826 G. C., supra, was the omission of the comma after the word "office" first appearing therein. This omission may have arisen from a mere inadvertence. Assuming, however, that such omission was intentional, it tends to indicate a legislative construction or a purpose to clarify this provision. If any effect may be given to this omission, I think it must be, at least so far as the statutory provision is concerned, to more clearly limit its application to elective offices under the authority of this state. It could, perhaps, not be argued, however, that this change in the statutory provision would throw any light upon the proper interpretation to be given to the language of the constitution.

Upon the question submitted my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, rendered an opinion addressed to Hon. Warren Gard, judge of the common pleas court, Butler county, Ohio, under date of October 11, 1912, found at page 2031 of the Report of the Attorney-General for that year, in which it was held, in reference to article IV, section 14 of the constitution of Ohio, that:

"Said provision also makes void all votes cast in behalf of such judicial officers for any elective office under authority of this state, but does not invalidate votes cast for an officer of the Federal government."

It seems clear that the phrase "under the authority of this state "modifies the phrase "elective office" rather than the phrase "judicial office" in the same sentence, by reason whereof the latter provision of said section 14 of article IV is limited by its terms in its application to offices "under the authority of this state" and therefore has no application to offices under authority of the federal government. I, therefore, concur in the opinion of my predecessor, above referred to.

In 1902 Hon. D. C. Badger, then judge of the common pleas court of Franklin county, Ohio, was elected representative to congress, a case parallel to that submitted by you, which was considered by Hon. R. W. Taylor, then chairman of elections, committee No. 1, of the national house of representatives, who was later judge of the district court of the United States, northern district of Ohio, and it was by him held that the fact of Mr. Badger being at the time of his election a judge of the common pleas court, under authority of the laws of Ohio, was not ground for a contest of his election.

In view of the opinion of my predecessor, and the precedent above cited, together with others of a similar character which might be mentioned, I respectfully advise, in answer to your inquiry, that a certificate of election should issue to Hon. John S. Snook, therein referred to.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGE—ASSIGNED BY CHIEF JUSTICE OF SUPREME COURT—NOT ENTITLED TO COMPENSATION FOR DAY ON WHICH JUDGMENT IS ENTERED IN CAUSE PREVIOUSLY HEARD, UNLESS HE ACTUALLY HOLDS SUCH COURT ON SUCH DAY.

A common pleas judge assigned by the chief justice of the supreme court under section 1469 G. C. to aid in disposing of business in some county other than that in which he resides, is entitled to the special compensation of $10.00 per day, under section 2253 G. C., for such days only as he is actually present in such other county, holding court therein under such assignment, or ready to do so, if his inability to hold court is due to the failure of the parties or their counsel to attend or to any other cause beyond his control. Such compensation is not payable for a day on which a judgment is entered in a cause previously heard by him, unless he actually holds such court on such day.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 22, 1916.

HON. WILLIAM P. HENDERSON, Common Pleas Judge, Kenton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 9, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "A judge of the court of common pleas is assigned by the chief justice, under section 1469, to aid in disposing of business in some county other than that in which he resides; while there, cases are submitted to him and held for consideration; afterwards, when his opinions and entries are prepared, instead of returning, he sends the papers back to the clerk to be entered on the journal.

"In such case is he entitled to receive his per diem of $10.00 under section 2253 for the day upon which such cases so submitted are disposed of and his decision entered on the journal under such assignment, although he was not then actually present in such county, but sent the entries and other papers to the clerk as above stated?"

Section 2253 of the General Code as amended, 104 O. L., 250, provides in part as follows:

"Sec. 2253. * * * :each judge of the court of common pleas who is assigned by the chief justice by virtue of section 1469, to aid in disposing of business of some county other than that in which he resides, shall receive ten dollars per day for each day of such assignment, and his actual and necessary expenses incurred in holding court under such assignment, to be paid from the treasury of the county to which he is so assigned upon the warrant of the auditor of such county, and the amount allowed herein for actual and necessary expenses shall not exceed three hundred dollars in any one year."

Section 1469, to which reference is made in this section and in your letter, merely authorizes the chief justice of the supreme court under certain circumstances to "assign a judge or judges from another county in the state to aid in disposing of such business."

The language requiring interpretation is the phrase "each day of such assignment."

At first blush it would seem apparent that the statutes contemplate that the chief justice will designate a specific number of days in his assignment. This, however, can scarcely be the case. The service required of the judge is to aid in disposing of business. Everything done by him in disposing of such business is work done under the assignment.

On the other hand, it would not be practicable to take account of time spent by the judge so assigned after his return to his own county, in the consideration of cases submitted.

These considerations induce me to adopt the following as a working definition of the phrase "such assignment" as used in section 2253 G. C., viz.:

The time spent on the assignment referred to in section 2253 G. C. is to be measured by the time during which the judge actually holds court in the county to which he is assigned.

The main and essential service required of the judge in "disposing of business" is holding court. The record of the court would ordinarily show the days on which the judge held court, and I presume that you have these considerations in mind in inquiring whether the day of the journal entry, which is the day on which the record shows that such judge holds court in the county—although as a matter of fact he is not there—should be included.

On careful consideration I am of the opinion that your question must be answered in the negative. I do not think that the records of the court are to be conclusive evidence of the number of days spent on the assignment. On the contrary, I think the county auditor, drawing a warrant, should require the common pleas judge to make a statement as to the number of days during which he actually sat on the bench of the common pleas court of the foreign county and conducted the business of that court at the place appointed therefor. Such number of days constitute "days of such assignment," within the meaning of section 2253 G. C.

This general statement, however, requires in my opinion amplification in one particular. It might conceivably happen that a judge, acting under such an assignment, might proceed to a county to which he had been assigned for the purpose of holding court, and be ready to hold court, but that through the failure of parties or their counsel to attend as expected, he would be prevented from so doing; so that the judge might remain in the foreign county for one or more days in readiness to hold court, and be prevented from so doing because of such circumstances. In such cases I believe he would be entitled to draw his compensation for each day so spent.

The true principle would seem to be, then, that the judge would be entitled to his special compensation for such days only as he is actually present in the other county, holding court therein under such assignment, or ready to do so, if his inability to hold court is due to the failure of the parties or their counsel to attend or to any cause beyond his control.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY VILLAGE OF EATON, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 26, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.
GENTLEMEN:—

"RE: Bonds of the village of Eaton, Ohio, for the property owners' share of improving West Main street, being ten bonds of three hundred and fifty dollars each.

I have examined the transcript submitted to me relative to the above bond issue, also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will constitute valid and binding obligations of the village of Eaton.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, SALE OF CANAL LANDS IN CITY OF MASSILLON TO THE HESS-SNYDER CO.—ALSO SALE OF CANAL LANDS IN LICKING COUNTY, OHIO, TO EMMA E. MEARS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 27, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your communications of December 22, 1916, transmitting to me for examination resolutions providing for the sale of certain canal lands in the city of Massillon, to the Hess-Snyder Co., and the sale of a tract of abandoned Ohio canal land in Licking county, Ohio, to Emma E. Mears.

I find these resolutions to be properly drawn and to contain a recital of the necessary jurisdictional facts and I am, therefore, returning the same with my signature attached to the duplicate copies thereof.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, PUBLIC SALE OF CANAL PROPERTY IN CITY OF CHILLICOTHE, OHIO, TO THE SEARS AND NICHOLS CANNING COMPANY.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 27, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of December 26, 1916, you submitted to me a statement of your proceedings relative to the public sale of The Sears & Nichols Canning Company of Chillicothe, Ohio, of a portion of the abandoned Ohio canal property, the sale being made under authority of section 3 of an act of the general assembly passed May 31, 1911, 102 O. L., 293, the act providing for the abandonment of certain portions of the Ohio canal and the selling and leasing of the lands connected therewith, and also under authority of section 13971 of the Appendix to the General Code. You have also submitted to me copies of the advertisement made in the Daily Scioto Gazette and the Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

I find that the sale of the land in question is authorized by the statutes, that advertisement of the same was duly made and that your proceedings in this matter are regular. I am, therefore, returning your communication with my signature attached to the duplicate form of approval.

I am retaining for the files of this department the copies of the advertisement submitted by you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION—GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL—NO APPROPRIATION TO PAY MATERNITY EXPENSES OF SUCH INMATES WHO ARE OUT ON PROBATION.

The board of administration has no available appropriation from which to pay maternity expenses of inmates of the girls' industrial school out on probation or under contract of employment.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 28, 1916.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Referring to your enquiry concerning the payment of medical expenses incurred for the care of girls who are inmates of the Girls' Industrial School released from that institution on probation or under contract of employment, permit me to advise that this matter has been receiving attention for some time, and in view of the condition of the law which provides for the employment of a physician at the Girls' Industrial School and the further provision of the contract of employment:

> "That in case said girl becomes ill he will furnish her with proper medical care and attention and immediately notify the chief matron,"

it must be said that while the authority exists for the payment of the medical expenses at the home there is no appropriation available for the payment of extraordinary medical expenses incurred while the girl is under contract of employment and not in the home, and consequently it would require the action of the general assembly before bills for such medical services could be paid.

I am of the opinion that your board is in better position, perhaps, than any one else to determine whether or not conditions are such that an effort should be made to have appropriate legislation drafted to meet the conditions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CANAL LANDS—PROPOSED LEASE TO CITY OF DOVER—WHEN LEASE SHOULD BE EXECUTED IN NAME OF CITY BY DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SERVICE OR DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SAFETY—COUNCIL SHOULD FIRST AUTHORIZE SAME.

A proposed lease of canal lands to the city of Dover should be executed in the name of the city director of public service, if the same relates to the water works department, and by the director of public safety, if the same relates to the fire department. The execution of the lease should be first authorized and directed by ordinance of council.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 28, 1916.

HON. FRANK R. FAUVER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of December 12, 1916, transmitting to me for examination a lease to the city of Dover, granting to that city the right to lay and maintain a single line cast iron water main under the Ohio canal at any point within the corporate limits of said city where the same will not interfere with any lock, bridge or railway crossing. The lease is signed "T. P. Peter, Mayor."

Section 4211 G. C. provides that all contracts requiring for their execution the authority of the council of a city shall be entered into by the board or officers having charge of the matters to which they relate.

Section 3956 G. C. provides that the director of public service shall manage, conduct and control the water works.

Section 4328 G. C. authorizes the director of public service to make any contract for any work under the supervision of that department, not involving more than five hundred dollars, and provides that when an expenditure within the department other than the compensation of persons employed therein, exceeds five hundred dollars, such expenditure shall first be authorized and directed by ordinance of council.

Section 4368 G. C. provides that the director of public safety shall be the executive head of the fire department and section 4369 G. C. provides that the director of public safety shall make all contracts in the name of the city with reference to the management of such department.

Section 4371 G. C. requires that before the director of public safety creates an obligation involving an expenditure of more than five hundred dollars, he shall be authorized and directed so to do by ordinance of council.

Referring to the lease submitted by you, it may be observed that while the total amount of rental that will be paid during the life of the lease amounts to only $180.00, yet the lease involves the assumption by the city of responsibility for damages and certain other obligations and the only safe course to follow is to require the council of the city to pass an ordinance authorizing either the director of public service or the director of public safety to execute the lease in question. If the water main to be constructed is a part of the water works system of the city, the director of public service should be authorized and directed to execute the lease and if the water main is a part of the fire protection system of the city the director of public safety should be authorized and directed by council to execute the lease. The lease should then be executed in the name of the city by the director of public service or the director of public safety, as the case may be. If the lease is executed by the director of public service it should be signed as follows:

"The City of Dover,
"State of Ohio.
"By----------
"Director of Public Service."

The modification in the note of execution in case the lease is executed by the director of public safety, of course, suggests itself. There is no authority for the execution of the lease by the mayor or, indeed, in any manner other than that pointed out above, and for this reason I am returning the lease without my approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—FEES FOR COUNTY DITCHES—ONLY LIMITATION $300.00—SEE OPINION NO. 1743, JUNE 29, 1916.

The county commissioners are entitled, under the provisions of section 6523 G. C. to three dollars per day for the time necessary to the performance of all the duties prescribed by chapter I, of title III, of part second, of the General Code, subject only to the limitation of three hundred dollars in any one year, provided by section 3001 G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 28, 1916.

HON. R. W. CAHILL, Prosecuting Attorney, Napoleon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of December 8, 1916, is as follows:

"I should be pleased to have your opinion as to the fees, (per diem) under the provisions of section 6523 G. C. as to the number of days they may be authorized to charge the per diem fee in the location and construction of a single county ditch, to wit: whether or not they may not be entitled to charge $3.00 each for the following days:

"1. For one day for the view under the provisions of section 4651 G. C.

