OPINIONS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL FROM JANUARY 1, 1915, TO JANUARY 1, 1916.

IN ELECTION CONTESTS DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS OF ELECTIONS MAY BE REQUIRED TO PRODUCE IN COURT BALLOTS CAST AT ELECTIONS.

In the course of the trial of election contests, as provided by section 5152, General Code, deputy state supervisors of elections may be required to produce in court the ballots cast at such elections.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 14, 1915.

The State Supervisor and Inspector of Elections, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—From your statement of the matter, we understand that there is now pending in Lucas county of this state, a contest of elections of county officers; that there is in progress a trial of such contests in the common pleas court of that county such as is contemplated and provided for in section 5152 of the General Code of Ohio; and that there has been issued a subpoena or an order of that court, requiring deputy state supervisors of elections of Lucas county to produce in court the ballots in their possession which were cast at the general election on November 3rd, last.

Section 5090-1 of the General Code, as enacted May 2, 1913 (103 O. L., 265), after setting forth the manner in which such ballots should be preserved for a period of thirty days after the election and then destroyed, further provides:

> "* * * that if any contest of election shall be pending at the expiration of said time the said ballots shall not be destroyed until such contest is finally determined. In all cases of contested elections, the parties contesting the same shall have the right to have said ballots opened and to have all errors in counting corrected by the court or body trying such contest, but such ballots shall be opened only in open court or in open session of such body and in the presence of the officers having the custody thereof."

The right of the contesting parties to have these ballots opened in court and the errors in counting the same corrected, carries with it, in our opinion, full authority of the court in trying the contests of elections, as provided in section 5152, to require a deputy state supervisor of elections, having custody of such ballots, to produce the same. In our opinion, this case is clearly distinguishable from the case of Seidel v. Duncan, decided by Kinkead, Judge, in the common pleas court of Franklin county, this state.

Very respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CITY SOLICITOR—PAYMENTS FROM INCIDENTAL FUNDS—PHYSICIAN'S BILLS.

If a city solicitor has an incidental fund appropriated to him, he may pay therefrom for service of a physician employed by him to make examination of injuries of plaintiff in a suit against a city.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 15, 1915.

HON. MARSHALL G. FENTON, City Solicitor, Chillicothe, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of recent date, as follows:

"A damage suit was pending against the city of Chillicothe by one Altha Search, who was injured by reason of a pile of dirt remaining unguarded in the street. As city solicitor, I requested a physician of this city to make an examination of the plaintiff's injuries so that he might qualify himself to testify as an expert on behalf of the city. A bill for ten dollars was presented and approved by me as solicitor, but the city auditor now refuses to pay the physician his fees from the only fund available, that of the incidental fund of the solicitor's department, although council of this city has made the necessary appropriation to said fund.

"QUERY—Can a physician be paid his fees for qualifying himself as an expert for the city in a damage suit from the incidental fund of the solicitor's department?

"If not, how can this bill be paid where there is no other fund appropriated by council and available?"

I beg to advise that it is my opinion that the bill of this physician for his examination of plaintiff's injuries, is one properly payable from the incidental fund of the solicitor's department.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CIVIL SERVICE—EMPLOYES IN OFFICE OF GOVERNOR, BECAUSE OF LOCATION AND NATURE OF CONFIDENTIAL DUTIES, IN UNCLASSIFIED SERVICE.

Whether it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of officers and employes by competitive examination is a question in the first instance for the civil service commission, but subject to review by the courts. In determining this practicability, the commission should look to the nature of the duties and the relation of the employes to the head of the offices as well and particularly to the nature of the duties of the office of the appointing power.

The secretary to the governor, the stenographer to the governor, and all other employes in the governor's office, who from the nature of the service rendered, or by reason of their location in the governor's office, are in position to observe the transactions or obtain information relative to matters that may legally come before the governor, are not within the classified service for reason that, as a matter of law, it is impracticable to determine their merit and fitness by competitive examination.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 16, 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your request for opinion as to whether or not the employes in the office of the governor of this state are in or out of the classified service.

You state that there is no question but that the secretary to the governor and his executive clerk are clearly outside of the classified service under the provisions of section 8 of the Civil Service act.

I assume that the ground upon which you have heretofore placed this exemption is subsection 7 of section 8 of the Civil Service act.

Section 10 of Article XV of the Constitution provides:

> "Appointments and promotions in the civil service * * * shall be made according to merit and fitness to be ascertained as far as practicable by competitive examination."

Subsection 1 of division B of section 8 of the Civil Service law, provides:

> "The competitive class shall include all positions and employments now existing or hereafter created * * * for which it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of applicants by competitive examinations."

The answer to your question rests solely upon the correct decision as to whether it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of officers and employes in the governor's office by competitive examination. This is a question in the first instance for your commission, but subject to review by the court.

In determining this practicability you will look to the nature of the duties and the relation of the employes in his office to the governor, as well as, and particularly, to the nature and duties of the office of governor.

It is universally recognized that the premature disclosure of some of the matters that may come before the governor of a state, and particularly the obtaining by interested parties of even a hint of matters pending or the probable action thereon, would be prejudicial to the public welfare. While the limitations of the doctrine are disputed, it is settled in this country that even the courts themselves will not compel a governor to testify relative to some of the matters that may legally come before him.

The nature of the office of the governor and the relation to him of the employes of his office, suggest that the particular merit and fitness to be possessed by the employes of the governor's office are judgment and discretion, and your question as applied to the governor's office resolves itself into this: "Is it practicable to determine by competitive examination whether an employe possesses the requisite judgment and discretion?"

Answering the question as stated, I quote the language of Judge Haight, in discussing the practicability of civil service examinations for persons who occupy confidential positions:

> "A candidate may be ever so competent and still lack many of the necessary elements of a trustworthy officer; he may be ever so learned and still lacking in judgment and discretion; he may be discreet and still without character; he may be honest and yet meddlesome, and a person in whom you could not confide. To our mind the framers of the constitution or of the statutes never contemplated or intended that a competitive examination was practicable for such a position."
> Chittendon v. Wurster, 152 N. Y., 345.

Your commission has heretofore held that it was not practicable to test by competitive examination the merit and fitness of jury commissioners, the employes in the office of the reporter of the supreme court and the stenographers to members of the supreme court. The reason for exempting officers and employes in the governor's office is equally as strong, if not stronger.

I have no hesitation in saying that as a matter of law, the secretary to the governor, the executive clerk, the stenographer to the governor, and all other employes, who from the nature of the service rendered, or by reason of their location in the governor's office are in position to observe the transactions or to obtain information relative to matters that may legally come before the governor, are not within the classified service, for the reason that it is impracticable to determine their merit and fitness by competitive examination.

This opinion applies solely to the governor's office, for where the reason does not exist the rule should not.

The letter and spirit of the Civil Service provision in the Constitution and statutes require that wherever practicable all employments shall be under Civil Service, and while in cases of doubt you should place the employes in the classified division, you should not lose sight of the principle laid down by my predecessor, Mr. Hogan, found on page 45 of your publication of the opinions of the attorney general, to wit:

> "The Civil Service act is one designed for practical purposes, and to embrace all these offices of such character as that in fact it ought not matter what may be the political or general notions of the appointee or employe. The act is not designed to bring impracticable and unworkable relations into the administration of public affairs."

Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE IS IN THE UNCLASSIFIED SERVICE.

The asisstant secretary of state comes within the exception of subsection 8 of the Civil Service act, being a deputy of an elective executive officer, authorized, by law, to act generally for and in the place of his principal and holding a fiduciary relation to such principal.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 16, 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your request for opinion reading as follows:

> "The state civil service commission desires your opinion as to the number of positions in the office of the secretary of state that may be held as exempt under the provisions of section 8 of the Civil Service law.
> "This inquiry involves the question as to whether or not the assistant secretary of state is to be deemed one of the two assistants named in section 8, or is to be considered a deputy under the provisions of the same section."

In a number of opinions heretofore rendered by my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, he has clearly defined the persons coming under subsection 8 of the Civil Service law, who are to be classified as deputies acting generally for and in the place of their principals and holding a fiduciary relation to such principal.

Section 157, General Code, provides:

> "The secretary of state shall have power to appoint an assistant secretary of state, whose appointment shall be made in writing under the seal of the secretary of state and entered on record in his office."

Section 158 provides:

> "In case of the absence or disability of the secretary of state, the assistant secretary of state shall have power to perform the duties of the secretary of state, and the general duties of the assistant shall be such as the secretary of state shall assign him."

Section 159, General Code (103 O. L., 528), provides:

> "Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office the assistant secretary of state shall give bond to the secretary of state in such sum and with such sureties as the secretary of state may require, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. Such bond shall be deposited with the secretary of state and kept in his office."

The assistant secretary of state clearly comes within the definition of a deputy of an elective executive officer who may act, generally, for and in the place of his principal and holding a fiduciary relation to such principal. The assistant secretary of state, therefore, is in the unclassified service and is not to be deemed or counted as one of the two assistants, clerks or secretaries that may be selected by the elective officer.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CIVIL SERVICE—STATE REGISTRAR OF VITAL STATISTICS IN THE CLASSIFIED SERVICE.

The position of state registrar of vital statistics is in the classified service of the state, assuming the practicability of determining the merit and fitness of applicants therefor by competitive examination.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 16, 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 13, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "The state civil service commission desires your direction as to whether or not the position known as the 'state registrar of vital statistics' may be held as exempted under the provisions of section 8 of the Civil Service law; that is, does this position sustain such a relationship to the office of secretary of state as to permit this commission, should it so desire, to hold that it is one of the two positions that may be exempted under the provisions of subsection 7 of section 8 of the Civil Service law."

I have considered not only the exact question which you submit, but also the broader question as to whether the position mentioned by you is (waiving the question of the practicability of determining the merit and fitness of applicants therefor by competitive examination) in the classified service of the state.

The position of which you speak is provided for by statute, and the powers and duties pertaining thereto are specifically provided by law, as follows:

> "Section 197: A state system of registration of births and deaths is hereby established, which shall consist of a central bureau of vital statistics and primary registration districts. * * * *
> "The secretary of state shall have charge of such system, and general supervision of the central bureau.
> "Section 198: The secretary of state shall prescribe methods, forms and blanks for obtaining registration of births and deaths in each district, and of preserving the records thereof and those of the central bureau. He shall enforce the provisions of this chapter thoroughly and uniformly throughout the state, and, from time to time, shall recommend necessary legislation for that purpose. He shall provide for necessary clerical and other assistance to carry out the provisions of this chapter. * * *.
> "Section 199: The secretary of state shall appoint a state registrar of vital statistics who shall be a registered physician and a competent vital statistician, and who shall serve for a term of four years commencing on the first day of January after his appointment. He shall give a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars satisfactory to the secretary of state. A vacancy in such office shall be filled by appointment by the secretary of state. Such state registrar shall have the immediate direction of the central bureau of vital statistics.
> "Section 200: The state registrar of vital statistics shall prepare and print blanks and forms to be used by registrars in registering, recording and preserving the returns, or in otherwise carrying out the provisions of this chapter. He shall prepare and issue detailed instructions necessary to secure the uniform observance thereof and the maintenance of a perfect system of registration. No blanks shall be used other than those supplied by the state registrar. He shall inform registrars of diseases communicable and dangerous to the public health, in order that, when deaths occur therefrom, proper precautions may be taken against such diseases. He may combine two or more primary registration districts into one primary registration district."

Without burdening this opinion with extensive quotations, I refer the commission to sections 201, 230, 231, 231-1, 232, 233 and 234, General Code, all of which, like section 200 above quoted, vest in the state registrar of vital statistics, as such, specific powers and impose upon him specific duties.

By virtue of section 1 of the Civil Service act, 103 Ohio Laws, 698, the position in question is in the civil service of the state. By virtue of paragraph "b" of section 8 of said act, the position is in the classified service designated as the competitive class, if it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of applicants therefor by competitive examination; and unless the position is specifically included in the unclassified service. The fact that the position may be deemed to be an office and the fact that appointments thereto are for a definite term, are both alike immaterial as affecting the proposition just laid down.

It is obvious, therefore, that the question of practicability of ascertaining merit and fitness by competitive examination being waived, paragraph "a" of section 8 of the Civil Service act, which enumerates the class of positions in the unclassified service, must be examined for an answer to your specific question as well as to the more general one which I have suggested.

The position in question is not that of the head of a principal department, appointed by the governor or by and with his consent; it is not that of a deputy of an elective officer authorized by law to act generally for and in place of his principal and holding a fiduciary relationship to his principal, for the statutes above quoted and cited make it very clear that the state registrar acts wholly in an independent capacity, although under the direction and supervision of the secretary of state; and there are no other provisions in paragraph "a" of section 8 of the Civil Service law which could be regarded as in any way applicable to the question, save the one referred to by you. So that the general question which I have considered resolves itself, at last, into the specific one which you submit.

Subsection 7 of paragraph "a" of section 8 of the Civil Service law enumerates the following as in the unclassified service:

"Two secretaries or assistants or clerks for each of the elective and principal executive officers, boards or commissions * * * authorized by law to appoint such a secretary, assistant or chief clerk."

I do not think that it is worth while to quote lexicographers' definitions of the terms "secretary," "assistant" and "clerk," as the ordinary and usual meaning of each of these words, for present purposes, is well understood. The state registrar is, in no sense, a secretary of the secretary of state, because he sustains to the secretary of state no direct or personal relation whatever in the discharge of the official duties of either save that the secretary of state, as I have pointed out, is to exercise supervision over the discharge, by the registrar of vital statistics, of the independent functions pertaining to the bureau of vital statistics.

The registrar of vital statistics is not an assistant of the secretary of state, as he performs no services whatever for the secretary of state, as such.

The state registrar is not a clerk of the secretary of state; in fact, he is not a clerk at all.

Indeed, as the words "secretary," "assistant" and "clerk" are used in this statute, I do not think that they could be held to apply to one having the attributes of an independent officer, especially to one appointed for a definite term independent of that of the appointing officer.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that your question is to be answered in the negative, and that the general question which I have suggested is to be answered by the statement that, waiving the question of the practicability of ascertaining the merit and fitness of applicants for the position of state registrar of vital statistics, by competitive examination, that position is in the classified service of the state.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

INHERITANCE TAX LAW—APPRAISEMENT BINDING IN PROBATE COURT—METHOD OF COMPUTING TAX—APPOINTMENT OF APPRAISERS BY PROBATE COURT.

First. Under the inheritance tax law, the appraisement returned in the probate court is, in the first instance, binding upon all parties.

Second. If land devised to collateral relatives is sold in partition at less than the appraised value thereof, the probate judge may not take cognizance of this fact for the purpose of computing the tax.

Third. The probate court may not appoint appraisers to determine the actual market value of the property except on formal application under the statute. Such application must be made within a reasonable time after the death of the testator and the filing of the inventory.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 16, 1915.

HON. PHILIP L. WILKINS, Probate Judge, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 7, 1915, addressed to my predecessor and by him handed to me. In it you ask for the opinion of the department upon the following question:

> "The price for which real estate, part of which is devised to collateral relatives within the scope of the inheritance tax law, sells at partition sale is much less than the appraisement of the estate returned in the probate court. The administrator, accordingly, contends that the tax should be computed upon the amount actually realized from the public sale rather than upon the inventory and appraisement.
> "May the probate judge, in the first instance, approve for collateral inheritance tax purposes, the appraisement included in the general inventory?
> "May he take judicial notice of the selling price of the land in another court and compute the tax accordingly?
> "In a case of this sort, should he appoint appraisers, under section 5343, General Code?"

The sections of the statutes involved are as follows:

> "Section 5340. Within ten days after the filing of the inventory of every such estate, any part of which may be subject to a tax under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter, the judge of the probate court, in which such inventory is filed, shall make and deliver to the county auditor of such county a copy of the inventory; or, if it can be conveniently separated, a copy of such part of the estate, with the appraisal thereof. The auditor shall certify the value of the estate, subject to taxation hereunder and the amount of taxes due therefrom, to the county treasurer, * * *.

"Section 5343. The value of such property, subject to said tax, shall be its actual market value as found by the probate court. If the state, through the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, or any person interested in the succession to the property, applies to the court, it shall appoint three disinterested persons, who, being first sworn, shall view and appraise such property at its actual market value for the purposes of this tax and make return thereof to the court. The return may be accepted by the court in a like manner as the original inventory of the estate is accepted, and if so accepted, it shall be binding upon the person by whom this tax is to be paid, and upon the state. * * *.

"Section 5344. The probate court, having either principal or auxiliary jurisdiction of the settlement of the estate of the decedent, shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine all questions in relation to such tax that arise, affecting any devise, legacy or inheritance under this subdivision of this chapter, subject to appeal as in other cases, and the prosecuting attorney shall represent the interests of the state in such proceedings."

While much seemingly essential machinery is omitted from the collateral inheritance tax statutes, I am of the opinion that the following statements, responsive to your questions, constitute the correct application of the foregoing provisions:

First. The appraisement included in the general inventory is primarily binding upon all parties. This is because, in the first instance, the probate court has no duty or function whatever to perform with respect to the valuation of the estate, if so much thereof as is subject to the collateral inheritance tax can be conveniently separated from the remainder; for in such event, the value of the estate and the amount of taxes due therefrom is to be ascertained by the county auditor, upon the basis of the appraisement of the taxable portion of the estate.

Second. The probate judge may not take cognizance in any way of the price for which land subject to the tax may have sold at public sale in partition proceedings. The primary appraisement of the estate, for reasons already stated, stands until the same is set aside by the court in the exercise of the special jurisdiction vested in it by section 5343 and 5344, General Code. Facts of the kind which you mention would be competent evidence in such proceedings, but would have to be introduced as other evidence.

Third. The probate court may not exercise jurisdiction under sections 5343 and 5344, General Code, and appoint appraisers to determine the actual market value of the property for the purpose of the tax, except upon formal application to the court as therein provided.

With the exception of the appraisal of the value of a life estate, not subject to the tax, which must be made within sixty days after the death of the testator (Section 5333, G. C., amended 103 O. L., 463), the statutes provide no time limit within which the proceedings for appraisal, referred to in section 5343, General Code, shall be commenced. This question seems to be involved in your inquiry and I am of the opinion that such proceedings must be instituted within a reasonable time after the death of the testator and the filing of the inventory, having regard to all the facts and circumstances of the case (in re Kingman, 220 Ill.,563, a dictum under a statute silent, in this respect, like that of Ohio). As to what constitutes a reasonable time, I am of the opinion that the probate court may determine this question in the exercise of judicial discretion, subject to appeal as provided by statute. In other words, while section 5343 provides that if the application is made, the probate court "shall appoint," etc., nevertheless it is my opinion that the implication of the statute is that application must be made within a reasonable time so that the statute is to be given its manadtory effort only when a timely application is made.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOND ISSUE—ELECTION MAY BE HELD FOR APPROVAL OF BOND ISSUE UNDER LONGWORTH ACT—TWO-THIRDS VOTE NECESSARY—DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS OF ELECTION DETERMINE THE FORM OF QUESTION—RESOLUTION OF COUNCIL NECESSARY.

1. An election may be held for the purpose of securing the elector's approval of the issuance of bonds under the Longworth act, so-called, as amended, notwithstanding the fact that bonds could have been issued by council without a vote.
2. At such election, two-thirds of the voters voting on the question must vote in favor of the proposition in order to authorize the issuance of the bonds.
3. The form of the question to be submitted to the electors is to be determined by the deputy state supervisors of elections, on the basis of a resolution of necessity passed by council and certified to such supervisors.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 16, 1915.

HON. JONATHAN TAYLOR, City Solicitor, Akron, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You state in your letter of January 12, 1915, receipt of which has been acknowledged, that it seems desirable to submit to a popular vote a proposition to issue bonds for extending and enlarging a waterworks plant now in process of construction, and that the issuance of such an amount of bonds by the council, without a vote of the electors, would not cause either the one per cent. limitation or the two and one-half per cent. limitation of the Longworth act, so called, to be exceeded. You submit for my opinion the following questions:

"1. Under the circumstances named, have we authority to expend the funds of the municipality to hold an election for the issue of the bonds referred to?

"2. Must the issue be carried by a majority or two-thirds vote?

"3. Is there any authority for holding an election on the bond issue except when it exceeds the one per cent. or two and one-half per cent. limitations?

"4. What shall we indicate the purpose of the issue to be on the ballot?

"5. Is there any authority for submitting this matter to a popular vote except on an initiative petition?"

All of these questions involve consideration of what is known as the Longworth law, in its present amended form. Section 3939, General Code, a part of this measure, provides that:

"When it deems it necessary, the council of a municipal corporation, by an affirmative vote of not less than two-thirds of the members elected or appointed thereto, * * * may issue and sell bonds, * * * for any one of the following specific purposes; * * *.
(Here follows an enumeration of twenty-seven specific purposes which it will not be necessary to quote, it being sufficient to state that the extension and enlargement of waterworks is one of them.)

Section 3940, General Code, provides that:

"* * * The total indebtedness created in any one fiscal year * * * under authority conferred in the preceding section, shall not exceed one per cent. of the total value of all property in such municipal corporation, as listed and assessed for taxation."

Sections 3941 and 3952 of the General Code, read together, have the effect of providing that the net indebtedness, created or incurred by the council under section 3939 of the act, and under the original Longworth law with its amendments, shall not exceed two and one-half per cent. of the assessed value of the property in the municipality.

Section 3942, which must be very carefully considered in connection with your question, is as follows:

"In addition to the authority granted in section one (1) (G. C. sec. 3939) of this act and supplementary thereto, the council of a municipal corporation, whenever it deems it necessary, may issue and sell bonds in such amounts, or denomination, and for such period of time and rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as it may determine upon for any of the purposes set forth in said section one (G. C. sec. 3939), upon obtaining the approval of the electors of the corporation at a general or special election in the following manner."

I am of the opinion that council may act under section 3942 whenever it chooses, although there may be no necessity for such action by reason of the lack of power to act under section 3939, General Code. That is to say, if council wishes to do so it may submit any bond issue to a vote of the electors, though it could have issued the bonds itself, without violating any of the limitations imposed by law upon the issuance of bonds without a vote of the people.

In this respect the amended Longworth act differs radically from the original Longworth law, but the difference is so obvious that the intent to make the change seems very clear to me.

Consideration of section 3942 and related sections, in this light, furnishes answers to all but one of your questions. Referring to them in their order, I may say that I am of the opinion,

First: That under the circumstances which you name the city of Akron may hold an election for the issuance of the bonds referred to.

Second: In order to authorize the issuance of bonds, two-thirds of the voters voting at the election, on the question, must vote in favor thereof. (Section 3947, General Code.)

Third: The authority to hold an election on the issuance of bonds, under such circumstances, does not depend upon the lack of the authority of council to issue them otherwise, by reason of the operation of the one per cent. or two and one-half per cent. limitations.

Fourth: (Responsive to your fifth question) Council may submit the matter to a popular vote in the manner prescribed by the statutes cited, and an initiative petition is not necessary.

Separately considering your fourth question, which requires that special attention be given to a statute not yet cited, I beg to state that in my opinion, by virtue of sections 3943 and 3944, General Code, council should, in its resolution of necessity, state the purpose for which the bonds are to be issued and cause a copy of the resolution to be certified to the deputy state supervisors of the county. It then becomes incumbent upon the deputy state supervisors to prepare the ballots, and in so doing they will select the proper form of the statement of the proposition to be voted upon.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PERMISSION PRIOR TO 1913 IS SUFFICIENT TO MAINTAIN SCHOOL FOR DEAF—SAID SCHOOL MAY RECEIVE FROM STATE TREASURER ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS FOR EACH DEAF PUPIL TAUGHT DURING THE YEAR ENDING AUGUST, 1914.

A school district receiving permission, prior to 1913, to maintain a school for the deaf, is entitled, without further permission, to maintain such school and to receive from the state treasury the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars ($150.00) for each deaf pupil taught in such school during the year ending August, 1914.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 16, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 11, 1915, submitting for my opinion the following question:

> "There had been a law (section 7755-7761, General Code), authorizing the state commisioner of common schools to grant permission to a board of education of any school district in Ohio to maintain one or more day schools for the instruction of the deaf.
> "In May, 1911, the state commissioner of common schools granted to the board of education of Toledo, the permission to maintain such school for the deaf, whereby the board of education of Toledo was entitled to receive from the state common school fund received by Lucas county, one hundred and fifty dollars for each deaf pupil attending such school.
> "In 1913, this law was amended so that the state now pays the money direct instead of being paid by the county. The board of education of Toledo did not apply for permission under the new law, and, consequently, no permission was granted. Toledo now wishes to receive the compensation of one hundred and fifty dollars per deaf pupil taught in such school last year. Is Toledo legally entitled to this money?"

I find, upon examining the statutes referred to in your letter, that the original act provided for the establishment of schools for the education of the deaf only, whereas the corresponding sections, as amended in 1913, authorized the establishment of schools for the deaf, blind and crippled.

I find that section 7755, General Code, as amended, which is the provision requiring application to the superintendent of public instruction differs from original section 7755 in two respects only, viz.: the designation of that official by his present title instead of as state commissioner of common schools, and the reference to the schools for the blind and crippled. I find that the only other changes in the related statutes, which in any way affect the question which you present, are such only as are necessary to extend the scope of the scheme of legislation which they constitute so as to comprehend the common school education of the blind and crippled as well as that of the deaf, with the exception of the change spoken of by you with reference to the source of the funds necessary to defray the expense of such special instruction. The nature of this change is made clear by the quotation of the following provisions of original and amended section 7757, respectively:

> "Sec. 7757 (original) The county auditor in each county shall apportion and the county treasurer pay out of the state common school fund received by such county, to the treasurer or other financial officer of a board of education, maintaining a school or schools for the instruction of the deaf, one hundred and fifty dollars for each deaf pupil, resident of such county, instructed in any such school * * *.
> "Sec. 7757 (as amended 103 O. L., 271) At the close of each school year each board of education of the school district in which such schools for the education of the deaf, crippled or blind shall be established and maintained, shall certify to the auditor of state the number of pupils given instructions in said schools during the preceding school year, and thereup the auditor of state shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state in favor of such board of education, payable out of the general state fund in an amount equal to one hundred and fifty dollars ($150.00) for each deaf or crippled pupil given instruction in such school within said district. * * *."

It is evident to me that the formal repeal and re-enactment of the sections in question was prompted only by the necessity of complying with article II, section 16 of the constitution, and that the intention of the legislature was, as expressed in the title of the act of 1913, merely to "amend section 7755, etc.," so as to enlarge the scope of the special instruction that it might include other classes of defective pupils and so as that too, the burden of paying such special instruction might be shifted from the state common school fund distributed to the county, to the general revenue fund of the state. The general rule is that where a statute is repealed or re-enacted for the mere purpose of amending it, the unchanged portions of the same are to be regarded as having been the law all the time, as to cases within the purview of the original law. If the amendment of 1913 had been limited to that of section 7757 and section 7758, with reference to the source of payment, it would not be contended that a new application to the state commissioner or superintendent would have been thereby rendered necessary.

The mere fact that the new law refers to the superintendent of public instruction, whereas the old one referred to the commissioner of common schools is immaterial in view of the provisions of section 4, article VI of the amended constitution.

So far as schools for the deaf are concerned, the provision for application to the state department is the same in both the old and the new law. Curiously enough, both sections provide that on application the state officer "shall grant permission," so that his function seems to have been purely ministerial at all times. Whether or not this is so, I am of the opinion and so advise that an application to the state commission of common schools, under the old law, and the granting of permission based thereon, is sufficient authority for the payment out of the state treasury of one hundred and fifty dollars ($150.00) for each deaf pupil given instruction in a day school of a given district, out of the general revenue fund of the state, providing, of course, the necessary appropriation has been made by the general assembly.

Inasmuch as the amendment in question did not take effect until August 2, 1913, the last school year, that ended in August, 1914, would be the first year for which payments out of the state treasury could be made.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

RIGHT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS TO FIX RATES FOR LEASING WATER FOR POWER AND OTHER PURPOSES—AUTHORITY TO LEASE SURPLUS WATER FROM CANALS FOR PURPOSES OTHER THAN POWER—LEASING WATER FROM CANALS—RESERVOIRS.

1. The superintendent of public works has the right to fix rates for leasing water for power and other purposes.

2. The legislature has left the fixing of rates of all tolls and rentals to the sound judgment and discretion of the superintendent of public works.

3. The superintendent of public works has authority for leasing surplus water from the canals for purposes other than power.

4. Where there is no navigation in a canal, water therein may be leased provided it is not needed for some other purpose such as the protection of the canal.

5. No lease of water privileges can be made from the reservoirs set apart as public parks, which lease would interfere with the right of the people to use these reservoirs for recreation and pleasure.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 18, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of January 12, 1915, inquiring as to the rights and duties of the superintendent of public works with reference to certain features of the law governing the leasing of water on the public works of the state.

First. You inquire as to whether or not the superintendent of public works has the right to fix the rates for the leasing of water for power and industrial purposes, or for any other purposes. I am of the opinion that he has such right.

Section 431 of the General Code, which provides among other things that the superintendent of public works shall "adjust and fix the amount of rent due and unpaid as may be deemed just," is not as clear upon this proposition as might be desired, in that it seems to apply only to rent due and unpaid, but section 416, General Code, clears up all ambiguity by providing broadly that "the superintendent of public works of Ohio shall regulate the rate of tolls to be collected on the public works of the state, and shall fix all rentals."

Second. Your second question is directed to the proposition of whether or not the legislature in its laws establishing the canals and reservoirs, had in mind the idea of making a profit from them. This question would seem to raise a question of policy rather than one of law. The legislature has apparently chosen to allow the matter of the rates of all tolls and rentals to rest in the sound judgment and discretion of the superintendent of public works, giving him in sections 416 and 431 of the General Code of Ohio, full authority to regulate the rate of tolls, fixing all rentals, and adjusting and fixing the amount of rent due and unpaid "as may be deemed just." Legislative intent can be gathered only from the language of the statutes, and that language clearly and unequivocally places the control of rates of tolls and rentals in the hands of the superintendent of public works. Without reviewing the declarations of the legislature bearing upon this proposition, it is sufficient to observe that a very recent enactment contemplates that there may properly be a scale of toll rates and charges, sufficiently high to leave a surplus after payment of the cost of operation, maintenance and improvement. I refer to section 2503-1 of the General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., p. 473, said amended section being passed April 18, 1913, and providing, among other things, for the disposition of a surplus such as is referred to above.

Third. Your third question, as to what authority, if any, exists at the present time, or has existed at any time hitherto, for the leasing or selling of surplus water from the canal for other than power purposes, must be answered by a reference to several sections of the General Code. While section 431 refers in terms to the leasing of surplus water power, there is no expression of limitation by which the superintendent of public works is inhibited from leasing water for purposes other than power. On the other hand, section 429, General Code, refers to contracts for "water privileges" and section 433, General Code, authorizes the superintendent of public works to collect not only "water rents as they become due under the lease of water power," but also "rentals for pipe permits." If the legislature had not intended to authorize the leasing of water for purposes other than power, it would not have authorized the collection of rentals for pipe permits. I am, therefore, of the opinion, that the superintendent of public works has authority for leasing surplus water from the canals, for purposes other than power.

Fourth. Your inquiry as to the meaning of the term "surplus water not needed for navigation" is best answered by a reference to section 431 of the General Code, which omits the words "not needed for navigation" and broadly authorizes the leasing of surplus water power. I am, therefore, of the opinion, that you have the authority, where water in a canal is not needed for navigation for the reason that there is no navigation in the canal, to lease said water, if not needed for some other purpose such as the protection of the canal.

Fifth. As to your fifth question, I am of the opinion that the fact that the state has made public parks of various reservoirs, does place a limitation upon the leasing of water drawn therefrom. These reservoirs are, by the statutes, dedicated and set apart forever, for the use of the public as public parks or pleasure resorts, and are to be open to the public for recreation and pleasure, including hunting, fishing and boating, and it is clearly the intention of the legislature that no lease of water privileges is to be made which would interfere with the right of the people to use these reservoirs for the above named purposes.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

UNDER SECTION 3004, GENERAL CODE, THERE IS NO LIMITATION OF TIME OR AMOUNT ALLOWED PROSECUTING ATTORNEYS FOR EXPENSES.

Neither the court of common pleas nor probate court have any jurisdiction under section 3004, General Code, to limit the amount or time of withdrawing the amount allowed prosecuting attorneys for expenses to be paid under said section. The matter lies wholly within the discretion of the prosecuting attorneys.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 18, 1915.

HON. CHAS. T. STAHL, Prosecuting Attorney, Wauseon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of yours of January 11, 1915, in which you ask for an opinion of this department, upon the following question:

> "The construction of section 3004, G. C., as to whether the prosecuting attorney may draw out the entire fund therein stipulated, viz., one-half of his salary, at his own discretion, or whether it is within the jurisdiction of the judge, and that he may apportion the same."

> "There shall be allowed annually to the prosecuting attorney in addition to his salary and to the allowance provided by section 2914, an amount equal to one-half the official salary, to provide for expenses which may be incurred by him in the performance of his official duties and in the furtherance of justice, not otherwise provided for. Upon the order of the prosecuting attorney, the county auditor shall draw his warrant on the county treasurer payable to the prosecuting attorney or such other person as the order designates, for such amount as the order requires, not exceeding the amount provided for herein, and to be paid out of the general fund of the county.
> "Provided that nothing shall be paid under this section until the prosecuting attorney shall have given bond to the state in a sum not less than his official salary to be fixed by the court of common pleas or probate court with sureties to be approved by either of said courts, conditioned that he will faithfully discharge all the duties enjoined upon him, by law, and pay over according to law, all moneys by him received in his official capacity. Such bond with the approval of such court of the amount thereof and sureties thereon and his oath of office inclosed therein shall be deposited with the county treasurer.
> "The prosecuting attorney shall annually before the first Monday of January, file with the county auditor an itemized statement, duly verified by him, as to the manner in which fund has been expended during the current year, and shall if any part of such fund remains in his hands unexpended, forthwith pay the same into the county treasury. Provided, that as to the year, 1911, such fund shall be proportioned to the part of year remaining after this act shall have become a law."

The evident purpose of the enactment of this statute was to place at the disposal of the prosecuting attorney a sum of money which he might expend in such a manner as to render partial secrecy at the time when the expenses were incurred, and also adding a requirement that on or before the first Monday of the year following, he should render a statement under oath, of the manner of his expenditures.

The statute contemplates two methods by which this special fund may be drawn from the treasury and by the prosecuting attorney expended. First, he may secure from the county auditor a warrant for all or a portion of the amount to which he is entitled, after having given bond and securing its approval by the court; or, he may leave the entire amount in the county treasury and issue his order to the county auditor for each separate expenditure of money. In no event does the statute contemplate that the court shall exercise any jurisdiction or have any control over this fund other than to approve the bond when submitted.

I am in hearty accord with the construction you have placed upon this section, wherein you say:

> "The matter lies wholly within the discretion of the prosecuting attorney, and that after the bond is executed and approved by the court, it is not within the province of the court to designate either the amount or the time in which the prosecuting attorney may draw the fund."

It is my opinion, therefore, that after you have given bond and the bond has been approved by the court, you may withdraw either all or a portion of the amount to which you are entitled, and expend it in such a manner as is contemplated by this section, and that the court has no jurisdiction over the amount to be drawn by you.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION REQUIRED TO CERTIFY ONLY THE THREE CANDIDATES STANDING HIGHEST ON ELIGIBLE LIST.

When the state civil service commission has certified to a board the names of the three candidates standing highest, said commission has no authority to certify the three next highest to said board, merely because said board is unable to agree upon any one for the position.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 18 , 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of January 13, 1915, which submits the following proposition:

> "In one of the counties of Ohio, we recently held an examination for the position of superintendent and matron of the county infirmary. This examination resulted in an eligible list of some eight (8) people for each position. On requisition of the board of county commissioners, we certified the three highest people for each position. The clerk of the board of county commissioners now notifies us that the board has been unable to agree upon any one for either of the positions of superintendent and matron, and asks us to certify to them the next people on the eligible list. We doubt the power of this commission to go any further than we have already gone when we made the regular certification, unless legal reasons are given to us for the removal of those from the eligible list who stand highest thereon."

Your view is correct; this department approves your action. The fact alone that the board of county commissioners are unable to agree upon any one for either position, will not justify you in certifying the names of the next three persons on the eligible list.

Respectfully yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EMERGENCY ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE BECOMES A LAW ON THE DAY IT IS SIGNED.

An emergency act of the legislature becomes a law on the day it is signed by the governor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 18, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Under date of January 12, 1915, you inquire:

"When does an emergency act of the legislature become a law; the day it is signed by the governor or the day it is filed with the secretary of state?"

The sections of the constitution, that it is necessary to consider in this matter, are as follows:

"Article II, Sec. 1c. No law passed by the general assembly shall go into effect until ninety days after it shall have been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state, except as herein provided.

"Article II, Sec. 1d. Laws providing for tax levies, appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and state institutions, and emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, shall go into immediate effect.

"Article II, Sec. 16. Every bill passed by the general assembly shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor for his approval. If he approves, he shall sign it and thereupon it shall become a law and be filed with the secretary of state. If he does not approve it, he shall return it with his objections in writing, to the house in which it originated, which shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and may then reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to that house vote to repass the bill, it shall be sent, with the objections of the governor, to the other house, which may also reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to that house vote to repass it, it shall become a law notwithstanding the objections of the governor, except that in no case shall a bill be repassed by a smaller vote than is required by the constitution on its original passage. * * * If a bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days, Sundays excepted, after being presented to him, it shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly by adjournment prevents its return; in which case, it shall become a law unless, within ten days after such adjournment, it shall be filed by him, with his objections in writing, in the office of the secretary of state."

I assume that you do not refer, in your question, to a bill which has been presented to the governor and has not been signed by him, or one which has been vetoed by him, since you ask, solely, when an emergency act becomes a law—the day it is signed by the governor or the day filed with the secretary of state.

The actions of the general assembly are known as "bills" until they have received the signature of the governor, when they are known as "laws." Section 16 of article II, above quoted, states that every bill passed shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor for his approval, and when signed shall thereupon becomes a law. Therefore, it is necessary that the signature of the governor be attached to a bill before it becomes a law, but it does so become a law upon such signature being attached. The mere fact that it is required to be filed with the secretary of state does not affect the fact that it is already a law.

Section 1d of article II states that emergency laws shall go into immediate effect.

Since a bill becomes a law upon the signature of the governor and does not necessarily have to wait upon the filing of the same with the secretary of state, I am of the opinion that an emergency act of the legislature becomes a law, immediately, upon its being signed by the governor.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION—MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY MUST STATE IT IS FORMED FOR PURPOSE OF TRANSACTING "BUSINESS OF INSURANCE ON THE MUTUAL PLAN."

A mutual fire insurance company must, in its articles, state that it is formed for the purpose of transacting "business of insurance on the mutual plan."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 18, 1915.

HON. C. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I return herewith, without my approval endorsed thereon, the proposed articles of incorporation of The Auto Insurance Company, for the reason that the statement of the purpose of incorporation is so indefinite that it cannot be determined therefrom what the kind and character of business, which the company proposes to undertake, is.

The declared purpose of the corporation is as follows:

"insuring automobiles and accessories against fire or theft, or both."

This fact, together with the fact that the corporation is not for profit, suggests the possibility of an attempt to incorporate either under sections 9510 and 9556, or under section 9593, General Code.

I find that my predecessor advised the then secretary of state, that the articles were not in conformity with section 9593, General Code. The correspondence attached to the articles, and also enclosed herewith, shows that the incorporators actually did intend, in the first instance, to organize a mutual protective association, under section 9593, General Code, but now tender the same articles of incorporation as sufficient for a mutual company, under section 9510, General Code.

It is true that mutual companies may be organized under sections 9510, General Code, and the succeeding sections, particularly sections 9525-9528, inclusive. But in order that the articles of incorporation may be so definite as to enable one to apprehend the exact nature of the corporation, I am of the opinion that it is necessary specifically to state in the articles that the company is formed for the purpose of transacting the business desired "on the mutual plan." For lack of these necessary words I am unable, as already stated, to certify my approval of the articles.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WHO MAY BE EMPLOYED BY THE STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES AS VISITORS—DUTIES THEY MUST PERFORM

The board of state charities may enter into an arrangement with a private charitable organization whereby its representatives may be employed by the board to act as visitors for the inspection of institutions receiving, caring for and disposing of children, provided such visitors perform all of the duties of the position; such an arrangment would not be lawful if the visitors merely investigated the disposition of certain classes of children.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 18, 1915.

The Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 12, 1915, requesting my opinion upon the following question:

> "A certain private organization, in which this board has confidence as to its ability and discretion, in one of the larger cities is planning to make a special study of the disposition of illegitimate children. * * *
> "Would it be possible for this board to designate certain members of the private organization as visitors without salary and thereby have the rights and powers of other visitors employed under the express terms of section 1352?"

Section 1352 of the General Code, as amended 103 Ohio Laws, 865, provides as follows:

> "The board of state charities shall investigate by correspondence and inspection the system, condition and management of the public and private benevolent and correctional institutions of the state and county, and municipal jails, workhouses, infirmaries and children's homes, and all maternity hospitals or homes, lying-in hospitals, or places where women are received and cared for during parturition, as well as all institutions whether incorporated, private or otherwise which receive and care for children. * * *. For the purpose of such investigation and to carry out the provisions of this chapter it shall employ such visitors as may be necessary, who shall, in addition to other duties, investigate the care and disposition of children made by institutions for receiving children, and by all institutions including within their objects the placing of children in private homes, and, when they deem it desirable they shall visit such children in such homes, and report the result of such inspection to the board. * * *.

"Section 1352-1. Such board shall annually pass upon the fitness of every benevolent or correctional institution, corporation and association, public, semi-public or private as receives, or desires to receive and care for children, or places children in private homes. * * * When the board is satisfied as to the care given such children, and that the requirements of the statutes covering the management of such institutions are being complied with, it shall issue to the association a certificate to that effect, which shall continue in force for one year, unless sooner revoked by the board. No child shall be committed by the juvenile court to an association or institution which has not such certificate unrevoked and received within fifteen months next preceding the commitment. A list of such certified institutions shall be sent by the board of state charities, at least annually, to all courts acting as juvenile courts and to all associations and institutions so approved. Any person who receives children or receives or solicits money on behalf of such an institution, corporation or association, not so certified, or whose certificate has been revoked, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not less than $5.00 nor more than $500.00."

Without quoting the remaining provisions of the chapter in which these sections are found I may say that on an examination of them I have reached the conclusion that "the provisions of this chapter," referred to in section 1352, do not comprehend any of the other sections of the General Code which happen to be in the chapter in question, but the phrase is obviously limited in its application to the contents of section 1352-1, above quoted. That is to say, the purpose for which visitors may be employed by the board of state charities is to enable the board to acquire information upon which to base its determination relative to the issuance of the certificate provided for in section 1352-1. For this purpose the investigation described in section 1352, as amended, must be made, and such investigation must include, within its scope, the system, condition and management of all institutions which receive and care for children, with a view to determining the fitness of such institutions to do this kind of work.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that the board of state charities is without authority to employ, in any sense, a visitor, the scope of whose investigation would be limited to examining into the condition of any class of children cared for in institutions, with the sole object of studying the disposition of such children as a class. The visitors must examine the institutions, as such, and must report to the board the care and disposition of children in the institution so that the board can pass upon the fitness of the institution.

The arrangement about which you inquire could not lawfully be entered into if the visitors without salary, of which you speak, would not be expected to report to the board or would limit the scope of their investigations to the care and disposition of children of a certain class; but if the persons whom you have in mind are willing to act as visitors for the board of state charities and to perform all the duties of such visitors, without compensation, for the purpose of incidentally acquiring for other uses approved by the board, information with respect to the care and disposition of certain classes of children in the institutions examined by them, I believe that the arrangement would be lawful and would constitute an "employment" within the meaning of section 1352 as I have quoted it. In such event, the employment might be limited, if desired, to a certain class of institutions such as public institutions, semi-public institutions or private institutions receiving and caring for children and placing them in private homes, as such a division of the labor of visitation is permissible under the statute. To permit the arrangement upon the first basis disclosed above, would be to subject the institutions subject to inspection to two visitations for the same single purpose; and indeed would compel them to open their doors to investigators not really interested in the ascertainment of the facts which the law requires the board of state charities to find out. I do not believe that such an arrangement could be justified.

While I have not been able to answer your question positively, I trust that my advise to you will enable you to determine the actual question which you have before you.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MECHANIC'S LIEN NOT TO BE ENFORCED AGAINST STATE.

A mechanic's lien is not to be enforced against the state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 19, 1915.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 15, 1915, which is as follows:

> "By direction of the board of administration, I am handing you herewith the sworn and itemized statement of a claim which was filed with the board of administration January 7, 1915, by Talfourd P. Linn, attorney for the Atlantic Terra Cotta Company, subcontractors, who have been awarded the general contract for the construction and completion of a dormitory building at the institution for feeble-minded, Columbus, Ohio.
> "I am also enclosing letters under dates of January 7 and 8 from Mr. Linn; copy of letter from the Ohio board of administration to the Dawson Construction Company; two letters from the Dawson Construction Company to the board of administration under dates of January 9 and 14; all of which are self-explanatory.
> "Your advice and opinion is respectfully requested as to what further action should be taken by the board relative to said claim."

Replying to the inquiry contained in your letter, permit me to advise that the courts, in the construction of section 8324 of the General Code, have held that while the language is broad enough to include public improvements, public buildings, etc., that statute does not apply to improvements in charge of the state.

The state cannot be sued; consequently mechanic's lien cannot be perfected in a case of this kind. Inasmuch as a suit may not be brought against the state for the enforcement of a mechanic's lien there is no method by which a court can decree its enforcement, and in the absence of a law to enforce the same, the auditor of state cannot recognize this lien.

This matter was fully considered by Judge Kyle in the case of The State of Ohio ex rel. Merritt & Company v. D. Q. Morrow et al., 10 Ohio Nisi Prius Reports, N. S. page 279, in which he decided:

> "There are no proceedings in law whereby a mechanic's lien may be enforced against the state of Ohio."

This case was affirmed by the circuit court in the following memorandum opinion to be found at the bottom of page 279 of the volume referred to above, and is as follows:

> "We think that the judgment of the lower court should be affirmed for the reasons given by Judge Kyle in his opinion, and in addition this reason:
> " 'There is a doctrine laid down in 38th Law Bulletin, 212, which is the law that where a contractor absconds that that ends his rights, and that the owner may proceed with the completion of the work and without paying to the contractor or his subcontractor anything, even though he should complete the work at a less price than originally contracted for.' "

In view of the circumstances and from the facts presented, it would appear that there is nothing further that your board can do towards affording relief to the subcontractor, The Atlantic Terra Cotta Company.

Very respectfully yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE LIQUOR LICENSING BOARD—PRESENT GOVERNOR'S AUTHORIZATION FOR FIXED CURRENT EXPENSES, PREVIOUSLY AUTHORIZED, NEED NOT BE SECURED—GOVERNOR'S APPROVAL NOT NECESSARY FOR CURRENT FIXED EXPENDITURES OF COUNTY BOARDS—PRESENT GOVERNOR SHOULD APPROVE ALL ITEMS OF EXPENSES OF STATE BOARD, HEREAFTER INCURRED.

1. The state liquor licensing board need not secure present governor's authorization and approval of fixed current expenses previously authorized and approved by preceding governor.

2. The state liquor licensing board need not procure the approval of the governor for the current fixed expenditures of county boards other than salaries of members hereafter appointed.

3. The state liquor licesing board should have the approval of the present governor to all items of expense of said state board hereafter to be incurred.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 21, 1915.

State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of yours of the 13th requesting an answer to three questions propounded.

The answers to these questions involve a construction of sections 5, 8, 13 and 46 of the act of April 18, 1913, 103 O. L., 216.

The first question you ask is:

> "Should it procure and have on its files the newly installed governor's authorization and approval of its current fixed expenditures hereafter to be paid? At the installation of the department or from time to time thereafter as they arose, such expenditures were authorized in writing by the governor retired."

My answer is, No.

Supplementing the answer just given:

(a) Referring now to the things mentioned in section 5 of the act; rental of office for the state board does not require the approval of the governor either in the incurring or paying of same. Section 5 is by no means clear, and the only safe course to pursue is to secure the approval of the governor to the incurring of all indebtedness other than rental above referred to, and for your protection and to avoid all questions, I hold this to be necessary to any future indebtedness incurred.

For the continued payment of the approved compensation of those persons whose employments were approved by the preceding governor, there need be no further approval by the present governor. No other persons may be employed, nor may compensation heretofore approved be increased without the approval of the present governor.

(b) Referring now to section 8: The approval of the present governor is unnecessary for the continued payment to county licensing commissioners of the salaries heretofore fixed with the approval of the preceding governor. Such salaries may not be changed, nor may the salary of a new incumbent be fixed without the approval of the present governor.

Your second question is:

> "Should it procure and have on its files the newly installed governor's approval of the current fixed expenditures of the county boards hereafter to be paid?"

My answer is, No. (Salaries of county licensing commissioners is referred to above.)

Section 13, which authorized the incurring of expenses by county boards, requires the approval only of the state board. This section (13) further provides that the payment (not the incurring of the expenses) be made in the same manner as the state board's expenses are paid. The manner in which the expenses of both the state and county boards, which have been properly incurred, are to be paid is provided for in section 46 of the act. The language of this section is clear and needs no explanation.

Your third question is:

> "Should it have on file the newly installed governor's written authorization for the incurring of its incidental and contingent expenses that may and will arise, the exact nature and amount of which cannot always be determined in advance? Would an oral authorization for the incurring of such expenses to be subsequently approved in detail in writing by the governor be sufficient?"

My answer is that it will be necessary for your board to have the present governor's approval for the incurring of such incidental and contingent expenses of the state board. The method of such approval is not prescribed by the act, but it should be of such character as to leave no doubt. I suggest that you outline to the governor the general nature and probable amount of such expense and have him approve it. This together with the subsequent approval in detail (for payment) will be sufficient.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION 742, GENERAL CODE—SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS NEED NOT EMPLOY AN ATTORNEY TO PRESENT HIS ACCOUNT TO COURT.

Under section 742, General Code, the notice required to be given "such corporation, company, society or association," should be served at such time prior to presenting the statement of expenses of supervision and liquidation to the common pleas court for approval as will give all parties concerned a reasonable opportunity for filing objections or exceptions to such expense account. Under said section the superintendent of banks need not employ an attorney to present his account to the court for its approval.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 22, 1915.

MR. GEORGE WALTERS, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 20, 1915, you submitted for my opinion the following question:

> "Section 742-4 relative to the expenses incurred in the liquidation of banks, among other things, provides that:
> 'all expenses of supervision and liquidation shall be fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such corporation, company, society or association was located on notice to such corporation, company, society or association.'
> "Please render to me an opinion as to when such notice shall be given the corporation, company, society or association, and as to whether or not it is necessary to employ an attorney to represent the superintendent of banks in presenting the expense accounts to the court for its approval."

Since you delivered this letter to me personally and we had a conversation relative to the object of your request, I am answering it in view of my understanding of that conversation.

The notice to "such corporation, company, society or association" required under section 742-4 of the General Code should be served at such time prior to presenting the statement of expenses of supervision and liquidation to the common pleas court for approval as will give all parties concerned a reasonable opportunity for filing objections or exceptions to any part of such expense account.

If you so desire, you may personally present the accounts mentioned to the court for its approval, and need not employ an attorney, as any litigant has the right to appear in his own behalf in any court of common pleas in Ohio.

Respectfully submitted,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

REGISTRATION OF LAND TITLES.

In registration of land titles, the titles are to be numbered consecutively. Documents relating to title should carry the title number for filing purposes. All papers relating to registered title should be filed together under the title number in the county recorder's office.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 22, 1915.

MR. C. B. GORDON, Recorder of Perry County, New Lexington, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of January 14, which is as follows:

> "Please let me know where to record a mortgage given under the Torrens land registration law. Each instrument is to be given a document number. Where do we get this number?"

Replying to your inquiry, I beg to direct your attention to section 8572-47, G. C., at page 938 of vol. 103 O. L. (being section 47 of the act to provide for the settlement, registration, transfer and assurance of land titles and to simplify and facilitate transactions in real estate, known as the "Torrens land registration act") wherein it is provided that:

> "The recorder, upon the written request of the lessee, mortgagee, or encumbrancee, and payment of the proper fee, shall, in addition to registering the same, also record the instrument filed in his office in volumes to be known respectively as 'records of liens on registered land' and 'record of leases on registered land' * * *"

Answering your second question as to where you get the number to be given to the documents filed or recorded, permit me to call your attention first to the provision contained in section 8572-23 of the General Code (section 23 of the act) on page 927, vol. 103 O. L., as follows:

> "All certificates of title shall be numbered consecutively, beginning with number one. * * *"

In addition to the provisions quoted from section 8572-23, section 8572-35 of the General Code (103 O. L., 932) provides, amongst other things, that:

> "Each recorder shall keep an entry book in which he shall enter and number in the order of their reception, all deeds and other voluntary instruments and all involuntary instruments and copies of writs or other papers filed with him which relate to registered land. He shall note in such book the year, month, day, hour and minute of the reception of all instruments or papers in the order in which they are received, and shall also at the same time enter the number of the instrument or paper in appropriate blank space on the registered certificate of title for the land to which it relates."

In view of the fact that one of the purposes of the law is to "simplify and facilitate transactions in real estate" it is at once apparent that one of the essentials to carry out the intention of the act would be to have all of the papers relating to a given case of a registered title where they might be readily accessible and in convenient form, and in view of this it is important that a system be adopted which will obviate the necessity of searching through extensive files for the purpose of locating such papers.

I believe that the purpose of the act will best be carried out if every paper relating to a registered title bears the number of the registered title as the master number, and in addition thereto the number given the document at the time of its reception as contemplated in section 8572-35 of the General Code. At the present time there are, of course, comparatively few papers to be searched for in connection with the operation of this law, but as time goes on and business under this law increases numerous papers will be filed and unless all of the papers, documents, etc., in connection with a certain registered title are filed in one place it will be necessary to go through numerous files for the purpose of securing such papers which at the outset could and should be segregated and it is my opinion that the provision in section 8577-36 of the General Code for the filing of other instruments and memoranda in any way affecting the title to registered land under the proper file numbers contemplates the use of the registered title number as the proper file number.

Trusting that this answers your inquiry, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CIVIL SERVICE—SECRETARY OF STATE MAY SELECT STATE REGISTRAR OF AUTOMOBILES AS ONE OF TWO EXCEPTIONS TO CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

Under section 7 of subdivision 8 of the civil service act, 486-8, General Code, the secretary of state may select as one of two secretaries, clerks or assistants, the person discharging the duties of automobile registrar.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 23, 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of yours of the 21st inst., asking for an opinion as follows:

> "The head of what is known as the automobile department is designated as the registrar of automobiles, and is an appointee of the secretary of state. The state civil service commission has made an examination to determine the duties of this position, and we find them as follows:
> "'Supervising the registering of automobiles, motorcycles, chauffeurs and dealers, the receipt of fees and issuing of tags and badges, conducting correspondence and directing of all employes of his department; annually receives and accounts for about $700,000.00. He has heretofore been required to give bond in the sum of $50,000.00.'
> "The state civil service commission desires to know whether or not as a matter of law the duties of this position are such as may be performed by an assistant to the secretary of state, provided for in subsection 7 of main section 8, of the civil service act. This section provides that such an elective officer as the secretary of state may have two secretaries, assistants or clerks exempt from the classified service. We are clear that this position is not that of a secretary or clerk, and desire to know whether or not as a matter of law it can be designated as an assistant to the secretary of state."

Also your supplementary letter of same date, reading:

"Referring to our letter of even date with reference to the head of the automobile department, will say that the matter contained in quotation marks is the description of the duties of that position as prepared by this department for use in standardizing that position. We are preparing what we call the standardization of positions as shown by the duties, and the matter quoted is taken from our description of these duties as determined after an examination for that purpose."

Careful investigation of both the statutes and appropriation bills will fail to disclose any department in this state known as the "automobile department," or any position known as the "registrar of automobiles." Neither are there any such duties as you refer to in your quotation above, resting upon any one except the secretary of state himself. Nowhere is there any authorization or requirement that the person now occupying the position referred to, shall give bond. Whether he gives bond or not is a matter for the secretary of state to determine.

The duties of "supervising the registering of automobiles, motorcycles, chauffeurs and dealers, the receipt of fees and the issuing of tags and badges, conducting correspondence and directing all employes of his department" rests exclusively upon the secretary of state.

The secretary of state may, however, employ the necessary assistants and clerks to enable him to discharge the duties of the office so long as he remains within the appropriation given him for that purpose by the legislature.

As to his duties respecting the registration of automobiles, etc., the matter now under consideration, he may require any of the employes in his office to assist. In other words, the secretary of state alone has the power to prescribe the duties of employes in his department, except so far as the statute confers a limited power upon the assistant secretary, under certain conditions. The bureau of vital statistics, in regard to the registrar of which I gave you an opinion recently, is a separate department in respect to which the secretary of state has certain duties to perform.

While under section 9 of the civil service act (G. C. 486-9) the civil service commission may make and put into effect rules for the classification of offices, positions and employments, your commission is without authority to prescribe what the duties of the employment shall be. In other words, you are to take the duties as prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute as prescribed by the head of the department, for each employe.

Taking the duties of the position referred to to be the assisting of the secretary of state in respect to his duties imposed upon him by law, relative to automobiles, motorcycles, chauffeurs and dealers, and his supervising for the secretary of state the registering of automobiles, motorcycles, chauffeurs and dealers, the receipt of fees and issuing of tags and badges, conducting correspondence and directing all employes of this particular phase of the secretary of state's duties, and receiving on behalf of the secretary of state large sums of money, the person occupying such a position must be classed either as a chief clerk or an assistant.

As has been said to you in former opinions from this department, it is the duties which the employe discharges rather than the title he bears, that are controlling.

As the secretary of state is clearly such an officer as may make the appointment under subsection 7 of section 8 of the civil service act (G. C. 486-8), he clearly has the right to exempt the employe from acting under the designation of registrar of automobiles from the classified service under said subsection 7, providing the present secretary of state has not heretofore exempted two secretaries, clerks or assistants, not counting the assistant secretary of state.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF STATE CHARITIES MAY NOT ACT AS VISITING AGENT OF COUNTY CHILDREN'S HOME—TRUSTEES OF CHILDREN'S HOME MUST CO-OPERATE WITH STATE BOARD IN ORDER TO TRANSFER GUARDIANSHIP OF CHILDREN NOT PROPERLY CARED FOR—EXPENSE OF EXAMINATION OF CHILD BY STATE BOARD IS NOT CHARGEABLE AGAINST THE COUNTY.

1. The board of state charities may not act as visiting agent of county children's home. An agreement to do so will not have the effect of transferring the guardianship of all wards of the home to the board of state charities. There must be a separate transfer of this kind in the case of each child under section 1352-3, General Code.

2. In case a visitor of the board of state charities discovers that a child placed by a children's home is not being properly cared for, and the trustees are willing to co-operate with the state board, the proper procedure is for the trustees of the home to transfer the guardianship to the state board of charities under section 1352-3, General Code.

3. Expenses incurred by the board of state charities in having made a physical and mental examination of a child to be placed in a foster home are not chargeable against the county of the child's legal residence, under section 1352-4, General Code.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 23, 1915.

The Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of January 12th, you request my opinion upon the following questions:

"1. Two county children's homes have by resolution of their boards of trustees requested the board of state charities to act as visiting agent. The board has accepted the responsibility. The question has been raised whether the board of state charities by such general contract becomes ipso facto the sole and exclusive guardian of children received from such homes and placed in foster families, or, whether it will be necessary to have a formal transfer of each case in the manner set forth in section 1352-3.

"2. If the general contract and agreement grants such guardianship, can it be held to apply to a child previously placed in a foster home by the board of trustees who upon subsequent investigation and visitation by a representative of this board is found to be placed in an improper home and should be placed in another; or, must readjustment be made by the board of trustees personally or by formal transfer of the case to the board of state charities.

"3. It is the practice of this board before placing a child in a foster home for the first time, to have a thorough physical and mental examination; the charges for such service have been very nominal. We wish to know whether such items of expense can be included in the terms of section 1352-4 for reimbursement by the proper county.

"4. Furthermore, when the board of state charities acts as agent for a county home under section 3099 shall the home be responsible for expenses of visiting children previously placed by the board of trustees, as is the case when former wards of that board have been placed in foster homes by the board of state charities?"

Your first question invites consideration of sections 1352-3 and 3099 of the General Code, as amended in the so-called Juvenile Code, 103 O. L., 864. It will be necessary to consider practically all the provisions of both of these sections, and I accordingly quote them in full:

"Section 1352-3. The board of state charities shall, when able to do so, receive as its wards such dependent or neglected minors as may be committed to it by the juvenile court. County, district, or semi-public children's homes or any institution entitled to receive children from the juvenile court may, with the consent of the board, transfer to it the guardianship of minor wards of such institutions. If such children have been committed to such institutions by the juvenile court that court must first consent to such transfer.

"The board shall thereupon ipso facto become vested with the sole and exclusive guardianship of such child or children. The board shall, by its visitors, seek out suitable, permanent homes in private families for such wards; in each case making in advance a careful investigation of the character and fitness of such home for the purpose. Such children may then be placed in such investigated homes upon trial, or upon such contract as the board may deem to be for the best interests of the child, or proceedings may be had, as provided by law, for the adoption of the child by suitable persons. The board shall retain the guardianship of a child so placed upon trial or contract during its minority, and may at any time, if it deems it for the best interest of the child, cancel such contract and remove the child from such home. The board, by its visitors, shall visit at least twice a year all the homes in which children have been placed by it. Children from whom on account of some physical or mental defect it is impracticable to find good, free homes, may be so placed by the board upon agreement to pay reasonable board therefor not to exceed $3.50 per week, which shall be paid out of funds appropriated to the use of the board by the general assembly. When necessary any children so committed or transferred to the board may be maintained by it in a suitable place until a proper home is found.

"So far as practicable children shall be placed in homes of the same religious belief as that held by their parents.

"Section 3099. Unless a children's home places its wards through the agency of the board of state charities, the trustees shall appoint a competent person as visiting agent, who shall seek homes for the children in private families, where they will be properly cared for, trained and educated. When practicable, the agent shall visit each child so placed not less than once in each year, and report from time to time to the trustees its condition, any brutal or ill treatment of it, or failure to provide suitable food, clothing or school facilities therefor in such family. The agent shall perform his or her duties under the direction of the trustees and superintendent of the children's home for which he or she is appointed, and may be assigned other duties not inconsistent with his or her regular employment as the trustees prescribe. His or her appointment shall be for one year, or until his or her successor is appointed, and he shall receive such reasonable compensation for his or her services as the trustees provide."

The fundamental question is as to what is meant by the phrase "unless a children's home places its wards through the agency of the board of state charities," as provided in section 3099. I may say in connection with this section, I have examined the other provisions of the children's code and the unamended laws relative to the board of state charities and county children's homes. I do not find therein any direct authority in the trustees of children's homes to make the board of state charities a mere agent for the purpose of placing children in private homes, nor any authority on the part of the board of state charities to accept such an agency for this purpose. In my opinion, the phrase in question means and refers to the proceeding authorized in section 1352-3, General Code, and that only; so that the act of "placing wards of a children's home through the agency of the board of state charities" means the transfer to the board of the guardianship of the wards of the home, as contemplated by section 1352-3, as a consequence of which it becomes the duty of the board under that section to seek out and provide permanent homes in private families for such wards. I do not find any authority of law for the board of state charities acting as visiting agent for children's homes. The board has authority to appoint visitors to investigate institutions under section 1352, General Code, and such visitors are especially directed, in addition to other duties, to "investigate the care and disposition of children made by institutions for receiving children, and by all institutions including within their objects the placing of children in private homes, and when they deem it advisable they shall visit such children in such homes and report the result of such inspection to the board." It may be a matter of convenience for the visitors of the board to act also as visiting agents for children's homes, but the duties of the two positions are not, in my judgment, compatible, for the reason that the purpose of the visitation under the supervision of the board of state charities is to enable that board to form judgment as to the efficiency of the management of the institution placing the child in the home. Therefore, the board of state charities is in a position in law, adverse, so to speak, to that of the children's homes, and for one person to act as the agent of both in the same transaction would offend against fundamental principles.

Irrespective of the question whether a general contract such as you speak of can be made for the purposes of which you mention, I am of the opinion that such an agreement does not have the effect in and of itself of transferring the guardianship of children who are wards of the children's homes in question to the board of state charities. That must be, in my opinion, a separate, distinct and formal transfer. It is necessary in the case of each child, under section 1352-3, and a general transfer, either prospective or retrospective in its character is insufficient. The very fact that the juvenile court must consent to the transfer of children committed to the children's home by it indicates the correctness of this view.

Your second question being dependent upon an answer to your first question opposite to that which I have given, perhaps does not require a separate answer. I may say, however, that in my opinion if the representatives of the board of state charities discover that a child previously placed in a foster home by the board of trustees of a children's home, is improperly placed and should be placed in another home, and the trustees of the children's home are willing to co-operate with the board of state charities to that end, the proper procedure would be for the trustees to transfer its guardianship to the board of state charities as provided in section 1352-3, in which event the board acting under the section just cited might cancel the contract of indenture, remove the child from the home in which it was found, and place it in another home more suitable to its interests.

Your third question requires consideration of section 1352-4 of the General Code, as enacted 103 O. L. 867, which provides in part as follows:

> "The actual traveling expenses of such child and that of the agents or visitors of said board in connection with placing such dependent or neglected child in a home and of subsequent visitation of such child, together with half the amount of board, if any, paid by said board on account of the child to the owners of such home shall be charged by the board of state charities to the county in which the child had a legal residence when received by such board. The treasurer of each county shall pay the quarterly draft of the board of state charities for the amount so chargeable against such county for the preceding quarter. * * *"

It is apparent from the foregoing language that the expenses which are chargeable to the county are traveling expenses in connection with placing a child in a home, expenses of subsequent visitation of such child and the board of the child. I do not believe that the expense of making a physical and mental examination of the child can be regarded as a traveling expense; and certainly it could not be classed with the other expenses which I have named. Therefore, in my opinion, an expense of this character is not one for which reimbursement from the county of the legal residence of the child can be claimed.

Your fourth question is answered by the general statement that the board of state charities upon the principles already laid down has no authority to act as an agent for a county home under section 3099 of the General Code. I might add to what I have already said along this line that if the board of state charities is to act as an agent of the home it "must perform its duties under the direction of the superintendent and trustees of the children's home * * * and may be assigned other duties not inconsistent with * * * regular employment as the trustees prescribe, as these duties are exacted of the agents by section 3099." It will readily appear that the board of state charities is without authority to place itself in a position such as this. For these reasons I cannot give an answer to your fourth question as you state it.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ADDENDUM

After dictating the above opinion I discovered that my predecessor, the Honorable T. S. Hogan, advised you on January 6, 1915, that the board of state charities was without authority to act as a visiting agent of a children's home and that the only legal arrangement of this character is the transfer of guardianship. As I have already stated, I am in accord with his opinion.

JUVENILE COURT SHOULD BE CONSULTED AS TO DISPOSITION OF CHILD COMMITTED BY COURT TO A CHILDREN'S HOME.

Juvenile court should, as a matter of policy, be consulted as to disposition of a child by the children's home to which the court has committed it, when it is suspected that the court will not approve such disposition.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 23, 1915.

The State Board of Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of January 12, 1915, which, in full, reads as follows:

> "In May, 1912, the superintendent of a certain children's home, incorporated for the purpose of placing dependent children in foster homes, received from the board of trustees of a certain infirmary a child. The superintendent claims that in his contract with the infirmary officials there is a clause that the child may be returned at any time it may prove to be unplaceable. Between May, 1912 and October, 1913, the child was placed in five different foster homes. At the last one the child was removed by an officer of the juvenile court of the county in which the foster parents resided on the ground of cruelty and abuse, for which the foster father was fined. For some reason the child was transferred without any record so far as is known to an officer connected with the juvenile court of another county presumably for the reason that the place of business of the organization referred to above was in the latter county. There is no record in the latter court concerning the manner in which the custody of the child was secured.
> "Subsequently the child was placed in a foster home by the same officer of the latter court where it remained for about a year. The first record of the latter court concerning this child appears in November, 1914, where an affidavit was filed with another officer of such court, the former officer who had handled this case without record having left the state. On the first day of December, 1914, said child was committed to the county children's home.
> "Previous to the disposal of the case by commitment to the county children's home, a representative of this board advised the officer of the juvenile court that the child was a legal ward of the aforesaid organization and that the superintendent should be notified concerning the situation. It appears that no such notice was sent and the child was committed to the children's home without even informing the organization which was supposed to be legally responsible for the child, perhaps on the ground that the court had some prejudice against the methods of such organization.
> "The board of trustees of the children's home have requested the organization which first dealt with this case to receive the child. The superintendent of the organization is in doubt because of court procedure as to his rights in the case.
> "Query: Should he accept this child from the county children's home without further procedure by the juvenile court?"

While you have stated the facts upon which my opinion is requested somewhat fully, I am unable to form from your recital very definite conclusions of law upon some of the points suggested. In the first place you do not state what kind of an infirmary it was the trustees of which made the original contract with the private children's home referred to by you. This could scarcely have been a county infirmary because, in the first place, where there is a children's home in the county children may not be kept at the county infirmary (section 3092, G. C.); and where there is no children's home in the county the superintendent of the infirmary (whether it be a county infirmary or a municipal infirmary) may transfer a child to a private charitable institution instead of providing for it in another county children's home or otherwise, except that the authorities doing this are limited to private homes in the county (section 4527, G. C.). Inasmuch as your letter at least suggests that the private institution of which you speak may have been located in a county other than that in which the infirmary which you mention was located, this statute, it would seem was not complied with.

Therefore, one of the legal propositions involved in a complete answer to your query, viz.: that the private children's home was the legal guardian of the child in question by virtue of the original arrangement between it and the board of trustees of the infirmary, cannot be determined with any certainty from the facts stated by you.

Again I do not feel that the facts submitted by you call for the consideration of the question of jurisdiction. At least the filing of the affidavit in November, 1914, would prima facie fix jurisdiction in the juvenile court in which the same was filed and the proceedings thereunder would not be open to collateral attack; and insofar as the failure of the juvenile court to issue a citation under section 1648 to the private children's home is the supposed guardian of the minor and its bearing upon the question of jurisdiction is concerned, this cannot be considered because of the lack of sufficient facts upon which to base an opinion as to guardianship in the first instance.

It seems, however, from what you say that the judge exercising the juvenile jurisdiction may have intended to keep the child in question away from the private children's home. That being the case, prudence suggests that the juvenile court be consulted by all parties concerned before the private home accepts the child from the county children's home. The jurisdiction of the juvenile court over a child committed by it to a children's home continues until the child attains the age of twenty-one years, so that the child may be recalled by the juvenile court from the county children's home or from any institution or foster home in which a child committed by the juvenile court has been placed by the authorities of the county children's home.

In this respect I agree with the conclusions of my predecessor expressed in his opinion to you under date of December 30, 1914. So that if the court had jurisdiction in the premises, a question which I am unable to decide from the facts stated by you, it would hardly be advisable for the private organization which you mention to accept the child from the county children's home under all the circumstances without the consent of the juvenile judge.

The facts submitted not only are insufficient upon which to base an unofficial opinion, but they suggest to me that the whole matter presents a question of policy rather than of law.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DEPOSITS BY STUDENTS—TAXES, ASSESSMENTS, LICENSES, FEES—SUPPLIES, BROKEN APPARATUS, RECEIPTS FROM DINING ROOM SERVICE, ROOM RENT, ATHLETIC FEES, RECEIPTS FROM CLASS PLAYS, ETC., NEED NOT BE PAID INTO STATE TREASURY.

Deposits by students of colleges, universities and normal schools, against which supplies and broken apparatus are charged, are not to be paid into the state treasury weekly, under section 24, General Code.

If students are charged for supplies for services, as the same are furnished, the sums so received should be paid into the state treasury weekly, under section 24, General Code.

Receipts from dining service and room rent in dormitories are not for the use of any university, college or normal school as such, or for the use of the state, but for the use and maintenance of the dormitory, and are, therefore, not to be paid weekly into the state treasury.

Athletic fees and receipts from class plays and from entertainments, assumed to be student activities, are not for the use of the institution or the state and should not be paid into the state treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 23, 1915.

HON. W. O. HEFFERNAN, Budget Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Mr. Donaldson of your department requests, on your behalf, my opinion as to the interpretation of section 24 of the General Code, as amended 104 Ohio Laws, 178, in the following particulars, as stated by him:

> "Will you please give me your opinion as to whether this section makes it obligatory upon the colleges, universities and normal schools to turn in such extra funds as deposited by students for supplies used and breakage of apparatus, receipts from dining room service in dormitories, room rent in dormitories, key deposits, towel rentals and food supplies used by individual students in domestic science, athletic fees, receipts from class plays or other entertainments, etc."

Said section 24 of the General Code, as amended, provides as follows:

> "On or before Monday of each week, every state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid shall pay to the treasurer of state all moneys, checks and drafts received for the state, or for the use of any such state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid, during the preceding week, from taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, fees, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals, or otherwise, and file with the auditor of state a detailed, verified statement of such receipts. Where tuitions and fees are paid to the officer or officers of any college, normal school or university receiving state aid, said officer or officers shall retain a sufficient amount of said tuition fund and fees to enable said officer or officers to make refunds of tuition and fees incident to conducting of said tuition fund and fees. At the end of each term of any college, normal school or university receiving state aid, the officer or officers having in charge said tuition fund and fees shall make and file with the auditor of state an itemized statement of all tuitions and fees received and disposition of the same."

In dealing with funds of colleges, normal schools and universities, two questions of a general nature must be considered in applying these provisions to specific cases, namely:

(1) Are the moneys in question, tuitions and fees, to the conducting of which refunds are incident?

(2) Are the moneys received for the state or for the use of the college, school or university?

So far as the description of sources of revenue, which is found in section 24, is concerned, viz.: "Taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, fees, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals or otherwise," it is clear to me that the same is comprehensive enough to include everything, and the limits of the application of the statute are to be found in the uses to which the revenues are to be put rather than in the source from which they arise.

I fear that I cannot give you any satisfactory rule for universal application; but by answering the specific questions which you ask, I may perhaps suggest to your department the lines of demarcation which may be observed in practice.

I am of the opinion that deposits by students for supplies used and breakage of apparatus, from which the student is entitled to a refund, if he does not consume the requisite amount of supplies or destroy a sufficient quantity of apparatus, are to be regarded as "tuitions and fees," to the conducting of which "refunds" are "incident," within the meaning of the second half of the section.

As to moneys of this character, there should be deducted from the weekly payments a sufficient amount to enable the officers to care for the anticipated refunds, and at the end of the term an itemized statement of the disposition of all such funds is to be filed with the auditor of state.

The same principle applies to key deposits, towel rentals and food supplies used by individual students in domestic science, if the method of administration is for a certain sum to be exacted in advance, subject to refund at the end of the term. But if this is not the case, and students are merely charged for supplies and services as they are received by them, I would be of the opinion that the contrary result would follow, and that moneys received from such sources should be paid into the state treasury, weekly; for in that event, such moneys could not be regarded as incidental "fees" and would clearly constitute moneys received, for the use of the institution, from sales and rentals.

