

of an employee or subordinate official in the orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission.' Its purpose of ending labor disputes may be thwarted by any regulation of the State compelling payment of wages to 'employees' at a different rate. It seems to us clear that Congress intended to exclude any interference by any State in the field of wages of employees of interstate carriers. The Labor Law of this state may for these reasons not be applied to any 'employee,' as defined in the Federal act, where the carrier is directed to perform work by its own employees."

In view of the above and in specific answer to your question, it is my opinion that Sections 1008 to 1008-11, inclusive, and Section 12996, General Code, regulating the hours of labor of females and minors, do not apply to employes subject to the provisions of the Railway Labor Act when employers pursuant to that act entered into agreements with their employes with respect to working conditions and hours of labor.

Respectfully,

HERBERT S. DUFFY,
Attorney General.