"2. For one day for the hearing on the apportionment under favor of section 6457 G. C.

"3. For one day for fixing the date of sale of the work of construction under favor of section 6481 G. C.

"4. For one day for approving the contracts and examining the bonds of contractor and approving or disapproving the same, under the provisions of section 6486 G. C.

"5. For one day for meeting to determine at what time and in what number of assessments they will require them to be paid; and the ordering of the assessments to be placed on the duplicate under favor of section 6489 G. C."

Section 6523 G. C., to which reference is made, provides as follows:

"For services actually rendered under the provisions of this chapter, the county commissioners, each, shall receive three dollars per day. All other officers and persons shall receive compensation for such services as provided in this subdivision of this chapter."

I think your first question has reference to section 6451 G. C., which provides as follows:

"The county commissioners shall meet at the place of beginning of the ditch, as described in the petition, on the day fixed, as provided in this chapter, and hear the proof offered by any of the parties affected by said improvement, and other persons competent to testify. They shall go over and along the line of the improvement, and by actual view of the ditch and the premises along and adjacent thereto which are to be drained or benefited thereby, determine the necessity thereof, and may adjourn from time to time and to such place as the necessity of the work may require. If the commissioners find for the improvement, they shall fix a day for the hearing of applications for appropriations of land taken therefor and damages that persons, affected by said improvement, may sustain thereby, and for the approval of the report of the county surveyor as hereinbefore provided for."

It is required by the provisions of this section that the commissioners shall meet at the place of beginning of the ditch on the day fixed therefor. No specific time is prescribed in which the commissioners are required to perform the duties therein imposed. It is manifestly contemplated that the performance of the duties so imposed may require more than one day from the provision which authorizes the commissioners to adjourn from time to time and to such place as the necessity of the work may require. No rule can be stated by which the number of days necessary to the performance of the duties prescribed by this section may be determined in a particular case. The commissioners are entitled to the compensation provided by section 6523 G. C., supra, for the number of days employed in the proper performance of the duties prescribed in section 6451 G. C., supra, subject only to the provisions of section 3001 G. C., hereafter to be noted.

"Section 6451 G. C. provides in part as follows:

"* * * If the commissioners find for the improvement, they shall fix a day for the hearing of applications for appropriations of land taken therefor and damages that persons, affected by said improvement, may sustain thereby, and for the approval of the report of the county surveyor as hereinafter provided for."

By section 6454 G. C. it is provided that if the commissioners find for the improvement, they shall cause to be entered on their journal an order directing the county surveyor to make a survey of the improvement, and section 6455 G. C. provides as follows:

"The county commissioners, by such order, shall direct the county surveyor or engineer to make and return a schedule of the lots and lands, and public or corporate roads or railroads that will be benefited, with an apportionment of the cost of location, and the labor of constructing the improvement, in money, according to the benefits which will result to each. In apportioning the costs of such improvement, the benefits to any lots or lands by diking them, in whole or in part, shall be considered with other benefits, and a specification of the manner in which the improvement shall be made and completed, the number of flood-gates, waterways, farm crossings and bridges necessary, including kinds and dimensions thereof, and all county and township lines and railway crossings."

At the hearing, the time for which is required to be fixed by section 6451 G. C., supra, the commissioners are required to perform the duties prescribed by section 6457 G. C., as follows:

"If the county commissioners find that the apportionment, reported by the county surveyor, is unfair and unjust, and should not be confirmed, they shall so amend it as to make it fair and just, in proportion to benefits. If necessary, in their opinion, they may adjourn the further hearing not exceeding twenty days, unless for good cause, further time is necessary, to a day to be fixed by them and go upon the premises, view them and apportion the entire cost of location and construction, or any part thereof, as may seem just and proper. If persons, not included in the county surveyor's apportionment, are found to be benefited, and are assessed by the commissioners, such persons shall be notified as provided in this chapter for the giving of notice, by the county auditor, of the filing of a petition, and the commissioners, on the day fixed in said notice, shall again meet at the auditor's office and determine the apportionment."

As in the former case no rule can be stated as to the number of days necessary for the performance of this duty in any particular case. The commissioners are entitled to the compensation prescribed by section 6523 G. C. for the number of days necessary for the performance of the duties above prescribed, subject to the limitations of section 3001 G. C., as above referred to. Further duties which are subject to the same rule are prescribed by section 6459 G. C., as follows:

"After the apportionment by the county auditor, as provided in the next preceding section, a person interested therein may apply for a reapportionment thereof at a regular, special or called session of the county commissioners. They shall notify all persons interested of the time and place at which they will meet and determine such apportionment, at least ten days before such meeting, and apportion it as they deem just and proper."

In like manner the commissioners are entitled to the compensation above referred to for the performance of the services required by sections 6461 and 6468, as follows:

"(6461) The county commissioners, upon actual view of the premises shall fix and allow such compensation for lands appropriated as they deem just and equitable, and assess such damages as, in their judgment, will accrue from the construction of the improvement, to each person or corporation making application therefor as provided in the next preceding section and without such application, to each idiot, insane person, or minor owning lands taken or affected by the improvement. Such compensation shall be computed without deduction for benefits to any property of such person, or corporation. On the day set for hearing, and at the time of such view of the premises, they may take into consideration the application for the change or alterations as provided in the next preceding section, and, if they find that the change or alterations will be equally beneficial, they may order the county surveyor to go upon the line of the improvement and survey the change or alteration."

"(Sec. 6468) A party to the proceeding may file exceptions to the finding by the county commissioners that the improvement is necessary, or will be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, and that the line described is the best route, or to the apportionment, or to any claim for compensation or damages, at any time before the time set for the final hearing of the report and apportionment. The commissioners may hear testimony and examine witnesses upon all the questions raised by the exceptions, and may compel the attendance of the witnesses by subpoena therefor. The auditor, on demand, shall issue such subpoenas. The decision of the commissioners on the exceptions shall be entered upon the journal, and if they sustain the exceptions, the cost of the hearing thereon shall be paid out of the county treasury, and if they overrule them, such cost shall be taxed against the person or corporation filing the exceptions."

The county commissioners are also required by section 6477 to meet to determine matters growing out of an appeal and verdict thereon for which service they are entitled to the compensation referred to, subject to the limitations thereon above mentioned. The same may be said of the duties imposed by sections 6478, 6481, 6486 and 6489 G. C.

Without further specific reference to particular sections thereof, it may be generally observed that by force of section 6523 G. C., supra, county commissioners are entitled to $3.00 for every day necessarily employed in the performance of the duties imposed by the provisions of chapter I, title III of part second of the General Code, and there is no statutory provision specifically limiting the time within which any of the duties so prescribed shall be performed.

The total compensation which may be received by a county commissioner for all ditch work in any one year is limited by the provisions of section 3001 G. C. as follows:

> "* * * In counties where ditch work is carried on by the commissioners, in addition to the salary herein provided, each commissioner shall receive three dollars for each day of time he is actually employed in ditch work; the total amount so received for such ditch work not to exceed three hundred dollars in any one year, * * *" as held in opinion 1743, addressed to Hon. B. A. Meyers, Celina, Ohio, under date of June 29, 1916, a copy of which is enclosed herewith.

Your inquiry is not susceptible of a more definite answer than that above stated.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

DOMESTIC INSURANCE COMPANY—NOT "DOING BUSINESS" WITHIN MEANING OF SECTION 9590 G. C.—NOT EXEMPT FROM MAKING REPORTS AS DOMESTIC CORPORATION FOR PROFIT UNDER SECTION 5495 ET SEQ. G. C.—GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Where a domestic insurance company is not "doing business" within the meaning of section 9590 G. C. and is not therefore "required by law to file reports with the superintendent of insurance" as provided for in said section, said company is not exempted by the provisions of section 5518 G. C. from making reports to the state tax commission as a domestic corporation for profit under the provisions of section 5495 et seq. of the General Code.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 29, 1916.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your request for an opinion as follows:

> "The Globe Insurance Company, a domestic corporation for profit, prior to 1893 transacted business in the state of Ohio as an insurance company, and on April 28, 1893, it re-insured all of its outstanding business and has not been in business since that date. The company has not filed reports with either the superintendent of insurance or with the tax commission. Is this company exempted by section 5518 G. C. from making reports as a domestic corporation for profit under the Willis law, and is the commission authorized to issue the certificate provided by section 5521 G. C. without reports and fees as a domestic corporation for profit?"

Section 5518 G. C. provides:

> "An incorporated company, whether foreign or domestic, owning or operating a public utility in this state, and as such required by law to file reports with the tax commission and to pay an excise tax upon its gross receipts or gross earnings as provided in this act, and insurance, fraternal beneficial, building and loan, bond investment and other corporations, required by law to file annual reports with the superintendent of insurance, shall not be subject to the provisions of sections one hundred and six to one hundred and fifteen, inclusive, of this act."

Section 5520 G. C. provides:

"The mere retirement from business or voluntary dissolution of a domestic or foreign corporation, without filing the certificate, provided for in sections eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-four, eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-five and eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-six of the General Code, shall not exempt it from the requirements to make reports and pay fees or taxes in accordance with the provisions of this act."

Section 5521 G. C. provides:

"In case of dissolution or revocation of its charter, on the part of a domestic corporation, or of the retirement from business in this state, on the part of a foreign corporation, the secretary of state shall not permit a certificate of such action to be filed with him unless the commission shall certify that all reports, required to be made to it, have been filed in pursuance of law, and that all taxes or fees and penalties thereon due from said corporation have been paid."

From your statement of facts it appears that since April 28, 1893, the insurance company referred to in your inquiry has not been engaged in the business for which said company was incorporated under the laws of this state and has not filed annual reports with either the superintendent of insurance or with your commission. I am further informed by you that prior to said date said insurance company complied with the provisions of section 3654 R. S., then in force, which provisions were substantially the same as those of section 9590 G. C., now in force, and that said company secured the consent of the insurance department to the re-issuance of its outstanding business.

Section 9590 G. C. provides in part:

"The president or vice president and secretary of each insurance company organized under the laws of this or any other state, and doing business in this state, annually, on the first day of January, or within thirty days thereafter,shall prepare, under oath, and deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance a statement of the condition of such company on the thirty-first day of December then next preceding. * * *"

I understand from you that the only business transacted by the Globe Insurance Company since the above mentioned date was the taking care of certain real estate which it owned and held pending the sale thereof and the sale of such securities as it had on hand at that time for the purpose of paying its obligations and distributing the balance to its stockholders. It cannot be said, however, that the sale of said property and the distribution of the proceeds of said sale was the doing of business within the meaning of section 9590 G. C., supra., and inasmuch as said company has not been "doing business in this state" within the meaning of said statute, since said date of April 28, 1893, it has not been required to file the annual report with the superintendent of insurance therein prescribed and I think it follows that said company has not been exempted by the above provision of section 5518 G. C. from making the annual report to your commission as a domestic corporation for profit as required by section 5495 et seq. of the General Code, the material provisions of which were originally enacted in 95 O. L., 124, being an act of the general assembly passed on April 11, 1902, and entitled "an act to require corporations to file annual reports with the secretary of state and to pay annual fees therefor," it being understood that the insurance company in question is a domestic corporation for profit.

In this connection I call your attention to an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, rendered to your commission in 1912 (Annual Report of the Attorney-General for 1912, vol. I, page 633) in which it was held that the exceptions provided for in section 5518 G. C., supra, cannot be construed to include an insurance company organized for profit, which has not yet disposed of all its shares of capital stock, as required by law, and has not yet been licensed to do business by the superintendent of insurance, and therefore, is not required to file reports with that official.

I quote from said opinion as follows:

> "It is obvious, I think, that the legislature, in excluding 'insurance * * * and other corporations required by law to file annual reports with the superintendent of insurance' from the operation of the franchise tax, must have had in mind that without this express exclusion such companies would have been within the meaning of the term 'domestic corporation for profit,' if, in point of fact, they were corporations for profit. (Some forms of insurance companies, organized under the laws of Ohio, are clearly corporations not for profit, but I do not understand that this is the case with regard to the corporations concerning which you specifically inquire. That is to say, section 5518, which contains subject matter that has always been in the Willis law, since its original enactment in 1902, could not have been inserted through an abundance of caution, but must be referred to an intention to make an exception that otherwise could not exist. Therefore, I am of the opinion that a stock insurance company is a 'corporation for profit' within the meaning of section 5495, above quoted.)
> "The other sections which I have quoted make it apparent that an insurance corporation cannot 'do business' until it receives its license from the superintendent of insurance, and that such a corporation does not become liable to make annual reports to the superintendent of insurance until it is engaged in business; that is, until it has reached the point where it requires a license.
> "Applying to these facts the express language of section 5518, supra, which is not at all ambiguous, it seems clear to me that an insurance company which has not yet become 'required by law to file annual reports with the superintendent of insurance' is not exempted from the 'Willis law' provisions of the tax commission act. That is to say, it is not the mere fact that a corporation is organized for purpose of doing an insurance business which makes it exempt; the company must be actually engaged in such business.
> "If any further discussion is needed it might be well to consider the fact that the franchise tax, as construed in Southern Gum Company v. Laylin, 66 O. S., 578, is a tax upon the privilege of being a corporation—the privilege originally conferred by the issuance of articles of incorporation. It is not upon the privilege of doing the business for which the corporation is organized, but upon the privilege which exists at the instant of the issuance of the articles of incorporation, and by virtue of which the incorporators proceed to dispose of the capital stock of the corporation before engaging in any business whatever."