A more difficult question is suggested by your mention of receipts from dining room service and room rent in dormitories. I am, however, of the opinion, that while dormitories are a part of the educational plant and service, yet a distinct separation of such activities from the regular educational activities of the institution may be noted. I think that it is the intention of the legislature, in authorizing the the maintenance of dormitories, that the same shall be conducted upon a self-sustaining basis. That is, I do not believe that, in the contemplation of the legislature, the general revenues or educational funds of the state are to be used to pay for the maintenance of dormitories or the food supplies consumed in such dining rooms; I think, on the contrary, that it is the intention that the revenues of the dormitories and the dining rooms, themselves, shall maintain them. In this view of the case, receipts from these sources being devoted to the maintenance of the dormitory and the dining room, respectively, as such, rather than to the general use of the institution or of the state, should not be regarded as moneys received for the use of the state or of the college normal school or university, within the meaning of section 24. Of course, in this case, the question becomes even clearer if, in administration, students are charged in advance for board and room, subject to refund in the event of withdrawal before the end of the term. In either event, I am of the opinion that receipts from dining room service and room rent in dormitories should not be paid into the state treasury, weekly.

Athletic fees and receipts from class plays may be considered together. I am assuming that such receipts are for the use of some particular student activity, fostered and encouraged by the authorities of the educational institutions but not directly administered by them. In such event, even if such receipts were handled through the college or university treasuries, I would be of the opinion that they are not received for the use of the state or of the college, normal school, or university, within the meaning of section 24 of the General Code.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—APPROPRIATION FOR LIVE STOCK AND AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS MUST BE EXPENDED FOR SAME.

The Panama-Pacific International Exposition appropriation of $25,000.00, February 16, 1914, is to be expended in exhibiting at this exposition, the live stock and agricultural products of the state of Ohio, and the resources and opportunities afforded for the raising and development of the same within this state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 23, 1915.

HON. D. B. TORPY, Directing Commissioner of the Ohio Commission, The Panama-Pacific International Exposition, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of January 20th, in which you submit for my opinion thereon the following:

> "At a meeting of the Ohio commission of the Panama-Pacific international exposition, held at the office of Governor Frank B. Willis, on the 19th inst., the writer was requested to ask for your written opinion as to the proper interpretation of the following statute passed by the last general assembly of the state of Ohio at its extraordinary session—being part of the bill to make sundry appropriations.
> "'Panama-Pacific International Exposition.
> "'Exposition commissioner for the purpose of installing, maintaining and exhibiting the live stock, agricultural products, resources and opportunities of this state at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in the year 1915.....$25,000.00.'"

On May 31, 1911, the legislature passed an act "creating a commission to have charge of installing and maintaining an exhibit of the products and resources of the state of Ohio at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, and appropriating money to pay the expenses thereof." And section 1 of this act provides that:

> "The governor of the state of Ohio is hereby appointed a commissioner, to be known as the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Commissioner, for the purpose of installing, maintaining and exhibiting the products and resources of this state at an international exposition to be held in the city of San Francisco, in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, known as the Panama-Pacific International Exposition; and as such commissioner he shall have full and exclusive charge and control of said exhibits, and the maintenance and installation thereof, with power to appoint and employ deputy commissioners, and all other persons necessary for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, upon such terms and salaries as he shall deem to be fair and reasonable."

On January 28, 1914, the legislature passed another act to make further provision for the purposes outlined in the said act of May 31, 1911, section 1 of this act provides that:

"The governor is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint a special commissioner as directing commissioner for Ohio at such exposition, which directing commissioner shall have such exclusive powers and duties with regard to such exposition as the governor may confer upon him and shall receive such compensation for his services as the governor may prescribe. The governor may fill all vacancies in the position of deputy commissioner or directing commissioner and may remove from office any person appointed under this act or the act of May 31, 1912."

In section 2 of this act of January 28, 1914, the legislature made the following appropriation:

"* * * the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, for the purpose of erecting a state building in which to house and exhibit the state products, of securing complete and creditable display of the interests of the state at such international exposition and of paying the expenses and compensation, etc., (is hereby appropriated)."

On February 16, 1914, the legislature passed an act to make sundry appropriations, in which act an appropriation was made for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition as set forth in your letter.

On December 3, 1914, my predecessor, Mr. Hogan, gave you an opinion relative to this legislation, advising you that the governor as such exposition commissioner shall have full and exclusive charge and control of the installation and maintenance of all the interests in Ohio officially exhibited at the said exposition, including the power to appoint comimssioners and a directing commissioner and to fill all vacances in the position of deputy commissioner or directing commissioner and to remove from office any person appointed under the act of May 31, 1911, or the act January 28, 1914.

With this advisement I am in accord.

I further advise that there now remains for determination the question as to whether this twenty-five thousand dollar appropriation is to be used exclusively for exhibiting live stock and agricultural products at the said exposition or whether a part thereof may be used for the purpose of exhibiting interests of Ohio other than live stock and agricultural products.

In addition to the language used, the legislative intent is proper and helpful in the consideration of this question. It will be observed in the act of January 28, 1914, the legislature appropriated the sum of one hundred thousand dollars > "for the purpose of erecting a state building in which to house and exhibit state products, of securing complete and creditable display of the interests of the state at such international exposition, etc. * * *"

In this appropriation it will be seen that the legislature has not attempted to specify what particular exhibits shall be displayed as representing the interests of Ohio. In the appropriation directly under consideration the legislature did specify that under the direction of the governor or his delegated authority as hereinbefore defined. For this specific purpose, twenty-five thousand dollars have been appropriated.

> "live stock, agricultural products, resources and opportunities of this state shall be exhibited"

It is a fundamental rule of statutory construction that where particular or specific words are followed by general ones, the general are restricted in meaning to objects of a like kind with those specified, or where an enumeration of specific things is followed by some more general word or phase, such general word or phase is to be held to refer to things of the same kind. This principle of construction is known as ejusdem generis, and in my opinion applies to the language under consideration.

From a consideration of the different legislative expressions appropriate to be considered in connection with this language, I am of the opinion that this twenty-five thousand dollar appropriation is to be expended in exhibiting at this exposition the live stock and agricultural products of the state of Ohio and the resources and opportunities afforded for the raising and development of the same within this state.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF SINKING FUND TRUSTEES CANNOT BE SECRETARY OF SAID BOARD.

A member of the board of sinking fund trustees of a city cannot be selected as secretary of said board and draw salary fixed by ordinance of council for services as such secretary.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 26, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Under date of January 14th, you inquire as follows:

> "May a member of the board of sinking fund trustees of a city be selected as secretary of said board and draw the salary fixed by ordinance of council for services as such secretary?"

The statutes relative to the trustees of the sinking fund are found in section 4506, et seq. The board of sinking fund trustees of a city under section 4507, consists of four persons, electors of such city. Under section 4508, it is stipulated that said trustees shall serve without compensation.

Section 4509 provides:

> "The trustees of the sinking fund, immediately after their appointment and qualification, shall elect one of their number as president and another as vice-president, who, in the absence or disability of the president, shall perform his duties and exercise his powers, and such secretary, clerks or employes as council may provide by an ordinance which shall fix their duties, bonds and compensation. Where no clerks or secretary is authorized, the auditor of the city or clerk of the village shall act as secretary of the board."

Section 4518 provides the method by which money shall be drawn by said board of sinking fund trustees, as follows:

> "Money shall be drawn by check only, signed by the president and at least two members of the board, and attested by the secretary or clerk."

Section 4522 provides the manner in which bonds issued by the sinking fund trustees shall be signed, to wit, by the mayor and president of the board, and further, that such bonds shall be attested by the auditor or clerk of the corporation and the secretary of the board of trustees of the sinking fund.

Section 4523 provides that the trustees of the sinking fund shall be a board of tax commissioners, but since under section 4525, the city auditor is made the clerk of the board, sitting as a board of tax commissioners, said sections have no bearing upon the question.

Under section 4509, supra, it is specifically provided that the president and vice-president of the board of trustees of the sinking fund shall come from among the members of the board. There is no provision, in said section, as to whether or not the secretary may or may not be taken from among the members of the board. Consequently, there is no statutory inhibition against a member being chosen as the secretary of the board.

The provision of section 4518, that checks shall be signed by the president and at last two members of the board and attested by the secretary, requires that three members of the board, to wit, the president and two other members shall act in the drawing of money by the sinking fund trustees, and further their act shall be attested by the secretary. The attestation by the secretary is, of course, in order to check the action of the members of the board and the president in so drawing money, and it is very easy to conceive of a state of facts wherein, were the secretary a member of the board, he would be permitted to sign the checks in a dual capacity, and therefore, as it seems to me, would render the positions of secretary and member of the board incompatible, for the reason that the one is required to be a check upon the other.

A further and additional reason why the two offices are incompatible, is not only that the one may be a check upon the other, but that it would be against public policy for a member of an administrative board to hold a salaried position under the authority of such board, unless expressly authorized so to do. This matter was considered in a somewhat similar case by Hon. U. G. Denman, the then attorney general, under date of April 25, 1910. See attorney general's report for 1910, page 120. Although in the case considered by Mr. Denman, the board fixed the salary of its secretary, whereas in the case in question, said salary is fixed by ordinance of council, yet after a careful consideration of the opinion foregoing mentioned, I agree with Mr. Denman relative to the question of public policy.

I hold, therefore, that a member of the board of sinking fund trustees of a city may not be selected as secretary of the board.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TO WHOM ANTI-LOBBY LAW APPLIES.

Under the anti-lobby law, section 6256-1, General Code, any person, whether employed exclusively, or merely in connection with other duties, who promotes, defeats or opposes legislative matters in any manner, and whether he receives compensation directly or indirectly, must register with the secretary of state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 26, 1915.

HON. CHAS. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY:—I am in receipt of yours of the 22nd, requesting an opinion on the anti-lobby law, as to whether or not that law applies only to individuals who are employed exclusively to look after legislation, and whether officers of a corporation who look after legislative matters in connection with other duties are exempt.

General Code 6256-1 provides (103 O. L., p. 3):

> "Any person, firm, corporation or association, or any officer or employe of a corporation or association acting for or on behalf of such corporation or association, who or which directly or indirectly employ any person or persons, firm, corporation or association to promote, advocate, amend or oppose in any manner, any matter pending or that might legally come before the general assembly or either house thereof, or a committee of the general assembly or of either house thereof, shall within one week from the date of such employment furnish in a signed statement to the secretary of state the following information, to wit: * * *."

This law applies to individuals, whether they are employed exclusively or only in connection with other duties, to promote, advocate, amend or oppose in any manner any matter pending or that might legally come before the general assembly or either house thereof, or a committee of the general assembly or of either house thereof, and whether such individual receives pay directly or indirectly.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MUNICIPALITIES—CITY FIREMEN—PREMIUMS FOR INSURANCE.

Municipalities may not expend public funds in payment of premiums for accident insurance for city firemen.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 26, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices—Department of Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of the 20th, in which you submit for my opinion thereon the following inquiry:

> "May the public funds of a city be legally expended in payment of the premium upon accident insurance policies carried in favor of members of the fire department, if said city does not maintain a pension fund for such purpose? Said firemen are now protected by the workmen's compensation law, and the question is whether or not additional insurance may be carried at the expense of public funds."

The answer to this question depends upon whether or not the payment of premiums upon such accident insurance policies is for a municipal purpose, and whether or not there has been specific provision made for the insurance of firemen. Subsection 1 of section 14 of the employers' liability act provides:

> "Every person in the service of the state, or of any county, city township, incorporated village or school district therein, including regular members of lawfully constituted police and fire departments of cities and villages, under any appointment or contract of hire, express or implied, oral or written, except any official of the state, or of any county, city township, incorporated village or school district therein. Provided that nothing in this act shall apply to policemen or firemen in cities where policemen's and firemen's pension funds are now or hereafter may be established and maintained by municipal authority under existing laws."

Where municipalities do not maintain policemen's and firemen's pension funds, said policemen and firemen are now protected by the said workmen's compensation law, and this protection is made compulsory upon the city or village employing such firemen or policemen. I do not believe that the payment of a premium upon an accident insurance policy taken out for the benefit of a fireman or a policeman for his protection against injury which he may receive while acting within the scope of his employment and for his sole benefit is an expenditure of public funds authorized by law. If such might be construed to be a municipal purpose in the interest of firemen, it would be in equally close analogy, to include the policemen and many other municipal employes.

Your question might well be answered in the negative for the reasons given in the absence of a workmen's compensation law applicable to firemen. In the absence of regularly established policemen's and firemen's pension fund, the municipality must, under the act of the legislature, maintain liability insurance, which is a municipal purpose within the letter of the law.

I am therefore of the opinion that a municipality in Ohio has no authority to carry additional insurance in favor of members of its fire department, paying the premium therefor out of the public funds.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General

BALLOTS OPENED IN ELECTION CONTEST—IRREGULARITIES MUST BE PRIMA FACIE IN PARTICULAR PRECINCT.

Under section 5090-1, General Code, ballots may be opened only where an inspection of the same would tend to prove or disprove the grounds of the contest.

Before the ballots of any precinct may be opened, irregularities must be shown prima facie to have taken place in the particular precinct. The showing of irregularities in one precinct will not authorize the opening of ballots of other precincts where no irregularity is shown.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 26, 1915.

HON. F. E. WHITTEMORE, Chairman House Committee on Contested Elections, House of Representatives, City.

DEAR SIR:—In response to your request of even date for an opinion interpreting that part of section 5090-1, General Code, (103 O. L. 265), reading:

> "* * * Provided that if any contest of election shall be pending, at the expiration of said time the said ballots shall not be destroyed until such contest is finally determined. In all cases of contested elections, the parties contesting the same shall have the right to have said ballots opened and to have all errors in counting corrected by the court or body trying such contest, but such ballots shall be opened only in open court or in open session of such body and in the presence of the officers having the custody thereof."

And your specific questions:

> "(a) When, under that section, may the ballots be opened?
> "(b) Must there be first a prima facie showing a fraud?"

The clear purpose of the above quoted portion of section 5090-1 is to correct errors. Ballots may be opened only when an inspection of the same would tend to prove or disprove the grounds of the contest.

I am of the opinion that the showing of fraud in an election will not authorize the opening of the ballots unless the fraud charged is such as that an examination of the ballots themselves might tend to confirm or disprove the charge. To illustrate, if the evidence showed conclusively that votes had been bought, or that unqualified persons had voted at the election, or that any other instances of fraud had been committed outside of the election booths, the opening of the ballots would throw no light upon such matters, and such evidence, by itself, would not authorize the opening of the ballots.

On the other hand, if the evidence showed prima facie that there were irregularities in the receipt of ballots by the election officers, or in the counting of the ballots by said election officers, and these irregularities were such as an inspection of the ballots themselves might tend to prove or disprove, then for the purpose of correcting errors in the count, the ballots might be opened.

To illustrate, section 5083, General Code, provides:

> "One of the ballots shall then be taken out of the ballot box by one of the judges and shall forthwith be inspected by all the judges and inspectors. If the judges all agree as to how the ballot shall be counted, one of them shall place it where it can readily be seen by the other judges and by the inspectors, and shall read aloud distinctly the name of the candidates voted for and the answers to any questions that may have been submitted, and the clerks shall forthwith tally the same. In the event that the judges do not agree as to how any part of the ballot shall be counted, such ballot shall not be counted but shall be placed in an envelope provided for the purpose. The same method shall be observed in respect to all the ballots until all the ballots shall have been taken from the ballot boxes."

If the evidence were to show that instead of following the statutory method of tallying the judges had allowed all of the ballots to be taken out of the boxes and separated into straight and scratched tickets, and only two judges had inspected and counted the straight ballots while the other two judges had only inspected and counted the scratched ballots; or where there were several ballot boxes and instead of complying with the statutory method the judges had taken the ballots out of the respective boxes and one judge had inspected and counted the partisan ballots, another judge had inspected and counted the constitutional amendment ballots, another judge had inspected and counted the non-partisan judicial ballots; or that the clerks had not forthwith tallied the votes as provided in section 5083; in fact, any substantial departure from the method of opening the ballot boxes and tallying the ballots, as provided in said section 5083, then there would be sufficient authority for opening the ballots of any precinct where such irregularities had obtained.

But the showing of such irregularities in one precinct would not authorize the opening of the ballots of any other precinct in which no such irregularities had been shown, at least prima facie.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

NOTICE OF ELECTION MUST BE PUBLISHED BY DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS OF ELECTION.

Section 5639-1, General Code, requires notice of election to be published by the deputy state supervisors of elections of the county in which the election is to be held.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 26, 1915.

HON. JOE T. DOAN, Prosecuting Attorney, Wilmington, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter under date of January 25, 1915, you submit for opinion the following:

"Under the provisions of section 5639-1 of the General Code of Ohio, I desire to know whether the fifteen days' notice provided therein should be given by the deputy state supervisor of elections or whether it should be given by the county commissioners or some other official."

Under section 5638, General Code, the county commissioners are authorized to levy a tax and appropriate money, or issue bonds for certain purposes therein specified, but must first submit to the voters of the county the question as to the policy of making such expenditure.

Section 5639-1 of the General Code, provides as follows:

"When the board of county commissioners desires to submit such question to the voters of the county, it shall pass and enter upon its minutes a resolution declaring the necessity of such expenditure, fixing the amount of bonds to be issued, if any, in connection therewith, and fixing the date upon which the question of making any such expenditure shall be so submitted, and shall cause a copy of such resolution to be certified to the deputy state supervisors of elections of the county; and thereupon the deputy state supervisor shall prepare the ballot and make other necessary arrangements for the submission of the question to the voters of the county at the time fixed in such resolution.

"The election shall be held at the regular places for voting in such county and shall be conducted, canvassed, and certified in the manner, except as otherwise provided by law, as for the election of county officers. Fifteen days' notice of the submission of any such question shall be given the deputy state supervisors by publication in at least two newspapers of opposite politics having a general circulation in said county, which notice shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks, and shall state the amount of such proposed expenditure, the amount of the bonds, if any, to be issued in connection therewith, the purpose for which such expenditure is to be made, and the time of holding such election."

That part of this section particularly applicable to your question submitted being as follows:

"Fifteen days' notice of the submission of any such question shall be given the deputy state supervisors by publication in at least two newspapers of opposite politics having a general circulation in said county."

Bearing in mind that the primary purpose of elections is the determination of the sense of the electorate upon such propositions as may be properly submitted thereto, and in addition, the general policy of the statutes of this state requiring notice of elections to be given to the electorate, will aid materially in a proper construction of the above quoted provision of the statute.

It is clearly evident that the word "by" was inadvertently omitted after the word "given" in the 5th line of the second paragraph of said section as printed in the General Code of Ohio. This conclusion we derive from a consideration of the previous provisions of said section, which require that the county commissioners shall cause a copy of the resolution to be certified to the deputy state supervisors of the county, thus specifically providing ample notice to the deputy state supervisors of elections, and in further consideration, that without such interpretation of this particular provision, no notice to the electorate is elsewhere provided in case of such election, and the manifest purpose of this notice is, to my mind, to apprise the electorate of the holding of such election. This position is generally sustained by the authorities of this state, and elsewhere.

The supreme court of Minnesota, in the case of State v. County Commissioners, lays down the following rule:

"In cases of imperfectly drawn statutes, the court, rather than pronounce them unconstitutional and void, will draw inferences from the evident intent of the legislature, as gathered from the whole statute, supplying by implication technical inaccuracies in expression and obviously unintentional omission from the necessity of making them operative and effectual as to specific things which are included in the broad and comprehensive terms and purposes thereof; and such inferences and implications are as much a part of the statute as what is distinctly expressed therein."

This rule is fully sustained by the supreme court of this state in cases of Slingluff v. Weaver, 66 O. S., 621;

Sawyer v. State, 45 O. S., 343;
and also by the supreme court of the state of New Jersy, in the case of Inhabitants of the County of Bergen v. Mayor, 64 N. J. Law, 286;
See also Cyc. 1113 (A. & E. Enc. 26, p. 653).

I am therefore of the opinion that the notice should be published by the deputy state supervisors of elections in the manner and for the time prescribed in said section 5639-1.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

A PERSON WHO PREVENTS VETERINARIANS FROM INSPECTING ANIMALS MAY BE LIABLE TO PROVISIONS OF SECTION 1119, GENERAL CODE, IF AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION HAS AN ESTABLISHED RULE—WHEN SECTION 1121, GENERAL CODE IS NOT APPLICABLE.

A person who prevents, by threats or otherwise, an inspection of animals by veterinarians or other persons duly appointed for such purpose by the agricultural commission of this state, under the provisions of the act of April 15, 1915, 103 O. L., 304, may be liable to payment of the forfeit as provided in section 41 of said act, section 1119, General Code, only when in violation of a duly established rule of such commission, with which he had been notified to comply, or had notice to respect.

Section 43 of the act of April 15, 1913, 103 O. L., 304, General Code, 1121, provides a penalty only for a violation of the statutory provisions of said act, relating to the agricultural commission, and is therefore not applicable to violation of the rules and regulations of such commission.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 27, 1915.

The Agricultural Commission, Division of Agriculture, J. W. FLEMING, Chief Assistant, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have a communication from Mr. Paul Fisher, state veterinarian, in which it is stated:

"In the conduct of foot and mouth eradication work during the past few weeks, inspectors of the agricultural commission and those of the federal government regularly commissioned by this department, have been prevented by threats and otherwise from entering upon premises for the purpose of making necessary inspections as provided by law. This has been particularly frequent in Seneca county."

and therein submitting for an opinion the following question.

> "Will you advise me or Mr. Russell M. Knepper, prosecuting attorney, of Seneca county who makes the request through me, under what section of the laws of Ohio the agricultural commission is empowered to bring action against persons resisting inspectors?"

Without quoting or extended discussion of the same, suffice it to say that by sections 31, 20, 33 and 30 of amended senate bill 178 (103 O. L., 304), the agricultural commission is fully authorized to appoint in case of outbreak of disease among animals, if deemed advisable, additional veterinarians or other persons for special work in connection with its duties, to adopt rules and regulations, to enter a building, railway car, boat or other conveyance, and premises public or private, and may use all proper means in the prevention of the spread of dangerously infectious and contagious disease among domestic animals and provide for the extermination of such disease. While it is not by you so stated, I assume that the inspectors of the agricultural commission, as referred to by you, are all persons who have been duly appointed in accordance with the provisions of section 31 of said act.

Section 41 of this act is as follows:

> "A person, firm or corporation who fails to comply with the rules of the agricultural commission or to respect its lawful regulations, when notified so to do, shall forfeit and pay not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars."

Providing for the collection of a forfeiture by civil action, is in its nature, quasi criminal, and therefore subject to the rule of strict construction.

> White v. Woodward, 44 O. S., 347.
> Shewry v. Shewry, 6. N. P. (n. s.), 238.

Chief Justice Marshall, in the case of United States v. Willberger, 5 Wheaton, 76, says:

> "To determine that a case is within the intention of a statute, its language must authorize us to say so. It would be dangerous, indeed, to carry the principle, that a case which is within the reason or mischief of a statute, is within its provisions, so far as to punish a crime not enumerated in the statute, because it is of equal atrocity, or of kindred character, with those which are enumerated."

In the case of State v. Meyers, 56 O. S., 350, the court says:

> "A statute defining a crime cannot be extended by construction to persons or things not within its descriptive terms, though they may appear to be within the reason and spirit of the statute. Persons cannot be made subject to such statute by implication. Only those transactions are included in them which are within both their spirit and letter; and all doubts in the interpretation of such statutes are to be resolved in favor of the accused."

It will therefore be essential to a recovery under this section, that the defendant be brought clearly within the terms and spirit of this section. That is to say, a prevention of an inspection, as referred to in your question, must be shown to be either a noncompliance with or in disrespect of some lawful rule or regulation duly established by the agricultural commission, with which the person who has prevented such inspection has been properly notified to comply or to respect.

That part of section 43 of the act herein referred to, insofar as applicable to the question, is as follows:

> "Whoever violates any provision herein relating to the agricultural commission, for the violation of which no penalty has been provided, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars."

This provision is general in its terms and broad in its scope, and it may be that the legislature was attempting to provide a penalty for just such cases as the one under consideration. But this being a criminal statute, it is to be construed strictly and we are bound by the express terms of the statute confining its operation to "provisions herein (of this act) relating to the agricultural commission."

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the prevention of an inspection of animals under the circumstances and conditions stated by you, may not be punishable under the provisions of this latter section.

Aside from the remedy provided by section 41 of this act above referred to, I am unable to advise you of any section of law under which you can maintain an action against such persons resisting an inspection, unless such resistance constitutes the offense of assault or assault and battery as defined by section 12433 of the General Code.

Where such interference is substantial and continued, injunction would lie in a court of equity (22 cyc., 775).

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

THE SOUTHERN SETTLEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION, NOT SUBJECT TO THE "BLUE SKY" LAW.

The Southern settlement and development organization, chartered by special act of the legislature of the state of Maryland, which does not in Ohio sell, offer for sale, or otherwise deal in real estate, is not subject to the provisions and regulations of the "Blue Sky" law of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 27, 1915.

MR. GEORGE WALTERS, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of January 22nd asking my opinion as to whether the Southern settlement and development organization, chartered by special act of Maryland legislature, is subject to the regulations of the blue sky law; together with enclosed copy of letter from Clement S. Ucker, assistant general manager of the Southern settlement and development organization to the attorney general of the state of Ohio; also pamphlets referred to in said enclosed letter as exhibits A and B.

As my opinion is based very largely upon the information contained in the letter of Mr. C. L. Ucker, directed to the attorney general, I am quoting it in full:

SOUTHERN SETTLEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION GENERAL OFFICES—CONTINENTAL BUILDING.

BALTIMORE, MD., January 18, 1915.

The Honorable Attorney General, State of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

"SIR:—The Southern settlement and development organization having its principal office at Baltimore, Md., submits for consideration the provisions of its charter and requests your opinion as to whether its operations in the state of Ohio, without complying with the provisions of an act of the Ohio legislature, known and referred to as the "blue sky law," would be in violation of the Ohio statutes.

"The Southern settlement and development organization is chartered by a special act of the Maryland legislature. The charter is set forth on page 47 et seq., of the pamphlet entitled 'Southern settlement and development organization,' copy of which is hereto attached and marked 'exhibit A.' Attention is also invited to a copy of the appropriation made by the legislature of Maryland in support of the organization set forth on page 53 of the same pamphlet. No change has ever been made in this charter by subsequent re-enactment of the Maryland legislature.

"A second pamphlet entitled 'Southern settlement and development organization, meeting of executive committee, Baltimore, March 6, 1913,' marked 'exhibit B,' is also attached. These pamphlets contain the minutes and proceedings leading up to the application of the state of Maryland for the charter granted and referred to above. Particular attention is invited to that provision of the charter appearing in section 4, reading: 'And be it further enacted, that it shall not be one of the objects of said organization to make money for the said organization or the members thereof; but the said organization may collect and receive money in any lawful manner and hold property of any kind, real, personal, or mixed, for the purposes for which said organization is chartered.'

"The financial support of the organization from the date of its inception to the time of presenting this application has been derived solely and exclusively from the appropriations made by the legislature of the state of Maryland and fixed contributions each year from those railroad corporations operating in the territory south of the south line of Pennsylvania and the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river. The organization has in practical effect been regarded as a clearing house for the industrial and land operations of the several railroad corporations operating within the territory referred to. Its activities are divided into four departments, namely: colonization, agriculture, publicity, commerce and industry. In practice it has rigidly adhered to the policy that it will accept no direct compensation for its services, that it will own no land, issue no stock, make absolutely no profit, rely entirely upon contributions, as outlined above, for its support, and so comport itself as to be truly a quasi-public institution.

"Attention is invited to a pamphlet apparently issued by the bureau of banks and banking of the Ohio state government, entitled 'blue sky law' and reference is had to page 9 thereof to that section reading:

"'This section shall apply where the title to such property is held in the name of a trustee for any corporation or for any such described person or company, but it shall not be deemed to prohibit the disposal of an owner of his own property, in good faith and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act, where the transaction is not one of repeated transactions of a similar nature, performed as a part of the business of dealing in real estate; nor shall it be deemed to prohibit a railroad company having an immigration bureau or department for advertising either directly or through its accredited representatives, the fact that there are along its route lands for colonization or sale; provided that such advertising be not of specific tracts of real estate, and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act.'

"Sometime since certain representatives of an organization existing amongst the street car employes of one of the leading cities of the state of Ohio got into communication with this organization and requested its services to the end that they might be referred to a suitable location somewhere in the South where they might obtain title to an individual area of forty acres each on the colony plan. This matter was taken up, several conferences had and arrangements made to the end that a representative of this organization should present to them in the form of a streoptican lecture the advantages of certain selected areas of southern land, and about this time attention was invited to the existing statutes in the state of Ohio, and all further efforts along these lines were held in abeyance until the matter could be presented to you through the state bureau of banks and banking for your decision as to whether the activities of this organization came within the purview of the Ohio laws and whether it would be necessary that this organization comply with the provisions of the Ohio laws.

"In the opinion of the officials of this organization its activities should come within the purview of the exceptions laid down in the section referred to on page 9 of the pamphlet entitled 'blue sky law,' it being essentially and so regarded as a clearing house for the activities of the land and industrial departments of the southern railroads. Let it be borne in mind that this organization has no land to sell, that it consummates no sale, that it operates without profit, that its services are entirely gratuitous that its principal object is to advance the agricultural and industrial betterment of the territory in which it operates."

Very respectfully yours,

(Signed) CLEMENT S. UCKER,
Acting General Manager.

Sections 2 and 4 of the proposed charter of the Southern settlement and development organization as set forth in the pamphlet marked "exhibit A," commencing on page 47, are as follows:

"Section 2. And be it further enacted, That the purposes for which this corporation is formed are:

"1. To make a thorough and scientific study of the resources and possibilities of the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, N. Carolina, Oklahoma, S. Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia, and the best practical methods of developing the same.

"2. To direct public attention, both in this and in other countries to the resources and possibilities of said states, and more especially to the immense area of unimproved land therein.

"3. To attract into said states capitalists, investors and desirable immigrants, and more especially experienced farmers and agricultural laborers.

"4. To encourage by every practical means the establishing in the several states named in the south, by said states or otherwise, bureaus of agriculture and immigration bureaus for the purpose of disseminating reliable information regarding the resources and possibilities of said states.

"5. To establish and maintain, so far as practical, a co-operation between the United States government, the government of the several states named, the railroad and transportation companies, commercial bodies, real estate men, and members of the said Southern settlement and development organization, in placing the southern country properly before the people of the world.

"6. To secure from the United States government proper port facilities at Baltimore and the South Atlantic and gulf ports for the handling of foreign immigration.

"7. To establish the principal office of the organization, headquarters or bureau in the city of Baltimore, Maryland, with as many branches thereof, and in such cities as the executive committee may determine.

"Section 4. And be it further enacted, That it shall not be one of the objects of the incorporation of said organization to make money for the said organization or the members thereof; but the said organization may collect and receive money in any lawful manner and hold property of any kind, real, personal or mixed, for the purposes for which said organization is chartered."

Section 6373-15 of the General Code of Ohio, being a part of what is known as the "blue sky law" is as follows:

"No person or company, other than a dealer licensed as hereinbefore provided, shall within this state, in repeated or successive transactions, deal in real estate not located in Ohio; and unless so licensed and the 'commissioner' shall issue his certificate as provided in the following section, and, prior to such issuance, there shall, together with a filing fee of ten dollars, be filed with the 'commissioner' an application for such certificate and a written statement of the dealer containing a pertinent description of the real estate the disposal of all or a part of which is sought to be made, the nature and source of title of the owner thereto, and the amount or value and the nature of the consideration paid or allowed by him therefor, it shall, within this state, be unlawful:

"(a) For any corporation or any person, association or copartnership doing business under any name other than the name or names of such person or of all the members of such association or copartnership to dispose or offer to dispose of any real estate not located in Ohio.

"(b) For any person or company to sell or offer for sale any such real estate, the owner of which is, or is represented to the purchaser to be, a corporation, or any person or company of the character described in the foregoing paragraph, where such corporation, person or company is engaged in the business of dealing in real estate.

"This section shall apply where the title to such property is held in the name of a trustee for any corporation or for any such described person or company; but it shall not be deemed to prohibit the disposal by an owner of his own property, in good faith and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act, where the transaction is not one of repeated transactions of a similar nature, performed as a part of the business of dealing in real estate; nor shall it be deemed to prohibit a railroad company having an immigration bureau or department from advertising either directly or through accredited representatives the fact that there are along its route lands for colonization or sale; provided that such advertising is not of specific tracts of real estate, and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act."

The above section was enacted for the purpose of preventing fraud in the sale of real estate located out of the state, and with that end in view it requires, with certain exceptions therein contained, all persons and companies to secure a license from the state of Ohio before dealing in, selling or offering for sale in Ohio, real estate not located within the state. As a preliminary to securing such a license, an applicant therefor must submit to certain inspection provided in the statutes and pay the filing and license fees mentioned in the statutes.

The provisions of the statute apply only to persons, companies, etc., dealing in, selling or offering for sale, real estate not located in Ohio. Neither in the charter of the Southern settlement and development company nor in the letter of explanation above quoted does it appear that said organization has any power to sell, offer for sale, or otherwise deal in real estate, or that it has any intention of dealing in or selling real estate. On the contrary, in the last paragraph of the letter to the attorney general, above quoted, I find this language:

"Let it be borne in mind that this organization has no land to sell, that it consummates no sale, that it operates without profit, that its services are entirely gratuitous, that its principal object is to advance agricultural and industrial betterment of the territory in which it operates."

I am therefore of the opinion that the provisions of the blue sky law, relative to dealers in real estate not located in Ohio, do not apply to a situation like that set forth in the letter of inquiry, and that it is not necessary for the Southern settlement and development organization to secure a license from the superintendent of banks of the state of Ohio.

It should be understood that my opinion on this matter is based very largely upon the representations of the letter herein quoted, and that it applies only to the situation as therein set forth.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ANNUAL REPORT OF HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT MUST BE PRINTED BY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC PRINTING—SECTION 1183, G. C., APPLIES TO OTHER PUBLICATIONS.

The annual report of the state highway department should pass through the department of public printing, and the expense of the same should be paid for out of the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing.

Section 1183, G. C., was not intended by the legislature to apply to the printing of the annual report of the state highway commissioner and is merely permissive as to the preparation, publication and distribution of such other bulletins and reports as the said highway commissioner may deem proper.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 27, 1915.

HON. FRANK HARPER, Supervisor of Public Printing, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your request of January 22, 1915, inquiring as to whether the annual report of the state highway department is to pass through the department of public printing and the expense of the same to be paid for out of the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing, or, whether under section 1183 of the General Code of Ohio, the annual report of the state highway department is to be published by said department and paid for out of the funds of the state highway department.

Upon an examination of the statutes, I am of the opinion that the annual report of the state highway department should pass through the department of public printing and that the expense of the same should be paid for out of the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing.

The annual report of the state highway commissioner to the governor is required by section 1231 of the General Code. By section 2265 of the General Code, it is required that the governor shall cause this report, among others, to be printed and made a part of the executive documents, the report not being one of those required by section 2274 of the General Code, to be bound in muslin. By section 748 of the General Code, it is provided that the printing for the executive documents shall be ordered through the supervisor of public printing.

I am therefore of the opinion that section 1183 of the General Code, providing among other things, that the state highway commissioner "may prepare and publish, and distribute bulletins and reports," was not intended to repeal the provisions of law above referred to as to the publication of the annual report of the state highway commissioner, and is merely permissive as to the preparation, publication and distribution of such other bulletins and reports as the state highway commission may deem proper.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CINCINNATI MUNICIPAL COURT—FORFEITED RECOGNIZANCES SHALL BE COLLECTED AND PAID INTO THE COUNTY TREASURY.

Under the Cincinnati municipal court law, forfeited recognizances thereunder shall be collected by the prosecuting attorney and paid into the county treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 27, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Department of Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—On January 20th you submitted to me for my written opinion thereon the following inquiry:

> "Under the Cincinnati municipal court law what should be the disposition of forfeited recognizances? If same are required to be certified to the county auditor, and from thence to the prosecuting attorney for collection, and is made by said prosecuting attorney, should the moneys collected be returned to the municipal court or be paid into the county treasury?"

Section 13 of the act creating the Cincinnati municipal court (103 O. L., 283), provides that:

> "In all criminal cases and proceedings the practice and procedure and mode of bringing and conducting prosecutions for offenses, and the powers of the court in relation thereto, shall be the same as those which are now or may hereafter be, possessed by police courts in municipalities unless otherwise provided herein."

No other provision has been made in this act whereby the practice prevailing in municipal police courts has been changed. Forms of recognizances are found under sections 13552 and 13553 of the General Code, and are made payable to the state of Ohio.

Section 13546 of the General Code provides that clerks of police courts shall return forthwith to the county auditor of their respective counties all forfeited recognizances in criminal cases: and under section 13547 of the General Code, the county auditor shall make a record thereof and deliver the same to the prosecuting attorney for collection; and the prosecuting attorney under section 13548 of the General Code shall prosecute the forfeited recognizances by him received, for the penalty thereof. Such penalty, when recovered by the prosecuting attorney, shall be paid into the county treasury by the prosecuting attorney under authority of sections 289 and 2926 of the General Code.

It, therefore, appears that the moneys collected on forfeited recognizances under the Cincinnati municipal court law should be paid into the county treasury.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

STATE NOT LEGALLY LIABLE TO PAY NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY FOR TAXES PAID IN EXCESS OF AMOUNT REQUIRED BY LAW, BUT IS MORALLY BOUND.

There is no legal liability on the part of the state of Ohio to pay to the New York Life Insurance Company, $13,958.81, which said company was required by the superintendent of insurance to pay into the treasury of the state during the years 1901 to 1907, both inclusive, as taxes in excess of the amount required by law, but payment may be made by the state as a moral obligation, the claim of said company, subject to verification as to amount.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 27, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Capitol.

MY DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 20, 1915, you requested my opinion as to the validity of the claim of the New York Life Insurance Company against the state of Ohio for $13,958.81, which amount the company asserts it was unlawfully compelled to pay to the state by the superintendent of insurance in the years 1901 to 1907, both inclusive. Attached to your letter is a communication to you from Mr. H. B. Arnold, an attorney of Columbus; also a history of the case as presented by the insurance company.

I have investigated the facts presented in the claim and I find that the history of the case as presented is correct, except that I have been unable to verify the amount of the claim submitted, as the records of the superintendent of insurance for that period were not so kept as to reveal the amount which the company paid in excess of the amount which it was under legal obligation to pay.

The facts revealed by my investigation are as follows: section 2745, Revised Statutes, as amended February 29, 1902, provided that foreign insurance companies should pay a tax of 2½ per cent. on "the gross amount of premiums received by it in the state during the preceding calendar year." Under this section superintendent of insurance ruled that foreign insurance companies should pay this 2½ per cent. tax upon the gross amount of premiums received by the company from business done in the state of Ohio, whereas the company contended that the law required them to pay 2½ per cent. tax only upon the gross amount of premiums actually paid to the company at its agencies in the state.

As it was necessary for foreign insurance companies to secure from the superintendent of insurance a license to do business in this state, and the superintendent of insurance served notice upon all the companies that unless payment was made in accordance with his interpretation of the law such license would be withheld, the insurance companies were practically forced to accept his interpretation of the law, and paid into the state treasury according to that interpretation during the years above mentioned.

In the meantime, a test case was brought by the attorney general upon the request of the superintendent of insurance to determine the correct interpretation of this law, which was finally reached and decided by the supreme court on January 26, 1909, 79 Ohio State Reports, 275. By this decision of the supreme court the ruling of the superintendent of insurance was held to be without authority, and that the law as in effect during the said years required foreign insurance companies to pay such tax of 2½ per cent. only upon such premiums as were paid at their agencies in the state.

As a result of this decision of the supreme court, the state insurance department was in a position of having forced foreign insurance companies to pay taxes in excess of the amount authorized by law. The matter was brought to the attention of the legislature, and an apparent attempt was made to rectify the mistake in a law contained in volume 100, Laws of Ohio, page 166. The provisions of this law, however, were so vague and indefinite that the attorney general held it was in conflict with the Constitution of Ohio, and nothing was ever done under its terms.

In 1911 (volume 102, Laws of Ohio, 369), the general assembly refunded to four insurance companies—The Equitable Life Insurance Society, The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, The Mutual Life Insurance Company, and the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company, the respective amounts which they had been unlawfully required to pay to the insurance department.

The only difference between the claims of these companies which have been paid and the claim of the New York Life Insurance Company, is that the four companies that have been reimbursed, paid under protest to the superintendent of insurance and the New York Life Insurance Company paid without formal protest, at least so far as the record shows.

From a legal standpoint, I am of the opinion that there is no liability upon the state of Ohio to pay this claim of the New York Life Insurance Company for the reason that the state of Ohio cannot be sued. From a moral standpoint, however, the claim should be paid, as the superintendent of insurance had no legal right to collect the money, and the company was virtually forced to make payment under the penalty of losing its license, and the mere fact that the four insurance companies which have been reimbursed, paid under formal protest, ought not in all good conscience have any bearing on the matter, as all of the companies were in exactly the same situation and all paid on the same basis. Subject to a verification of the amount thereof, the claim presented by the New York Life Insurance Company should be paid.

Respectfully yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

GOVERNOR MAY USE MILITIA TO PREVENT A PRIZE FIGHT—ATTORNEY GENERAL MAY BE DIRECTED TO INSTITUTE NECESSARY PROCEEDINGS.

The governor, as commander-in-chief of the militia, may, under section 5316, G. C., use the militia to prevent a prize fight.

The governor may, under section 333, G. C., direct the attorney general to take necessary proceedings in the name of the state to prevent a prize fight.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 29, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 28, 1915, which is as follows:

"Subject. Contemplated boxing exhibition or prize fight in Cincinnati.

"Your immediate attention and written opinion is desired on the following situation:

"A telegram has just been received which is hereto attached.

The same matter from a military standpoint has come to the attention of the adjutant general; that situation is made known to you by the attached files from this office.

"It is contended unofficially by other persons that the matter set out as facts in these exhibits are not the true facts, it being claimed that the exhibition proposed is not a prize fight, but a boxing exhibition contemplated by section 12803, General Code.

"The information desired is just what authority the governor of Ohio or the governor of Ohio as commander-in-chief of the Ohio national guard has in the premises for interference or action toward stopping the contemplated exhibition."

Answering first as to the authority of the governor as commander-in-chief of the national guard:

Article 2, section 10, of the Constitution provides:

"He (the governor) shall be commander-in-chief of the militia and naval forces of the state, except when they shall be called into the service of the United States."

Section 5316 of the General Code provides.

"When there is a tumult, riot, mob or body of men acting together with intent to commit a felony, or to do or offer violence to person or property, or by force and violence to break or resist the laws of the state, or there is reasonable apprehension thereof, the commander-in-chief, the sheriff of the county, the mayor of a municipal corporation therein, or a judge of any court of the state or United States, may issue a call to the commanding officer of any regiment, battalion, company, troop or battery, to order his command of part thereof, describing it, to be and appear, at a time and place therein specified, to act in aid of the civil authority."

Under the foregoing provision of constitution and section of the General Code quoted, I am of the opinion that, if you are satisfied that a prize fight is about to take place, you have the authority to use the power above referred to.

As to your authority as governor of Ohio:

Section 333 of the General Code provides:

"* * * When required by the governor * * * he (the attorney general) shall appear for the state in any court or tribunal in a cause in which the state is a party or in which the state is directly interested."

Under this section of the Code, you have the right to direct the attorney general to take such legal action as may be necessary to prevent this proposed prize fight, if you are satisfied that it is to be a prize fight.

I call your attention to the case of The State of Ohio ex rel J. M. Sheets, attorney general, v. William N. Hobart, et al., 8th Ohio nisi prius, page 246, in which the law upon the subject of your request for an opinion is thoroughly discussed. (The opinion is too long for quotation here.)

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

TWO VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICTS MAY NOT UNITE UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 4736, G. C.

The county board of education may not, under section 4736, G. C., 104 O. L., 133, unite two village school districts into one single village district. Section 4682-1 and 4683, G. C., control in such cases.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 29, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent Department of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 19, in which you request my opinion upon the following state of facts:

> "Baltimore, Fairfield county, and Basil, Fairfield county, are contiguous village school districts. Would section 4736 or any other section of law permit the boards of education of these two villages to join as one school district?"

In order to answer your question, a consideration of sections 4679, 4682-1 and 4683 of the General Code, as amended in 104 O. L., page 133, are necessary, in addition to section 4736 to which you refer in your letter. These sections are as follows:

> "Section 4679. The school districts of the state shall be styled, respectively, city school districts, village school districts, rural school districts and county school districts.
> "Section 4682-1. A village school district containing a population of less than fifteen hundred may vote at any general or special election to dissolve and join any contiguous rural district. After approval by the county board such proposition shall be submitted to the electors by the village boards of education on the petition of one-fourth of the electors of such village school district or the village board may submit the proposition on its own motion and the result shall be determined by a majority vote of such electors.
> "Section 4683. When a village school district is dissolved, the territory formerly constituting such village district shall become a part of the contiguous rural district which it votes to join in accordance with section 4682-1, and all school property shall pass to and become vested in the board of education of such rural school district.
> "Section 4736. The county board of education shall as soon as possible after organizing make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the school according to topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at any regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. A map designating such changes shall be entered on the records of the board and a copy of the resolution and map shall be filed with the county auditor. In changing boundary lines the board may proceed without regard to township lines and shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation. In no case shall any rural district be created containing less than fifteen square miles. In changing boundary lines and other work of a like nature, the county board shall ask the assistance of the county surveyor and the latter is hereby required to give the services of his office at the formal request of the county board."

In the absence of any information upon the subject, I assume that both Basil and Baltimore are villages having a population of less than 1,500. If such be the case, then either or both of said village districts may, as provided in section 4682-1, at a special or general election, vote to dissolve such village district. If the vote upon the question of dissolution is in the affirmative, then the village district will be joined to a contiguous rural district and not to a contiguous village district. Before such votes shall be taken, however, the proposition for this dissolution of the village district and union with a rural district, must be submitted to the county board of education for its approval. You will notice that the statutes above referred to very clearly state that when a village district is dissolved, it shall be joined to a contiguous rural district and not to a contiguous village district.

Consideration of section 4736 does not, in my opinion, permit a consolidation of two village districts into a single village district. I quote that portion of this section applicable, which is as follows:

> "The county board of education shall, as soon as possible after organizing, make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the schools according to topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at any regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. * * *"

In my opinion the effect of the above quoted portion of section 4736 merely authorizes the county board of education to transfer a part of one village or rural district to another village or rural district, and does not permit of the consolidation of two village districts. Such transfer is only authorized in order that the schools may be arranged "according to topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils."

I am, therefore, of the opinion, and so advise you, that the Baltimore and Basil school districts may not, under section 4736, nor under any other sections of the General Code, unite as one village school district.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION—MUST DETERMINE MERIT AND FITNESS OF SUPERINTENDENT AND MATRON OF COUNTY CHILDREN'S HOME.

Whether it is practicable to determine merit and fitness of a superintendent and matron of a county children's home, is a question for the civil service commission. When provisional appointment may be made.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 29, 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am addressing to you the following opinion which was requested by Hon. George W. Porter, prosecuting attorney of Darke county, Ohio, as follows:

"I would like to have your opinion as to whether or not the superintendent of the county children's home is employed under the civil service law?

"The superintendent of our county children's home has tendered his resignation to take effect March 1. The board is of the opinion that it would be impossible to hold an examination under the civil service law for application to this position, in time to make an appointment under this law before his resignation took effect. This being the case, would it be permissible for the board to appoint a person temporarily to fill the position until a civil service examination could be held? I understand that there is some doubt as to whether this is a civil service position, that Attorney General Hogan ruled that this position did not come under civil service. I am not sure about this."

In the letter when he states "the board is of the opinion that it will be impossible to hold an examination, etc.," I assume that he is referring to the board of trustees of the children's home, rather than to the civil service commission.

If it be a fact that the civil service commission has no one upon its eligible list to certify and it finds that it cannot hold an examination in time to make the proper certification before the resignation of the present superintendent takes effect, then and in that event the board of trustees might make a provisional appointment under subsection 1 of section 14 (G. C. 486-14), which provides as follows:

"Whenever there are urgent reasons for filling a vacancy in any position in the competitive class and the commission is unable to certify to the appointing officer upon requisition by the latter a list of persons eligible for appointment after a competitive examination, the appointing officer may nominate a person to the commission for noncompetitive examination, and if such nominee shall be certified by the said commission as qualified after such noncompetitive examination, he may be appointed provisionally to fill such vacancy until a selection and appointment can be made after competitive examination; but such provisional appointment shall continue in force only until regular appointment can be made from eligible lists prepared by the commission, and such eligible lists shall be prepared within ninety days thereafter. In case of an emergency an appointment may be made without regard to the rules of this act, but in no case to continue longer than ten days, and in no case shall successive emergency appointments be made."

Answering your second question as to whether such a position is under civil service and whether Attorney General Hogan had made a ruling upon this position, I beg to advise you, first, that Attorney General Hogan has made no ruling upon the questions herein involved so far as I can find from an examination of the files.

Further answering I quote an opinion of Hon. Robert P. Duncan, prosecuting attorney of Franklin county, to the board of trustees of the Franklin county children's home, which opinion I adopt and approve, to wit:

"I have your favor of January 6, 1915, in which you ask my opinion as follows:

" 'First. In selecting a superintendent is the board of trustees of the children's home governed by civil service rules?

" 'If so, please kindly advise the trustees as to the method in which they should proceed, and the duties devolving upon them, in regard to such selection.

"'Second. Is the selection of the matron for the children's home governed by civil service rules?

"'If so, please advise as to the duties and proper course to pursue, by the trustees, and oblige.'

"Pertinent to the inquiries made in your communication, I note that statutory provisions which have been carried into the General Code as sections 3077 to 3081, inclusive, provide for the establishment of a county children's home and its management by a board of trustees to be appointed by the county commissioners.

"Sections 3084, 3085 and 3086, General Code, provide as follows:

"'Sec. 3084. The board of trustees shall designate a suitable person to act as superintendent of the home, who shall also be clerk of such board, and who shall receive for his services such compensation as the board of trustees designates at the time of his appointment. He shall perform such duties, and give security for their faithful performance, as the trustees require.

"'Sec. 3085. Subject to such rules and regulations as the trustees prescribe, the superintendent shall have entire charge and control of such home and the inmates therein. Upon the recommendation of the superintendent, the trustees may appoint a matron, assistant matron, and teacher, whose duties shall be the care of the inmates of the home and to direct their employment, giving suitable physical, mental and moral training to them. Under the direction of the superintendent, the matron shall have the control, general management and supervision of the household duties of the home, and the matron, assistant matron and teacher shall perform such other duties, and receive for their services such compensation as the trustees may by by-laws from time to time direct. They may be removed at the pleasure of the trustees, or a majority of them.

"'Sec. 3086. The superintendent may suspend temporarily a matron, assistant matron, or teacher, notice of which must be immediately given to the board of trustees for their approval or disapproval, but, if in their judgment it is for the best interest of the home and of the county, the trustees may dispense with a superintendent and authorize the matron to assume entire charge of the home and its management.'

"It follows from a consideration of the statutory provisions above noted that a children's home established and managed as therein provided is in every respect a county institution and that the superintendent and matron of such institution are county employes. State ex rel. v. McGonagle, 5 O. C. C. (n. s.), 292.

"Section 1 of an act entitled 'An act to regulate the civil service of the state of Ohio, the several counties, cities and city school districts thereof' (103 O. L., 698), provides:

"'The term "civil service" includes all officers and positions of trust or employment, including mechanics, artisans and laborers in the service of the state and the counties, cities and city school districts thereof.'

"'The "state service" shall include all such offices in the service of the state or the counties thereof, except the cities and city school districts?

"Section 2 of said act provides as follows:

"'On and after January 1, 1914, appointments to and promotion in the civil service of this state and the counties, cities and city school districts thereof shall be made only according to merit and fitness to be ascertained as far as practicable by examinations which, as far as practicable, shall be competitive; and on and after January 1, 1914, no person shall be appointed, removed, transferred, laid off, suspended, reinstated, promoted or reduced as an officer or employe in the civil service under the government of this state, the counties, cities and city school districts thereof, in any manner or by any means other than those prescribed in this act.'

"Section 8 of said civil service act provides in part as follows:

" 'The civil service of the state of Ohio and the counties, cities and city school districts thereof shall be divided into the unclassified service, and the classified service.

" 'The unclassified service shall comprise the following positions which shall not be included in the classified service, except as otherwise provided in section 19 hereof:

" '1. All officers elected by popular vote.

" '2. All heads of principal departments, board and commissions appointed by the governor or by and with his consent or by the mayor, or if there be no mayor such other similar chief appointing authority of any city or city school district.

" '3. All officers elected by either or both branches of the general assembly.

" '4. All election officers.

" '5. All commissioned, noncommissioned officers and enlisted men in the military service of the state.

" '6. All presidents, superintendents, directors, teachers and instructors in the public schools, colleges and universities; the library staff of any library in the state supported wholly or in part at public expense.

" '7. Two secretaries or assistants or clerks for each of the elective and principal executive officers, boards or commissions, except civil service commissioners, authorized by law to appoint such a secretary, assistant or chief clerk.

" '8. The deputies of elective or principal executive officers authorized by law to act generally for and in place of their principals and holding a fiduciary relation to such principals.

" '9. Bailiffs of courts of record.

" '10. Employes and clerks of boards of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections.'

"This section further provides that the classified service shall comprise all persons in the employ of the state, the counties, cities and city school districts thereof not specifically included in the unclassified service, to be designated as the competitive class. And further provides as follows:

" 'The competitive class shall include all positions and employments now existing or hereafter created in the state, the counties, cities and city school districts thereof, for which it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of applicants by competitive examinations. Appointments shall be made to, or employment shall be given in, all positions in the competitive class that are not filled by promotion, reinstatement, transfer or reduction, as provided in sections 15, 16 and 17 of this act and the rules of the commission by appointment from those certified to the appointing officer in accordance with the provisions of section 13 of this act.'

"Section 2 of section 14 of the civil service act provides as follows:

> "In case of vacancy in a position in the competitive class where peculiar and exceptional qualifications of a scientific, managerial, professional, or educational character are required, and upon satisfactory evidence that for specified reasons competition in such special case is impracticable and that the position can best be filled by a selection of some designated person of high and recognized attainments in such qualities, the commission may suspend the provisions of the statute requiring competition in such case, but no suspension shall be general in its application to such place, and all cases of suspension shall be reported in the annual report of the commission with the reasons for the same.'

"It is apparent from the foregoing provisions of the civil service act that the positions of superintendent and matron of a county children's home are not in the unclassified service, and not being so included in the unclassified service they are, by the express provisions of section 8 of said act, included in the classified or competitive class, and being in the competitive class as defined by the statute, incumbents must be appointed after competitive examination unless it be determined that it is not practicable to determine the merit and fitness of applicants for these positions by competitive examinations, or unless, as provided for in section 14 of the act, these positions call for peculiar and exceptional qualifications of a scientific, managerial, professional, or educational character such as would make competition for those positions or either of them impracticable.

"Whether or not, within the purview of the provisions of sections 8 and 14 of the civil service act, it is practicable to determine the merit and fitness of applicants for either the position of superintendent of the children's home or the position of matron thereof, is, in my opinion, a question to be determined by the state civil service commission. At any rate, I am unable to say, as a matter of law, on a consideration of the provisions of this act, that the merit and fitness of applicants for these positions cannot be determined by competitive examination.

"Having arrived at the foregoing conclusion, it follows that in the event of a vacancy in either the office of superintendent or matron of your institution, it is your duty, under the provisions of section 13 of the civil service act, to notify the state civil service commission of the fact of such vacancy or vacancies, which commission, unless it determines that said positions or either of them can be filled by promotion as provided for in section 15 of the act, will certify to your board the names and addresses of three candidates for each of said positions standing highest on the eligible list; or if there be no eligible list for said positions or either of them, the state civil service commission will certify to you names from eligible lists most nearly appropriate for the groups in which the position to be filled is classified. In this connection I note that section 14 of the act provides that if there are urgent reasons for filling a vacancy in any position in the competitive class and the commission is unable to certify to the appointing officer—in this case the board of trustees—upon requisition by the latter a list of persons eligible for appointment after competitive examination, the appointing officer—in this case your board—may nominate a person to the commission for non-competitive examination, and that if such nominees shall be certified by the civil service commission as qualified, after such noncompetitive examination, such person may be appointed provisionally to fill such vacancy until a selection and appointment can be made after competitive examination."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

THE DATE FOR SPECIAL ELECTIONS UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 4227-5, GENERAL CODE, IS ON THE FIFTH TUESDAY AFTER THE PETITION IS FILED.

Special elections under the provisions of section 4227-5, G. C., are thereby required to be held on the fifth Tuesday after the petition is filed with the city auditor, if in a city, or with the village clerk, if in a village.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In yours of January 28, 1915, you refer for opinion, communication from the chief deputy supervisor of elections of Hamilton county, Ohio, in which it is stated that the city council of Cincinnati passed an ordinance, which is now to be referring to the electors of said city for approval or rejection, under the provisions of section 4227-5, General Code, as amended in 104 O. L., page 239, and submitting for an opinion the following:

> "Shall said election be held on the fifth Tuesday after the petition is filed with the city auditor or on the fifth Tuesday after certification to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections?"

That section of the statute determining this matter and to which you refer, is as follows:

> "Section 4227-5. Whenever twenty per cent. of the electors of any municipality file a petition with the city auditor if it be a city, or village clerk, if it be a village, proposing or against an ordinance or other measure requesting in the petition that the ordinance or measure be submitted to the electors of the municipality at a special election. the auditor or village clerk, after ten days, shall certify the same to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections who shall submit the same at a special election to be held on the fifth Tuesday after the petition is filed. The petition shall not be submitted at a special election if a regular or general election will occur not later than ninety days after the petition is filed but shall be submitted at the regular or general election."

This language, it seems, is clear and unequivocal. There is but one provision therein requiring or in any way referring to the filing of such petition, and that is the requirement that the petition be filed with the city auditor. While it is further provided that such petition shall afterwards be certified to the deputy state supervisor of elections, no reference is any where made to a filing with the deputy state supervisors of elections, nor requiring the same.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the day provided for the election is the fifth Tuesday after the petition is filed with the city auditor or village clerk.

Very respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

JOINT OR SEVERAL BOND WITH TWO BONDING OR SURETY COMPANIES IS REQUIRED FOR A COUNTY TREASURER.

Under the provisions of section 2633, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 540, a joint and several bond is required and at least two or more bonding or surety companies must appear on a bond for county treasurer.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. S. W. ENNIS, Prosecuting Attorney, Paulding, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your favor of January 22, which is as follows:

> "In accordance with the provisions of section 2633 of the General Code, as amended in volume 103, pages 540 and 541 of the session laws of Ohio, can a county treasurer furnish two bonds with one surety company on each, or is he required to furnish one bond with two surety companies on same?
> "Our county treasurer has procured two $25,000.00 bonds each signed by one surety company, and before approving the bonds, I would like to have your opinion upon the same and whether or not they are in strict accordance with the above statute as amended."

Replying to your letter, I have to advise that in view of the provisions contained in section 2633 of the General Code, as amended in 103 Ohio Laws, page 540, as follows:

> "Before entering upon the duties of his office, the county treasurer shall give bond to the state in such sum as the commissioners direct with two or more bonding or surety companies as surety, or at his option, with four or more free-hold sureties. * * *"

It is my opinion that the legislature intended that the bond of the treasurer referred to in the act was to be one joint and several bond with two or more bonding or surety companies as surety, and that each of the surety companies signing the bond would be held liable for the full amount of the bond.

This opinion is in harmony with one rendered by my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, on the same question.

I have to advise you, therefore, that unless the bond of the treasurer submitted for your approval contains the names of at least two bonding or surety companies as surety, it should be rejected as not coming within the provisions of section 2633 of the General Code, as amended in 103 Ohio Laws, page 540.

Respectfully yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PRIVATE BANKS MAY BID FOR STATE FUNDS UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 744-12, G. C.

Private banks may not bid for state funds under an act to provide for a depository for state funds, but they may bid for state funds under section 744-12, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of the 25th inst, requesting my written opinion upon the following inquiry:

> "Do private banks have the same right to bid for state funds as the national banks and trust companies and banks organized under the laws of the state of Ohio under the depository law described as 'An act to provide a depository for state funds?'"

Section 3 of this act, (section 323 of the General Code) provides that the board of deposits shall meet "and designate such national banks within the state, and banks and trust companies doing business within this state and incorporated under the laws thereof, as the board deems eligible to be made such depositories."

Your question presents for determination whether or not the word "bank," as used in this section, includes "private banks." The word "bank," as used in this act, clearly means an organization incorporated under the laws of Ohio and having special privileges or authority from the state, and subject to such regulation as may be imposed upon it by law. A "private bank" does not imply incorporation nor the having of special privilege or authority from the state. Therefore, a private bank would not seem to come within the purview of this act. However, the legislature has seemingly made clear the line of demarcation between a bank and a private bank. In the county depository act, section 2715 of the General Code, the legislature provided that the county funds shall be deposited in a bank or banks or trust companies situated in the county and duly incorporated under the laws of this state. Then follows the provision:

> "In a county where such bank or trust company does not exist, or fails to bid * * * the commissioners shall designate a private bank or banks located in the county."

It therefore follows from this legislation that private banks have not the right to bid for state funds as national banks and trust companies and banks organized under the laws of the state of Ohio may have, unless said inhibition is rendered null and inapplicable as to private banks by reason of the later act of the general assembly found in volume 103, Laws of Ohio, at page 379, the title of which is "To provide for the examination, regulation, supervision and dissolution of certain banking concerns." Section 13 of this act (section 744-12 of the General Code) contains the following provision:

> "That whenever any of the funds of the state, or of any of the political subdivisions of the state, shall be deposited under any of the depository laws of the state, every corporation, person, partnership and association coming within the purview of this act shall be permitted to bid upon and be designated as depositories of such funds, upon furnishing such surety or securities therefor as is prescribed by the laws of the state of Ohio; * * *"

From the title and text of this later act of April 17, 1913, its obvious purpose seems to be that of regulating private banks, requiring them to discard the use of the name "bank" or else submit to examination, regulation, supervision and dissolution by the state. This enactment is in accordance with authority found in article XIII, section 3 of the constitution of Ohio existing at the time of its enactment.

The provision contained in said section 13, is contrary to the provisions relating to depositories of state and county moneys subject to deposit and found in the state and county depositories acts. Notwithstanding this fact, however, I am of the opinion that because of the constitutional authority aforesaid and the provisions contained in said section 13 subsequently enacted, a private bank conducted by a person, partnership or association by complying with the requirements set forth in this act of April 17, 1913, will be permitted to bid upon and be designated as a depository of the funds of the state or on any political subdivision of the state.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

THE PROPOSITIONS OF CENTRALIZATION OF SCHOOLS AND ISSUING OF BONDS MAY BE SUBMITTED AT ONE ELECTION.

A proposition for the centralization of schools under the provisions of section 4726, G. C., and a proposition to issue bonds authorized by section 7625, G. C., may both be submitted to the electors of a rural school district at one election.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 21st, Mr. W. I. Everson, county superintendent, Brilliant, Ohio, submitted for an opinion the following question:

"Is it necessary to hold two elections in order to decide on centralization and the issuing of bonds, or can this be decided at one election?"

I assume that the bonds referred to are deemed necessary to the furtherance of the scheme of centralization, and I shall confine my answer to such state of facts.

I am of the opinion that the question of centralization of schools as provided in section 4726, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, and the question of the issuance of bonds as authorized by section 7625, G. C., may both be submitted to the electors of a rural school district at one election. It might be suggested, however, that before the issue of such bonds would thereby be authorized, there must be a concurrence of a majority of the votes cast at such election in favor of both centralization and the issuing of bonds, and the answer implies that the election shall be in all further respects in compliance with the statutes relative thereto.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

THE COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION HAS AUTHORITY TO DETACH AND THEN ADD A PART OF A RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT TO ANOTHER DISTRICT.

Under section 4736, G. C., the county board of education has the authority to rearrange boundary lines so as to detach one part of a rural school district and add it to another rural or village district.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 19, 1915, in which you ask for my opinion upon the following statement of facts:

> "Sections 4692, 4696 and 4736 of the General Code, deal with the transfer of territory from one school district to another.
> "Waterford rural school district, Washington county, contemplates the issuance of bonds. Waterford formed a separate supervision district according to section 4740 of the General Code. Beverly, a village district entirely surrounded by Waterford rural district, desired to be a part of a supervision district. But the law requires that a supervision district be contiguous. To that end the county board of education of Washington county transferred a part of the Waterford district to the Beverly school district for all school purposes. This part transferred gave the Beverly district connection with the remaining part of the Washington county school district, other than that of the Waterford school district. The Waterford board of education contends that since they are a separate supervision district, the county board of education acted without authority."

You then ask to be advised whether or not the county board of education acted within its authority in the transfer of this territory.

I call your attention especially to section 4736 of the General Code, as found in 104, O. L., at page 138, as follows:

> "Section 4736. The county board of education shall as soon as possible after organizing make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the schools according to topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at any regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. A map designating such changes shall be entered on the records of the board and a copy of the resolution and map shall be filed with the county auditor. In changing boundary lines, the board may proceed without regard to township lines and shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation. In no case shall any rural district be created containing less than fifteen square miles. In changing boundary lines and other work of a like nature, the county board shall ask the assistance of the county surveyor and the latter is hereby required to give the services of his office at the formal request of the county board."

I assume that the action taken by the county board of education of Washington county was in accordance with the authority given them by the above quoted section. If such be the case, the county board of education was clearly within its rights in taking a portion of the Waterford school district and joining it to the Beverly school district in order to provide a supervision district for the Beverly school district, provided, however, that there remains in Waterford rural school district a territory of not less than fifteen square miles.

Sections 4692 and 4696 do not, in my opinion, apply to the question involved by your statement of facts. These sections have reference to a transfer of territory from one school district to another by action of the local boards of education of such districts and by annexation of territory to a city or village.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, and so advise you, that from the statement of facts as outlined above, the county board of education of Washington county acted within its authority in transferring the territory involved.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY ORGANIZED UNDER THE LAWS OF OHIO IS NOT AUTHORIZED TO CONSOLIDATE WITH A LIKE COMPANY OF ANOTHER STATE.

Section 9544, G. C., does not authorize the consolidation of a fire insurance company organized under the laws of Ohio with like companies incorporated under the laws of another state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. PRICE RUSSELL, Superintendent of Insurance, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 25, 1915, you submit for my opinion the following questions:

> "1st. Does section 9544, General Code, laws of Ohio, permit the consolidation of a fire insurance company organized under the laws of Ohio with a fire insurance company organized under the laws of Illinois and admitted to do business in Ohio?
> "2nd. Does said section 9544, General Code, laws of Ohio, permit the consolidation of a fire insurance company organized under the laws of Ohio with a fire insurance company organized under the laws of Illinois and not admitted to Ohio?"

Sections 8544 and 9545 of the General Code, providing for the consolidation of certain fire and marine insurance companies, are as follows:

> "Section 9544. When a joint stock fire and marine insurance company of this state determines by a vote of the holders of two-thirds of its stock to consolidate and make joint stock with another like company or companies engaged in or incorporated for like business, and each agrees by such vote to the consolidation, the companies by a vote of the holders of a majority of the stock so consolidated, may determine under which corporate organization or articles of association of the consolidating companies, and under what name, their future business shall be conducted.

"Section 9545. Upon filing with the superintendent of insurance, a certificate of such consolidation, the companies thenceforth shall be consolidated under the corporate organization or articles of association and corporate name chosen. (Thereupon also all franchises, rights, equities, property, and estate of whatever name or nature, belonging to or vested in either of the consolidating companies, immediately, upon and by the act of such consolidation shall become the property and estate of and be vested in the consolidated company, and the corporate existence of the consolidating companies thenceforth cease, and be merged in the consolidation.) Such consolidated company shall have the exclusive right and power to demand, sue for, collect, convey, and dispose of the rights, equities, property, and estate aforesaid, or any part thereof, under its own name, and all debts, liabilities and obligations of the consolidating companies shall be assumed and paid by it."

The language of section 9544 is somewhat ambiguous, and your question involves a determination of the meaning and comprehensiveness of the expression therein "and other like companies or companies engaged in or incorporated for like business." Does the word "like" as first used in the quoted language mean only that such other company or companies must be joint stock fire and marine companies; or does it mean that they must be joint stock fire and marine companies of this state?

I believe that the legislative intent is clearly shown in the language of section 9545, above quoted, which prescribes the rights and duties of the consolidated companies. In the second sentence of this section, it is provided that:

"Thereupon also all franchises, rights, equities, property, and estate of whatever name or nature, belonging to or vested in either of the consolidating companies, immediately upon and by the act of such consolidation shall become the property and estate of and be vested in the consolidated company, and the corporate existence of the consolidating companies thenceforth cease, and be merged in the consolidation."

If the above section authorizes the consolidation of an Ohio company with a company of another state, then the state of Ohio is in the position of having enacted a law which arbitrarily disposes of all "franchises, rights, etc.," of a corporation created by another state without consulting or taking into consideration the laws of such other state. This state may undoubtedly pass laws relative to corporations created by it and even deprive such corporations of their legal existence, but I know of no method by which it can attain that result in regard to corporations created by another state. That law should be interpreted so as to give it meaning and effect and not so as to place the law-making body in the position of attempting the impossible.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that section 9544 of the General Code, was intended to apply only to Ohio corporations, and I answer both questions one and two of your inquiry in the negative.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION—THE NORTON MUTUAL FIRE ASSOCIATION.

Certificate of amendment of the articles of incorporation of The Norton Mutual Fire Association disapproved.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. C. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I return, herewith, the certificate of amendment of the articles of incorporation of The Norton Mutual Fire Association which has been sent to me for my examination and action upon the supposition that the same is required by law.

I do not believe that the law requires that the attorney general certify to amendments to articles of incorporations of mutual protective associations (which I suppose the company is). Be that as it may, however, I am unable on purely technical grounds, to approve the certificate of amendment. Such grounds are as follows:

(1) The certificate does not state that notice of the business to come before the meeting was given, as provided by section 8720, General Code.

(2) The certificate being silent in respect to notice, it does not appear that all the members of the corporation were present at the meeting which was held, and in writing consented to the waiver of the notice, as authorized by section 8723, General Code.

(3) The certificate of amendment was not sealed with the seal of the corporation, nor is it stated that the corporation has no seal, whereas section 8721, General Code, requires that if there be a seal the certificate shall be sealed with it.

I have no doubt that these details can be supplied by the president and secretary of the corporation, but without them I could certainly not certify that the amendment has been made in conformity to the laws of the state.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CLERK OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF A CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT PERFORMS THE DUTIES OF TREASURER WHEN A DEPOSITORY HAS BEEN PROVIDED.

When a depository has been provided by a city board of education for its school funds, as authorized by law, the board of education of the district must dispense with the treasurer, and the clerk of the board of the city school district performs all the services and duties of such treasurer.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 30, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 20, 1915, you submit to this department the following question:

> "When a depository has been provided by a city board of education for its school funds, shall the clerk of the board of education act as treasurer, or shall the treasurer or director of finance of the city funds act as the treasurer of the school funds?"

The first two lines of section 4763, General Code, as amended in 104 O. L., 159, provide that:

> "In each city school district, the treasurer of the city funds shall be the treasurer of the school funds. * * *."

It is also provided in section 4782, General Code, as amended in 104 O. L., p. 159, that:

> "When a depository has been provided for the school moneys of a district, as authorized by law, the board of education of the district, by resolution adopted by a vote of a majority of its members, shall dispense with a treasurer of the school moneys, belonging to such school district. In such case, the clerk of the board of education of a district shall perform all the services, discharge all the duties and be subject to all the obligations required by law of the treasurer of such school districts."

The provisions of section 4783, General Code, have an important bearing on this question, which section provides as follows:

> "When the treasurer is so dispensed with, all the duties and obligations required by law of the county auditor, county treasurer or other officer or person relating to the school moneys of the district, shall be complied with by dealing with the clerk of the board of education thereof. Before entering upon such duties, the clerk shall give additional bond equal in amount and in the same manner prescribed by law for the treasurer of the school district."

When the provisions of these three sections are considered together, I am of the opinion that when a depository has been provided as authorized by law, the board of education of the district must dispense with the treasurer, and that the clerk of the board of education of the city school district performs all the services and duties of such treasurer.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION SHOULD CANVASS THE VOTES OF A SPECIAL ELECTION FOR THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS FOR ERECTION OF A SCHOOL HOUSE.

The vote at a special election at which is submitted a proposition for the issuance of bonds for the erection of a school house, is governed by section 5120, G. C., and should be canvassed by the board of education of the district as therein provided.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 1, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours of January 28, 1915, referring for an opinion a communication addressed to you by the clerk of the deputy state supervisors of elections of Seneca county, which is in part as follows:

"Section 5115 of the General Code says: In registration cities, the returns of the election of municipal officers, members of boards of education or justices of the peace shall be made to the board of deputy state supervisors of the county in which such city is located, and canvassed by a board of canvassers consisting of such board of deputy state supervisors and the city auditor.

"Does this section apply to special elections such as a bond election for erection of a school house or is the canvass to be made by the school board?"

It will be observed that the section above quoted is specific in its terms, obviously confining its application to the officers therein enumerated, viz., municipal officers, members of boards of education or justices of the peace, and that there is nothing therein contained that would warrant an inference of legislative intent to include under the provisions of this section other officers or matters not therein specifically mentioned. It therefore follows that the provisions of this section apply only to the election of municipal officers, members of boards of education and justices of the peace, and that a special election for bond issue as mentioned to you, does not under any fair or reasonable construction of the language in this section contained, come within its terms. The solution of the problem submitted by you, however, involves the consideration of a further section of the statute, relative to the canvassing of election returns, as follows:

"Section 5120. In school elections, the returns shall be made by the judges and clerks of each precinct to the clerk of the board of education of the district, not less than five days after the election. Such board shall canvass such returns at a meeting to be held on the second Monday after the election, and the result thereof shall be entered upon the records of the board."

This section, it will be observed, is general in its terms, purporting to contemplate all "school elections." I assume that it would not be seriously questioned that a special election submitting a proposition for a bond issue, for the erection of a school house, is a school election within the meaning of that phrase as used in section 5120, G. C., just quoted. The rule of construction of statutes of the character of those now under consideration, is clearly stated by the court in the case of Doll v. Barr, 58 O. S., at page 120, as follows:

"Where there are in one act, specific provisions relating to a particular subject, they must govern in respect to that subject, as against general provisions in other parts of the statute, although the latter, standing alone would be broad enough to include the subject to which the more particular relate."

and,

"If there are two acts, or two provisions of the same act, of which one is special and particular, and clearly includes the matter of controversy, whilst the other is general and would, if standing alone, include it also, and if reading the general provisions side by side with the particular one, the inclusion of that matter in the former would produce a conflict between it and the special provision, it must be taken that the latter was designed as an exception to the general provision."