I concur in this opinion of my predecessor and I think the reasoning advanced by him in support of the conclusion above expressed is applicable to the case under consideration. In other words, inasmuch as the Globe Insurance Company has not been "doing business" within the meaning of section 9590 G. C., supra, since April 28, 1893, I am of the opinion that said company has not been "required by law to file reports with the superintendent of insurance" since said date and has not been, therefore, exempted from the provisions of section 5518 G. C., supra, since the time said provisions of said latter section became effective in 1902.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your question that said company has not been exempted, since said date of April 28, 1893, by said section 5518, G. C. from making reports to your commission as a domestic corporation for profit under the provisions of section 5495 et seq., of the General Code, and that your commission is not authorized to issue the certificate provided for in section 5521 G. C., supra, until the annual reports for the years 1902 to 1916, inclusive, "have been filed in pursuance of law" and until "all taxes or fees and penalties thereon due from such corporation have been paid."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SECRETARY OF STATE—BILL FOR TELEGRAPH TOLLS INSTRUCTING ELECTION BOARDS TO PRESERVE BALLOTS OF THE NOVEMBER ELECTION, 1916—LEGAL CHARGE—QUESTION OF VALIDITY OF ORDER IMMATERIAL.

A charge for telegraph tolls incurred by the secretary of state in communicating with the several boards of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections and deputy state supervisors of elections is, under the facts as submitted, a legal charge against funds appropriated for the use of the secretary of state for communication purposes, the validity or invalidity of the order contained in said communication being immaterial.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 29, 1916.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of December 27, 1916, in which communication you inquire as follows:

"The secretary of state, Hon. Charles Q. Hildebrant, has presented the enclosed bill to this office requesting the payment of $122.83 to the Western Union Telegraph Company. I have been advised that this service was rendered to him for advising the boards of election not to destroy the ballots until ordered by the secretary of state.

"I returned this voucher to Mr. Hildebrant and suggested that he get the attorney-general's approval of the same. The voucher was returned to this department with the following notation on the same: 'Above request refused. C. Q. Hildebrant, Secretary of State.'

"I desire to be advised as to whether or not this is a legal charge against the funds appropriated to the secretary of state, and whether or not the statutes governing the election machinery of the state authorizes a payment of this nature."

Section 4787 G. C. reads as follows:

"By virtue of his office the secretary of state shall be the state supervisor and inspector of elections and the state supervisor of elections, and, in addition to the duties now imposed upon him by law, he shall perform the duties of such offices as prescribed in this title."

While I find no express statutory provision covering the exact situation revealed by your letter, yet it is apparent from an examination of the current appropriation measure that the legislature, in the passage of the same, had in mind the fact that the secretary of state would at times find it proper and even necessary to communicate with the several boards of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections and deputy state supervisors of elections, and other persons performing duties under his supervision or having official relations with his office.

Section 3 of house bill No. 701, 106 O. L., 666, being an act to make general appropriations, and said section being especially intended to cover expenditures during the year ending June 30, 1917, contains the following appropriations for the secretary of state:

"Maintenance * * * F7 communication, $400.00. * * *"

In view of the general supervisory character of the duties of the secretary of state with reference to elections, as indicated by his title and by the several statutes relating to the subject of elections, to which statutes it is unnecessary to refer in this connection, it is my view that the secretary of state is authorized to expend all or any part of the appropriation referred to above for telegraph tolls in communicating with the several boards of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections and deputy state supervisors of elections upon any matter pertaining to the operation of the election machinery of the state, which in his judgment it is proper to bring to their attention, and that he has such a measure of discretion as to the matters proper to be so communicated that his actions are not subject to review. The question or whether or not the order contained in the telegrams was a valid one is immaterial in the present inquiry and I do not in any manner pass upon the validity of the order.

It is, therefore, my opinion that the item referred to by you is a legal charge against the funds appropriated to the secretary of state, and referred to above, and that the payment in question is authorized under the statutes and the current appropriations measure.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS FOR BOND ISSUE BY VILLAGE OF LEETONIA.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 29, 1916.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—

> "RE: Bonds of the village of Leetonia, Columbiana county, Ohio, in the amount of $28,000.00 for the purpose of constructing a sewage disposal plant and connections leading thereto, being 28 bonds of one thousand dollars each."

I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of council and other officers of the village of Leetonia relative to the above bond issue; also the bond and coupon form attached, and I find the same regular and in conformity with the provisions of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that said bonds drawn in accordance with the form submitted and executed by the proper officers will constitute valid and binding obligations of said village.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

APPROVAL, AGREEMENT OF CONSOLIDATION OF CERTAIN RAILROADS KNOWN AS THE PENNSYLVANIA LINES.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, December 30, 1916.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of December 29 requesting my opinion as follows:

> "We are referring to your department agreement of consolidation of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Company; Vandalia Railroad Company; Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Kentucky Railroad Company; the Anderson Belt Railway Company; Chicago, Indiana and Eastern Railway Company, dated September 28, 1916, forming the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company, and kindly request your advice as to whether the same is in conformity with the laws of Ohio and should be accepted and filed by the secretary of state upon presentation of a filing fee of $100,000."

I have examined the agreement of consolidation referred to in your letter and advise you that the certified recitals and statements therein show that the procedure required by the provisions of sections 9027 et seq. of the General Code, authorizing the consolidation of such railroad companies, have been complied with, and that it is your duty to accept and file the same.

In so advising you I have not considered, nor do I pass upon, the power of the several companies to consolidate under the laws of Ohio, or upon the legal effect of the agreement of consolidation. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—SEWERS—HOW COST OF MAIN SEWER MAY BE ASSESSED—HOW COST OF MAIN SEWER AND SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT OUTSIDE OF MUNICIPAL CORPORATION MAY BE ASSESSED.

The cost and expense of the construction of a main sewer not in excess of the benefits derived therefrom may be assessed upon the lots and lands in a sewer district benefited by such improvement.

The cost and expense of constructing necessary main sewers and a sewage disposal plant outside of a municipal corporation may be assessed by the council upon the specially benefited lots or lands in the corporation or a sewer district therein, in proportion to the benefits which will result from such improvement, subject only to the limitations upon such assessments for the improvements constructed wholly within the corporate limits.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 2, 1917.

The State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours under date of December 4, 1916, is as follows:

"In a municipality which has been ordered by the state board of health to install a sewerage system, it is deemed advisable from an engineering standpoint to divide the municipality into two sewer districts from each of which a main sewer would be laid to a disposal plant located outside of and at some distance from the corporate limits. On account of tax rate limitations the municipality will be compelled to limit as much as possible the amount of the expense to be raised by general taxes. It should be stated also that the main sewer above mentioned within the corporate limits will have to be of larger size than would be necessary for mere service sewers to the immediate abutting properties. Such main sewer will not intersect until the disposal plant is reached.

"Quaere:

"1. Can the cost of constructing such main sewer within the municipality, over what it would cost to construct service sewers only along the same course, be assessed wholly or in part, according to benefits, against all property in the sewer districts which are served by each of such main sewers respectively?

"2. Can the entire cost, or any part thereof, of constructing such main sewers from the corporate limits of the municipality to the disposal plant be assessed, according to benefits, against all property in the sewer districts which are served by each of such main sewers respcetively?

"3. Can the cost of constructing a sewerage disposal plant outside the corporate limits of a municipality be assessed, wholly or in part, according to benefits, on all property within two sewer districts into which the municipality will be divided?"

General authority to levy and collect special assessments is conferred upon council of a municipal corporation by the provisions of section 3812 G. C., as follows:

"Each municipal corporation shall have special power to levy and collect special assessments, to be exercised in the manner provided by law. The council of any municipal corporation may assess upon the abutting, adjacent and contiguous or other specially benefited lots or lands in the corporation, any part of the entire cost of any street, alley, dock, wharf, pier, public road, or place by grading, draining, curbing, paving, repaving, repairing, constructing sidewalks, piers, wharves, docks, retaining walls, sewers, drains, watercourses, water mains or laying of water pipe and any part of the cost of lighting, sprinkling, sweeping, cleaning or planting shade trees thereupon, and any part of the cost and expense connected with or made for changing the channel of, or narrowing, widening, dredging, deepening or improving any stream or watercourse, and for constructing or improving any levee or levees, or boulevards thereon, or along or about the same, together with any retaining wall, or riprap protection, bulkheads, culverts, approaches, flood gates or water ways or drains incidental thereto, which the council may declare conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, by any of the following methods:

"First. By a percentage of the tax value of the property assessed.

"Second. In proportion to the benefits which may result from the improvement, or "Third. By the foot front of the property bounding and abutting upon the improvement."

By section 3871 G. C. it is provided that:

"In addition to the powers herein conferred to construct sewers and levy assessments therefor, council of a municipal corporation may provide a system of sewerage for such municipal corporation or any part thereof. * * *"

Section 3872 G. C. provides as follows:

"The plan so devised shall be formed with a view of the division of the corporation into as many sewer districts as may be deemed necessary for securing efficient sewerage. Each of the districts shall be designated by a name and number, and shall consist of one or more main sewers, with the necessary branch or connecting sewers, the main sewers having their outlet in a river, or other proper place. The districts shall be so arranged as to be independent of each other, so far as practicable."

Assessments for the cost and expense of the construction of a sewerage system or systems, according to such a plan as is referred to in section 3871 G. C. supra, are provided for by section 3879 G. C. as follows:

"After the publication of such notice, the council shall determine whether it shall proceed with the proposed improvement or not, and if it decides to proceed therewith, an ordinance for the purpose shall be passed. Such ordinance shall contain a statement of the district or districts or parts thereof proposed to be constructed, the character of the material to be used, a reference to the plans and specifications, the mode of payment therefor, and shall provide for assessing the cost and expenses of the improvement upon the lots and lands in each district as other assessments are levied, and the lots and lands in each district shall be assessed by districts, except that the cost of the construction of any main sewer which serves as a common outlet for two or more districts shall be apportioned between the districts, and the cost assessed on the lots and lands in the respective districts in proportion to the benefits accruing thereto."

It must be observed that by the terms of this section it is required that the ordinance shall contain a statement as to the improvement, of the "mode of payment therefor" and that such ordinance "shall provide for assessing the cost and expense of the improvement upon the lots and lands in each district as other assessments are levied, thus clearly referring to the modes of assessment defined in section 3812 G. C., supra, and to the limitations thereon found in sections 3819 G. C.

Special assessments may not, however, be levied and collected in excess of the benefits derived from the improvement by the property assessed.

"Schroder v. Overman, 61 O. S., 1.
"Walsh v. Barron, 61 O. S., 15.
"Walsh v. Sims, 65 O. S., 212.
"Dayton v. Bauman, 66 O. S., 379."

Thus the assessment of the cost and expenses of the construction of a main sewer against the lots and lands in the sewer district specially benefited thereby, in an amount not in excess of such benefits ,is clearly authorized.

Your second and third questions may be considered together. To be of practical utility, any sewer or drain must have an outlet or there must be provided therefor a proper place of discharge. That a sanitary sewer may be discharged within a municipal corporation is, at least in most cases, impracticable. Not only must there be such proper place of discharge, but it is also necessary, in many cases, to provide artificial means of disposing of the discharge of such sewer, viz., a sewage disposal plant. It is seldom, if ever, practicable to construct such disposal plant within the corporation. Section 3891 G. C. confers upon municipal corporations authority to purchase and hold land for this purpose, as follows:

"A municipal corporation may purchase and hold land outside of the corporate limits, to be used as a sewerage farm, for the proper dispositions of the sewage of such corporation, under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by council and approved by the state board of health."

Such extensions of main sewers and disposal plant, as are referred to in your inquiry, are no less a part of the improvement by reason of their location outside of the corporate limits. In short, an extension of the main sewer and disposal plant is a part of the street improvement, although not located upon any street served thereby. Certainly the expense of the sewer extensions and the construction of the disposal plant are expenses and costs directly "connected with" the street improvement, or a part of the sewerage system of a sewer district. It will be noted that it is provided by section 3812 G. C., supra, that the council of a municipal corporation may assess any part of the entire cost and expense connected with the improvement of any street, etc.

In the case of King v. the City of Dayton, 10 C. C., n. s., 522, it was held:

"It is not necessary that the property be improved so as to make sewer connections immediately available. If the sewer is adequate and so located that it may be utilized in the future, the lands are specially benefited. The presumption is that the present plan will be perfected so as to include convenient laterals as the city grows. The assessment for the main sewer can be but once and must be now in order to provide prompt payment for its construction.

* * * * * * * *

"There was no excess in the amount assessed for the main sewer. The pumping station was a necessary part of the equipment."

I think it must be conceded that the extension of a main sewer beyond the corporate limits and the construction of a sewage disposal plant are in many cases a necessary part of the equipment or improvement.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your second and third questions, that the cost and expense of constructing the necessary main sewers and a sewage disposal plant outside of a municipal corporation may be assessed by the council upon the specially benefited lots or lands in the corporation or sewer district therein, in proportion to the benefits which results from such improvement, subject only to the limits upon such assessment for improvement constructed wholly within the corporate limits.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

CIVIL SERVICE—POLITICAL SPEECHES BY PERSONS IN CLASSIFIED SERVICE—CONSTRUCTION OF CIVIL SERVICE LAW AS APPLIED TO CLASSIFIED CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYES.

The making of political speeches by persons in the classified civil service of the state, counties, cities or city school districts constitutes a violation of section 486-23 G. C., 106 O. L., 416.

A person in the classified civil service of the state, counties, cities or city school districts, who has been guilty of a violation of the provisions of the civil service law may not thereafter be said to be employed in pursuance of that law within the meaning of section 486-21, G. C., 106 O. L., 415.

If the state civil service commission finds upon proper investigation that, as a matter of fact, any officer or employe in the classified civil service of the state has been guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of the civil service law, the commission may refuse to certify to the pay roll, estimate or account of the compensation of such officer or employe, as provided by section 486-21 G. C., supra.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 3, 1917.

The State Civil Service Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Yours of recent date is as follows:

"The attention of the state civil service commission has been called to political activity on the part of persons whose names appear on our pay roll as classified employes.

"We have called the attention of all such employes to section 486-23 of the civil service law, and have held consistently that political activity on the part of classified employes, whether on the state pay roll or on temporary leave of absence, are prohibited by law from active participation in politics.

"We interpret the law to mean that any person whose name appears on our pay roll as a classified employe may not engage in political activity of any kind, even though he has been granted a leave of absence by his appointing officer.

"Will you give us at the earliest possible moment your interpretation of the civil service law as applied to cases of this kind?"

Upon request for further statement of facts as to the activities which constituted the "political activity" referred to in the above inquiry, you submit the following:

"This is to supplement our letter of October 25th, asking for an opinion on political activity by persons in the classified service.

"The specific case which gave rise to this request for an opinion was that of Peter Albeitz, an employe in the classified service in the department of auditor of state. On the morning of October 25th the newspapers contained a report of a political speech made by Mr. Albeitz. We immediately wrote Mr. Donahey, stating the commission could no longer approve the pay of Mr. Albeitz as a classified employe, and recommended his discharge from the classified service.

"We understand from newspaper reports that Mr. Donahey's contention will be that Mr. Albeitz was first given leave of absence to perform this political service and that the right to make political speeches is a constitutional privilege and, therefore, not in violation of section 486-23."

Section 486-23 G. C., 106 O. L., 416, to which reference is made, provides as follows:

"Political Assessments.—No officer, employe or subordinate in the classified service of the state, the several counties, cities and city school districts thereof, shall directly or indirectly, orally or by letter, solicit or receive, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving any assessment, subscription or contribution for any political party or for any candidate for public office; nor shall any person solicit directly or indirectly, orally or by letter, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting any such assessment, contribution or payment from any officer, employe or subordinate in the classified service of the state, the several counties, cities or city school districts thereof; nor shall any officer or employe in the classified service of the state, the several counties, cities and city school districts thereof be an officer in any political organization or take part in politics other than to vote as he pleases and to express freely his political opinions."

The latter provision of this section is a specific inhibition against any officer or employe in the classified service of the state, counties, cities or city school districts taking part in politics, subject only to the exception and qualification therein expressed.

The making of a political speech, which is understood to mean the making of a public address during a political campaign, for political purposes and with a view to inducing electors to vote for or against a political party candidate, or some proposition to be determined by the election, is taking part in politics within the meaning of this latter provision of section 486-23 G. C., supra, and, therefore, brings any officer or employe in the classified service of the state, counties, cities or city school district, who makes such political speech, within the inhibition against any such officer or employe taking part in politics, unless making a political speech comes within the exception to or limitation of such inhibition, which permits such officer or employe to "express freely his political opinions."

In construing this phrase with a view to determining whether making a political speech is within its meaning, consideration must be given to the fundamental principle of statutory construction that the words of a statute, if in common use, are to be taken in their plain, obvious and ordinary signification. It is not believed that to say one may freely express his political opinions would ordinarily be taken to mean that one may engage in making public addresses with a view to inducing persons to vote for or against certain candidates, political parties or propositions. To merely express one's political opinions, as that phrase is used by people generally in the course of everyday life, certainly does not comprehend the public advocacy of partisan claims to the suffrage of the electorate. To freely express one's political opinions, as that phrase is ordinarily understood, means only that interchange of ideas on political questions and candidates for public office, common to people generally in their associations in the ordinary course of everyday life, as distinguished from the public advocacy of specific candidates, parties or policies, which constitutes, according to the common understanding, being active in politics or political activity.

In giving interpretation to section 486-23 G. C., consideration must be given to the purpose of the civil service law in which it was enacted. Aside from the elimination of the dominance of partisan influence in the selection or appointment of public officers and employes, the primary purpose of the civil service law is to effect a higher standard of efficiency in the public service and of public officers and employes, and whether the restrictions put upon the personal liberties of individuals in the employ of the public are necessary to the proper and efficient public service is for the legislature to determine.

It will not be questioned that it is within the power of the legislature to prescribe qualifications of public officers and employes and it is equally within the power of the legislature to provide disqualifications for officers and employes in offices and positions created by legislative authority. This rule is stated in 29 Cyc. 1380, as follows:

> "The legislature has, in the absence of constitutional inhibition, the same right to provide disqualifications as it has to provide qualifications for office."

Section 6 of the act of congress of August 15, 1876, prohibited all executive employes of the United States, not appointed by the president, from requesting, giving or receiving from any other officer or employe of the government money, or property, or other thing of value, for political purposes, and prescribed a penalty for violation thereof.

In the case of ex parte Curtis, 106 U. S., 371, 27 L. Ed., 232, the above statute was under consideration and the court, after reference to a number of similar acts of congress, observed:

> "The evident purpose of congress in all this class of enactments has been to promote efficiency, and integrity in the discharge of official duties and to maintain proper discipline in the public service."

This, it is conceived, is a clear, concise and authoritative statement or definition of the purpose of civil service laws, of equal applicability to the statutes of this state relative to that subject as to those then under the immediate consideration of the court.

In connection with section 486-23 G. C., supra, must be considered the provision of section 486-28 G. C., 106 O. L., 417, as follows:

> "Violations. Whoever, after a rule has been duly established and published by any civil service commission according to the provisions of this act, makes an appointment to office or selects a person for employment contrary to the provisions of such rule, or wilfully refuses or neglects otherwise to comply with or to conform to the provisions of this act, or wilfully violates any of such provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, for a term not to exceed six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. If any person so convicted shall hold any public office or place of public employment such office or position shall by virtue of such conviction be rendered vacant."

Section 486-30 G. C., 106 O. L., 418, provides in part as follows:

> "Prosecutions. Prosecutions for the violation of the provisions of this act, or the rules and regulations of the state commission established in conformity thereto, shall be instituted by the attorney-general or by the state commission acting through special counsel, or by the county prosecutor for the county in which the offense is alleged to have been committed; * * *"

It will thus be seen that the violation of any of the provisions of the civil service law constitutes a criminal offense, therefore, rendering its provision subject to the familiar rule of construction in favor of the accused, applicable to all criminal statutes, subject, however, to the further well established rule stated in the first branch of the syllabus in the case of Conrad v. State, 75 O. S., 52, as follows:

> "The rule as to strict construction of penal statutes does not require the courts to go to the extent of defeating the purpose of the statute by a severely technical application of the rule."

It is suggested that it is not within the power of the legislature to restrict the right of public officers and employes, as individuals, to engage in making political speeches of the character herein referred to.

As in contravention of the constitutional right of free speech, the first amendment to the constitution of the United States provides as follows:

> "Congress shall make no law * * * abridging the freedom of speech or of the press. * * *"

This constitutional provision operates in no way as a restriction upon the power of states in respect to liberty of speech.

Section 11 of article 1 of the constitution of Ohio provides in part as follows:

> "Every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiment on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of the right; and no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech, or of the press. * * *"

This constitutional provision guarantees to citizens and individuals, as such, the protection of their liberty of speech. That is to say, it may be said that it is a constitutional right of a citizen to make political speeches, but that does not argue at all that he has any right to hold public office or employment while so engaged. In other words, it must be here borne in mind that there is a marked distinction between the constitutional rights of citizens, as such, and the rights of individuals to hold public office or employment, and it is with the latter alone that we are here dealing. The right to hold office or to be in the public employ is in no sense a constitutional right of citizens or individuals.

In the case of McAuliffe v. New Bedford, 155 Mass., 216, 220, the court, in discussing the validity of a rule prohibiting the solicitation of money or any aid on any pretense, for any political purpose whatever, said:

> "The petitioner may have a constitutional right to talk politics, but he has no constitutional right to be a policeman. There are few employments for hire in which the servant does not agree to suspend his constitutional right of free speech, as well as of idleness, by the implied terms of his contract. The servant cannot complain, as he takes the employment on the terms which are offered him. On the same principle the city may impose any reasonable condition upon holding office within its control."

In the case of Duffy v. Cooke, 239 Pa. St., 427, where the constitutionality of an act prohibiting certain political activities of officers and employes of certain cities was attacked, the court, at page 431 of the opinion, observed:

> "While the constitution forbids ineligibility for office as a wrong against sound principles in a free state, it no where confers a right to obtain an office. That, in the last analysis, depends upon the favor of the people or rather appointing power, as we have seen to be coupled with reasonable conditions for the public good. If these conditions are too stringent or too disagreeable, the option to refuse the office or to resign it remains."

The court in holding the statute to be constitutional, referred with approval to the opinion of Magill, J., in the case of Commonwealth v. Hasskarl, 21 Pa., D. R., 119, in which the constitutionality of the same statute was in question. In this latter case an employe of the city of Philadelphia was charged in the petition with having taken an active part in the political management of the Republican party in a certain ward of said city and with having been present at the polls on an election day, in violation of section 2 of an act of the legislature of the state, and a writ of mandamus was sought compelling the appointing authority to discharge such employe for the violation of the provisions of the statute as charged therein. Section 2 of the act of the legislature, for violation of which this action was brought, provides as follows:

> "No officer, clerk or employe of any city of the first class * * * shall be a member of or a delegate or alternate to, any political convention * * *, shall serve as a member of, or attend the meetings of, any committee of any political party, or take an active part in political management or political campaign * * * shall in any way or manner interfere with the conduct of any election or the preparation therefor at the polling place, or with the election officers while counting the vote or returning the ballot boxes, etc. * * * save only for the purpose of marking and depositing his ballot * * * or be within any polling place, or within fifty feet thereof, except for purposes of ordinary travel or residence. * * *"

For a violation of the above section the act provided as a penalty the immediate dismissal from employment by the city. The question then before the court was stated in the opinion as follows:

"Has the legislature the power to forbid this defendant from doing the things complained of, except during the hours of his employment?"

In the consideration of this question the court, in the opinion, observed:

"This is an act which is intended to prevent political activity or taking an active, managing part in political affairs by employes of the municipality.. It relates to personal activity, and does not in any way conflict with the constitutional provision in relation to 'the free communication of thoughts and opinions,' or the right of the citizen to 'freely speak, write and print on any subject.'

"An employer, whether an individual or a municipality, is entitled to have the best service of which an employe is capable. And if, in the judgment of the legislature, political activity on the part of clerks or employes of a city is likely to interfere with efficient public service, there would appear to be no legal reason why such activity should not be restrained or prohibited, so long as the individual elects to continue in the public service. If such restriction is distasteful to him, he has the alternative of seeking other employment. He is not, by the act, prohibited from engaging in free speech, or otherwise communicating or expressing his personal views upon political subjects, urging these views upon others in an effort to influence them to vote for the candidates of his choice, nor is his right to the free exercise of the elective franchise in any manner restricted.