While an election of the members of the board of education, in my opinion, would come within the meaning of the term "school election," and but for the provisions of section 5115, General Code, would be governed by the provisions of section 5120, General Code, applying the above rule of construction to the provisions of these above quoted sections, section 5115, General Code, constitutes only an exception insofar as the election of members of boards of education is concerned, to the provisions of section 5120, General Code.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the canvass of the vote at a special election at which is submitted a proposition for the issuance of bonds for the erection of a school house, is governed by section 5120 of the General Code and should, therefore, be canvassed by the board of education of the district as therein provided.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

THE CITY COUNCIL HAS THE RIGHT TO INCREASE THE SALARY OF POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN AFTER APPOINTMENT.

The city council has the right to increase the salary of policemen and firemen, after appointment. State ex rel. Ferris v. Bish, 12 O. N. P. n. s. 369; State v. Coughlin, Auditor, 12 O. N. P. n. s., 419; distinguishing the case of State ex rel Spaller v. Moody, Auditor, et al., 85 O. S., 483, affirming State ex rel Spaller v. Painesville, 13 O. C. C. n. s., 577, followed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 1, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Under date of January 15, 1915, we received a communication from Honorable H. W. Koons, City Solicitor, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, in which he requested our opinion in the following matter:

> "May I ask you to give me an opinion on the right of the city council to raise the salary of persons at the present time holding positions of firemen, under the safety department, and patrolmen under the same department, assuming that both are within the classified service."

Section 4213, General Code, provides as follows:

> "The salary of any officer, clerk or employe shall not be increased or diminished during the term for which he was elected or appointed, and, except as otherwise provided in this title, all fees pertaining to any office shall be paid into the city treasury."

As the matter is one which is of general importance throughout the state, we feel that the opinion should be addressed to your department.

The question immediately arises as to whether or not a policeman or a fireman is an officer, clerk or employe of the city, and secondly, whether or not they can be considered as holding a "term." There can be but little doubt that the position of a policeman and a fireman is within the comprehension of the terms "officer,"

"clerk" or "employe." However, a policeman or fireman, when appointed is appointed during good behavior, and there is no definite term for which he serves. I do not believe that the word "term," as used in section 4213, contemplates a position, which would be a life position, provided the incumbent was not sooner discharged for cause.

I am mindful of the fact that the circuit court, in the case of State ex rel. Spaller v. City of Painesville et al., 13 O. C. C. n. s. 577, held:

> "A duly appointed patrolman of the police department of a city is an officer within the meaning of the laws of Ohio.
> "A city council has no power to increase or diminish the salary of a police officer, appointed under the civil service provisions of the municipal code, during the term for which he was appointed which is during good behavior."

and that such case was affirmed by the supreme court without report on January 16, 1912. (85 O. S., 483.)

Subsequent to the decision of the supreme court, in affirming the circuit court in such case, it was held by Judge Sprigg, of the common pleas court of Montgomery county, in the case of State ex rel. Ferris, et al., v. Bish, Auditor, decided March 9, 1912, and reported in 12 O. N. P. n. s., page 369:

> "Policemen and firemen do not hold their positions for a fixed and definite term, and hence are not subject to the provisions of section 4213, P. & A. Anno. General Code, which forbids the increase or diminishing of salaries of officers, clerks or employes of a municipality during the term for which they were appointed or elected.
> "A municipal council has authority to pass an ordinance providing for the number, salaries, and bonds of members of the police department, repealing at the same time the former ordinance, under which the department was operated; and where such action is taken by council all members of the police force lose their positions as of the date of the repeal of the former ordinance under which the department was theretofore operated, this method of removal being excluded under section 4484, P. & A. Anno. General Code, which refers only to individual removals for cause; and it thereafter becomes the duty of the board of public safety to appoint members of the force under the contemplated reorganization and upon such terms as council has provided."

Judge Lawrence of the court of common pleas, Cuyahoga county, in the case of Stage v. Coughlin, Auditor, et al., decided March 15, 1912, and reported in the 12th N. P. n. s., 419, held:

> "Members of the police and fire departments of a municipality are not appointed for a 'term' within the meaning of section 4213, P. & A. Anno. General Code, and having no fixed or definite term the restriction as to changes in salaries does not apply to them, and council has power to increase or diminish their salaries after appointment."

Both of these cases, as before stated, were decided after the decision of affirmance of the supreme court in the case of State ex rel. Spaller v. Painesville, and both of said cases the courts of common pleas distinguished the said Painesville case, and I think, properly so. The right to a writ of mandamus must be clearly established, and the supreme court, in simply affirming the judgment of the circuit court of Lake county, did not necessarily affirm the reasoning as found in said case in said court.

I would call your attention to the discussion of the Painesville case as found in the decision of Judge Sprigg, beginning at page 375 of the report in which it appears, and also the reasoning of Judge Lawrence found in the same report at page 421. Both of said judges clearly recognize that whether or not a police officer has a term of office, as understood by the use of such word in section 4213, the Painsville case would have had to have been decided as it was.

I will not undertake to discuss the facts in the Painsville case, for the reason that they are clearly set forth in the two discussions mentioned. However, I am of the opinion that the reasoning of both Judge Sprigg and Judge Lawrence is correct, and that therefore the inhibition of the increase of salary, found in section 4213, does not apply to policemen and firemen, and fully concur in the opinion rendered to the Honorable Ben L. Bennett, city solicitor, East Liverpool, Ohio, under date of May 18, 1912, by my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DISTRIBUTION OF ESCHEATED PERSONAL PROPERTY—MONEY RECEIVED FROM SUCH PROPERTY SHOULD BE CREDITED TO CONTINGENT FUND.

Distribution of escheated personal property to schools of a county, collected under section 8579, G. C., is to be made as provided for the state common school fund under section 7600, G. C., as said section stands, when the money is paid into the county treasury.

Money received from escheated personal property should be credited to the contingent fund of the school district, when received under section 7603, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 1, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Under date of January 15, 1915, you inquire as follows:

> "Section 8579, General Code, provides for the distribution of escheated personal property to schools of the county. Shall the distribution be based on the tax valuation of the different districts, on the school enumeration, or on the average daily attendance? To what statutory school fund, or funds, should the money be credited?"

Section 8579, General Code, provides as follows:

> "If there be no person living to inherit it by the provisions of this chapter, such personal property shall pass to and be vested in the state. The prosecuting attorney of the county, in which letters of administration are granted upon such estate, shall collect and pay it over to the treasurer of such county; to be applied exclusively to the support of the common schools of the county in which collected, in such manner as is prescribed by law."

It will be noted, therefore, that the title to the personal property which escheats is vested in the state of Ohio, but that the duty is placed upon the prosecuting attorney of a county to collect it and pay it into the county treasury, and that the same shall be applied exclusively to the support of the common schools of such county. In other words, although the title vests in the state of Ohio, yet, such money goes into the county treasury for the support of the common schools, and there is no provision of law making any specific appropriation of said sums after the same reaches the county treasury.

So much of section 7600 as is pertinent to the question involved, is found in the last sentence of said section, which reads as follows:

"All other money in the county treasury for the support of common schools, and not otherwise appropriated by law, shall be apportioned annually in the same manner as the state common school fund."

The language, above quoted, was not changed by the amendment found in 104, O. L., 159.

We find, therefore, that by reason of section 8579 and section 7600, the property received under section 8579 is to be apportioned in the same manner as the state common school fund.

Further, in section 7600 it is provided:

"After each annual settlement with the county treasurer, each county auditor shall immediately apportion the school funds for his county. The state common school fund must be apportioned in proportion to the enumeration of youth in each of the several school districts within the county, except if an enumeration of the youth of any district has not been taken and returned for any year, such district shall not be entitled to receive any portion of such fund."

That part of section 7600, just quoted, was amended in 104 O. L., 159, to read as follows:

"After each annual settlement with the county treasurer, each county auditor shall immediately apportion school funds for his county. The state common school funds shall be apportioned as follows:

"Each school district within the county shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district, and the balance of such funds shall be apportioned among the various school districts according to the average daily attendance of pupils in the schools of such districts. If an enumeration of the youth of any district has not been taken and returned for any year and the average daily attendance of such district has not been certified to the county auditor such district shall not be entitled to receive any portion of that fund."

The question submitted by you is:

"Shall the distribution be based on the tax valuation of the different districts, on the school enumeration, or on the average daily attendance?"

In view of the statutes, foregoing quoted, I am of the opinion:

First. That the distribution is not based upon the tax valuation of the different districts within the county.

Second. That prior to the going into effect of the amendment of section 7600 (104 O. L., 159), if the money had been collected and paid over to the treasurer of the county before such time, it would, by reason of section 7600, prior to the amendment, have been distributed in accordance with the enumeration of youth.

Third. If the money did not reach the county treasurer until after the going into effect of section 7600, as amended 104 O. L., 159, the distribution would be made on the basis of the average daily attendance.

You also inquire:

> "To what statutory school fund, or funds, should the money be credited?"

This, I think, is clearly answered by the last sentence found in section 7603, General Code, wherein it is stated. "Moneys coming from sources not enumerated herein shall be placed on the contingent fund."

In said section 7603 there is no specific provision for moneys coming from escheated personal property, and, therefor, the same should be placed in the contingent fund.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EXAMINERS OF THE BUREAU OF INSPECTION AND SUPERVISION OF PUBLIC OFFICES ARE IN THE UNCLASSIFIED SERVICE.

It cannot be held, as a matter of law, that the state examiners of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices are within the unclassified service.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 1, 1915.

The State Civil Service Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Under date of January 25, 1915, the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices submitted the following inquiry:

> "Are the duties devolving by law upon state examiners of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, as such duties are set forth in sections 284, et seq., of such a nature as to place said officers in the unclassified list of the state civil service?
> "The application of the laws of the state to the work of the various public offices requires of said examiners such a general knowledge of law as to render it doubtful whether a qualification of said officials can be determined by written examination."

Under date of May 28, 1914, my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, rendered an opinion to your commission on the same question, and stated at the conclusion thereof, the following:

"It is therefore my conclusion that it cannot be determined as a matter of law that it is impracticable to hold competitive examinations of applicants for the positions of state examiners in the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices. The question of the practicability of examinations should be determined by the state civil service commission."

I assume that the question has again been submitted to this department because of an opinion rendered by me, under date of January 16, 1915, to your commission, relative to the employes in the office of the governor of this state, wherein I held that, as a matter of law, the secretary to the governor, the executive clerk, the stenographer and all other employes who, from the nature of the service rendered, or by reason of their location in the governor's office are in position to observe the transactions or to obtain information relative to matters that may come legally before the governor, are not within the classified service, for the reason that it is impracticable to determine their merit and fitness by competitive examination. In said opinion I distinctly stated that such opinion applied solely to the governor's office, and based the same on the fact of the peculiar situation in said office and the fact that "it is universally recognized that the premature disclosure of some of the matters that may come before the governor of a state, and particularly the obtaining by interested parties of even a hint of matters pending or the probable action thereon, would be prejudicial to the public welfare."

The governor of the state is in such a position and the matters before him are of such a character as to require each and every employe in his office to be possessed of judgment and discretion.

I cannot say, as a matter of law, that the state examiners of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices cannot have their merit and fitness determined by competitive examination, and, therefore, your commission is the proper body to decide whether or not it can determine the merit and fitness of said examiners by a competitive examination.

The question, therefore, is answered in the negative, so far as it can be determined, as a matter of law, that said positions are in the unclassified service.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EXPRESS CHARGES ARE NOT "COSTS" IN A CASE PERMITTED TO BE FILED IN THE SUPREME COURT.

The cost of expressing files and papers in cases permitted to be filed in the supreme court, under order thereof to certify record, are not a part of the costs of the cases and must be advanced by the party seeking a revision in the supreme court.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—I am in receipt of your letter of January 22, 1915, wherein you inquire:

"Who is to pay costs of expressing the files and briefs in cases appealed to the supreme court under the order of the supreme court to certify record?

"First. Is the express charge to be paid by the attorneys taking the case to the supreme court directly; or,

"Second. Is this charge to be taxed as a part of the costs in the court from which the case is appealed; or,

"Third. Are the files to be sent C. O. D., the supreme court paying the expressage, which costs shall then be made a part of the supreme court costs?"

There has been no statutory provision made relative to the paying of the costs of expressing the files and briefs to the supreme court under its order to certify the case, and, consequently, there being no statutory provision to that effect, the same cannot, in any sense, be considered as a part of the costs in the case. The case is brought to the supreme court on certiori on application of the party claiming to have been aggrieved by the action of the court of appeals, and it would seem, therefore, to me that such being the case and there being no statutory authority for the charging of the costs of the expressage mentioned, as costs in the case, that the party causing the action of the supreme court, in ordering the case certified to it, should pay the costs of the expressage of the papers, and I would suggest that before expressing the same, the clerk should require the party, causing the same to be brought before the supreme court, to advance the costs of the expressage in such case.

Answering, therefore, your questions submitted, I would say that the express charge is to be paid by the attorneys taking the case to the supreme court and should be paid to the clerk of the courts before he expresses the same to the supreme court.

(2) That the same cannot be taxed as a part of the costs of the case in the court from which the case is appealed.

(3) That the same cannot be charged as a part of the costs of the case in the supreme court.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

THE TOWNSHIP CLERK IS CLERK OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION UNTIL BOARD OF EDUCATION IS ELECTED AND ORGANIZED, UNDER SECTION 4747, G. C.—COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION MAY NOT CREATE A RURAL DISTRICT.

The township clerk remains, ex-officio, the clerk of the township board of education until a board of education has been elected and organized, under the provisions of section 4747, as amended, 104 O. L., 139.

A county board of education may not create a new rural district containing fifteen square miles, from an existing rural district, which leaves the original district containing less than fifteen square miles.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 20, 1915, Hon. Harold Houston, prosecuting attorney, Champaign county, submitted to this department request for opinion on the propositions herinafter set out.

For the purpose of uniformity, it is the policy of this office to direct opinions on all matters to the various state departments, as far as possible. I am, therefore, directing to you an opinion covering said inquiry.

> "1st. Where a clerk of the township is serving as clerk of the board of education in a township school district, under the provision of section 4747, General Code, at the time the amendment to said section, as contained in the act of 1914, 104 O. L., page 133, et seq., became effective, does the said act of 1914 operate to vacate the office of the clerk of said board of education, or will said clerk's incumbency continue until the expiration of his term, for which he was elected and be consistent with the provisions of the original section 4747?
> "2nd. Can a new rural school district be created under the provisions of the act of 1914, 104 O. L., page 133, et seq., by a county board of education, by a division of a then-existing rural school district, if the result would be to leave the original district, under the original name, with an area of less than fifteen square miles, although the newly created district contains the requisite area?"

Section 4747 as contained in 104 O. L., page 139—act of 1914—provides as follows:

> "The board of education of each city, village or rural school district shall organize on the first Monday in January, after the election of members of such board. One member shall be elected president, one member vice-president and a person who may or may not be a member of the board shall be elected clerk. The president and vice-president shall serve for a term of one year and the clerk for a term not to exceed two years."

The organization of the board of education authorized by the foregoing, amended section 4747, by the express terms thereof, shall take place on the first Monday in January after the election of members of such board pursuant to the provisions of said amended act of 1914. Until there has been an election of members of the board of education under this act, and not before the first Monday in January, after such election of members of such board, the section above quoted does not authorize the organization of boards of education, nor the election of any officers of such boards.

There is nothing in said section purporting to terminate the incumbency of officers of the board of education already occupying such offices.

Section 4747, General Code, in effect previous to the act of 1914, provides:

> "The board of education of each school district shall organize on the first Monday in January after the election of members of such board. One member of the board shall be elected president, one as vice-president and, in township school districts, the clerk of the township shall be clerk of the board. The president and vice-president shall serve for a term of one year and the clerk for a term not to exceed two years. * * *."

It is evident, from the provisions of this section, that the township clerk is effectively constituted the "clerk of the board of education" of such township school district to serve for the full period of his incumbency of such office of township clerk, provided that he shall not serve for a term to exceed two years.

Section 3299, General Code, provides:

> "A township clerk shall be elected, biennially, in each township, who shall hold his office for a term of two years * * *."

The term of office as clerk of the township and the maximum term for which such clerk may serve as "clerk of the board of education," therefore, seem to be coextensive.

The inquiry contains the information that the clerk in question, at the time the act of 1914 went into effect, was, and still is, serving an unexpired term, and inquiries whether he may continue to serve as "clerk of the board of education" until the expiration of his term as clerk of the township.

Section 4735 of the act of 1914 provides:

> "* * * All officers and members of boards of education of such existing districts shall continue to hold and exercise their respective offices and powers until their terms expire and until their successors are elected and qualified."

Having reference to the language of the foregoing section and to the fact that the term of office of the clerk of the township, in question, has not expired, it would seem that the said clerk of the township, by authority of the law, continues to be "clerk of the board of education" until the expiration of his term. There seems to be no provision of the law which would have the effect to terminate the incumbency of such clerk in the office of "clerk of the board of education."

It is, therefore, my conclusion that the township clerk continues to be ex-officio "clerk of the board of education" until the organization of the newly elected board of education takes place on the "first Monday in January after the election of the members of such board," pursuant to the amendment of 1914, at which time the board is authorized to organize and elect president, vice-president and clerk.

As to the second inquiry, section 4735 of the act of 1914, 104 O. L., page 138, provides:

> "The present existing township and special school districts shall constitute 'rural' school districts, until changed by the board of education. * * *."

Section 4736 of the same act provides:

> "The county board of education shall as soon as possible after organizing make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the schools according to topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at a regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. A map designating such changes shall be entered on the records of the board and a copy of the resolution and map shall be filed with the county auditor. In changing boundary lines the board may proceed without regard to township lines and shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation. In no case shall any rural district be recreated containing less than fifteen square miles. * * *."

The only substantial object sought to be accomplished by section 4735, above quoted, would seem to be to constitute all school districts previously known as township and village and special school districts as "rural" school districts. Said section in itself does not undertake to make any change of boundaries, but merely incidentally refers to the power of the county board to make such changes of boundaries, which power is effectively conferred by the subsequent section 4736. Such county board is authorized to make an investigation into the conditions of its district, arrange schools according to topography and population, so that they shall be easily accessible to pupils; change district school lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another; they may proceed in so doing without regard to township lines and they shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation.

All this authority vested in such board, the effecting of the purposes generally of arranging the schools under their jurisdiction to the end that they shall be most easily accessible to pupils, is subject to the provision of section 4736, following:

"In no case shall a rural district be created containing less than fifteen square miles."

It would not be competent for such county board in the furtherance of the purposes contemplated in the statute to make any changes of boundary lines or transfer of territory, affecting school districts under its jurisdiction, which would have the effect to constitute any resulting district or districts of less area than the minimum prescribed in said section. The purpose of this restraining provision lies in the manifest intention that each district shall be of sufficient size to justify the maintenance of school facilities therein and shall comprise sufficient territory to support such school facilities as nearly as possible. The legislature has undertaken to specify what territory shall be sufficient, as a minimum, for the aforementioned purpose and has arbitrarily fixed such minimum at fifteen square miles. This provision is devised to guard against the undesirable consequences of small school districts, to wit: less than the minimum prescribed—these consequences being in no way increased or diminished, whether such district of less than the prescribed minimum be the one from which, or to which, the territory is to be transferred. That cannot be accomplished indirectly which the law prohibits being done directly.

It is my opinion that the county board is not authorized to transfer territory from an existing district which will render such district of less area than that prescribed by the statute, unless such board at the same time annex to such district sufficient amount of territory from another source to leave it of an area equal to the prescribed minimum.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WHEN A TREASURER OF THE SCHOOL BOARD AND HIS SURETIES ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSSES SUSTAINED BY A BANK FAILURE —KNOWLEDGE BY BOARD OF EDUCATION AS TO WHERE MONEY IS DEPOSITED DOES NOT RELIEVE TREASURER AND HIS SURETIES.

The treasurer of a school district who deposits money in a bank other than in conformity to the provisions of the depository law, together with the sureties upon his bond, is responsible for losses sustained by failure of the bank. Mere knowledge by the board of education of such deposit does not relieve the treasurer and his sureties of liability.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. T. B. JARVIS, Prosecuting Attorney, Mansfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In yours of January 18, 1915, you state:

"Along about 1910, the treasurer of the school district of Worthington township, Richland county, Ohio, deposited in the Butler bank certain funds belonging to the township school district. Heretofore this bank had not been a depository for such funds and was not made a depository by the school board. The treasurer of said school board merely depositing the funds there as a matter of convenience, upon which funds checks were drawn in payment of the school district bills.

"During this time, the board of directors knew that the money was so deposited, but had never given any authority for its being deposited there, merely done upon the initiative of the treasurer as a matter of convenience.

"The next year, this bank failed; the receiver later paying 40 per cent. of a dividend, leaving a balance unpaid of $656.26.

"I believe that is all that there will be paid as the funds are now exhausted. I would like to know, first, whether the treasurer and his bondsmen are responsible for the loss sustained by the bank's failure, and second, if the school board is bound by the conduct of the treasurer in making this bank the depository without instructions from it."

Section 4764 of the General Code of Ohio, provides:

"Before entering upon the duties of his office, each school district treasurer shall execute a bond, with sufficient sureties, in a sum not less than the amount of school funds that may come into his hands, payable to the state, approved by the board of education, and conditioned for the faithful disbursement according to law of all funds which come into his hands, provided that when school moneys have been deposited under the provisions of section 7604-7608 inclusive, the bond shall be in such amount as the board of education may require."

The above section was passed May 10, 1910, and while it is not so expressly stated in your letter, I shall assume that the treasurer of the Worthington township, Richland county, Ohio, school district had executed the bond in full compliance therewith.

Section 4768 prescribes the manner of the disbursement of funds by treasurers of school districts, as follows:

> "No treasurer of a school district shall pay out any school money except on an order signed by the president or vice-president, and countersigned by the clerk of the board of education, and when such school moneys have been deposited as provided by sections 7604-7608, inclusive, no money shall be withdrawn from any such depository, except upon an order signed by the treasurer and by the president or vice-president and countersigned by the clerk of the board of education; and no money shall be paid to the treasurer of the district other than that received from the county treasurer, except upon the order of the clerk of the board, who shall report the amount of such miscellaneous receipts to the county auditor each year immediately preceding such treasurer's settlement with the auditor."

Section 4773, General Code, provides that the treasurer shall at the expiration of his term of service, deliver to his successor all books, papers, money and other property in his hands belonging to the district. To bear in mind the limitation of the authority of public officers to the powers expressly granted by law and those necessarily incidental to the performance of their duties imposed by law, will lend material aid in the solution of the problem now under consideration. The present form of the statutes of this state providing for the establishment of a depository for the school funds of any district, was enacted May 10, 1910, 101 O. L., 290, sections 7604 to 7609, General Code of Ohio, inclusive.

An examination of the provisions of these several sections will disclose that every duty relative to and all authority for providing such depositories, rests solely with the board of education of the school district, and that no authority is granted to or duty imposed upon the treasurer relative to the designation of such depository, nor elsewhere in the statutes of the state is such authority granted to treasurers of school districts.

It follows, then, by no act of the treasurer could "a depository be lawfully provided" as within the terms of the section of the statutes just referred to.

Certain duties in addition to those before referred to are imposed upon the treasurer, after such "depository is lawfully provided," a full compliance with which shall relieve the treasurer from liability occasioned by the failure of such depository, as follows:

> "Section 7605. The treasurer of the school district must see that a greater sum than that contained in the bond is not deposited in such bank or banks and he and his bondsmen shall be liable for any loss occasioned by deposits in excess of such bond.
> "Section 7607. The treasurer of the school district must see that a greater sum than that contained in the bond is not deposited in such bank or banks, and he and his bondsmen shall be liable for any loss occasioned by deposits in excess of such bond."

The bond referred to in the foregoing quotations is the bond of the bank given to the board of education as provided for in said sections.

Section 7609 provides:

> "Section 7609. When a depository is lawfully provided, and the funds are deposited therein, the treasurer of the school district and his bondsmen shall be relieved from any liability occasioned by the failure of the bank or banks of deposit or by the failure of the sureties therefor, or by the failure of either of them, except as above provided in cases of excessive deposits."

You do not say in your statement, and it is immaterial for our present purpose, whether or not the board of education had provided a depository for the funds of the district as provided by law. It is sufficient that the board of education had not provided for the deposit of the funds of the district in the Butler bank, under the provisions of sections 7604 to 7608, inclusive. That the treasurer may be relieved from liability occasioned by the failure of the depository provided, or the sureties therefor, there must be shown a strict compliance with every requirement of the statutes providing relief from such liability.

Answering your question, I am, therefore, of the opinion that the treasurer and his bondsmen are liable for the loss sustained by the failure of the bank, under the circumstances stated by you, and from this it necessarily follows that the board of education is not bound by the conduct of the treasurer in depositing funds of a district in a bank not provided as a depository for such funds by the board of education, according to law.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

A PRIOR EXISTING BONDED INDEBTEDNESS OF A SCHOOL DISTRICT IS A CHARGE UPON THE PROPERTY ONLY OF THE DISTRICT CREATING IT.

Prior existing bonded indebtedness of a school district is a charge upon the property only of the district creating it, and may not become a charge upon the property of a district formed by the union of two districts under the provisions of sections 4735-1 and 4735-2, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of a letter from Hon. Charles F. Adams, prosecuting attorney, Elyria, Ohio, under date of January 18, 1915, requesting an opinion upon the following subject:

"The union school district in La Grange township desires to unite with the rural district of said township; the union school district has now outstanding bonds, and is about to issue additional bonds in the sum of $5,000 to be used in providing additional school buildings for the union school district.

"In the event that the union is effected after a vote of the people, would the redemption of the bonds of the union district issued prior to the consolidation of the two school districts, be a burden upon the whole territory then constituting the district, or upon that portion of the territory formerly embraced in the union school district?"

This inquiry involves a consideration of sections 4735-1 and 4735-2, G. C., as found in 104 O. L., at page 138. They are as follows:

"Section 4735-1. When a petition signed by not less than one-fourth of the electors residing within the territory constituting a rural school district, praying that the rural district be dissolved and joined to a contiguous rural or village district is presented to the board of education of such district; or when such a board, by a majority vote of the full membership thereof, shall decide to submit the question to dissolve and join a contiguous rural or village district, the board shall fix the time of holding such election at a special or general election. The clerk of the board of such district shall notify the deputy state supervisors of elections, of the date of such election and the purposes thereof, and such deputy state supervisors shall provide therefor. The clerk of the board of education shall post notices thereof in five public places within the district. The result shall be determined by a majority vote of such electors.

"Section 4735-2. The legal title of the property of the rural school district, in case such rural district is dissolved and joined to a rural or village district as provided in section 4735-1, shall become vested in the board of education of the rural or village school district to which such district is joined. The school fund of such dissolved rural district shall become a part of the fund of the rural or village school district which it voted to join. The dissolution of such district shall not be complete until the board of education of the district has provided for the payment of any indebtedness that may exist."

I assume that the term "union school district in La Grange township" refers to a rural school district that has been formed by the union in some time past, of two or more separate districts. If this be true, then the proposed union of the "union school district of La Grange township" and La Grange township rural school district, merely means the union of two rural school districts as now constituted under favor of the provisions of the new school code, found in 104 O. L., page 133, et seq. I call your attention to that portion of section 4375-2 (104 O. L. 136), which provides:

"The dissolution of such district shall not be complete until the board of education of the district has provided for the payment of any indebtedness that may exist."

I take this to refer to the board of education of the district which is to dissolve (in this case the union district of La Grange township) and that the payment of the existing indebtedness must be provided for before the union can be complete. Inasmuch as the question of the union of the two school districts is only submitted to the electors of the district which is to be dissolved and joined to the other district, I do not believe that the property of the district to which the dissolved district is to be united could be held liable for the payment of any indebtedness, when the same was incurred without any action on the part of the electors of the district to which the dissolved district is to be joined.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that in the event of a union between the "union school district of La Grange township" and La Grange township rural school district, that the entire property of the united district could not be held subject to the payment of the indebtedness incurred by the union school district of La Grange township, prior to the amalgamation, but on the contrary the property of "the union school district of La Grange township" alone would be subject to the payment of the prior created indebtedness.

Yours very truly,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

PETITION CONTAINING A REQUEST TO IMPROVE A ROAD WITH CERTAIN SPECIFIED MATERIALS SHOULD BE REFUSED BY THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS, UNLESS THE COMMISSIONERS ARE WILLING TO MAKE THE IMPROVEMENT ACCORDING TO THE MATERIAL SPECIFIED IN PETITION.

When a petition to the county commissioners for a road improvement, under sections 6956-1 to 6956-21, inclusive, G. C., contains a request that said road be improved with a certain specified material named therein, the commissioners are warranted in refusing to consider said petition and such refusal is the only safe course for them to pursue, unless the commissioners are willing to make the improvement with the exact material named in the petition. Should action be taken by the commissioners upon such a petition, they would be bound by the stipulation in the petition as to the character of material to be used in the improvement.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. F. J. BISHOP, Prosecuting Attorney, Jefferson, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of January 27, 1915, in which you inquire as to whether, when a petition, for the improvement of a road by paving the same, is filed with the county commissioners under sections 6956-1 to 6956-21 inclusive, of the General Code, and contains a request that said road be improved with a certain specified material named therein, then can the commissioners depart from the material specified in the petition and order the improvement made with other and entirely different material.

In reply to your inquiry, I desire to call your attention to the case of the Board of County Commissioners of Franklin County v. The State ex rel. Thrailkill, 88 O. S., 607. Unfortunately, there is no report available of the decision of the supreme court in this case. In this case a petition was filed with the board of county commissioners of Franklin county under sections 6956-1 to 6956-21 inclusive, of the General Code, containing with other pertinent matters, a request to the commissioners "to repair and improve such road by grading and graveling the same with gravel procured near the line of said road." The county commissioners refused to take any action upon this petition for the reason that they regarded the effort of the petitioners to stipulate the material to be used, as an unwarranted attempt to interfere with and control the discretion vested in the commissioners. Mr. M. E. Thrailkill sought by mandamus to compel the commissioners to act upon this petition, and the case being carried to the supreme court, the contention of the county commissioners was fully sustained.

The petition to the county commissioners in the case referred to by you, contained the following provision: "Description of kind of road desired: This road shall be a seven-inch concrete with a tar top," and you state that the commissioners propose to ignore this request and pave the road with brick.

In view of the decision in the case above cited, it is my opinion that the petition presented to your board of county commissioners cannot be regarded as correct in form and substance under sections 6956-1 to 6956-21, inclusive, of the General Code. Being incorrect in form and substance, the petition must be regarded as invalid, and the only safe course for the board of county commissioners is to refuse to act thereon, for the reason that the petition attempts to control the discretion of the county commissioners in selecting the material with which the improvement is to be made.

It is not quite clear, however, from your statement of facts, whether or not the commissioners have already taken action upon the petition referred to in your letter. Should action be taken by the commissioners upon the petition in question, it is my opinion that the commissioners would be bound by the stipulation in the petition, as to the character of material to be used in the improvement. It is true that section 6956-2 of the General Code, provides that: "The commissioners shall determine * * * the kind and extent of the improvement or repairs," but in accepting a petition requesting that the improvement be made with a certain material designated therein, the only logical conclusion would seem to be that the commissioners must be held to have exercised their discretion as to selecting the material, at the time and by the act of receiving, considering and acting upon the petition. Any other conclusion might produce results which appeal to me as unconscionable, for a different conclusion would produce a state of law where persons might be willing to have constructed and might petition for an improvement built from gravel or other inexpensive material, and in petitioning for the same and stipulating the material, confer upon the commissioners authority to build an improvement using brick or other expensive material.

I desire to reiterate the statement, however, that the only safe course for the commissioners to pursue under the state of facts presented by you, is to refuse to take any action whatever on the petition.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WHEN A BANK STOCKHOLDER MAY VOTE.

A bank stockholder who has paid the first fifty per cent. of his stock subscription may vote the whole number of shares subscribed by him, provided he is not in default in payment of any monthly installment due upon his stock.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. GEORGE WALTERS, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of January 27, 1915, in which you submit the following request for opinion:

> "Section 9710 of the General Code, provides among other things that after the first fifty per cent. of the capital stock has been paid in, and the bank has been authorized to commence business, the remaining fifty per cent. shall be payable in monthly installments of at least ten per cent. on each share, as provided in section 9716.
> "It often happens that after a bank has been authorized to begin business, and before all the monthly installments have been paid in, stockholders' meetings are held.
> "Please render to this office an opinion as to whether or not a stockholder can vote the whole number of shares subscribed and being paid by him, providing he has not defaulted in the payment of any monthly installment."

Sections 9710, 9711, 9712 and 9713, General Code, providing for subscription to stock of banks and the method of organization of such banks, are as follows:

"Section 9710: The persons named in the articles of incorporation of any such company, or a majority of them, shall order books to be opened for subscription to the capital stock of the company in the manner provided for other corporations. An installment of ten per cent. on each share of stock shall be payable at the time of making the subscription, and an installment of forty per cent. on each share of stock shall be payable as soon thereafter as may be required by the board of directors, the remaining fifty per cent. being payable in the manner hereinafter required.

"Section 9711. As soon as the capital stock of such corporation is fully subscribed and ten per cent. thereof paid in, the subscribers of the articles of incorporation, or a majority of them, shall so certify in writing to the secretary of state, and thereupon give notice to the stockholders, in the manner provided for other corporations, to meet for the purpose of choosing not less than five nor more than thirty directors, who shall continue in office until the time fixed for the annual election, and until their successors are elected and qualified. But if all subscribers are present in persons or by proxy, such notice may be waived in writing.

"Section 9712. At the time and place appointed, directors shall be chosen in the manner provided for other corporations.

"Section 9713. Unless the regulations of the corporation otherwise provide an annual election for directors shall be held on the second Wednesday of January of each year. If for any cause, directors are not elected at the annual meeting or other meeting called for that purpose, they may be chosen in the manner provided for other corporations."

From these sections it follows that the stockholder who has paid ten per cent. of his stock subscription, may vote at least on matters incidental and necessarily preliminary to the organization of such corporation.

Sections 9715 and 9716 are as follows:

"Section 9715. No such corporation shall transact business except such as is incidental and necessarily preliminary to its organization, until it has been authorized by the superintendent of banks.

"Section 9716. The entire capital stock of such corporation shall be subscribed and at least fifty per cent. of each share paid in before it may be authorized to commence business. The remainder of its capital stock shall be paid in in monthly installments of at least ten per cent. each on the whole amount of the capital, payable, at the end of each succeeding month from the time it is authorized by the superintendent of banks to commence business. The payment of each installment shall be certified under oath to the superintendent of banks by the president, secretary, treasurer, or cashier of such corporation."

Under the provisions of the two preceding sections all the capital stock of such corporation must be subscribed and fifty per cent. thereof paid in before the company is authorized to commence business. The natural inference, therefore, is that a stockholder may vote after paying in fifty per cent. of his stock unless otherwise limited or restricted by law. If this were not true a bank could not in reality commence business until at least a part of the stockholders had paid in the full amount of their stock, as there would be no one to authorize action by vote.

Section 9714 provides:

"In all other respects, such corporation shall be created, organized, governed and conducted in the manner provided by law for other corporations insofar as not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter."

Section 8636, relating to corporations generally, is as follows:

"At the time and place appointed, directors shall be chosen by ballot, by the stockholders who attend, either in person or by lawful proxies. At such and all other elections of directors, each stockholder shall have the right to vote in person or by proxy the number of shares owned by him for as many persons as there are directors to be elected, or to cumulate his shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors multiplied by the number of his shares of stock equals, or to distribute them on the same principal among as many candidates as he thinks fit. Such directors shall not be elected in any other manner. A majority of the number of shares shall be necessary for a choice, but no person shall vote on a share on which an installment is due and unpaid."

It follows, therefore, that a stockholder of a banking corporation cannot vote when he is in default for payment of any installment due on his stock. There seems, however, to be no other provision of law denying the right of such a stockholder to vote because the stock is not fully paid up.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the stockholder of a bank who has paid fifty per cent. on each share of his stock and is not in default for payment of any monthly installment on the remaining fifty per cent. may vote the whole number of shares subscribed and standing in his name on the books of the company.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

INSURANCE COMPANIES MAY WRITE INSURANCE AGAINST LOSS OR DAMAGE TO PLATE GLASS RESULTING FROM INUNDATION.

Insurance companies, operating under the provisions of paragraph 2, section 9510, G. C., and licensed by the superintendent of insurance may write insurance against loss or damage to plate glass resulting from inundation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. PRICE RUSSELL, Superintendent of Insurance, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of January 25, 1915, together with enclosures therein mentioned which letter is as follows:

"Enclosed you will find correspondence from the Metropolitan Casualty Company, of New York, relative to its authority to write insurance in the state of Ohio against loss or damage to plate glass resulting from inundation, also you will find enclosed their policy forms Nos. 1 and 2. The license issued to the Metropolitan Casualty Company of New York, dated March 1, 1914, and expiring March 1, 1915, authorizes it to.

"transact in this state, its appropriate business of making insurance on the health of individuals and against personal injury, disablement or death, resulting from traveling or general accidents by land and water; making insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to property from cause other than fire or lightning, as prescribed by section 9510, paragraph second, General Code of Ohio, in accordance with law.

"The import of the enclosed letter is that the Metropolitan Casualty Company claims to have authority, under paragraph 2 of section 9510, General Code, Laws of Ohio, to write insurance in the state of Ohio against loss or damage to plate glass resulting from inundation. It is my opinion, that this authority, if granted at all, is granted by that part of said paragraph 2, as follows:

" 'Make insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to property from cause other than fire or lightning.'

"I am also enclosing a letter and form policy from Lloyd's Plate Glass Insurance Company of New York, covering the same proposition. The license issued to Lloyd's Plate Glass Insurance Company as of March 1, 1914, and expiring March 1, 1915, authorizes it to " 'transact in this state its appropriate business of making insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to property from cause other than fire or lightning; i. e., plate glass, as provided in section 9510, paragraph second, General Code of Ohio, in accordance with laws.'

"The contention of the one company is of the same character as that of the other.

"We ask that you kindly give the above subject-matter your consideration, and apprise this department accordingly."

Section 9510, General Code, so far as it is pertinent to your inquiry, is as follows:

"A company may be organized or admitted under this chapter to:

"1. * * *.

"2. Make insurance on the health of individuals and against personal injury, disablement or death, resulting from traveling or general accidents by land and water; make insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to property from cause other than fire or lightning; * * *."

The answer to your question is purely a matter of statutory construction and involves the meaning of the word "accident" as used in the section of the General Code above quoted. "Accident" as defined in the Standard dictionary is:

"Anything that happens, an occurrence, anything occurring unexpectedly, a contingency, calamity, casualty or disaster."

According to Webster it is:

"A happening by chance, or unexpectedly, taking place not according to the usual occurrence of things."

In view of the above definition, an "inundation" is clearly an accident.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that both the Metropolitan Casualty Company of New York and the Lloyd's Plate Glass Insurance Company of New York, under authority of section 9510, General Code, as well as by the terms of their respective licenses to operate in Ohio, may write insurance in Ohio against loss or damage to plate glass resulting from inundation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PURCHASE OF REAL ESTATE BY ARMORY BOARD.

Ohio state armory board cannot purchase real estate except from moneys specially appropriated for that purpose. Buildings worth at least $17,500 held to be real estate. Appropriations to "state armory fund" are to be made from "state military fund" provided for in section 5265, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO February 2, 1915.

COL. BYRON L. BARGAR, Secretary of Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of January 22, 1915, which is as follows:

> "Pursuant to the proceedings indicated by the attached file, which relates to the contemplated purchase of the buildings known as the Cincinnati Riding Academy on condition that the lands pertaining thereto be donated to the state, the auditor of state's office and the armory board have encountered the following difficulty:
> "The money wherewith this purchase of buildings is to be made is now in the fund known as 'maintenance F.' Under the laws known as 'the 1914 general appropriation bill' restrictions as to the use of the funds of 'maintenance F' seem to inhibit the purchase of real estate therefrom.
> "Now, the option of the Seton Realty Company herewith submitted proposes to donate the lands of the Riding Academy, if the buildings are purchased for $17,500.00. These buildings are now located on the lands to be donated. The auditor of state suggests that these buildings are real estate and cannot therefore be purchased from funds in 'maintenance F' without a resolution of the legislature or other legislative action properly transferring the necessary amount to subdivision 'H' of the classification provided for in said laws.
> "An opinion is therefore requested as to whether or not the proposed purchase can be made without such legislative action. If such legislative action is necessary we request that you draw a proper resolution or act which will make available the sum of $17,500.00 now in 'maintenance F' for the purchase mentioned in said option.
> "We would further request instructions as to the right of the armory board to take the action contemplated and tentatively approved, as per memorandum hereto attached and made December 26, 1914."

In your letter you request an opinion as to whether or not the proposed purchase of the Cincinnati Riding Academy can be made without legislative action, and in reply I beg to advise that, in view of the provisions of the act "to make general appropriations and to repeal house bill No. 670, approved May 9, 1913

(103 O. L., 627) entitled "an act to make general appropriations" in which it is provided in section 3, under the head of "state board of accountancy" at page 72, Laws of Ohio, vol. 104, among other things, that:

> "The moneys appropriated in section 1 of this act under the general headings of 'personal service,' 'maintenance,' or under like designation, to each department, institution, board or commission, shall be and constitute the summary controlling account, and shall be expended only in accordance with such detailed classifications as are provided in said budget, and as provided in section 5 of this act, except as hereinafter in this section provided."

and the further provisions contained in section 5 of the same act, on page 73, vol. 104, Laws of Ohio, which are as follows:

> "No money appropriated in section 1 of this act shall be drawn except in accordance with the detailed classifications of the budget of authorized expenditures, and upon a requisition or voucher presented to the auditor, approved by the head of a department or by the trustees of an institution or by the members of a board or commission, or by an officer or employe of such department, institution, board or commission, specially designated by resolution or order to approve and present such requisition or voucher, a copy of which resolution or order shall be filed with the auditor of state. Such requisitions or vouchers shall set forth, in itemized form and specify the budgetary classification of, the service rendered, or material furnished, or expenses incurred, and the date of purchase, and time of service, and showing that competitive bids were secured or that it was an emergency requiring purchase; and all institutions, boards, commissions and departments to which appropriations are herein made shall render to the auditor of state an itemized account of such receipts and expenditures, as may be required by the auditor of state; and such institutions, boards, commissions or departments shall be subject to inspection by the auditor of state; and it shall be the duty of the auditor of state to see that these provisions are complied with."

The money in the fund known as "maintenance F" cannot be used for the purpose desired. In your letter you call attention to the fact that the auditor of state has suggested that the buildings are "real estate" and cannot therefore be purchased from the fund in "maintenance F" without a resolution of the legislature or other legislative action. properly transferring the necessary amount to subdivision H of the classification provided for in said laws. While there is nothing in your letter which attempts to describe or classify the buildings known as the "Cincinnati Riding Academy" the fact that the buildings are represented as being of the value of at least $17,500.00 prevents an escape from the conclusion that they are of a permanent nature such as, of course, would bring them within the classification of "real estate," and in view of the provisions of the act which places all appropriations for real estate under the classification or subdivision H, there is no provision contained in that part of the appropriation for the Ohio national guard which could be used for the purchase of real estate.

It is therefore my opinion that the position taken by the auditor of state is correct and that the only course left which will enable you to exercise the option of the Setin Realty Company which provides for the donation of the land upon which the buildings of the Cincinnati Riding Academy are located upon the payment of $17,500.00 for the buildings, is through the enactment of legislation making special provision therefor.

You further ask to be advised as to whether or not the armory board has the right to take the action contemplated and tentatively approved, and in reply to this matter your attention is invited to the provisions of section 5255 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "The board shall provide armories for the purpose of drill and for the safekeeping of arms, clothing, equipments, and other military property issued to the several organizations of organized militia, and may purchase or build suitable buildings for armory purposes when, in its judgment, it is for the best interests of the state so to do. The board shall provide for the management, care and maintenance of armories and may adopt and prescribe such rules and regulations for the management, government and guidance of the organizations occupying them as may be necessary and desirable."

From a reading of the section just quoted, it is my opinion that you have the right to purchase all the property under consideration when the appropriation for the payment of the same shall be made available by an act of the legislature.

Unless there be some special reason requiring it, I prefer not to draft bills or resolutions to be presented to the general assembly, and therefore suggest that in the absence of such condition you proceed with the preparation of the bill yourself, if you desire to take that course. For your further information, and to guide you in the preparation of an appropriate bill to be presented to the general assembly, your attention is called to the provisions of section 5268 of the General Code, as follows:

> "From the 'state armory fund' the board shall provide armories by leasing, purchasing or constructing as provided in this chapter."

The appropriations to the "state armory fund" shall be made under the provisions of section 5266 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "The general assembly shall appropriate annually, and divide into two funds, the amount authorized by the preceding section. Such funds shall be respectively known as the 'state armory fund' and 'maintenance Ohio national guard fund.'"

In this connection, your attention is called to the provisions of section 5265 of the General Code for the segregation of a special fund to be known as the "state military fund" from which fund the appropriations contemplated under section 5266 shall be made. Section 5265 is as follows:

> "The auditor of state shall credit to the 'state military fund' from the general revenues of the state, a sum equal to ten cents for each person who was a resident of the state, as shown by the last preceding federal census. Such fund shall be a continuous fund and available only for the support of the organized militia. It shall not be diverted to any other fund or used for any other purpose."

Respectfully yours,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBER TO TAX COMMISSION OF OHIO MUST BE CONFIRMED BY THE SENATE.

Appointment of a member of the tax commission of Ohio must be confirmed by the senate at its session after the appointment.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 2, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR SIR:—You request my opinion as to whether the appointment of Christian Pabst to membership on the tax commission of Ohio, in February, 1914, under authority of the emergency act of February 6, 1914, requires confirmation by the senate.

On May 10, 1910, the general assembly of the state of Ohio passed an act to create a tax commission of Ohio, 101 O. L., p. 339. The first section of this act (section 5445 of the General Code) provides that the governor shall appoint the three commissioners provided for in the said act, and provides for the appointment of their successors in the following language:

> "A tax commission is hereby created, to be known as the tax commission of Ohio, to be composed of three commissioners, electors of the state, not more than two of whom at any time shall be of the same political party. On or before July 1, 1910, the governor shall appoint such commissioners as follows: The term of one such appointee, who shall belong to the same political party as one of the other members appointed on such commission, if there be two appointees from the same political party, shall terminate on the second Monday of February, 1911; the term of the second such appointee shall terminate on the second Monday of February, 1912, the term of the third such appointee shall terminate on the second Monday of February, 1913. In February, 1911, and annually thereafter, in the month of February, there shall be appointed in the same manner, one commissioner for the term of three years, from the second Monday of February of such year. Each commissioner so appointed shall hold his office until a successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy on the commission shall be filled by appointment of the governor for the unexpired term. No appointee shall be qualified to act until after his appointment has been confirmed by the senate, unless appointed during a recess or adjournment of the senate."

These three commissioners were to be appointed by the governor on or before July 1, 1910, and the term of one such appointee terminated on the second Monday of February, 1911, and his successor appointed for a term of three years, ending on the second Monday of February, 1914. This is the position in question.

On May 31, 1911, the general assembly passed an act, being section 1465-1 of the General Code, section 1 of which provides that:

> "Between the first day and the second Monday of February, 1913, and biennially thereafter, the governor shall appoint one member of the tax commission of Ohio for the term of six years from the second Monday of February of such year."

This section repeals that portion of section 1 of the act of May 10, 1910, to the extent that it changes the length of the term from three to six years, making biennial instead of annual appointments, and changes the dates of the beginning of the terms expiring on the second Monday of February, 1914, as hereafter appears. A portion of the said original section 1, remaining unrepealed and applicable to the question, reads as follows:

> "The commissioner so appointed shall hold his office until a successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy on the commission shall be filled by the governor for the unexpired term. No appointee shall be qualified to act until after his appointment has been confirmed by the senate, unless appointed during a recess or adjournment of the senate."

Section 1 of the act of May 31, 1911, repealed the authority of the governor to make an appointment of a successor to the member whose term expired on the second Monday of February, 1914, as provided in section 1 of the act of May 10, 1910, but did confer upon the governor the power to make such appointment between the first day and the second Monday of February, 1915; hence the hiatus from the second Monday in February, 1914, to the second Monday in February, 1915, which the legislature evidently overlooked in the change of the terms of office of the commissioners.

Later on the legislature noted this omission and sought to remedy the same by an emergency act of February 6, 1914, section 1 of which, at page 199 of vol. 104, Ohio Laws (being section 1465-1a, G. C.) reads as follows:

> "That within fifteen days after the passage of this act the governor is hereby authorized to appoint one member of the tax commission of Ohio, to serve for the term of three years, commencing at the expiration of the term now held by the incumbent whose term will expire the second Monday in February, 1914. And that thereafter appointments to said commission shall be made in compliance with section 1465-1 of the General Code."

Under this emergency act, the governor appointed one member of the tax commission of Ohio to serve for three years commencing at the expiration of the term held by the incumbent whose term would expire on the second Monday of February, 1914, but he did not send the name of such appointee to the senate for confirmation, nor has the name of such appointee been at any time sent to the senate for confirmation.

As we have seen from section 1 of the original act of May 10, 1910: "no appointee shall be qualified to act until after his appointment is confirmed by the senate, unless appointed during a recess or adjournment of the senate.

In connection with this specific legislation on the subject, it is helpful to consider section 12 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "When a vacancy in an office filled by appointment of the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, occurs by expiration of term or otherwise during a session of the senate, the governor shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, and forthwith report such appointment to the senate. If such vacancy occurs when the senate is not in session, and no appointment has been made and confirmed in anticipation of such vacancy, the governor shall fill the vacancy and report the appointment to the next session of the senate, and, if the senate advise and consent thereto, such appointee shall hold the office for the full term, otherwise a new appointment shall be made."

The emergency act of February 6, 1914, does not repeal or modify either directly or by implication those provisions of the law under which this appointment is required to be confirmed by the senate, unless appointed during a recess or adjournment of the senate. Had this emergency act not been passed, this commissioner whose term was to expire on the second Monday in February, 1914, would have continued to serve until his successor was duly appointed and qualified; but under this emergency act, the governor was required to make the appointment in question within fifteen days after the passage of the act. The act was passed February 6, 1914, and approved on February 17, 1914. Subsequent to this, and within fifteen days, the governor made the appointment of Christian Pabst, being the position in question. We find that the legislature adjourned sine die on February 16, 1914, being one day prior to the act's becoming a law and authorizing the governor to make the said appointment thereunder. The appointment was, therefore, a recess appointment.

Section 12 of the General Code, above quoted, provides that when a vacancy occurs during a recess or adjournment of the senate,

> "the governor shall fill the vacancy and report the appointment to the next session of the senate, and if the senate advise and consent thereto, such appointee shall hold the office for the full term, otherwise a new appointment shall be made."

It therefore becomes the duty of the appointing governor to report the appointment to the next session of the senate after the same was made. The next session of the senate was the result of the governor of the state of Ohio having called the general assembly in extraordinary session during the summer of 1914, by virtue of constitutional authority therefor in him vested, found in section 8 of article III of the constittution, as follows:

> "The governor on extraordinary occasions may convene the general assembly by proclamation and shall state in the proclamation the purpose for which such special session is called, and no other business shall be transacted at such special session except that named in the proclamation, or in a subsequent public proclamation or message to the general assembly issued by the governor during said special session, but the general assembly may provide for the expenses of the session and other matters incidental thereto."

Was the reporting of this appointment to the senate by the governor such a duty as that he could have or should have done so to the senate during the extraordinary session of the general assembly convened under this constitutional provision? It is the senate that is to advise and consent to such recess appointment and not the general assembly.

Without expressing at length the reasoning by which I arrive at the conclusion, I deem it sufficient here to express my conclusion that the governor should have reported this appointment to the senate during this extraordinary session of the general assembly, but if it were a question as to whether this report was to be made to the next session of the general assembly when the next session is an extraordinary session, limited in its work to the boundaries fixed by the governor in his call therefor, that question would be removed in this case for the reason that the general assembly was in regular constitutional session during the incumbency of the appointing governer and the name of this appointee was not sent to the senate for confirmation by him.

It therefore follows that, the appointment made under the emergency act of February 6, 1914, being one that should have been reported to and confirmed by the senate, and such report and confirmation not having been made, a new appointment shall be made by you as governor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL ERECTED MAY BE MAINTAINED, ALTHOUGH THE COUNTY JOINS IN THE ERECTION OF A DISTRICT HOSPITAL.

A county tuberculosis hospital erected prior to the enactment of section 3141, G. C., may be maintained by county commissioners notwithstanding their action in joining with other counties in the erection of a district hospital under the provisions of section 3148, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 494. Limitation to such maintenance is to be measured by funds available for that purpose.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 3, 1915.

E. F. MCCAMPBELL, M. D., Secretary and Executive Officer of The State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of January 22, which is as follows:

> "Under the authority of section 3148, G. C., (O. L., 103, p. 494) the commissioners of five counties have united in the construction of a 'district tuberculosis hospital' which recently has been opened to patients. The capacity of the hospital is eighty beds. The trustees have allotted to each county interested the number of beds to which the county is entitled, based upon the proportion of the amount assessed against the county for the initial cost. In one of the counties interested, the quota is seventeen beds and it is estimated that there are fifty or more cases of tuberculosis in the county seat alone. At the present time, there are in the county hospital for tuberculosis maintained thirty patients.
> "A local charity organization society has petitioned the county commissioners to continue the county tuberculosis hospital and to also send to the district hospital as many patients as the county may be entitled to, but the county commissioners have held that the county hospital will have to be abandoned, giving as a reason that the commissioners may not legally maintain the county hospital and at the same time assist in the maintenance of the district hospital.
> "Query. Can the county commissioners legally maintain the county hospital in addition to paying the pro rata share of the county in the support of the district hospital?
> "Informally, I may add, that I have advised that the county must first exhaust its resources at the district hospital and in addition take advantage of any vacancies that may exist due to the failure of other counties interested to avail themselves of the opportunity of using the hospital, before the commissioners would be warranted in continuing the county hospital."

Replying to your inquiry as to whether the county commissioners can legally maintain the county hospital in addition to paying the pro rata share of the county in support of the district hospital, I beg to call your attention to the provisions of section 3140, as amended in 103 O. L., 492, which are as follows:

> "Whenever complaint is made to the state board of health that a person is being kept or maintained in any county infirmary in violation of section 3139 of this act, such state board of health may make arrangements for the maintenance of such person in some hospital or other institution in this state devoted to the care and treatment of cases of tuberculosis, and the cost of removal to, and the cost of maintenance of, such person in such hospital or institution shall become a legal charge against, and be paid by the county in which such person has a legal residence. If such person is not a legal resident of this state, then such expense shall be paid by the county maintaining the infirmary from which removal is made."

To carry out the provisions of section 3139 of the General Code, as amended on page 492 of 103 Ohio Laws, as follows:

"On and after January first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, no person suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, commonly known as consumption, shall be kept in any county infirmary," it is provided in section 3141 of the General Code as amended on page 492 of 103 Ohio Laws that:

"In any county where a county hospital for tuberculosis has been erected such county hospital for tuberculosis may be maintained by the county commissioners, and for the purpose of maintaining such hospital the county commissioners shall annually levy a tax and set aside the sum necessary for such maintenance. Such sum shall not be used for any other purpose."

The purpose of the act referred to is primarily to segregate persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis and to remove them from the county infirmaries. The provisions heretofore quoted empower the county commissioners to maintain a county hospital where erected for that purpose, but in order to afford a broader scope for carrying out the purposes of the act provision is made for the establishment of a district hospital for the care and treatment of persons suffering from pulmanory tuberculosis in section 3148 of the General Code, as amended on page 494 of 103 Ohio Laws, as follows:

"The commissioners of any two or more counties not to exceed ten, may form themselves into a joint board for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a district hospital, provided there is no municipal tuberculosis hospital therein for the care and treatment of persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis (commonly called consumption) or laryngeal tuberculosis, and may provide the necessary funds for the purchase of a site, which site shall be separate and apart from the infirmary boundaries in any county and also may provide for the erection of the necessary buildings thereon; and provided further that where any number of counties have already constructed and are operating a district tuberculosis hospital, other counties may join such counties for enlargement and use of such hospital. Any new district or addition to a district shall be approved by the state board of health."

The authority for the erection of a county tuberculosis hospital originally is to be found in the provisions of section 1, of an act "to provide for county hospitals" to be found on page 486 of volume 89 of the Ohio Laws. The provisions contained in section 1 of the act aforesaid were repealed in an act, found on page 86, vol. 100 of the Ohio Laws, entitled:

"To amend sections 1 and 2 of an act 'to provide for county hospitals for the care and treatment of inmates of county infirmaries and other residents of the county suffering from tuberculosis,' passed April 2, 1908, and to supplement said act by adding thereto sections 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10, to provide for district hospitals."

and in section 2 of the act it is provided, on page 86, Ohio Laws, vol. 100, that:

"The board of county commissioners are hereby authorized and may construct in each county a suitable building or buildings, which shall be separate and apart from the infirmary buildings, to be known as the county hospital for tuberculosis; and they shall also provide for the proper furnishing and equipment of said hospital; provided that there is not already established a hospital in the county for treatment and maintenance of tuberculosis patients; and wherever in any county funds are not available to carry out the provisions of this act, the county commissioners shall levy for that purpose and set aside the sum necessary, which shall not be used for any other purpose, and the commissioners of the county may issue and sell the bonds of said county in anticipation of said levy, and the provisions of section 2825 of the Revised Statutes, relating to the construction of public buildings and bridges, as amended May 9, 1908, shall not apply to county hospitals for tuberculosis provided for herein. The infirmary directors shall provide for the treatment, care and maintenance of patients received at said county hospital, and for necessary nurses and attendants, and all expenses so incurred shall be audited and paid as are other expenditures, for county infirmary purposes. An accurate account shall be kept of all moneys received from patients or other sources, which shall be applied toward the payment of maintaining said county hospital; and the infirmary directors shall have authority to receive for the use of such hospital gifts, legacies, demises or conveyances of property, real or personal, that may be made, given or granted for the use of said county hospital, or in its name, or in the name of said directors."

The provisions of section 2 of the act quoted above are carried into sections 3140 and 3141 of the General Code. Section 3141 of the General Code hereinbefore referred to is repealed in an act entitled,

"To amend sections * * * of the General Code of Ohio, relating to county and district tuberculosis hospitals," found on page 492 of vol. 103 Ohio Laws, and in its stead is re-enacted section 3141, on page 492, vol. 103 Ohio Laws, in the following language:

"In any county where a county hospital for tuberculosis has been erected such county hospital for tuberculosis may be maintained by the county commissioners, and for the purpose of maintaining such hospital the county commissioners shall annually levy a tax and set aside the sum necessary for such maintenance. Such sum shall not be used for any other purpose."

From a perusal of the statutes governing the county tuberculosis hospitals, it will be noted that whereas in the past the county commissioners have had authority to erect and maintain such hospitals under the provisions of section 3141, quoted above, the authority to maintain such county hospital for tuberculosis is continued in any county where a county hospital for tuberculosis has been erected, provision being made in the section therefor.

In your letter you refer to the fact that under the authority of section 3148 of the General Code, as amended in Ohio Laws, vol. 103, page 94, the commissioners of five counties have united in the erection of a district tuberculosis hospital, and in answer to your inquiry as to whether the county commissioners can legally maintain the county hospital in addition to paying the pro rata share of the county to maintain a district hospital, it is my opinion that in view of the provisions of section 3141 referred to above, the legislature clearly expressed the intention to authorize the commissioners to maintain county hospitals which had been erected prior to the passage of the act "to amend sections 3139 to 3149, both inclusive, and sections 3151, 3152 and 3153 of the General Code of Ohio, relating to county and district tuberculosis hospitals," found on pages 492 et seq., of vol. 103 Laws of Ohio. It would seem that the only limitations in the conduct of such county hospitals would be measured by the funds available for that purpose.

Very respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ADDENDA.

February 2, 1915.

Under the foregoing opinion it is not to be assumed that county commissioners are obliged to continue or maintain county hospitals for tuberculosis after joining in the erection of a district hospital. In the light of information received from an officer relative to the particular hospital under consideration, there may be ample grounds for its abandonment on the ground that its continuance would not be conducive to the health of the inmates. It is to be borne in mind that section 3141 of the General Code (O. L., 103, page 492) is a permissive statute under which county commissioners may care for patients for whom there may be no provision in the district hospital.

BRASS KNUCKLES ARE "DANGEROUS WEAPONS"—INDICTMENT SHOULD STATE APPROXIMATELY THE TIME THAT THE OFFENSE IS ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN COMMITTED.

Brass knuckles come within the term "dangerous weapons" as used in section 12819, G. C.

Where time is not of the essence of the offense, an indictment should state at least approximately the time that the offense is alleged to have been committed so that the defendant may be prepared to meet the evidence of the state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 3, 1915.

HON. A. B. UNDERWOOD, Prosecuting Attorney, Medina, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your request for opinion as follows:

> "1st. Are brass knuckles included within the term "dangerous weapons," as used in 12819, G. C., and do they fall within the prohibition of this section, against the carrying of concealed weapons?

"2nd. An indictment returned by the grand jury in this county, at the January term charges one Allex Kovois, with cutting and stabbing, with the intent to wound, under section 12420, G. C., and states the crime to have been committed on or about the 22nd day of November, A. D., 1915, whereas the date should have been changed as on or about the 22nd day of November, A. D., 1914. Will this laying of the crime at a future date be a fatal defect in this indictment? Will not section 13581, G. C., and 12 O. D. (N. P.) 724, be a sufficient protection, and render it safe to go to trial on this indictment?"

Answering your first question: Brass knuckles are universally conceded to be included within the term "dangerous weapons." Numerous convictions have been had in the Franklin county courts upon an indictment under section 12819, General Code (R. S. 6893), for carrying brass knuckles concealed on or about the person of the defendant.

A "dangerous weapon" is defined in United States v. Williams, 2 Fed. 61, 64, as one liable to produce death or great bodily injury. This definition is adopted in United States v. Reeves, 38 Fed. 404-406.

It is a matter of common knowledge that great bodily injury and even death may be produced by the use of the weapon commonly known as "brass knuckles" and that this article is designed and used only for the purpose of producing death or bodily injury, and has no lawful use.

Answering your second inquiry: I am of the opinion that in alleging a crime it is necessary to show in the indictment that the crime occurred after the enactment of the statute making the act a crime, and prior to the rising of the grand jury.

I am not unmindful of the case of State v. Mulford, 12 Ohio Decisions, 720, in which it was held that alleging the date of the offense as "the 31st day of December, 1998," was not material, but the court finds that this particular count in the indictment contains sufficient to show the charging of a crime in the past tense. It should not be overlooked that this decision refers only to one count in an indictment, and that count in the indictment may have had some reference to other counts therein.

Neither am I unmindful of the provisions of section 13581, General Code, which provide:

"An indictment shall not be invalid * * * for omitting to state the time at which the offense was committed, in a case in which time is not of the essence of the offense."

While time is not of the essence of the offense to which your inquiry refers, yet the constitution provides in article 1, section 10, that:

"In any trial in any court the party accused shall be allowed * * * to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, and to have a copy thereof."

An indictment which attempts to lay the time and fix it at a period in the future, does not, in my opinion, sufficiently inform the accused of what he is expected to meet. Where time is not of the essence of an offense, it need not be stated exactly, but I am of the opinion, from my own experience as prosecuting attorney, that the accused has a right to know, at least approximately, the time that the offense is alleged to have been committed, so that he may be prepared to meet the evidence of the state.

I know it will be argued that "every defendant knows when he committed the offense," but the rules of criminal procedure are made for the protection of the innocent and it is of the first importance to my mind that the defendant should know, at least aproximately, the time that he is accused of committing the wrongful act.

My opinion, therefore, is that you ought either to reindict this defendant and then nolle the present indictment, or if there be a motion to quash pending and the court sustains that motion, you should have the court, under section 13624, General Code, commit the defendant, or hold him to bail for his appearance at the first day of the next term of court.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY ROADS—CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION 6945, G. C.—NEW MAXIMUM LEVY.

Section 6945, G. C., does not fix a total maximum levy for improved roads, but merely creates a new maximum levy for improved roads where the improvement is constructed in accordance with the provisions of the act of which said section 6945 is a part, said act being sections 6926 to 6956-a, inclusive, of the General Code, as amended, 103 O. L., 198 to 204.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 3, 1915.

HON. D. M. CUPP, Prosecuting Attorney, Delaware, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communications of January 20, 1915, and January 27, 1915, in which you request my opinion as to the construction to be placed on section 6945 of the General Code of Ohio, as amended in 103 O. L., page 198, 202.

As I understand your inquiry, the exact question raised by you is as follows:

> "Does section 6945 of the General Code fix the total maximum levy for improved roads at three mills, without regard to the law under which the roads are improved; or, does this section create a new maximum levy of three mills for roads improved under section 6926 to 6956-a, inclusive, of the General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., page 198 to 204, which levy shall be in addition to levies previously made under other laws for the improvement of roads?"

I am of the opinion that this question can best be answered by a reference to the exact language of the section in question.

Section 6945, General Code, reads as follows:

> "For the purpose of providing by general taxation a fund out of which not less than one-half nor more than two-thirds of the costs and expenses of all improvements made under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter can be paid, the commissioners are authorized to levy upon the taxable property of any township or townships within the county in which such improved road is to be or has been constructed, not exceeding three mills in any one year upon each dollar of the valuation of the taxable property in such township or townships. Such levies shall be in addition to all other levies authorized by law for township purposes, but subject to the maximum limitation upon the aggregate amount of all levies now in force."

You will note that under the terms of this section the three mill tax levy therein authorized is expressly limited to "the purpose of providing by general taxation a fund out of which not less than one-half nor more than two-thirds of the costs and expenses of all improvements made under the provisions of this subdivision of this chapter can be paid." The subdivision of the chapter referred to consists of sections 6926 to 6956-a, as amended in 103 O. L., pages 198 to 204.

Section 6956-a provides as follows:

"It is hereby declared the intention to provide an additional method for the laying out, construction, repair or improvement of any public road or any part thereof and for the straightening, widening, altering and draining of the same by the county commissioners, and the method provided herein shall be in addition to all other methods provided for by law, and it is not intended to and does not repeal any section or sections applying to a method for the improvement, construction or repair of any public highway, not here specifically repealed."

Expenditures from the levy provided for in section 6945 being limited to the making of improvements authorized by the act of which said section is a part, and said act containing a declaration that it was the intention of the legislature to provide an additional method of road construction and that the method therein provided should be in addition to all other methods provided by law, and that it was not intended to repeal any section or sections relating to road construction not specifically repealed, it follows, as a necessary conclusion, that the legislature did not intend to prevent the making of other levies for road purposes under other laws and that the section in question, to wit: Section 6945, does not, therefore, fix a total maximum levy for improved roads, but merely creates a new maximum levy for improved roads where the improvement is constructed in accordance with the provisions of the act of which said section 6945 is a part.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

A NEW COUNTY INFIRMARY BUILDING CANNOT BE CONSTRUCTED UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 2436, G. C., UNLESS THE OLD BUILDING IS DESTROYED BY FIRE OR OTHER CASUALTY.

A new county infirmary building to replace an old one cannot be constructed under the provisions of section 2436, G. C., unless old one is destroyed by fire or other casualty.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 3, 1915.

HON. C. ELLIS MOORE, Prosecuting Attorney, Cambridge, Ohio

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of February 1st, which is as follows:

"On May 2, 1912, Chief Building Inspector Kearns, directed a letter to Alex Arbuckle who was then the president of the board of infirmary directors of this county, reporting the result of his investigation of the Guernsey county infirmary.

"The county infirmary is in need of a new building because the present building is not fit for occupancy. I have been asked for an opinion as to whether a new building can be erected under section 2436 of the General Code without first submitting the matter for a vote of the people. I have given my opinion that it cannot be done since the building has become unfit for occupancy because of natural wear and tear rather than of any fire or other casualty. You understand that there has been no particular occurrence or accident but just the gradual decay of the building. By request, I am writing for your opinion upon this matter, and you can kindly write me at the earliest possible date as to what you think about the matter."

In your letter you ask whether or not a county infirmary can erect a new building to take the place of an old one, under the provisions of section 2436 of the General Code, which is as follows:

"For the purpose of rebuilding an infirmary, or court house, destroyed by fire, or other casualty, the commissioners of a county may appropriate money, levy tax, issue and sell bonds of such county in anticipation thereof, in an amount not to exceed fifty thousand dollars, without first submitting to the voters of said county, the question of rebuilding such infirmary or court house, appropriating such money, levying such tax and issuing and selling such bonds. And hereafter the county commissioners in the construction of all court houses and offices for county officials shall provide fireproof vaults therein in which shall be kept all the valuable records and documents belonging to the county. The provisions of section twenty-four hundred and forty-four, and fifty-six hundred and sixty of the General Code shall not apply to the making of any of the improvements mentioned in this section."

A reading of the section above quoted leaves but one conclusion and it is therefore my opinion that as your county infirmary building is not unfit for occupancy by reasons of fire or other casualty, the provisions of section 2436 of the General Code cannot be invoked for the purpose of erecting a new building.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MAY NOT CONTRACT TO ADMIT A PERSON TO THE INFIRMARY AT FUTURE DATE.

The county commissioners may not contract to admit a person to the county infirmary at a future date.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 4, 1915.

HON. JAMES F. FLYNN. JR., Prosecuting Attorney, Sandusky, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours of January 25, 1915, submitting therewith a copy of a proposed contract, as follows:

"Memorandum of agreement by and between Mr. Andrew F. P. Mahon, of Sandusky, Ohio, hereinafter known as the party of the first part, and the commissioners of Erie county, Ohio, located at _____, as parties of the second part.

"Witnesseth: That the party of the first part has this day given to the party of the second part, and to their successors in office forever, one hundred dollars ($100.00), for the general county tax fund; six hundred dollars ($600.00) for the Erie county infirmary, said money to be used for infirmary purposes only; and five hundred dollars ($500.00 for the Erie county children's home; total, twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.00), the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by the said party of the second part.

"Now, in consideration of the said gift of twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.00) by said party of the first part, the undersigned parties of the second part, as the duly elected, qualified and acting commissioners of Erie county, Ohio, do on behalf of themselves and their successors, in the name of the said Erie county, Ohio, hereby covenant and agree with the said party of the first part, Andrew F. P. Mahon, to furnish him with room, board, care and medical attendance in sickness and infirmity, in the infirmary of said Erie county, Ohio, and we and our successors, moreover, agree to accept the lump sum of twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.00) as full payment for life, and, moreover agree to set up no post mortum claim against Andrew F. P. Mahon, his executor or his heirs."

You state in your letter:

"I have advised the commissioners that they cannot enter into a contract to furnish one with room, board, care and medical attendance as set forth in this contract, by virtue of the fact that under the circumstances they are bound by law to furnish the same. Mr. Mahon does not desire to enter the infirmary at this time, but wants to enter at any time he should be disabled or in such a position that he cannot care for himself. His intention is to turn this money over to the county for the purpose named in his agreement, so that he will not be classed as a pauper.

"Query: Can the commissioners contract with a second party to admit this second party to the infirmary in the future?

"If you agree with me that they cannot so contract, have you any suggestions to offer whereby Erie county may do such act as to secure the money Mr. Mahon desires to give it in this case?"

County commissioners have such authority only as is conferred upon them by law, and there is no law under which the commissioners of a county could enter into a contract such as you submit.

The commissioners of a county cannot contract with any one to admit them to the county infirmary at any time, admission to a county infirmary being governed strictly by law.

The county commissioners are capable, under the statutes, of receiving gift, in behalf of the county, but I have no suggestions to offer as to how Erie county might do anything towards securing Mr. Mahon's money.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

WHEN CONTRACT MAY BE CANCELLED BY THE OHIO STATE COMMISSION TO THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—FAMOUS FACTORIES OF THE WORLD COMPANY.

The Ohio state commission to the Panama-Pacific international exposition may, at the request or with the consent of the other parties to a contract which said commission may be authorized to enter into, when satisfactory evidence is furnished to said commission that all agreements made or obligations created in pursuance of such contract have been cancelled and that all expenses of every description growing out of such contract have been paid, cancel such contract and release a bond executed in pursuance thereof, and may require a bond indemnifying the commission or the state of Ohio against all claims made or actions instituted on account of any obligation assumed or liability created by or in pursuance of such contract.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 4, 1915.

The Ohio State Commission to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of Mr. Pretzinger's letter under date of February 1, 1915, reading as follows:

"Regarding the contract for motion picture display, entered into between the Ohio state commission, to the P. P. I. E. and the Famous factories of the World Co., Dayton, Ohio.

"Herewith find copy of contract and resolution which the Ohio state commission passed at its last meeting held in Columbus on Wednesday, January 27, 1915.

"Mr. Torpy and the writer have been appointed as a committee to confer with you relative to this contract and bond, and we most respectfully request that you give it your consideration and let us have your opinion at the earliest convenience.

"Verifying the statements made when we were in Columbus, the Ohio state commission has been put to no expense whatever in connection with this contract, nor are the contractors in any manner asking for reimbursement for work that has been done and material furnished. The contractors up to the time they notified the commission, claim to have gone to an expense of somewhat over $3,000.00, but are not asking the commission to reimburse them in any manner.

"I might further emphasize that the commission has unanimously expressed itself that unless the motion picture display could be made representative of the interesting industries of the state, there had better be no motion picture display.

"As there is no fund for a motion picture display, it was decided originally that if a motion picture display could be arranged at absolutely no cost to the state, it would be desirable to do so.

"The general depression throughout the country has caused all large advertisers to retrench, with the result that it has been impossible to secure such contracts as the Famous factories of the World Co., indicated could be secured.

"The commission has thoroughly investigated this condition and has decided that the project is not feasible at this time and for this reason passed the resolution, copy of which is enclosed.

"When you render your opinion, kindly address the same to the writer, 1155 Reibold Annex, Dayton, Ohio, as Mr. Torpy will be in California. The writer will then place it before the commission at its next regular meeting, even though Mr. Torpy is not here."

Enclosed with the letter was a copy of the contract between the Famous factories of the World Company and your commission. It is unnecessary to set this contract out at length. Suffice it to say that your commission attempted to enter into an agreement with the Famous factories of the World Company, to make a moving picture display at the exposition.

Also enclosed with the letter was a copy of the resolution of your commission, which reads as follows:

"Whereas there is a contract existing between the Famous factories of the World Co., of Dayton, Ohio, and the Ohio state commission to the Panama-Pacific international exposition, for a motion picture display in the assembly room of the Ohio state pavilion at the P. P. I. E.

"And whereas the Famous factories of the World Co., through its authorized officers has notified the Ohio state commission to the P. P. I. E. that owing to general business depression throughout the state, it has been found impossible to interest the various cities and the large advertisers of the state, with the result that it cannot carry out the terms of its contract and make a representative display of the various interests and industries of the state.

"And whereas the members of the Ohio state commission unanimously agree after a thorough discussion, that unless the display is representative of the various interests and industries of the state, there had better be no motion picture display.

"And whereas the members of the Ohio state commission after a thorough investigation of the conditions are of the opinion that the Famous factories of the World Co. has made every honest effort to fulfill the terms of its contract and has failed only on account of the unusual business conditions prevailing throughout the country.

"Now be it Resolved:

"First. That the directing commissioner accompanied by the architect, acting as a committee for the Ohio state commission to the P. P. I. E. confer with the attorney general of the state relative to the contract existing.