"By the act, the employee is merely prohibited, while in the employ of the city, from doing certain specific things which are designated as being opposed to the best interests of the municipal service. There can be no doubt that the legislature would have the power to enact that no person, while acting as a clerk or employe of a city of the first class, should engage in other business or employment, nor hold public office, even though the duties of such employment or office might not be performed during the actual hours of his employment by the city, as, for instance, that he should not accept employment as a night watchman, which would deprive him of the rest requisite for proper and efficient service during the working hours of his city employment. The act does not impose any restrictions upon the actions, political or otherwise, of the individual as such, but simply upon the employee of the municipality while holding office or employment thereunder. It is simply a condition of his employment. If he does not like or is not willing to submit to the restriction upon his personal liberty, he need not accept nor continue in the employment of the city. If he does accept or continue in such employment, he waives his right to that freedom of action which he enjoys when otherwise employed. 'It belongs to the state, as the guardian and trustee of its people and having control of its affairs, to prescribe the conditions upon which it will permit public work to be done on its behalf or on behalf of its municipilities.

No employe is entitled of absolute right, and as a part of his liberty, to perform labor for the state.' Atkin v. Kansas, 191 U. S., 207; Com. v. Casey, 43 Pa. Superior Ct. 494.

"If it be urged, as it was at argument, that the act in question imposes a hardship or unjust restriction of the freedom of action of an employe of the municipality, the answer is found in the opinion of Mr. Justice Brown in Pittsburgh's Petition, 217 Pa. 227, wherein he says: 'Restraints on the legislative power of control must be found in the constitution of the state, or they must rest alone in the legislative discretion. If the legislative action operates injuriously to the municipalities or to individuals, the remedy is not with the courts. The courts have no power to interfere, and the people must be looked to, to right, through the ballot box, all these wrongs * * *. The fact that the action of the state toward its municipal agents may be unwise, unjust, oppressive or violative of the natural or political rights of their citizens, is not one which can be made the basis of action by the judiciary.'"

This case holds in effect that it is within the power of the legislature to determine to what extent restrictions of the political activities of public employes or officers are necessary to efficient public service and places such restrictions upon the plane of a condition of employment rather than that of an abridgment of the constitutional liberties of citizens and recognizes in the authority by which an office or employment is created a power to impose upon the tenure of such office, or the continuance of such employment, all those conditions which the constituting authority deems necessary to bring about that efficiency of service analogous to that of a private employer to impose conditions upon the continuance of the services of his employe. No restrictions upon the activities of public officers or employes can be said, in any true sense, to abridge the constitutional rights or liberty of citizens, as such, so long as there is no duty imposed upon such officer or employe to continue in the public service, subject to such condition. That is to say, so long as the public service remains purely voluntary, his acceptance and continuance in the same operates as a surrender of those guaranteed rights required by law as a condition of tenure or employment, or an agreement to the imposition of such conditions or restrictions upon what would otherwise be his constitutional rights as an individual.

It is suggested that the employe in question may have been away from the performance of the regular duties of his employment on leave of absence granted by the appointing officer. A leave of absence, which was, no doubt, temporary, it is not believed would have the effect of taking a person to whom granted out of the employ of the state or out of the classified service of the state. By such leave of absence an employe forfeits no right under the civil service law, as such, and it cannot be urged with consistency that all the rights conferred upon the employe continue during such leave of absence and yet the employe is relieved from the obligations imposed by the same law under which he may assert that his rights are so protected. If a person may be properly said to be an employe in the classified service of the state for the purpose of protecting his rights under the civil service law, he must as conclusively continue to be an employe in the classified service of the state for the purpose of the application of those provisions of the civil service law imposing upon him duties, obligations and restrictions of what would otherwise be his privilege. In other words, a person in the classified civil service of the state is not separated from such service by a mere leave of absence and while his actual service and compensation are alike suspended during the continuance of the leave of absence, by reason thereof, he is for every other purpose and in all other respects subject to the statutory provisions applicable to such employe when in actual service. By the terms of section 486-23 G. C., a person is subject to its provisions so long as he continues to be an officer or employe in the classified service of the state, counties, cities or city school districts thereof. A leave of absence from duty will not therefore operate to relieve a person in the classified service referred to from limitations imposed by said section.

I am, therefore, of opinion that it is within the power of the legislature to provide, as a condition of tenure of office or continuance of employment, that no officer or employe in the classified civil service of the state, or any county, city or city school district, shall, during his tenure of office or time of employment, engage in making a political speech or speeches. I am further of opinion that the making of a political speech by an officer or employe in the classified civil service of the state, or any county, city or city school district, is within the inhibition of section 486-23 G. C., 106 O. L., 616, against any such officer or employe taking part in politics other than to vote as he pleases and to express freely his political opinions, and is, therefore, a violation of said section.

Any different conclusion would be subversive of the purpose of the constitutional and statutory provisions applicable to the civil service of the state, counties, cities and city school districts.

In this connection attention is called to the provisions of section 486-21 G. C., 106 O. L., 415, as follows:

> "Pay Rolls. After the taking effect of this act it shall be unlawful for the auditor of state, or for any fiscal officer of any county, city or city school district thereof, to draw, sign or issue or authorize the drawing, signing or issuing of any warrant on the treasurer or other disbursing officer of the state, or of any county, city or city school district thereof, to pay any salary or compensation to any officer, clerk, employe, or other person in the classified service unless an estimate, payroll or account for such salary or compensation containing the name of each person to be paid, shall bear the certificate of the state civil service commission, or, in case of the service of a city, the certificate of the municipal service commission of such city, that the persons named in such estimate, payroll or account have been appointed, promoted, reduced, suspended, or laid off or are being employed in pursuance of this act and the rules adopted thereunder.
> "Any sum paid contrary to the provisions of this section may be recovered from any officer or officers making such payment in contravention of the provisions of law and of the rules made in pursuance of law; or from any officer signing or countersigning or authorizing the signing or countersigning of any warrant for the payment of the same, or from the sureties on his official bond, in an action in the courts of the state, maintained by a citizen resident therein. All moneys received in any action brought under the provisions of this section must, when collected, be paid into the treasury of the state or appropriate civil division thereof, except that the plaintiff in any action shall be entitled to recover his own taxable costs of such action."

By the provisions of this section it becomes the duty of the state civil service commission, in the case of all state officers and employes in the classified civil service of the state, to examine the estimate, payroll and account of the compensation proposed to be paid to such officers and employes and in the first instance to determine whether the persons whose names appear thereon have been appointed, promoted, reduced, suspended or laid off, or are being employed in pursuance of the civil service law, and the rules adopted thereunder. If the state civil service commission determines, as a matter of fact, that the persons whose names appear upon such estimate, payroll or account have been appointed, promoted, reduced, suspended or laid off, or are being employed in pursuance of the civil service law, and the rules adopted thereunder, it becomes the duty of the state civil service commission to certify such findings upon such payroll, estimate or account, of compensation to be paid. If, on the contrary, any person whose name appears upon such payroll, estimate or account, as a matter of fact, has not been appointed, promoted, reduced, suspended or laid off, or is not being employed in pursuance of the civil service law, and the rules adopted thereunder, it would be a violation of the duty of the state civil service commission to certify such payroll, estimate or account, contrary to the fact. It should be here observed that the determination of such matter of fact as the violation of the civil service law by an officer or employe should be based upon substantial proof and that mere newspaper reports could not be taken as substantiating such matter of fact.

This raises the question whether an employe, who has been guilty of a violation of section 486-23 G. C., supra, is thereafter being employed pursuant to the civil service law and the rules adopted thereunder. I believe it cannot be maintained that a person who is guilty of an open violation of the plain provisions of the civil service law, during the tenure of his office or the continuance of his employment in the classified civil service of the state may thereafter be said to be employed pursuant to its provisions and that, therefore, if the state civil service commission finds, as a matter of fact, upon proper investigation, that an officer or employe in the classified civil service of the state has wilfully violated the provisions of section 486-23 G. C., supra, the commission may properly refuse to certify the payroll of such officer or employe, as provided by section 486-21 G. C., supra.

It is deemed unnecessary to call attention to the power to make investigations concerning all matters touching the enforcement and effect of the provisions of the civil service law and the rules prescribed thereunder, conferred upon said state civil service commission and prescribed by section 486-7 G. C., 106 O. L., 403.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

SCHOOLS—COMPENSATION OF DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT—ERRONEOUS CERTIFICATION BY COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION —HOW ERROR CORRECTED—ERRONEOUS APPORTIONMENT BY COUNTY AUDITOR—HOW SAME MAY BE CORRECTED—UPON PROPER CERTIFICATION BEING MADE.

This opinion deals with the payment of the compensation of a district superintendent under the particular state of facts therein set forth.

If an erroneous certification has been made to the county auditor by the county board of education pursuant to the provisions of section 4744-2 G. C., 104 O. L., 133, such error may be corrected to make the certification speak the truth as of the time at which the compensation of a district superintendent is finally determined according to law.

If the county auditor has made his semi-annual apportionment of school funds upon the basis of an erroneous certification, prior to the correction thereof, the erroneous apportionment necessarily resulting therefrom may be adjusted at the next semi-annual settlement upon the correction of the certification.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 3, 1917.

HON. C. ELLIS MOORE, Prosecuting Attorney, Cambridge, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of December 28, 1916, is as follows:

"I am addressing this communication to you upon the following state of facts and after a conversation with our county auditor, Dr .T. C. White: Some time prior to the first day of September, 1916, the board of education of the village school district of Byesville, employed Prof. J. S. Talbott, as district school superintendent, at a salary of $1,562.50 per annum. The said J. S. Talbott did not agree to accept that salary and on the first day of September, 1916, his salary was reconsidered by said board of education, and the same increased to $1,900.00 per annum, beginning September first, 1916. This is according to a certificate on file in the auditor's office and signed by E. S. Blake, clerk of the board of education, Byesville, Ohio. Under date of August 1, 1916, the president of the county board of education, and the county superintendent, certified to Auditor White that the salary of the district superintendent, J. S. Talbott, should be $1,562.50 for the school year beginning in September, 1916. Later, on November 24, 1916, the county superintendent certified to the county auditor that the annual salary of the district superintendent, J. S. Talbott, should be $1,900.00 instead of $1,562.50.

"Under date of November 28, 1916, you rendered an opinion concerning this matter to the auditor of state which opinion was prompted by a letter written by Auditor White to the auditor of state, and submitted to you. This opinion was number 2069. Prof. Talbott insists that this opinion does not affect his case, since he never accepted the salary of $1,562.50, but on the contrary refused to accept such employment until it was raised to $1,900.00.

"Under the above state of facts we would like to submit to you, for your opinion, the following propositions since you have already given the opinion above referred to:

"(1) Is it legal for the auditor of Guernsey county, Ohio, to pay such increase of salary when allowed by the county board of education under the above state of facts?

"(2) If the above question should be answered in the affirmative, that it would be legal for the county auditor to pay such increase, kindly state how he is to make his settlement and the method he is to follow, since he has made one settlement on the basis of the salary of $1,562.50, which settlement was made on the first of September, 1916.

"Mr. Talbott is respectfully calling attention to opinion 1190 under date of October 8, 1914, as a basis that might be followed in making settlement."

Under the facts stated in your inquiry no employment of Prof. Talbott was effected until the acceptance of his salary fixed by the board of education. The fact that the board of education in effect proposed or offered to employ Mr. Talbott at a salary of $1,562.50 per annum cannot be material so long as there was no acceptance of such offer. As I understand the facts stated, there was no obligation on either Prof. Talbott or the board of education until his acceptance of employment at a salary of $1,900.00 per annum. There is no question of increase of salary during a term of employment under the facts stated. In contemplation of law there was but one salary fixed, viz., that of $1,900.00 per annum. From this it follows that the certification of the president of the county board of education and the county superintendent, under date of August 1, 1916, to the fact that the salary of the district superintendent of the Byesville village school district was $1,562.50 was erroneous in fact for the reason, as above pointed out, that such compensation had not at that time been determined.

Section 4742 G. C., 104 O. L., 141, provides as follows:

"Not less than sixty days before the expiration of the term of any district superintendent, the president of the boards of education within such supervision district or in supervision districts which contain three or less village or rural districts, the boards of education of such districts shall meet and elect his successor. The president of the board in the village or rural district having the largest number of teachers shall issue the call giving at least ten days' notice of the time and place of meeting. He shall also act as chairman and certify the results of such meeting to the county board of education."