"Second. That with the approval of the attorney general of the state, when the Famous factories of the World Co. presents to the Ohio state commission, satisfactory evidence that all contracts for industrial and state films have been cancelled and that all expense of every description for both industrial and state films has been paid and that there will be absolutely no expense to the state of Ohio on account of the contract existing, that the contract and the bond for ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) which is a part of the contract, be and is hereby released and their obligations made void."

As I take your request for opinion to be, it is this: Has the commission the authority to cancel, with the consent of the Famous factories of the World Company, said contract?

It is unnecessary in answering this question to go into the question of whether or not your commission had the power to enter into the contract in the first instance.

I am of the opinion that when the Famous factories of the World Company presents to your commission satisfactory evidence that all contracts for industrial and state films have been cancelled, and that all expense of every description for both industrial and state films has been paid by said company, and that there will be absolutely no expense to your commission or the state of Ohio on account of said contract, that your commission and the Famous factories of the World Company may cancel said contract.

It would be competent for your commission, in consideration of the cancellation of the contract, to take a new bond guaranteeing the payment of any outstanding obligations.

I might say further, by way of mere suggestion that the resolution submitted should be redrafted and readopted by the commission, and should contain instead of the last paragraph thereof, a provision that the agreement should be cancelled and the bond released when the Famous factories of the World company shall have entered into an agreement to assume and pay all obligations resting upon your commission by reason of any contracts which may have been entered into in pursuance of the agreement between the Famous factories of the World Company and the Ohio state commission to the Panama-Pacific international exposition, and to defend all claims made or actions instituted on account of the same, and shall furnish a bond of sufficient amount and with satisfactory security to indemnify and hold harmless your commission from all loss on account of any claims, liabilities or damages growing out of any such contracts and against any expense for the defense of any such claim made or action instituted, provided of course that it should be deemed advisable by your commission to require such a bond.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DISTRICT ASSESSORS—SALARY—PAID ONLY FROM THE TIME OR ENTRANCE UPON THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY.

As the salary of a district assessor is paid monthly, an assessor who did not qualify and enter upon his duties within a reasonable time after his appointment should only be paid from the time he entered upon the performance of his duties.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 6, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of January 29th, the Honorable C. E. Bloomer, auditor of Huron county, Norwalk, addressed a letter to me in which he says:

> "Under an opinion rendered by the attorney general as per instructions from the bureau of inspection and supervision, of date of January 11, 1915, relating to the salary or compensation of district assessors as to date of commencement of same, it states that 'a district assessor is entitled to one-half of his salary for the month of December, 1913, without regard to the time of qualifying or filing his bond.' This ruling of opinion may be proper for those who were on the job during the month of December, but would that be a proper ruling where the district assessor was outside of the state, did not return or qualify until the first of January, 1914?"

The opinion to which he referred is No. 1306 rendered to your bureau under date of December 21, 1914, and in such opinion it was held that each district assessor after qualifying became entitled to his annual salary provided he served the full year and regardless of the particular date of qualifying, that is, he became entitled to the annual salary after December 5, 1913, which appears as the date on the books of the governor's office on which the appointments were made.

It is provided in section 5614, General Code, that:

> "The salaries of the district assessors * * * shall be paid monthly out of the county treasury on the warrant of the county auditor."

In view of the fact that the annual salary of a district assessor is split up into monthly payments, I am of the opinion that if a district assessor did not qualify within a reasonable time after the appointment was made by the governor, a proportionate reduction should be made in his compensation as based on monthly periodical payments up to the time that he did qualify after his appointment.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DEFICIT IN MAINTENANCE ACCOUNT OF DEPARTMENT OF BANKS

Funds to meet a deficit in the maintenance of the department of banks in certain items appropriated under "summary controlling account" and "maintenance," where there are no funds in other items of same account which may be transferred, can only be secured by legislative act.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 6, 1915.

MR. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of February 3, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "Upon assuming the office of superintendent of banks and banking I discover that there are deficiencies in certain appropriations. These deficiencies represent unpaid bills which have not been formally approved. The accounts which show deficiencies are as follows:
> "C-4. Office supplies.
> "F-6. Transportation.
> "F-7. Communication.
> "To pay accrued bills and to operate the department up to and including February 15, 1915, I have estimated that it will require the sum of $4,615.00.
> "I shall be very grateful indeed if you will advise me at the earliest possible moment just what I should do."

By the general appropriation bill passed February 15, 1914 (104 O. L., 64), the sum of $68,182.00 was appropriated to meet the expenses of the department of banks and banking. This appropriation was made under two heads constituting the "summary controlling account" (104 O. L., 72) viz.: "personal service $51,200.00 and "maintenance" $16,982.00. In the detailed and itemized budgets, as designated in and appended to the above appropriation bill (104 O. L., 86), this appropriation was further itemized as follows:

"Personal service.
"A-1.	(Salaries, regular and temporary)	$51,200 00	$51,200 00
"Maintenance.
"C-4.	(Office supplies)	$620 00	$620 00
"F-6.	(Transportation)	14,085 00
"F-7.	(Communication)	477 00
"F-8.	(General Plant Service)	1,700 00
"F-9.	(Contingencies)	100 00	16,362 00

Your letter recites deficits in items C-4, F-6 and F-7 under the maintenance account, but fails to reveal the condition of funds in other items under "summary controlling account" for maintenance. You have since, however, orally informed me that the balance in these items is practically exhausted and wholly insufficient to meet any material part of the deficit stated; therefore, it will avail nothing to procure a transfer of funds from other subdivisions of "maintenance" to the subdivisions in which the deficits exists, as is contemplated and authorized in section 3 of the appropriation bill (104 O. L., 72).

I am, therefore, of the opinion that there is no legal way of meeting the deficit in the exhausted items mentioned, except by act of the general assembly, and I therefore advise you to apply to the general assembly for an appropriation of the amount required to meet the necessary expenses of your department for the remainder of the year, either by the introduction of a bill for that purpose or by request to the house finance committee to include it as an item of the "sundry appropriation bill" which will probably be passed at an early date. I may add that the payment of any expenses of your department, for which no funds are available, must of necessity await the pleasure and action of the general assembly.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TORRENS LAND ACT—REGISTRATION OF TITLES.

The words "A True Copy," etc., appearing on certificates in Land Title Registration, forms 29-a and 29-b, are sufficient for the purpose of certifying the court's decree under the provisions of section 8572-23, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 6, 1915.

HON. LANGDON W. KUMLER, Recorder of Lucas County, Toledo, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for an opinion concerning the use of various forms in connection with the Land registration act, covered by sections 8572-1 to 8572-118 of the General Code, has been received, and is contained in your several letters as follows:

> "I am desirous of getting some information regarding the land title registration act, Ohio Laws, volume 103, page 914, section 23.

"This section provides that a certified copy of the court's decree shall be filed with the recorder, and the recorder shall transcribe or bind the decree in a book to be called 'Register of Titles.'

"On the above mentioned certified copy of decree, is it, or is it not, necessary for the probate judge to affix his certificate thereto? The probate judge in this county will not file a copy of his decree in this office without his certificate being attached, but the form prescribed by your department does not provide for any such certificate.

"I have complied with the instructions of the attorney general's office regarding the various forms, and if the probate judge's certificate must be attached to his decree, and this office must transcribe this certificate with the decree, it will conflict with the numerous forms which were prescribed by your department.

"Should not the probate court make their decrees according to the forms prescribed by your department? Should this office transcribe these decrees identically? As early a reply as possible will be greatly appreciated.

"Your letter of January 26th received. I will endeavor to make what information I desire as clear as possible to you regarding the land title registration act, Ohio Laws, volume 103, p. 914, section 23.

"This section provides that a certified copy of the court's decree shall be filed with the recorder, and the recorder shall transcribe or bind the decree in a book to be called 'Register of Titles.'

"Previous to July 1, 1914, which was the time this law went into effect, I very carefully went over all of the forms and instructions prepared by your department, and after familiarizing myself with the act and the forms, I went ahead with them and equipped this office with all records and blanks necessary for the operation of this act.

"The instructions I received from your department specifically say that the probate judge shall use form 29-a or 29-b. This decree we either bind or transcribe. The probate court has sent to this office decrees which do not comply with these forms. Consequently, it throws out all of the forms I have prepared for this work.

"The probate judge's reason for not complying with this form is principally on account that this form has no certificate thereon, certifying that it is a certified copy. The judge will not send any copy of his decree to this office without his certificate. You will notice that on this form 29-a the words below say 'A true copy,' which I suppose is sufficient.

"The forms prepared by your department have no court certificate thereon, and if they now start to affix their certificate, it will make considerable confusion, as the forms are not printed so that this certificate could be added in the proper place.

"I would appreciate as prompt an answer as would be convenient."

Since the receipt of your second letter I have communicated with Honorable O'Brien O'Donnell, probate judge of your county, for the purpose of learning just what his objection was to the use of form 29-a for the purpose of certifying the copy of a decree entered in his court to your office for filing or transcribing, and I am just in receipt of a letter from him concerning the matter. I gather from his letter and from your several communications that there is but one question raised in this matter, and that is as to whether or not the form contains a sufficient certificate of decree. There is no provision in law setting out any special form of certificate under which decrees from the probate court or the common pleas court shall be sent to the recorders, and it is my opinion that the certificate printed on form 29-a, which is as follows:

"A true copy. Witness my official signature and the seal of said court this_____day of_____19____.

"(Seal) _____clerk. By_____deputy.

"Received for entry in the register of Land Titles of_____ county, Ohio, on the_____day of_____19__, at _____ o'clock __m. and entered in Registration Book_____page_____as of date of said decree.

"_____recorder. By_____deputy."

heretofore prescribed by my predecessor, Attorney General Hogan, under the provisions of section 8572-94 of the act referred to, is in all respects legal for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of section 8572-23 of the General Code above referred to.

I might add that the practice of some of the recorders that has come under my observation is to bind the forms in a book entitled "Register of Titles" in the form in which it comes from the court, thereby obviating the necessity of transcribing it.

I am sending a copy of this opinion to Honorable O'Brien O'Donnell, and feel that you will have no further difficulty along the lines indicated in your letter.

Respectfully yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

A CERTIFICATE OF FEES EARNED BY A SHERIFF IN PROBATE OR JUSTICE OF THE PEACE COURTS SHALL BE MADE BY SAID COURT OFFICERS.

The certificate comprehended by section 2846, G. C., as to such fees as are earned by the sheriff in the probate court and the court of justice of the peace, shall be made by such probate judge and justice of the peace, respectively.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 6, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of January 26th, 1915, you submit to this office a request for written opinion upon the following question:

> "Section 2846, G. C., which provides for an allowance to the sheriff for his lost fees in criminal cases, not to exceed the sum of $300.00 per year, provides that these shall be 'paid upon the certificate of the clerk and the allowance of the county commissioners.' Can the use of the word 'clerk' be held to apply to the probate judge as acting by law as the clerk of his own court, and to a justice of the peace?"

Section 2846 of the General Code provides:

> "Upon the certificate of the clerk and the allowance of the county commissioners, the sheriff shall receive from the county treasury in addition to his salary his legal fees for services in criminal cases wherein the state fails to convict, and in misdemeanors upon conviction where the defendant proves insolvent, but not more than three hundred dollars shall be allowed for the services rendered in any one year of his term. * * * * *"

Under the provision of the foregoing section the query is as to the administration of such provision in cases in the probate court and justice court.

Section 1596, General Code, provides:

> "When required by the probate judge, sheriffs, coroners and constables shall attend his court, serve and return process directed and delivered to them by such judge, * * * * *."

The probate court is given concurrent jurisdiction with the common pleas court in all misdemeanor cases, by statute. Section 13494, General Code, provides:

> "Justices of the peace, police judges and mayors of cities and villages may issue process for the apprehension of a person charged with an offense and execute the powers conferred and duties enjoined in this title."

Section 13500, General Code, provides:

> "The warrant shall be directed to the sheriff or to any constable of the county, or, when it is issued by an officer of a municipal corporation, to the marshal or other police officer thereof, * * * * *."

By the foregoing and other kindred sections, it will be observed that the three courts, common pleas, probate and justice of the peace, have similar authority to direct warrants and process to the sheriff, and that he has a corresponding duty to obey such mandate from each of said courts, and make return to each court, respectively, of his execution of such process, including a taxing of his fee for such service. Such return thereupon becomes a part of the files and records of such courts, respectively.

The clerk or the corresponding officer discharging the clerical functions of the court becomes the custodian of such files and records of the court.

The fees to be received by the sheriff upon such certificates, shall be only the fees actually earned and not to exceed three hundred dollars in any one year.

I hold that the term "clerk" as used in the statute, shall be construed as referring to the officer of each of the various courts, wherein the sheriff is required to render such service, having custody of the records and memoranda of such court and being charged with the clerical or ministerial functions thereof, rather than that such word "clerk" should be construed as referring exclusively to the particular officer of the county technically named "clerk of the court."

The probate judge is by statute made clerk ex-officio of his court. Section 1584, General Code, provides:

> "Each probate judge shall have the care and custody of the files, papers, books and records belonging to the probate office. He is authorized to perform the duties of clerk of his own court. * * * * *."

By the provisions of the statute a justice of the peace performs all the ministerial and clerical functions incidental to his court, as well as the judicial functions thereof, except that in the larger cities of the state the law specifically provides justice courts with a clerk.

Section 1724, General Code, provides:

"Each justice of the peace must keep a docket, which shall be furnished by the trustees of the township in which must be entered by him; (The section then enumerates fifteen different matters which shall be recorded by such justice in the course of the conduct of his court)."

Section 1726, General Code, provides the justice shall keep alphabetical indexes, etc., and in all respects it is made the duty of the justice to perform the functions arising in his court corresponding to those ordinarily performed by clerk of the court in reference to the higher courts.

As to the fees of the sheriff "for services in criminal cases wherein the state fails to convict, and in misdemeanors upon conviction where the defendant proves insolvent," in the probate court, I hold that the certificate to the statement or bill of such fees shall be made by the probate judge, as ex-officio clerk of such court, and for such services rendered in a justice court by the sheriff, such certificate shall be made by the justice of the peace, as the officer of such court charged with the execution of the duties arising therein corresponding to the duties ordinarily exercised by clerks of the higher courts.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES INCOMPATIBLE — COUNTY COMMISSIONER — VISITING AGENT OF CHILDREN'S HOME.

The position of county commissioner and visiting agent of a county children's home are incompatible.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 6, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of February 2nd, you request my opinion upon the following question:

"May the trustees of a children's home legally appoint a member of the board of county commissioners as visiting agent under the provisions of section 3099, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., page 892?"

Amended section 3099, G. C., referred to in your question, provides in effect that the trustees of the children's home shall, under certain circumstances, appoint a visiting agent. The duties of the agent are specified. The section then uses the following language:

"* * * The agent shall perform his or her duties under the direction of the trustees and superintendent of the children's home for which she is appointed, and may be assigned other duties not inconsistent with his or her regular employment as the trustees prescribe. His or her appointment shall be for one year, or until his or her successor is appointed, and he or she shall receive such reasonable compensation for his or her services as the trustees provide."

The trustees of children's home are appointed by the county commissioners (3081, G. C.), and the county commissioners have the power to remove any trustees for certain specified causes (3082, G. C.).

In my opinion, the relation between the two positions referred to in your question, that is, visiting agent of the children's home and county commissioner, is such as to make them incompatible. The trustees of a children's home are subject to the control and direction of the commissioners, and the visiting agent is subject to the control and direction of the trustees. The extreme possible consequences of the selection of a county commissioner as visiting agent need not be stated. No plainer case of incompatibility than this could be imagined.

A letter attached to your query (and as per your request enclosed herewith) states that the commissioner in question has been in the past serving as visiting agent and desires to continue in this position without salary or compensation of any kind, save reimbursement for his expenses, after entering upon his office as commissioner. The willingness of the person in question to serve without compensation evidences his good faith, but does not change the legal situation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

APPROVAL OF BOND ISSUE FOR THE VILLAGE OF MARBLE CLIFF, OHIO.

The transcript of the proceedings of council of the village of Marble Cliff for the issuance of bonds constitutes a valid and legal obligation against said village.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 8, 1915.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I hereby certify that I have examined the transcript of the proceedings of the council of the village of Marble Cliff, Ohio, in the issuance of bonds in the amount of seventeen thousand dollars ($17,000.00) in anticipation of the collection of special assessments to pay the estimated cost and expense of improving Cambridge place between First avenue and Fifth avenue, in said village, and First avenue between Cambridge place and the east corporation line of said village; and that said proceedings are in conformity with the law of this state; and that said bonds, if sold to the industrial commission of Ohio, would constitute a valid and binding legal obligation against the said village of Marble Cliff, Ohio, to be paid in accordance with the terms specified therein.

The bonds themselves have not been submitted to me. They should refer, on their face, to the amendatory ordinance of January 15, 1915, as well as to the original ordinance of July 30, 1914, providing for their issuance.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TAX LIENS FOR REAL PROPERTY ATTACH ON THE SECOND MONDAY IN APRIL, 1915—CONSTRUCTION OF HOUSE BILL NO. 50, 104 O. L., 253.

House bill 50, 104 O. L., 253, is to be read as to all matters subsequent to its taking effect, as if a part of the original Warnes law, 103 O. L., 786, et seq.

Under existing laws, liens of the state for taxes will attach to real property on the day preceding the second Monday in April, 1915.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 8, 1915.

To the Senate of the 81*st General Assembly, In re Senate Resolution No.* 26.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN:—I beg to acknowledg the receipt of senate resolution No. 26, reading as follows:

> "WHEREAS, There appears to be considerable doubt on the part of many county auditors throughout the state as well as citizens of the state of Ohio, as to the true and proper date when the tax lien begins to run for the year 1915; and,
> "WHEREAS, There is considerable doubt as to the proper construction of house bill No. 50 passed February 16, 1914, which was designated to amend sections 5584, 5590 and 5624-4 of the General Code, relating to the assessment of property for taxation, therefore,
> Be It Resolved, That the attorney general be requested to advise the senate in writing regarding the proper construction of said house bill No. 50 aforesaid, as found in 104 Ohio Laws, page 253, and further advise the senate as to the date when the tax lien will accrue for the year 1915."

The act to which said resolution refers, is found in the 104th Ohio Laws, 253, and the matter to be principally discussed is that part designated as 5584 of the General Code, which as amended, reads as follows:

> "Whenever any property is by any existing provision of law required to be listed or returned for taxation at any time between the second Monday of April and the third Monday of May, in any year, such property shall be listed or returned between the first Monday of April and the first Monday of June, annually; whenever any property is by any existing provision of law required to be valued as of the day preceding the second Monday of April, in any year, such property shall be valued as of the day preceding the first Monday of April, annually; and whenever the liability of any person or of any property to taxation is by any existing provision of law to be determined by reference to the day preceding the second Monday of April, said liability shall be determined by reference to the day preceding the first Monday of April; provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply in any case where property is by any existing provision of law required to be returned for taxation to, or to be valued by, the tax commission of Ohio; nor in any case where the liability of any person or of any property to taxation is by any existing provision of law required to be originally determined by the tax commission."

Section 5548 of the General Code was originally section 6 of the Warnes law (103 O. L., p. 788), which provided as follows:

"Whenever any property is by any existing provision of law required to be listed or returned for taxation at any time between the second Monday of April and the third Monday of May in any year, such property shall be listed or returned between the first Monday of February and the first Monday of June, annually; whenever any property is by any existing provision of law required to be valued as of the day preceding the second Monday of April, in any year, such property shall be valued as of the day preceding the first Monday of February, annually; and whenever the liability of any person or of any property to taxation is by any existing provision of law to be determined by reference to the day preceding the second Monday of April, said liability shall be determined by reference to the day preceding the first Monday of February; provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply in any case where property is by any existing provision of law required to be returned for taxation, or to be valued by, the tax commission of Ohio; nor in any case, where the liability of any person or of any property to taxation is by any existing provision of law required to be originally determined by the tax commission."

The doubt to which your resolution refers, exists and arises out of the fact that from and after the time of the enactment and taking effect of section 6 of the Warnes law, above quoted, there was no "existing provision of law requiring property to be listed or returned for taxation at any time between the second Monday of April and the third Monday of May," etc., i. e., section 6 of the Warnes law which was then in effect, had changed the listing time, etc., to the period between the date preceding the first Monday in February and the first Monday in June. Therefore, when house bill No. 50 was enacted (104 O. L., 253), it is claimed by some that said section could have no application, because section 6 of the Warnes law had repealed all heretofore existing laws in conflict with said section 6, and apparently the only then existing law provided for listing the returning, etc., between February and June.

While this question is not without its difficulties, and the situation is one which should not exist, I believe that by applying the well-recognized principles of statutory construction the statute may be given effect. The primary rule of construction is to give effect to the legislative intent. In gathering this intent, we may look to the whole bill, as well as to the whole legislation to be amended. In the original Warnes law, there was a definite purpose to amend all laws so as to change the first day of the listing and assessing period from the day preceding the second Monday in April to the day preceding the first Monday in February, so as to make all related laws conform thereto, e. g.: the amendment in the original Warnes law of 5590 (103 O. L., 790) and 5624-4 (103 O. L., 799) which are the same sections dealt with in house bill 50 referred to in your resolution. For reasons that are well known, the same legislature at a subsequent session, sought to change back to a date in April from the date in February fixed upon in the original enactment of the Warnes law. This was the sole change that the legislature sought to make in the law. Hence, it took section 6 (G. C. 5584), section 12 (G. C. 5590) and section 51 (G. C. 5624-4) of the Warnes law, and wherever the word February occurred, changed it to April. This is the only change in all of these sections, except that in section 5624-4 some of the language was re-arranged.

The section that is causing the general public most confusion, is section 5584, and in this section the change consisted in substituting in three instances, the word "February" for the word "April."

While the method pursued in both the original Warnes law and in house bill 50 was careless, the intent of the legislature in both instances as gained from the legislation itself, is obvious.

In the case of McKibbon v. Lester, 9 O. S., 628, the supreme court of Ohio laid down the following doctrine:

> "Where one or more sections of a statute are amended by a new act, and the amendatory act contains the entire section or sections amended, and repeals the section or sections so amended, the section or sections as amended must be construed as though introduced into the place of the repealed section or sections in the original act, and, therefore, in view of the provisions of the original act, as it stands after the amendatory sections are so introduced."

This doctrine was followed and approved by the supreme court in the cases of State ex rel. v. Cincinnati, 52 O. S., 410, and State ex rel. v. Spiegel, decided September 17, 1914.

Under this doctrine said house bill 50 is to be read now (and as to operations subsequent to the amendment) as if it was the original language contained in the original act.

Therefore, the words "any existing provisions of law" occurring in section 5584 as amended in said house bill 50 (G. C., 5584) have reference to any provision of law existing at the time of the enactment of section 6 of the Warnes law (103 O. L., 788).

This same doctrine applies to all of said house bill 50.

Answering your second question as to the date when the tax lien will begin to accrue, section 5671, G. C., provides:

> "A lien of the state for taxes levied for all purposes, in each year, shall attach to all real property subject to such taxes on the day preceding the second Monday of April, annually, and continue until such taxes, with any penalties accruing thereon, are paid. All personal property subject to taxation shall be liable to be seized and sold for taxes. The personal property of a deceased person shall be liable, in the hands of an executor or administrator, for any tax due on it from the testator or intestate."

This is the only statute that I have been able to find which fixes the time for the attaching of a lien for taxes.

Confusion was introduced here by the third clause of section 6 of the Warnes law (G. C. 5584), the language of which remains the same in 104 O. L., 253 amendment. Said third clause of section 5584 provides:

> "Whenever the liability of any person or of any property to taxation is by any existing provision of law to be determined by reference to the day preceding the second Monday of April, said liability shall be determined by reference to the day preceding the first Monday of April."

It will be observed that in the language just quoted the word "lien" is not used, but the word "liability" is used. "Lien" and "liability" are not synonomous terms.

Generally speaking, all property real and personal is liable for taxation, but a lien attaches only to real property that is subject (liable) to taxes.

While the term "lien" may include the term "liability," the term "liability" by no means necessarily includes the term "lien."

Two canons of statutory construction should be kept in mind. (a) That a general statute—that is, a statute dealing with matters generally—is modified by one that deals with a particular matter. (b) In order for a later statute to repeal or modify an earlier, the two must be irreconcilable, otherwise both shall stand.

Applying the first canon, the third clause of 5584 above referred to, provides the general rule for "liability" "of any person or of any property," and does not distinguish between property or between property or persons. On the other hand, section 5671 clearly distinguishes between a lien upon real property and the liability of personal property, subject to taxation, to be seized and sold.

Applying the second canon, section 6584 as amended in house bill 50, and section 5671 of the General Code, are reconcilable.

While it is desirable that the date of the attaching of the lien to real property and the liability of all property for taxation should be the same, there is no absolute necessity for it.

I hold, therefore, that the date when the tax lien on real property will accrue for the year 1915, will be on the day preceding the second Monday in April, under the provisions of section 5671, G. C.

I would suggest that a bill be introduced clarifying this situation so that the ordinary citizen will not have to employ a lawyer to find out the time when he must make his return for taxation or the date of the state's lien for taxation attaching to his real estate.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

LEGAL RESIDENCE—PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXATION—DETERMINED BY PLACE LAST ACQUIRED AS LEGAL DOMICILE.

One who owns a farm which is rented on shares, and at which the owner has never resided cannot claim residence there for purposes of personal property taxation; and if at the time he has no other actual place of abode his legal residence is determined by the place at which he had last acquired a legal domicile.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 8, 1915.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letters of February 1st, and February 2nd, respectively, stating facts and requesting my opinion thereon as follows:

> "One 'B' prior to the year 1895, owned a residence in the village of London, Madison county, where he resided with his wife. In the year mentioned the couple was divorced. 'B' at this time bought a farm in Monroe township, Madison county, which he owned until the year 1899. Between the years 1896 and 1899 'B' listed his intangible personal property in Monroe township and voted therein.
> "After selling the farm in Monroe township, 'B' bought another farm in Summerford township, which he held until 1902, and he listed his intangible property and voted in that township during that period of time.
> "In 1902, upon selling the farm in Summerford township, 'B' purchased a farm in Faifield township, Madison county, which he still owns. In each year beginning with 1902 and ending with 1913, 'B' has listed his intangible personal property and voted in Fairfield township.

"Since his separation from his wife, 'B' has had no fixed place of abode. He has spent most of his time in the village of London, where he has been in the habit of renting a room in a hotel for different periods of time. There is a statement to the effect that he has been given at one time or another, a special rate at this hotel as a regular boarder. Much of 'B's' time has also been spent in other places, as at Cincinnati and in the village of Lilly Chapel, Fairfield township, in which places 'B' stops at a hotel. He never, however, has stayed over night at any of the farms which he has owned, and there are no accomodations for him at the farm which he now owns and has always rented on shares.

"'B' submits an affidavit stating some of the facts above referred to and containing a number of legal conclusions, which I quote literally as follows:

"He is a single man, having no wife or children; that all the real estate he owns is a farm of about 226 acres in Fairfield township, Madison county, Ohio, on which there is a farm house and improvements, which is the home of the affiant, which land he has farmed on the shares * * * the man farming the land lives with his family in the said farm house, which is also the residence and home of the man so farming his land. * * * * * * *.

"His right to vote and exercise his right of franchise in said Fairfield township has never been questioned or disputed by any election officers; that for about twelve years last past, he has listed with the assessor of Fairfield township all of his property consisting of over $20,000.00 in personal property besides his real estate * * *.

"The affiant does not reside in the corporation of London, but often takes his meals and puts up at a hotel in London corporation, but has no regular room or rooms there and pays only by the day for such time as at said hotel, never expecting or intending to make his home or residence there. He also often puts up at a hotel in Cincinnati the same way * * * and at various other places, and on the first day of February, 1914, was boarding and rooming in Hamilton county, Ohio, * * * always intending to have his residence and his home on his said farm * * *.

"Should 'B's' personal property be listed in the village of London or in Fairfield township, Madison county?"

Before stating my conclusions of law, I wish to say that I shall not attempt to determine what the actual facts of the case presented by you are. There is really no confiict between the facts set forth in the affidavit and those submitted by you and acquired from other sources, save in the legal conclusions and statements of intention which are found in the affidavit. The legal conclusions must, of course, be ignored, and the statements of intention will on the other facts submitted, if true, prove, I think, to be immaterial.

These facts and the question submitted thereon invite consideration of section 5371, G. C., which provides in part as follow:

"* * * Merchants' and manufacturers' stock, and personal property upon farms shall be listed in the township, city or village in which it is situated. All other personal property, moneys, credits and investments, except as otherwise specially provided, shall be listed in the township, city, or village in which the person to be charged with taxes thereon resides at the time of the listing thereof, if such person resides within the county where the property is listed, and if not, then in the township, city or village where the property is when listed."

I find that a question somewhat similar to that presented by you was considered in the administration of former Attorney General Denman, in an opinion, to which I refer generally is found at page 808 of the annual report of the attorney general for the year beginning January 1, 1910, and ending January 1, 1911. In the course of that opinion, the writer states a proposition with which I agree, and which may be stated here without repeating in full the reasoning and authorities upon which it is based, as follows:

"The word 'resides' as found in 5371, G. C., denotes legal domicile and not actual place of abode."

This principle raises the question as to what is necessary in order to establish a legal domicile. A few elementary principles will suffice to answer this question. Except as to married women, there are two kinds of domiciles, viz.: domicile of origin and domicile of choice. A domicile of origin is that which every infant has upon attaining majority, being the domicile of the parents at that time. A domicile of choice is that which an individual has elected and chosen for himself to displace the domicile (whether of origin or choice) previously obtaining.

It is obvious that in answering this question the principles surrounding the acquisition of a domicile of choice must be applied.

On this point, the authorities (of which unfortunately there are none in Ohio) are unanimous to the effect that residence and intent must concur in order that a domicile of choice may be established, or in legal phraseology the factum and animus are both elements of the choice which is effective to change a domicile. Therefore, residence at the place in question must be shown to have existed in order that a party's domicile may be deemed to have been established there. The character of such residence is wholly immaterial. It is not necessary that a dwelling house be owned or leased at the place of choice in order to accomplish the required result; nor is any specified length of time required, but any residence at the place for an appreciable interval of time coupled with the intent to make that place a home, i. e., to remain there for an indefinite time, even though not permanently, is sufficient to establish a domicile of choice.

There are other collateral principles which might be stated, but the foregoing are sufficient on the facts stated by you to enable me to return an answer to your question.

If it is true that the party inquired about by you never stays at his farm, and never has remained there for any period of time, then he has failed to acquire a legal domicile at that place, notwithstanding his expressed intention to make that place his home.

It is clear that during his married life, his domicile was in London. Since his divorce, it is not clear that he has any fixed place of abode; but if the facts reported to you are substantiated as you state them, he has never committed any act which would suffice to change the domicile which became fixed during his married life.

I am clearly of the opinion that the mere fact that "B" has purchased farms in different townships, but has not owned more than one farm at any one time is not sufficient to make such farm his domicile of choice, even though such purpose is coupled with an intention on his part to constitute such farm his home. In order to make that intention effective as a change of domicile he must have resided on one or another of these farms for some appreciable length of time with the intention of staying there indefinitely—that is without entertaining the intention of returning to the place of his original domicile.

The fact that "B" has paid taxes for years in different taxing districts under an erroneous interpretation of the law, does not alter the case for the purpose of the future; nor does the fact that the election officers of the several townships may have permitted him to vote therein become material, whether he simply voted unchallenged or not.

For all the foregoing reasons, I am of the opinion that if the facts, as I have stated them, are substantiated, "B" should list his personal property in the village of London.

I think I have said enough, however, to indicate that if it should appear that "B" had actually resided for an appreciable length of time upon the farm in Fairfield township with the intention of making that place his home, the contrary result would follow, and his personal property should be listed in the township; but if "B" should show that he at some time resided on the farm, and should profess to have done so with the intention of making it his home, then his profession of intention would, I think, have to be weighed in the balance, so to speak, with his habits of life as described by you, in order to determine whether or not a domicile of choice had been established in the township; and even if it should appear that a domicile of choice had been established in a township it might still be made to appear that there had been a more recent establishment of domicile in the village.

In short, I cannot express any opinion in the premises except upon the facts as you submit them; and upon those facts and those only I advise that "B" should list his personal property in the village of London.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE FUNDS—BOARD OF DEPOSIT MAY LOAN MONEY TO BANKS BIDDING ONLY AT REGULAR BIDDING PERIODS.

Under the state depository law, the state board of deposit may not lend money to banks organized and bidding therefor between regular bidding periods.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 9, 1915.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of February 5, 1915, containing the following inquiry, and asking for my opinion thereon:

> "Has the board of deposit the right to loan money to banks under provision of section 8 of the state depository act, section 328 of the General Code, which banks have been organized since the last regular bidding period?"

Section 328 of the General Code provides as follows:

"All awards for the deposit of state funds shall be made upon competitive bidding; bids shall be received by the treasurer of state every two years, beginning between one o'clock p. m. on the first Monday in March and closing at one o'clock p. m. on the third Monday in March, 1911, and every two years thereafter."

Section 323 of the General Code provides that:

"It shall be the duty of the said board to meet on the first Monday in April, 1911, and every two years thereafter, or as often as is necessary at the call of the chairman, after this bill becomes operative, and designate such national banks within this state and banks and trust companies doing business within this state, and incorporated under the laws thereof as the board deems eligible to be made state depositories."

The state board of deposit consists of the treasurer of state, who is chairman, the superintendent of banks, and the attorney general.

Section 330 of the General Code provides that:

"After bids have been opened the treasurer of state shall on or before the first Monday in April of each bidding period award the state funds to the highest bidder. The treasurer of state shall deposit the state funds in such banks and trust companies after such applications have been approved by the board of deposit. Should additional state funds become available at any time during the two years or until the next bidding period, it shall be awarded to the highest bidders, first to the banks and trust companies from which deposits have been withdrawn to meet obligations of the state, second to those who failed to receive the full amount of their original award, and then the next highest bidders."

From these sections it appears that the bids shall be received by the treasurer of state between one o'clock p. m. on the first Monday in March and one o'clock p. m. on the third Monday in March, 1911, and every two years thereafter; and that said board shall meet on the first Monday in April, 1911, and every two years thereafter, or as often as necessary at the call of the chairman and designate such banks (bidding banks) as it deems eligible to be made depositories, and from these bidding and approved banks the treasurer of state shall on or before the first Monday in April of each bidding period award the state funds to the highest bidders.

In said section 330 of the General Code the provision is found that:

"Should additional state funds become available at any time during the two years, or until the next bidding period, it shall be awarded to the highest bidders, first to the banks and trust companies from which deposits have been withdrawn to meet obligations of the state, second to those who failed to receive the full amount of their original award, and then the next highest bidders."

This can only mean that the deposit should be limited to the list of bidding banks which has been approved by the board of deposits, and by the provisions of section 328 the receiving of bids by the treasurer of state is restricted to the periods therein prescribed—in every two years.

It therefore follows that banks which have organized subsequent to the bidding period prescribed in said section 328 must wait until the next bidding period therein designated in which to file with the treasurer of state its bids for state money.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FARM PRODUCTS MUST BE SOLD FOR CASH BY THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY AND AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION.

Farm products sold by the Ohio State University and the agricultural experiment station must be sold for cash.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 9, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 9th, which letter was received by this department on January 19th, you request my opinion in the following matter:

> "Please let me have your opinion on the following proposition at your earliest convenience:
> "Do sections 20, 259 and 268, G. C., contemplate the certification of claims against individuals for farm products sold by the Ohio State University, the agricultural experiment station and kindred institutions, or should the officers charged with the disposition of such products be required by the governing boards to sell for cash or be personally responsible for the same?
> "If the auditor of state and attorney general should be required to handle these claims, their records will be encumbered with thousands of accounts ranging from ten cents up for butter, eggs, milk, potatoes, corn and similar products."

Section 20, G. C., to which you refer, roads as follows:

> "When an office or agent of the state comes into possession of a claim due and payable to the state, he shall demand payment thereof, and on payment have the amount duly certified into the state treasury. If he fails to collect such claim within sixty days after it comes into his possession, he shall certify it to the auditor of state, specifying the transaction out of which it arose, the amount due, the date of maturity, and the time when payment was demanded."

There is no doubt that the agricultural experiment station being under the control of a director appointed by the agricultural commission of Ohio makes the said director "an agent of the state." The Ohio State University is not a corporation and its officers in charge would, therefore, be agents of the state under section 20, G. C.

Neil vs. Board of Trustees, 31 O. S., 15.

However, there is no direct statutory authority for permitting the Ohio State University or the agricultural experiment station to sell farm products. Since not to do so would be an economical waste, the authority may be implied.

Unless direct authority of statute authorizes selling of state property on time, such property should be sold for cash. Therefore, said farm products should be sold for cash.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BANK STOCKHOLDERS—DOUBLE LIABILITY.

Stockholders of banks organized and doing business prior to January 1, 1913, are subject to double liability for debts of the bank incurred prior to November 3, 1903, and subsequent to January 1, 1913.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 9, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of February 6, 1915, requesting my opinion, as follows:

> "Will you kindly advise this department as to whether or not the stock of banks organized and doing business prior to January 1, 1913, is subject to double liability?"

To properly answer your question it is necessary to follow the history of article XIII, section 3 of the constitution of Ohio, adopted in 1851.

Original section 3 of article XIII was as follows:

> "(Dues From Corporations, How Secured) Dues from corporations shall be secured, by such individual liability of the stockholders, and other means, as may be prescribed by law; but, in all cases, each stockholder shall be liable, over and above the stock by him or her owned, and any amount unpaid thereon, to a further sum, at least equal in amount to such stock."

This same section, as amended November 3, 1903, was as follows:

> "(Dues From Corporations; How Secured) Dues from private corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law, but in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable otherwise than for the unpaid stock owned by him or her."

This section was again amended September 3, 1912, so that it now reads:

> "Dues from private corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law, but in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable otherwise than for the unpaid stock owned by him or her; except that stockholders of corporations authorized to receive money on deposit shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such corporations, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. No corporation not organized under the laws of this state, or of the United States, or person, partnership, or association shall use the word 'bank,' 'banker' or 'banking,' or words of similar meaning in any foreign language, as a designation or name under which business may be conducted in this state unless such corporation, person, partnership or association shall submit to inspection, examination and regulation as may hereafter be provided by the laws of this state."

The question you submit was considered and answered by the court of common pleas of Greene county, Ohio (Honorable Charles H. Kyle, judge), upon demurrer to the petition in the case of State ex rel. Emery Lattanner, etc., vs. Osborn Bank, et al. This opinion was handed down on December 30, 1914, but so far as I am able to ascertain has not yet been reported. The opinion is quite lengthy, and involves the determination of a number of other questions not pertinent here; therefore, without quoting it at length, it is sufficient to state that I am in accord with the reasoning and conclusion of the court relative to the question submitted by you, and I am therefore of the opinion that, article XIII, section 3, as amended September 3, 1912, was self-executing, going into effect January 1, 1913, without the necessity of legislative action to make it operative, and that the stockholders of banks organized and doing business prior to January 1, 1913, are subject to double liability, or in the language of the constitution (article XIII, section 3) they "shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts and engagements of such corporation, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares."

The court further stated in the opinion above referred to, that the "double liability" clause inserted in article XIII, section 3 as now amended extends only to debts, etc., which were incurred prior to November 3, 1903, and to debts incurred after January 1, 1913, and does not extend to debts incurred between November 3, 1903, and January 1, 1913, because during that period article XIII, section 3, as first amended did not require or permit the imposition or assessment of such double liability.

In answering the question submitted by you, however, it is unnecessary to adopt the holding of the court to the effect that the double liability of bank stockholders does not extend to nor include debts of such bank incurred between November 3, 1903, and January 1, 1913, and as the case mentioned is still in court and that particular question will later again be brought directly to the court's attention, I prefer to withhold my opinion until that point is directly raised.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

WHOLESALE SALOON LICENSES DO NOT COME WITHIN THE PROVISIONS OF THE LAW PROHIBITING THE ISSUANCE OF SALOON LICENSES WITHIN CERTAIN DISTANCE OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

The provisions of the last paragraph of section 1261-33, G. C., section 19 of the liquor license law, 103 O. L., 216, prohibiting the issuance of saloon licenses after Aug. 1, 1915, to places within certain distance of school buildings and premises, apply only to places lawfully operating under saloon license as defined in section 22 of the license law, G. C., 1261-37.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 10, 1915.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have yours enclosing copy of letters from Mr. Chas. F. Pryor, in which you ask for an opinion as to the construction of that part of section 19 of amended senate bill 203, as enacted April 18, 1913, 103 O. L., 216, which is as follows:

> "No license shall be granted after August 1, 1915, to operate a saloon within three hundred feet of any permanent, public or parochial school building, measuring the distance in a straight line following the street from the nearest point of the premises on which such school building is located, nor two hundred feet in a straight line following this street from the nearest point of the premises. This provision shall not apply to a bona fide reputable hotel or club; or to a saloon located within three hundred feet of a school house in the central or a main business section of the city."

Article 15, section 9 of the constitution of the state, as amended September, 1912, providing for the licensing of the sale of intoxicating liquors in this state, defines the word "saloon" as follows:

> "The word 'saloon' as used in this section, is defined to be a place where intoxicating liquors are sold, or kept for sale, as a beverage in quantities of less than one gallon."

Section 22 of the liquor license law, as enacted pursuant to the constitutional amendment, providing for the licensing of the sale of intoxicating liquors in this state, is as follows:

> "Licenses shall be either wholesale licenses or saloon licenses. Under a wholesale license, intoxicating liquors may not be sold in smaller quantities than two gallons at one time of the same kind of liquor, and not to be consumed upon the premises. Under a saloon license, intoxicating liquors may be sold in any quantity and consumed on or off the premises."

Coming now to construe the provision of section 19 of the liquor law, providing that "no licenses shall be granted after August 1, 1915, to operate a saloon," etc., in the light of the definition of the word "saloon" as found in the constitution, and "saloon license" as found in section 22 of the liquor license law, it is conclusive, to my mind, that the provisions of that part of section 19 of the liquor license law referred to by you, apply only to the operation of a place where intoxicating liquors may be sold in any quantity, and consumed on or off the premises, and do not apply to places where intoxicating liquors are sold only within the provisions of section 22, as defining a wholesale license.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that after August 1, 1915, a saloon license may not be granted for the operation of a place where intoxicating liquors may be sold in any quantity, and consumed on or off the premises, within three hundred feet of any permanent, public or parochial school building, or within two hundred feet of the nearest point of the premises on which such building is located, measuring these distances as provided in section 19, as above quoted. This provision, however, in my opinion, is not applicable for reasons that are obvious, to the granting of a wholesale license for a place within these limits.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS OF ELECTION—A MEMBER APPOINTED AND QUALIFIED IS ENTITLED TO PAY FROM THE DATE HE ASSUMES OFFICE.

A person theretofore duly appointed and qualified as a member of the county board of deputy state supervisors of elections and who on the first Monday of August, 1914, assumed and thereafter performed the duties of such office is entitled to compensation therefor from and after said first Monday of August, notwithstanding that the board did not organize as provided by section 4811, et seq., G. C., until after said first Monday of August.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 10, 1915.

HON. C. A. WILMOT, Prosecuting Attorney, Chardon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your communication of February 1, 1915.

While your communications are somewhat indefinite, I gather from them and our conversation relating to the same subject-matter, the following facts upon which you request an opinion, and to which the same is confined.

> "F. was appointed and commissioned deputy state supervisor of elections for Geauga county, for a term of two years, prior to and began his term of service as such on the first Monday of August, 1912. Prior to the first Monday in August, 1914, W. was duly appointed and qualified as the successor of F. Subsequent to the first Monday in August, 1914, and until about August 13, 1914, both F. and W. attended all the meetings of the board and assumed to discharge the duties of a member of such board, together with the three other members. No attempt was made by the deputy state supervisor of elections to organize after the appointment of W. until about August 13, 1914. Both F. and W. now claim compensation for services for the time between the first Monday in August, 1914, and August 13, 1914, that being the date upon which organization was effected."

That part of section 4804, G. C., under which appointments of deputy state supervisors of elections for Geauga county, whose terms of office began on the first Monday of August, 1912, were authorized to be made, is as follows:

"On or before the first Monday in August of each year, the state supervisor of elections shall appoint for each such county two members of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, who shall each serve for a term of two years from such first Monday in August. * * *."

That part of the above section as amended in 103 O. L., 215, which is applicable to the question submitted, reads as follows:

"And on or before the first Monday in August, 1914, such state supervisor of elections shall appoint for each such county, two members of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections who shall each serve until the first day of May in the year 1917, and whose successors shall then be appointed and serve for a term of two years from and after such date. One member so appointed shall be from the political party which cast the highest number of votes at the last preceding November election for governor, and the other member shall be appointed from the political party which cast the next highest number of votes for such officer at such election."

Section 4809, G. C., is as follows:

"Before entering upon his duties, each deputy state supervisor of elections shall appear before a person authorized to administer oaths, and take and subscribe to the following oath, which shall be filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas in the county where such deputy resides:

State of Ohio _____County, SS.

"I do solemnly swear that I will support the constitution of the United States and of the State of Ohio, and perform the duties of deputy state supervisor of elections to the best of my ability.

Signed _____

"Sworn to and subscribed before me this _____ day of _____, in the year _____.

Bearing in mind the fact stated by you, that W. was duly appointed and qualified prior to the first Monday in August, 1914, it follows that section 8, G. C., providing that persons holding an office of public trust will continue therein until their successors are elected or appointed, and qualified, does not apply, so that F. would not be authorized under the provisions of that section to continue in office, after the expiration of the term for which he was appointed and commissioned.

It may here be observed also that the organization of the board, as provided by section 4811, G. C., is not essential to the qualifications of persons appointed as members of such board, and that the only qualification required by such appointees is that prescribed by section 4809. I am of the opinion that W. having been theretofore duly appointed and qualified as deputy state supervisor of elections, was on and after the first Monday of August, 1914, duly authorized to exercise the powers and functions of such officer and therefore entitled to compensation therefor as provided by law, notwithstanding the postponement of the organization of the board until August 13th.

It will be observed that the board of deputy state supervisors of elections consists of four members, and that a vote of three such members is necessary to perfect an organization. It therefore follows that whatever may have been the disposition of W. toward such organization, it could not of itself affect a continuance of the power and authority of F. as such officer, the duty of organizing the board as imposed by section 4811, G. C., being thereby required to be performed after F. ceased to be a member of such board. W. could not of himself have effected an organization, nor on the contrary could he of himself have prevented the other members of the board from effecting an organization as prescribed by law.

I am further of the opinion, from the facts above stated, that all the right and authority of F. to exercise the powers and discharge the duties of a member of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections wholly ceased upon the first Monday of August, 1914, and that he is therefore not entitled to compensation for services attempted by him thereafter to be rendered in that capacity.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX ORIGINATES WHERE SAID REAL ESTATE IS LOCATED.

Under the collateral inheritance tax, section 5331, "said tax originates" as to the right to succeed to real estate in the city, village or township in which said real estate is located.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 11, 1915.

HON. MEEKER TERWILLIGER, Prosecuting Attorney, Circleville, Ohio

DEAR SIR:—I have yours of February 4, 1915, requesting my written opinion on the proposition therein propounded, to wit:

> "I desire to have your official opinion as to the construction of a portion of section 5331 of the General Code of Ohio, (103 O. L., 463) with reference to the distribution of the collateral inheritance tax, and that particular part of said section which I desire to have construed is that part which reads as follows:
> " 'Fifty per cent. of such tax shall go to the city, village or township in which said tax originates.'
> "The question has arisen with reference to the distribution of the collateral inheritance tax collected under the will of Sidner J. Ward, deceased, and the facts are as follows:
> "Sidner J. Ward, who was a resident of the village of Ashville, within Harrison township, Pickaway county, Ohio, died intestate and willed land located in Walnut township, Pickaway county, Ohio, to a niece who resides in Columbus, Ohio; said devise was appraised by the appraisers appointed by the probate court and a collateral inheritance tax of $150 has been paid into the county treasury of this county by the devisee.
> "Under the above statement of facts in what village or township did said tax originate?"

Section 5631, G. C., 103 O. L., 463, provides in part as follows:

"All property within the jurisdiction of this state and any interest therein * * * which passes by will or by the intestate laws of this state * * * to a person in trust or otherwise, other than for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant * * * shall be liable to a tax of five per cent. of its value above the sum of five hundred dollars. Fifty per cent. of such tax shall be for the use of the state; and fifty per cent. of such tax shall go to the city, village or township in which said tax originates."

In enacting that part of the above statute which provides for the distribution of the tax, the legislature simply followed the language of the constitutional amendment (article XII, section 9).

I find myself unable to get at a practicable interpretation of the words "in which said tax originates," except by a process of elimination. This process is justified under the doctrine that if a statute can fairly be given any interpretation that workably carries out the intention of the legislature, it is the duty of a court to do so. This duty is even greater when the statute is simply attempting to carry out the provisions of the constitution, which constitutional provision must be construed with the statute.

Notwithstanding the wording of the statute the tax is not one on property, but on the right to inherit or to succeed to the property of a decedent.

I find that the same difficulty confronted my predecessor, Mr. Hogan, and he too had to reach a conclusion in the same manner in an opinion under date of March 19, 1914, to Honorable Arthur Van Epp, prosecuting attorney of Medina county. I approve that opinion and hand you a copy of same herewith.

Answering your question, I hold that as the right to succeed to the real estate referred to in your letter the tax originated in Walnut township, Pickaway county, which township is entitled to fifty per cent. of said tax.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MUST ADVERTISE THE SALE OF BONDS—RESOLUTION CHANGING RATE OF INTEREST REQUIRES BONDS TO BE AGAIN TENDERED TO BOARDS, AUTHORIZED TO RECEIVE THEM BEFORE ADVERTISING THE SALE OF THE BONDS.

It is necessary to advertise the sale of bonds by a board of education under section 7626, G. C., and a board of education is not authorized to dispense with competitive bidding in the sale of the same.

A board of education which has advertised the sale of bonds bearing a certain rate of interest, and has received no bids for the same, and which then preceeds by resolution to raise the rate of interest on said bonds, must again offer said bonds to the board of commissioners of the sinking fund of the school district, if such there be, and then to the industrial commission of Ohio, prior to again advertising the same for sale.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 11, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 26, 1915, I have from the office of Hon. Jno. V. Campbell, prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, an inquiry in reference to certain school matters, the letter from Mr. Campbell's office having been written by Hon. Chas. A. Groom, assistant prosecuting attorney. In order to make your files complete as to the opinions of this department upon school matters, I am directing to you my answer to the inquiries contained in Mr. Groom's letter, which reads as follows:

"The board of education of Finneytown special school district No. 10 of Springfield township, Hamilton county, Ohio, passed a resolution to issue twelve thousand dollars of bonds for the erection of a new school building and furnishing of same under sections 7625, 7626 and 7627 of the General Code, submitted the matter to an election which resulted favorably and thereafter by proper proceedings, provided for bonds with interest at 4¾%, offered same to the industrial commission, which declined to purchase them, and then advertised the bonds for sale as required by law, but received no bids for same. They now have an opportunity to dispose of the bonds at private sale, provided they raise the interest to 5%, and request an opinion as to whether they can legally dispose of the bonds at private sale, without offering to the industrial commission or advertisement.

"I have no doubt on the proposition that they are required to offer the bonds at the higher rate of interest to the sinking fund trustees and to the industrial commission before the same may be otherwise disposed of.

"The last part of section 7626, General Code, provides that the issue and sale of bonds by a school district shall be provided for by resolution fixing the amount of each bond, the length of time they shall run, the rate of interest they shall bear and the time of sale 'which may be by competitive bidding at the discretion of the board.' This section was enacted April 25, 1904.

"Section 2294, General Code, provides that all bonds issued by boards of county commissioners, boards of education, etc., shall be sold to the highest bidder after being advertised as therein provided. Section 2295, General Code, provides that if bids are rejected, the bonds shall again be advertised. These sections were enacted March 22, 1883.

"Attorney General Denman, in January, 1909, annual report of attorney general 1909-1910, page 517, rendered an opinion that apparently section 2294 was superseded and supplanted as to the matter of competitive bidding by section 7626, General Code, but that the provision for advertisement was not superseded.

"I enclose herewith what is given me as a copy of an opinion of Judge Kyle of the Greene county common pleas court apparently holding that neither advertisement or competitive bidding is necessary in the sale of school bonds.

"As I understand, the department of inspection and supervision, follows Denman's opinion which is apparently contrary to the recent common pleas opinion of Judge Kyle and it is desirable that the question be finally settled and a uniform ruling on the matter be had. Will you kindly advise me whether it is necessary to advertise the sale of school bonds issued under sections 7625 to 7627, General Code, and whether the same may be sold without competitive bidding."

The problem presented by this inquiry is that of reconciling, if possible, the provisions of sections 7626 and 2294 of the General Code, and of sustaining, if possible, all the provisions of both sections.

Let it be noted, in the first instance, that under the provisions of section 7626, the issue and sale of bonds under this and the related sections shall be provided for by a resolution fixing, among other things, "the time of sale."

In passing upon the question presented, this fact is most significant, and must be taken to mean, under any view of the law, that the board of education must sell the bonds at a certain definite time, which time must be fixed in the resolution. In other words, the board of education cannot either omit from the resolution all reference to the time of sale, or fix a continuing period of time during which the board shall make the sale.

It must also be observed that despite the conclusion reached by Judge Kyle, there is no language in section 7626 which refers to the subject of advertisement. It is equally true that there is nothing in section 7626 from which there could reasonably be drawn the inference that the legislature intended in enacting that section, to dispense with the requirement of an advertisement of the sale provided for by section 2294. It would therefore seem quite clear that bonds sold under the provisions of section 7626 and related sections, must be advertised in accordance with the provisions of section 2294.

Keeping in mind the fact that the time of sale of the bonds in question must be fixed by the board of education in its resolution, and the further fact that the bond sale must be advertised by the board of education under the provisions of section 2294, and that the advertisement must state, among other things, "the day, hour and place in the county" where the bonds are to be sold, it next becomes necessary to determine the effect of the expression "which may be by competitive bidding at the discretion of the board," which expression constitutes the concluding phrase of section 7626.

To hold that a board of education is to be permitted to make a private sale of its bonds without reference to whether or not the purchaser is the high bidder therefor, would do violence to the provision requiring the board to fix the time of the sale in its resolution, and to the provision requiring an advertisement of the sale, one of which provisions, to wit: the one requiring the board in its resolution to fix the time of the sale, is contained in the same section with the language now under consideration. If a private sale under the conditions above named is contemplated by the statute, then there would be absolutely no purpose to be served in requiring the board to fix the time of the sale and to advertise the same. Since the board is plainly required by the law to fix the time of the sale and to advertise the same, a permission to sell at private sale must not be inferred from any uncertain or ambiguous phrase.

The language under consideration does not directly excuse competitive bidding. The statute does not say that the sale may be had without competitive bidding, at the discretion of the board, but only that it "may be by competitive bidding at the discretion of the board." Any holding that competitive bidding is excused, in the discretion of the board by the use of this phrase, must be founded on a mere inference. As bearing upon this proposition, my predecessor Hon. U. G. Denman, in the opinion above referred to, cited an apt declaration of the law, as found in Cincinnati v. Guckenberger, 60 O. S., 353, the language of the court being as follows:

> "True, it is not uncommon to find in legislation special provisions intended to supplant or supersede, for the special subject-matter, some general provision on the same general subject, but such instances are expected to be so marked, either by the force of the language itself, or by necessary implication as to the purpose to be accomplished, as that the meaning shall be plain."

I cannot say that the language "which may be by competitive bidding at the discretion of the board" carries with it a necessary implication that the sale may be without competitive bidding at the discretion of the board. At least it is not necessarily implied that the legislature intended to remove all restrictions along this line and permit a board of education to sell an issue of bonds to one prospective purchaser at his offer while another bidder, equally responsible and able to carry out his engagements, was standing by and offering a higher price.

For the reasons above stated, I am of the opinion that when bonds are sold by a board of education under section 7626, it is necessary to advertise the sale in accordance with the provisions of section 2294 of the General Code, and that competitive bidding may not be dispensed with.

In regard to the other inquiry, it is my opinion that the board of education after raising the rate of interest on the bonds from 4¾ per cent. to 5 per cent. must offer the bonds first to the board of commissioners of the sinking fund of the school district, and then to the industrial commission of Ohio, before proceeding to readvertise the same.

Section 7619 of the General Code of Ohio, provides as follows:

> "When a board of education issues bonds for any purpose, such issue first shall be offered for sale to the board of commissioners of the sinking fund, who may buy any or all of such bonds at par. Within five days of the time when notice is given, the board shall notify the board of education of its action upon the proposed purchase. After that time the board of education shall issue any portion not purchased by such commission according to law."

Section 1465-58 of the General Code of Ohio, provides among other things that:

> "It shall be the duty of the boards or officers of the several taxing districts of the state, in the issuance and sale of bonds of their respective taxing districts, to offer in writing to the state liability board of awards (now the state industrial commission) prior to advertising the same for sale, all such issues as may not have been taken by the trutsees of the sinking fund of the taxing district so issuing such bonds."

Permit me to also call attention to the fact that under the provisions of section 7626 of the General Code, which provides among other things for a resolution by the board of education fixing the rate of interest of bonds issued under that and the related sections, it will be necessary for the board of education to adopt a new resolution supplanting the one fixing the rate of interest at 4¾ per cent., the new resolution fixing the rate of interest of the bonds at 5 per cent.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

APPROVAL OF LEASE FOR THREE TRACTS OF GROUND IN CITY OF AKRON, OHIO.

Contract for lease of three tracts of ground in city of Akron, Summit county, Ohio, complies with the requirements of the statutes and is approved.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 11, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have examined the contract for lease, in triplicate, of three tracts of ground in the city of Akron, Summit county, Ohio, the parties to said lease being the superintendent of public works and John J. Breen.

I find that said lease complies with the requirements of the statutes and am therefore returning the same with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FILING ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A BODY CORPORATE—SECRETARY OF STATE MAY FILE DECLARATION OF INCORPORATORS OF ABANDONING PURPOSE TO FORM CORPORATION.

Merely taking out articles of incorporation, with no further act thereafter, does not constitute a body corporate. Secretary of state may receive and file declaration of all incorporators of abandonment of purpose to form corporation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 11, 1915.

HON. C. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 29th, enclosing a copy of an instrument received from Joseph L. Stern, attorney at law, Cleveland, and an original letter addressed to you by Mr. Stern.

You request my opinion as to whether the original instrument, if signed by the original incorporators of the company, should be received and filed by you and, if so, whether a certificate of the tax commission of Ohio, under the provisions of section 5521, G. C., should be filed therewith.

The enclosures indicate the following state of facts, to wit:

> "After filing articles of incorporation for the proposed corporation, 'The Roofing and Insulating Company,' in the office of the secretary of state, as provided by law, that no further steps were taken by the persons subscribing such articles looking toward a fulfillment of the further requirements relating to the organization of private corporations."

One of said enclosures is a certificate of the persons who subscribed such articles, setting out that:

> "No part of the capital stock of said company was subscribed; no installments of the capital stock of said corporation have ever been paid in; no investments of any kind have been made; no debts or obligations of any kind have ever been incurred; and all the incorporators, having become satisfied that the objects of said corporation cannot be accomplished, desire to abandon the project and surrender said articles."

In response to an inquiry from this office, you state, in your letter of February 10th, that no certificate of subscription of ten per cent. of the capital stock of the corporation in question had ever been filed in your office.

Section 5521, et seq., of the General Code contemplates organized corporations. I am clearly of the opinion that until a certificate showing that ten per cent. of the capital stock of a corporation has been subscribed has been filed with the secretary of state, and the stockholders have elected a board of directors, that there is no corporation in existence. The so-called articles of incorporation are merely an authority from the state to organize a corporation.

While there is no statutory authority by which you could be compelled to file the certificate in question, I think that it is desirable, from a public standpoint, that the records of your office should show the abandonment of the purpose to form a corporation.

I am further of the opinion that under section 8626, which provides:

> "* * * Articles of incorporation shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who shall record them and shall also record certificates relating to that corporation thereafter filed in his office," you have the authority to file the certificate in question and to make a charge therefor, under subsection 12 of section 176 of the General Code. Such a certificate, however, should not be filed unless all of the original incorporators have signed it.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EXPENSES OF ELECTION—PAID FROM COUNTY TREASURY—EXCEPTION, AN ELECTION FOR BOND ISSUE IN TOWNSHIP ROAD DISTRICT.

All the expenses of municipal local option elections coming within the terms of section 5052, G. C., must be paid out of the county treasury and may not thereafter be charged back against the municipality. The same is true of the expenses of special elections for township bond issues, except that in case of an election for the issue of bonds for a township road district, the expense of the ballots for such election shall be paid by the township.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 12, 1915.

HON. JOHN M. MARKLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Georgetown, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of February 3, 1915, requesting an opinion thereon, you state:

> "Section 5052 of the General Code of Ohio provides that all expenses of printing and distributing ballots and cards, etc., and other necessary expenses of any general or special election, including the compensation of precinct election officers, shall be paid from the county treasury as other county expenses.
> "On the 29th day of December, 1914, a municipal election was held in Georgetown to determine whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage should be prohibited in such municipality. The question has arisen whether or not the expenses of this election shall be borne by the town or whether the same shall be paid by the county. The same question has also arisen with reference to a special election to issue bonds recently held in Eagle township of this county."

Your inquiry refers only to expenses mentioned in section 5052, G. C., and I shall confine my opinion to such expenses of elections as is included within its terms, which are as follows:

"All expenses of printing and distributing ballots, cards of explanation to officers of the election and voters, blanks and other proper and necessary expenses of any general or special election, including compensation of precinct election officers, shall be paid from the county treasury, as other county expenses."

The language of this section is unequivocal and expressly includes both the general and special elections, so that in the absence of a special provision to the contrary, all the expenses therein enumerated will be governed by its provisions and therefore be payable from the county treasury.

The act of April 15, 1902 (95 O. L., 88), sections 6127 to 6130, G. C., governs elections in municipalities upon the question of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors therein, and no provision is there made for the payment of the expenses of such election, nor is there elsewhere found any provision for the payment of such election expenses other than the general statute above quoted, requiring the same to be paid out of the county treasury.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that all the expenses of the municipal local option election, coming within the terms of 5052, G. C., must be paid out of the county treasury, and that they may not thereafter be charged back against the municipality. Nor, is there found any special provision for the payment of the expenses of elections held in townships upon the question of bond issues, other than found in section 5052, G. C.

As suggested by you, section 5053, G. C., is as follows:

"In November elections held in odd numbered years, such compensation and expenses shall be a charge against the township, city, village or political division in which such election was held, and the amount so paid by the county shall be retained by the county auditor from funds due such township, city, village or political division at the time of making the semi-annual distribution of taxes. The amount of such expenses shall be ascertained and apportioned by the deputy state supervisors to the several political divisions and certified to the county auditor. In municipalities situated in two or more counties, the proportion of expense charged to each of such counties shall be ascertained and apportioned by the clerk or auditor of the municipality and certified by him to the several county auditors."

The operation of this section is by its terms expressly confined to the expenses enumerated in section 5052, G. C., and to "November elections held in odd numbered years." It is significant that the legislature in the enactment of that part of section 14 of the act of April 8, 1908 (99 O. L., 84), amending the enactment of May 15, 1894 (91 O. L., 243) which was carried into and is now section 5053, G. C., expressly restricted its application to "November elections held in odd numbered years," when it is considered that the statute previous to such amendment (91 O. L., 243) required the charging back of all election expenses except for November elections.

It then appearing that there is no provision for the payment of the same otherwise, the expenses of elections for township bond issues are therefore governed by the general provisions of section 5052 as above quoted, and are not, in my opinion, chargeable to the township in which they are held, except that in case of an election for the issue of bonds for a township road district, as provided in sections 7033 to 7042, G. C., inclusive, the expense of the ballots for such election shall be paid by the township according to the provisions of section 7039 G. C., as follows:

> "* * * The deputy state supervisors of elections shall cause to be prepared and furnished, at the expense of the township, ballots for the election, on which shall appear the words 'road improvement bonds—yes,' 'road improvement bonds—no.'"

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY LIQUOR LICENSE BOARD HAS NO AUTHORITY TO COLLECT ANY FEE OTHER THAN FIFTY DOLLARS WHERE LICENSEE SELLS OR TRANSFERS HIS BUSINESS TO ANOTHER AND THEN JOINS IN AN APPLICATION WITH ANOTHER

Where a licensee under the state liquor license act desires to sell or transfer his business to another and joins in an application with the latter under section 1261-50 G. C., there is no authority for the collection of any fee other than the fee of $50.00 provided for by said section.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 12, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours dated February 4, 1915, as follows:

> Section 26 of the state liquor licensing act (O. L. vol. 103, p. 226) provides a fee of $5.00 for each application. Section 35 of the same act, p. 230, provides that a dealer who desires to transfer his business to another person who is properly qualified, shall make joint application with such person for the transfer of said license.
> "Query. Has the state board any legal authority to direct the local boards to charge a fee of $10.00 for said joint application to transfer a license?"

The sections of the state liquor licensing act, (103 O. L., 216), to which you refer, are, insofar as applicable to your question, as follows:

Section 1261-41 (section 26):

> "Application for license in proper form shall, upon their filing, be marked 'filed' by the secretary of the board, with the date of filing endorsed thereon, and the applicant or applicants shall thereupon be given a receipt for said application.

"Every applicant shall pay to the county board, upon the filing of the application, the sum of five dollars, which amount shall be immediately transmitted to the state board."

Section 1261-50, G. C. (section 35):

"Upon the application of any licensee who desires to sell or transfer his business to another, joined with the application of the latter, and upon the payment of a fee of fifty dollars the county licensing board shall, unless the proposed purchaser or transferee shall not have the qualifications required by law of a licensee, endorse upon the license certificate of the original applicant the words: 'Transferred to—inserting the name of the transferee with the date; and the person to whom the said license is transferred shall hold the license for the remainder of the said license year and shall have all the privileges and obligations of the original licensee under the license. The said fee so paid to the county licensing board shall be immediately transmitted to the secretary of the state board, in the same manner as application fees heretofore provided for herein, together with a report of the transfer thereof.

"The said transferee must, however, in the application for transfer, set forth all the facts required to be set forth by an original applicant. The said transferee shall be in all respects qualified by law as is an original applicant. * * *."

In the act of April 18, 1913, (103 O. L., 216), in which the above quoted sections were originally enacted, I find the term "applicant" used some fifty times or more and in various and distinct relations.

"Applicant" as a generic term, includes within its meaning, in a general sense, any person who makes for any purpose an application. On the contrary, it must be conceded that the term may be properly used in a much restricted sense. So upon an examination of the whole act referred to, I find this term used not uniformly in any particular sense, but varied application and with distinctly differing significance.

In different sections of this act, various subjects of application are treated, and from this it must follow that there are different and distinct classes of applicants. For instance, there will be found throughout the act, numerous reference to applicants for saloon license, applicants for original license, applicants for wholesale license, applicants for removal, applicants for transfer, applicants for removal and perhaps other classes of applicants.

Since, then, as above stated, this term may be properly used either in its general sense and including all classes of applicants, or in a restricted or limited sense, referring only to a particular class of applicants, to determine its meaning in any given instance will necessitate an examination of the relation in which it is there used.

The scope and meaning of the term will, in such case, be governed by the subject-matter thus being treated. If the sole subject-matter treated in a particular case is found to be the granting of a license, or what is by the act itself distinguished as an "original license," it seems incontrovertible that the term "applicant" would there include within its scope only applicants for such "original license." If the sole subject-matter treated be a removal, it would not be argued that the term "applicant" used in relation thereto, had any meaning other than applicants for removal, and the same rule would apply to every other subject-matter treated within the act relative to which an application might be properly made.

Coming now to an examination of section 1261-41, G. C., (section 26 of the license law) and an application of this rule or principle, it will be found that the sole subject-matter there treated is "applications for license;" that it to say, "original licenses" as elsewhere distinguished in the act (sections 35, 32 and 37). It then follows that the phrase "every applicant" as used in this section, includes within its meaning only every applicant for license as distinguished from applicants for removal or transfer, or such other applicants as may be referred to elsewhere within the act.

Not only is the absence of a provision in section 1261-50, G. C. (section 35 license law) that the fee therein required shall be in addition to other fees, of significance, but that a fee is therein required to be paid which is far in excess of that otherwise required, carries with it much force.

I am, therefore, for the reasons heretofore stated, of the opinion that the county license boards may not require the payment of $10.00 as stated by you, in addition to the fee of $50.00 required by section 6150, G. C., for the transfer of license.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AMENDMENT TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION—THE REPUBLIC CASUALTY COMPANY.

Amendment to articles of incorporation of The Republic Casualty Company approved.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 13, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of February 11th, transmitting to me for my examination and approval the certificate of amendment of the articles of incorporation of The Republic Casualty Company. The amendment of the company's articles of incorporation consists of the insertion of the following language in the third paragraph:

> "guaranteeing the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, who are required to, or, in their trust capacity do receive, hold, control, disburse public or private moneys or property; guaranteeing the performance of contracts other than insurance policies; and execute and guaranteeing bonds and undertakings required or permitted in all actions or proceedings, or by law allowed;"

The inserted language is copied verbatim from paragraph 2 of section 9510 of the General Code.

I am of the opinion that The Republic Casualty Company has authority under this section to so amend its articles of incorporation. I am therefore returning to you the certificate of amendment with my certificate of approval written thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

JUVENILE COURT--JURISDICTION TO PROSECUTE SCHOOL TEACHER FOR PUNISHING CHILD.

The jurisdiction of the juvenile court to prosecute an adult must be predicated on delinquency, dependency or neglect of minor under eighteen years of age.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 13, 1915.

HON. EARL K. SOLETHER, Prosecuting Attorney, Wood County, Bowling Green, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your letter of February 6, which is as follows:

> "In this county the probate judge has been designated as the juvenile court under section 1639 as amended in 103 O. L., 868, and I would like to have your opinion as to whether or not this juvenile court has jurisdiction to try a school teacher for the offense of cruelly whipping a pupil of the age of thirteen years.
> "Section 1642 as amended in 103 O. L., 869, gives the general jurisdiction of the juvenile court, and section 1654 as amended in 103 O. L., 873, provides the penalty. You will note that section 1642 as amended says that such courts shall have jurisdiction to try and determine any charge or prosecution against any person, persons, corporation or their agents, for the committing of any misdemeanor involving the care, protection, education or comfort of any such minor under the age of eighteen years.
> "Would the juvenile court have jurisdiction under this section to try a person charged with abusing a child?"

In connection with the consideration of your inquiry as to whether or not the juvenile court has jurisdiction to try a school teacher for the offense of cruelly whipping a pupil thirteen years of age, you refer to sections 1642 and 1654 of the General Code as amended in 103 O. L., pages 869 and 873. Section 1642 as amended is as follows:

> "Such courts of common pleas, probate courts, insolvency courts, and superior courts within the provisions of this chapter shall have jurisdiction over and with respect to delinquent, neglected and dependent minors, under the age of eighteen years, not inmates of a state institution, or any institution incorporated under the laws of the state for the care and correction of delinquent, neglected and dependent children and their parents, guardians or any person, persons, corporation, or agent of a corporation, responsible for, or guilty of causing, encouraging, aiding, abetting or contributing toward the delinquency, neglect or dependency of such minor, and such courts shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine any charge or prosecution against any person, persons, corporations, or their agents, for the commission of any misdemeanor involving the care, protection, education or comfort of any such minor under the age of eighteen years."

A perusal of the section quoted above at once discloses the purpose of the juvenile court act as being specifically enacted "for the care and protection of delinquent, neglected and dependent children" under the age of eighteen years, and the jurisdiction conferred upon the juvenile court over parents, guardians or any person, persons, corporations or agents of a corporation, responsible for a guilty of encouraging, aiding, abetting or contributing toward the delinquency, neglect or dependency of such minor only attaches in the case of a minor under the age of eighteen years whose status is that of delinquency, neglect or dependency as provided in the juvenile act.

Section 1654 of the Juvenile court act, as amended on page 873, volume 103 Ohio Laws, is as follows:

> "Whoever abuses a child or aids, abets, induces, causes, encourages or contributes toward the dependency, neglect or delinquency, as herein defined, of a minor under the age of eighteen years, or acts in a way tending to cause delinquency in such minor, shall be fined not less than ten dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not less than ten days nor more than one year, or both. Each day of such contribution to such dependency, neglect or delinquency, shall be deemed a separate offense. If in his judgment it is for the best interest of a delinquent minor, under the age of eighteen years, the judge may impose a fine upon such delinquent not exceeding ten dollars, and he may order such person to stand committed until fine and costs are paid."

A reading of section 1654 and construing the same in connection with section 1642, quoted above, together with the general purpose of the juvenile court act, leads to but one conclusion, and that is, the necessity of a pre-existing condition of dependency, delinquency or neglect on the part of a minor child under the age of eighteen years or some condition tending to cause delinquency in such minor before prosecution may be had of an adult in juvenile court. (See the case of State v. Hugh Hawkins, Licking County Juvenile Court March term, 1910, reported in 56 weekly law bulletin, page 166.)

It is my opinion, therefore, that unless the child referred to in your communication was a ward of the juvenile court by reason of its being a dependent, delinquent or neglected child, as comprehended in the juvenile court act, that the juvenile court would be without jurisdiction to prosecute a school teacher for the whipping of a child thirteen years of age.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ORDINANCE DIRECTING CITY AUDITOR TO PUBLISH ALL LEGAL ADVERTISING APPLIES TO THE PUBLICATION OF ORDINANCES, RESOLUTIONS AND NOTICES OF BOND SALE, BUT SUCH ORDINANCE DOES NOT APPLY TO PUBLICATION OF NOTICES FOR BIDS IN DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SERVICE.

A city ordinance directing the city auditor to publish all legal advertising of the city in two certain newspapers does not apply to the publication of notices for bids in the department of public service; but it does apply and govern the publication of ordinances and resolutions of the council, and notices of bond sales.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 13, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—On January 25, 1915, I received a letter from you requesting my opinion upon the following question:

"The council of the city of Hamilton has directed the city auditor to place the legal advertisements which require publication in the 'Journal' and the 'Hamilton Socialist,' two newspapers designated by council for legal publications of the city.

"Does this ordinance govern the municipal officers in the placing of the following advertisements, viz.: the ordinances and resolutions of council, the notice of bond sales, and the notice for bids by the director of service?"

This question involves the distribution of the powers of municipal government. There is no statute expressly authorizing council to choose the mediums of publication, required by law, to be made in newspapers. Nor, except in one of the three cases named by you, is there any provision of law committing authority in the premises to any executive officer. The case I have in mind is that of the publication of the notice for bids by the director of public service. The statute involved here is section 4328, General Code. It provides as follows:

"* * * When so authorized and directed, the director of public service shall make a written contract with the lowest and best bidder after advertisement for not less than two nor more than four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation within the city."

I am clearly of the opinion that the duty to advertise, which exists under this section, is imposed upon the director of public service. Whether publication is limited to that provided in this section, or whether, under section 4329, council has the power to authorize and require additional publication of notices of this character, and to stipulate that such publication shall be made, for example, in two newspapers of opposite politics; and whether or not, finally, council might lawfully direct in what newspapers advertisements for bids in the department of public service should be published, I am of the opinion that the legislation of council may not impose the duty to advertise such notices upon any city official other than the director of public service. Inasmuch as you state that the ordinance of the city of Hamilton, in question, directs the city auditor to publish all legal notices in certain designated newspapers, it follows that the same does not apply to or govern the director of public service in advertising for bids for work in his department.

You do not submit a copy of the ordinance to me and, should it appear that specific duties are therein expressly imposed upon the director of public service, a question would be raised which is not herein determined.

The statutes being silent with respect to the execution of the duty to advertise ordinances, resolutions and notices of bond sales, and both the passage of ordinances and the issuance of bonds being, of course, actions which council alone can take, consideration of section 4211, General Code, is invoked, it provides that:

"The powers of council shall be legislative only, and it shall perform no administrative duties whatever and it shall neither appoint nor confirm any officer or employe in the city government except those of its own body, except as is otherwise provided in this title. All contracts requiring the authority of council for their execution shall be entered into and conducted to performance by the board or officers having charge of the matters to which they relate, and after authority to make such contracts has been given and the necessary appropriation made, council shall take no further action thereon."

In McCormick v. Niles, 81 O. S. 246, it was held, under this section, in the language of the syllabus:

> "Where the statute has not prescribed the person who shall execute such a contract (for the publication of legal notices) in behalf of a municipal corporation, it is consistent with section 1536-653, Revised Statutes, (which prescribed the duties of the clerk of council) for the council, by ordinance or resolution, to authorize the clerk thereof to execute such contract according to the directions of the council."

In the opinion per Price, J., is found the following:

> "It would seem that the council may authorize, by resolution or ordinance, the board or department of public service to contract for the public printing, and we see no valid objection to giving the clerk of council authority to make such contract. Council appears to be the source of authority to contract, and it is the authority to make the necessary appropriations. * * *"

While the language of the opinion is, perhaps, in the nature of a dictum and lacks positiveness, it suggests what I believe to be the only rule which can be followed in the premises, viz.: the council not having authority to execute contracts, but only to authorize them, and the execution of the given contracts not being provided for by law, the council may, by its own legislation, select the municipal agency or officer who shall execute the contract; and to the extent that it may select such an agency, it may determine what degree of discretion will be lodged therein.

On the last point see also Akron vs. Dobson, 81 O. S., 66 at page 77.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that council has the power to pass an ordinance such as is described by you, and thereby to impose upon the city auditor the additional duty of making contracts for the legal publication of ordinances, resolutions and notices of bond sales; and at the same time to direct that the auditor shall cause such publication to be made in certain designated newspapers.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

LAND TITLE REGISTRATION—TORRENS LAND ACT—PROCEDURE WHERE LAND IS SOLD BY SHERIFF.

Where registered land is sold by the sheriff, under order of the court, there should be filed with the recorder a certificate that the terms of the sale have been complied with; a certified copy of the order of sale, return thereof and confirmation, before the transfer of the property; registration of title and new certificates issued under the provisions of section 8752-52, G. C., 103 O. L., 944.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 13, 1915.

To the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Department of Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of February 10th, with which you submitted an inquiry from Mr. E. C. Rush, recorder of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, which is as follows:

"In section 62 of the registration act, will you please explain what is meant by 'on file with recorder a certificate of the officer that the terms of the sale have been complied with and a certified copy of the order of sale and return thereof and confirmation * * * shall be entitled to have the property transferred.'

"All papers have been filed in the recorder's office from the clerk and the sheriff has sold the property and given to the purchaser a deed for the same. Is that all that is necessary for having the transfer made or does the quotation above need to be complied with?"

You also attach a copy of your letter of February 6 to Mr. Rush and his reply of February 8, in which he states there is some doubt in his mind as to the meaning of section 62 and asks for an opinion from this office.

Section 62 of the act entitled, "To provide for the settlement, registration, transfer and assurance of land titles and to simplify and facilitate transactions in real estate," is as follows:

"Whenever registered land shall be sold to satisfy any judgment decree or order of the court, or the title is transferred or affected by a decree or judgment of the court, the purchaser, or the person in whose favor such decree was rendered, on filing with the recorder a certificate of the officer that the terms of sale have been complied with and a certified copy of the order of sale and return thereof and confirmation, or a certified copy of the decree of the court transferring or affecting the title, as the case may be, shall be entitled to have the property transferred to him and his title registered accordingly and a new certificate of title issued therefor."

Answering the question propounded by Mr. Rush, it is my opinion that in a case wherein registered land is sold by the sheriff under an order of the court that, in accordance with the provisions of section 8752-62 of the General Code (103 O. L., 944), there should be (before the purchaser shall be entitled to have the property transferred to him and his title registered accordingly and a new certificate of title issued therefor), filed with the recorder a certificate from the sheriff to the effect that the terms of the sale have been complied with a certified copy of the order of sale and return thereof and confirmation. In other words, the instructions contained in section 62 heretofore referred to should be complied with strictly.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ALLOWANCE IN PLACE OF FEES IN MISDEMEANOR CASES CANNOT BE MADE BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO A MAYOR OR JUSTICE OF THE PEACE, UNLESS DEFENDANT IS CONVICTED AND PROVES INSOLVENT.

No allowance in place of fees can be made in misdemeanor cases by the county commissioners to a justice of the peace or other officer under section 3019, G. C., unless the defendant is convicted and proves insolvent.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 15, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am directing to you my opinion upon a question raised by Hon. D. Finley Mills, prosecuting attorney of Shelby county, in a communication to me dated February 11, 1915. Mr. Mills' question is as follows:

> "Where a person is charged with having committed a misdemeanor and the charge is brought before a justice of the peace or mayor, and on preliminary hearing before the justice of the peace or mayor, the defendant is bound over to common pleas court to await the action of the next grand jury, and the grand jury returns no indictment against the defendant, or having returned an indictment against him, he is acquitted upon the trial of the case. Can the costs created in the mayor's court or the court of the justice of the peace be paid out of the $100 allowance made to respective officers by the county commissioners?"

The language of section 3019 of the General Code which governs this matter is so clear and unambiguous as to leave little doubt as to the intent of the legislature. The section in question reads as follows:

> "In felonies wherein the state fails, and in misdemeanors wherein the defendant proves insolvent, the county commissioners at any regular session, may make an allowance to any such officers in place of fees, but in any year the aggregate allowance to such officer shall not exceed the fees legally taxed to him in such causes, nor in any year shall the aggregate amount allowed an officer exceed one hundred dollars."

Under the provisions of this section, no allowance can be made to the officers in misdemeanor cases, unless the defendant "proves" insolvent. It may be a matter of common knowledge that a defendant is insolvent and that a judgment against him for fine and costs would be worthless, but within the meaning of the statute it could hardly be said that a defendant has been proven insolvent until there has been a conviction or a plea of guilty and until sentence has been passed and there is a commitment for failure to pay the penalty assessed.

Answering specifically the question propounded by Mr. Mills, I am of the opinion that where a person is charged with having committed a misdemeanor and the charge is brought before a justice of the peace or mayor, and on preliminary hearing before the justice of the peace or mayor the defendant is bound over to the common pleas court to await the action of the next grand jury, and the grand jury returns no indictment against the defendant, or having returned an indictment against him he is acquitted upon the trial of the case, an allowance in place of fees cannot be made by the county commissioners to the mayor or justice of the peace or to officer who served the warrant and other writs.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ENTIRE TEXT OF AN ORDINANCE NOT REQUIRED TO BE PRINTED UPON BALLOT WHEN ORDINANCE IS REFERRED TO ELECTORS—SUFFICIENT IF IT PERMITS AN AFFIRMATIVE OR NEGATIVE VOTE.

Under the municipal initiative and referendum law, it is not required that the full text of an ordinance be printed upon the ballot, but it is necessary that the title of the ordinance be so placed upon the ballot as to permit an affirmative or negative vote thereon.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 16, 1915.

HON. H. W. HOUSTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Urbana, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of February 3, 1915, you submit for an opinion the following:

> "1. Under the municipal initiative and referendum law, is it necessary to print on the ballots the entire text of an ordinance passed by council and referred to the electors at a special election?
> "2. Is any special form of ballot required, so long as the question is intelligibly and plainly set forth?"

Your questions involve a consideration of the provisions of the constitution and statutes, as follows:

> "Article II, section 1 f. The initiative and referendum powers are hereby reserved to the people of each municipality on all questions which such municipalities may now or hereafter be authorized by law to control by legislative action; such powers shall be exercised in the manner now or hereafter provided by law.
> "Article II, section 1 g. * * * Unless otherwise provided by law, the secretary of state shall cause to be placed upon the ballots, the title of any such law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, to be submitted. He shall also cause the ballots so to be printed as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each law. * * * * * * The foregoing provisions of this section shall be self-executing, except as herein otherwise provided."

General Code, 5018-1, 103 O. L., 831, provides:

> "The secretary of state, at least thirty days before any election at which any proposed amendment to the constitution or proposed law is to be submitted to the people, shall cause to be printed in pamphlet form a copy of the title and text of each measure to be submitted, with the form in which the ballot title thereof will be printed on the official ballot. Such pamphlet shall also contain an explanation of any proposed measure, not exceeding a total of three hundred words for each, to be filed as hereinafter provided."

General Code, 5018-7, 103 O. L., 832, provides in part:

"In all municipal corporations which have not or may not provide by ordinance or charter for the manner of exercising the initiative and referendum powers reserved by the constitution to the people thereof, as to their municipal legislation, the duties required of the secretary of state by this act, as to state legislation, shall be performed as to such municipal legislation by the clerk of the municipality; * * * * * * * * *."

Authorizing referendum of municipal ordinances at a special election, G. C., 4227-5, reads:

"Whenever twenty per cent. of the electors of any municipality file a petition with the city auditor if it be a city, or village clerk if it be a village, proposing or against an ordinance or other measure, requesting in the petition that the ordinance or measure be submitted to the electors of the municipality at a special election, the auditor or village clerk, after ten days, shall certify the same to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections who shall submit the same at a special election to be held on the fifth Tuesday after the petition is filed. The petition shall not be submitted at a special election if a regular or general election will occur not later than ninety days after the petition is filed, but shall be submitted at the regular or general election."

By the above provisions of article II, section 1-g, and G. C., 5018-1, the duty is clearly imposed upon the secretary of state in the submission of any constitutional amendment or law, to "place upon the ballots the title of any such law" and "cause the ballots to be so printed as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each law;" and cause to be printed in pamphlet form a copy of the title and text of each measure to be submitted "with the form in which the ballot title thereof will be printed on the official ballot."

By no other officer or authority is it provided that the form of the ballot in such case shall be determined, and it is to my mind an authority necessarily essential to the performance of the duties thus imposed upon the secretary of state, to prescribe the form of ballot in such case to conform to the provisions of the constitution and statutes here referred to.

It is a well established principle of law that public officers have such implied powers as are necessarily essential to the performance of such duties as are specifically imposed upon them by law.

Section 5018-8, G. C., 103 O. L., page 833, is as follows:

"The provisions of this act shall apply in every municipality in all matters concerning the operation of the initiative and referendum in its municipal legislation, unless otherwise provided for by the legislative authority of the municipality, and shall likewise apply insofar as possible in every county in all matters concerning the operation of the initiative and referendum; provided, that the printing and distribution of the pamphlet of measures and the sample ballot of measures therewith shall not be dispensed with in any municipality or county. The printing and binding of measures in municipal legislation and county matters shall be paid by the municipality or county in like manner as payment is provided for by the state as to state legislation, and said printing shall be done in the same manner that other municipal or county printing is done; distribution of such pamphlets shall be made to every voter in the municipality or county, so far as possible, by the clerk of such municipality or county commissioner, as the case may be, either by mail or carrier, not less than ten days before the election at which the measures are to be voted upon."

From this section it will be observed that the provisions of sections 5018-4, 5018-5 and 5018-6, G. C., enacted in 103 O. L., page 832, are made applicable to the municipal elections in initiative and referendum matters.

By virtue of the provisions of section 5018-7, G. C., the duties of the secretary of state, above referred to, are imposed upon the clerk of the municipality in case of a referendum upon a municipal ordinance, and he is accordingly required to place upon the ballot the title of an ordinance, referred in such form as to permit an affirmative or negative vote thereon in the manner prescribed for marking ballots by section 5069, G. C., requiring all marks upon the ballot to be made with black lead pencil. It therefore follows, that it is not necessary that the entire text of such ordinance be printed upon the ballot. On the contrary, while the specific form of ballot is nowhere in the statute prescribed in every detail, it is required that the title of each ordinance submitted under municipal initiative or referendum be so printed upon the ballot as to permit an affirmative or negative vote thereon.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS MAY TESTIFY AS TO FACTS LEARNED FROM EXAMINATION OF A BANK WHICH HAS BEEN IN LIQUIDATION.

The superintendent of banks, a deputy or an examiner may testify in a court of competent jurisdiction relative to facts learned from an examination of a bank which has since become solvent and is not in the process of liquidation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 16, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of February 10, 1915, requesting my advice as follows:

"I have a request from Mr. A. M. Lewis, representing the plaintiff in the case of Homer Brooks and others in the defunct Albany State Bank, asking that we have our Mr. Walters go to Athens and testify in this case. We thought perhaps this would be in contravention of section 12898, R. S. We would like to have your advice in the premises and would appreciate any suggestion you might have to make.

"Copy of the pleadings and letter from Mr. Lewis herewith enclosed."

The copy of the pleadings referred to and enclosed in your letter discloses an action brought by Homer C. Brooks for himself and other depositors of the defunct Albany State Bank against Frank E. Baxter, former superintendent of banks, and his bondsmen for damages suffered by the said depositors to the amount of their respective unpaid deposits and occasioned by the negligence of the said Baxter, as superintendent of banks, in issuing his certificate authorizing said bank to commence business knowing that fifty per cent. of its capital stock had not been paid in, and for permitting it to continue its banking business after it was known by him to be insolvent.

Section 12898 of the General Code is as follows:

> "Whoever, being the superintendent of banks, a deputy assistant, clerk in his employ or an examiner, fails to keep secret the facts and information obtained in the course of an examination, except when the public duty of such officer requires him to report upon or take official action regarding the affairs of the corporation, company, society or association so examined, or wilfully makes a false official report as to the condition of such corporation, company, society or association, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than five years, or both. Nothing in this section shall prevent the proper exchange of certain valuable information relating to banks and the business thereof, with the representatives of the banking departments of other states, or with the national bank authorities."

The reason for this legislative enactment forbidding the superintendent of banks and bank examiners to reveal facts and information contained in their report of the examination of banks was clearly for the protection of the bank and its business as a going concern. The Albany State Bank was declared insolvent prior to the institution of this suit and its liquidation is now practically completed, therefore, the reason of the rule of the statute is removed, and it is inconceivable that a bank which has been closed and practically liquidated would receive any injury by a public revelation of its business secrets.

I am also informed that the testimony which is desired in the trial of this case was heretofore given in the case of the State of Ohio v. C. B. Bowers, tried in the court of common pleas of Athens county, and this testimony was furnished by your department. Since this information is a matter of public record the reason of the statutory rule is again removed.

Without going into the question of whether or not you, as superintendent of banks, or your examiners may lawfully be required to testify in a court of competent jurisdiction relative to facts and information obtained in the course of an examination of a bank, I am of the opinion, under the facts stated above, that it would be proper for Mr. Walters to furnish testimony in the case pending in Athens county. Whether or not he should go to Athens and there give his testimony, or require them to take his deposition at your office or wherever they succeed in securing service on him of a subpoena, is purely a matter of policy for you, as superintendent of banks, to determine.

If Mr. Walters goes to Athens to testify, I suggest for his protection that he call the court's attention to the provisions of section 12898 and ask instructions before testifying to any facts or information which have been obtained by the state banking department in the course of its examination of any bank.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TAXES COLLECTED BY JUVENILE COURT UNDER THE MOTHERS' PENSION ACT ARE NOT AVAILABLE UNTIL APPROPRIATED FOR THAT SPECIFIC PURPOSE AT THE ENSUING FISCAL HALF YEAR.

Under the mothers' pension act, taxes collected under a levy in pursuance of section 1683-9, G. C., are not available for the requirements of the juvenile court, until appropriated for that specific purpose at the beginning of the fiscal half year next after their collection.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 16, 1915.

HON. C. H. CURTISS, Prosecuting Attorney, Ravenna, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of January 29th, requesting my written opinion upon the following proposition:

> "In relation to the availablity of mother's pension.
> "The county commissioners of this county made no transfer of funds for the purpose of paying awards under mother's pension act as authorized by them to do under section 1683-10 as passed in 1914, found in Session Laws 104, page 193.
> "A levy was made, however, as directed by section 1683-9, found in Ohio Laws 103, page 879, the first half of which levy has been collected under the December collection. Are these funds available for the payment of proper awards at this time, or must the awards by the probate court commence on and after March 1, 1915?"

Section 1683-10, 104 O. L. page 199, as enacted in 1914, provides:

> "For the purpose of providing a sum which will meet the requirements of the juvenile court until the proceeds of the tax required to be levied under the provisions of section 1683-9 of the General Code, shall become available, any board of county commissioners may transfer from any surplus moneys in the county treasury to the credit of any fund therein to a fund for the use of the juvenile court under the provisions of sections 1683-2 to 1683-9, inclusive, of the General Code, the creation of which for such purpose is hereby authorized. The moneys so transferred shall be paid as provided in section 1683-9 of the General Code, upon the order of the juvenile judge, under allowances made either before or after this act shall become effective."

This bill was passed as an emergency act. The purpose of the foregoing section was to supplement the act of 1913, 103 O. L., 879 (mothers' pension act), and to enable the county commissioners to provide necessary money to meet the requirements of the juvenile court under said act until the proceeds of the tax therein authorized to be levied, shall become available.

You state, however, that no such transfer of funds was in fact made. It follows, therefore, that no funds are available for such purpose until appropriation has been made therefor from the proceeds of taxes collected under the provisions of section 1683-9, G. C.

Section 1683-9 provides:

"It is hereby made the duty of the county commissioners to provide out of the money in the county treasury such sum each year thereafter as will meet the requirements of the court in these proceedings. To provide the same they shall levy a tax not to exceed one-tenth of a mill on the dollar valuation of the taxable property of the county. Such levy shall be subject to all the limitations provided by law upon the aggregate amount, rate, maximum rate and combined maximum rate of taxation. The county auditor shall issue a warrant upon the county treasurer for the payment of such allowance as may be ordered by the juvenile judge."

Section 5649-3d, General Code, provides:

"At the beginning of each fiscal half year, the various boards mentioned in section 5649-3a of this act shall make appropriations for each of the several objects for which money has to be provided, from the moneys known to be in the treasury from the collection of taxes and all other sources of revenue, and all expenditures within the following six months shall be made from and within such appropriations and balances thereof, but no appropriation shall be made for any purpose not set forth in the annual budget nor for a greater amount for such purpose than the total amount fixed by the budget commissioners, exclusive of receipts and balances."

You state that "a levy was made as directed by section 1683-9 (103 O. L., 879), and that the first half of such levy has been collected under the December collection."

The next semi-annual settlement between the auditor and the treasurer, to wit: the February settlement, will determine the amount of moneys in the treasury, from which appropriations may be made for the requirements of the juvenile court under the mothers' pension act so-called.

At the beginning of the ensuing fiscal half year, to wit: March 1st, the commissioners are directed by section 5649-3d to "make appropriations for each of the special objects for which money has to be provided from moneys known to be in the treasury," and it is further provided that "all expenditures within the following six months shall be made from and within such appropriations."

It is my opinion that the funds levied and collected under authority of section 1683-9 aforesaid, are not available for requirements of the juvenile court under the mothers' pension act until appropriated for that specific purpose, and that this appropriation must be made at the beginning of the ensuing fiscal half year, to wit, March 1, 1915.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FEES OF MAGISTRATE—ENTERING JUDGMENT—JUDGMENT ON DOCKET WHERE DEFENDANT WAIVES EXAMINATION IN LOWER COURT AND CONSENTS TO BE BOUND OVER.

A magistrate is entitled under section 1746, G. C., to forty cents for entering judgment and fifteen cents for judgment on docket in a case where defendant waives examination and consents to be bound over to higher court.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 17, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of January 21, 1915, you submit for my opinion the following question:

> "Is a magistrate, under section 1746, General Code, entitled to forty cents for entering judgment, and a fee of fifteen cents for judgment on docket in a case where the defendant waives examination and consents to being bound over to a higher court?"

Section 1746, General Code, to which you refer provides:

> "Except as otherwise provided, justices of the peace, for the services named when rendered, may receive the following fees: * * *
> "Entering judgment, forty cents; * * * Judgment on docket, fifteen cents; * * *."

When a defendant in a criminal case waives examination and consents to be bound over to a higher court it is necessary that a justice of the peace order him to enter into a recognizance that he will appear either forthwith before such court or at the first day of the next term of court and having done so his jurisdiction of the matter ends. His order however is a determination by him of the matter before him and in my opinion is within the definition of the term "judgment as used in the above provisions of section 1746." Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PREMIUM ON BOND GIVEN BY OHIO NATIONAL GUARD OFFICER, DESIGNATED AS DISBURSING OFFICER FOR THE UNITED STATES, CAN BE PAID OUT OF STATE MILITARY FUND.

Premium on official bond of Ohio national guard Officer, designated by the governor to act as disbursing officer for the United States, may be paid out of state military fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 18, 1915.

HON. BENSON W. HOUGH, Adjutant General of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have the honor to reply to your communication of February 10, 1915, as follows:

"I have the honor to request an opinion of your department upon the following matter:

"The custody of federal appropriation and funds issued by the federal government to the states is given to a United States disbursing officer designated by the governor of the state. Colonel William H. Duffy has been so designated by the governor of Ohio. He is required to give bond to faithfully account for the safekeeping and payment of the public moneys entrusted to him for disbursement, as provided by section 149, organized militia regulations of the war department.

"In those regulations no provision is made for the expense in connection with the furnishing of such bond, as appears in section 154, O. M. R. The regulations of the Ohio national guard, paragraph 726, provide in part that 'the payment of the premium on surety company bonds is a legitimate charge against the funds of the organization to which the officer is assigned for duty.' This regulation has been sustained by the courts, as is shown by the opinion of the attorney general furnished this department dated April 27, 1914, under the signature of Charles Follett, first assistant attorney general.

"Colonel Duffy being a statutory appointive officer, namely, assistant quartermaster general of Ohio, it is desired that this department be informed whether his status in reference to being bonded is the same as an officer of the Ohio national guard, or, in other words, whether the premium on his bond as disbursing officer is a proper and legitimate charge against the military fund."

I am asked whether the premium on the bond of Colonel William H. Duffy, who has been designated by the governor of Ohio as United States disbursing officer for the Ohio national guard is payable from the funds appropriated for the maintenance of the Ohio national guard.

It appears that by the act of congress, approved January 21, 1903, as amended by an act of May 27, 1908, and April 21, 1910, 36 statutes, 329, section 14, it is provided that:

"In states where certain requirements with respect to the national guard of such state are complied with, that the secretary of war is authorized to pay to the quartermaster general thereof, or to such officer of the militia of said state as said governor may designate and appoint for the purpose, so much of its allotment * * * as shall be necessary for the payment, subsistence and transportation of such portion of said organized militia as shall engage in actual field or camp service * * * and he shall be required to give good and sufficient bonds to the United States in such sums as the secretary of war may direct faithfully to account for the safe-keeping and payment of public moneys so entrusted to him for disbursement."

Pursuant to the quoted provisions, it is provided by sections 150, 151, 152 and 153, regulations of the war department for organized militia (1910, page 46) in what manner such bonds shall be given. By a decision of the comptroller, under date of November 4, 1903, it is held that the expense of bond premiums may not be paid for from the fund appropriated by section 1661, R. S., as so amended.

The question then resolves itself to this: By congressional appropriation a large sum of money is made available to the national guard of the state of Ohio. As a condition precedent to the receipt of such fund an officer of the Ohio national guard must be designated as "disbursing officer" and he must give bond to the United States for the proper disbursement of the fund. The appropriation made for maintenance is thereby relieved of a portion of the burden of the support of the national guard and the state is thus relieved of a corresponding burden of expenditure. While the advantage to the state as a proposition of economy is instantly apparent, yet, nevertheless, it becomes still a question as to whether this expenditure is proper from the fund appropriated for the maintenance of the Ohio national guard. The court of appeals of the sixth circuit has rendered an opinion in the case, not yet reported, of Berry Brothers v. Eddy. The opinion not being as yet in print, I here quote at length:

"2. This action is a test case brought for the purpose of obtaining a judicial decision with respect to the right of an officer of the Ohio national guard to pay a premium upon his official bond as such to a surety company from public funds of the state under appropriations either for maintenance of the Ohio national guard or for incidental expenses of militia companies, as prescribed in section 5267, General Code.

"Section 3104, R. S., now section 5314 of the General Code, 83 O. L., 95 provides as follows:

" 'All officers, commissioned under this title, in whose hands is placed public money or other public property, shall give bonds in the sum not to exceed four thousand dollars for a company commander, and five thousand dollars for a regimental quartermaster, and all other officers such sums as the commander-in-chief, may direct, conditioned faithfully to account for all public moneys and property which they may receive. The commander-in-chief may at any time increase the sum so prescribed.'

"Section 3105, R. S., now section 5314, General Code, 94, O. L., 314, provides as follows:

" 'Each person elected or appointed to have the custody of any funds of a military organization, before receiving such fund, shall enter into bond in twice the amount likely to be in his hands at any time, but not less than five hundred dollars, with at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the auditor of the proper county, payable to the state of Ohio for the use of such organization, for the faithful discharge of his duties, and the careful keeping and disbursement of such funds, as directed by the council of administration of such organization.'

"Nowhere is there an express provision as to the source of the fund from which payment for such bonds shall be made.

"By 103, O. L., page 628, the following general appropriation is made:

"Maintenance, Ohio national guard ---------- $290,000.00.

"100, O. L., 27, paragraph 4, provides as follows:

" 'Section 5265. The auditor of state shall credit to the "state military fund" from the general revenues of the state a sum equal to ten cents for each person who was a resident of the state, as shown by each last preceding federal census. Such fund shall be a continuous fund and available only for the support of the organized militia. It shall not be diverted to any other fund or used for any other purpose.'

" 'Section 6255. The general assembly shall appropriate annually, and divide into two funds, the amount authorized by the preceding section. Such funds shall be respectfully known as the "state armory fund" and "maintenance Ohio national guard fund." '.

" 'Section 5267. From the "maintenance Ohio national guard fund" the adjutant general shall pay the per diem, transportation, subsistence and incidental expenses of militia companies, inspections and incidental expenses of camp, including horse hire, fuel, lumber, forage of horses and medical supplies'

"By the act of April 28, 1886, O. L., 95 98, it is provided:

" 'The national guard shall be governed by the military laws of the state, the orders of the commander-in-chief and the code of regulations.'

"The following section provides:

"The commander-in-chief shall be authorized to make and publish such regulations as will increase the discipline and efficiency of the national guard.'

"Under this authority such a military code has been established which affirmatively provides among other things that a premium paid to a surety company for official bonds of officers of the Ohio national guard is a proper expenditure of that portion of the funds appropriated for maintenance of the Ohio national guard.

"We are inclined to think that this provision is a valid one. 'Maintenance is defined to be the supply of necessaries and convenience.'

"See also Webster and Bouvier 'maintenance.'

"Counsel for defendant in error gives as a definition of incidental expenses of a military organization 'anything not specifically excepted for which there is a military necessity.'

"In any event we are clearly of the opinion that the giving of these bonds to the state for its protection and the protection of the United States, being required by law, and especially required of officers rendering a loyal and patriotic service for which they receive no salary and to which they devote a large portion of their time, the expense would be properly included in the appropriations for the incidental expenses of military organizations, especially inasmuch as the military code governing such matters has affirmatively declared such expenditures to be proper ones.

"It is stated in argument that these premiums have been constantly paid throughout the national guard for a period of over fourteen years. We would be unable to attach any significance to this fact were we not of the opinion that they have been rightly so paid.

"The judgment of the court below is affirmed without penalty."

The only differentiation between the case decided above and that passed on with approval by the opinion of the attorney general, dated April 27, 1914, and the subject-matter of this discussion is that, in the former case the question raised was whether a bond premium given by a national guard officer to the state for its protection might be paid for from the maintenance fund; and in the case covered by the enquiry the question is as to whether a bond given to the United States for the security of and a proper accounting for the public funds of the United States placed at the disposal of the state for its military department might be so paid. I can see no difference in law or in principle between the cases. Clearly, under the definition of maintenance above quoted, it would be properly payable, and I am of the opinion that a payment out of such fund would be fully within the letter and spirit of the law.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

BUREAU OF VITAL STATISTICS--MAY DEMAND PAYMENT FOR COPIES OF BIRTH AND DEATH CERTIFICATES.

The bureau of vital statistics may demand payment from other state departments for certified copies of birth and death certificates issued to such other deparments.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 19, 1915.

Bureau of Vital Statistics, Deparment of Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of February 16, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

"Kindly give me your opinion on the following question:

"'May certified copies of birth and death certificates be issued by the bureau of vital statistics, to other state departments for use in those departments without the payment of the statutory fee as stipulated in section 231, G. C.'

"The incident which has brought forth this question is this:

"On February 15, 1915, Mr. McKee, a claim investigator for the industrial commission of Ohio secured six certified copies of death certificates for the use of the commission. All of the deceased were foreigners with no dependents in this country. There were no persons therefore who could be required to furnish the certified copies in prosecuting claims as dependents.

"For these certified copies a statement was rendered to the industrial commission of Ohio for the full amount of $3.00. This statement has been returned with the following letter:

"Dr. A. C. Holland,

"State Registrar of Vital Statistics, Columbus, Ohio.

"Dear Doctor:—We are returning herewith your statement for $3.00 covering six certified copies of certificates of death secured from your department by one of our claims investigators.

"Inasmuch as the certificates in question are used in connection with the activities of another state department, it is our opinion that no charge should be made by your department for the certificates so furnished.

"Yours very truly,

"(Signed) H. H. Hamm."

Section 231 of the General Code referred to in your letter, provides as follows:

"The state registrar shall furnish any applicant therefor a certified copy of the record of a birth or death registered under provisions of this chapter relating to vital statistics, for which he shall receive a fee of fifty cents from the applicant. Such copy, when properly certified by the state registrar to be a true copy thereof, shall be prima facia evidence in all courts and places of the facts therein stated.

"For a search of the files and records when no certified copy is made, the state registrar shall receive a fee of fifty cents from the applicant for each hour or fractional hour of time of search; provided, that the United States census bureau may obtain without cost to the state, transcripts of births and deaths without payment of the fees herein prescribed."

I assume from your letter that Mr. McKee was authorized by the industrial commission of Ohio to secure the six certified death certificates mentioned, and without discussing the right or necessity of the industrial commission to secure these certificates, I deem it sufficient to call your attention to section 280 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "All service rendered and property transferred from one institution, department, improvement, or public service industry, to another, shall be paid for at its full value. No institution, department, improvement, or public service industry, shall receive financial benefit from an appropriation made or fund created for the support of another. When an appropriation account is closed, an unexpended balance shall revert to the fund from which the appropriation was made."

The furnishing of these death certificates was without doubt a "service" such as is contemplated in the statutes and this "service" was furnished by one state department to another. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the bureau of vital statistics is entitled to receive and may demand payment under section 231, G. C., from other state departments for certified copies of births and death certificates issued to such other departments by the bureau.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EMPLOYE OF RAILROAD COMPANY, WHO IS A MEMBER OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF OHIO MAY BE ISSUED A PASS.

Railroad company may issue pass to employe who is a member of the general assembly.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 19, 1915.

HON. DAVID HEINSELMAN, Member House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your letter of February 17th, in which you request my opinion upon the following question:

> "Will you please give me your opinion on the federal and state laws in regard to railroad companies issuing passes to employes who are members of the house and senate?"

Section 516, General Code of Ohio, provides in part as follows:

> "No railroad company, owning or operating a railroad wholly or partly within this state, shall directly or indirectly, issue or give a free ticket, free pass, or free transportation for passengers, except to its employes and their families, its officers, agents, surgeons, physicians and attorneys at law; * * * Provided, that the term 'employes' as used in this paragraph shall include furloughed, pensioned, and superannuated employes, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of any such common carrier, * * * and ex-employes traveling for the purpose of entering the service of any such common carrier; * * *."

Section 8563-5, United States Compiled Statutes, 1913, provides as follows:

"No common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall after January first, nineteen hundred and seven, directly or indirectly, issue or give any interstate free ticket, free pass, or free transportation for passengers, except to its employes and their families, its officers, agents, surgeons, physicians and attorneys at law; * * * Provided further, that the term 'employes' as used in this paragraph shall include furloughed, pensioned, and superannuated employes, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of any such common carrier, * * * and ex-employes traveling for the purpose of entering the service of any such common carrier; * * *."

The above sections quoted in part are the provisions of law which prohibit free transportation by railroad companies in Ohio and the United States.

You will note that the one exception above quoted in both the United States and Ohio Statutes especially excepts employes, their families, surgeons, physicians and attorneys at law of railroad companies, from the provisions of such acts, and also further defines the term "employe."

It would seem that if the employe referred to in your letter comes within the provisions of the term "employe" as here defined in both the Ohio and the United States Statutes, he would become an exception to the rule. I am, therefore, of the opinion that employes of railroad companies, who are members of the house and senate can be issued passes, provided said employes come within the purview of the exceptions enumerated in the section quoted.

In this opinion, I have merely answered the question as submitted and have not considered the question of an employe of a railroad company, who is a member of the house or senate, traveling on his pass, as to whether or not he is entitled to mileage as provided by section 50, General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

REASONABLE LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF MONTHLY EXPENSES MAY BE MADE BY THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION FOR ITS EMPLOYES—NO POWER TO GRANT A LUMP SUM FOR EXPENSES.

The industrial commission may make reasonable limitation on amount of monthly expenses, but has no power to grant a lump sum in lieu thereof.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 19, 1915.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter dated February 12, 1915, you submit to me for my opinion thereon the following inquiry:

"Has the industrial commission authority under section 915, Ohio Laws 103, page 468, to allow the mine rescue car attendant the sum of $25.00 per month for meals, and permit him to make such arrangements for his meals as will be satisfactory to him, providing, of course, he makes arrangements that will be satisfactory to the commission as to the amount of time it would take him away from the car in order to get his meals?"

Section 915 of the General Code, as amended 103 Ohio Laws 467, after providing for the manner of the equipment of the said rescue car, provides that:

"The rescue car with its equipment, shall be stationed at such point as may be designated by the chief inspector of mines, and may be transferred, by his direction, at any time to any point within the state for the purpose of facilitating the efficient inspection of mines and conducting rescue work, and to demonstrate the various appliances and instruct persons in their use in first aid and rescue work.

"The rescue car with its equipment shall be continuously in charge of one person who shall be appointed by the chief inspector of mines, with the approval of the governor, and who shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum, together with all necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of his duties."

To comply with this law it is necessary for this attendant to sleep in said car and to be available thereat for service at all times in order to respond to emergency calls.

As to taking his meals away from the rescue car your commission may make such reasonable regulations as will carry out the spirit of the law.

As to expenses you are not authorized to enter into an arrangement for a lump sum. You may, however, within your reasonable discretion fix a maximum which the employe may not exceed. It will be necessary for such employe to itemize his expenses in order that the auditor may draw warrant for same upon the treasury.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PRIVATE CORPORATION — PUBLICATION OF NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETINGS—CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION SHOULD CONTAIN PROOF OF PUBLICATION OF SUCH NOTICE.

Publication of notice of stockholders' meeting for purpose of dissolution of a private corporation under section 8749, G. C., cannot be waived, a certificate which fails to show that such publication has been made should not be filed or recorded by the secretary of state as a certification of dissolution.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 19, 1915.

HON. CHAS. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You request my opinion as to your power and duty to file and record a purported certificate of dissolution under section 8740 of the General Code, which contains recitals conformable to the provisions of the statutes in all respects save one, viz., the requirement that notice to meet of the stockholders at which the dissolution shall be effected, shall be given

> "by publication for four weeks in some newspaper published and of general circulation in the county wherein the principal office of the corporation is located and by written notices addressed to each of the stockholders whose residence is known."

Instead of a recital of such facts the certificate contains the following:

> "that all of the stockholders of said corporation in writing waived notice of the time and place of the meeting of said stockholders authorized and directed to be given under section 8740 of the General Code of Ohio."

Technical objections might be made to this waiver in that the statute requires that not only the time and place of the meeting be given, but also its object.

But waiving this technicality, I am brought to the consideration of the fundamental question as to whether or not the notices required to be given by section 8740 of the General Code can be waived at all.

A strong inference against the possibility of waiver is found in the fact that elsewhere in the related statutes upon the general subject of the organization and power of a corporation, there are specific provisions for the waiving of certain notices. (See sections 8631, 8635, 8698, 8711 and 8723.)

In fact, in nearly all if not every case in which notice of any particular kind is required by law to be given, respecting a corporate meeting, there is also specific provision for waiver except in the dissolution statutes. Neither section 8738 nor section 8740, General Code, authorizes a waiver of the notice therein provided for.

It is at least reasonable to conclude, in the fact of the general legislative policy disclosed by the statutes cited, that if the general assembly had intended that the notices provided in the dissolution statutes could be waived by the stockholders, it would have made express provision therefor. We are dealing with a question of legislative intention; for whatever may be the purpose of such a notice, it is clear that if the statute is found to have an unmistakable meaning, it must be followed in every case.

But I incline strongly to the view that the notices provided for by statute are not for the exclusive benefit of the stockholder and that this undoubtedly is the reason why the statute does not provide that the stockholders may waive them. Under section 8740, for example, the stockholders are entitled to personal notice in writing as well as to notice by publication. The requirement of the giving of notice in both these ways in all cases, whether there are stockholders whose addresses are unknown or not, constitutes a strong indication that the newspaper publication is for the benefit of parties other than the stockholders.

I believe that the newspaper publication is for the benefit of the creditors of the corporation and the general public; despite the corporation's own determination that it has "closed its business and paid all of its debts and liabilities," which under the statute must be made and which is certified to in the instrument which is tendered to you for filing, the statutes contemplate that those whom the managers of the corporation may not consider to be creditors and who believes notwithstanding that they have a claim against the corporation, shall have notice of its contemplated dissolution. It is at least not clear under the statutes that the notice is for the sole benefit of the stockholders and every inference which is apparent from the words of the statute points in the opposite direction. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the certificate of dissolution which has been tendered to you is not legal in form and that you are not obliged to file and record the same.

Nor do I think that having notice of the defects of the instrument, you have authority to accept for filing and record. While I do not wish in this opinion to question the authority of the secretary of state to file miscellaneous papers tendered to him for that purpose, on the payment of the proper fee, yet where a paper is tendered as a certificate of dissolution, which in point of fact is not valid as such, and the secretary of state has notice of its invalidity from its own terms, I believe it is his duty to refuse to file and record it.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CERTIFICATE OF AMENDMENT TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION MUST SHOW NOTICE HAS BEEN GIVEN TO ALL MEMBERS OF SUCH CORPORATION BY PUBLICATION OR WAIVER BY ALL MEMBERS IN WRITING—AMENDMENT MUST BE CONCURRED IN BY THREE-FIFTHS OF ALL MEMBERS OF SUCH CORPORATION.

A certificate of amendment to the articles of incorporation of a mutual fire insurance association which fails to show that notice has been given either by publication or waived in writing by all of the members of such company, and which likewise fails to show that the amendment was concurred in by three-fifths of the members of such company should not be filed and recorded by the secretary of state.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 19, 1915.

HON. CHAS. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I return herewith proposed amendment of articles of incorporation of the Norton Mutual Fire Association sent to me in your letter of February 12th. I have not endorsed my approval thereon nor am I able to advise that the certificate is in such form as that it ought to be filed in your office.

The statutes relative to amendments to articles of incorporation, sections 8720 et seq., General Code, very clearly provide that notices of the corporate meetings must be either given by newspaper publication or waiver in writing by all the stockholders or members. While the giving of notice by mail might be regarded as constituting a substantial compliance with these statutes, it is certainly not a literal compliance with them, and where the waiver of all the members is not secured, I could not advise that the proceedings were in accordance with law.

Because, therefore, the certificate which I return herewith shows the giving of notice by mail instead of by newspaper publication, and because newspaper publication was not waived in writing by all the members of the company and for the additional reason, which I believe I have not yet mentioned, that while the certificate recites that the proposal to amend was adopted without a dissenting vote, it does not show that it was concurred in by at least three-fifths of the members of the company. I am obliged to advise that you refuse to file and record the same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION—SECTIONS OF THE GENERAL CODE WHICH APPLY TO COUNTY EXPERIMENT FARMS.

The law of the state relating to county experiment farms is to be found in sections 1174, 1175. 1176, 1177, 1177-1, 1177-5, 1177-6, 1177-8 and 1177-9 of the General Code, as found in the agricultural commission act, 103 O. L. 304, and in sections 1165-6, 1165-7, 1165-8 and 1165-11 of the General Code as amended in 103 O. L., 436, with the added proviso that in reading the last four amended sections referred to, the expression "board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station" where it occurs therein, must be read "agricultural commission."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 20, 1915.

The Agricultural Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of February 8, 1915, I have a communication from Mr. Benj. F. Gayman, secretary of the agricultural commission, which communication reads as follows:

> "On page 341, O. L., 103, you will notice that the agricultural commission act was passed April 15, 1913, approved May 3, 1913, filed in the office of the secretary of state May 7, 1913.
> "On page 437, O. L., 103, you will notice that an act amending the county experiment farm law was passed April 14, 1913, approved May 5, 1913, filed in the office of the secretary of state May 8, 1913.
> "I am authorized by the agricultural commission to request an opinion from your department which of these acts is to be recognized by the commission as the law relating to county experiment farms."

A consideration of this inquiry involves a brief reference to the history of the legislation relating to county experiment farms. The first act upon this subject is found in 101 O. L., 124. The sections of this act were designated as sections 1165-1 to 1165-13 inclusive, of the General Code. This act which was adopted in 1910, remained in force without modification until the regular session of the general assembly in 1913, when two acts were passed dealing with the subject of county experiment farms.

One of these acts passed in 1913, and dealing with the subject of county experiment farms is the agricultural commission act found in 103 O. L., 304. This act is entitled "an act to create the agricultural commission of Ohio, and to prescribe its organization, its powers and its duties," etc. This act specifically repeals sections 1165-1 to 1165-13, inclusive, of the General Code, said sections being the original law relating to county experiment farms, but the act contains a re-enactment of those sections and as re-enacted they were given different section numbers by the attorney general, being designated as sections 1174 to 1177-9, inclusive. The only change made in these sections by the agricultural commission act was to substitute in said sections the expression "agricultural commission" for "board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station," where the latter expression occurred. It is manifest that the legislature in passing the agricultural commission act, did not intend to change in any way the law relating to county experiment farms, and that its only object in repealing and re-enacting these sections was to make the language thereof correspond with the change in the law brought about by the abolition of the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station and the casting of its duties upon the newly created agricultural commission.

The other of these acts passed in 1913, and dealing with the subject of county experiment farms, is found in 103 O. L., 436. This act is entitled "an act to amend sections 1165-6, 1165-7, 1165-8 and 1165-11 to authorize the establishment of county experiment farms." The act amends these four sections in important particulars, the object of most of the changes being to take certain powers away from the county commissioners and lodge these powers in a central board which at the time of the passage of this act was the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station. It is apparent from the title and substance of this act that the legislature in passing it had in mind and intended to make important changes in the law relating to county experiment farms. The order of the passage, approval and filing of these two acts is indicated in the letter of your secretary above quoted.

From the above statement, it will be seen that when the general assembly convened in 1913, there existed a certain law relating to county experiment farms, and that the legislature intended and attempted to do two things with this law. One of these things was to change the phraseology of the law to make it correspond with certain changes in other laws, and the other was to amend four sections of the law in important particulars. Unfortunately the legislature did not have in mind both things at the same time, and proceeded on April 14th, to adopt an act amending in a substantial way four sections of the law relating to county experiment farms, and upon the following day adopted the agricultural commission act repealing all of the sections of the code relating to county experiment farms and re-enacting the same, the law as re-enacted containing a change in phraseology, but absolutely no change in its substance, as compared with the original law.

I am of the opinion that the intention of the legislature can be clearly gathered from a consideration of the original law as adopted in 1910, and the two acts adopted on succeeding days in 1913. When the legislature convened in 1913, it found in existence a certain law relating to county experiment farms. On April 14th, it sought to substantially amend four sections of this law, the main purpose of the amendment being to destroy the divided authority of the county commissioners and board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station as to certain matters and to vest the entire authority as to these matters in the board of control. On April 15th, it sought to strike out of every section relating to county experiment farms and containing the expression "board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station" said expression, and to substitute therefor the expression "agricultural commission," the sole reason for this change being that in the same act the legislature abolished the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station and cast its duties upon the agricultural commission created in the same act.

It is elementary that statutes upon the same matter or subject are to be construed together, and this rule is the stronger where both acts under consideration were passed at the same session of the legislature. The main intention of the legislature in the matter under consideration was two-fold; to amend the substance of the law relating to county experiment farms and to change the phraseology of said law so as to make it correspond with those other new sections of the code which abolished the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station and cast its duties upon the newly created agricultural commission.

Insofar as two statutes are irreconcilable, effect must be given to the one last approved. This rule is based upon the theory that the act of approval is part of the usual legislative program, and that therefore if two acts are irreconcilable, the one last approved is the last expression of the law making authority. This theory finds support in Ohio in the case of State ex rel. v. Halliday, 63 O. S., 165. The application of this rule to the matter under consideration would require that force and effect be given to sections 1165-6, 1165-7, 1165-8 and 1165-11 as amended in 103 O. L., 436, for the reason that the act containing these amended sections was approved by the governor two days after he approved the agricultural commission act.

For the reasons above given, I am of opinion that both acts must be read together and that full force and effect should be given to the expressed intention of the legislature in both acts; that part of the one act and part of the other are to be recognized by your commission as the law relating to county experiment farms; that sections 1165-6, 1165-7, 1165-8 and 1165-11 as amended in 103 O. L., 436, are to be regarded as amendments of sections 1177-2, 1177-3, 1177-4 and 1177-7 as found in the agricultural commission act; and that the law now applicable to county experiment farms is to be found in sections 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 105, 106, 108 and 109 of the agricultural commission act, being sections 1174, 1175, 1176, 1177, 1177-1, 1177-5, 1177-6, 1177-8 and 1177-9 of the General Code, and in sections 1165-6, 1165-7, 1165-8 and 1165-11 of the General Code as amended in 103 O. L., 436. To this statement must be added the proviso that the four amended sections last referred to must be read in the light of the provision of the agricultural commission act found in section 11 of said act, being section 1089 of the General Code, to the effect that the agricultural commission shall succeed to and be possessed of the rights, authority and powers previously exercised by the board of control of the state agricultural experiment station. In reading said sections 1165-6, 1165-7, 1165-8 and 1165-11, as amended in 103 O. L., 436, the expression "board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station" where it occurs in said sections, must therefore be read "agricultural commission."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION—THE TRINITY MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

Articles of incorporation of The Trinity Mutual Fire Insurance Association relating to mutual protective associations for the insurance of property are legally drawn.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 20, 1915.

HON. C. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I return to you herewith the proposed articles of incorporation of The Trinity Mutual Fire Insurance Association, having attached thereto my certificate that the same are in accordance with the provisions of law relating to mutual protective associations for the insurance of property. I am in doubt as to whether or not the certificate of the attorney general is required to be attached to such articles of incorporation, under the strict language of the present code, although such certificate was required under the original Revised Statutes. Inasmuch, however, as the articles of incorporation are in all respects legal I have no objection to attaching the same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH HAS AUTHORITY TO ISSUE GENERAL ORDER FOR PUBLIC WATER SUPPLY, LEAVING IT OPTIONAL WITH MUNICIPALITY BETWEEN ALTERNATIVE REMEDIES—BONDS MAY BE ISSUED BY A MUNICIPALITY FOR CARRYING OUT PROVISIONS WITHOUT SUBMITTING THE QUESTION TO VOTE, BUT SUCH ORDINANCE MUST SET FORTH THE NECESSITY FOR AN EMERGENCY.

A general order to install a public water supply may be issued by the state board of health, under section 1254, G. C., the municipality to choose between alternative measures to carry out the order, subject to approval by the state board of health. Bonds may be issued under section 1259, G. C., without submitting same to vote. An ordinance to carry out order of state board of health is not subject to referendum when an emergency necessity is declared.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 20, 1915.

DR. E. F. MCCAMPBELL, Secretary and Executive Officer, State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of February 12, 1915, which is as follows:

"I should like to have your advice and opinion in reference to the following matters:

"In August, 1914, a complaint was made under the provisions of section 1252, G. C., by the health officer of the city of Wooster against the quality of the public water supply. After due investigation the state board of health determined that the complaint was justified and observing the formalities required adopted the following order:

"'Be It Ordered by the state board of health of the state of Ohio that the city of Wooster shall install and have in operation prior to January 1, 1916, a public water supply satisfactory to the state board of health.'

"This order, and the proceedings relative thereto, was submitted to and approved by the governor and the attorney general as required in section 1254, G. C.

"Objection is now made that the order is too general and an attempt has been made to enjoin an issue of bonds, the proceeds of which is to be used in securing a new water supply. Other questions have been raised in this case and I shall be glad to have an answer to the following questions:

"1. When the state board of health has determined that improvement or change is necessary in a public water supply and two or more methods are available, can the board order the improvement or change to be made in a specified way, to the exclusion of any other way or method that would possibly give as good results; or, may the board issue an order that would give the municipality the option of choosing as between two or more available methods of securing the results that the state board of health finds necessary?

"2. Can the council of the city of Wooster, for the purpose of carry-out the order of the state board of health, as quoted above, issue bonds under the provisions of section 1259, G. C., or would it be necessary to submit the question to a vote as required by section 3939, G. C.?

"3. Can an ordinance providing for an issue of bonds, the purpoes of which is to provide funds to comply with an order of the state board of health, be declared an emergency measure and, therefore, not subject to referendum?"

Answering your first question permit me to advise that a reading of section 1254 of the General Code does not disclose any provision which makes it mandatory on the state board of health to prescribe specific means whereby the public water supply referred to in the order quoted in your letter is to be provided, nor does it preclude the state board of health extending to any particular locality the privilege of taking advantage of anyone of several means, if there be more than one, for carrying out the provisions of the order; and in addition it may be observed that so far as possible the expense of making the necessary improvement should be borne by the city of Wooster, except insofar as it is necessary for the state board of health to make its investigations, finding, report, etc. All that is contemplated by the statute is that the state board of health shall be satisfied that the plan suggested for the fulfillment of its order is a workable one and designed to carry out the terms of the order. A municipal corporation, through its expert engineering corps, may inaugurate plans and devices for the development of the water supply, and, if there be alternative remedies, may choose between them subject only to the approval of the state board of health.

In answering your second question permit me to call your attention to the provisions of section 1259 of the General Code, which is as follows:

"Each municipal council, department or officer having jurisdiction to provide for the raising of revenues by tax levies, sale of bonds, or otherwise, shall take all steps necessary to secure the funds for any such purpose or purposes When so secured, or the bonds thereof shall have been authorized by the proper municipal authority, such funds shall be considered as in the treasury and appropriated for such particular purpose or purposes, and shall not be used for any other purpose. The bonds authorized to be issued for such purpose shall not exceed five per cent. of the total value of all property in any city or village, as listed and assessed for taxation, and may be in addition to the total bonded indebtedness otherwise permitted by law. The question of the issuance of such bonds shall not be required to be submitted to a vote."

The section above quoted clearly states the question of the issue of such bonds shall not be put to a vote and is clear as to its provisions on this subject.

Answering your third question as to whether or not an ordinance providing for an issue of the bonds, the purpose of which is to provide funds to comply with an order of the state board of health, is subject to a referendum, permit me to invite your attention to the provisions of section 4227-3, as amended in 103 Ohio Laws, 212, which is as follows:

"Whenever the council of any municipal corporation is by law required to pass more than one ordinance or other measure to complete the legislation necessary to make and pay for any public improvement, the provisions of this act shall apply only to the first ordinance or other measure required to be passed and not to any subsequent ordinance or other measure relating thereto. Ordinances or other measures providing for appropriations for the current expenses of any municipal corporation, or for street improvements petitioned for by the owners of a majority of the feet front of the property benefited and to be especially assessed for the cost thereof as provided by statute, and emergency ordinances or measures necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety in such municipal corporation, shall go into immediate effect. Such emergency ordinances or measures must, upon a yea and nay vote, receive the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the council or other body corresponding to the council of such municipal corporation, and the reasons for such necessity shall be set forth in one section of the ordinance or other measure. The provisions of this act shall apply to pending legislation providing for any public improvement."

In the section quoted above it is specifically provided that emergency ordinances or measures necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health in such municipal corporation shall go into immediate effect and therefore not be subject to the referendum provisions. It will be noted, however, that the reason for such necessity shall be set forth in one of the sections of the ordinance or other measure. In other words, it should contain a declaration to the effect that it is an emergency ordinance, being a matter for the preservation of the public health.

The cases of Charles U. Shyrock (a taxpayer on behalf and for the benefit of the city of Zanesville, Ohio, v. the City of Zanesville, et al., case 16533 in the Muskingum county court of common pleas, now pending in the supreme court), and William H. Koch v. the City of Zanesville, which are not yet reported, throw considerable light on the question of the issuance of bonds under the provisions of section 1259 of the General Code, as well as on the application of the referendum to an ordinance of council passed in connection with the carrying out of an order of the state board of health, and your familiarity with those cases, of course, acquaints you with the finding to the effect that the bonds issued under section 1259, G. C., need not be submitted to a vote of the people, nor is an emergency ordinance made necessary for the preservation of the health such an ordinance as to invoke the referendum provisions.

It is therefore my opinion that the state board of health has authority to issue a general order for a public water supply, leaving it optional with the municipal corporation to take advantage of alternative remedies, if there be such, for the enforcement of the order so long as the plan suggested or adopted be satisfactory to the state board of health under the provisions of section 1254 of the General Code; and a municipal corporation affected has authority to issue bonds to provide for the raising of necessary revenue to carry out the provisions of the order under section 1259, G. C., without submitting such bond issue to a vote of the people; that an ordinance providing means for the preservation of the public health in a municipal corporation shall go into immediate effect, and is not subject to a referendum when in such ordinance there is set forth a statement showing the necessity for the emergency.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

"BLUE SKY LAW"—COMMISSIONER IN INSURANCE MATTERS—CORPORATION—TRUSTS FOR CONTROL OF INSURANCE COMPANIES AMOUNT IN SUBSTANCE TO CONSOLIDATION—ILLEGAL—"BLUE SKY LAW" CERTIFICATE SHOULD NOT BE ISSUED WHEN SCHEME IS ILLEGAL AND CANNOT BE CONSUMMATED.

The superintendent of insurance is the "commissioner" under the "blue sky law" to whom application should be made for a certificate authorizing the sale or distribution of trust certificates to be issued by a trust declared for the purpose of acquiring control of insurance companies and bringing about their consolidation into one company.

The expenses incurred by such a trust and for which common trust certificates are to be issued constitute promotion expenses and commissions with respect to the organization of the company to be consolidated.

A trust formed for the purpose of controlling several insurance companies and ultimately bringing about their consolidation, under the terms of which stockholders are to surrender their shares in the constituent companies in return for trust certificates and the trustees are to exercise all the rights of stockholders excepting the receipt of dividends, is illegal and void under the laws of Ohio.

A declaration of trust which attempts to create a capital which shall alone be liable for the debts of the trust and to relieve trustees and members of all personal liability, and which attempts to give trust certificates such assignability as to make the trust perpetual in legal contemplation with succession of persons who are to be its beneficiaries is illegal and void as an attempt to create a corporation and to authorize the exercise of corporate powers otherwise than in the manner prescribed by law.

The consolidation of several insurance companies, having an aggregate capital stock and surplus greatly in excess of $100,000, into a single company with a capital stock of $100,000 only, under a scheme which contemplates the distribution (to holders of common trust certificates) of surplus assets to the amount of $2,000,000, could not lawfully be sanctioned. But if the law would require that the terms of consolidation be such as to preclude the distribution of such surplus assets, then the state could not sanction their disposal under the "blue sky law."

The consolidation of companies writing participating policies with those writing non-participating policies only is at least questionable as a matter of law, when the proposed terms thereof are such as to require the distribution of a large part of the combined assets of the companies to be consolidated.

The terms of the disposal of the securities of a trust are unfair within the meaning of the "blue sky law" when the purposes of the trust are so vague and indefinite as to make it impossible to ascertain in advance what companies are to be brought within its operation.

Trust certificates issued under the agreement above described have no value whatever independent of the successful consummation of the proposed consolidation through effective control of the constituent companies.

The "commissioner" under the "blue sky law" is without power to authorize by certificate the disposal of securities when it appears that the plan involves a violation of the law, and that the terms of disposal are grossly unfair, and unless it appears that the issuer is solvent.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 23, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, and HON. FRANK TAGGART, Superintendent of Insurance, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—The superintendent of banks on February 10th, requested my opinion and advice relative to the issuance by him as commissioner under the "blue sky law" of a certificate under 6373, G. C.—and at his request I attended a hearing of the matter on the same morning. I have also received from the superintendent of banks his files pertaining to the matter.

I have considered several legal questions arising out of the application made to said superintendent of banks in such capacity for a certificate authorizing the disposal of "trust certificates" to be issued by certain trustees acting under the name and style of "The Consolidated Companies."

The existence of the questions which I have considered can be shown only by a somewhat elaborate statement of the facts involved, all of which are either matters of record or beyond dispute. Such a statement of facts begins most appropriately with the quotation of an instrument styled "agreement and declaration of trust of the consolidated companies" which with certain material portions thereof italicized and with the omission of certain names is in full as follows:

> "It is desired to bring about a consolidation of four or more of a number of insurance companies now in operation in Ohio and adjoining states, for the purpose of uniting them into one strong company whose assets will be a guaranty of progressive business methods, whose surplus shall justify such expenditures of money as may be necessary to place a strong agency organization throughout Ohio and adjoining states, and whose net earnings by reason of savings in management, operating expense and maintenance of competing solicitors, will produce immediate dividends to its stockholders.
> "For this purpose trustees have been selected to act under the following trust agreement:
> "The plan contemplates the turning over to these trustees of all or a large majority of the outstanding stock of the companies sought to be consolidated, so that the trustees will then control the various companies, and the matter of consolidation then becomes a detail.
> "Inasmuch as the period of time within which the consolidation sought can be brought about is indefinite, the trustees propose to issue certificates for stocks obtained by them and held as trustees, and when the last of the desired consolidation is brought about, to retire said certificates with cash dividends and a distribution of stock or the proceeds of sale of all or any part of the stock of the one insurance company. This company will be organized under the laws of the state of Ohio and will have outstanding not in excess of $100,000 of capital stock, and will have secured a very large amount of outstanding insurance. If all the companies whose consolidation is desirable are consolidated, the consolidated company will have at least sixty millions of insurance.
> "Consolidation will be brought about as rapidly as possible, so that the objects of this trust may be rapidly accomplished, the property in the trustees' hands distributed, and the trust terminated within the shortest period of time possible.
> "In the discretion of the trustees, they may at any time, so long as the stock remains in their possession, call in the certificates therefor and surrender to the holders of preferred certificates the stock of any company for which such certificates were issued and abandon the attempt to consolidate or liquidate such company and they may, in their discretion, surrender all stock obtained by them and call in all outstanding preferred certificates and cancel the same.
> "Any holder of preferred certificates may at any time after two years from date of issue thereof demand the return of the stock exchanged therefor and the trustees, if said stock is still in their possession, i. e., if they have not surrendered or cancelled the same in the process of effecting a consolidation, shall return the same upon surrender to them of the preferred certificates issued therefor.

"The original trustees under the designation of the consolidated companies will be composed of the following persons, who will serve until their successors are appointed and qualified in the manner herein provided.

"(Here follows a list of the names of fifteen trustees.)

"They will, from time to time, issue as much of preferred certificates up to four million dollars in one dollar certificates and common certificates up to two million dollars in one dollar certificates and additional common certificates to redeem preferred certificates if required as may be necessary to carry out the object of this trust, the preferred certificates to be exchanged at par for stock in the various companies at a price to be fixed by the trustees and entered on their minutes—this price to be based on the par value of the stock of the respective companies, the surplus and the amount of outstanding insurance, assuming this insurance to be worth $20 per thousand and making proper allowance for any impairment of the reserve of such company which may be disclosed. The price fixed by the trustees may not be increased unless the increase applies as well to all stock exchanged theretofore. All stocks purchased to be trust property and to be administered under the terms of this trust. No preferred certificates may be issued except in exchange for stock of insurance companies at the prices fixed by the trustees. The trustees, immediately on organization, may contract for the work of soliciting and securing the exchange, but the price to be paid therefor, and for the initial expense thereof shall be payable, in common certificates only and the trustees themselves may accept pay in such certificates from the party or parties until such time as dividends are received from the new company when they may be paid for services as provided herein.

"One. The trustees as such in their collective capacity shall be designated as the consolidated companies, so far as practicable, and under that name shall conduct all business, execute all instruments in writing in the performance of their trust.

"Two. The present trustees shall serve for a period of three (3) years, or until resignation, and they may at any time increase the number of trustees by appointment of additional trustees until the entire number shall not be in excess of twenty-one. In case of the resignation or death of any trustee, the remaining trustees shall fill such vacancies by a majority vote thereof. Any trustees which have been appointed as additional trustees and any trustees who may be elected to fill vacancies caused by resignation or death shall succeed to the rights of the present trustees and the trust shall vest in such trustee or trustees together with the continuing trustees without any further conveyance. Any new trustees appointed or trustees who have been elected to fill vacancies caused by resignation or death shall serve until the expiration of the three-year period above mentioned or until resignation. If, at the end of said three-year period, the trustees by a majority vote resolve that the trust has not been fully completed or that the bringing into the consolidation of any other company or companies is desirable, the period of termination of the trust may be extended for one year, and similarly at the end of one year the termination may be postponed another year under the same conditions, and so each successive year in the discretion of the trustees; said trustees in the event of such extension, but the certificate holders by a vote of a majority of each class may at any annual meeting terminate the trust. In the event of dissolution, the trustees shall convert the securities in their hands into money and distribute the same among the certificate holders according to their and distribue the same among the certificate holders according to their respective interests.

"Three. For the purpose of laying before the cestui que trust a statement of the conditions of the business, the trustees shall annually call a meeting of all the certificate holders, both common and preferred, at the office of the trustees and shall submit a financial statement of the affairs of the trust. Certificate holders may be represented by written proxies.

"Four. The trustees as such shall own the legal title to all property or assets of any kind at any time belonging to their trust, and shall have and exercise the exclusive management and control of same. They shall not be personally liable upon any obligation incurred by them in the management of the trust and they may vote in person or by proxy any shares of stock belonging to them as trustees.

"Five. So far as strangers to this trust are concerned, a resolution of the trustees authorizing a particular act to be done shall be conclusive evidence in favor of such strangers that such act is within the power of the trustees.

"Six. The trustees may make any rule in reference to the management of the trust not inconsistent with the terms of this instrument which they may deem necessary or favorable for the conduct of the business, and may repeal or change the same from time to time by majority vote. They may adopt and use a common seal. These rules shall provide for the number of trustees constituting a quorum and shall be recorded in the record book of the trustees and on demand a copy shall be furnished any certificate holder.

"Seven. The trustees shall annually elect a president and vice-president from their number and shall also elect a secretary and treasurer from certificate holders. They shall have the authority to appoint such officers, agents or attorneys, which they may, from time to time, deem necessary or expedient for the conduct of their business. They shall keep minutes of all actions taken by them, which shall be open to the inspection of the certificate holders. They shall fix the compensation of all their agents, and after the dividends are earned and paid on the preferred certificates they are likewise authorized to pay to themselves reasonable compensation for their own services out of the income received by them.

"Eight. The trustees shall not be liable for errors in judgment in holding property or assets of any kind originally conveyed or assigned to them or in acquiring and afterwards holding additional property, or assets nor for any loss arising out of any investment, nor for any act performed or omitted by them in the execution of this trust in good faith.

"Nine. Certificates hereunder shall be of the par value of $1.00 each and shall be divided into preferred and common certificates. The preferred certificates shall be entitled to a cumulative semi-annual dividend at the rate of seven (7) per cent. per annum, the same to be paid or set apart before any dividend shall be set apart for the common certificates. The dividends to cumulate only from time of consolidation and on resolution of the trustees to that effect. In the meantime all dividends declared by any company are to be paid to the owner of the stock of such company at the time of its transfer. The trustees may at any dividend period redeem outstanding preferred certificates at par, but they must redeem the same fractional part of the holdings of each certificate owner and for this purpose may issue fractional certificates if necessary. As soon as one-half of the outstanding preferred certificates in amount are redeemed the holder may exchange his remaining preferred for common certificates, and for this purpose the trustees are authorized to issue additional common certificates for the requisite amount without the consent of the holders of common certificates. In case of liquidation the proceeds of the liquidation shall be first applied to the payment to the holders of the preferred certificates in the amount of $1.00 per certificate and any accrued and unpaid dividends thereon, and the balance remaining thereunder shall be divided among the holders of the common certificates in proportion to their holdings. Provided, however, that after a dividend of seven (7) per cent. shall have been paid on common certificates from earnings in any calendar year, then all certificate holders shall participate in any further dividend distribution during that year without distinction.

"Ten. The form of the common certificate shall be such as is adopted by the trustees.

"Eleven. The form of the preferred certificates shall be as follows:

"AUTHORIZED CERTIFICATES, $6,000,000.

"CONSOLIDATED COMPANIES.

"Unincorporated.

"Common 2,000,000—preferred certificates—preferred 4,000,000.

"This certifies that ---------- is the owner of ---------- Preferred Certificates in the consolidated companies of the par value of one (1) dollar each which he holds subject to an agreement and declaration of trust dated January 6, A. D., 1915; a duplicate original of which is on file at the office of the superintendent of banks and banking at Columbus, O., and in the office of the superintendent of insurance of Ohio, and which is hereby referred to and made a part of this certificate.

"It is mutually agreed between the certificate holders and the trustees of the consolidated companies that there may be an issue of 4,000,000 shares of preferred certificates, of the par value of $1.00 each, such certificates to be cumulative and bear dividends at the rate of seven (7) per cent. per annum, payable on the first days of January and July of each year, and to be paid or provided for before any dividends shall be paid or set apart on the common certificates. Dividends to commence to accumulate as provided in the declaration of trust.

"This certificate to be valid must be signed by the president or vice-president and by the secretary of the trustees of the consolidated companies, and neither the trustees nor the holder of this certificate assume any liability in reference to the shares or business of the consolidated companies.

"After a divident of 7 per cent. shall have been paid on both preferred and common certificates from earnings in any calendar year, then all certificate holders shall participate in any further dividend distribution of that year without distinction.

"On vote of the majority of the trustees this certificate may be redeemed at any dividend paying period at par and accrued dividends.

"After one-half in amount of preferred certificates are redeemed, the holder may exchange his remaining certificates for common certificates at par.

"In Witness Whereof, Under said declaration of trust the trustees herein designated as the consolidated companies have caused their seal to be hereto affixed and this certificate to be executed in the name and on behalf of the consolidated companies by its president and secretary, this ---------- day of ----------, 1915.

"By----------

"President of Trustees.

"Twelve. The trustees may, from time to time, declare and pay dividends out of the net earnings made by them, but the amounts of the dividends and the payment of them shall be wholly in the discretion of the trustees except as provided above.

"Thirteen. The fiscal year of the trustees shall end with the calendar year. The trustees shall serve until their successors shall be appointed and qualified as provided herein. Of meetings of the trustees notices shall be given by mail to each trustee at his registered address at least three days before such meetings. Five (5) days' notice shall be given of meetings of certificate holders.

"Fourteen. The ownership of certificates hereunder shall not entitle the holders to any title in or to the trust property or assets of any kind whatsoever, or right to call for a partition or division of the same.

"Fifteen. The trustees shall have no power to bind the certificate holders personally, and the certificate holder and his assigns, all personal or corporations extending credit to, contracting with, or having any claim against the trustees, shall look only to the funds and property of the trust for payment of such contracts or claim, or for the payment of any debt, damage, judgment or decree, or any money that may otherwise become due and payable to them from the trustees, so that neither the trustees nor certificate holders, either present or future, shall be personally liable therefor.

"Sixteen. This declaration of trust may be amended at any time by agreement of a majority of the certificate holders and a majority of the trustees, but no amendment shall be adopted which shall charge the trustees or certificate holders with any personal liability, or which shall change the rights of priority of the holders of preferred certificates, nor shall the number of certificates authorized to be issued be at any time increased, except as herein provided as to common certificates.

"The signature hereto of the trustees selected signifies their acceptance of the trust and their agreement to administer the same in accordance with its terms.

"Witness the hands of the several trustees at Columbus, Ohio, this 26th day of January, 1915.

"(Here follow the signatures of the fifteen trustees.)"

With certain possible exceptions to which I shall hereinafter refer, the meaning of the terms of the above instrument is plain. Although no certificates have been issued or disposed of the fifteen trustees named in the original "agreement and declaration of trust" have met, organized and entered into a contract with a certain licensed dealer in industrial securities by which they agree to turn over to the dealer the entire authorized issue of common certificates, i. e., such certificates of the par value of $2,000,000 in consideration of an agreement by the dealer to secure and turn over to the trustees a majority in interest of the stock of the life insurance companies sought to be consolidated.

Here I think I ought to point out that whereas to the best of my recollection nothing was said in the course of the hearing before the superintendent of banks to the effect that the "agreement and declaration of trust" and the certificates to be issued thereunder related or would relate in any way to insurance companies other than life, there is nothing in the above quoted instrument itself, which is the measure of the scope of the enterprise, to indicate that the trust is to be limited to life insurance companies only. The word "life" is not found in the "declaration of trust." The narrowest interpretation to be put upon the instrument in this respect is that the trust may extend to the conrol of the stock of any kinds of insurance companies which may be consolidated under the laws of Ohio.

As stated the trustees and the dealer above referred to have made application to the superintendent of banks as "commissioner" under the "blue sky law" for a certificate authorizing the disposal of the "trust certificates referred to and designated in the above quoted "agreement and declaration of trust" as "preferred certificates" and "common certificates."

The foregoing are all the facts which can be regarded as established. In addition thereto I may mention, however, that in the hearing before the superintendent of banks the names of certain life insurance companies were mentioned, the consolidation of which was said to constitute the real object of the enterprise; and that the aggregate capital stock and surplus of these companies so named amounts to something over two millions of dollars ($2,000,000).

The first question which was encountered under the foregoing facts was that respecting the status of the enterprise and of the trustees as "issuer" under the "blue sky law" as reflecting upon the jurisdiction of the superintendent of banks as "commissioner" and upon the application of the "blue sky law" to the terms of the contracts of subscription or disposal of the "trust certificates." This question, which is really divisible into two distinct parts, has in my opinion however become subordinate to another general question which has been raised in my own mind and which I may state thus:

> "Should the sanction of the state through any of its departments be given to the disposal of the above described 'trust certificates?'"

I raise this general question because I have encountered the following specific questions:

(1) Is the so-called "declaration of trust" effective to create a trust in the proper sense? And if not would the issuance of a "trust certificate" upon the terms therein specified perfect the declaration of trust and bring a trust into existence in behalf of the certificate holder as cestui que trust?

(2) Considered as a trust is the arrangement legal; this question being predicted upon the following subordinate questions:

(a) Could Ohio life insurance companies themselves enter into a partnership or pooling arrangement; and if not can the stockholders bring about the same result by assigning their stock in trust? And if the answer to both of these questions be in the negative would the consummation of the purposes of the trust agreement bring such a condition of affairs?

(b) Is it lawful for any number of persons as agents of stockholders or otherwise, and whether they be called "trustees" or not, to control and dominate the affairs of more than one corporation?

(3) Are the "trustees" under the above "agreement and declaration of trust" usurping a franchise; and would the mutual relations attempted to be created thereunder be such as to render their acts thereunder attempts to exercise corporate powers?

I may pause here to state that I am clearly of the opinion that if the answers to any one of these three subordinate questions are such as to demonstrate that the arrangement in question is void or illegal the certificate applied for should not be issued by any state officer. To hold otherwise would be to do violence to the controlling purpose of the "blue sky law."

(4) The declared object of the "declaration of trust" being the consolidation of a certain number of insurance companies doing business in Ohio according to a specified plan, does not the answer to the main question depend upon whether or not such a consolidation if attempted could lawfully be carried into effect? This question is suggested by two subordinate questions which have arisen in my mind, namely:

(a) Would the commission which by law is to pass upon the proposed consolidation be justified as a matter of law in permitting a consolidation by which the policy holders of all of the companies which it is proposed to consolidate would be relegated so to speak to the existence of a company having but one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) capital (it being admitted that the aggregate capital of the several companies mentioned by the promoters of the scheme as within its purview is greatly in excess of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000)?

(b) Would such commission be justified in sanctioning the proposed consolidation, should it appear that the capitalization of the companies to be consolidated had been expended by the issuance of "trust certificates" without any actual increase in assets, (1) upon which dividends are to be paid to stockholders and participating policy holders; or (2) which are to be accounted for and disposed of at the time of the proposed consolidation.

In explanation of this question I repeat the statement that the combined assets of all the companies mentioned by the promoters as within the purview of the scheme are about two millions of dollars ($2,000,000), (the value of outstanding insurance cannot be counted as an asset in favor of policy holders), whereas this sum is to be practically absorbed in the first instance under the consolidation arrangement by the issuance of "common trust certificates" and that preferred trust certificates are to be exchanged for stock in the company at a price fixed upon the basis not only of par value of such stock but also upon the surplus and the amount of outstanding insurance assuming the same to be worth twenty dollars per thousand.

(c) Would not the fact (which I ascertain by independent investigation from public records) that some of the proposed constituent companies limit themselves in their articles of incorporation to certain dividends to stockholders and issue policies entitling the holder thereof to participate in dividends, preclude the consummation of the proposed consolidation?

(5) What other than control of the proposed constituent companies and their later consolidation into a company hereafter to be organized, has the so-called "the consolidated companies" of value to offer to investors?

Arguments on the jurisdictional question were heard by the superintendent of banks; and I have investigated and have received from counsel on both sides briefs respecting the other questions which have suggested themselves to me.

Of course the question of jurisdiction is encountered first. It is raised by consideration of the following section of the "blue sky law" so called; (section 6373-19, General Code, as enacted 103 O. L., 752):

> "If the issuer of such securities be a company incorporated, organized or formed to make any insurance named in subdivisions I and II, division III, title IX of the General Code, the 'commissioner,' for all the purposes named in sections 14 and 16 of this act, shall be the superintendent of insurance of this state. In addition to the powers given to, and the duties prescribed to be performed by, such 'commissioner,' under said sections, the superintendent of insurance shall have, over any such company disposing or attempting to dispose of any of its securities within this state, the powers of regulation, supervision and examination conferred on him by law, with reference to companies licensed to transact the business of insurance within this state."

The effect of making the superintendent of insurance the "commissioner" for all purposes named under "sections 14 and 16 of this act" is to confer upon the superintendent of insurance, instead of the superintendent of banks, among other things the authority and jurisdiction to issue or to refuse to issue a certificate or license entitling a dealer to dispose or attempt to dispose of a given security.