Section 4744-2 G. C., 104 O. L., 133, provides as follows:

"On or before the first day of August of each year the county board of education shall certify to the county auditor the number of teachers to be employed for the ensuing year in the various rural and village school districts within the county school district, and also the number of district superintendents employed and their compensation and the compensation of the county superintendent; and such board of education shall also certify to the county auditor the amounts to be apportioned to each district for the payment of its share of the salaries of the county and district superintendents."

Section 4744-3 G. C., 106 O. L., 396, provides as follows:

"The county auditor when making his semi-annual apportionment of the school funds of the various village and rural school districts shall retain the amounts necessary to pay such portion of the salaries of the county and district superintendents as may be certified by the county board. Such amount shall be placed in a separate fund to be known as the 'county board of education fund.' The county board of education shall certify under oath to the state auditor the amount due from the state as its share of the salaries of the county and district superintendents of such county school district for the next six months. Upon receipt by the state auditor of such certificate, he shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer in favor of the county treasurer for the required amount, which shall be placed by the county auditor in the county board of education fund."

While it was manifestly required and contemplated by the legislature in the enactment of sections 4742 and 4744-2 G. C., supra, that the number of district superintendents employed and their compensation should be determined prior to the first day of August in each year, the provisions of these sections certainly cannot be held to be of such mandatory character that no district superintendent may be lawfully employed subsequent to sixty days prior to September 1st in any year.

Until the district superintendents are employed and their compensation fixed —and such employment comprehends an acceptance by the superintendent so employed—it is not practicable to make the certification required by section 4744-2 G. C., supra, to state the facts in every case. It is, therefore, the duty of the county board of education to ascertain if the district superintendents have been employed, and their compensation finally determined, before making the certification required by section 4744-2 G. C., supra, that the same may state facts.

Although it was held in opinion No. 2069, addressed to Hon. A. V. Donahey, auditor of state, under date of November 28, 1916, that a second certification of increased compensation over that which was once finally determined may not be made within the year under the provisions of section 4744-2 G. C., it was not intended to hold that an error of fact in such certification may not be corrected to make the same speak the truth as of the time the compensation of district superintendents was actually first fixed and finally determined. On the contrary, I am of the opinion that the county board of education, under the facts stated, should correct their certification in respect to the compensation of Prof. Talbott to make it correctly state the facts as of the time of his acceptance of employment. The error which resulted of necessity in the August distribution by the county auditor from the incorrect certification of August 1, 1916, may then be adjusted at the next semi-annual settlement and sufficient funds then retained to pay the full compensation of the district superintendent, as determined by the board of education and by him accepted.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your first question, that the county auditor may lawfully pay the compensation of the district superintendent in question, as fixed by the board of education at $1,900.00 per annum, upon the correction of the certificate to show such salary to be that determined by the board of education.

In answer to your second question I am of the opinion that the county auditor should, at the next semi-annual settlement, retain a sufficient amount of funds to pay the full compensation of the superintendent in question.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

MUNICIPAL COURT, COLUMBUS, OHIO—SECTION 3056 G. C. CONSTRUED—SAID SECTION APPLICABLE TO FINES ASSESSED AND COLLECTED BY ABOVE COURT.

The provisions of section 3056 G. C. are applicable to fines assessed and collected by the municipal court of Columbus, Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 3, 1917.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You have asked my opinion on the following questions:

> "Are the provisions of section 3056, General Code, relating to the payment of fines, assessed by a police court, to the law library, applicable to the municipal court of Columbus, Ohio?"

Section 1558-79 of the General Code, 106 O. L., 375, defining the powers and duties of the clerk of the municipal court of the city of Columbus, provides in part as follows:

> "* * * He shall pay over to the proper parties all moneys received by him as clerk; he shall receive and collect all costs, fees, fines and penalties, and shall pay the same monthly into the treasury of the city of Columbus, and take a receipt therefor, except as otherwise provided by law; * * *"

It will be noted that the foregoing provision specifically recognizes that not all fines collected by the clerk of the municipal court are to be paid into the treasury of the city of Columbus, but any of such fines, the disposition of which is otherwise provided by law, are excepted from said provision.

Said section 1558-79 G. C. further provides with reference to the duties of the clerk of the municipal court of the city of Columbus:

> "He shall succeed to and have all the powers and perform all the duties of police clerks."

One of the duties of police clerks is found in section 3056 G. C. which provides in part as follows:

> "All fines and penalties assessed and collected by the police court for offenses and misdemeanors prosecuted in the name of the state, except a portion thereof equal to the compensation allowed by the county commissioners to the judges, clerk and prosecuting attorney of such court in state cases shall be retained by the clerk and be paid by him quarterly to the trustees of such law library association, but the sum so retained and paid by the clerk of said police court to the trutsees of such law library association shall in no quarter be less than 15% of the fines and penalties collected in that quarter without deducting the amount of the allowance of the county commissioners to said judges, clerk and prosecutor."

I am, therefore, of the opinion that section 3056 G. C. does apply to fines collected by a clerk of the municipal court of the city of Columbus for offenses and misdemeanors prosecuted in the name of the state.

It is true that the portion of the compensation of the judges and the clerk of the municipal court, which is to be paid by the county, is now fixed by statute and not by allowance by the county commissioners. However, I do not believe this change in the law renders entirely inoperative section 3056 G. C., supra, but the same is still in effect, at least to the extent of requiring the payment to the association of the minimum of fifteen per cent.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the provisions of section 3056 G. C. do apply to fines assessed by the municipal court of Columbus, and that while some legislation is undoubtedly needed to clear up the inconsistency between said section and the provisions of the Columbus municipal court act, it is the duty of the clerk of the municipal court to pay over to the law library association the fines collected, up to the fifteen per cent. minimum fixed by the statute.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

TAXES AND TAXATION—PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT REGISTERED BONDS—NOT TAXABLE IN OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 3, 1917.

HON. WILLIAM H. LUEDERS, Probate Judge, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of November 16th you enclose a letter addressed to you by Sidney Spitzer & Co., asking for opinion as to whether or not Philippine government registered bonds are taxable in the state of Ohio.

You state that this matter comes up because executors and guardians desire to buy these bonds as trust securities and you request my opinion on the above stated question.

Section 1 of the act of congress, passed February 6, 1905 (U. S. Stat. at Large, Public Laws, Vol. 33, Part 1, page 689), provides as follows:

> "Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that all bonds issued by the government of the Philippine Islands, or by its authority, shall be exempt from taxation by the government of the United States, or by the government of the Philippine Islands, or by any political or municipal subdivision thereof, or by any state or by any county, municipality, or other municipal subdivision of any state or territory of the United States, or by the District of Columbia."

The above provision of the statute by its terms exempts the bonds in question from taxation by any state, or by any county, municipality or other municipal subdivision of any state or territory of the United States. I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your question that said bonds are not taxable in the state of Ohio.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

ACADEMIC DEPARTMENT OF COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY SUPPORTED BY STATE IN WHICH TEACHERS' TRAINING SCHOOL IS MAINTAINED—PERSON HOLDING DIPLOMA FROM FIRST GRADE HIGH SCHOOL ENTITLED TO ADMISSION TO SUCH DEPARTMENT WITHOUT CONDITION.

A person holding a diploma from a first grade high school is entitled to admission without condition to the academic department of any college or university supported in whole or in part by the state in which institution is maintained a teacher's training or normal school.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 3, 1917.

HON. H. C. MINNICH, Dean of Teachers' College, Miami University, Oxford, O.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of December 6, 1916, is as follows:

> "Must a state teachers' training school in Ohio under section 7658, section 7807-3, 4 and 5, give unconditioned entrance to graduates from high schools operating under a first grade charter?"

Section 7658 G. C., 103 O. L., 125, to which you refer, provides as follows:

> "A holder of a diploma from a high school of the first grade may be admitted without examination to any college of law, medicine, dentistry, or pharmacy in this state, when the holder thereof has completed such courses in science and language as are prescribed by the legally constituted authorities regulating the entrance requirements of such college; except such institutions privately endowed which may require a higher standard for entrance examinations than herein is provided. After September 1, 1915, the holder of a diploma from a first grade high school shall be entitled to admission without examination to the academic department of any college or university which is supported wholly or in part by the state."

It is the latter provision of this section which has particular application to your inquiry. It will be noted that this provision is limited by its terms to the academic department of colleges or universities which are supported wholly or in part by the state.

Sections 7807-3 and 7807-4 G. C., 104 O. L., 100, relate to the granting of elementary provisional high school and provisional special certificates without further examination to graduates from a normal school, teachers' college, college or university, who have completed a full two years' academic and professional course, or a full four years' academic and professional course, in such institutions which have been approved by the superintendent of public instruction, who hold a diploma or certificate of graduation from a first grade high school or the equivalent thereof.

Reading section 7658 G. C., supra, in connection with the two last mentioned sections, it seems conclusive that the phrase "academic department" as used in section 7658 G. C., supra, comprehends and includes the courses of study preliminary to the work of the professional course, as referred to in sections 7807-3 and 7807-4 G. C., supra, as offered, generally speaking, in colleges of arts.

So that the force of the latter provision of section 7658 G. C., supra, is to admit to the "academic" courses, as above defined, of any college or university, which is supported in whole or in part by the state, without examination, all persons who hold a diploma from a first grade high school.

You ask if a state teachers' training school must give "unconditioned entrance" to graduates of first grade high schools. It will be observed that section 7658 G. C. provides that the holder of a diploma from a first grade high school shall be entitled to admission without examination to the academic department of any college or university supported wholly or in part by the state. I am inclined to the view that when it was provided that graduates of first grade high schools should be entitled to admission without examination that the term "examination" was intended to comprehend all conditions of admission and that the diploma should satisfy all such conditions whatsoever of admission to the departments of such colleges or universities above referred to.

I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that a person holding a diploma from a first grade high school must be admitted without condition to the academic department of any college or university supported in whole or in part by the state, which institution maintains a normal or teachers' training school.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

PROBATE COURT—APPLICATION TO COMPLETE LAND CONTRACTS MADE UNDER SECTION 11922 G. C.—WHAT FEE CHARGEABLE BY COURT WHERE APPLICATION RELATES TO MORE THAN ONE CONTRACT.

Where an application to complete land contracts is made under section 11922 G. C. to the probate court, the probate judge is entitled to charge and collect only the fee of five dollars, fixed by section 1601 G. C., even in cases where the application relates to more than one contract.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 4, 1917.

HON. O. E. LYTLE, Probate Judge, Akron, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your request for an opinion under date of December 27, 1916, which request reads as follows:

> "About the middle of section 1601 of the General Code of the state of Ohio we find the following:
> "'petition to lease and improve real estate, application and settlement of claim by wrongful death, application and order to complete contract, application to lease for oil, gas, clay or mineral, application to invest in productive real estate, application to borrow money and mortgage real estate, each five dollars.'
> "A petition or application was filed in this court to complete a number of land contracts. Would the probate court be entitled to simply charge five dollars for the one application, which asks to complete a number of land contracts, or would it be entitled to five dollars for each contract?
> "We have one petition filed in our court which asks to complete fifty-seven different land contracts."

An examination of the language of section 1601 G. C. quoted by you, and especially the language "application and order to complete contract," makes it reasonably clear that the fee of five dollars relates to the application and order and not to the contract. In other words, the probate judge is entitled to a fee of five dollars for each application and order of this character and the fee does not relate to the contract authorized to be completed. The statute does not provide that the probate judge shall receive a fee of five dollars for each contract completed upon application to and order by him. It remains to consider, therefore, only the question of whether an application may cover more than one contract which an executor or administrator desires to complete.

Section 11922 G. C. reads as follows:

> "When a person who has entered into a written contract for the sale and conveyance of an interest in land dies before its completion, and his executor, administrator, or other legal representative, desires to complete it, he may file a petition therefor in the common pleas or probate court of the county in which the land, or any part thereof, is situated. If the petition be filed in the probate court, service may be made therein as in civil actions. The heirs at law, devisees, or other legal representatives of the deceased vendor, when not plaintiffs, must be made defendants."

So far as this section is concerned, its object is to grant to an executor or administrator the power to make a conveyance and the section is not intended to provide a method by which an unwilling purchaser may be compelled to complete his contract. The section is designed to meet the situation existing where the purchaser is willing to complete his contract and there is no requirement that the purchaser be made a party to the proceeding, it being provided only that the heirs at law, devises, or other legal representatives of the deceased vendor, when not plaintiffs, must be made defendants. I know of no reason, therefore, why one application of this character might not relate to two or more separate contracts of the deceased. A contract is in each instance the basis of the application. The parties will, in each instance, be the same and the relief prayed for will be identical.

It is my view that one application may relate to two or more contracts and that therefore where an application relates to more than one contract, the probate judge is entitled to charge and collect only the fee of five dollars fixed by the statute.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

SHERIFF—COMPENSATION FOR FEEDING PRISONERS EMPLOYED UPON HIGHWAY WORK—CLAIM SUBMITTED, DISAPPROVED.

Under the facts as submitted, the sheriff of Belmont county cannot collect, and may not lawfully be paid, certain extra compensation claimed by him for feeding prisoners employed upon highway work.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 4, 1917.

HON. GEORGE THORNBURG, Prosecuting Attorney, St. Clairsville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your request for an opinion under date of December 13, 1916, which request reads as follows:

"I am in receipt of the attached letter and bill from the county commissioners of Belmont county. The letter sets out the facts and the question asked is whether or not the commissioners can legally allow this bill. I would like to have your opinion upon the matter.

"Section 2850 G. C. provides that:

"'The commissioners shall allow the sheriff not less than forty-five nor more than seventy-five cents per day for keeping and feeding prisoners in jail.'

"While the commissioners are under contract to pay fifty-eight cents per day for boarding prisoners in jail, that contract was entered into a long time prior to the time any prisoners were worked on the public highways. The Cass highway law provides that the commissioners shall arrange with the sheriff for the maintenance and discipline of the prisoners while upon the public highways. While no contract was entered into for extra compensation and since this amount asked brings the compensation up to the maximum, I cannot see any reason why the commissioners should not pay the bill, if in their judgment they believe it just. They have the right at any time a showing is made to raise the compensation, and if the showing is made that it was worth more to board prisoners who are working every day upon the public highways, cannot they pay the amount if they think it proper?

"I think, on the other hand, that the sheriff has been negligent in not presenting this bill and asking for this extra compensation when the first month was due, and the commissioners might assume from the presentation of his bills, without any charge for extra compensation, that he was not going to ask for any extra compensation, and it is my opinion it is doubtful whether he could recover, yet I believe if the commissioners see fit to pay this bill that they will have a legal right to do so."

The letter addressed to you by the county commissioners of your county reads as follows:

"The commissioners of Belmont county are under contract with Clyde C. Bulger, sheriff of Belmont county, to board all prisoners confined in the Belmont county jail, at the rate of 58c per day. In September, 1915, after the Cass highway law went into effect, the commissioners requested that the sheriff work all available prisoners upon the county highways under the direction of the county commissioners. At the time this arrangement was made no contract or agreement was entered into whereby the sheriff was to receive more than the usual sum of 58c per day for boarding such prisoners.

"The sheriff, however, did furnish to the prisoners working upon the public highways extra food and gave them a greater quantity of food than those prisoners confined in the jail all the time.

"Each month since September, 1915, the sheriff has submitted to the commissioners an itemized bill for boarding all the prisoners confined in the jail at the rate of 58c per day, and no claim was made for any extra compensation for boarding prisoners on the road in any of said monthly statements. All of said monthly statements have been paid, and the sheriff has received the money.

"On December 6th, 1916, the sheriff has submitted a bill for extra amount claimed for feeding the prisoners that worked upon the public highways; a copy of said bill for extra compensation is hereto attached, marked A. Can this bill be legally paid?"

The bill presented by the sheriff covers the period beginning with September, 1915, and ending with October, 1916. The bill bears the following notation:

"This bill is for extra food and work in packing buckets and feeding the men working on public works and roads; said extra expense being incurred in feeding said prisoners extra meats, eggs, pies and cakes to pack said buckets, and at the breakfast and supper meals."

The amount of the bill is $971.04, being for 5,712 days at 17c per day, said 17c being the difference between the rate ordinarily allowed the sheriff for feeding prisoners in the jail and the maximum amount allowable under the statutes.

Section 2850 G. C. reads as follows:

"The sheriff shall be allowed by the county commissioners not less than forty-five nor more than seventy-five cents per day for keeping and feeding prisoners in jail, but in any county in which there is no infirmary, the county commissioners, if they think it just and necessary, may allow any sum not to exceed seventy-five cents each day for keeping and feeding any idiot or lunatic. The sheriff shall furnish at the expense of the county, to all prisoners confined in jail, except those confined for debt only, fuel, soap, disinfectants, bed, clothing, washing and nursing when required, and other necessaries as the court in its rules shall designate."

Section 2997 G. C. provides that in addition to the sheriff's compensation and salary the county commissioners shall make allowances quarterly to each sheriff for keeping and feeding prisoners, as provided by law. The rate to be paid the sheriff by the county commissioners for keeping and feeding prisoners in jail is not, strictly speaking, a matter of contract even within the limitations provided by section 2850 G. C., although the matter is ordinarily treated by the commissioners and sheriff as though it were a matter of contract. When the commissioners have fixed the rate within the limits provided by section 2850 G. C., the sheriff is required to perform the duty of keeping and feeding prisoners for the rate so fixed and cannot decline so to do.

The use of prison labor on roads is regulated by chapter II of the Cass highway law, 106 O. L., 574, 655. Under section 7496 G. C., whenever the state highway commissioner makes requisition upon the warden or superintendent of the state penitentiary or reformatory for prisoners to work upon the state highway, or in the preparation of road building material for use thereon, it becomes the duty of the warden or superintendent, and the state highway commissioner, to provide by agreement for the cost of transportation and maintenance of said prisoners and the discipline and government thereof. Under section 7497 G. C. it is also the duty of the warden or superintendent and the state highway commissioner to agree as to the amount to be paid the prison authorities, if anything, for the use of said prisoners, in addition to the entire cost of transportation, maintenance and discipline. Under section 7498 G. C. county commissoiners are authorized to make similar requisition upon the warden or superintendent of the state penitentiary or reformatory and are authorized to agree with the authorities controlling the prison in the same manner and as to the same matters as the state highway commissioner. Under section 7500 G. C. county commissioners are also authorized to make requisition upon any jailer for any number of prisoners sentenced to a jail, desired for use upon the highways of the county or in the manufacture of road materials. The section expressly provides that an agreement shall first be entered into between the county commissioners and the authorities in charge of said jail, prescribing the amount which shall be paid for the labor of such prisoners, in addition to the cost of transportation, maintenance and discipline.

From the above it will be observed that the maintenance of prisoners employed upon the highways is made by statute a matter of contract between the authorities using the prisoners and the authorities having charge of the jail or prison in which such prisoners are confined. Under the facts as submitted by you it does not appear that any agreement was ever entered into between the sheriff and the county commissioners providing for the payment of any compensation to the sheriff on account of maintaining prisoners while employed upon the highway.

Even if such a contract had been made, it does not appear that there was any compliance with section 5660 G. C., which section reads as follows:

> "The commissioners of a county, the trustees of a township and the board of education of a school district, shall not enter into any contract, agreement or obligation involving the expenditure of money, or pass any resolution or order for the appropriation or expenditure of money, unless the auditor or clerk thereof, respectively, first certifies that the money required for the payment of such obligation or appropriation is in the treasury to the credit of the fund from which it is to be drawn, or has been levied and placed on the duplicate and in process of collection and not appropriated for any other purpose; money to be derived from lawfully authorized bonds sold and in process of delivery shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed in the treasury and in the appropriate fund. Such certificate shall be filed and forthwith recorded, and the sums so certified shall not thereafter be considered unappropriated until the county, township or board of education, is fully discharged from the contract, agreement or obligation, or as long as the order or resolution is in force."

In view of the fact that no contract covering the maintenance of prisoners while employed upon the highways was made, as provided by law, and no certificate made in compliance with section 5660 G. C. and the further fact that, during all the time covered by the account now presented, the sheriff charged and collected for the prisoners employed on highway work the full amount fixed by the commissioners under authority of section 2850 G. C., it is my opinion that the law will leave the parties to this transaction where it finds them, and that the sheriff cannot collect and may not lawfully be paid the additional compensation claimed by him.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

LINE FENCES—SECTION 5913 G. C. AND RELATED SECTIONS HELD CONSTITUTIONAL.

Section 5913 and related sections of the General Code are constitutional and valid. They may not be so construed and administered, however, as to charge an owner of lands, which are, and are to remain, unenclosed, with any part of the expense of constructing and maintaining a line fence for the sole benefit of an adjoining proprietor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 5, 1917.

HON. DEAN S. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion under date of December 27, 1916, reads as follows:

> "I write to inquire concerning the constitutionality of section 4243 and the subsequent sections of the General Code dealing with the building and maintenance of line fences. I am in some doubt upon this matter by reason of certain decisions, to wit: The Alma Coal Co. v. Cozad, treasurer, 79 O. S., 348; John P. Beach v. Bert Roth, et al., as trustee of Sharon township and Simon Dressler, reported in the 18th C. C., N. S., at page 579, which I understand was affirmed without opinion in Roth et al. v. Beach, 80th O. S., 746; and the case of McDorman v. Ballard et al., trustees, et al., which was decided by the supreme court April 25, 1916, and will appear in the 94th O. S.
> "I find it difficult to reconcile these decisions and do not know whether it was the purpose of the court in the last mentioned case to distinguish from other cases or to overrule the case reported in 80th O. S."

When you refer to section 4243 of the General Code I assume that you intend to refer to section 5913 of the General Code, which was a part of section 4243 R. S. Section 5913 of the General Code reads as follows:

> "If either person fails to build the portion of fence assigned to him, the township trustees, upon the application of the aggrieved person, shall sell the contract to the lowest responsible bidder agreeing to furnish the labor and material and build such fence according to the specifications proposed by the trustees, after advertising them for ten days by posting notices thereof in three public places in the township."

This section and the related sections, commencing with section 5908 G. C., have been considered by the courts in a number of cases referred to by you, but I am unable to say that there is any conflict in the authorities or that there is any doubt as to the constitutionality of these sections.

In the case of the Alma Coal Company v. Cozad, treasurer, the court did not hold that the sections in question were unconstitutional. The court merely held that the sections could not be so construed and administered as to charge an owner of lands, which are, and are to remain, unenclosed, with any part of the expense of constructing and maintaining a line fence for the sole benefit of the adjoining proprietor. The court further held that to give these sections any other and broader meaning and to so construe them as to charge an owner of lands, which are, and are to remain, unenclosed, with any part of the expense of constructing and maintaining a line fence, would amount to the laying of an imposition upon such lands for the sole benefit of another, which course of action is inhibited by constitutional provisions.

The syllabus in the case of Beach v. Roth, et al., trustees, 18 O. C. C., N. S., 579, is misleading, the broad statement of the syllabus being that section 4243 R. S. is unconstitutional. It sufficiently appears, however, from the opinion of the court, that the court had in mind a situation where the lands on which it was sought to lay the imposition were unenclosed and were intended by the owner so to remain and that the owner had no occasion for a line fence for the purpose of controlling his own domestic animals or for any other purpose except it might be to protect his lands from the domestic animals of his neighbor, who was seeking to compel him to share in the expense of constructing a line fence. This case was affirmed without report in 80 O. S., 746, on the authority of the Alma Coal Company v. Cozad, treasurer, supra.

In the recent case of McDorman v. Ballard, et al, trustees, reported in the Ohio Law Reporter of November 20, 1916, volume XIV, No. 34, and which case will appear in 94 O. S., 183, the constitutionality of these sections was again before the supreme court and the sections were held to be constitutional and valid, but after citing the case of Alma Coal Co. v. Cozad, treasurer, the supreme court affirmed the ruling in that case and held that the statutes in question could not be so applied and construed as to compel the owners of lands, which are, and are to remain, unenclosed, to bear any part of the expense of constructing and maintaining line fences for the sole benefit of adjoining proprietors.

In view of the holdings in the above cited cases, there can be no doubt as to the constitutionality of the sections about which you inquire. Such sections are constitutional and valid and may not be so construed and administered as to charge an owner of lands, which are, and are to remain, unenclosed, with any part of the expense of constructing and maintaining a line fence for the sole benefit of an adjoining proprietor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

BOARD OF STATE CHARITIES—COSTS IN MAYOR'S COURT IN ARREST OF DELINQUENT WARD OF ABOVE NAMED BOARD WHO IS OUT ON PAROLE AND HAS ESCAPED FROM PRIVATE HOME.

Cost in a mayor's court incurred in the arrest of a delinquent ward of the board of state charities, for offense committed by said ward, who has escaped from a private home in which he had been placed by the board should follow the case into the juvenile court which assumed jurisdiction of the prisoner, and be paid the funds of that court, notwithstanding the ward was subsequently surrendered to the board for disposition.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 5, 1917.

Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

> "Enclosed you will find a letter from Judge Hoke, of Tiffin.
> "George Van Scoter at one time was an inmate of the Boys' Industrial School. He was paroled to return to Columbus. Soon thereafter he was implicated in some offenses and the judge of the Franklin county juvenile court imposed another sentence to Lancaster. The execution of this sentence was suspended and the boy was released on probation to the children's welfare department of this board. He was boarded in a foster home in Fairfield county. On or about December 1, he ran away from this home, after he had stolen some money, and was finally apprehended in Seneca county, as will be noted in the letter of Judge Hoke. Through a newspaper clipping we recognized the boy under arrest as one in whom we were interested and we sent one of our visitors, Mr. Wright, to return the boy if the authorities of Seneca county were not disposed to take any further action.
> "When Mr. Wright informed Judge Hoke that the boy was under suspended sentence of the juvenile court of Franklin county, Judge Hoke ordered the release of the boy to Mr. Wright with the understanding that he was to be returned to Franklin county. This was done and the by is now an inmate of the Boys' Industrial School, his probation having been recalled and the former sentence ordered executed.
> "We desire your advice as to whether the charges mentioned in the letter are ones for this department to pay or is it properly chargeable to some other agency or person?"

By virtue of the authority contained in section 1352-5 General Code, (103 O. L., 867) the Board of State Charities is empowered to receive as its wards delinquent children committed to it by a juvenile court.

It is further provided in the section referred to that such children are to be placed in homes in accordance with the provisions of section 1352-3 of the General Code.

Section 1352-4, General Code, provides that the actual and necessary expenses of the placing of such children shall be paid from funds appropriated to the board.

Under the provisions of section 1352-3, General Code, referred to above, the Board of State Charities becomes vested with the sole and exclusive guardianship of such children and as such is charged with their care and control.

In the case of George Van Scoter, referred to in your letter as having been apprehended by the authorities of Seneca county for the commission of an offense after he had run away from the home in Fairfield county where he had been placed by your board, although the action of the authorities in apprehending and holding the boy is stated to have been in behalf of your board, the action taken was in reality the same as would have been taken in the case of any person accused of crime. The fact that the boy arrested was found to be subject to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court resulted in his being turned over to that court and under and by virtue of the provisions of section 1682 of the General Code the costs and expenses incurred in the mayor's court would follow the matter into the juvenile court of Seneca county and it is my opinion they should be paid from the juvenile court fund of the county.

Your attention is invited to opinion No. 502 addressed to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices under date of June 14, 1915, to be found in Vol. II, of the Opinions of the Attorney-General for 1915, at page 1022.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.

COUNTY JAILS—DISCHARGE OF PRISONERS WHEN COMMITTED TO JAIL IN DEFAULT OF PAYMENT OF FINE AND COSTS.

Prisoners committed to jail in default of payment of fine and costs may be released either by serving out time at the rate of sixty cents, seventy-five cents or one dollar per day, as the case may be, by payment of fine and costs to sheriff by action of the county auditor, county commissioners, under insolvency law, or by action of the courts in a proper proceeding.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 6, 1917.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your request for an opinion is as follows:

"Kindly let us have your written opinion on the following proposition at an early date:

"Kindly enumerate the methods by which a prisoner committed to the county jail by a justice of the peace, mayor, or police judge, in default of payment of fine and costs, may secure his liberty.

"Following is an extract from one of the reports on file in this office which we have been holding to be the law on this subject and we are desirous of knowing whether we are correct:

"'Discharge of prisoners when committed to jail in default of payment of fine and costs.'

"'This subject has been touched upon at several places in this report, but in order that there may be no misunderstanding of the matter, the several legal methods are herewith specifically set up, as follows:

"'1st. By serving out time at the rate of 60 cents a day as provided in section 13717 G. C.

"'By payment of fine and costs to the sheriff.

"'3d. By action of the county auditor under the provisions of section 2576 G. C.

"'4th. By action of the county commissioners under the provisions of sections 12382 and 12383 G. C.

"'5th. By action of the commissioner of insolvents under the provisions of sections 11146 and 11180 G. C.

"'6th. By action of a court of competent jurisdiction reviewing the case.

"'7th. By habeas corpus proceedings. (See sections 12161 et seq.)

"'NOTE—If the sentence of the court is for a specific number of days in addition to the commitment in default of payment of fine and costs, said days must be served first, and only the last two methods above cited can operate to relieve a prisoner from serving such specific sentence.'"

In your letter you refer, among other things, to section 12383 of the General Code as being one of the means through which prisoners committed to jail may be released. In reading that section you will find that it is not a provision for the release of a prisoner but rather for the re-arrest of a prisoner who has been released under the provisions of section 12382 of the General Code and who has violated the conditions of his parole under that section.

Section 3666 of the General Code is as follows:

"The council may provide that any person who refuses or neglects to pay the fine imposed on conviction of any such offense, and the costs of prosecution, shall be imprisoned and kept at hard labor until, at the rate of seventy-five cents for each day's labor, exclusive of Sundays, he shall have earned an amount equal to such fine and costs."

Section 1405 of the General Code, as amended (106 O. L., 170), which is a part of the fish and game laws, provides that persons convicted of violations of that law shall be committed to the jail or workhouse of the county and there confined one day for each dollar of the fine and costs adjudged against them and that they shall not be discharged therefrom by any board or officer except upon the payment of the fines and costs remaining unsatisfied or upon the order of the board of agriculture.

Subject to the reference to section 12383 of the General Code referred to above, and the provisions of sections 3666 and 1405 of the General Code, as amended, it is my opinion that the instructions contained in your circular and quoted in your letter as an abstract from the reports on file in your office are correct as showing the procedure by which one committed to jail in default of payment of the fine and costs may be released therefrom.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney-General.

DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT—FREQUENCY OF FILING REPORTS UNDER SECTION 4740 G. C., 106 O. L., 439, LEFT TO DISCRETION OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT—DUTY OF BOARD OF EDUCATION TO WITHHOLD PAY OF SUPERINTENDENT WHO FAILS TO FILE REQUIRED REPORTS.

Under the provisions of section 7706 G. C., 104 O. L., 133, the frequency of the reports of district superintendents, including superintendents under section 4740, G. C., 106 O. L., 439, is left to the discretion of the county superintendent, subject only to the specific requirement that a report shall be made annually.

The county superintendent may require the punctual filing of such reports monthly.

It is the duty of the board of education to withhold the pay of any superintendent employed under section 4740 G. C., supra, who fails to file reports properly required by the county superintendent.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 6, 1917.

HON. IRVING CARPENTER, Prosecuting Attorney, Norwalk, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Yours under date of December 15, 1916, is as follows:

"Several questions have been raised by the county superintendent of schools, upon which I desire your advice. They are with reference to his powers under the following sections:

"Section 4740 provides that the superintendent of such separate district 'shall perform all the duties prescribed by law for a district superintendent.'

"Section 7706 defining the duties of the district superintendent provides 'he shall report to your county superintendent annually, and oftener if required, as to all matters under his supervision.'

"1st. Under the latter section what authority is given the county superintendent to specify the frequency, nature and items of the report, which is to be made to him annually or oftener as required?

"2nd. Is he vested with authority to require the punctual and certain filing in his office of these reports?

"3rd. Under the two sections referred to are the duties of the superintendent of a separate district, provided for in section 4740, with reference to such reports, the same as those prescribed for district superintendents in 7706, especially is it mandatory for him to furnish monthly reports to the county superintendent, if so required by the county superintendent?

"4th. In the event of a district superintendent or superintendent of such separate district failing or refusing to make such reports, what remedy has the county superintendent by which to compel such reports to be made? Does section 7784 apply to such case, and if so how could it be applied when a board of education refuses to withhold the pay of such superintendent?"

Section 4740 G. C., 106 O. L., 439, to which reference is made, provides as follows:

"Any village or rural school district or union of school districts for high school purposes which maintains a first grade high school and which employes a superintendent shall upon application to the county board of education before September 10, 1915, or before June 1st of any year thereafter, be continued as a separate district under the district supervision of the county superintendent. Such district shall continue to be under the direct supervision of the county superintendent until the board of education of such district by resolution shall petition to become a part of a supervision district of the county school district. Such superintendent shall perform all the duties prescribed by law for a district superintendent, but shall teach such part of each day as the board of education of the district or districts may direct. Such districts shall receive no state aid for the payment of the salaries of their superintendents and the salaries shall be paid by the boards employing such superintendents."

Section 7706 G. C., 104 O. L., 133, which prescribes in part the duties of district superintendents, and which is adopted by reference by the provisions of section 4740 G. C., supra, provides as follows:

"The district superintendent shall visit the schools under his charge, direct and assist teachers in the performance of their duties, classify and control the promotion of pupils, and shall spend not less than three-fourths of his working time in actual class room supervision. He shall report to the county superintendent annually, and oftener if required as to all matters under his supervision. He shall be the chief executive officer of all boards of education within his district and shall attend any and all meetings. He may take part in their deliberations, but shall not vote. Such time as is not spent in actual supervision shall be used for organization and administrative purposes and in the instruction of teachers. At the request of the county board of education he shall teach in teachers' training courses which may be organized in the county school district."

Under this latter section the frequency of the reports of district superintendents, including superintendents under section 4740 G. C., supra, is left entirely to the discretion of the county superintendent, subject only to the specific requirement that a report shall be made annually. The discretion thus vested in the county superintendent would not be reviewed by the courts except for a gross abuse thereof.

The statute itself specifically requires that such reports shall be "as to all matters under his supervision," referring to the supervision of a district superintendent, including superintendents under section 4740 G. C., supra.

It is thus rendered conclusive that the county superintendent may require such reports as in his judgment he deems necessary, not only as to any but as to all matters which are under the supervision of district superintendents, including superintendents under authority of section 4740 G. C., supra. Said reports should, of course, be in such detail as directed by the county superintendent, as is reasonably necessary to render the same of utility and to make them serve all purposes for which they are intended.

From the foregoing it follows that it is within the authority of the county superintendent to require the punctual filing of the reports referred to and which he may require to be made by district superintendents, as referred to in your second inquiry.

In answer to your third question, I am of the opinion that the language of section 4740 G. C. is sufficiently specific in that respect to render it conclusive that the duties of superintendents, under section 4740 G. C., supra, in relation to the reports referred to, are the same as those of district superintendents prescribed by section 7706 G. C., and if so required by the county superintendent it is mandatory upon a superintendent, under section 4740 G. C. to make monthly reports of matters under his supervision to the county superintendent.

Section 7784 G. C., 104 O. L., 225, to which you refer in your fourth inquiry, provides as follows:

> "Boards of education shall require all teachers and superintendents to keep the school records in such manner that they may be enabled to report annually to the county auditor and superintendent of public instruction as required by the provisions of this title and shall withhold the pay of such teachers and superintendents as fail to file the reports required of them. The records of each school, in addition to all other requirements, shall be so kept as to exhibit the names of all pupils enrolled therein, the studies pursued; also, indicate the character of the work done, the standing of each pupil, and must be as near uniform throughout the state as is practicable."

This section specifically provides that the board of education shall withhold the pay of such teachers and superintendents as fail to file the reports required of them. This latter language clearly comprehends the reports required of superintendents under the provisions of sections 7706 and 4740 G. C., and it is, therefore, the duty of boards of education to withhold the pay of a district superintendent, under authority of section 4740 G. C., who fails to file the reports required by section 7706 G. C., supra, as herein above defined.

The refusal of any member of a board of education to withhold the pay of a teacher or superintendent, as required by section 7784 G. C., supra, would render such member subject to the provisions of section 10-1 G. C., 103 O. L., 851, as follows:

> "That any person holding office in this state, or in any municipality, county or any subdivision thereof, coming within the official classification in section 38, article 2, of the constitution of the state of Ohio, who refuses or wilfully neglects to enforce the law, or to perform any official duty now or hereafter imposed upon him by law, or who is guilty of gross neglect of duty, gross immorality, drunkenness, misfeasance, malfeasance or non-feasance, shall be deemed guilty of misconduct in office; upon complaint and hearing in the manner provided for herein shall have judgment of forfeiture of said office with all its emoluments entered thereon against him, creating thereby in said office a vacancy to be filled as prescribed by law. The proceedings provided for herein are in addition to impeachment and other methods of removal now authorized by law."

This remedy is not, however, available to the county superintendent, as such, and may be enforced only in the manner prescribed in subsequent sections.

There is no statutory provision which specifically imposes upon the county superintendent the duty of enforcing the provisions of section 7784 G. C., supra, nor is any authority conferred upon the county superintendent, as such, to invoke the remedy provided in section 10-1 G. C., supra. There is, therefore, no remedy peculiar to the county superintendent, as such. I am inclined, however, to the view that section 7784 G. C. imposes upon the board of education the mandatory duty of withholding the pay of any teacher or superintendent who shall fail to file the reports required of them and that the payment of such teacher or superintendent might be enjoined by a taxpayer.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney-General.