The terms "issuer" and "company" as used in the above section are defined in section 6373-2, General Code, as amended 104 O. L., 110, as follows:

"As used in this act, the term 'company' shall include any corporation, co-partnership or association, incorporated or unincorporated, and whenever and wherever organized; 'dispose of' shall be construed to mean 'sell, barter, pledge or assign for a valuable consideration or obtain subscriptions for;' 'issuer,' the original issuer of the security; and, where the context demands it, words in the present tense include the future tense; in the masculine gender include the feminine and neuter gender; in the singular number include the plural, and in the plural, the singular number; the word 'whoever' includes all persons, natural and artificial, principals, agents and employes; 'and' may be read 'or' and 'or' 'and.'"

In my opinion one effect of the "declaration of trust" above quoted is to form or organize an unincorporated association or co-partnership; and to this extent the trustees constitute or represent a "company" within the meaning of section 6373-2.

Presumably the word "company" as used in section 6373-19 is controlled by the definitions of the other section just quoted as I have stated it. The presumption becomes a certainty when it is considered that the word "company" as found in section 6373-19 is immediately followed by the words "incorporated, organized or formed." That is, the force of section 6373-19 is obviously not intended to be limited to incorporated companies, but to those which have been "organized or formed" by methods less formal than incorporation as well. The ultimate question then becomes as to whether or not the "trust" is formed "to make * * * insurance."

It is not my purpose in this connection to analyze the "declaration of trust" as exhaustively as might be deemed appropriate for the reason that a more complete analysis thereof is necessary in order to answer the more fundamental questions which I have myself suggested and hereinbefore stated. It is sufficient in this connection to state that the trust is certainly not a mere "dry trust." The trustees are not constituted a mere "holding" agency, but obviously are to engage in a business enterprise. That this is true is evidenced by the following provisions of the "agreement and declaration of trust:"

"(1) The plan contemplates the turning over to these trustees of all or a large majority of the outstanding stock of the company sought to be consolidated so that the trustees will then control the various companies.

"(2) The trustees as such in their collective capacity shall be designated as 'the consolidated companies' * * * and under that name shall conduct all business.

"(3) For the purpose of laying before the cestui que trust a statement of the condition of the business, the trustees shall annually call a meeting of all the certificate holders.

"(4) The trustees as such shall own the legal title to all property or assets of any kind at any time belonging to their trust, and shall have and exercise the exclusive management and control of same.

"(5) The trustees * * * shall have the authority to appoint such officers, agents or attorneys, which they may, from time to time, deem necessary or expedient for the conduct of their business. * * * They shall fix the compensation of all their agents, and after the dividends are earned and paid on the preferred certificates they are likewise authorized to pay themselves reasonable compensation * * *.

"(6) The trustees shall not be liable for errors in judgment in holding property or assets of any kind * * * or in acquiring and afterwards holding additional property * * * for any act performed or omitted by them in the execution of this trust in good faith.

"(7) The trustees may, from time to time, declare and pay dividends out of the net earnings made by them, but the amounts of the dividends and the payment of them shall be wholly in the discretion of the trustees except as provided above."

It being clear that the trust is declared for a business purpose, the next question is as to whether or not that business is the making of insurance. This is a question of considerable difficulty. The trustees themselves are not to make contracts of insurance, but they are, pending consolidation (which is to take place at their discretion), to control corporations engaged in making contracts of insurance. Looking through the form of the transaction to the substance thereof I think it must be held that the purpose of the trustees is to conduct, through the proposed constituent companies and pending their consolidation, the business which those companies are authorized to conduct. This will be done of course by controlling the selection of the directors and other officers of the companies and thus dictating their respective policies. So that in this somewhat liberal but substantially accurate view of the case "the consolidated companies" is a company formed to make insurance.

But there is another angle of view involving the raising of the second of the two specific questions into which the first general question resolves itself which justifies the adoption of the interpretation which I have put upon the first sentence of section 6373-19. Section 12 of the blue sky law being section 6373-12 as amended 104 O. L., 115, provides as follows:

> "No person or company shall, for the purpose of organizing or promoting any insurance company, or of assisting in the flotation of its stock after organization, dispose or offer to dispose, within this state, of any such stock, unless the contract of subscription or disposal shall be in writing, and contain a provision substantially in the following language:
> "'No sum shall be used for commission, promotion and organization expenses on account of any share of stock in this company in excess of ___ per cent. of the amount actually paid upon separate subscriptions, or, in lieu thereof there may be inserted, $____ per share from every fully paid subscription, and the remainder of such payments shall be invested as authorized by the law governing such company and held by the organizers (or trustees, as the case may be), and the directors and officers of such company after organization, as bailees for the subscriber, to be used only in the conduct of the business of such company after having been licensed and authorized therefore by proper authority.'
> "The amount of such commission, promotion and organization expenses shall in no case exceed fifteen percent. of the amount actually received upon the subscription.

> "Funds and securities held by such organizers, trustees, directors or officers, as bailees, shall be deposited with a bank or trust company of this state or invested as provided in sections ninety-five hundred and eighteen and ninety-five hundred and nineteen of the General Code until such company has been licensed as aforesaid."

I am unable to see why "the consolidated companies" and the trustees thereof are not mere promoters of an insurance company, viz.: a company proposed to be formed by the consolidation of the several companies contemplated by the trustees. It is true that said section 6373-12 in terms applies only to the contract of subscription or disposal of the stock of the company to be organized; and that the trustees of "the consolidated companies" in issuing the "trust certificates" which are provided for are not disposing or offering to dispose of stock in the new company. This is guarded against in the "agreement and declaration of trust" in the following language:

> "The trustees propose to issue certificates for stocks obtained by them and held as trustees, and when the last of the desired consolidation is brought about, to retire said certificates with cash dividends and a distribution of stock or the proceeds of sale of all or any part of the stock of the one insurance company."

In other words, while the "trust certificates" may at the discretion of the trustees be exchanged for stock in the new company their holders are not entitled to such stock as a matter of right under the terms of the trust agreement, but such certificates may be retired with the proceeds of sale of the stock. But it is obvious that the certificates on consolidation must be retired in one of these two ways. Whether retired by cash dividends (a matter that will be referred to later), and distribution of stock or by proceeds of the sale of the stock of the company which it is proposed to form, the common stock issued by the trustees and representing promotion expenses will have to be provided for. In either event the amount represented by the common certificates may be a charge upon the proceeds of the stock to be issued; and to the extent that this is possible I believe that the transaction will ultimately at least become subject to the regulatory provisions of section 6373-12. That is to say if the trust agreement has any lawful purpose at all it is the organization of the consolidated company; the two millions of dollars ($2,000,000) of common certificates authorized to be issued represent a part of the expense of such organization and the promotion of the consolidated company. To use any part of the proceeds of the sale of the stock of the new company, (or surplus assets of the constituent companies) to take up outstanding common certificates would be paying organization expenses; and a fortiori to issue new stock in exchange for outstanding common certificates would have the same effect. It is no answer to this to say as was claimed in the hearing before the superintendent of banks, that at the time of the proposed consolidation there will be no organization expenses whatever; for provision for the outstanding common certificates would be in my opinion the payment of promotion and organization expenses.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, for this reason, that "the consolidated companies" must be regarded as an agency to promote an insurance company within the meaning of section 6373-19 and that when the new or consolidated company is formed its stock cannot be disposed of unless on a basis that will bring the two million dollars of common certificates within the fifteen per cent. limitation of section 6373-12. That is, stock in the new company would have to be sold or exchanged on such a basis as to represent a capital and surplus aggregating over thirteen millions of dollars ($13,000,000).

There is a third reason for the view which I have taken on the first general question, a mere statement of which will suffice at this point as I shall have to elaborate upon it subsequently in this opinion. In my opinion the effect of the stockholders of the several companies which it is proposed to consolidate entering into a trust agreement and declaration is to make the various companies of which they are stockholders partners in a common enterprise involving the continuing conduct of their respective businesses under centralized control and management. In this sense "the consolidated companies" may be regarded as a partnership of insurance companies and of courses is an association or organization to make insurance. This alone would bring it within the scope of section 6373-19 of the "blue sky law."

Finally I think it is clear from an examination of the provisions of section 6373-19, General Code, that its scope is intended to embrace agencies in promotion of insurance companies as well as insurance companies, the organization of which has been perfected. If this were not the case there would be no reason for the second sentence of the section which in effect vests in the superintendent of insurance, when acting as "commissioner," the powers of regulation, supervision and examination which he possesses with reference to licensed insurance companies, to be exercised with respect to any "such company disposing or attempting to dispose of any of its securities within this state." In this way as well as by consideration of the meaning of the word "company" as defined elsewhere in the act and used in this section, the intention of the legislature to make the superintendent of insurance the "commissioner" in all matters relating to the promotion of insurance companies is made clear.

For the foregoing reasons then I am of the opinion:

First. That the superintendent of insurance is the "commissioner" under the "blue sky law," to whom application for a license and certificate authorizing a sale or disposal of the trust certificates of "the consolidated companies" should be made, and Second. That the provisions of section 6373-12, General Code, while not directly applicable to the disposal of these securities (which are not stock of an insurance company within the meaning of the term as therein used) will be applicable to the sale or disposal of the stock of any consolidated company which is formed in pursuance of the "agreement and declaration of trust;" and that the retirement of outstanding "common certificates" as provided for in said declaration of trust at the time of such consolidation would constitute payment for "commission, promotion and organization expenses" within the meaning of said section 6373-12. For these reasons alone then the application which has been made to the superintendent of banks should not be considered by him.

As I have stated the jurisdictional question and that respecting the application of section 6373-12 of the blue sky law are doubtful because they involve the interpretation of a new statute. I have answered them with the view of carrying out the manifest object and purpose of the whole "blue sky law." It was very clearly the intention of the legislature that the superintendent of insurance should be the "commissioner" in insurance matters under the blue sky law; and I believe the terms which the general assembly has used in expressing its intention are sufficiently broad to justify the conclusion which I have reached. At any rate, assuming these terms to be of doubtful import on their face, consideration of the evil to be remedied and the purpose which animated the general assembly in imposing the duties of the "commissioner" upon the superintendent of insurance, justifies and compels I think the interpretation which I have put on these provisions.

In the view which I take of the merits of the application, however, the jurisdictional question is really a subordinate one; for I think the "agreement and declaration of trust" is so manifestly illegal and void that no certificate entitling any person to dispose of the "trust certificates" provided for therein should be issued by any state authority, however the jurisdictional question be decided.

In the first place, I think it will be universally admitted that "the consolidated companies" does not at present exist as a trust. The fifteen persons who signed it in effect merely hold themselves out to the stockholders of any insurance company doing business in Ohio or elsewhere as willing to act as trustees for them for the accomplishment of the purposes mentioned. No trust relation will exist until someone's preferred certificate is disposed of, and then only as to the stockholder who surrenders his share of stock in return for such certificate or certificates. I do not think it necessary to go into this matter at any length or to give it any consideration as other reasons are sufficient for the conclusion reached herein.

The second specific question bearing upon the legality of the enterprise is a most serious one. The consolidation of life insurance companies, for example, is provided for by statute and it may be said to be the policy of the state to encourage such consolidation. But that policy is qualified by specific provisions prescribing the manner in which the consolidation shall be effected (sections 9351-9356, inclusive, General Code). These provisions are to the effect that one company desiring to consolidate with another shall present a petition to the superintendent of insurance incorporating the terms and conditions of the proposed consolidation and praying for the approval or any modification thereof. Thereupon the superintendent shall give notice of a hearing on such petition which shall be held by a commission consisting of the governor or some competent person to be appointed by him, the superintendent of insurance and the attorney general. This commission has authority as stated to approve or to modify the terms of the consolidation and to make orders with reference thereto, as well as to make orders relative to the distribution of surplus assets.

I think that it is so elementary as not to require the citation of authorities that power to consolidate is a franchise and can be exercised only in the manner prescribed by law. Furthermore, it is a power which inheres in the insurance company as such and constitutes a corporate act. That is to say, consolidation is not an incident of the right of the individual stockholders, but the power is an attribute of the corporation itself. Insurance companies organized under the laws of Ohio have no authority whatever to enter into any mutual arrangements having the effect of consolidation other than by virtue of the statutes just cited. Specifically, they may not enter into any contract of partnership or pool their respective interests or otherwise provide for joint management or control. If the enterprise now under consideration purported to be one entered into by the various companies proposed to be consolidated as such instead of by their stockholders acting through the trustees under the name and style of "the consolidated companies the arrangement would be clearly ultra vires of the corporations and void; or if the several companies themselves should enter into a mutual contract whereby their concerns were to be managed by a central executive board for an indefinite period or until the board deemed it wise to consolidate the companies into one, such a contract would be unlawful and void as against public policy whether the relation created thereby be regarded as a partnership or as a combination or otherwise.

(Geurinek v. Alcott, 66 O. S., 94.)

It is not necessary in order that this result shall follow that the combination of corporations affect the price of commodities or otherwise tend to monopolistic restrictions in trade and commerce. The vice of such a contract is, from the standpoint of the corporation, a subjective one and finds expression in the following language from the Standard Oil case, supra, at page 185:

> "The law requires that a corporation should be controlled and managed by its directors in the interest of its own stockholders and conformable to the purpose for which it was created by the laws of its state."

Again, such a contract among the companies as such would involve delegation by them to the central managing board of practically all their corporate powers and functions of a substantial nature. A corporation is not permitted to delegate such powers and functions in this manner.

> Southern Electric Securities Co. v. State, 44 Southern 786.
> Noyes on Intercorporate Relations, section 315.
> Eddy on Combinations vol. 1, section 607, especially at page 555 and cases cited among which see Gould v. Head, 38 Fed. 886.

If the above "agreement and declaration of trust" were subscribed by the corporations as such there could be no doubt about its effect in this particular. It embodies a frank declaration of intention that "the plan contemplates the turning over to these trustees of all or a large majority of the outstanding stock of the companies sought to be consolidated "so that the trustees will then control the various companies and the matter of consolidation becomes a detail."

Parenthetically, it may be remarked that indeed and in truth should this agreement be carried out the "matter of consolidation" would actually become unnecessary save as a sort of formal compliance with the law.

Does the "agreement and declaration of trust" stand on any different footing because if carried out the parties to it will be stockholders of different companies and not the companies themselves? Common sense dictates a negative answer to this question; and such an answer is forced also by authorities. In the Standard Oil case, supra, this was the very question which controlled the decision of the court. The temptation is to quote liberally from Judge Minshall's opinion relative to the nature of a corporation and the impossibility of distinguishing in substance the corporation as an entity from its stockholders; and distinction, too, between these acts and agreements which the stockholders may commit and make as incident to their individual ownership of the shares of stock and those other acts and agreements which directly effect the corporation as such and are therefore held to be corporate acts. The limitations of space, however, forbid quotation save from the syllabus of the case which states the unanimous decision of the supreme court of this state.

> "That a corporation is a legal entity, apart from the natural persons who compose it, is a mere fiction, introduced for convenience in the transaction of its business, and of those who do business with it, but like every other fiction of the law, when urged to an intent and purpose not within its reason and policy, may be disregarded.
> "Where all, or a majority of the stockholders composing a corporation, does an act which is designed to affect the property and business of the company, and which, through the control, their numbers give them over the selection and conduct of the corporate agencies, does affect the property and business of the company, in the same manner as if it had been a formal resolution of its board of directors; and, the act so done is ultra vires of the corporation and against public policy, and was done in their individual capacities for the purposes of concealing their real purpose and object, the act should be regarded as the act of the corporation; and, to prevent the abuse of corporate power, may be challenged as such by the state in a proceeding in quo warranto."

To the same effect see:

People v. North River Sugar Refining Co., 121 N. Y., 623.
Noyes on Intercorporate Relations, sections 313 to 317, inclusive.
Eddy on Combinations, section 607.

It is interesting to note in connection with The Sugar Refining Trust case decided by the court of appeals of the state of New York that the court of first instance and the supreme court of that state had forfeited the charter of the underlying company which was the defendant therein in at least partial reliance upon the fact that the effect of the combination was to destroy competition in a commodity of general use and consumption (54 Hun. 356); whereas the court of appeals in affirming the judgments of the lower courts planted its decision solely upon the grounds pertaining to corporation law as such. As stated in the opinion of the court:

"We have reached our conclusion, and it appears to us to have been established, that the defendant corporation has violated its charter and failed in the performance of its corporate duties and that in respects so material and important as to justify a judgment of dissolution. Having reached that result, it becomes needless to advance into the wider discussion over monopolies and competition and restraint of trade and the problems of political economy. * * * Without either approval or disapproval of the views expressed upon that branch of the case by the courts below, we are enabled to decide that in this state there can be no partnerships of separate and independent corporations, whether directly or indirectly through the medium of a trust; no substantial consolidations which avoid and disregard the statutory permissions and restraints, but that manufacturing corporations must be and remain several as they were created, or one under the statute."

I mention this case not because anything is needed to supplement the decision of our own supreme court in The Standard Oil case, but because in spite of the very clear language of the decision in the latter case, of itself sufficient to support the judgment of the court, the economic considerations which the New York court put aside as immaterial were commented upon in The Standard Oil case. I think the Standard Oil case is authority for the rule as I have stated it; but the distinctions drawn by the New York court are at least helpful to show the existence of the rule separate and apart from the principles which make a combination in restraint of trade in a commodity illegal:

Returning again to the "agreement and declaration of trust" there can be no doubt that its intended effect is that which is prescribed by the rule as I have stated it. The trustees by means of exchanging preferred trust certificates for shares of stock in several insurance companies are to acquire control of those companies. That is the stockholders of the companies by surrendering their shares to the trustees are to aid in accomplishing a result which affects the management of the corporations as a whole and indeed will end in surrendering all their independent functions substantially to the trustees. The rule is not limited to a prohibition against a corporation entering into a technical partnership; it is violated when any agreement is entered into whereby agencies outside of the regular corporate agencies authorized by law, secure control of the corporate management and assets with a view to administering them for the benefit of the common scheme.

It will be observed that I have taken the ground that the combination or informal consolidation is illegal for want of corporate power to enter into it regardless of its effect as a restriction upon trade or commerce. Decisions of lower courts of this state are at variance with respect to whether or not insurance is within the purview of the anti-trust statute. Whether or not this is true that statute is expressly declared to be cumulative only of the common law. (Sec. 6402, General Code).

But there is another statute respecting corporations which shows quite clearly that the policy of the state is opposed to such intercorporate relations as tend to restrain competition. I refer to section 8683, General Code, which provides as follows:

> "A private corporation also may purchase, or otherwise acquire, and hold shares of stock in other kindred but not competing private corporations, domestic or foreign. This shall not authorize the formation of a trust or combination for the purpose of restricting trade or competition."

Finally, on this point, it may be urged that as consolidation which is the ultimate object of the "agreement and declaration of trust" is permissible, therefore, the trust agreement itself, which is designed to promote consolidation, should be looked upon with favor; or that putting it in another way, the power to consolidate on the part of the corporations implies the power on their part and on that of the stockholders acting in their corporate capacity to take all steps which may be deemed necessary and convenient for the accomplishment of that purpose. This does not follow. I have already stated that consolidation is a corporate power or franchise which must be exercised in the manner provided by law and not otherwise; whereas the effect of the trust agreement if carried out would be, as it declares on its face, to make consolidation a "detail;" i. e., a thing necessary merely to put the stamp of legality upon an affair already accomplished.

I think I have said enough on this point to demonstrate that insurance companies affected by this trust agreement are without power to enter into any sort of partnership or pool arrangement; that their stockholders through agents are likewise without power to do so; and that the persons denominated "trustees" are forbidden by the settled policy and law of this state to dominate the affairs of more than one corporation.

My attention has been called to decisions upholding the validity of voting trusts within a single corporation. There is a wide distinction between trust agreements of this kind and those of the kind exemplified by the one above quoted. This distinction was very clearly made in two cases decided by the same court within a short space of time and affecting the same corporation, viz.: Hafer v. Railroad company, 9 O. D., Reprint 470; Griffith v. Jewett, Id. 627.

The case of State ex rel. v. Railroad Company, 6 C. C., 415 has been cited to me. On its face, the trust agreement involved in that decision was a mere voting trust among the stockholders of a single corporation. It was claimed that in reality the scheme contemplated the control of the one corporation by the directors of another. The two companies were railroad companies owning connecting and not competing lines. The court held, first, that the agreement was in form and substance a mere voting trust and that if any illegal use of the trust were contemplated or made that would be an entirely distinct matter; but that by virtue of the very broad provisions of section 3300, Revised Statutes, now section 8808, General Code, authorizing connecting railroad companies to "enter into any arrangement for their common benefit consistent with, and calculated to promote the objects for which they were created," it would be competent for one railroad company to permit itself to be managed and controlled by another provided their respective lines were connecting and not competing. Of course it is obvious that insurance companies or other corporations generally have no such powers as are expressly conferred by law upon railroad companies in this particular.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that for the reasons thus far stated the object sought to be accomplished by this trust agreement is an unlawful one.

I come now to consider another question which has suggested itself to me, namely, as to the validity of the trust considered with respect to whether or not it constitutes an attempt to create a corporation; or putting it in another way whether or not the trustees, should they proceed to carry out the terms of the trust, would be guilty of usurping corporate franchises and privileges.

While this question may not be free from doubt, I incline strongly to the view that the powers and duties vested in the trustees by the "agreement and declaration of trust" above quoted and to be exercised by them include several which are in the nature of corporate franchises.

The incidents of this trust are not substantially distinguishable from those of a corporation. The trust is to have a capital stock on which dividends are to be computed and paid. This capital stock is divided into shares represented by "trust certificates" of the two classes named therein. Those shares are transferable like the stock of any corporation, and the death of any certificate holder does not dissolve the association. There is to be a board of trustees consisting of a certain number and there is provision for filling vacancies therein. The trustees are to elect a president and vice-president and to appoint a secretary and treasurer. The trust is to continue until a certain object is achieved, but the determination as to whether or not the object has been achieved is to be made by the trustees themselves, although it may be dissolved by a majority vote of each class of certificate holders. The trust is to have a name and a common seal. The trustees are to have authority to enact by-laws and rules and to appoint agents and officers, and are required to elect certain officers.

Neither the trustees nor the certificate holders are to be personally liable to creditors who are to look only to the funds and property of the trust. Finally the declaration of trust may be amended at any time provided that such amendment does not affect the nature of the liability of either the trustees or the certificate holders.

It seems to me that there is no vital distinction between this kind of an organization and a corporation. Section 8627, General Code, describes the general corporate powers as follows:

> "Upon filing articles of incorporation, the persons who subscribed them, their associates, successors, and assigns, by the name and style provided therein, shall be a body corporate, with succession, power to sue and be sued, contract and be contracted with; also, unless specially limited to acquire and hold all property, real or personal, necessary to effect the object for which it is created, and at pleasure convey it in conformity with its regulations and the laws of this state. Such corporation also may make, use, and at will alter a common seal, and do all other acts needful to accomplish the purposes of its organization."

In State ex rel. v. Ackerman, 51 O. S., 163, it became material to inquire whether a certain group of individuals who had entered into articles of agreement could be ousted from carrying on business thereunder by action under the statute providing for quo warranto "against an association of persons who act as a corporation within this state without being legally incorporated." The articles of agreement involved in that case recited that the signers were desirous of entering into the business of guarantee and accident insurance. They thereupon agreed with each other to deposit a certain sum with an "advisory committee," such sums to be held for the individual account of each subscriber, together with all earnings thereon, as a fund to meet any loss which the subscriber might sustain upon any policy of insurance subscribed by him beyond the net amount of premiums earned and received on said policy. The committee was to supervise the business of the association and to direct certain attorneys in fact who were to be appointed by the subscribers. Those attorneys in fact were to manage the actual business of the enterprise which was to consist of the issuance to the subscribers of policies of insurance, all of which was provided for in great detail in the agreement. The supreme court of this state held that quo warranto would lie under the statute and that the defendants were unlawfully exercising a franchise. In the opinion of the court per Williams, J., at page 195 appears the following:

> "Where, by statute, the legal exercise of a right, which at common law was private, is made to depend upon compliance with conditions interposed for the security and protection of the public, the necessary inference is that it is no longer private, but has become a matter of public concern, that is, a franchise, the assumption and exercise of which without complying with the conditions prescribed would be a usurpation of a public or sovereign function. In this case, the legislature has done no more than was done by the court in the other instance, when it, from considerations of a public nature, declared, as a principle of the common law, that facts brought to its notice, or of which it then took judicial notice, warranted the application of principles existing independently of the legislative declaration to the effect that the right claimed was matter of public and not exclusively of private concern. Spelling on Extraordinary Relief, sec. 1807."

The same author further says:

> "There was no class of business, the transaction of which, as a matter of private right, was better recognized at common law than that of making contracts of insurance upon the lives of individuals. But now, by statute, in almost, if not quite all the states, stringent requirements as to security of the persons dealing with insurers and the making and filing reports with public officers for public information, are provided, and must be strictly observed and complied with before any person, association or corporation may make any contract of life insurance. The effect of such statute is to make that a franchise which previously had been a matter purely of private right. Id. section 1808."

It might be supposed that the gravamen of the complaint against the defendants in the case just cited lay in the fact that they were doing the business of insurance rather than in the fact that they had assumed to create a body corporate as such. That the court did not place its decision upon this ground alone, however, is apparent from its citation of and discussion of the case of Greene et al., v. People, 21 N. S. Rep. 605, which will be found on page 197 of the report of the Ackerman case. Judge Williams says at that page that:

"We fully concur in the doctrine announced by Scholfield, J., in the opinion," and proceeds to quote from that opinion in part as follows:

"We think it clear that in two respects at least, these respondents are acting as a corporation, and it is not pretended that they are actually incorporated, namely; First, in professedly limiting their liability to the amount of money contributed by each; second, in assuming to give perpetuity to the business by making membership certificates transferable by the assignment of the member or his personal representative. It may be, as contended by counsel, that individuals may insure property against loss by fire. They cannot limit their liability to any given amount of capital they choose to set apart for that purpose, nor can they perpetuate the business without change of capital, beyond their own lives indefinitely. These things can only be done by a corporation. * * *"

So it is that the Illinois supreme court held that whether or not insurance was itself a franchise, an association with limited liability and perpetual succession constituted a corporation and if not lawfully incorporated could be ousted from transacting that business; and the Ohio court clearly put the stamp of its approval by the rule laid down by the Illinois court.

I think the doctrine here is well stated in the case of People ex rel. Platt v. Wompel, 6 L. R. A. 303, which involved a corporation franchise tax and its application to what were known as "joint stock associations," the organization and existence of which were authorized by the laws of New York. In the opinion per Danforth, J., appeared the following:

"It seems obvious from these articles that the arrangement consummated by them has little in common with a private partnership, for they provide for a permanent investment of capital, the right of succession, the transfer of property by an assignment of the certificate of ownership and the prosecuting of suits in the name of one person. The company has therefore the characteristics of a corporation, and, so far as it can, it assumes to itself an independent personality, and asserts powers and claims privileges not possessed by individuals or partnerships. It is precisely such an association as, when formed without authority from parliament, was declared in England to be illegal and void, and to be deemed a 'public nuisance,' * * * the statute in this respect following, it was said, the common law and enforcing its rules by the imposition of penalties * * *.

"It is not necessary, however, to assert in what cases such a combination of individuals would not be deemed illegal at common law; for the statutes of the state render the arrangement possible and in our opinion the association in question is within their purview. * * *

"In view of the capacities and attributes with which, as we have seen, the United States Express Company is endowed, and in view also of the statutes which legalize its assumed capacities, and make valid and effective its asserted right of succession, its distinctive name, and the alienability of its shares, we find nothing to warrant the contention of the appellant that it is a mere partnership, existing only under its articles of agreement and association."

So in Express Company v. State 55 O. S., 69, the question was directly raised as to whether or not one of these express companies incorporated as joint stock associations constituted a corporation under the laws of Ohio for the purpose of service of summons. The case just cited was followed and approved and it was held that an Ohio excise tax, said to be founded in part upon the corporate franchise as a subject of taxation, could be exacted from such organizations.

Now the laws of Ohio permit of but one form of association of individuals under a common name with perpetual succession and limited liability. (Limited partnership associations have not been overlooked.) Any voluntary organization attempting to arrogate to itself these attributes may be dissolved and terminated under the statute by the use of the writ of quo warranto. Therefore, I am of the opinion upon the question which I have been discussing, that the above "agreement and declaration of trust" amounts to an attempt to create a corporation and to vest in the trustees thereof corporate power, the exercise of which if attempted could be prevented by action in quo warranto. That being the case the agreement is unlawful and void and all things to be done in pursuance thereof would be illegal.

Consideration of the fourth question which I have suggested in connection with the merits of the application is introduced by referring to the sections of the General Code above cited which provide the method of consolidation of legal reserve life insurance companies, and particularly section 9355, General Code, which provides as follows:

> "If satisfied that the interests of the policy holders of such company or companies are properly protected, and that no reasonable objection exists thereto, the commission may approve and authorize the proposed consolidation or reinsurance, or such modification thereof as seems to it best for the interests of the policy holders, and make such order with reference to the distribution and disposition of the surplus assets of any such company thereafter remaining, as shall be just and equitable. Such consolidation or reinsurance shall only be approved by the consent of all the members of the commission, whose duty it will be to guard the interests of the policy holders of any such company or companies proposing to consolidate or reinsure."

The commission provided for in the foregoing section undoubtedly has some discretion. But the section clearly requires that the commission be satisfied that any proposal of consolidation properly protects the interest of the policy holders. Should, therefore, the commission sanction an arrangement which would do manifest violence to the interests of the policy holders or to the interests of the stockholders it would abuse its discretion and its acts would not be binding on the courts, so that a consolidation sanctioned by it could be enjoined.

It seems to me that plans of the promoters of the proposed consolidation as disclosed by the declaration of trust itself suggest strongly the conclusion that no statutory commission could sanction the consolidation which is to be effected without so abusing the power imposed in it by section 9355 as to render its act nugatory.

In the first place the trust agreement proposes that preferred certificates shall be issued for outstanding stock valued on a given uniform basis, dollar for dollar; and that in addition thereto there be issued two millions of dollars in common trust certificates. Then at the time of the consolidation there is to be redemption of all the outstanding preferred certificates at par and accrued dividends, and a further distribution of the assets of the trust among the holders of the common trust certificates. In other words it is at least highly probable that between four and six millions of dollars of assets would have to be distributed according to the terms of the trust agreement at the time of any consolidation.

This attempt to control the distribution of the surplus assets of the constituent companies after the merger is illegal as it attempts to forestall the prerogative, discretion and duty of the commission under section 9355, G. C. If it is admitted, as it must be, then the trust agreement is without force in this respect, then it must be admitted further that the trustees will be unable to carry out their agreement with the certificate holders who have surrendered their stock for certificates or who have otherwise acquired certificates for value.

This conclusion is based upon the only interpretation of the trust agreement which will give any value whatever to the trust certificates and constitute any foundation whatever for the guaranteed dividends referred to in the agreement. In short the issuance of the trust certificates constitutes an attempt to impose such a liability upon the assets of the enterprise as to cut down the assets of the proposed consolidated company as compared with the aggregate assets of the constituent companies to the extent which I have described. In this connection, too, the result would be the same whether four companies (the minimum under the declaration of trust) are consolidated or whether seven or more are brought into the consolidation; except that the promotion expense represented by the $2,000,000 par value of common trust certificates is the same regardless of the total assets of the companies brought into the consolidation.

Either the commission would feel that it could not sanction the consolidation except in recognition of the trust and the outstanding trust certificates; in which event the result to the policy holders would be anything but "just and equitable;" or, safeguarding the interest of the policyholders (especially those having a right to participation in dividends), the commission would decree that the net assets of the constituent companies be maintained substantially as capital and surplus of the consolidated company in which event the promised dividends on the preferred trust certificates and distribution to the holders of the common trust certificates could not be carried out. The one result would prevent consolidation; the other would destroy what speculative value the trust certificates had. So it seems to me that the effect of the plan contemplated in the trust agreement and in particular that feature of it which calls for the issuance of $2,000,000 common stock is such as is incompatible with a successful consolidation as proposed therein.

From the other angle suggested by the second part of my fourth question, has the statutory commission the discretion to permit the consolidation of a company writing participating policies with one writing non-participating policies? I have already pointed out the effect of the increase in "securities" upon which dividends are to be paid during the life of the trust and upon the basis of which distribution is to be made at the time of consolidation. The effect of such a process upon the interests of participating policy holders needs no elaboration.

I do not believe that a commissioner under the "blue sky law" would be justified in ignoring questions of this kind. The whole scheme of the trustees rests upon the supposition that at a certain time a consolidation may be perfected. If it be shown that such a consolidation as is contemplated by the "agreement and declaration of trust" is of a nature as to make it impossible that it will ever be sanctioned, I do not believe that the commissioner under the sections which define his duties and to which I shall call attention in a moment, would be justified in issuing his certificate authorizing the sale or disposal of trust certificates.

On the last question which I have suggested it seems to me that consideration of the entire trust agreement makes it clear that until consolidation is effected the only attribute of value which is possessed by the trust certificate lies in the control of the so-called constituent companies. No dividends are to be accumulated upon the preferred certificates until the time of consolidation. Prior to consolidation the dividends on the stock issued by any of the constituent companies are to be paid to the owner thereof at the time of the transfer. It is thus seen that neither class of certificates in itself has any present value; and that the speculative value of the certificates depends upon the successful consolidation of the companies, a thing which is in the highest sense a contingency. (Although one is likely to be mislead in this respect by reading one of the trust certificates without also carefully reading the "agreement and declaration of trust.")

It occurs to me that the indefiniteness of the trust agreement on one of the many points on which it is indefinite, namely, the number, kinds and identity of the companies proposed to be consolidated, raises a serious question under the blue sky law, for even the speculative value of the certificates would depend very largely upon the identity of the companies proposed to be consolidated. The trustees are not bound to secure the consolidation of any particular companies, or even any particular kind of companies. Thus the foundation of the whole scheme is so vague and uncertain as to make the proposition hardly a fair one for the purposes of the blue sky law.

Heretofore I have been considering what would happen in the event that the proposed consolidation were attempted to be carried out. I have stated in substance that the holders of the common trust certificates would, if their certificates are to be given any value whatever, be entitled to share in whatever distribution of assets would then take place. In this connection I think I ought to mention a point which has not yet been considered. The second article of the "agreement and declaration of trust" provides for the termination of the trust in the following language:

> "The present trustees shall serve for a period of three years * * *. If, at the end of said three year period, the trustees by a majority vote resolve that the trust has not been fully completed or that the bringing into the consolidation of any other company or companies is desirable, the period of termination of the trust may be extended for one year, and similarly at the end of one year the termination may be postponed another year under the same conditions, and so each successive year in the discretion of the trustees; said trustees in the event of such extension but the certificate holders by a vote of a majority of each class may at any annual meeting terminate the trust."

As I have already stated, the broad effect of these provisions is to make the trust terminable by consolidation or otherwise in the discretion of the trustees. One qualification must, however, in the light of the above language be made, namely, the certificate holders by a vote of a majority of both classes at any annual meeting may also terminate the trust. This provision gives to the holders of the common certificates an effective veto against any movement on the part of the holders of preferred certificates in the direction of consolidation or dissolution of the trust. Under the trust agreement the promoter and the trustees who are to be compensated in common trust certificates, and their assigns, will constitute the holders of such common certificates. So that in the last analysis, while the trust purports to be created for the benefit of the holders of preferred certificates who are the real parties in interest, the actual control of the enterprise is in the hands of the holders of the common certificates who would have the power to say that no consolidation should ever be brought about except on terms which would provide for their interests. In the meantime, of course, should the trustees acquire a majority in interest of the stock of one or more companies, their control of such companies would effectually negative any disposition on the part of the stockholders thereof to withdraw from the scheme. However, this last statement may be qualified by observing that any holder of preferred certificates may at any time after two years from the date of the issue thereof demand the return of the stock exchanged therefor.

The statute governing the "commissioner" whether the superintendent of insurance or the superintendent of banks, with respect to the issuance of certificates of this sort, is section 6373-16 which provides that:

> "Said 'commissioner' shall have power to make such examination of the securities or of the property named in the next preceding sections as he may deem advisable; and if it shall appear that the law has been complied with and that the business of the applicant is not fraudulently conducted, and that the proposed disposal of such securities or other property is not on grossly unfair terms, and in the case of securities that the issuer is solvent, upon the payment of a fee of ten dollars, the commissioner shall issue his certificate to that effect, authorizing such disposal."

For the reasons stated in considering the second group of questions above discussed, I am of the opinion that as a matter of law it appears with respect to the securities proposed to be issued by "the consolidated companies" that the law has not been complied with and that the proposed disposal of such securities is on grossly unfair terms. I question also whether it appears affirmatively that the proposed issuer, "the consolidated companies" is solvent, inasmuch as at the time of application it undoubtedly has some debts or liabilities incurred thus far in its organization whereas it does not thus far appear to have any assets whatever, and personal liability is sought to be disclaimed.

There are other matters that might be mentioned, but owing to the fact that this opinion has already become quite lengthy, I shall pass by them.

Accordingly, I am of the opinion that no "commissioner" under the "blue sky law" can issue his certificate authorizing a disposal of the trust certificates proposed to be issued by "the consolidated companies."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS—EXPENSE OF LIQUIDATING DEPARTMENT PAID FROM ASSETS OF BANK UNDER CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS.

Compensation and expenses of liquidating a bank must be paid from the assets of such bank and can be so paid only after they are fixed by the superintendent of banks and approved by the court of common pleas of the county wherein the bank is located. In no event can such compensation and expenses be paid from the state treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 23, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of February 18, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

"Under the provisions of section 742-4, General Code, requiring the compensation and expenses of liquidating agents to be fixed by the superintendent of banks subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the proper county, must said compensation and expenses be approved by the court before they can legally be paid out of the funds of the bank?

"If the court should disapprove any of the items fixed by the superintendent may the same be legally paid out of the state treasury, or will the person to whom said item of compensation or expense is due be compelled to refund the same if said compensation or expense had been in fact paid before the court had taken any action on the same?

"If it should develop that the liquidating agent has paid claims either for compensation or expense without the same having been fixed by the superintendent and approved by the court, what finding should be made in the premises?"

Section 742-2 of the General Code is as follows:

"The expenses incurred by the superintendent of banks in the liquidation of any bank in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall include the expenses of deputy or assistants, clerks and examiners employed in such liquidation, together with reasonable attorney fees for counsel employed by said superintendent of banks in the courts of such liquidation. Such compensation of counsel, of deputies, of assistants, clerks and examiners in the liquidation of any corporation, company, society or association, and all expenses of supervision and liquidation shall be fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such corporation, company, society or association was located, on notice to such corporation, company, society or association. The expense of such liquidation shall be paid out of the property of such corporation, company, society or association in the hands of said superintendent of banks, and such expenses shall be a valid charge against the property in the hands of the said superintendent of banks and shall be paid first, in the order of priority."

By virtue of the provisions of this section all expenses of liquidating a bank, which include the compensation and expenses of the liquidating agent must, before payment, be fixed by the superintendent of banks, and the approval of the common pleas court secured as prescribed therein.

Therefore, considering your questions in the order in which they are asked, I am of the opinion that the expenses mentioned in your first question cannot legally be paid out of the assets of the bank until the amount thereof is fixed by the superintendent of banks with the approval of the common pleas court first secured.

Answering your second question, I am of the opinion that there is no authority for paying any of the expenses mentioned from the state treasury in any event. If any such items have been paid from the assets of the bank before being fixed by the superintendent of banks and approved by the court of common pleas, such payments were unauthorized and unlawful, and the officer making such unauthorized and unlawful payments can be compelled to refund the same. It does not necessarily follow, nor do I wish to be understood as holding or advising, that an individual who has been paid for services rendered or supplies furnished in good faith to the superintendent of banks or his deputy in the liquidation of a bank can be required to refund the amount so paid to him, but only that the officer, or agent, entrusted with the liquidation of the bank can be compelled to refund the amount paid out by him without such authority.

Answering your third question, I desire to call your attention to the language in the last two sentences of section 742-2 of the General Code as follows:

> "The superintendent of banks may under his hand and official seal appoint one or more special deputy superintendents of banks as agent or agents to assist him in the duty of liquidation and distribution, a certificate of appointment to be filed in the office of superintendent of banks and a certified copy in the office of the clerk of the county in which the office of such corporation, company, society or association was located. The superintendent of banks shall require from such agent or agents such surety for the faithful discharge of their duties as he may deem proper. All bonds shall be deposited with the secretary of state and kept in his office."

By virtue of these provisions the liquidating agent appointed by the superintendent of banks to assist him in the duty of liquidation and distribution is clearly a deputy, and the superintendent of banks, together with his bondsmen, are liable for any default or breach of trust on the part of such deputy. This is made clear by the language of the last sentence of section 742-2, above quoted, which directs the superintendent of banks to "require from such agent or agents such surety for the faithful discharge of his duties as he may deem proper."

Therefore, if the liquidating agent (meaning, I assume, a special deputy superintendent of banks) has paid claims either for compensation or expenses without the same having been fixed by the superintendent of banks, and approved by the court, such payments being clearly unauthorized and unlawful, a finding should be made requiring such liquidating agent to refund the amount so unlawfully paid. In the event that he refuses or is unable to make such a refund, the superintendent of banks himself may be held for the default of his deputy and required to refund the amount unlawfully paid out. If the superintendent of banks should be compelled to answer in this manner for the default of his liquidating agent, he may recoup his loss by resorting to an action on the bond which he is directed by law to require from such agent.

My answers have been limited strictly to the scope of your several questions and I have not considered the legal possibility or curative effect of securing from the proper court a subsequent approval of such unauthorized expenditures.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICTS—ELECTORS VOTE IN PRECINCT IN WHICH THEY RESIDE, WHERE BOARD OF EDUCATION HAS MADE NO ASSIGNMENT OF DISTRICT.

When there has been no assignment of the voters of a rural school district by the board of education under section 4714, G. C., the electors of the rural school district shall vote for school officers and on all school questions in the precinct in which they reside.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 23, 1915.

HON. CHAS. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours of February 15, 1915, submitted for an opinion thereon communication from the deputy state supervisors of elections of Marion county, Ohio, as follows:

> "We are about to have an election for bond issue in a consolidated school district which lies in four townships and in these four townships there are five voting precincts and we are undecided as to where the voters in this consolidated school district should vote on the bond issue.
> "We are enclosing a plat showing the consolidated school district, together with the townships and the polling places. You will observe that one of the townships, Montgomery, is divided into two precincts and, the consolidated school district takes in part of both of these voting precincts. There is a small town lying practically in the center of the consolidated school district, but this town is unincorporated, and has no voting precinct in it. We understand that they expect to call this consolidated school 'The Montgomery Consolidated Rural School District,' and probably section 4714 of the school election laws would cover this proposition which reads as follows:
> " 'Electors residing in a rural school district may vote for school officers and on all school questions at the proper voting place in the township, in which such district is located.'
> "So that under this section we could probably hold election for this consolidated school district at the regular polling place in Montgomery East precinct, but in doing this a number of the voters in this district would have to drive, in the neighborhood of eight or ten miles to vote.
> "If we would hold an election in each one of the townships for the voters in this school district, we figure it would be a rather expensive election. In case we should compel all voters in the consolidated school district to vote in the polling place in Montgomery East precinct on this question of bond issue for a consolidated school, where would they vote this fall for members of the school board and then for their respective township officials?"

The consolidated school district is within that class which is by the terms of section 4679, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 133, styled a rural school district.

The question submitted by you involves a consideration of section 4714, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 135, as follows:

> "Electors residing in a rural school district may vote for school officers and on all school questions at the proper voting place in the township in which such district is located. If the township is divided into different voting precincts, the board of education of such district shall assign the voters thereof to the proper precinct or precincts, and a map shall be prepared showing such assignment, which map shall be made a part of the records of the board. Electors may vote according to such assignment, but, if no assignment of territory is made, they shall vote in the precinct nearest their residence."

Since it is not so stated by you it is assumed that there has been no assignment of territory made as above provided. It appears, however, that the territory of the consolidated school district lies in five different voting precincts. It then follows that the last provision of the above section will govern, requiring that the electors shall vote for school officers and on all school questions in the precinct nearest their residence. What, then, are we to understand by the phrase "precinct nearest their residence?" If the word "precinct" is here used in its ordinary sense, the precinct nearest the residence of the elector is the precinct in which he resides—that is, the precinct in which his domicile is situated. If the word "precinct" as here used relates to the polling place rather than to the territory constituting what is usually termed a precinct, the application of this provision might then work even greater inconvenience to the electors and occasion more excessive and unnecessary expenses of elections.

I am, therefore, of opinion that in the absence of a substantial reason for a contrary construction, the word "precinct" should be given its usual and ordinary meaning. From this it results that the phrase "precinct nearest their residence" in effect means the precinct in which the electors reside.

It will be noted that the above section is equally applicable to elections of school officers and elections on all other school questions, so that the electors should vote in the same precinct for members of the board of education as upon any other school question.

As suggested by you, to hold an election in each of the five precincts within which electors of the consolidated school district reside will be of considerable expense, but in the absence of lawful authority for any other course, it is my opinion necessarily that the provisions of the section of the statutes hereinbefore quoted be complied with and that such election be held at the usual polling places in the five several precincts.

The above question could not arise when the board of education has made an assignment of the voters of the school district in accordance with the provisions of 4714, G. C., in which event such assignment would control.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BUDGET COMMISSION—ELECTIVE COUNTY OFFICES.

County budget commission may be composed only of elective county officers.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 26, 1915.

To the Committe on Taxation and Revenues, House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—My attention has been called to the provisions of house bill No. 342, which seeks to enact an amendment to section 5649-3b of the General Code, and to provide for the personnel of the budget commission.

This proposed bill is clearly unconstitutional. As this is the only bill pending in the legislature upon this subject, I call your attention to the urgent and absolute necessity of enacting a proper law for the creation of a budget commission, otherwise our taxation laws cannot be enforced or administered, as both the Kilpatrick bill and the original provision of the Smith one per cent. law, known as section 5649-3b, were clearly unconstitutional. So that there is no law upon this subject at all.

In the case of the State ex rel. Pogue, Prosecuting Attorney, v. Groom, City Solicitor, the supreme court held, in the fourth branch of the syllabus of that case, as follows:

> "4. The general assembly has the authority to create new duties and require such duties to be performed by the encumbents of an existing office, but where the duties so created are in their nature and extent county official duties, they must be attached to a county office and must be required to be performed by a county officer duly elected by the electors of the county, or lawfully appointed to fill a vacancy in that office."

Whatever may be said or urged in favor of the policy of having others than county officials upon the budget commission, we are confronted with the constitution and its provisions must be observed. The duties of the budget commission may be required of and performed by only elective county officers. Unless legislation is passed by this session of the general assembly remedying the defects above referred to, we will be confronted with a serious situation. It will be advisable to attach an emergency clause to such legislation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TEACHERS' PENSIONS—DEDUCT ONLY PROPORTIONATE PART OF TWO DOLLARS WHEN TEACHER BEGINS HER SERVICES DURING THE MONTH AND RESIGNS BEFORE ENTIRE MONTH'S SERVICE IS RENDERED.

A board of education should deduct from the salary of a teacher only a proportionate part of the $2.00 for a pension fund when such teacher begins her service during the month, or resigns before the entire month's service has been rendered.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 26, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of February 8, 1915, you submit to this department a request for an opinion upon the following question:

> "Section 7877 of the General Code, authorizes the proper officers to deduct $2.00 from the monthly salary of each teacher who accepts the provisions of this section of the law. A certain teacher is entitled to only a part of a month's salary.
> "Our question is, shall the board of education deduct $2.00 from this salary or only a proportionate part of the $2.00? This teacher either begins her service during the month or resigns before the entire month of service has been rendered."

Section 7877, General Code of Ohio, provides in part as follows:

"* * * After the election of the board of trustees herein provided for, two dollars ($2.00) shall be deducted by the proper officers from the monthly salary of each teacher who accepts such provisions, and from the salary of all new teachers such sum to be paid into and applied to the credit of such pension fund; and such sum shall continue so to be deducted during the term of service of such teacher.

"All persons employed for the first time as teachers by a board of education which has created such a pension fund shall be deemed new teachers for the purpose of this act, but the term new teachers shall not be construed to include teachers serving under reappointments. New teachers shall by accepting employment as such accept the provisions of this act and thereupon become contributors to said pension fund in accordance with the terms hereof. And the provisions of this act shall become a part of and enter into such contract of employment."

I am of the opinion that the board of education should deduct from the salary of a teacher only a proportionate part of the $2.00 for a pension fund when a teacher either begins her service during the month, or resigns before the entire month of service has been rendered.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION — PROSECUTIONS FOR FRAUDULENT USE OF COLORING MATTER IN ARTICLES OF FOOD, SUCH AS MACARONI, ETC., SHOULD BE BROUGHT UNDER STATUTES AND NOT UNDER DEPARTMENT RULINGS.

Department ruling number 4 of the dairy and food division of the agricultural commission of Ohio, relating to the use of coloring matter in macaroni and kindred products, is invalid and prosecutions for the fraudulent use of coloring matter in such articles of food should be brought under appropriate sections of the General Code, and not under said department ruling.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 27, 1915.

The Agricultural Commission of Ohio, Dairy and Food Division, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—On February 1, 1915, you submitted to me, for written opinion the following proposition:

"We desire to call your attention to department ruling number 4, of the dairy and food division, which was adopted by the agricultural commission under the provisions of section 1177-12 of the General Code, which provides that the agricultural commission shall make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of the food, drug, dairy and sanitary laws of this state. We are confronted by a situation that may make it necessary for us to file several prosecutions for violations of this ruling and we desire to know whether, in your opinion, we can successfully make a prosecution for such violation.

"The state is flooded with macaroni, spaghetti and noodles, artificially colored, and it is evident that this has been done for fraudulent purposes. The national food department permits the use of coloring matter when it is clearly and conspicuously indicated on the label. However, the ruling of our department is one of long standing, having been adopted by a former commissioner of the dairy and food department and readopted recently by the agricultural commission. Our ruling does not permit the use of coloring matter other than that imparted by the eggs used in the manufacture of the product, and it differs from the national ruling in that the national ruling permits its use if indicated on the label. We would be pleased to have you rule on this matter at your earliest convenience."

Section 1177-12 of the General Code passed April 15, 1913, (103 O. L., page 327) contains, among other provisions, the following: "The agricultural commission shall establish standards of quality, purety and strength for foods, when such standards are not otherwise established by any law of this state." This section also contains the following provision: "The agricultural commission shall make such uniform rules and regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of the food, drug, dairy and sanitary laws of this state."

Department ruling number 4, referred to by you in your communication, is as follows:

"Until further notice from this commission the use of coloring matter, other than that imparted by the eggs used in the manufacture of the substances, will not be permitted in macaroni or egg macaroni, noodles or egg noodles, spaghetti or egg spaghetti, vermicelli or egg vermicelli, and all kindred products."

Section 5774, General Code, prohibits the manufacture or sale, offer for sale, sale or delivery, or the having in possession with intent to sell or deliver, of a drug or article of food which is adulterated within the meaning of the chapter containing said section, and also prohibits the offering for sale, selling or delivering, or having in possession with intent to sell or deliver, a drug or article of food which is misbranded within the meaning of the chapter containing said section.

Section 5778 of the General Code provides that food, drink, confectionery or condiments are adulterated within the meaning of the chapter containing said section in case any one of eleven conditions named in said section exists. The sixth condition named in said section is that the food, drink, confectionery or condiments shall be regarded as adulterated if colored, coated, polished or powdered, whereby damage or inferiority is concealed, or if by any means the article is made to appear better or of greater value than it really is.

Coming now to consider department ruling number 4, this ruling must be regarded either as an effort under section 1177-12, General Code, to establish a standard of quality, purity and strength or it must be regarded as a rule or regulation necessary for the enforcement of the food, drug, dairy and sanitary laws of the state. It is apparent that it cannot be regarded as the latter for the reason that it is not aimed at the enforcement of an existing law, but seeks to establish, in effect, a new law relating to the quality, purity and strength of foods.

I am of the opinion that it is not valid when regarded as an effort to establish a standard of quality, purity and strength for foods, for the reason that a standard in this respect had been otherwise established by a law of the state, to wit: By the provisions of section 5778, General Code, to the effect that an article of food shall be regarded as adulterated if it is colored, whereby damage or inferiority is concealed.

The legislature having chosen to regulate, in section 5778, General Code, the use of coloring matter in articles of food and having established a standard of quality, purity and strength in this particular, I am of the opinion that it is beyond the power of the agricultural commission to establish by a department ruling a standard other or different from that contained in the statutes.

I am therefore of the opinion that contemplated prosecution for fraudulent use of coloring matter in articles of food in question should be made under the appropriate sections of the statutes and not under your department ruling number 4.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY—NO AUTHORITY TO EXTEND TERM OF COUNTY OFFICERS.

The legislature is without power to extend the terms of county officers so as to produce a term not consisting of an even number of years.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 27, 1915.

To the Committee on County Affairs, House of Representatives of the Eighty-First General Assembly, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have been asked by members of your committee to consider house bill No. 214, Mr. Hake, which has been referred to the committee. The bill is entitled "a bill to amend (certain) sections * * * of the General Code, to reduce the time between the election of certain county officers and their taking office, and to extend the terms of such officers."

It will be sufficient for my purposes to describe the detailed provisions of the bill as calculated to accomplish the objects stated in the title.

I have considered but one question, namely, as to whether or not the legislature has the power to extend the terms of county officers for the purpose of adjusting them to a given date of commencement, so as to produce temporarily terms of three years and perhaps a few months.

I am of the opinion that this cannot be done without a constitutional amendment.

Article XVII, section 2 of the constitution provides that:

> "The term of office of all elective county * * * officers shall be such even number of years not exceeding four (4) years as may be so prescribed (by the general assembly)."

Under this provision it is not competent for the general assembly to construct a term of office for a county officer which shall be otherwise than "an even number of years."

It is true that under the old constitution as it existed prior to the amendment of 1905, terms were frequently extended. At that time, however, there was no such limitation in the constitution as there now is. For example, section 2 of article X provides that "county officers shall be elected * * * for such term, not exceeding three years, as may be provided by law."

There is another view of the case which leads to the same conclusion. Section 2 of article XVII of the constitution provided further that "the general assembly shall have power to so extend existing terms of office as to affect (effect) the purpose of section 1 of this article."

The words "existing terms of office," as used herein, mean the terms of office as they existed at the time of the proposal of the amendment and its adoption. Pardee v. Pattison, 73 O. S., 305.

Under favor of this section the legislature, in 1906, passed an act to conform the terms of office of various state and county officers to the constitutional provisions of (relating to) biennial elections. Section 1 of that act extended the terms of all county officers so as to conform to the constitutional amendments, and fixed the commencement of such terms of office as they are now fixed by law.

It was said in State ex rel. v. Harris, 77 O. S., 481, that the act just referred to was to be regarded as a part of the constitutional amendment in the sense that it was the legislation required to make that amendment effective.

I think the power of the legislature to extend existing terms to conform the same to the provisions of article XVII of the constitution, was a power which could be exercised but once. If in 1906 the legislature had deemed it proper to make the terms of all county officers to begin on January 1, that might have been done at that time. But the legislature having failed to do so then, it is too late to act now. In other words, the grant of power in article XVII of the constitution is exclusive and when the power was executed it was exhaustive.

I am strongly inclined therefore to the belief that house bill No. 214, which I have examined at your request, would be unconstitutional.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TAXATION OF A BENEFICIARY'S INTEREST IN AN INSURANCE POLICY AFTER MATURITY OR IN CASE OF THE DEATH OF INSURED WHERE OPTIONAL CLAUSES OCCUR.

The interest of the beneficiary under an insurance policy after the death of the insured and under an option to leave the proceeds of the policy with the company during the life of the beneficiary, and to withdraw the whole or any part thereof at any time or at specified periods, the principal sum to bear interest at a stipulated rate or at not less than a stipulated rate, and the balance, if any, remaining at the death of the beneficiary to be paid to his personal representatives, constitutes a credit and is taxable as such to the beneficiary.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 1, 1915.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of February 9th, requesting my opinion as to what, if any, taxable interest arises under an insurance policy after maturity or the death of the insured under optional clauses of which the following are types:

"(1) To have the whole, or any designated fraction, of the proceeds of this policy at its maturity retained by the company until the death of the beneficiary, the company in the meantime to pay the beneficiary interest on the amount so retained at the rate of three per cent. per annum, the first interest payment to be made one year after the maturity of this policy, and the last interest payment to be a pro rata one for the expired fraction of the year in which the beneficiary may withdraw the amount retained by the company, in which case the interest payments will cease.

"(2) Upon approval of proof of the death of the insured this policy shall be surrendered to the company, and a supplementary contract will be issued to each beneficiary evidencing his or her rights and benefits under the option selected.

"Option 1. The proceeds of this policy, or any part thereof, may be left with the company subject to withdrawal in whole or in part at any time on demand in sums of not less than one hundred dollars. The company shall pay interest annually on the sum so left with it at such rate as it may each year declare on such funds, not less, however, than three per cent. per annum. Upon the death of a beneficiary the sum then remaining with the company, together with any interest accrued thereon to the date of such death, shall be paid to the executors, administrators or assigns of the beneficiary, unless otherwise agreed in writing."

I find that my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, advised the commission, in an opinion found at page 590 of volume 1 of the annual report of the attorney general for 1912, that prior to the beneficiary's election under a policy affording several options, his interest not being fixed is not taxable at all; but that should the beneficiary make an election to have the proceeds of the policy paid to him in a lump sum his interest prior to the actual payment would be a "credit" (citing Cooper v. Board of Review, 207 Ill., 432). With these conclusions I agree.

I am unable to find that an election to take the option expressed in either of the above clauses would in any wise change the nature of the beneficiary's primary interest after the death of the insured. It is true that it is held to be essential to a "credit," subject to taxation as such under section 5327, General Code, that it shall be fixed and liquidated in amount and not dependent upon any contingency whatsoever. But while the company, under such a clause as the above, is under no immediate obligation to pay any specified sum to the beneficiary except upon the contingency of demand or the death of the beneficiary, in which event the entire sum then remaining unpaid to the beneficiary will become payable to his personal representatives, yet the whole amount which will ultimately be payable by the insurance company to the beneficiary or his representatives is fixed and liquidated; while a credit payable on demand, whether in a lump sum or otherwise, is "due or to become due" within the meaning of section 5327.

I need only add that there is nothing in the contract which would arise by the exercise of either of the above options creating any relation of agency or trusteeship as between the company and the beneficiary whereby the duty of listing the fund for taxation would be devolved, under the provisions of section 5370, General Code, upon the company as such agent or trustee. The relation between the parties is that of debtor and creditor created by the contract.

Accordingly, I am of the opinion that the beneficiary's interest, under either of the above quoted optional clauses, is taxable to the beneficiary as a credit.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

COST OF COUNTY BRIDGES SHOULD BE PAID FROM COUNTY BRIDGE FUND AND NOT FROM PIKE FUND.

Where a pike is built under the provisions of sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, inclusive, of the General Code, the cost of any bridges thereon should be paid from the county bridge fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 1, 1915.

HON. JOSEPH W. HORNER, Prosecuting Attorney, Newark, Ohio.

SIR:—I have your communication of February 22, 1915, inquiring whether the cost of bridges should be charged to the pike fund or to the bridge fund, where a pike is being built under the provisions of sections 6956-1 and 6956-15, inclusive, of the General Code, and the necessity for the new bridges arises only from the building of such pike, the new bridges being outside the limits of any city or village. You further state that this question becomes important by reason of the fact that objections are being raised to assessments which include the cost of bridges.

A careful examination of these sections fails to disclose any provision whatever in reference to bridges. The sections in question establish a certain method or scheme of road improvement, one provision being for an assessment of a part of the cost and expense, including all damages and compensation awarded, the assessment to be made upon and collected from the owners of certain benefited real estate. No reference is made in the entire law under consideration to the subject of bridges, and there is no provision for assessing all or any part of the cost of any bridges upon any benefited real estate.

Reference to the road laws discloses the fact that the legislature has seemed to have in mind in the enactment of these laws, the necessity for providing that bridges should be regarded as a part of the road improvement in order to warrant assessing any part of the cost of bridges against benefited real estate. An illustration is found in the law relating to turn pikes, section 7186, G. C., providing that the bridges and culverts shall be built as a part of the road and paid for out of the turn pike funds. Other sections of the turn pike law provide for assessments upon benefited real estate.

There being no reference to bridges in sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, inclusive, no provision therein that bridges should be regarded as a part of the improvement, and no language from which such an intent could be inferred, I am of the opinion that the provisions of section 2421 must prevail, said section requiring the commissioners to construct necessary bridges over streams and public canals on state and county roads, free turn pikes, improved roads, abandoned turn pikes and plank roads in common public use, except only such bridges as are wholly in certain cities and villages; and that therefore, where a pike is being built under the provisions of sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, G. C., inclusive, the cost of any bridges thereon should be paid from the county bridge fund.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS—NO AUTHORITY TO CANCEL EXISTING LEASE AND ACCEPT NEW ONE.

The superintendent of public works has no authority to cancel an existing lease of state lands or accept a surrender of the same, merely in order that a new lease may be entered into between him and the original lessee.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 1, 1915.

HON. JOHN I MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of February 12th, in which you request my opinion as to whether or not parties holding a lease for state land, which lease still has a few years to run, can surrender the same and take a new lease for the same property for a period of some fifteen years, the same as if it were an original lease.

You state that it frequently happens that parties holding leases for state lands desire to make improvements thereon, which they would not be justified in making for the short unexpired term of the lease and that these parties often ask to have their old leases cancelled and that they be granted new leases for the full period of fifteen years. You also state that it has been the practice to grant such requests upon being satisfied that the lessee was acting in good faith and proposed to make substantial improvements, and that in such cases there was always a reappraisement of the property in order to arrive at the proper rent under the statutes.

This inquiry raises a question as to the implied power of the superintendent of public works to cancel existing leases. Under section 13965 of the appendix to the General Code, it is necessary that land shall not be under an existing lease before the superintendent of public works is authorized to lease the same. Section 13966 authorizes leases of land "for fifteen years" and leases of the right to erect buildings across canals "for the term of fifteen years."

I have carefully examined all the statutes relating to the leasing of state lands and find no provision authorizing the superintendent to cancel any lease under the circumstances suggested by you, and indeed the only circumstances under which he is authorized to cancel a lease seems to be in case rent shall not be paid by the lessee at the time specified in the lease, or within ten days thereafter, this provision being contained in section 13968. The statute expressly requiring that land be not under an existing lease before the superintendent has any authority to lease it, it would seem that the superintendent would be without authority to lease land under an existing lease unless the power to make the original lease conferred by statute, carries with it the implied power to cancel the lease.

As to the powers of public officers, Mechem in his work on public offices and officers, section 511, makes the following observation:

> "Express grants of power to public officers are usually subjected to a strict interpretation and will be construed as conferring those powers only which are expressly imposed or necessarily implied. Such an officer, therefore, can create rights against the state or other public authority represented by him only while he is keeping strictly within the limitations of his authority as so construed.
> "A state officer can only deal or contract in relation to the property of the state when he is authorized so to do by the express provisions of law, and any agreement he may make or attempt to make in relation to such property, when he is so authorized, is void as against the state. (McCaslin et al. v. State ex rel., 99 Ind., 428.)"

It is also significant that in section 431 of the General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 119, 122, the legislature in giving the superintendent of public works authority to lease surplus water power, also, expressly conferred on him authority to "cancel existing leases with the consent of the lessees;" while, as above stated, no such authority is conferred in the statutes relating to the leasing of state lands. If the legislature had intended and understood that in giving authority to make a lease it was also conferring implied authority to cancel the same, then there would have been no purpose to be served by inserting in the section relating to the leasing of surplus water power a clause expressly authorizing the superintendent of public works to cancel existing leases with the consent of the lessees.

While recognizing the force of the suggestion that authority to cancel existing leases and make new ones under the conditions named by you might result in advantage to the state by way of increased rentals, I am unable to say, as a matter of law, that the power lodged in a public officer to make a lease carries with it by necessary implication, the power to cancel such lease. On the other hand, I am of the opinion that the power to make such a lease does not carry with it an implied power to cancel the same, and that in the present state of the law the superintendent of public works has no authority to cancel an existing lease of state lands unless there be a default in the payment of rent as set forth above.

Answering your question specifically, I am therefore of the opinion that the superintendent of public works has not the authority to cancel an existing lease or accept a surrender of the same, merely in order that a new lease may be entered into between him and the original lessee.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGES — ADDITIONAL SALARY AND EXPENSES AS AFFECTED BY THE ACT OF FEBRUARY 16, 1914, (104 O. L.,250).

1. A common pleas judge, elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to additional salary at the rate of sixteen dollars per one thousand population of the county in which he resides, to be not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) nor more than three thousand dollars ($3,000) per annum, payable wholly from the treasury of such county; and that the law, with respect to the source of such compensation, which formerly provided that the same should be paid from the treasury of the counties in the subdivision in proportion to their respective populations, was changed on June 8, 1914, after which date it was no longer lawful to draw such additional compensation from the treasuries of the counties in the subdivision.

2. That a common pleas judge elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court under the assignment of the supervising judge of his district, in any county in the district other than in which he resides, payable from the treasury of the state and not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars ($150) in any one year; and to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in any county in the state outside of his district, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court, payable from the treasury of the county in which court is held, not to exceed three hundred dollars ($300) in any one year.

3. That under the provisions of amended section 2253, G. C., the additional compensation at the rate of ten dollars per day for each day of the assignment of a common pleas judge by the chief justice of the supreme court, to hold court in any county in the state other than that of the residence of the judge may be drawn only by judges elected subsequent to the taking effect of amended section 2253, to wit: June 8, 1914.

4. The common pleas judge elected in Clark county in the year 1914, to fill out the unexpired term of a common pleas judge (elected prior to January 1, 1913, as a district judge and residing in Clark county at the time of his election) is to be regarded, for purposes of compensation, as the resident common pleas judge of Clark county. Accordingly such judge is entitled to additional salary at the rate of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per one thousand population of Clark county, not to exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000) a year, which is payable wholly from the treasury of Clark county; and Clark county, upon his election and qualification, is no longer liable to contribute to the salaries of other common pleas judges in the subdivision of which said county was formerly a part, (which result, in the specific case, would have occurred, at any rate, on and after June 8, 1914, by reason of the fact that in all the other counties of the subdivision common pleas judges, elected prior to January 1, 1913, were residing) such judge is also entitled to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in any county of the state other than the one in which he was elected and resides, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court, such expenses to be paid from the treasury of the county in which such court is held and not to exceed three hundred dollars ($300) in any one year; but to no expenses payable from the state treasury.

5. A common pleas judge, appointed after June 8, 1914, to fill out the unexpired term of a judge elected as a district judge prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to receive additional compensation at the rate of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per one thousand population of the county in which he resided when appointed, such compensation to be paid from the treasuries of the counties constituting the subdivision at a given time; so that upon the election and qualification of a resident common pleas judge in any county of the original subdivision, such county is no longer to be regarded as in the subdivision for the purpose of contribution to the additional salary of such judge; such additional salary is not to exceed three thousand dollars per annum; such judge is also entitled to receive his actual and necessary expenses not to exceed three hundred dollars ($300) in any one year, payable from the treasury of state, when incurred in holding court in any county remaining in the district of which his county is a part, other than the county of his residence; and also to expenses not exceeding three hundred dollars ($300) in any one year, incurred while holding court in any county in the state other than in his own district, under assignment of the chief justice, to be paid from the treasury of the county in which court is held.

6. The quarterly payments of the additional salary of common pleas judges should be based upon the official year of the term of each judge.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 1, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—I acknewledge receipt of two letters from you submitting questions relative to the additional salary of common pleas judges. I am also in receipt of a letter from Honorable A. C. Reynolds, common pleas judge residing in Lake county, submitting related questions. After I had prepared separate opinions in answer to these several communications, it occurred to me that a single opinion addressed to the bureau, and covering all the questions which have been submitted to me would be preferable. Accordingly I shall, in this letter, state my answers to the following questions:

"(1) To what 'additional' salary is a common pleas judge, elected prior to June 8, 1914, entitled; from what source or sources should such salary be paid; and, if there has been a change in the law in the latter respect, when did such change become effective?

"(2) Is the judge, described in the first question, entitled to additional compensation at the rate of ten dollars per day when holding court in a county other than that in which he resides, by assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court; and is he entitled to his actual expenses not to exceed three hundred dollars ($300.00) in any one year when so serving?

"(The foregoing questions are general statements of the specific inquiries submitted to me by Judge Reynolds.)

"(3) In Clark county in 1914, a common pleas judge was elected by the electors thereof, under the proviso of section 1532, General Code, 104 O. L., 243, for the unexpired term of a common pleas judge who had been elected thereto prior to January 1, 1913, and had subsequently resigned therefrom, prior to June 8, 1914. To what 'additional' salary is such judge entitled; from what source or sources is it to be paid; and is Clark county required to contribute to the additional salary of common pleas judges of the other counties in the original common pleas subdivision of which the county was a part?

"(4) To what additional salary is a judge, appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation, subsequent to the November election in 1914, or less than thirty days prior thereto, of a common pleas judge elected prior to January 1, 1913, entitled; and from what source or sources should it be paid?

"(5) Running through all these questions is one which is directly submitted in connection with the last one, viz.: as to the application of the word 'quarterly' as used in the statutes providing for the payment of the additional compensation of common pleas judges."

All of these questions arise out of the change in the constitution, article IV, section 3, affected by the amendment adopted in 1912, and becoming effective as provided by the schedule thereto. In order to show the nature of the change, I quote original section 3 of article IV of the constitution, and the same section as amended:

"Article IV, section 3 (original): The state shall be divided into nine common pleas districts, of which the county of Hamilton shall constitute one, of compact territory, and bounded by county lines; and each of said districts, consisting of three or more counties, shall be subdivided into three parts, of compact territory, bounded by county lines and as nearly equal in population as practicable; in each of which, one judge of the court of common pleas for said district, and residing therein, shall be elected by the electors of said subdivision. Courts of common pleas shall be held by one or more of these judges, in every county in the district, as often as may be provided by law; and more than one court, or sitting thereof, may be held at the same time in each district.

"Article IV, section 3 (amended): One resident judge of the court of common pleas, and such additional resident judge or judges as may be provided by law, shall be elected in each county of the state by the electors of such county; and as many courts or sessions of the court of common pleas as are necessary, may be held at the same time in any county. Any judge of the court of common pleas may temporarily preside and hold court in any county; and until the general assembly shall make adequate provision thereof, the chief justice of the supreme court of the state shall pass upon the disqualification or disability of any judge of the court of common pleas, and he may assign any judge to any county to hold court therein."

The general schedule of the amendments of 1912, is as follows:

"The several amendments passed and submitted by this convention when adopted at the election shall take effect on the first day of January, 1913, except as otherwise specifically provided by the schedule attached to any of said amendments. All laws then in force, not inconsistent therewith shall continue in force until amended or repealed; provided that all cases pending in the courts on the first day of January, 1913, shall be heard and tried in the same manner and by the same procedure as is now authorized by law. Any provision of the amendments passed and submitted by this convention and adopted by the electors, inconsistent with, or in conflict with, any provision of the present constitution, shall be held to prevail."

The schedule to article IV, provides as follows:

"If the foregoing amendment shall be adopted by the election, the judges of the courts of common pleas in office, or elected thereto prior to January first, 1913, shall hold their offices for the term for which they were elected and the additional judges provided for herein, shall be elected at the general election in the year 1914; each county shall continue as a part of its existing common pleas district and subdivision thereof, until one resident judge of the court of common pleas is elected and qualified therein."

It, of course, was obvious that the amendment of article IV, section 3 required that certain adjustments of a legislative nature be made. In other words, the constitution, or rather the transition from the original provision to the amended provision, was not perfectly self-executing. In order to supply the deficiency, the general assembly first passed an act which is found in 103 O. L., 673, and then amended the same by an act found in 104 O. L., 243.

Section 1 of the act of 1913 provided as follows:

"There shall be a court of common pleas in each county of the state, held by one or more judges, residing therein and elected by the electors thereof. Each judge shall hold office for six years, and his successor shall be elected at the election in the even numbered year next preceding the expiration of his term. Each judge heretofor elected as a judge of a common pleas district shall, after the year 1914, serve as a judge of the common pleas court of the county of which he was a resident at the time of his election.

"The times for the next election of common pleas judges in the several counties and for the beginning of their terms, shall be as follows:

"(Here follows detailed provisions for the election of common pleas judges in each of the counties in the state.)"

This act was designated as section 1532, General Code, and as such was amended in 1914, by inserting between the first and second paragraphs thereof, the following:

"Provided that when a vacancy may have occurred in the office of any judge of the court of the common pleas, in office or elected thereto prior to January 1, 1913, his successor shall be elected for the unexpired term at the first annual election that occurs in an even numbered year more than thirty days after such vacancy may have occurred, and such election shall be by the qualified electors of the county in which the judge, whose office becomes vacant, resided at the time of his election."

With the exception of the correction of some six or seven errors, the detailed provisions of the act of 1914, were the same as those of the act of 1913; so that enactment of the proviso, just quoted, seems to have been one of the primary purposes of the general assembly in passing the act of 1914.

None of the foregoing provisions relate, in any direct way, to the subject of compensation. It was not until the year 1914, that there was any legislation on that subject whatsoever. Then the general assembly passed the act found in 104 O. L., 250, amending section 2252, General Code, relating to the additional compensation of common pleas judges and enacting section 2252-2, General Code.

Original section 2252, General Code, need not be quoted here. Suffice it to state that it provided, for each judge of the court of common pleas, a salary in addition to the uniform salary of three thousand dollars ($3,000.00) per annum, payable out of the state treasury and fixed by section 2251, General Code, such additional salary being at the rate of sixteen dollars ($16) for each one thousand population of the county in which he resided when elected or appointed, as ascertained by the federal census next preceding his assuming the duties of such office. Such additional salary was, in case the judge resided in a subdivision comprising more than one county, to be paid from the treasuries of the several counties of the subdivision in proportion to the population thereof. It was provided that in no case should the additional salary be more than $3,000 or less than $1,000. The present state of the law, with respect to salary, is best shown by a full quotation of amended section 2252 and section 2252-2, as enacted by the law which became effective on or about June 8, 1914.

"Section 2252. In addition to the salary allowed by section 2251, each judge of the court of common pleas and of the superior court, shall receive an annual salary equal to twenty-five dollars for each one thousand population of the county in which he resided when elected or appointed, as ascertained by the federal census next preceding his assuming the duties of such office. In no case shall such additional salary be more than three thousand dollars.

"Such additional salary shall be paid quarterly from the treasury of said county upon the warrant of the county auditor. If the judge resides in a county which comprises a judicial subdivision, such additional salary shall be paid quarterly from the treasury of the county in which he resides; and if he resides in a county which is a part only of a judicial subdivision such additional salary shall be paid quarterly from the treasuries of the several counties of the subdivision, in proportion to such population thereof, upon the warrants of the auditors of such counties. If such judge resides in any county which is now a part only of a judicial subdivision, and which hereafter ceases to be a part only of such judicial subdivision, such additional salary shall, after such time as such county ceases to be a part of such subdivision, be paid quarterly out of the treasury of such county upon the warrant of the auditor of such county.

"Section 2252-2. All judges of the court of common pleas and superior courts and probate courts heretofore elected, shall, during the term for which they were elected, receive the salary, additional salary, compensation and expenses provided for by law at the time of their election, the additional salary to be paid quarterly out of the treasury of the county in which such judge resides upon the warrant of the auditor of such county."

The case suggested by the first of these questions is that of a judge elected prior to January 1, 1913, by the electors of a judicial subdivision and as a judge of a judicial district. For while my statement of the question refers to the judge as having been elected prior to June 8, 1914, it is obvious that no election for the office of common pleas judge could have been held prior to that date and subsequently to November, 1912. (Constitution of Ohio, article IV, section 13, article XVII, section 1.)

The changes in the rate of the compensation of a judge of the common pleas court and the limitations thereon effective by the amendment to section 2252, General Code, could not, of course, affect the compensation of a judge in office at the time the amendment became effective. (Article IV, section 14 of the constitution.) It is obvious, therefore, that at least a part of section 2252, as amended, does not apply to the compensation of judges in office on June 8, 1914. Careful reading of the section discloses that grammatically, at least, all of its provisions relate to the salary of twenty-five dollars ($25) per one thousand population. So that, primarily, no part of the section applies to the compensation of judges in office on the date named. What would otherwise be, perhaps, a mere inference, however, is made certain by consideration of section 2252-2, General Code, which, in express terms, governs the additional compensation of judges of the court of common pleas "heretofore elected * * * during the term for which they were elected." I cannot escape the conclusion that nothing in amended section 2252 applies to the salary of a judge of the class suggested by the first question now under consideration, and that section 2252-2 is the only statute now in force which, in any way, governs such additional salary. This statement requires qualification in that in order to ascertain what "additional salary compensation and expenses 'were' provided for by law at the time of their election," recourse must be had to original section 2252, General Code, fixing the additional compensation at the rate of sixteen dollars per one thousand population, originally payable from the treasuries of the counties in the subdivision. At least, for the purpose of determining the rate and maximum and minimum limitations on the amount of the salary, referred to in section 2252-2, original section 2252, though expressly repealed by the act of 1914, must be considered.

For the present, at any rate, I desire to qualify the broad statement which I have just made, further, by reserving the question as to whether or not, in spite of the positive terms of section 2252-2, General Code, a judge "heretofore elected," within the meaning of that section, is entitled to the special compensation provided by section 2253, General Code, for the service of holding court in a county other than that in which the judge resides, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court. This question will be dealt with in answering the second general query, above stated.

Now, while section 2252-2, General Code, in effect, adopts by reference, the amount of salary fixed by original section 2252, General Code, it clearly provides a rule of its own with respect to the source from which such compensation shall be paid. Its language is "the additional salary to be paid quarterly out of the treasury of the county in which such judge resides on the warrant of the auditor of such county."

While it would undoubtedly be most appropriate for the general assembly to provide that the additional salary of judges "heretofore elected" should continue to be paid from the treasuries of the counties of the subdivisions until such time as each county in the state should have one resident common pleas judge, and thereafter from the treasury of the county in which the judge resided, this was not done. In order to make the law mean any such thing it would be necessary to read into section 2252-2, language which is not there at all. I know of no other provision of law or constitutional provision which would require such an interpolation. I have considered, in this connection, the provisions of article IV, section 14, of the constitution, and those of amended section 2252 of the General Code, both of which relate to the subject of compensation; but for reasons, which are, I think, obvious, I have concluded that they do not necessitate reading anything into section 2252-2.

I have also considered the broad intent and purpose of amended article IV, section 3 of the constitution and its schedule, and the somewhat ambiguous language of the last sentence of the first paragraph of section 1532, General Code, as enacted in 1913, and as amended in 1914. Giving to these provisions the most liberal interpretation, I might be justified in concluding that "after the year 1914" (and it is not clear just what this means) every common pleas judge in the state should be considered as being the resident common pleas judge of his own county. Assuming this to be the effect of all these provisions, it would seem appropriate, at least, as I have already stated, that the judges, holding over under favor of the schedule, should continue to be paid from the counties of the subdivision until such time (designated by the ambiguous phrase just referred to) as that at which they would become county judges; and that thereafter they should be paid from the treasuries of their own counties.

But this course of reasoning, whether valid or not, merely suggests what the legislature, in justice to the several counties in the state, ought to have enacted. It does not serve to force an unnatural interpretation of that which the assembly did enact, unless some constitutional principle can be invoked to establish a direct connection between the nature of the services such judges were to perform and the source or sources of the additional compensation they must receive.

I can think of no such constitutional principle, though I have considered, in this connection, the well understood underlying principle of taxation, to the effect that the purposes for which a tax is laid must pertain to the district taxed.

(Hubbard v. Fitzsimmons, 57 O. S., 436.)

However, I find that at no time in the history of the state has the additional compensation of common pleas judges borne, in this respect, a direct relation to the nature of the duties which such judges have been required to perform, for under the constitution of 1851, common pleas judges were judges of the district, and not of the subdivision; and at all times the major part of the salaries of all the common pleas judges in the state has been paid from the state treasury.

Being unable, therefore, to assign any reason, satisfactory to myself, whereby any unnatural interpretation should be given to section 2252-2, General Code, I find myself forced to accept the meaning of its plain and unambiguous terms as it is manifested on the face thereof.

For similar reasons I am unable to say that the effectiveness of any part of section 2252-2, General Code, is to be postponed after the date when the law, of which it is a part, became effective as a law, viz.: on or about June 8, 1914. The legislature could have very easily added to the act of 1914, a section in the nature of a schedule, providing, when, with respect to any judge, section 2252-2, or any part of it, should go into effect. Not having done so, it follows, I think, that this provision, as well as all other provisions contained in the act of which it is a part, must be deemed to have gone into effect on June 8, 1914.

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to the first question:

(1) That a common pleas judge, elected prior to June 8, 1914, is entitled to additional salary at the rate of sixteen dollars for each one thousand population of the county in which he resided when elected; such salary not to be less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) nor more than three thousand dollars ($3,000).

(2) That such salary is to be paid wholly from the treasury of the county in which such judge resides, in the manner provided by section 2252-2, General Code.

(3) That the change, with respect to the source from which such salary is to be paid, was effective on June 8, 1914.

I have not considered, in this opinion, the question as to the proper manner of paying the salary of such a judge, payable at the end of the quarter in which June 8, 1914, fell. This is a matter of adjustment among the treasuries of the counties of a subdivision, which will have to be provided for under the supervision of the bureau, and if your department desires my advice on this point, when the time comes for such adjustment, I shall be glad to make it the subject of an independent investigation. For present purposes, it is sufficient to state that all future quarterly payments, on account of the additional salary of a common pleas judge, elected prior to June 8, 1914, should be made from the treasury of the county in which such judge resides.

(2) The second question, as I have stated it, requires consideration of article IV, section 3 of the constitution, as amended, the schedule thereto, section 2252-2 and section 2253 of the General Code, as it originally existed; the same section as amended in 103 O. L., 419, and as amended 104 O. L., 251, and article IV, section 14 of the constitution.

Amended section 3 of article IV of the constitution, and its schedule, together with section 2252-2 have been quoted. Section 2253, General Code, as originally enacted, it as follows:

> "In addition to the annual salary provided in the two preceding sections, each judge of the court of common pleas shall receive his actual and necessary expenses, not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in any one year, incurred while holding court in a county in which he does not reside, to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state."

The same section, as amended 103 O. L., 419, (effective sometime in August, 1913) provided as follows:

> "In addition to the annual salary and expenses provided in sections 1529, 2251 and 2252, each judge of the court of common pleas and of the court of appeals, shall receive his actual and necessary expenses, not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year, incurred, while holding court in a county in which he does not reside, to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state, issued to the judge and upon presentation of a sworn itemized statement of such expenses."

Section 2253, G. C., as last amended, provides as follows:

"In addition to the annual salary and expenses provided for in sections 1529, 2251, 2252, 2252-1, each judge of the court of common pleas and of the court of appeals, shall receive his actual and necessary expenses, not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year incurred, while holding court in a county in which he does not reside, to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state, issued to such judge; each judge of the court of common pleas who is assigned by the chief justice by virtue of section 1469, to aid in disposing of business of some county other than that in which he resides, shall receive ten dollars per day for each day of such assignment, and his actual and necessary expenses incurred in holding court under such assignment, to be paid from the treasury of the county to which he is so assigned upon the warrant of the auditor of such county, and the amount allowed herein for actual and necessary expenses shall not exceed three hundred dollars in any one year."

I encounter first, in this connection, a mere question of statutory interpretation disclosed by comparison of section 2252-2 with section 2253, General Code, as they both appeared on the same page of 104 Ohio Laws. Section 2252-2, as I have pointed out, is the section which particularly deals with the subject of compensation and expenses of judges of the court of common pleas "heretofore elected." If this section stood alone, it would clearly provide fully for the compensation and expenses of such judges. It is only by virtue of section 2253 that any additional compensation or any expenses of a nature different from those allowed under the law "at the time of their election" could be claimed.

Now, section 2253 begins by providing that "in addition to the annual salary and expenses provided for in sections 1529, 2251, 2252, 2252-1, each judge of the court of common pleas * * * shall receive his actual and necessary expenses, not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year," etc.

In other words, with section 2252-2, directly before it, so to speak, the general assembly did not provide, in section 2253, that expenses to the amount of three hundred dollars in any one year, incurred while holding court in a county other than that in which the judge resides, might be paid from the state treasury in addition to the annual salary and expenses provided for in section 2252-2. That is to say, the clear inference from the first clause of section 2253 is that it is intended to apply only to common pleas judges, the additional salary compensation and expenses of whom are not governed by section 2252-2.

This inference carries, I think, at least as far as the semi-colon in section 2253, and would, at once, justify the conclusion that the general assembly did not intend that the judges of the court of common pleas "heretofore elected" should receive actual and necessary expenses not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year, under amended section 2253.

Without anticipating anything at this time I may say that I am of the opinion that the very explicit language of section 2252-2 certainly limits the expenses of judges of the court of common pleas, as the same were limited by the law "at the time of their election," insofar as the expenses covered by such law are concerned. The law "at the time of their election" is found in original section 2253, which provides that " in addition to the annual salary provided in the two preceding sections, each judge of the court of common pleas shall receive his actual and necessary expenses not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in any one year, incurred while holding court in a county in which he does not reside, to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state."

Accordingly, I am of the opinion that at least to the extent that original section 2253, General Code, provided for the payment of expenses of judges of the court of common pleas, incurred while holding court in a county other than that of their residence, such section still governs, by reason of its adoption in section 2252-2; and that judges elected prior to June 8, 1914, are entitled to expenses not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars in any one year, when incurred while holding court in a county in which they do not reside.

But this conclusion is by no means final with respect to the matter of expenses, nor does it foreclose further inquiry as to the matter of the special compensation of ten dollars per day, provided for in the latter part of section 2253, as amended, for though a common pleas judge be limited to one hundred and fifty dollars, by way of expenses, by section 2253 in its original form, still it does not follow that as to expenses incurred in the performance of services not required by law, with reference to which original section 2253 was drawn, the same limitation is to apply. Or to anticipate, one hundred and fifty dollars in each year might still be the limit on the amount of the expenses payable from the state treasury, provided the expenses are incurred in holding court in such counties other than the county of the residence of the judge in which, under the old law, such a judge might have been required to hold court; and this would not, preclude such a judge from receiving additional expenses incurred in performing services other than those which he might have been required to perform under the old law.

In this connection, the repetition of the three hundred dollar limitation, in amended section 2253, is not without its significance. So that it now becomes incumbent upon me to consider the scope of the application of that part of section 2253 which follows the semi-colon.

Such consideration discloses another fact, anomalous at first glance, but significant when properly considered. The expenses referred to in the first half of the section are to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state, while the expenses, referred to in the second part of the section, are to be paid from the treasury of the county to which the judge is assigned upon the warrant of the auditor of such county.

It seems clear to me that the legislature has recognized, in making this distinction, the difference between the duty of a common pleas judge to hold court in a county in which he does not reside, under the original law, and that of holding court in such a county under the assignment of the chief justice, as provided by the more recent law, authorized by the amendment to article IV, section 3 of the constitution. I have already remarked that under original section 3 of article IV of the constitution, common pleas judges were judges of the district. Under sections 1529 and 1540 of the General Code, still in force, a common pleas judge may be required to hold court in any county in his district. Now, the schedule to amended article IV, section 3 provides that:

> "Each county shall continue as a part of its existing common pleas district and subdivision thereof, until one resident judge of the court of common pleas is elected and qualified therein."

I am clearly of the opinion that the old districts and subdivisions continue in existence, not merely until "after the year 1914," as may be inferred to have been the legislative conception of the question, but until in every county in the district or subdivision there has been an election of a resident judge and a qualification thereunder.

Therefore, common pleas judges, elected prior to June 8, 1914, (and, of course, elected as district judges in subdivisions), still rest under the duty to hold court in any county of their respective districts, under certain circumstances, and expenses so incurred by them while so holding court, are to be paid in accordance with original section 2253, and the amount thereof is limited to one hundred and fifty dollars in any one year.

But, at the same time, it is provided that these judges shall, "after the year 1914," serve as judges of the court of common pleas of the counties of which they are respectively residents. The general assembly evidently desired to make all judges in the state subject to the provision of article IV, section 3, which is to the effect that any common pleas judge may hold court in any county. In my opinion this legislative interpretation is not entirely out of harmony with the constitution, for the second sentence of amended section 3 of article IV, taken in connection with the first clause of the schedule thereto, plainly means that the power to "temporarily preside and hold court in any county" shall be vested in any common pleas judge, whether in office at the time the amendment was adopted and became effective, or not.

So that it was not even necessary for the general assembly to enact that "after the year 1914" each judge of the common pleas court, elected prior to the passage of the act designated as section 1532, General Code, in 1913, should serve as a resident common pleas judge of the county in which he resided, for the purpose, at least, of making such judges, after such time, subject to the call of the chief justice.

From all this it follows that a judge of the court of common pleas, in office prior to the amendment of the constitution, may, under the constitution, be required to go into any county in the state to hold court, by assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court; whereas, both before and after the amendment, he could be required to go into any county in his district to hold court, under the direction of the supervising judge of his district.

Now the general assembly, in enacting section 2253, General Code, as last amended, has clearly recognized the distinction between holding court in another county of the district and holding court in another county of the state outside the district; for the section provides that expenses in the one case shall be paid from the state treasury and in the other case from the treasury of the county to which the judge is assigned. Any other view of section 2253 would make the two clauses of section 2253, with respect to expenses, irreconcilably inconsistent. The question, however, is complicated by the fact that section 2253 was amended in 1913, after the constitutional amendment had taken effect. In the law, obviously passed to conform the procedure of the various courts of the state to the constitutional changes and found in 103 O. L., 405, the general assembly amended section 2253, General Code, so as to increase the limitation on the amount of expenses incurred while holding court in a county other than that in which the common pleas judge resided, receivable, in any one year, from one hundred and fifty to three hundred dollars. Being made in full view of the constitutional amendment, the statutory amendment must be considered, I think, as responsive to the change in the constitution. That is to say, when the legislature increased the allowance for expenses from one hundred and fifty dollars to three hundred dollars, after the constitution was amended, such increase is fairly referable to an intention to provide for the additional expenses which a common pleas judge might incur by reasons of resting under the duty to go, when called upon, into any county in the state and hold court. I find that my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, held, in 1913, that this amendment of section 2253 was effective during the terms of office of judges then in office. Assuming that to be the case, then the subsequent enactment, in 1914, of section 2252-2, General Code, restoring, as to judges in office on June 8, 1914, the additional salary, compensation and expenses provided for by law at the time of their election, was equally effective to reduce such allowance again to one hundred and fifty dollars. But whether or not the legislature, in restoring the law as it existed at the time of the election of these judges, (none of whom could have elected after January 1, 1913), intended to make the limitation of one hundred and fifty dollars in any one year, and the provision that such expenses should be paid from the state treasury, applicable to expenses of such judge, incurred while holding court in any county of the state, is a question to be considered. Section 2253, General Code, as enacted in 1913, clearly governs the expenses of a judge of the common pleas court, incurred while holding court in any county in the state, under the constitution as it then existed, which, as I have pointed out, authorized the chief justice of the supreme court to assign any common pleas judge to hold court in any county. The question now is as to whether, in restoring the old limitation of one hundred and fifty dollars, by the enactment of section 2252-2, the general assembly intended that the restored limitation should apply to expenses incurred in any county, or only to expenses incurred in any county of the district, which was the application of original section 2253. For reasons which will, perhaps, be made clearer in the course of this opinion, it is my view that when the old law was restored, the general assembly intended that it should have the same application that it formerly had; so that section 2252-2, as enacted in 1914, adopting the law in force at the time such judges were elected, had the effect of restoring that law exactly as it was; and so that, further, the scope of original section 2253, so adopted by reference, was the same as it had been, viz.: limited to expenses incurred while holding court in another county of the district.

As a matter of statutory interpretation, then, I am of the opinion that so far as the subject of expenses is concerned, a common pleas judge, in office prior to June 8, 1914, and necessarily holding the position of district judge, as distinguished from that of resident county judge, is entitled to reimbursement for expenses incurred when holding court in a county in his district other than that in which he resides, to be paid from the state treasury, and the amount of which may not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars in each year; but that expenses incurred when holding court in any county in the state, outside of his district, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court, are to be paid from the treasury of the county to which such judge is assigned, and the amount of such expenses is not to exceed three hundred dollars in any one year. In other words, the aggregate limitation upon expenses incurred in holding court in a county other than that of such a judge's residence, is four hundred and fifty dollars, one hundred and fifty dollars of which limits the amount payable from the state treasury for expenses incurred in holding court in another county in the district, and three hundred dollars of which limits the amount of expenses payable from the treasury of the county in which court is held, incurred in any county outside of his district, under assignment of the chief justice.

A question, which I would prefer not to pass upon here, is as to whether or not the chief justice of the supreme court may assign a judge, elected prior to the amendment of the constitution, to hold court in a county other than that of his residence, but within his own district. This question invites consideration of section 1469, General Code, as amended 103 O. L., 408, and is, perhaps, not directly involved in the question, as I have stated it. As this matter, however, is one which will necessarily have to be determined, in the first instance, by the chief justice of the supreme court, I would, for obvious reasons, prefer not to express a view thereon.

The next question which is encountered is whether or not the general assembly, in amending section 2253, General Code, intended that the special compensation of ten dollars per day, to be paid to any common pleas judge assigned by the chief justice of the supreme court to hold court in another county other than that in which he resides, should be received by judges in office at the time the statute was amended.

Section 14 of article IV of the constitution, provides in part as follows:

> "The judges * * * of the court of common pleas shall at stated times, receive, for their services, such compensation as may be provided by law; which shall not be diminished, or increased, during their term of office; but they shall receive no fees or perquisites, nor hold any other office of profit or trust, under the authority of this state or of the United States."

I find that my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, in an opinion to Honorable Cyrus Newby, a judge of the common pleas court, held that this special compensation could be received by a judge in the situation of the judge inquired about in the first question as I have stated it. However, Mr. Hogan interpreted, in arriving at his conclusion, article II, section 20 of the constitution, and entirely overlooked article IV, section 14 thereof. It is clear to me that article II, section 20 has no application to the case, and that article IV, section 14 is the only constitutional provision which need be considered. Under said section 14 of article IV, I am clearly of the opinion that no judge elected or appointed prior to the taking effect of amended section 2253, to wit, on or about June 8, 1914, may receive the ten dollars ($10) per day compensation provided for in said amended section 2253, and that such compensation may be drawn only by judges elected or appointed subsequent to June 8, 1914.

However, as I have already indicated that the inapplicability of amended section 2253 to judges elected prior to the time of its amendment is limited to that provision thereof which changes the compensation of such common pleas judges the expense allowances do not constitute "compensation" in the sense in which the word is used in the constitution. Therefore no judges elected or appointed prior to June 8, 1914, would not be entitled to receive the ten dollars ($10) per day provided for in said section. They would be entitled to receive their expenses not to exceed three hundred dollars ($300) in any one year incurred while holding court outside of their district under assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court.

(3) It appears, from the above statement of the third general question, that the judge elected in Clark county in 1914, was chosen by the electors of that county under favor of the proviso of amended section 1532, above quoted. This proviso the quotation of which I need not repeat here clearly evinces an intention on the part of the legislature that judges elected in 1914, to fill vacancies previously occurring, shall be chosen as resident common pleas judges of their respective counties. Of course the vacancy which occurred existed in the office of a judge, elected as a district judge by the electors of an entire subdivision. The term, to fill out which the election was held under the proviso above quoted, is the constitutional term attached, so to speak, to such district office. But the general assembly evidently desirous of putting the scheme of amended section 3 of article IV of the constitution into effect in each county at the earliest possible date, had expressly provided that the election shall be only in the county in which the judge, whose office became vacant, resided at the time of his election.

It is my opinion that this legislation has the effect of making such judge a resident common pleas judge of Clark county, at least for the purpose of determining the source of the compensation which he shall receive.

The judge mentioned in the statement of the question is clearly not within the purview of section 2252-2, General Code, not having been "heretofore elected," as therein provided. It is equally clear that amended section 2252, General Code, as above quoted, provides for the salary of this judge, and that, according to its terms, he is to receive an annual salary equal to twenty-five dollars for each one thousand population of Clark county, as ascertained by the 1910 federal census, to be not more than three thousand dollars, unless the effect of article IV, section 14 of the constitution, which has been considered in another connection, is such as to limit this judge to the salary which his predecessor, had he served out his term, would have received.

I am of the opinion that the constitutional limitation, just cited, does not preclude the judge, now in question, from receiving the salary fixed by amended section 2252, General Code, which was enacted before he was elected and assumed office. The abstract question here is as to whether or not article IV, section 14 prohibits an increase or diminution of the compensation of a common pleas judge during an official term, or only during the service of a judge. There is a wide difference between the two statements, as will be instantly observed. The question has been raised under various constitutional provisions similar to that now under consideration, and superficially, at least, the authorities appear to be in conflict.

See Storke v. Goux, 129 Cal. 526.
Larad v. Newman, 81 Cal. 588.
Greene v. Hudson Co., 44 N. J. L., 388.
State v. Frear, 138 Wis., 536.
Horn v. State ex rel. Conway, decided by the court of appeals, 8th district, April 24, 1913, (not yet reported).

I am inclined to the view that the Ohio constitution is to be interpreted as applicable only to the term of the judge actually in office at the time the change was made and not to the whole official term; and that, consequently, it would not preclude a person, appointed or elected to fill out an unexpired term, from receiving the salary fixed by a law taking effect prior to his appointment or election, but during the official term which he is to fill out. Such indeed is the holding of the court of appeals of the eight district in Horn v. State ex rel. Conway, supra. This decision interprets section 20 of article II of the constitution. But, in this respect, article IV, section 14 is similar to article II, section 20. The phraseology of the one is "during their term of office;" that of the other, "during his existing term." The use of the possessive personal pronoun is equally prominent in both provisions, and a perusal of the opinion in the court of appeals, in the case cited, shows that this word, occurring in article II, section 20, was regarded as significant.

I call attention, too, to the fact that section 2252, General Code, both in its original and its amended form, provided that the additional salary of the common pleas judge shall be based upon the population of the county in which he resided "when elected or appointed," as ascertained by the federal census "next preceding his assuming the duties of said office." So that under the plain terms of both the old and the new sections, if the official term of a judge of the common pleas should extend over the period of the taking of the federal census, and if an appointment were made to fill a vacancy in such term after such census had been taken, then the salary of the appointee would not be the same as that of the person elected for the original term.

Because section 2252, General Code, as amended, is clearly intended to apply to the amount of the salary of the Clark county judge in question; because the only available decision in this state upon the constitutional question here involved supports the validity of the section, so applied; and because, finally, of the presumption which favors the constitutionality of any act of the general assembly, I am of the opinion that section 2252, General Code, as amended, fixes the amount of the salary of the judge in question.

These conclusions make it unnecessary for me to consider whether or not the proviso of amended section 1532, General Code, had, or could have the effect of constituting the office, for which the election therein provided for is held, a different one from that in which the vacancy had occurred. This question is more nearly raised in consideration of the remaining parts of the third question. I am of the opinion that the election in Clark county of a judge to fill the vacancy in the office of a district judge, resident thereof, whatever be the effect of such an election upon the identity of the office filled, constituted the election of a "resident judge of the court of common pleas * * * therein," within the meaning of the schedule to article IV, section 3 of the constitution, above quoted. That being the case, such election, and the qualification of the judge thereunder, had the effect ipso facto, of withdrawing Clark county from the district and subdivision in which it had formerly been. Therefore, the sources of the additional compensation of the judge in question are governed by the first and third sentence of the second paragraph of amended section 2252. That is to say, Clark county is a county "now, (i. e., on June 8, 1914) a part only of a judicial subdivision and which hereafter (i. e. on the election and qualification of the judge in question), ceases to be a part only of such judicial subdivision."

I am of the opinion, therefore, in answer to your third question:

(1) That the judge inquired about therein is entitled to additional salary at the rate of twenty-five dollars ($25) per one thousand population of Clark county as ascertained by the federal census of 1910, not in any case to be more than three thousand dollars ($3000).

(2) Such salary is to be paid quarterly from the treasury of Clark county on the warrant of the auditor of that county.

(3) And that Clark county, being withdrawn from the district and subdivision of which it was formerly a part, is no longer required to contribute to the additional salary of common pleas judges of the other counties in such subdivision. On this last point I may say, also, that this result would have been brought about by the operation of section 2252-2, General Code, as I have interpreted it, in answering the first general question, with respect to those counties, at least, in the former subdivision, the resident judges of which were elected prior to June 8, 1914. Inasmuch as, in point of fact, every county of the second subdivision of the second district had a resident common pleas judge in office on June 8, 1914, the mutual contribution of the various county treasuries to the additional salaries of these judges ceased, on and after that date, for this reason alone.

Though my opinion is not requested thereon, I may add, with respect to the judge with whose case I have been dealing, that he is undoubtedly entitled to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in another county in the state, under the assignment of the chief justice, in accordance with the last half of section 2253, General Code, as amended; and that, Clark county no longer constituting a part of the judicial district, the first half of said section does not apply to him at all.

(4) The judge inquired about in the fourth question must, of course, have been appointed after June 8, 1914. The office to which he was appointed was that of a district judge, elected as such, under the constitution of 1851. It, therefore, becomes necessary to inquire, first of all, as to the effect, on the status of such judge, of the peculiar language of the last sentence of the first paragraph of section 1532, General Code, as enacted in 1913, and amended in 1914, viz.:

"Each judge heretofore elected as a judge of the common pleas district shall, after the year 1914, serve as a judge of the common pleas court of the county of which he was a resident at the time of his election."

This provision would have applied to the predecessor of the judge whose case is now under consideration, and in my opinion it applies as well to the judge himself. As hinted previously in this opinion, I am somewhat at a loss to understand just what the legislature had in mind in employing this language. Just what is meant by "serving" as a resident common pleas judge is not entirely clear to me. If the object of the legislature was to make the "hold over" judges subject to the call of the chief justice, under amended section 3 of article IV of the constitution, this legislation was, in my judgment, unnecessary, for reasons which I have already stated. If, on the other hand, it was the intention of the legislature to put an end to the districts and subdivisions "after the year 1914," in my judgment this legislation is unconstitutional. While it is true that legislation necessary to carry into effect these changes in the constitutional framework of government that are not perfectly self-executing, is to be interpreted as if a part of the constitutional amendment itself. (State ex rel. v. Harris, 77 O. S., 481)—this principle being perhaps more appropriately applied in support of the proviso of section 1532 than in connection with the sentence of the same section now under consideration—yet, in spite of the principle, I cannot reconcile this sentence of section 1532, if interpreted as just suggested, with the plain language of the schedule to article IV, section 3. For the schedule provides that "each county shall continue as a part of its existing common pleas district and subdivision thereon until one resident judge of the court of common pleas is elected and qualified therein." Plainly, the event which will, under this language, terminate the connection of a county with its existing district and subdivision, is the election and qualification therein of a resident judge." Such a judge must be elected in the county as a county judge.

So that I do not think that the sentence, now under consideration, can be given the effect of putting an end to the districts and subdivisions, either on January 1, 1915, or at such date, in the year 1915, as the official year of the term of any judge in any county in the subdivision or district may terminate.

For present purposes it is not necessary to inquire further as to what the purport and effect of the sentence, which has just been considered, may be, it being sufficient to state that it does not have either of the two possible effects which have been considered, and that, at the most, it has the effect of authorizing and directing each judge "heretofore elected," (i. e. elected prior to January 1, 1913) to serve as a resident county common pleas judge for any and all purposes for which there may be necessity for such a resident judge, as distinguished from a district judge, in addition to discharging the functions of the office for which he was elected, viz.: that of district judge.

This, then, being the status of the judge inquired about in the fourth question, who is serving as the appointive successor of a judge elected prior to January 1, 1913, the application of the statutes, covering the matter of additional salary to his case, becomes clear. Section 2252-2, General Code, being limited, in its application, to judges "heretofore elected" does not govern this case. Section 2252, General Code, as amended, which clearly applies to judges who shall be "elected or appointed" prima facie does govern the matter. Inasmuch as the judge in question is still serving as a district judge, his county not yet having been separated from its original district and subdivision, the second sentence of the second paragraph of said section 2252, as amended, applies to his case. The facts stated by you show that the judge inquired about is a resident of Van Wert county and was appointed to succeed a judge residing in such county at the time of his election. Van Wert county is a part only of a judicial subdivision. Accordingly, the additional salary to which this judge is entitled is to be paid quarterly from the treasuries of the several counties of that subdivision, as it is now constituted, in proportion to the population of such counties, and upon the warrants of the auditors thereof.

I have already stated that the makeup of a judicial subdivision may have changed so that it may no longer be composed of the same counties which originally constituted it. Thus, Van Wert county is in a subdivision which originally consisted of five counties, in two of which, however, resident common pleas judges were elected in 1914. The present subdivision, therefore, consists merely of the three remaining counties, viz.: Defiance, Van Wert and Williams counties. So long as these three counties continue to be parts only of the subdivision, they will contribute to the salary of the judge concerning whom you inquire.

This result is somewhat incongruous because in Defiance and Williams counties there are resident common pleas judges elected prior to January 1, 1913, whose salaries, on the principles laid down in answering the first question, will be, and since June 8, 1914, should have been paid wholly from the treasuries of their respective counties; also the judge, whom the common pleas judge inquired about, succeeded, should have drawn his salary wholly from the treasury of Van Wert county between June 8, 1914, and the time when he resigned. The incongruity, however, results from the plain provisions of section 2252 and 2252-2, General Code.

Of course, the same constitutional question is even more squarely presented in this case than in the case presented in the third question, just considered. Upon the grounds stated in answering that question, however, I am of the opinion that the fact that the appointed judge will receive a salary, different in amount and in the source from which it is to be paid, from the salary payable to his predecessor, and which that judge would have received had he served out his term, does not violate article IV, section 14 of the constitution.

Coming then to a direct answer to the fourth question, I am of the opinion that the judge, appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation, subsequent to the November election in 1914, of a common pleas judge elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to additional salary at the rate of twenty-five dollars ($25) for each one thousand population of the county in which such appointed judge resided when appointed, as ascertained by the federal census next preceding his assuming the duties of the office, to be in no case more than three thousand dollars ($3000); and that if such judge resides in a county which comprises a part only of a subdivision, such additional salary is to be paid quarterly from the several counties now constituting the subdivision, in proportion to the population thereof; otherwise, such additional salary would be paid from the treasury of the county in which the judge resides.

I may add here, too, as I did in answering the third question, a word respecting the expenses and compensation to which such a judge is entitled under section 2253, General Code, as amended. The section, having taken effect before this judge was appointed, and the judge being a district judge, clauses of section 2253, in my opinion, apply to his case. That is, when holding court in any county in his district, other than the one in which he resides, he is entitled to receive his actual and necessary expenses not to exceed three hundred dollars in any one year, to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state; and when assigned by the chief justice to hold court in any other county in the state, outside of his district, he is entitled to his actual and necessary expenses not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year, that the compensation of ten dollars ($10) per day to be paid from the treasury of the county to which he is so assigned upon the warrant of the auditor of such county.

(5) In my opinion the word "quarterly," as used in sections 2252 and 2252-2, General Code, refers to quarterly periods of the official year of the terms of office of the judge whose compensation is to be ascertained. Various dates are provided by law for the commencement of official terms of common pleas judges; so that there is no uniform official year for all common pleas judges; accordingly, the quarterly payment periods, being fixed in accordance with the respective official years, are not uniform.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGES ELECTED PRIOR TO JANUARY 1, 1913—ADDITIONAL SALARY AS AFFECTED BY ACT OF FEBRUARY 16, 1914, 104 O. L., 250.

A common pleas judge, elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to additional salary at the rate of sixteen dollars per one thousand population of the county in which he resides, to be not less than one thousand ($1,000) dollars nor more than three thousand ($3,000) dollars per annum, payable wholly from the treasury of such county; and the law with respect to the source of such compensation, which formerly provided that the same should be paid from the treasury of the counties in the subdivision in proportion to their respective populations, was changed on June 8, 1914, after which date it was no longer lawful to draw such additional compensation from the treasuries of the counties in the subdivision.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 1, 1915.

HON. JOHN M. MARKLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Georgetown, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. MARKLEY:—I am in receipt of your request for opinion reading:

"Section 2251 of the General Code of Ohio, relative to the salary of common pleas judges provides that each common pleas judge shall receive yearly from the state treasury the sum of three thousand dollars. Section 2252 of the General Code provides that each common pleas judge shall receive as additional compensation sixteen dollars for each one thousand of population in the county in which he resided at the time of his election, such additional compensation not to exceed three thousand dollars nor to be less than one thousand dollars, and that if said common pleas judge is elected from a subdivision containing two or more counties, such additional compensation shall be paid to him from the treasuries of the counties comprising such subdivision in proportion to their respective population.

"In 1912, Hon. James W. Tarbell was elected common pleas judge of the first subdivision of the fifth judicial district of Ohio, which subdivision is comprised of the counties of Brown and Clermont. Since the beginning of his term of office the additional salary as provided in section 2252 has been paid to him from the treasuries of Brown and Clermont counties in proportion to their population. In 1914, W. A. Joseph was elected common pleas judge of Clermont county under the provision of the new constitution; of course the additional salary to be paid to him will have to be paid from the treasury of Clermont county.

"Kindly give me an opinion as to whether or not the additional salary of Judge Tarbell will have to be paid from the treasuries of Brown and Clermont counties in proportion to their population, as has heretofore been done, or will Brown county be compelled to pay the entire amount thereof.

"It is my opinion that, as Judge Tarbell was elected from the first subdivision of the fifth judicial district prior to the adoption of the new constitution, the two counties will be compelled to continue to share such additional compensation, as heretofore, and that the new constitution would not affect him during his term of office. I am going to advise the commissioners of Brown county to that effect at least until I am in receipt of an opinion from you holding otherwise."

Section 2252-2 of the General Code, as amended 104 O. L., 251, provides:

"Judges of the court of common pleas and superior courts and probate courts heretofore elected, shall, during the term for which they were elected, receive the salary, additional salary, compensation and expenses provided for by law at the time of their election, the additional salary to be paid quarterly out of the treasury of the county in which such judge resides upon the warrant of the auditor of such county."

Under the foregoing statute I am of the opinion that Judge Tarbell's additional salary of sixteen dollars a thousand was and is payable from and after June 8, 1914, solely out of the treasury of the county of his residence.

I enclose you herewith a copy of an opinion covering generally the subject of judicial salary and expenses this day rendered to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, the substance of which opinion is as follows:

"A common pleas judge, elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to additional salary at the rate of sixteen dollars per one thousand population of the county in which he resides, to be not less than one thousand ($1,000) dollars nor more than three thousand ($3,000) dollars per annum, payable wholly from the treasury of such county; and that the law, with respect to the source of such compensation, which formerly provided that the same should be paid from the treasury of the counties in the subdivision in proportion to their respective populations, was changed on June 8, 1914, after which date it was no longer to draw such additional compensation from the treasuries of the counties in the subdivision.

"2. A common pleas judge, elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court under the assignment of the supervising judge of his district, in any county in the district other than that in which he resides, payable from the treasury of the state and not to exceed one hundred and fifty ($150) dollars in any one year; and to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in any county in the state outside of his district, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court payable from the treasury of the county in which court is held, not to exceed three hundred ($300) dollars in any one year.

"3. Under the provision of amended section 2253, General Code, the additional compensation at the rate of ten dollars per day for each day of the assignment of a common pleas judge by the chief justice of the supreme court, to hold court in any county in the state other than that of the residence of the judge, may be drawn only by judges elected subsequent to the taking effect of amended section 2253, to wit, June 8, 1914.

"4. The common pleas judge elected in Clark county in the year 1914, to fill out the unexpired term of a common pleas judge, (elected prior to January 1, 1913) as a district judge residing in Clark county at the time of his election) is to be regarded, for purposes of compensation, as the resident common pleas judge of Clark county. Accordingly such judge is entitled to additional salary at the rate of twenty-five ($25) dollars per one thousand population of Clark county, not to exceed three thousand ($3,000) dollars a year, which is payable wholly from the treasury of Clark county; and Clark county, upon his election and qualification, is no longer liable to contribute to the salaries of other common pleas judges in the subdivision of which said county was formerly a part, (which result, in the specific case, would have occurred, at any rate on and after June 8, 1914, by reason of the fact that in all the other counties of the subdivision common pleas judges, elected prior to January 1, 1914, were residing); such judge is also entitled to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in any county of the state, other than the one in which he was elected and resides, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court, such expenses to be paid from the treasury of the county in which such court is held and not to exceed three hundred ($300) dollars in any one year; but to no expenses payable from the state treasury.

"5. A common pleas judge, appointed after June 8, 1914, to fill out the unexpired term of a judge elected as a district judge, prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to receive additional compensation at the rate of twenty-five ($25) dollars per one thousand population of the county in which he resided when appointed, such compensation to be paid from the treasuries of the counties constituting the subdivision at a given time; so that upon the election and qualification of a resident common pleas judge in any county of the original subdivision, such county is no longer to be regarded as in the subdivision for the purpose of contribution to the additional salary of such judge; such additional salary is not to exceed three thousand dollars per annum; such judge is also entitled to receive his actual and necessary expenses not to exceed three hundred ($300) dollars in any one year, payable from the treasury of state, when incurred in holding court in any county remaining in the district of which his county is a part, other than the county of his residence; and also to expenses not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year incurred while holding court in any county in the state other than in his own district, under assignment of the chief justice, to be paid from the treasury of the county in which court is held.

"6. The quarterly payments of the additional salary of common pleas judges should be based upon the official year of the term of each judge."

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGE—SALARY FROM AND AFTER JANUARY 8, 1914 —EXPENSES OF JUDGES ELECTED PRIOR TO JANUARY 1, 1913— CONSTRUCTION OF PER DIEM COMPENSATION WHEN IN ANOTHER COUNTY.

1. The salary of a common pleas judge from and after June 8, 1914, should come from the treasury of the county in which the judge resides. The apportionment of the quarterly additional salary should be based upon the official year of the term of each judge.

2. A common pleas judge elected prior to January 1, 1913, is entitled to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court under the assignment of the supervising judge of his district, in any county in the district other than that in which he resides, payable from the treasury of the state and not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars ($150) in any one year; and to his actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in any county in the state outside of his district, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court, payable from the treasury of the county in which court is held, not to exceed three hundred dollars ($300) in any one year.

3. A common pleas judge elected prior to June 2, 1914, is not entitled to the ten dollars per day compensation when assigned by the chief justice of the supreme court to a county other than that of his residence.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 1, 1915.

HON. A. G. REYNOLDS, Painesville, Ohio.

MY DEAR JUDGE:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your request for opinion reading as follows:

> "As you know heretofore the compensation of common pleas judges, in judicial districts like our own, has been a certain amount from the state and the balance comes as extra compensation from the counties. In this subdivision three counties have contributed, Ashtabula, Lake and Geauga.
> "Under the act of the legislature, as found in volume 104 page 250, arises this trouble, at least as far as I am concerned. This act provides for the payment of the additional salary from the county which the judge is a resident after such county ceases to be a part of such subdivision.
> "The additional judge in this subdivision, to wit: Geauga county, took his seat January 1st, so that, I suppose, the act is in force from that time. Our quarter ends February 9th. Do I understand that the computation from each county, instead of being made to February 9th, should be made to January 1st and each county contribute pro rata to that time and the balance to be paid, for instance in Lake county, to myself on the treasury of Lake county, and in Ashtabula county, where Judge Roberts resides, from the treasury of Ashtabula county?
> "Second. As I understand the law if Judge Roberts or myself should be assigned by Judge Nichols to some other county to hear cases in which we are not residents, we receive under the new law our expenses and ten dollars per day during the time that we are engaged in hearing cases in other counties. This, I understand, is to be paid from the treasury of the county to which we are respectively assigned."

I regret that owing to the large number of similar questions arising it has been impossible for me to answer you sooner. I have rendered a general opinion to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, and I enclose a copy of same herewith.

Answering your first question: It is my opinion that from and after June 8, 1914, your salary should have come from Lake county only and Judge Robert's salary from Ashtabula county only. The matter of apportionment of the quarter current on June 8, 1914, when the law in question took effect, I have held in the opinion to the bureau that that is a matter for the respective county auditors.

Answering your second question: I am of the opinion that in case either you or Judge Roberts are assigned to one of the counties which previously constituted your judicial district, you will be entitled to your expenses not to exceed $150.00 in any one year, to be paid from the treasury of the state. If either you or Judge Roberts are assigned by the chief justice to a county other than the county of your respective residences, and other than to a county of your judicial district, then you will be entitled to your actual and necessary expenses not exceeding in any one year the sum of $300.00 payable from the treasury of the county to which you may be assigned.

I am of the opinion that since both you and Judge Roberts were elected prior to June 8, 1914, by virtue of the provisions of section 4, article XIV of the constitution, neither you nor Judge Roberts are entitled to the $10.00 per day compensation when assigned by the chief justice to a county other than that of your residence.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE TREASURER—FORMS OF WAIVERS OF PROTEST, i. e., "NOTICE AND PROTEST WAIVED," OR "PRESENTATION DEMAND NOTICE, PROTEST WAIVED."

The state treasurer may waive notice and protest of check for state revenues deposited by him for collection by using either of the following forms of waiver: (a) "Notice and protest waived," (b) "Presentation demand notice, protest waived."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 2, 1915.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You submit to me two forms of waiver of protest used by you in the endorsement of checks received by you in payment of revenues of the state, and ask my opinion as to which affords the greater security to the treasurer of state in case of the protest of the checks; the two forms being as follows:

"Notice and protest waived.
"Presentation demand notice, protest waived."

Section 8216 of the General Code provides as follows:

"A waiver of protest whether in the case of a foreign bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, is deemed to be a waiver not only of a formal protest, but also of presentment and notice of dishonor."

Under this section of our negotiable instruments code either of the forms you submit is sufficient. The latter form in using the words "presentation" and "demand" sets out more fully the requirements of the section quoted above, but from the standpoint of your protection, and as a matter of law, there is no difference between the two forms.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION—RECEIPTS FROM SALE OF MANUFACTURED ARTICLES MUST BE PAID INTO STATE TREASURY.

Under section 24, G. C., 104 O. L., 178, receipts from the sale of manufactured articles under section 1866, G. C., must be turned into the state treasury, and an appropriation by the legislature must be made to make said receipts available.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 2, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of February 26th, you submitted the following request for opinion:

> "Receipts from the sales of manufactured articles under section 1866, G. C., have been turned into the state treasury.
> "Query. May this money be paid out of the state treasury, under the constitution and laws of Ohio, without further and specific appropriations?"

Section 1864 contained in the statutes relating to the board of administration, provides in part as follows:

> "The state treasurer shall have charge of all funds under the jurisdiction of the board (board of administration) and shall pay out the same only in accordance with the provisions of this act. * * * Moneys collected from various sources, such as the sale of goods, farm products and all miscellaneous articles, shall be transmitted on or before Monday of each week to the state treasurer and a detailed statement of such collections made to the fiscal supervisor by each managing officer, but the receipts from manufacturing industries shall be used and accounted for as provided in section 32 (G. C., section 1866) hereof."

Section 1866, 103 O. L., 551, provides in part as follows:

> "For the purchase of material and machinery used in manufacturing industries, * * * a special appropriation shall be made to be known as the manufacturing fund. Receipts from the sales of manufactured articles shall not be turned into the state treasury, but shall be credited to said fund, to be used for the purchase of further materials, machinery and supplies for such industries * * * and the board of administration shall make a full monthly report of the products, sales, receipts, disbursements and payments to and from said fund to the state auditor * * *."

The above sections 1864 and 1866 govern the matter under consideration up to the time that section 24 of the General Code was amended, and therefore prior to the amendment of said section 24, hereinafter referred to, the amount received from the sales of manufactured articles were not to be turned into the state treasury.

In 1914, section 24 of the General Code was amended, after the amendment of section 1866 hereinbefore referred to, by what is known as the "Mooney bill" to be found in 104 O. L., p. 178. Said section reads in part as follows:

> "On or before Monday of each week every state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, * * * shall pay to the treasurer of state all moneys, checks and drafts received for the state, or for the use of any such state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, * * * during the preceding week, from * * * sales * * * and file with the auditor of state a detailed, verified statement of such receipts."

It is to be noted that said section 24 simply requires that said moneys be paid to the treasurer of state, but does not state that the moneys are to be paid into the treasury. However, section 4 of said act provides as follows:

> "Immediately upon the taking effect of this act all moneys, checks and drafts in the possession of any state officer, state institution, department, board, commission or institution received for the state for any such state officer, department, board or commission from the sources mentioned in section 24 of the General Code, as herein amended, shall be paid into the state treasury in the manner provided by said section."

In said section 4 of said act it is specifically stated that all moneys, etc., in the possession of state officers, received for the state or for any such state officer, etc., "from the sources mentioned in section 24, G. C., as herein amended shall be paid into the state treasury in the manner provided by said section."

Taking the whole act together as it appears in 104 O. L., it seems clear to me that it was the intention of the legislature that the moneys received under section 24 by the state treasurer shall be paid by him into the state treasury.

Section 3 of the Mooney bill provides that "all sections or parts of sections of the General Code which provide for the custody, management and control of moneys arising from the payment to any state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, * * * of any * * * sales," * * * and which are inconsistent with the provisions of section 24 of the General Code as herein amended, are, to the extent of such inconsistency, hereby repealed." Were it not for section 3 of the Mooney bill it might well be argued that since the provisions of section 1866, G. C., were special, and the provisions of section 24, 104 O. L., 178, were general, the special would govern. However, such construction cannot be given in this instance for the reason that section 3 of the act specifically repeals any provisions of former acts which are inconsistent with the provisions of section 24.

Consequently, I am of the opinion that the receipts from sales of manufactured articles, under section 1866, G. C., must, under section 24, G. C., be turned into the state treasury, and being in the state treasury may not be paid out of the said treasury without appropriation by the legislature.

In examining the appropriation bill found in 104 O. L., at page 64, I note that on page 69 thereof there is appropriated to the board of administration the following:

"Manufacturing fund, receipts and _____$50,000.00."

The legislature has, therefore, recognized that it is necessary that the moneys in the manufacturing fund and the moneys to come into such manufacturing fund required appropriation for expenditures to be made from such fund.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION—AUTHORITY TO ISSUE ORDERS TO PREVENT SPREAD OF HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE AMONG LIVE STOCK.

The Agricultural Commission of Ohio has authority to take means against railroad companies to prevent the spread of the hoof and mouth, contagious disease, among live stock.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 3, 1915.

HON. A. P. SANDLES, President Agricultural Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR MR. SANDLES:—As carrying out the purposes of our interview of a few days ago in regard to the serious situation in Ohio on account of the foot and mouth disease, I am of the opinion that under the authority given your commission you may make orders against any railroad company in this state, requiring said railroad company to clean and disinfect the cars specified. And, to cover the matter from another angle, your board might make an order prohibiting the loading of live stock for intra-state shipment in any car that has not been cleaned and disinfected.

Further, under section 1120, General Code, which provides in part (103 O. L., 313):

> "Whoever, being a person, firm or corporation * * * moves an animal from a district declared by the commission to be infected with dangerously contagious or infectious disease * * * except under such conditions as the commission may prescribe, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars."

you may prosecute any person moving an animal from a district declared by your commission to be infected with a dangerously contagious or infectious disease.

We may experience some trouble with the enforcement of this statute, as the court may take the position that it will be necessary to bring home to the defendant the knowledge of the fact that your commission had made an order declaring the particular district to be infected and ordering no live stock moved therefrom. However, I believe that the proper interpretation that should be given to this statute is that proof by the defendant that he had no such knowledge would be a defense rather than that it is the duty of the state in the first instance to prove that the defendant did actually have knowledge.

This department will lend all possible aid to your commission in enforcing the quarantine as we realize the serious consequences that are going to follow unless you are able to effectively maintain quarantine and thus stamp out the spread of the disease.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

"BLUE SKY LAW"—CERTIFICATE NOT REQUIRED TO SELL GOVERNMENT LAND, LOCATED IN ANOTHER STATE, IN OHIO.

The purchase by an Ohio citizen either in person or through an agent, who is present, and under written authority to bid for him, of land located in Oklahoma, which is owned and offered for sale at public auction by the United States government, does not come within the scope of the "blue sky law" to the extent of making it necessary to secure from the "blue sky" commissioner a certificate of such government land.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 3, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of February 26th, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "This department has on file an application by the McAlester Real Estate Exchange for a license to deal in Ohio, in real estate not located within this state.
> "McAlester Real Estate Exchange is in strict sense a corporation for profit, representing the city of McAlester, Okla. Its membership is made up of the business men of that city and locality. The method of operation is, briefly, this:
> "Representatives and employes of the exchange travel through Ohio, Indiana and other states, in a special car, stopping at certain points for a limited time, inviting the citizens of that locality to visit the car, talking with the representatives of the exchange and seeing the exhibits contained in the car, relative to the products of that section of the country. The residents of Ohio are to be asked to purchase a lot in the city of McAlester. Those lots are located in what is now the outer section of that city, containing about seventeen thousand inhabitants at this time.
> "We are enclosing herewith a copy of the contract which the residents of Ohio are solicited by the representatives of the exchange to sign, together with some literature which they purpose to circulate in Ohio. The main talking point—the chief consideration offered to residents of Ohio—is that to all who sign the contract for the purchase of a lot in McAlester, the McAlester exchange agent will act as agent, purchasing for them government lands which are to be offered at public auction, to take place in McAlester next fall, the exact date of which has not yet been fixed. These government lands are designated as segregated lands, having been reserved by the government on account of timber, oil, coal, and asphalt, from the original allotment made to the Indian tribes, and it is now the purpose of the government to offer these lands at public auction to the people of the United States.

"You will, of course, realize at once that it will be impossible to obtain a definite description of these lands and incorporate the same in the application for a certificate of compliance, under section fifteen of the law. It will be possible to practically describe the lots which the exchange is offering for sale in an application for a certificate of compliance.

"The title to the town lots above mentioned is now vested in the McAlester Real Estate Exchange, that organization having title from the individuals who originally purchased the lots from the government, when the town site of McAlester was opened up and the lots sold. Those individuals have held the lots since that time, but have engaged in business or farming in that section, and are now desirous of increasing the population of McAlester and the surrounding country, and have therefore turned over to the exchange the lots, to dispose of for them, and the proceeds derived from the sale are used in defraying the expenses of the exchange, paying the employes, paying the expenses of the car, and maintaining a corps of engineers and representatives, generally.

"The question is:

"Does this method of procedure constitute an offering of those government lands for sale, within the meaning of the Ohio blue sky law and necessitate the certification of those lands under sections fifteen and sixteen of the law?

"We should state that while the McAlester Real Estate Exchange, some months ago, obtained a great deal of unpleasant notoriety on account of an adverse ruling by Mr. Cato Sells, commissioner of Indian affairs, in Washington, to the effect that the exchange had no right to offer the lands for sale, as above outlined; the adverse ruling was widely advertised and nearly all of those who purchased lots under the arrangement above mentioned, were notified that the McAlester Real Estate Exchange could not fulful its promise with regard to the Indian lands. This ruling by Cato Sells was reversed by Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the department of the interior, which not only held that the exchange had a right to offer these government lands as above mentioned, but that it should be encouraged in so doing.

"An application by the McAlester Real Estate Exchange has been pending undisposed of for quite a while, and the representatives are anxious that a final disposition be made of the same. Consequently, a ruling on the question submitted at the earliest possible moment will be appreciated.

"I might add that the car of the exchange is now in the state and the representatives are at considerable expense, though are doing nothing until authorized by this department. You will see, therefore, that justice requires that the matter be disposed of at the earliest possible moment."

Attached to the original letter copied above, as therein recited, is a form of contract of deed. As this contract is of considerable length, I quote only the sections or parts thereof pertinent to the purposes of your question.

"Section VI. First party also agrees to represent second party in the purchase of Indian lands when sold by the government, it being specifically understood that in doing so said first party merely acts as locator and attorney, and is in no way connected with the government, neither has it any preferential rights concerning the sale of said lands, and it is further agreed that all services rendered in connection therewith are to be governed by the rules of the interior department, said services to consist of supplying second party with photos, maps, plats, soil samples, descriptions of land and an independent appraisement of 2,000 tracts, from which second party may choose land in accordance with his or her expressed desires; and first party further agrees to secure for second party at least one tract of land at the lowest price obtainable or cancel this contract and return all money paid thereon; provided, however, said second party shall comply with all conditions of the interior department at time of sale.

"Section VII. It is further agreed that said first party will undertake the following leasing and selling services; that is, to secure profitable leases on all lands purchased through the fulfillment of this contract within ninety days after the date of purchase, or sell same prior to one year from said date, and net said second party a profit sufficient to reimburse him or her for all money paid on the above mentioned lots in addition to the amount paid the government; provided, however, second party complies with all of his or her agreements as stated herein, and is only released from making payments as per contract in case of loss of employment or sickness."

The portions of sections 15 and 16 of the Ohio blue sky law (sections 6373-15 and -16 of the General Code) referred to in your question are as follows:

"Section 15. No person or company, other than a licensed dealer as hereinbefore provided, shall within this state, in repeated or successive transactions, deal in real estate not located in Ohio; and, unless so licensed and the 'commissioner' shall issue his certificate as provided in the following section, and, prior to such issuance, there shall, together with a filing fee of ten dollars, be filed with the 'commissioner' an application for such certificate, and a written statement of the dealer containing a pertinent description of the real estate the disposal of all or a part of which is sought to be made; the nature and source of the title of the owner thereto, and the amount or value and the nature of the consideration paid or allowed by him therefor, it shall, within this state, be unlawful:

"(a) For any corporation or any person, association or co-partnership doing business under any name other than the name or names of such person or of all the members of such association or co-partnership to dispose or offer to dispose of any real estate not located in Ohio.

"(b) For any person or company to sell or offer for sale any such real estate, the owner of which is, or is represented to the purchaser to be, a corporation, or any person or company of the character described in the foregoing paragraph, where such corporation, person or company is engaged in the business of dealing in real estate. * * *

"Section 16. Said 'commissioner' shall have power to make such examination of the issuer of the securities or the owner of the property, named in the two preceding sections, and of such securities or property, as he may deem advisable; and if he shall find that the law has been complied with, and is satisfied that said company is solvent, that its business is properly and legitimately conducted, and that its proposed disposal of its securities or other property is not on unfair terms, upon the payment of a fee of twenty dollars he shall issue his certificate to that effect, authorizing such disposal; but if he shall not affirmatively so find, and is not so satisfied, he shall notify the applicant, in writing, of such finding and of his refusal to issue such certificate. Said applicant shall have the right of review of such finding given to a dealer by section eight hereof."

From the information contained in your letter and the form of contract for deed attached, it is clear that the McAlester Real Estate Exchange is not within the purview and purpose of the law dealing or attempting to deal in the government lands referred to. The company, in part consideration for the purchase from it of certain town lots in the city of McAlester, is offering to act as agent or attorney in fact for the purchasers of said lots in securing for them United States government lands which are to be sold at public auction. The company does not hold itself out as being the owner or the agent of the United States government as owner of said land, nor does it pretend to have authority to sell or to deal in the same. In fact, in section VI of the form of contract for deed, above quoted, the company stipulates that:

"It is in no way connected with the government, neither has it any preferential rights concerning the sale of the said lands."

The company simply offers to sell its services for the purposes prescribed and limited in this same section of the contract for deed. Sections 15 and 16 of the blue sky law were enacted to regulate and prevent fraud in the sale of lands not located in Ohio. The purchase by an Ohio citizen either in person or through an agent who is present and under written authority to bid for him, of land located in Oklahoma, which is owned and offered for sale at public auction by the United States government does not come within the scope of the act.

I am therefore of the opinion that the plan of procedure set forth in your letter and as revealed by the provisions of the contract for deed does not constitute an offering of such government lands for sale within the meaning of the Ohio blue sky law, and therefore a certification of those lands under sections 15 and 16 of the law is not necessary.

I have answered your question as asked, but there are other matters in connection with this application that should receive careful consideration and attention from your department.

Section 7 of the contract for deed is worded to catch the unwary. Nine persons out of ten who read the section will assume that it provides a guarantee that profitable leases will be secured within ninety days, or a sale will be made within one year sufficient to net the person signing one of these contracts sufficient to reimburse him for all money paid on both the government and the McAlester lands; whereas, in fact, the agreement only provides that the company will undertake to do that.

Your department should not sanction such a contract under authority of section 6376-16 of the General Code.

In section III of the contract for deed it is provided:

"When all of the purchase price of the property in the application above mentioned has been paid, the purchaser of that property will be given a gold bond issued by the Federal Guaranty Company, of Washington, D. C., in the name of and made payable to said purchaser, conditioned that the Federal Guaranty Co. will pay to the purchaser, his or her heirs or assigns, the full amount paid for said property, provided that at the maturity of said bond the owner is willing to sell said lot or lots for that price, and will legally convey merchantable title thereto."

This contract should not be sanctioned until your own investigation has shown not only that there is such a company as the "Federal Guaranty Company, of Washington, D. C.," and that it has agreed to do all the things provided for in said section III, but that in your opinion it is financially able to carry out this provision of the contract.

You should also be satisfied that the McAlester Real Estate Exchange is financially able to carry out the provisions of section V of the contract. I am assuming that you have made the statement as to the action of the secretary of the interior only after investigation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MINORS MAY NOT WORK IN OR ABOUT A COAL MINE—MINES AND MINING.

A child under sixteen years of age may not work in or about or in connection with a coal mine.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 3, 1915.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your communication of March 1, 1915, asking for my opinion on the question submitted to you by The Hocking Mining Company, as follows:

> "Section 13002 of the mining laws of 1914, as compiled by you, states that no children under the age of sixteen years shall be employed or permitted or suffered to work in and about certain vocations therein named.
> "It is claimed by the mine committee of our mines that a boy who will be sixteen years of age on October 6, 1915, and who has been examined by the superintendent of schools and passed a satisfactory examination in the 6th grade, in reading, writing, spelling, geography, English grammer arithmetic, that the papers enumerated and described in section 7766 of the General Code of Ohio, and amended in 1913, and that this boy shows sufficient development, health and physical fitness to perform the labor required of him, that section 13002, therefore, is suspended under the schooling certificate, and that the boy is entitled to be employed. What do you say as to the proposition?"

In answering this question I beg to direct your attention to section 13002 of the General Code, which provides, in part, as follows:

> "No child under the age of sixteen years shall be employed, permitted or suffered to work in any capacity * * * in, about or in connection with any mine, coal breaker, coke oven or quarry. * * *"

It is true that under the provisions of section 7766 of the General Code, as amended April 28, 1913, 103 O. L., page 899, any male child over fifteen years of age, or any female child over eighteen years of age, may be employed by any person, company or corporation in this state, provided said child obtains the schooling certificate therein provided for, save and except, however,

> "that the employment contemplated by the child is not prohibited by any law regulating the employment of such children."

The law as found in said section 13002 does prohibit the working in or about or in connection with any coal mine of children under the age of sixteen years. Hence, a boy who will not be sixteen years of age until October 6, 1915, cannot now work in, about or in connection with a coal mine in this state.

The letter of The Hocking Mining Company addressed to you is returned herewith.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT—CHANGE OF GRADE WHERE IT IS NECESSARY TO MAKE CUT IN INTERSECTING ROAD—COST TO BE APPORTIONED ON ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

Where a pike is improved under the provisions of sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, G. C., inclusive, and the grade is changed at a point where the pike is intersected by another road, thus rendering it necessary to make a cut in the intersecting road, the cost of this cut must be regarded as part of the cost of improving the pike and apportioned accordingly.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 4, 1915.

HON. JOSEPH W. HORNER, Prosecuting Attorney, Newark, Ohio.

SIR:—I have your communication of February 26, 1915, in which you state that in the construction of the Linnville Pike in Licking county, there was a cut of several feet at one point, and at this particular cut there was a road that intersected the Linnville pike. In making the cut the other road was left several feet above the grade of the new pike and in order that the other road could be used it was necessary to cut it back from the Linnville pike for a distance of about sixty feet. The Linnville pike was constructed under the provisions of sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, inclusive, of the General Code. The above statement of facts is gathered partly from your communication above referred to, and partly from your oral statements. You now inquire whether the expense of the cut for the other road should be added to the cost of the Linnville pike and apportioned as part of the cost and expense of said improvement, or whether the entire cost and expense of the cut should be paid by the county.

Section 6956-10, G. C., provides that when the improvement is wholly within one county "the cost and expense of said improvement including all damages and compensation awarded" shall be apportioned by the commissioners in accordance with certain provisions therein contained.

Section 6056-11, G. C., provides for dividing and assessing "the cost and expense of the entire improvement including all damages and compensation awarded," in cases where the improvement is in more than one county or along the line between two or more counties. Sections 6956-5, 6956-6 and 6956-7 contain elaborate provisions for the filing of claims for compensation and damages and for the adjudication of the same. It is apparent from an examination of the above cited sections that it was the intention of the legislature that all the cost and expense of a highway constructed under the scheme of road improvement provided by sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, G. C., inclusive, should be apportioned according to section 6956-10 between the county, the township or townships in which the improvement is situated in whole or in part, and the owners of benefited real estate.

It appears from your statement of fact that the cut in the intersecting highway was rendered necessary solely by the construction of the Linnville pike at a new grade. If the grade of the Linnville pike had not been lowered, it would not have been necessary to do any work on the intersecting road. I am unable to see any distinction in principle between the cost of making the cut on the intersecting road and the compensation and damages that may be awarded, or indeed between the cost of the cut and the cost of any other part of the work.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the cost of making the cut on the intersecting road must be regarded as part of the cost and expense or constructing the Linnville pike and apportioned according to the provisions of section 6956-10, G. C.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

REVENUES RECEIVED FROM WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY COME UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE MOONEY BILL.

There is nothing in the Mooney bill, 104 O. L., 179, which repeals section 7986, G. C. However, said section must be read in connection with said Mooney bill and the revenues received under the latter part of section 7986, G. C., must be paid into the state treasury and appropriated out of same.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 4, 1915.

HON. E. M. FULLINGTON, Budget Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of March 2, 1915, wherein you inquire as follows:

> "I would like to have your opinion or construction of the last provision of section 7986 of the General Code, which reads as follows:
> "'All revenue arising from tuitions, sales of products or otherwise under the aforesaid department shall be applied by its board of trustees to defray its expenses, or to increase its efficiency, a strict account of which shall be kept by the department board, and accompany the report to the governor.'
> "The following is a statement of facts: The department referred to in the above quotation is the combined normal and industrial department at Wilberforce. This department was organized in 1887, reorganized in 1896, and carries on normal and industrial work. Effort is made by its board and management to encourage industry, thrift and intelligence of the pupils, and in so doing they are taught to work and take an interest in carrying on useful operations under the several industrial departments. There are at times small returns from these products, amounting to about nine hundred dollars per year, which fund has heretofore been used in improving the condition of the institution under the above quoted section.

"This department having no rotary fund, under the Mooney bill this money has been paid into the treasury to the credit of the department producing it and utilized in the interest of said department by the purchase of material and supplies or increasing the work. We desire to know whether there in anything in the Mooney bill or subsequent enactments repealing this section."

Your specific inquiry as to whether there is anything in the Mooney bill or subsequent enactments repealing section 7986 can best be answered by referring to the Mooney bill which is found in 104 O. L., 179, and is an amendment of section 24 of the General Code. Section 3 of said act provides as follows:

"All sections and parts of sections of the General Code which provide for the custody, management and control of moneys arising from the payment to any state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid of any fees, taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals, or other charges or indebtedness and which are inconsistent with the provisions of section 24 of the General Code as herein amended, are, to the extent of such inconsistency, hereby repealed."

Under section 24 as amended in the Mooney bill it is the duty of the combined normal and industrial department at Wilberforce on or before Monday of each week to turn over the money referred to in your inquiry to the state treasurer to be paid by him into the state treasury; and if section 7986 is in any way in conflict with said section 24, the same is by reason of section 3 of the Mooney bill repealed, insofar as the same is inconsistent. However, the two can in my opinion stand together for the reason that section 7986 simply provides as to how the moneys received from tuition, sale of products, etc., shall be applied by the board of trustees. If the money is paid into the state treasury in accordance with the Mooney bill, and after appropriation by the legislature, the application of such money for the purposes of the combined normal and industrial school must be in accordance with section 7986. The money having been paid into the state treasury under the Mooney bill cannot be drawn from said treasury "except in pursuance of a specific appropriation made by law." (Article II, section 22 of the Ohio constitution.)

In order to overcome the difficulty which confronts the Wilberforce institution it will be necessary for the legislature not only to appropriate a specific sum which may equal the exact balance in the fund derived from the revenues in question, but also it will be necessary to appropriate the "receipts" which may come into the fund during the life of the appropriation.

I am informed that in the new budget about to be passed by the legislature to cover the period from February 15th to July 1, 1915, there are several funds therein appropriated, which funds not only appropriate specific sums but also "receipts" that will be received during said period and placed in such fund.

Nowhere in the law pertaining to the combined normal and industrial department at Wilberforce is there any provision for a specific fund to be kept in the state treasury; but since section 7986 requires that the revenues derived from tuition, sale of products, etc., shall be applied by the board of trustees to defray its expenses or to increase its efficiency, I am of the opinion that said funds can be used for no other purposes, and that consequently although there is no mention of a fund by a specific name, nevertheless upon the payment into the state treasury of the revenues in question a specific fund would arise, the receipt being kept separate and apart from other receipts in the state treasury.

Specifically answering your question therefore I would state that there is nothing in the Mooney bill or subsequent enactments so far as I am aware that repeals section 7986. So much of said section as is quoted by you in your letter providing how the revenues arising from tuition, sales of products, etc., shall be applied by the board of trustees refers solely to the manner in which such revenues shall be used. The Mooney bill however requires that such revenues shall be paid into the state treasury and being so paid in a specific appropriation will be necessary. In order to constitute the fund created thereby a rotary fund, it will be necessary that the "receipts" received during the period of appropriation be likewise appropriated as well as whatever amount is in the fund at the time the appropriation is made.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EFFECT OF THE WORDS "HEREINAFTER" AND "HEREIN" AS USED IN CONNECTION WITH HOUSE BILL NO. 245.

The use of the word "hereinafter" in house bill No. 245, would render section 11425, G. C., inoperative.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 5, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—My attention has been called to house bill No. 245, Mr. Danford, which has passed, and is probably now before you.

In the amendment of section 11, 425, occurs the language:

> "* * * may appoint a judicious and disinterested person to take the pledge of such commissioner to perform the duties hereinafter provided for."

The legislature has attempted to amend the word "herein" in the original section, so as to make it read "hereinafter." As I read the entire act, as found in 103 O. L., page 512, this amendment would tend to make the section inoperative. In drawing this bill, it was doubtless thought that the word "herein" was ambiguous, and the drawer of the bill evidently assumed that the duties of the jury commissioner were provided for in subsequent sections, whereas as a matter of fact, while there are some duties provided in a subsequent section, the principal duties are provided for in preceding sections. If the legislature is not satisfied with the word "herein" it should use apt words to cover all of the duties in the original act. My own opinion is that the word "herein" would be sufficient, as this present bill would be read as a part of the original bill.

I am clearly of the opinion that this bill should not be signed, if the copy presented to you contains the word "hereinafter."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION—PENITENTIARY—SENTENCE ENFORCING SOLITARY CONFINEMENT OF A CONVICT.

A provision for solitary confinement included in sentence of a convict to the penitentiary is to be carried out in the enforcement of the sentence, until modified by competent authority. Sentence of the court is not to be supplemented or modified by non-judicial or ministerial officer.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 5, 1915.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of March 2, which is as follows:

> "I am enclosing herewith a letter from Mr. P. E. Thomas, warden of the Ohio penitentiary, concerning Aleck Kish, No. 43394, who was sentenced by the common pleas court of Seneca county to serve a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for murder in the first degree.
> "As you will note, the warden advises us that the commitment papers provide also that the first five days of each month of said life sentence shall be spent in solitary confinement.
> "Your opinion is respectfully requested as to whether or not this provision of the commitment must be obeyed."

With your letter you enclose the communication from the warden of the Ohio penitentiary addressed to you under date of February 26, 1915, which is as follows:

> "The commitment paper of Aleck Kish, alias Alexander Kish, No. 43394, received from Seneca county to serve a life sentence for murder in the first degree, with mercy, calls for the first five days of each month to be spent in solitary confinement.
> "I am questioning the propriety of executing the solitary confinement end of this commitment, and I would like to be advised whether I should carry it into execution or not."

With reference to the question submitted, permit me to invite your attention to the provisions of section 12374 of the General Code, which section is as follows:

> "When sentencing a person to imprisonment in the penitentiary, the court shall declare for what period he shall be kept at hard labor, and for what period, if any, he shall be kept in solitary confinement without labor."

It was under the authority granted in the above section and that contained in section 12400 that the judge sentenced the prisoner, Aleck Kish, to serve a life sentence for murder in the first degree and included as a part of the sentence that the first five days of each month be spent in solitary confinement. The purpose of the law was fully carried out by the court in inflicting the aforesaid sentence in that it is certain and definite and comes within the rule laid down in the case of In re Calvin L. Moore, which was decided in 14 O. C. C. reports, at page 237. In that case it was held that:

> "A sentence in a criminal case must be so complete as to need no construction of a court to ascertain its import, so that the offender may not have to look between the lines for its meaning, and it cannot be supplemented by a non-judicial or ministerial officer."

Pertinent to the observation of Warden Thomas as to his questioning the propriety of executing the solitary confinement end of the commitment, it will be noted that this matter has been passed on by the supreme court of the state of Ohio in the case of Ex parte Peter Clark and James Clark, reported at page 649, volume 50 of the Ohio state reports, and it was held in that case that under section 6799 (now section 12374, G. C.) of the Revised Statutes:

"* * * the court sentencing a person convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, is authorized and required to declare in the sentence for what period he shall be kept at hard labor, and for what period, if any, he shall be kept in solitary confinement, and render judgment against him for the costs of prosecution."

Under the provisions of section 13720 it is provided that a prisoner sentenced to the penitentiary is to be delivered to the warden of the penitentiary with a copy of the sentence, there to be kept until the term of his imprisonment expires or he is pardoned.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that as the sentence inflicted by the court in the case under consideration was legal that there is no discretion lodged in the warden of the Ohio penitentiary to disregard its provisions, and that it should be carried into full effect until such time as it may be modified by competent authority.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION—RECEIPTS OF OHIO STATE SANATORIUM MUST BE PAID INTO STATE TREASURY—MONEYS RECEIVED CANNOT BE CREDITED TO A SPECIFIC FUND.

Section 2072, G. C., is amended so far as inconsistent with section 24, 103 O. L., 178. Moneys received under section 2072, G. C., are to be paid into the state treasury to the credit of a specific fund and not paid into the general revenue fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 6, 1915.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of March 3rd, wherein you state as follows:

"Section 2072, G. C., provides as follows:

"For the maintenance of the sanatorium the board of trustees may receive and expend all money paid to it by patients for treatment therein, or money received from other sources, but compensation for work done by patients in accordance with this chapter shall be paid from such moneys, if any part thereof is unexpended. The superintendent shall make monthly reports in detail to the auditor of state of all moneys received and expended under this provision.

"Will you please advise this department if the above section is still in force and effect; also, if the opinion rendered by you under date of March 2nd, to the auditor of state as to receipts from the sales of manufactured articles under section 1866, G. C., would hold good in the case of receipts at the Ohio State Sanatorium?

"The appropriation bill for the year ended February 15, 1915, reads as follows:

"Personal service, receipts from the Ohio State Sanatorium and * * * $1,384,657.00.

"The present appropriation bills do not provide for the appropriating of the receipts of that institution.

"Providing some arrangement is not made for the receipts at that institution to be reappropriated for the benefit of same, would they not go to the general revenue fund of the state?

"In preparing the budget for the maintenance of the Ohio State Sanatorium, the full amount required for that institution was requested with no offset on account of receipts."

Your inquiry divides itself into two questions to be answered. First, whether or not section 2072, G. C., set out in full in your letter, is still in force and effect.

Section 24 G. C., was amended 104 O. L., 178, by what is known as the "Mooney" bill, which provided for the amendment of section 24 so as to require each state department or board on or before the Monday of each week to pay to the treasurer of state

> "all moneys, checks and drafts received for the state, or for the use of such * * * state institution, department, board, * * * during the preceding week from * * * fees * * * costs * * * or otherwise, and file with the auditor of state a detailed verified statement of such receipts * * *."

The Ohio State Sanatorium which is provided for under sections 2052 to 2072, inclusive, of the General Code, is, by virtue of section 1838 of the General Code, to be administered by the board of administration. Therefore, the term "board of trustees" as used in section 2072, is to be read as if it stated "board of administration." Your board is authorized to receive and expend all money paid by patients for treatment in the Ohio State Sanatorium, and money received from other sources. The money as received under said section is, as I view it, undoubtedly received either for the state or for the use of your board.

Under section 2068 it is provided that any citizen of the state of more than seven years of age suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis may be admitted to the sanatorium upon payment in advance of $5.00 each week, which shall include all necessary medical expenses. Such a charge is, as I view it, a fee, or at least a cost of the state for the maintenance of the patient in the sanatorium. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the moneys received under section 2072 are, by virtue of section 24 as amended, to be paid to the treasurer of state when received by the board.

Section 2072 provides, however, that the board may "receive and expend all moneys paid to it by patients for treatment therein." It is clear from what will be hereinafter stated, that it was in the contemplation of the legislature at the time of the enactment of section 2072, that the moneys so received should be received and expended by the board without the same being paid into the state treasury.

However, section 3 of the Mooney bill, 104 O. L., 178, provides that,

> "all sections and parts of sections of the General Code which provide for the custody, management and control of moneys arising from the payment to any * * * state institution, department, board * * * of any * * * fees * * * or other charges or indebtedness, and which are inconsistent with the provisions of section 24 of the General Code, as herein amended, are, to the extent of such inconsistency, hereby repealed."

I am of the opinion, therefore, to the extent that section 2072 provided for the management and control of all the moneys received thereunder, that said section 2072 is repealed; that is to say, your board may no longer retain and pay out the moneys as such board, but must under the provisions of the Mooney bill pay the same into the state treasury, to be paid out of such treasury on voucher to state auditor.

The next question which naturally arises is: To what fund the moneys paid in under section 2072 by virtue of the Mooney bill are to be credited?

There is no provision in the Mooney bill specifying to what fund the moneys that are received thereunder, for which provision has not heretofore been made as to the creation of a fund in the state treasury, are to be credited. The only provision in the Mooney bill is that the same shall be paid to the state treasurer, but so far as the moneys concerning which you inquire as well as the receipts from the sale of manufactured articles under section 1866 concerning which I have heretofore given you an opinion, are concerned, it is to be noted that in each specific instance there is a provision as to the use to which such moneys shall be put. For instance, section 2072 states that your board may receive and expend the moneys paid to it by patients for treatment therein and moneys received from other sources "for the maintenance of the sanatorium" and also states that the compensation for work done by patients shall be paid from such moneys if any part thereof is unexpended. It is clear, therefore, that the general assembly did not attempt to make the charge for support and medical attendance against the patients of the Ohio State Sanatorium for the purpose of general revenue, but solely for the purposes of maintenance of such institution. Therefore, the money is, when paid into the state treasury, under the Mooney bill impressed with a trust to be used for the purposes for which raised.

In so stating I am not at all unmindful of the provisions of section 270, G. C., which provides in part as follows:

> "All moneys paid into the state treasury, the disposition of which is not otherwise provided for by law, shall be credited by the auditor of state to the general revenue fund," but such section does not, as I view it, require the payment of the moneys under discussion into the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund for the reason that the disposition of such moneys, that is to say, the ultimate purpose for which such moneys are required by the other statutes to be applied, is otherwise specifically provided for.

Answering your question, specifically, therefore, I would state that I am of the opinion, and so advise, that said section 2072 of the General Code is still in force and effect, except insofar as its provisions are inconsistent with section 24, as amended 104 O. L., 178; that the moneys received under section 2072 paid in under section 24 as amended, are to be kept separate and distinct from the general revenue fund specifically for the purposes for which received.

In your letter you call attention to the fact that the appropriation for the year ending February 15, 1915, 104 O. L., 64, contained the following appropriation at page 69:

"Personal service, receipts from the Ohio State Sanatorium, $1,384,657.00."

Therefore, it would appear that the legislature has construed the amendment to section 24 in the same manner as I have herein indicated.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUGGESTIONS FOR ENACTMENT OF LAWS BY SECTIONS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 8, 1915.

To the Members and Officers of the 81st General Assembly of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—May I respectfully call your attention to what is probably an oversight.

The purpose of the recent codification of the statutes was to arrange them under separate and suitable titles, divisions, subdivisions, chapters and sections. The reason and necessity for such codification is obvious.

At the time of the adoption of the last codification, the general assembly enacted what is known as section 342-1, which provides:

> "The attorney general shall be the codifier of the laws of the state. When an act of a general and permanent nature is passed by the general assembly and has been enrolled and signed by the necessary officers and before it is filed with the secretary of state, the attorney general shall examine the same. If there is no sectional numbering in the act or such numbering is not in conformity to the General Code he shall give each section of the act so passed its proper sectional or supplemental sectional number by writing or printing on the left hand margin of the enrolled bill such proper number or numbers, and the number so designated by him shall be the official number. Such numbers so placed shall be published in the session laws and in any publication of the General Code. It shall be a sufficient reference to any section to refer to it by such official number."

It is highly essential that the duty under the foregoing section be carried out carefully but unless the legislature constantly keeps in mind the scheme of codification, the attorney general will be seriously handicapped as his authority is limited to giving the sections numbers. Any power he had to edit was taken away by the repeal of section 342-3 (103 O. L., 860).

Let me offer an illustration: The honest election bill, H. B. No. 80, contains seventeen sections, covering (a) contest of elections, (b) conduct of elections, (c) corrupt practice, (d) penal sections, and there are appropriate divisions of the Code into which these various sections should fall. Under the codification scheme it is the duty of the attorney general to distribute these seventeen sections in various parts of the Code. Owing however to the fact that the bill has been so drawn that the various sections are hopelessly inter-related, this cannot be done.

The first seven sections apply to a contest and should appear in the Code as a part of chapter 11, title XIV, division V of part 1.

Sections 8, 9 and 10 relate to the casting and counting of votes and should appear in chapter IX of said title, division and part.

Section 15 relates to corrupt practices and should appear in chapter 12a of said title, division and part.

Sections 11, 12, 13, 14, and 17 make certain acts misdemeanors, and should appear in chapter 12, title I of part IV, but to place them there would make said sections meaningless. Section 11 provides:

> "Whoever violates any of the provisions of sections 9 or 10 of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, etc.," and the attorney general has no authority to substitute for the words "section 9 or 10 of this act" any other words or even the Code section numbers he has given to sections 9 and 10 of the act.

Section 12 provides that a person who prevents or hinders an inspector or challenger "from performing his official duty under the provisions of this act" shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. But to find the penalty for this misdemeanor reference must be had to section 17 of the act.

Section 13 makes a misdemeanor the doing of certain things with respect to "any question or proposition submitted at such an election." Again reference must be had to section 17 for the penalty.

Section 14 is general but not complete for the reason that we must look to section 17 for the penalty.

Section 17 provides: "Any person convicted of a misdemeanor under sections 12, 13 or 14 of this act" shall be fined, etc.

Section 16 provides: "A violation of any of the provisions of this act shall constitute a prima facie case of fraud within the purview of this act." If this section were separated from either of several parts of the act its relation to the other parts would not be apparent when it appears in the Code.

Section 10 relating to the counting of blank ballots is general, and applies to all elections. It should not be hidden away with sections under the wrong title. By reason of the relation of section 11 and other sections to said section 10, said section 10 cannot be separated. Election officials and others will read the chapter on "casting and counting of votes" and suppose that they have read the entire law yet they will have missed a very important section.

If this law is to be understandable in the Code, there remained nothing for me to do but to choose some one place where it should be put in its entirety—the very practice which the plan of codification sought to eliminate. One of the several places was just as appropriate (and just as inappropriate) as the other. I placed it in the chapter on contests, although it might just as appropriately have been placed in the chapter on corrupt practice, or in the chapter on the casting and counting of votes.

Knowing that the general assembly as a body is desirous of having its acts clear and understandable and recognizing the right of the public to have the statutory law in such shape as that they might readily find it, may I not suggest that in instances like the above care be exercised to make the sections of such a bill independent of each other, keeping in mind that the sections of a bill are to be distributed throughout the General Code where the public will be able to find them. The use in the body of a bill of section numbers other than section numbers of the General Code is confusing and should be avoided if possible.

The practice to which I call attention is by no means new and so far as I can remember every preceding session has done the same thing. But the practice ought to be stopped and your session of the general assembly will, I am sure, receive the thanks not only of the bench and bar, but of the public generally if you will do your part toward clarifying the statutory law.

The foregoing is submitted not in any spirit of criticism but in the hope that the suggestions contained above may be helpful.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUGGESTIONS TO THE STATE TREASURER IN REGARD TO THE EFFECT OF SENATE BILL NO. 280.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 8, 1915.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your request for advice, under date of March 3, 1915, received, reading as follows:

> "The time for the biennial letting of state funds is drawing near, and as a consequence the treasurer is having quite a few inquiries concerning senate bill No. 280, section 2288-1, and known as, 'an act making first mortgage loans security for the deposits of public moneys.'
> "This act in my opinion is vicious and kills the real merit in the depository laws.
> "Suppose every bank in Ohio that wants to be a borrower of state money would take advantage of this act. The result would be we would not have a place large enough to keep the mortgages in.
> "Suppose some bank, with first mortgages held by the state for loans, would collapse (and they occassionally do). The state would be placed in the shape of collecting on all these mortgages held * * * a fine position, I am sure.

"Any suggestions for the guidance of the treasurer in this important matter will be highly appreciated.

"As treasurer, I am anxious to serve the public; but my first duty is to the state and as I see it this act spells trouble for the treasurer, the attorney general and the state.

"As the bids for state money are opened Monday, March 15, at 1:30 p. m., an early reply is requested."

I agree fully with all that you may say and more, but as long as this law remains unrepealed nothing can be done, except follow it. Whatever may be said in favor of such a law as applied to local subdivisions where they are or may easily become familiar with values, with all the records accessible, etc., the law should not be applied to the state treasury funds. If this law is allowed to stand prudence dictates that we must not only review the appraisements but the abstracts and mortgages as well, and this would entail a very large amount of work on this department, together with its attendant expense.

In my opinion the theory of this law is wrong. Outside of the workmen's compensation fund and the school fund, the state has no money to invest and its subdivisions have none at all for investment. The moneys are collected for current expenses and to allow the funds of the state treasury or those of the treasuries of any of the subdivisions to be placed outside of the respective treasuries on anything but practically certain liquid assets, such as municipal bonds which may be readily sold, is a serious mistake in policy. Public moneys are collected for current use—not for use in a few years hence.

Mortgages may be sold, sometimes, but it would undoubtedly develop the first time that we have a failure (and failures will come as they have in the past), that a large part of such security cannot be realized on at once, except at a sacrifice. The result would be that the subdivisions would have to issue bonds to tide them over while they are waiting for the mortgage securities to mature and then, after maturity, for foreclosure proceedings, in many instances, to be brought.

A great majority of the mortgages of today are payable in monthly installments. The collection of these by a going concern is not difficult, but if the concern failed then you, as state treasurer, would be compelled to take up these collections in any part of the state, in case the mortgage could not be sold for one hundred cents on the dollar. Another serious question which would present itself is the matter of handling these installment payments for even going concerns, as the mortgagee has a right to have the amount credited as it is paid, and the office force of your department would undoubtedly have to be increased to take care of this matter.

Valuations and good title are both matters of opinion and on the former, especially, opinion frequently varies widely. It is a matter of common observation that some institutions will loan on a supposed fifty per cent. valuation where others have declined to do so on the same property.

It should be the policy of the state to allow nothing to be taken as security for the deposit of public moneys except such securities as may be realized on with certainty at once. The state ought not to allow surety bonds to be accepted unless such company has made a deposit in Ohio which may be reached promptly. We now have pending in this office a claim upon a judgment against a foreign surety company as surety for public moneys and it will be necessary for this department to send a representative to Texas to bring another action in the courts to recover the money.

I think it would be quite appropriate to call this matter to the attention of the legislature.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS HAVE AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE FOR DRAGGING OF ROAD.

Sections 7060-1 to 7060-4, G. C., 103 O. L., 402, do not prohibit county commissioners from expending money for the repairs, including dragging of highways which other sections of the code place in their charge.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 8, 1915.

HON. F. C. GOODRICH, Prosecuting Attorney, Troy, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of March 4, 1915, in which you call my attention to sections 7060-1 to 7060-4, inclusive, of the General Code, found in 103 O. L., 402, and inquire whether or not these sections prohibit county commissioners from spending any money for the repair, including dragging, of highways which other sections of the Code place in their charge. You further state that some of the townships in Miami county have not made provisions in their tax levy to take care of all of the roads in these townships and that if these roads are maintained this year, it will be necessary for the county commissioners to act in the matter.

The act to which you refer is the township road dragging act, and section 7060-1, G. C., provides for the designation and compensation of the dragging superintendent. Section 7060-2 provides for the establishment of dragging districts and the purchase of road drags, prescribes a form for return cards and dragging records, and fixes the maximum compensation to be allowed for dragging and the time and method of paying the same. Section 7060-3 sets out in detail the duties of the dragging superintendent. Section 7060-4 provides a penalty for any violation of the dragging act, including neglect on the part of any township trustees to set aside the funds required by the act.

The township road dragging act does not expressly repeal any other sections of the General Code, and if it does operate to repeal any other sections or parts thereof, the repeal is by implication.

Repeals by implication are not favored and will not be indulged unless it is manifest that the legislature so intended.

The doctrine of implied repeal does not apply except where the inconsistency or repugnancy is such that the two provisions cannot stand as cumulative or concurrent rules of action. Raudebaugh v. State, 6 O. S., 307.

The repugnancy between the provisions of two statutes must be clearer and so contrary to each other that they cannot be reconciled in order to make the later operate as a repeal of the former. Cass v. Dillon, 2 O. S., 607.

If by fair and reasonable interpretation acts which are seemingly incompatible or contradictory, may be enforced and made to operate in harmony and without absurdity, both will be upheld and the later one will not be regarded as repealing the former by construction or intendment. Eggleston v. Harrison, 61 O. S., 397.

I am unable to say that there is such inconsistency or repugnancy between the law requiring the township trustees to provide for the dragging of certain roads in their respective townships and the laws giving county commissioners authority to act in the same matter that the two cannot stand as cumulative and concurrent provisions. On the other hand, I am of the opinion that by fair and reasonable interpretation the township road dragging law may be enforced and made to operate in harmony with other statutes in force at the time of its adoption.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that sections 7060-1 to 7060-4, inclusive, of the General Code, 103 O. L., 402, do not prohibit the county commissioners from expending money for the repair, including dragging, of highways which other sections of the Code place in their charge.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE LIQUOR LICENSING BOARD—EXCESS OF ACTUAL COSTS OF RECORDS BEFORE COUNTY BOARDS TO BE PAID INTO STATE TREASURY.

The state liquor licensing board is without authority to issue vouchers to reimburse persons who have heretofore made deposits in excess of actual costs of records of proceedings before county boards, requested by them, which excess was thereafter paid into the state treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 9, 1915.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In yours of February 20, 1915, you submit for opinion the following:

> "Please permit us to direct your attention to sections 30 and 39 of the Greenlund act (state liquor license law) and to advise you that under the provisions of these sections there have been remitted to the secretary of the state board from time to time by the various county boards certain sums of money, which have been by him deposited with the state treasurer as provided by law. Amounts have been remitted in numerous instances in excess of the actual cost of transcript, etc.
> "Will you kindly advise the state board whether it may lawfully issue its vouchers to reimburse the persons making deposits for the amount in excess of the actual cost in the various instances?"

Section 29 of the license law, 1261-44, G. C., (103 O. L., 227) provides for a hearing before a county board upon the rejection of an application for license and in cases when county boards are about to consider the revocation of a license.

Section 30 of the license law, 1261-45, G. C. (103 O. L., 229, provides as follows:

"At said hearing upon the deposit of such sum as the board may require, the said board shall, if requested at the beginning of the hearing by the applicant or licensee, or the attorney designated by complainants, heretofore provided for, preserve a record of the testimony with all the proceedings of the board therein. Such sum so deposited shall be transmitted to the state board in the same manner as the application fee heretofore provided."

Section 38 of the license law, 1261-53, G. C. (103 O. L., 233), provides for an appeal to the state board from final decisions of any county board in certain cases.

Section 39 of the license law, 1261-54, G. C., (103 O. L., 233) provides as follows:

"In all cases where appeal to the state board is provided, the county board shall, within five days after personal notice of its final action to the applicant or licensee, cause to be prepared a complete and true record of the proceedings, providing the applicant or licensee shall have requested the same within one day after the receipt of such notice, and shall have paid to the board the amount estimated by the board to be necessary to cover the cost of the same which amount shall be immediately transmitted to the secretary of the state board as provided herein for transmission of other fees paid to the county board. The said record shall thereupon be transmitted by the board forthwith to the state liquor licensing board."

The manifest purpose of the preservation of the record of testimony and proceedings as provided in 1261-45, G. C., and a preparation of a complete and true record of the proceedings as prescribed in 1261-54, G. C., as contemplated in such enactments is for use upon appeal as set forth in section 1261-53, G. C. An applicant or licensee, however, will be entitled to such record for any purpose satisfactory to himself upon the deposit or payment of the sums by law required.

It will be noted that by section 1261-45, G. C., it is provided that "upon the deposit of such sum as the board may require," the board shall preserve a record of the testimony and proceedings, while section 1261-54, G. C., provides that the county board shall cause to be prepared a complete and true record of the proceedings "providing * * * the applicant or licensee shall have paid to the board the amount estimated by the board to be necessary to cover the cost of the same." Without extended discussion, it is clear to my mind that the sole purpose of these provisions and object to be attained by the "payment" and "deposit" required are the satisfaction and discharge of the necessary and proper costs of the preparation and preservation of a record of the proceedings referred to. That is to say, the payment and deposit required to be made are in effect in either case solely for the purpose of securing the payment of the costs necessarily incident to the preservation and preparation of a record of the proceedings had before the county board.

In my view notwithstanding the difference in phraseology of sections 1261-45 and 1261-54, G. C., here referred to, when it is borne in mind that the above quoted provisions are founded upon the same reason, and are intended to attain the same end and no other, the conclusion that in effect and to every intent and purpose of this act they are identical in meaning is fully warranted. In other words, when a record of the proceedings and testimony is desired by the applicant or licensee, he is required to deposit with the county board at the time of making request therefor, such sum as the county board in the exercise of its discretion may then estimate to be sufficient to cover the costs of same.

Out of such deposit or payment, it is the duty of the county board to retain, as soon as the same is definitely ascertainable, the necessary and proper costs of the preservation or preparation of such record, as the case may be and, under the provisions of the sections above quoted, to transmit such costs of record to the secretary of the state board, which shall be "by him paid into the state treasury daily." (1261-61, G. C.)

Every purpose of the deposit then having been fully attained, the residue of such deposit, if any, should be by the county board repaid to the depositor. In the application of this view of the law, no part of the deposit to which the applicant or licensee may be entitled will reach the state treasury.

Coming to a consideration of those deposits in excess of the cost of the record which have already been paid into the treasury of state, it will be observed that they are clearly within the provisions of section 22 of article II of the constitution, and may not be drawn from the treasury, except in pursuance of a specific appropriation, made by law.

That part of the appropriation act of February 17, 1914, (104 O. L., 64), insofar as applicable hereto, is as follows:

> "There is hereby appropriated for the salaries, uses and purposes of the state liquor licensing board and the county liquor licensing boards the receipts and balances in the state liquor fund."

The "uses and purposes" therein referred to are confined to those expenditures from the state treasury which are by statute specifically authorized to be made by the state liquor licensing board and the county liquor licensing boards. Not only is there a lack of statutory authority for the payment of refunders from the state treasury in the cases referred to by you, but in my view of the law no occasion for such refunders was contemplated by the legislature.

I am, therefore, of opinion that any excess of deposits above actual costs of record which have heretofore been paid into the state treasury, may not be repaid to the depositors without further legislative authority therefor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS—LIQUIDATING DEPARTMENT—EMPLOYMENT OF EXPERT ACCOUNTANTS TO AUDIT AFFAIRS OF PARTICULAR BANK.

The superintendent of banks under sections 742 and 742-4, G. C., is authorized by and with the consent of the common pleas court of the county in which a bank in the process of liquidation is located, to employ expert accountants to audit and put in proper shape the affairs of such bank.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 9, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 3 requesting my opinion as follows:

"The liquidating division of this department has on its hands fourteen banks which are in the process of liquidation. The affairs of this department are in such a chaotic condition that in the judgment of the superintendent of banks a firm of expert accountants should be employed to audit its affairs and assist in putting it in such shape that the affairs of these banks may be disposed of in an economical and expeditious manner.

"It would appear from section 742-4 that the superintendent with the approval of the court, might employ such assistance, but before proceeding definitely in the matter we should like to have your advice."

Sections 742 and 742-4 of the General Code, are as follows:

"Section 742. Whenever in this act it is provided that the superintendent of banks may take possession of the property and business of any corporation, company, commercial bank, savings bank, safe deposit company, trust company or any combination of two or more of such classes of business or society for savings, or banking association, doing business under the provisions of the banking laws of this state, to liquidate its affairs, the superintendent of banks shall take possession of and administer the assets of such company or association as herein provided.

"The expenses incurred by the superintendent of banks in the liquidation of any bank in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall include the expenses of deputy or assistants, clerks and examiners employed in such liquidation, together with reasonable attorney fees for counsel employed by said superintendent of banks in the course of such liquidation. Such compensation of counsel, of deputies or assistants, clerks and examiners in the liquidation of any corporation, company, society or association, and all expenses of supervision and liquidation shall be fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such corporation, company, society or association was located on notice to such corporation, company, society or association. The expense of such liquidation shall be paid out of the property of such corporation, company, society or association in hands of said superintendent of banks, and such expenses shall be a valid charge against the property in the hands of said superintendent of banks and shall be paid first, in the order of priority."

Under the provisions of the two sections above quoted, the superintendent of banks has authority to employ such deputies, assistants, clerks and examiners as, in his discretion, may be necessary to carry on and complete the liquidation of any bank of which he has taken possession for that purpose.

Under section 742-4, the compensation of such employes must be fixed by the superintendent of banks subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county wherein said bank was located, and paid from the assets of the liquidating bank. This latter provision being evidently intended as a proper check upon and guard against excessive expenditures from the assets of such bank.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the superintendent of banks, if in his judgment it becomes necessary in the proper liquidation of any bank, may employ expert accountants to audit and put in proper shape the affairs of such bank. Inasmuch as the compensation for such employes must be fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such banking company, society or association was located, it follows that a separate and distinct contract of employment should be made by the superintendent of banks with the expert accountants, for their services in connection with each of the liquidating banks; and as the amount of compensation to be paid such accountants for their services rendered in respect to each bank, must be approved by the common pleas court of the county in which such bank is located, it necessarily follows that the approval of the common pleas court of the proper county should be first secured before the expert accountants are employed to audit the affairs of any particular bank.

From the language you have used in your request for an opinion, to wit: "The affairs of this department are in such chaotic condition that in the judgment of the superintendent of banks a firm of expert accountants should be employed to audit its affairs and assist in putting it in such shape that the affairs of these banks may be disposed of in an economical and expeditious manner." I take it that the chaotic condition has arisen in the administration of the affairs of the banks by the state rather than that the chaotic condition is due to the internal affairs of the respective banks. If this be true, while it would make no difference in the interpretation of the law as above set out, yet the fault being with the state's administration rather than with the respective banks, common justice would suggest that the state itself, being at fault, should bear this expense, or, at least, that the expense should come out of your department.

I think, therefore, that before you take the matter up with the various common pleas courts you should present it to the legislative committee now making an investigation of the banking department.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ELECTION OFFICERS—NO COMPENSATION FOR RETURNS TO BOARD IN SCHOOL ELECTIONS.

No compensation is authorized by law to be paid to election officers for making returns to the clerk of the board of education in school elections.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 9, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours of March 1, 1915, in which you submit for opinion the following:

> "What compensation, if any, is payable to the judge for services for making returns to the clerk of the board of education in school elections?"

Section 5120, General Code, provides as follows:

> "In school elections, the returns shall be made by the judges and clerks of each precinct to the clerk of the board of education of the district, not less than five days after the election. Such board shall canvass such returns at a meeting to be held on the second Monday after the election, and the result thereof shall be entered upon the records of the board."

Section 5043, General Code, provides:

> "The judge of elections called by the deputy state supervisors to receive and deliver ballots, poll books, tally sheets and other required papers, shall receive two dollars for such service, and, in addition thereto, mileage at the rate of five cents per mile to and from the county seat, if he lives one mile or more therefrom.

"The judge of elections carrying the returns to the deputy state supervisors, and the judge carrying the returns to the county or township clerk, or clerk or auditor of the municipality, shall receive like compensation.

"In cities where registration is required, the chairman selected at the meeting for organization shall receive one dollar for calling for the sealed package of ballots."

It is well settled that the compensation of public officers cannot be enlarged by implication beyond the terms or the statute.

Debolt v. Trustees, 7 O. S., 237.
Brundige v. Village, 62 O. S., 528.
State ex rel. Prosecuting Attorney, 66 O. S., 113.
Clerk v. Commissioners, 58 O. S., 107.
Eshelby v. Board of Education, 66 O. S., 71.

Since it will be readily observed that such duties as are imposed by the provisions of section 5120 of the General Code, above quoted, do not come within the terms of section 5043, General Code, it therefore follows that in the absence of express statutory provisions therefor, no compensation may be paid to election officers for the performance of the duties thereby imposed.

It may be difficult to suggest a satisfactory reason for the apparent discrimination by the legislature between the duty of carrying the election returns to the clerk of the board of education in one case and to the clerk of the township, or clerk or auditor of a municipality in another, but the reason or lack of reason for such discrimination is immaterial. The legislative expression alone will control.

Being unable to find any statutory authority therefor, in answer to your question I am of the opinion that no compensation may be paid to election officers for carrying the returns of school elections to the clerk of the board of education of the district.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

VILLAGE MAYOR—NO AUTHORITY TO APPOINT JUSTICE OF PEACE TO ACT AS MAYOR—DISTINCTION BETWEEN CITIES AND VILLAGES.

A village mayor has no authority to appoint a justice of the peace to act for him in criminal matters during his disability. Section 4549, G. C., applies to "cities" as distinguished from villages.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 9, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. John F. Ballinger, J., P., of Plain City, Ohio, asking for an opinion, and which letter is as follows:

"I had a conversation over the phone this afternoon regarding an appointment of the mayor this morning in appointing me substitute mayor to fill his office in criminal proceedings and enforcing the village ordinances during his sickness and up to the time he would be able to resume his duties. Section 4549 designates the power of mayors. Section 4544 refers to appointment of police justices, which I think has no relation to section 4549, but in this section they use the term city, but the Code definition says that the word city means either city or village. In the notations at the bottom of the section it refers you to village, and cites you to Volk v. Westerville, and brings you under section 4544, which puts a person at sea. Take Arrest and Prosecution Law Procedure Evidence Forms by Jay Ford Lanning, A. M., page 167. I take it for granted that the mayor has the authority to make the appointment and that same will hold good without said appointment being confirmed by the council. Kindly advise me as to the proper construction."

The inquiry is directed to the question of the authority of the mayor of the village to make the appointment under the provisions of section 4549, G. C., which, in part, is as follows:

"* * * in cities having no police judge, in the absence or during the disability of the mayor, he may designate a justice of the peace to perform his duties in criminal matters, which justice shall, during the time, have the same power and authority as the mayor."

The provision in section 4549 is specific in its reference to cities not only by the use of the word "cities" but is further qualified by the words "having no police judge."

It is my opinion, therefore, that section 4549 of the General Code does not apply to villages, and the mayor has no authority to proceed under its provisions as indicated in the letter, but should resort to the provisions of section 4544 of the General Code under the title "villages" and which is as follows:

"Upon the recommendation of the mayor, the council may, by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, appoint a justice of the peace, resident of the corporation, or if there be no such justice of the peace, another suitable person resident of the corporation or a justice of the peace for the township in which such corporation is situated, police justice, who shall, during the term of office of such mayor, unless removed on suggestion of such mayor by a two-thirds vote of all the members of the council, have concurrent jurisdiction of all prosecutions for violations of ordinances of the corporation with full power to hear and determine them, and shall have the same powers, perform the same duties, and be subject to the same responsibilities in all such cases as are prescribed by law, to be performed by and are conferred upon the mayors of such corporations. Any person so appointed police justice, other than a justice of the peace, shall take an oath of office and give bond in such sum for the faithful performance of his duties as the council may require."

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

"BLUE SKY LAW"—CONSTRUCTION OF THE WORD "DEALER" AS USED IN THE ACT.

Under subdivision "f" of section 6373-2, G. C., a company exchanging any part of the issue of stock for property not located in this state is a "dealer" and must secure a license from the commissioner of the "blue sky law."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 10, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 2, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "In your opinion can the Chestatee Dredging Company properly make the statement authorized by section 2, subdivision F, of the Ohio blue sky law and thus be relieved of the requirements of the law as to the license, etc.?
> "Under the facts as stated in their letter of February 24, copy of which is herewith enclosed, the attorney general's department has already furnished this department with a written opinion holding that an authorized issue of the capital stock of a corporation cannot be divided for the purpose of meeting the requirements of section 2, subdivision F, of the law."

Also, the enclosed copy of a letter to your department containing a statement of the facts involved, which letter is as follows:

> "We have your letter of February 23, in reply to ours of February 18, and again write you relative to the Chestatee Dredging Company, a corporation for profit organized for the purpose of dredging and mining for minerals, under the laws of the state of Ohio, with a common capital stock of $25,000.00.
> "It is the intention of this company to dispose of $16,500.00 of its capital stock directly to its stockholders by its own officers, without commission or expense and for cash, under and by virtue of section 6373-2, subdivision F, of the General Code, and statement for that purpose is herewith furnished.
> "It is the further desire of this company to purchase from one of its stockholdes certain rights, privileges and leases for mineral properties, a dredgeboat and equipments, located in the state of Georgia. These properties have been exploited and tested by this stockholder at a large expenditure, and since same have been tested, and satisfactory results obtained, the company is now satisfied that said properties are well worth the sum of $8,500.00 and desire to purchase the same at that price. The stockholder holding and owning said properties is willing to accept $8,500.00 in stock of this company in payment for said rights and privileges, or is willing to purchase $8,500.00 of the stock of the company and pay for the same, and to assign his rights in said properties to this company for the sum of $8,500.00. Under these circumstances is it necessary that the company register and be licensed as a dealer by your department to complete this arrangement? This is a very close corporation and all of the stockholders are fully acquainted with the facts and are satisfied with the arrangement, and while anxious to save the trouble and expense of registration and being licensed as a dealer if possible, yet they do not wish to violate the law in any way. We enclose you form No. 1 signed by the president and secretary of the company, statement covering the disposition of $16,500.00, and if under the circumstances heretofore reiterated, a statement covering the entire issue of $25,000.00 under form No. 1 would suffice, we will cheerfully furnish the same. If you will kindly advise us further as to what will be necessary to carry out this arrangement, we shall be obliged. Thanking you for your former prompt consideration of our inquiries, we are, * * *."

Section 6373-2 of the General Code (being section 2 of the Ohio blue sky law) is, in part, as follows:

"* * * The term 'dealer,' as used in this act, shall be deemed to include any person or company (except national banks) disposing, or offering to dispose, of any such security, through agents or otherwise, and any company engaged in the marketing or flotation of its own securities either directly or through agents or underwriters or any stock promotion scheme whatsoever, except: * * *

"(f) The issuer, organized under the laws of this state, where the disposal, in good faith and not for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of this act, is made for the sole account of the issuer, without any commission and at a total expense of not more than two percentum of the proceeds realized therefrom plus five hundred dollars and where no part of the issue to be disposed of is issued, directly or indirectly, in payment for patents, services, good will, or for property not located in this state; provided that the president and secretary, or the incorporators if done before organization, of the issuer shall, prior to such disposal, file with the 'commissioner' a written statement setting forth the existence of all such facts and that such issuer is formed for the purpose of doing business within this state. * * *"

If I properly understand the situation presented in the above quoted letter to your department, certain incorporators propose to organize a corporation under the laws of Ohio, to be known as The Chestatee Dredging Company, and having a total capital stock of $25,000.00. It is the intention of the company so oragnized to sell $16,500.00 of this stock directly to its stockholders for cash through its own officers and without selling commission or expense, and to exchange the remaining $8,500.00 of its stock for certain rights, privileges, leases for mineral lands and other properties located in the state of Georgia. I have assumed that this company is not yet incorporated and organized, otherwise it would not now have the total amount of its capital stock for disposal.

Under section 2 of the Ohio blue sky law, above quoted, a company engaged in the marketing or flotation of an issue of its own securities, which issues any part of such securities *"directly or indirectly in payment for * * * property not located in this state,"* is a "dealer" within the meaning of this statute, and must be licensed as such. The mere fact that the Chestatee Dredging Company's proposed total stock issue, to wit: $16,500.00 is to be sold in such manner and upon such terms as would relieve the company from the necessity of taking out a license if all of the said stock issue were to be sold in the same manner, will not relieve the company from the necessity of securing a license if the remainder of such issue is exchanged, directly or indirectly, for property not located within this state.

Whether or not any part of the company's stock is in a given instance issued directly or indirectly for property not located within the state is a question of fact to be determined as occasion may arise, and I do not believe it proper for me, as legal adviser to the various officers and departments of Ohio, to either approve or indicate a method of procedure whereby the provisions of any law of the state can safely be circumvented or evaded.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the Chestatee Dredging Company, in the event it issues, directly or indirectly, any portion of its capital stock mentioned in payment for any property not located in this state, is, by virtue of section 2 of the Ohio blue sky law, a "dealer" and as such must be licensed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE LIQUOR LICENSING BOARD—WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO MAKE REFUNDER OF APPLICANT'S FEES FOR TRANSFER OF LICENSES.

The state liquor licensing board is without authority to make refunders of fees of $5.00 collected from applicants for transfers of licenses which have heretofore been paid into the state treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 10, 1915.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have yours of March 3, 1915, in which you ask an opinion upon the question of whether or not your board may lawfully refund fees of $5.00 collected from applicants for transfers of licenses under section 1261-50, G. C. (103 O. L., 230), which have heretofore been collected and paid into the state treasury. These fees, as I understand, were voluntarily paid by numerous parties pursuant to an order or ruling of your board upon a mistaken interpretation of the section of the statute referred to above, and by your board paid into the state treasury.

These payments are not subject to the same rule of law as other statutory demands or obligations voluntarily paid under mistake of law and are not recoverable.

In McCarty v. City of Toledo, 11 C. C., 69, the court says:

> "We have held heretofore in this class of cases that where an assessment has been voluntarily paid in full by a property owner, an action to recover back the money so paid cannot be maintained; and we think that this doctrine is in plain conformity with the rules of law; the voluntary payment of a tax, although it was wrongfully laid, no steps having been taken to enforce payments, and no fraud or imposition having been practiced, the parties are thereby precluded from recovering back the money so paid."

In Hieatt v. Simpson, 12 C. C. (N. S.) 271, the court says:

> "The payment of taxes under mistake of law with full knowledge of the facts, cannot, when made voluntarily, be recovered."

It will also be further observed that these payments come within the reasoning of an opinion previously rendered by this department to your board upon the question of your authority to make refunders of payments and deposits made in excess of the actual costs of records of proceedings before county boards and your authority in this instance would be subject to the same limiations and restrictions as set forth in that opinion. That is to say, these funds now being in the state treasury, are subject to the provisions of section 22 of article 2 of the constitution of the state of Ohio, and may not now be drawn from the treasury except in pursuance of a specific appropriation made by law, and such refunders as are here referred to, do not come within the provisions of the appropriations for the uses and purposes of the liquor licensing board (104 O. L., 64) as follows:

> "There is hereby appropriated for the salaries, uses and purposes of state liquor licensing board and the county liquor licensing boards the receipts and balances in the state liquor fund."

For the reason above stated I am of the opinion that the fees above referred to which have heretofore been paid by you into the state treasury, may not now be refunded.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CONSENT OF OHIO BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION NECESSARY FOR ERECTION OF ELECTRICAL TRANSMISSION LINE ACROSS LAND OF ATHENS STATE HOSPITAL.

Under house bill No. 167 the consent of the Ohio board of administration is necessary for the location of an electrical transmission line across the land of Athens State Hospital.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 11, 1915.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—On March 2, 1915, you requested my opinion as to the rights of the board of administration under house bill No. 167 enacted by the present session of the general assembly and the facts stated by the enclosed letter from the chief clerk of Athens State Hospital.

House bill No. 167, which is an emergency act approved February 17, 1915, provides in part as follows:

> "Section 1. That the Hocking Power Company, its successors and assigns be given the right to enter in and upon such part or parts of said outlots No. 51 and 56 in said city of Athens and to construct, maintain and operate thereon an electrical transmission line consisting of poles, wires, cross arms, insulators and other material and equipment, that is be used for transmission line only and locate the same as may be agreed upon by said state board of administration and said the Hocking Power Company.

"Section 2. The state board of administration is also hereby empowered to convey such right or rights to said the Hocking Power Company, its successors and assigns by deed or other proper instrument in writing, said conveyance to be made in the name of the state by said board; provided, however, that such instrument shall contain a condition that the state of Ohio shall not be liable to any person for any injury that may result from the construction, maintenance or operation of said transmission line across said premises."

The chief clerk of the Athens State Hospital writes that before this bill was passed the Hocking Power Company, without leave or license, erected poles and on them strung wires across the farms of the Athens State Hospital at a point which, in the judgment of the hospital authorities, interfered considerably with the farming operations carried on by the hospital.

In my opinion the Hocking Power Company is now occupying state lands without any right whatever, and your board has the power, and it is its duty, to take such steps as may be necessary to have the poles and wires of the company removed from their present location unless that location be agreed upon between the board and the company as the best location in outlots Nos. 51 and 56 of such a transmission line as house bill No. 167 authorizes.

The company is entitled to a right of way under the law passed by the present session of the legislature and to have such right-of-way located in lots Nos. 51 and 56; but it is the right and duty of the board of administration to fix the precise location, in outlots Nos. 51 and 56, of the right-of-way. This the board of administration should proceed to do, and having done so should order the Hocking Power Company immediately to move its line of poles and wires to such location.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

REIMBURSEMENT OF LIVE STOCK OWNERS WHO HAVE SHIPPED ANIMALS FROM STATE WHICH ARE KILLED AT DESTINATION BECAUSE OF INFECTION OF HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE.

Owners of live stock shipped from Ohio to eastern markets and there killed, because of infection of hoof and mouth disease, may not be reimbursed for half the value thereof by the state of Ohio under sections 1115 and 1116, G. C., 103 O. L., 312.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 11, 1915.

The Agricultural Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have yours of March 5, 1915, in which you ask an opinion as follows:

"In number of cases live stock has been shipped from Ohio to eastern markets. Shippers complied with all requests such as disinfection of cars, inspection of stock and health certificates therefor. Upon arrival at desination point, animals were infected with foot and mouth diseases and slaughter made necessary.

"In such cases federal government pays one-half appraised value. Officials in charge in state where this slaughter occurs refuse to pay the other half, on the ground that shipment did not originate in their state and cattle were not owned by a citizen of that state.

"Our department has been asked whether under such circumstances the Ohio shipper could be compensated the same as he would be if the animals were condemned and slaughtered before they got out of Ohio."

The statutes of this state which are pertinent to your inquiry, are as follows (103 O. L., 312):

Section 1114. If, in order to prevent the spread of any dangerously contagious and infectious disease among the live stock of the state, the agricultural commission deems it necessary to destroy animals affected with or which have been exposed to dangerously contagious or infectious disease, it shall determine what animals shall be killed and appraise or cause to be appraised by disinterested citizens as provided by law. After being appraised, the commission shall cause such animals to be killed and their carcasses disposed of in such manner as it directs, but no animal shall be killed under the provisions of this section until it has been examined by a competent veterinarian in the employ of the commission, and the disease with which it is affected or to which it has been exposed adjudged a dangerous and contagious malady.

"Section 1115. If an animal is killed under the provisions herein relating to the agricultural commission, the compensation to be made for the slaughtered animal shall be computed on the basis of the actual value of such animal at the time of killing; for an animal that has been kept in the same building or enclosure, two-thirds of such value, and for any other animal, the full value of such animal without reference to the suspicion of contagion. No compensation, however, shall be made to a person who has brought animals into this state affected with such contagious disease, or from a district in which such contagious disease existed, or who has wilfully concealed the existence of such disease among his stock or on his premises, or who by wilful neglect or purposely has contributed to the spread of such contagion. In case of the destruction of a horse, mule, or ass affected with glanders or farcy, no compensation for it shall be made, if it was so diseased when it passed into possession of its owner. In appraising animals to be killed as hereinbefore provided, no allowance shall be made because such animals are thoroughbred or pedigreed stock.

"Section 1116. When approved by the agricultural commission all claims of owners of animals killed under the provisions herein relating to the commission shall be paid from funds appropriated by the general assembly for that purpose."

The primary purpose of the foregoing statutes is the prevention of the spread of dangerously contagious and infectious diseases among live stock of the state, as clearly stated in the first sentence of section 1114, G. C., above quoted, rather than the reimbursement of individuals for losses sustained by reason of such disease. It will also be borne in mind that public funds may be expended only for public purposes as distinguished from the protection of private individuals from pecuniary loss and that in no case may public moneys be expended without an express authorization of statute. In other words, every expenditure of public funds must come clearly within the terms of a statutory authority.

An examination of section 1114, G. C., will readily disclose express and positive requirements of certain conditions precedent to any authority for the destruction of animals.

First, it must be deemed necessary by the agricultural commission of this state to prevent the spread of some dangerously contagious and infectious diseases among the live stock of this state. Second, such animals must be affected with or have been exposed to a dangerously contagious or infectious disease. Third, the animals to be killed must be determined by the agricultural commission of this state. Fourth, the animals killed must have first been appraised by the agricultural commission of this state or caused by it to be appraised by disinterested citizens as provided by law. Fifth, animals killed must have been first examined by a competent veterinarian in the employe of the agricultural commission of this state and the disease with which it is affected or to which it has been exposed by him adjudged to be a dangerous and contagious malady.

Each and all of these several conditions are essential to the authority for the compensation of individuals for the slaughter of animals and none of them are met in your statement except that cattle belonging to citizens of this state were presumably adjudged by some one in another state to have been infected and consequently slaughtered.

Aside from the exceptions in section 1115, G. C., which bar certain classes of persons from compensation for animals, although within all the above provisions which are not referred to in your statement, I am of the opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that the agricultural commission is wholly unauthorized to compensate persons for animals slaughtered in another state, under the conditions and circumstances set forth in your statement.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ARMORY BOARD—UNAUTHORIZED TO COMPROMISE A SUBCONTRACTOR'S CLAIM AGAINST PRINCIPAL CONTRACTOR.

The state armory board is unauthorized to compromise a subcontractor's claim against the principal contractor of the Bucyrus Armory unless through appropriation made under the provisions of section 29, article II of the constitution.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 11, 1915.

HON. BYRON L. BABGAR, Secretary Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of March 6th, which is as follows:

> "I herewith have the honor to transmit copy of proceedings of the state armory board relative to the claims of creditors of the contractor who built the Bucyrus Armory. These claims are for material and labor furnished the armory and would have been liens had the armory been owned by any other person than the state.

"An opinion is requested as indicated by the resolution of February 27, 1915."

With your letter you enclose extracts from the minutes of the meetings of the armory board held on August 16, 1913, September 20, 1913, and February 27, 1915. The minutes of your meeting of February 27, 1915, are as follows:

"MEETING OF FEBRUARY 27, 1915.

"BUCYRUS ARMORY CREDITORS:

WHEREAS, On August 16, 1913, and September 20, 1913, the board attempted to make a partial payment to the Bucyrus Armory creditors in the nature of a compromise of their claims, and under an assignment of the contractors' claims, and,

"WHEREAS, In attempting to make said compromise, the board tried to adjust subcontractor's attempted liens which had been filed with due notice to the board and settle its right to counterclaims against said Bope, and,

"WHEREAS, At the time of attempting to make said compromise for $550.00 there was and still is due to the material men and laborers on the Bucyrus Armory under their subcontract with Contractor Bope, the sum of $2,146.11, and said creditors are all represented by Col. Vollrath to whom Bope's said claim was assigned, and

"WHEREAS, No compromise with or payment of said armory creditors' claims has been carried out or made, and the said contractor has gone through bankruptcy since said attempt to compromise said claims, against the state being paid in the aggregate sum of $2,146.11; and said claims are moral but not legal obligations of the state, and ought to be paid or adjusted and the said creditors have agreed to accept, through Attorney Col. Edward Vollrath, the sum of said $550.00 in full satisfaction of their said claims to said aggregate sum of $2,146.11, and said five hundred and fifty dollars represents the unexpended balance of the allowance legally made for the construction of said Bucyrus Armory; it is therefore unanimously,

"Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolution and of the minutes of the board meetings of August 16, and September 20, 1913, relative to Bucyrus Armory be, together, referred to the attorney general of Ohio with request for authority to pay said sum of $550.00 to said Edward Vollrath, attorney, provided same is accepted in full compromise and satisfaction of the said claims of said armory creditors.

"I hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct copy of a part of the minutes of the state armory board meeting of February 27, 1915.

"B. L. BARGAR, Secretary."

You ask to be advised as to whether or not the armory board is authorized to use the $550.00, which is the unexpended balance of the allowance legally made for the construction of the Bucyrus Armory, for the purpose of effecting compromise settlements with certain material men and laborers who were subcontractors under Contractor Bope, who had charge of the construction of the armory.

From the papers submitted it appears that Mr. Bope made an assignment of certain claims for expense which he had to Colonel, Edward Vollrath, who at this time is acting for all of the creditors, and who has agreed to the proposed compromise settlement,

Your attention is invited to the provisions of section 29 of article II of the constitution of the state of Ohio, which is as follows:

> "No extra compensation shall be made to any officer, public agent, or contractor, after the service shall have been rendered, or the contract entered into; nor shall any money be paid, on any claim, the subject-matter of which shall not have been provided for by pre-existing law, unless such compensation, or claim, be allowed by two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the general assembly."

In view of the fact that the claim which is being asserted by the subcontractors is not in any sense a legal claim against the state of Ohio, and in fact it is stated in the minutes of your meeting of February 27, 1915, that:

"said claims are moral but not legal obligations of the state,"

it is my opinion that there is no authority for the payment of the claims except by virtue of a special appropriation of the general assembly, the authority for which appropriation, if it be deemed expedient by the general assembly, being found in section 29 of article II of the constitution, quoted above; and the armory board is therefore precluded from effecting the compromise settlement in accordance with the provisions of the resolution adopted at the meeting of February 27, 1915.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

LORAIN CRIMINAL COURT IS A POLICE COURT.

The Lorain criminal court is essentially a police court within the meaning of the statutes, following case of State ex rel. McCarty v. Oberlin, auditor of Stark county court of appeals.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 11, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of January 19th, you submit for my opinion several questions relative to the disposition of moneys collected by way of fines by the judge of the Lorain criminal court. Your letter is as follows:

> "1. Should fines collected in prosecutions under state laws in ordinary criminal cases (misdemeanors) be paid to Lorain county, and if so, how often are such deposits required by law to be made?
> "2. If fines are collected in said court for violation of the local option laws, are they payable to the city or to the county?
> "3. If fines are collected for violation of the fish and game laws, what disposition should be made of same? Likewise, as to violation of the state pharmacy laws?"

You have advised me verbally that if it should be determined by this department that the Lorain criminal court is in contemplation of law a police court it would not be necessary for me to consider the questions which you have propounded, but that if it should be determined that the Lorain criminal court is not in contemplation of law a police court, you would like answered the various questions submitted.

You have further informed me that the reason you have requested the opinion is because my predecessor, Honorable Timothy S. Hogan, on November 24, 1913, rendered an opinion to your department wherein he held that the criminal court established in the city of Lorain, Lorain county, Ohio, (101 O. L., 385) was not a police court.

The reason given by Mr. Hogan in said opinion for so holding was that the criminal court so established in the city of Lorain had at that time jurisdiction solely within the limits of said city, whereas a police court under section 4577 had jurisdiction not only within the limits of the city, but within four miles thereof. In 103 O. L., 397, section 1 of the act establishing the Lorain criminal court was amended so that its jurisdiction was extended to "any misdemeanor committed within the limits of Lorain county." In 99 O. L., 607, the Canton criminal court was established, which court had jurisdiction solely within the limits of the city of Canton (See section 14696, G. C.) and such jurisdiction has not been subsequently enlarged. Subsequent to the rendition of the opinion relative to the Lorain criminal court by my predecessor, hereinbefore referred to, the court of appeals of Stark county in the case of State ex rel McCarty et al., as trustees of the Stark County Law Library Association v. Oberlin as Auditor of Stark County, held that:

> "the jurisdiction of the criminal court of the city of Canton, Ohio, as defined by the statutes creating it, makes the court essentially a police court within the meaning of the statutes; that all fines and penalties assessed in said court in prosecutions in the name of the state of Ohio, should be paid to the trustees of the law library association, as required by section 3056, G. C."

There is, however, a clear distinction now existing in the statutes between the Lorain criminal court and the Canton criminal court in this, to wit: The jurisdiction of the Lorain criminal court is co-extensive with the county, whereas the jurisdiction of the Canton criminal court is co-extensive with the city only. The jurisdiction of the Canton criminal court is less than the jurisdiction of the police court, under section 4577, G. C.

The court of appeals of Stark county did not comment upon the fact that the jurisdiction of the Canton criminal court territorially was less extensive than the jurisdiction of a police court so far as the opinion of said court shows, but it determined that since the jurisdiction of said court was essentially that of the police court they would so consider it for the purpose of determining the disposition of the fines.

It is to be noted that both the Canton criminal court and the Lorain criminal court have jurisdiction of offenses under ordinances of their respective cities and the jurisdiction of a court over offenses committed under the penal ordinances of a city is essentially the jurisdiction of a police court.

Since the court of appeals of Stark county has determined that the Canton criminal court is essentially a police court, although its jurisdiction is over less territory than that of a police court, I believe that the opinion in said case is applicable to the question at hand, although the jurisdiction of the Lorain criminal court is more extensive than that of a police court. There is nothing in the statutes creating said court that undertakes in any way to provide for the disposition of the fines assessed and collected in said court, and although the constitution of Ohio authorizes the legislature to establish special courts under the provision that it may establish such courts as it may deem necessary, nevertheless since there is a further provision in the constitution that all laws of a general nature shall have uniform operation, I do not believe that it was within the province of the legislature to undertake to make a special disposition of fines assessed in such cases as we have under consideration, but that the same must be dealt with by general law. Since the court of appeals, which is now in most cases the court of last resort, has determined that the Canton criminal court is, so far as the disposition of fines is concerned, to be considered as a police court, and since I am of the opinion that said opinion of said court of appeals is applicable to the Lorain criminal court, I have reached the conclusion that so far as the fines assessed and collected by the Lorain criminal court are concerned, they are to be disposed of in the same manner as if assessed by a police court.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EXPENSES ONLY OF THE CHAIRMAN OF SENATE AND HOUSE FINANCE COMMITTEES AS MEMBERS OF EMERGENCY BOARD CAN BE PAID—NO AUTHORITY TO EMPLOY CLERK FOR SUCH BOARD.

The only expenses allowed to be paid from appropriation for expenses of legislative committees for services on emergency board are expenses of the chairman of the senate and house committees, respectively, while engaged in their duties as such members.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 13, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of February 24, 1915, wherein you state:

> "For a number of years the custom has been for the chairman of the house finance committee to employ a clerk to keep the minutes and records of the emergency board, and said clerk has been paid for such service upon a voucher approved by the chairman of the house finance committee from the fund for expenses of legislative committees.
> "Will you kindly give me your opinion as to whether the chairman of the house finance committee has authority to employ a clerk and pay for the services upon vouchers approved by himself, payable from the appropriation for expenses of legislative committees?
> "I call your attention to section 2312, which provides:
> " 'There shall be an emergency board to consist of the governor, auditor of state, attorney general, chairman of the senate finance committee, and chairman of the house finance committee. The governor shall be president and the chairman of the house finance committee shall be secretary of the board. The secretary shall keep a complete record of all its proceedings. The necessary expenses of the chairman of the senate and house finance committees, while engaged in their duties as such members, shall be paid from the fund for expenses of legislative committees, upon itemized vouchers approved by themselves, and the auditor of state is hereby authorized to draw his warrants upon the treasurer of state therefor.'"

Section 2312 as set out in your letter is found in 103 Ohio Laws, 445, and is the only law that I have been able to discover which would bear in any way upon the subject. The only expenses which are allowed to be paid from the fund for expenses of legislative committees for services on the emergncy board are the expenses of the chairman of the senate and house finance committees while engaged in their duties "as such members."

There does not seem to be any provision of law for the payment of the expenses of the chairman of the house finance committee when acting as secretary. In view of such fact I am of the opinion that there is no authority in law for the chairman of the house finance committee to employ a clerk to keep the minutes and records of the emergency board, the services of the same to be paid for upon voucher approved by the chairman of the house finance committee from the fund for expenses of legislative committees.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PRESIDENT OF BOARD OF EDUCATION—INTERESTS IN COMPANY WHICH SELLS MATERIAL TO THE BOARD PROHIBITED UNDER SECTION 4757, G. C.—NOT CRIMINALLY LIABLE.

The president of a board of education who is also a director and stockholder of material company, which material company sells its material to the principal contractor dealing with said board of education, has such an interest in said contract as is prohibited by section 4757, G. C. No criminal penalty is attached to the violation of section 4857, G. C., but this section does affect the validity of contracts.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 13, 1915.

HON. ARCHER L. PHELPS, Prosecuting Attorney, Trumbull County, Warren, Ohio.
DEAR SIR:—Under date of March 3, 1915, you request my opinion, as follows:

"The board of education of Warren City School District has issued bonds in the sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) for the purpose of erecting four brick school houses in the city of Warren.

"After advertisement according to law, the contract for the labor and material for the buildings has been duly let. The contractor after having had submitted to him the bids of several brick companies for the furnishing of brick for the construction of these buildings, among them The Standard Brick Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, desires to award his contract for brick to said The Standard Brick Company, its price and quality of brick being more advantageous than the other bids.

"It now transpires that the president of the board of education of Warren City School District is also a stockholder and director in The Standard Brick Company. The question has been submitted to me as to whether or not the president of the board of education, as a stockholder and director in The Standard Brick Company would violate any criminal law of the state, should The Standard Brick Company furnish to the contractor for these four school buildings any part of the brick necessary in their construction.

"Section 12910 provides as follows: (Officer or agent interested in contracts) Whoever, holding an office of trust or profit by election or appointment, or as agent, servant or employe of such officer or of a board of such officers, is interested in a contract for the purchase of property, supplies or fire insurance for the use of the county, township, city, village, board of education or a public institution with which he is connected, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year and not more than ten years.

"In my opinion the foregoing is the only one that would apply to a situation of this kind, and if this transaction comes with the provisions of the above section, it would be by virtue of the language '* * * is interested in a contract for the purchase of property * * *.' Is the letting of a contract by a board of education for the building of four school houses a contract for the purchase of property within the meaning of this section?

"Inasmuch as this matter will likely be gone over by the state examiners later on, and inasmuch as the president of the board of education is desirous of keeping within the law, I will very greatly appreciate your opinion as to whether or not the president of the board of education would violate any law, or become in any way liable, should The Standard Brick Company sell brick to the contractor for these school buildings."

I call your attention to section 4757, General Code, governing boards of education, which provides, among other things, that:

"No member of the board shall have directly or indirectly any pecuniary interest in any contract of the board."

I am of the opinion, therefore, that if the bid of The Standard Brick Company should be accepted, the president of the board of education, as a director and stockholder of said brick company, would have such an interest in the contract of the board of education as is prohibited by the above provisions of section 4757 of the General Code. No criminal penalty is attached to the violation of section 4757. This section does, however, affect the validity of contracts.

In a letter under date of March 11th, Hon. Charles Fillius, president of the board of education, informs me that he is powerless to prevent the proposed action of the company in which he is a stockholder and director and that the company proposes to go ahead and sell the brick, having consulted attorneys who advised them that the company could collect from the contractor. As to the contract between the brick company and the contractor, that is a private matter and I shall not attempt to pass upon that.

The contract between the board of education and the principal contractor is a public matter and if the principal contractor, by some action of his own and with his eyes open, places himself to have performance or payment questioned, he assumes any risk that such action may involve.

Answering your question as to the application of section 12910, General Code: I am of the opinion that under the statement of facts you have submitted and assuming that the board of education has awarded the principal contract and has no control over the contractor as to where or of whom he shall or may buy the bricks, the president of the board of education would not be subject to prosecution under such section.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AN APPROVED BANK MAY SUBMIT TWO SEPARATE AND DISTINCT BIDS FOR STATE FUNDS WITH DIFFERENT RATES OF INTEREST AND FOR DIFFERENT AMOUNTS.

Under the state depository act, sections 328, et seq., an approved bank may submit two separate and unconditional bids for state funds, one of which offers a certain rate of interest for a given amount of deposit, and the other a lower rate of interest for another amount of deposit.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 13, 1915.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio..

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 12, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

"The following question has been submitted to me:

"'Will a bank be permitted to bid on state funds at different rates for different amounts?

"'For illustration: Can a bank bid on, say $50,000.00 at a rate of 3.85 per cent. and $50,000.00 at 3.50 per cent., and if their capital stock is $100,000.00, would they be allowed the full $100,000.00 at the different rates, or will only one bid be recognized and that the largest?'

"As bids will be opened on Monday, March 15, at 1 p. m., your immediate reply is requested so I can advise the bankers presenting this question."

The public depository act relative to state funds is found in sections 321, et seq., of the General Code. Sections 328, 329, 330-1, 330-2 and 330-4 of the General Code, provide as follows:

"Section 328. All awards for the deposit of state funds shall be made upon competitive bidding; bids shall be received by the treasurer of state every two years, beginning between one o'clock p. m., on the first Monday in March and closing at one p. m. on the third Monday in March, 1911, and every two years thereafter.

"Section 329. Each bid shall state whether it is for an active or inactive deposit, amount bid for and rate of interest, and must be accompanied by an application and shall be sealed and plainly marked on the outside 'bid for deposit.' Beginning at one o'clock p. m., on the third Monday in March of each bidding period the bids shall be opened by the treasurer of state at his office in the presence of the public; all bids shall be preserved and be open to public inspection at all times.

"Section 330-1. No bank or trust company shall have on deposit at any one time more than its paid in capital stock and in no event more than three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000.00) as an inactive deposit.

"Section 330-2. The treasurer of state may withdraw any or all of the state funds on deposit for the purpose of paying the appropriations and the obligations of the state; when necessary to withdraw funds from the inactive depositories it shall be withdrawn from the banks and trust companies paying the lowest rates of interest and in proportional amounts as near as practicable.

"Section 330-4. Said banks and trust companies shall also file with the treasurer of state demand certificates of deposit in an amount equal to the total amount of the deposit and specify rate of interest to be paid. Said certificates shall be signed by the cashier or a duly authorized officer of said bank or trust company."

I assume that the bank presenting the form of bid described in your letter has been regularly approved and qualified as a state depository.

There seems to be no provisions of the state depository act which denies to a bank the right to submit two separate and distinct bids, or prevents the treasurer of state from accepting the same, provided they are separable and unconditional. Section 329 of the General Code provides that "each bid shall state whether it is for an active or inactive deposit, amount bid for and rate of interest." It may easily occur that a bank be willing to pay a higher rate of interest for a deposit of funds up to a certain amount than for funds in excess of that amount. The two bids must be unconditional, and should be considered as separate and distinct bids, in awarding funds under section 330, and also in withdrawing funds under section 330-2. For example: if the interest rate bid by any other approved bank is between the high and low bid of the bank submitting two bids, the bid of such other bank should be accepted before the low bid of the bank of two bids. Also, in withdrawing funds under section 330-2, the funds awarded a two-bid bank upon its lower bid should be withdrawn before funds are withdrawn from a bank whose interest bid is higher than the lower rate offered by such bank submitting two bids.

As there is nothing in the depository act which prevents certain banks from being depositories of both active and inactive funds, it follows, that if an approved bank, which has been designated by the treasurer of state as an active depository, desires to bid for both active and inactive funds, it must of necessity submit two bids, which in all probability will offer a different rate of interest for the two kinds of funds.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that a bank, which has been approved as a public depository of state funds, may submit two separate bids, one of which offers a certain rate of interest for a given amount of deposit and the other a lower rate of interest for another amount of deposit. Each bid, however, should be separate, unconditional, and complete in itself, and the statutory limitation as to the amount of deposits which the bank may be awarded should be taken into consideration in awarding funds, preference being given to the bid offering the higher rate.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PURCHASE OF BITUMINOUS COAL FOR STATE INSTITUTIONS FROM OHIO MINES UNDER AUTHORITY OF HOUSE BILL NO. 350 IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

House bill No. 350 relating to the purchase of bituminous coal for state institutions is not unconstitutional.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 15, 1915.

HON. EDWARD F. BOHM, Secretary Committee on State and Economic Betterment, House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your valued favor of March 12, 1915, which is as follows:

> "I take the liberty of enclosing copy of house bill No. 350, Mr. Whitacre, referred to the committee on state and economic betterment. At the committee meeting of March 10, 1915, the question of violation of the provisions of federal and state constitutions was raised and it was decided by unanimous vote that the attorney general be requested at his earliest convenience to render an opinion on these phases to the committee.
> "Thanking you in advance for the courtesy, I remain, etc."

With your letter you enclose copy of house bill No. 350 introduced in the 81st general assembly by Mr. Whitacre, which bill is as follows:

"A BILL

"Relating to the purchase of bituminous coal for the state institutions.

"Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Ohio:

"Section 1. The Ohio board of administration and other purchasing agents of the state of Ohio, in making purchases of bituminous coal for the use of public institutions committed to their care, including those institutions enumerated in section 1835 of the General Code, shall confine such purchases, wherever possible, to coal produced from mines operated in the state of Ohio; and contracts in such cases shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder proposing to furnish such coal."

I have examined the various provisions of the United States and the Ohio constitutions and it is my opinion that house bill No. 350, if enacted into law, will not contravene any of the provisions of the United States constitution nor the constitution of the state of Ohio.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS MAY WITHHOLD CERTIFICATE ENTITLING BANK TO COMMENCE BUSINESS.

The superintendent of banks, in the exercise of the discretion conferred upon him by section 9721, G. C., may withhold a certificate entitling a bank to commence business.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 15, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 3, 1915, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "Would you advise us if under section 9721, the superintendent of banks can withhold a certificate entitling a bank to do business.
> "The Ohio Bankers' Association are very much interested in this matter, and if in your opinion the superintendent cannot withhold a certificate, they wish to offer some amendment to the present law that will permit him to do so."

Section 9720 of the General Code, provides the method of procedure to be followed by a corporation organized under the laws of Ohio as a commercial bank, savings bank, safe deposit company, trust company or for two or more or all of such classes of business in order to secure a certificate from the superintendent of banks authorizing it to commence business, and is as follows:

> "Section 9720. When a certificate is transmitted to the superintendent of banks, signed by the president, secretary or treasurer of such corporation, notifying him that the entire capital stock of such corporation is subscribed, that fifty per cent. thereof has been duly paid in, and that such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to be done before it can be authorized to commence business, the superintendent of banks shall examine into its affairs, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each director, the amount of capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith, and whether such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to entitle it to engage in business."

Section 9721 of the General Code is relative to the duties and authority of the superintendent of banks in issuing such certificate, and is as follows:

> "Section 9721. If upon such examination of the facts referred to in section 9720, and of any other facts which may come to the knowledge of the superintendent of banks, whether by means of a special commission appointed by him for the purpose of inquiring into the condition of such corporation or otherwise, the superintendent of banks finds that such corporation is lawfully entitled to commence business, he shall give it a certificate under his hand and official seal that it has complied with all of the provisions required by law, and is authorized to commence business. But the superintendent may withhold such certificate when he has reason to believe that the stockholders have formed such corporation for any other purpose than the legitimate business herein contemplated, or that the character and general fitness of the persons named as stockholders in the certificate are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which such bank is proposed to be located, or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment. If the superintendent of banks withholds a certificate for any of the reasons named in this section an appeal may be made to a board composed of the governor, attorney general and superintendent of banks whose decision shall be final."

After a showing has been made to the superintendent of banks in the first instance that all the statutory requirements relative to the incorporation, organization, subscription to and payment for stock have been complied with by a banking company, the superintendent of banks may nevertheless in his discretion, by virtue of the second sentence of section 9721, above quoted, refuse a certificate to such banking company when he has reason to believe: first, "that the stockholders have formed such corporation for any other purpose than the legitimate business herein contemplated" or, second, "that the character and general fitness of the persons named as stockholders in the certificate are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which such bank is proposed to be located." or, third, "that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment."

The provisions of section 9721, G. C., referred to in your inquiry, and above considered, apply only to any company incorporated under Ohio law

"to establish a commercial bank, a savings bank, a safe deposit company, a trust company, or to establish as a company having departments for two or more, or all of such classes of business (G. C. 9702)."

Section 744-3 of the General Code, conferring like discretion and power upon the superintendent of banks, relative to licensing any "corporation not organized under the laws of this state, or of the United States, or person, partnership or association," is as follows:

"If upon examination of the facts which may come to the knowledge of the superintendent of banks, whether by means of a special commission appointed by him for the purpose of inquiring into the conditions of such applicants or otherwise, the superintendent of banks finds that such person or firm is lawfully entitled to commence business, he shall give a certificate under his hand and official seal that they or he have complied with the law, and are authorized to commence business. But the superintendent of banks may withhold such certificate when he has reason to believe that such person or firm has been formed for any other purpose than the legitimate business herein contemplated, or that the character and general fitness of the person or firm named in the application are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which such bank is proposed to be located, or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment. If the superintendent of banks withholds a certificate for any of the reasons named in this section, an appeal may be made to a board composed of the governor, attorney general and superintendent of banks, whose decision shall be final."

The discretion conferred by the provisions of sections 9721 and 744-3, above quoted, is very broad, and I am of the opinion that the superintendent of banks, in the exercise of the discretion reposed in him by the language therein, may withhold a certificate entitling any bank, whether a person, association or corporation, to do business. An abuse of discretion on the part of the superintendent of banks is guarded against by the provisions of the last sentences of sections 9721 and 744-3, respectively, wherein the right is given an applicant, which is refused a certificate, to appeal to a board composed of the governor, the attorney general and the superintendent of banks, whose decision shall be final.

In giving my opinion on the question submitted, I have not assumed to pass upon the constitutional power of the general assembly to confer upon the superintendent of banks the discretionary authority of withholding from a bank (especially a bank to be operated by an individual or partnership) a license to commence business upon the ground that "the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment." If this constitutional power is conceded, this statute has taken a long step toward making the business of banking a monopolistic privilege or franchise. The legislative intent and policy is plain, however, and I believe the question of the constitutionality of the statute should be left to the determination of the courts.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SCHOOL LANDS, IN SECTION 16 OF ORIGINALLY SURVEYED TOWNSHIP, NOT AUTHORIZED TO PAY SHARE OF COST OF ESTABLISHING COUNTY DITCH—SCHOOL LANDS NOT HELD IN PERMANENT LEASE SUBJECT TO REVALUATION MAY BE ASSESSED FOR ESTABLISHING COUNTY DITCH THROUGH LANDS.

Township trustees are not authorized under section 3197, G. C., to pay a proportionate share of the cost of establishing a county ditch through, and which is of benefit to, school lands in section 16 of the originally surveyed township.

Lands in school section 16 which have been sold or are held under a permanent lease subject to revaluation as unimproved land every thirty-three years, may be assessed, under the rule of benefits, to pay a proportionate part of the cost and expense of establishing a county ditch through said lands.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 17, 1915.

HON. FRANK L. JOHNSON, Prosecuting Attorney, Xenia, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of February 10, 1915, you state that certain school lands in section 16 of the original surveyed township, among other lands, will be drained and benefited by a contemplated county ditch, which the county commissioners of Green county propose to establish and construct in Beaver Creek township in said county, and that such school land will be benefited as much, as and more than, any other land along said ditch. You call my attention to section 3197 of the General Code, and ask whether or not the township trustees of Beaver Creek township can pay the proportionate share of the cost of said improvement.

Under date of February 25, 1915, in reply to my request for further information, you state that said school section 16 originally contained 643 acres, all of which has been sold, with the exception of 153 acres comprising the northwest quarter of said school section; that the 153 acres were, on September 14, 1822, leased to John Nimerick for 99 years renewable forever; the leased land being subject to revaluation every 33 years; that appraisements were made in 1855 and 1888, and a third reappraisement will be made in 1921; that J. J. Johannes is the present owner of the lease, having held the same for about forty years, and that the present annual rental is $246.00.

Under date of March 8th, you enclose me a copy of the 99 year lease of said 153 acres to John Nimerick, and state that the 1822 appraisement was $404.00, the 1855 appraisement was $4,465.00, and the 1888 appraisement was $4,100.00. The lease recites that it was given under authority of an act of the Ohio legislature passed January 27, 1817, and recites in part:

> "* * * we, the trustees as aforesaid have proceeded to survey and lay off said section 16 * * *. and grant permanent leases thereon for the term of 99 years, renewable forever, subject to a revaluation of the soil, or as unimproved land of the same quality and having the same natural advantages, every 33 years, have granted, leased, and let to farm * * *."

Section 3197 of the General Code to which you call my attention is as follows:

> "The trustees may provide for improvements on the school lands in the lease or leases by which they are rented, or they may make up such improvements directly. Where such improvements are made directly by the trustees, when in their judgment they are necessary, and the estimate or probable cost thereof exceeds one hundred dollars, they shall advertise for bids for the period of at least twenty days, by posting notices in four of the most public places in the township, and the contract for making such improvement shall be awarded to, and made with the person or persons who offer to make such improvement at the lowest price. But a good and sufficient bond shall be executed and delivered to the trustees, as such trustees, conditioned for the honest and faithful performance of such improvement."

This section authorizes the trustees to either provide for improvements upon school lands in leases by which they are rented, or that they shall make such improvements directly. The section was enacted long after the execution of the lease for the 153 acres of school lands under consideration. Its apparent intent was to confer certain discretionary authority upon the township trustees in event that they thereafter executed a lease of school land, and it apparently applies only to such limited term leases as are provided for in the preceding section of the General Code (section 3196).

Whether or not said section 3197, G. C., confers any authority upon the township trustees relative to land held under permanent lease, it is unnecessary here to decide. It certainly gives them no authority—either specifically or impliedly, to pay or donate to the county commissioners the proportionate part of the cost of any improvement upon or through the school land in question, even though in the opinion of the trustees such improvement may be necessary or of material benefit to the land.

In no statute are the trustees authorized to contribute toward the cost of a county ditch established and constructed through school lands; neither can such school lands be assessed in the name of the township trustees. (Poock, Treas., et al., v. Ely, 4 C. C. 41.)

Answering the specific question asked by you, therefore, I am of the opinion that the township trustees cannot pay a proportionate part of the cost of the county ditch referred to, and since all of section 16 which composed the school lands of said township have either been sold or permanently leased, the board of education of the district interested cannot under the provisions of section 6510 of the General Code pay any assessment which might be levied upon the land by the county commissioners.

Going beyond the specific question asked by you, I have considered the question of whether the cost of said county ditch may be assessed by the county commissioners directly upon school lands composing said section 16 and such assessments collected from the owners and the lessees thereof. As to the portion of school section 16 which has been sold under authority of law, there can be no doubt of question, and I am of the opinion that the same can be assessed and such assessments collected from the present owner under the same authority and to the same extent as upon other lands. These school lands were conveyed by the state in fee simple and the title thereof is of the same character as the title to lands generally.

Your letter, and the copy of the lease referred to, discloses that the 153 acre tract (being all of said school section 16 which has not heretofore been sold) is held under a 99 year lease, renewable forever, with an annual rental of 6 per cent. upon the land valuation, the lease containing a provision for a revaluation every 33 years. This valuation provision is peculiar and significant in that only the soil is to be revalued, viz.:

> "* * * subject to a revaluation of the soil or as unimproved land of the same quality and having the same natural advantages. * * *"

No improvement placed on the land can be considered in fixing the valuation upon which the rental is based, therefore the tenant is not obliged to pay rental for any improvement constructed by him or at his expense.

Section 8597 of the General Code provides:

> "Permanent leasehold estates, renewable forever, shall be subject to the same law of descent as estates in fee are subject to by the provisions of this chapter."

Section 11655 of the General Code provides:

> "Lands and tenements, including vested interest therein, permanent leasehold estates renewable forever, and goods and chattels, not exempt by law, shall be subject to the payment of debts, and liable to be taken on execution and sold as hereinafter provided."

Section 5742 of the General Code provides for the sale, etc., for taxes, of lands under permanent leases.

Under section 3221 of the General Code the holder of a permanent lease may surrender his lease and purchase the property upon written conditions and terms, one of the conditions being that the value placed on the land for purchase purposes shall not include the value of improvements upon the land.

In Lowering v. Melendy, et al., 11 Ohio, page 358, the court says:

> "We therefore declare that permanent leasehold estates are land, subject to all the rules and laws which attach to all lands for all purposes, and that judgment liens attach to them as land."

In the case of the Village of St. Bernard v. Kemper, 60 O. S., 244, the second branch of the syllabus reads as follows:

"The lessee in possession under a lease of real property for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, the property standing in his name for taxation, is so far the owner of such property as to authorize him to subscribe a petition for street improvements under section 2272, Revised Statutes; and in such case the signature of the lessor to such petition is not required in order to authorize an assessment against the corpus of such property."

In the case of Elison v. Foster, 19 O. D., (N. P.), page 853, appears the following:

"It must therefore be manifest that this lease is a perpetual or permanent leasehold estate and subject to all the burdens and entitled to the respect and reverence that attach to fee simple estates."

Section 5330 of the General Code provides as follows:

"All lands held under lease for a term exceeding fifteen years, and not subject to revaluation, belonging to the state, a municipal corporation, religious, scientific or benevolent society or institution, whether incorporated or unincorporated, or to trustees for free education only, and school and ministerial lands, shall be considered for all purposes of taxation as the property of the person or persons holding them, and shall be assessed in their names."

From the principles laid down in the numerous decisions of the courts, as well as by inference from the sections of the General Code above quoted, it follows that the owner of a 99 year lease, renewable forever, upon school lands in Ohio is to be considered as the general owner of the land, at least to the extent of authorizing the imposition and collection of an assessment for the construction of a local improvement, which, although enhancing the value of the property, cannot under the terms of the said lease be taken into consideration in arriving at a proper revaluation of the land for rental fixing purposes.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that that part of school section 16 mentioned in your letter, which has been sold and conveyed in fee simple may be assessed for local improvements as other land, and that the 153 acres in said section which are held under permanent lease may be assessed in the name of the owner of such leasehold estate, subject to the rule of benefits, for the cost and expense of establishing a county ditch through said lands.

Since the county commissioners may levy an assessment upon any of said school lands for the construction of the ditch referred to in your question and collect the same from owners and permanent lessees, all necessity or reason for a contribution by the township trustees toward the cost of such ditch is removed.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General

OFFICE SUPPLIES, ETC., FURNISHED TO COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS SHOULD BE PAID OUT OF COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION FUND.

Bills for office supplies, stationery, etc., furnished to the county superintendent of schools, should be approved by the county board of education and paid out of the county board of education fund on the warrant of the county auditor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 17, 1915.

HON. A. L. DUFF, Prosecuting Attorney, Port Clinton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter under date of March 1, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

> "The county board of education has presented to the county auditor, certain bills for office supplies, stationery, etc. Are these bills to be presented to the county commissioners for their approval, or are the same to be submitted to the auditor and paid by him out of the board of education fund?
> "The county superintendent has a letter from the state school superintendent stating that all such bills should be paid out of the board of education fund, after such bills had been approved by the county board of education. I do not see any authority for such a ruling as this. I am of the opinion that all of these bills should be paid out only upon the approval of the county commissioners.
> "I wish you would let me know of any ruling that has been made in your department relative to such bills."

While section 4744-6 of the General Code, as amended in 104 O. L., page 143, provides:

> "The county commissioners of each county shall provide and furnish offices in the county seat for the use of the county superintendent;"

I do not consider that this provision of the statute authorizes the payment of bills for stationery, telephone services and other expenses incident to the clerical work of the office of the county superintendent, out of the general county fund upon the approval of the county commissioners.

I am aware of the fact that bills for office supplies furnished to the various county offices are allowed by the county commissioners and paid out of the general expense fund of the county and that this is done with the approval of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, although there is no statutory provision specifically authorizing the same.

I call your attention to section 4684, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., p. 133, which provides:

> "Each county, exclusive of the territory embraced in any city school district and the territory in any village school district exempted from the supervision of the county board of education by the provisions of sections 4688 and 4688-1, and the territory detached for school purposes, and including the territory attached to it for school purposes, shall constitute a county school district. In each case where any village or rural school district is situated in more than one county such district shall become a part of the county school district in which the greatest part of the territory of such village or rural district is situated."

You will observe that a county school district as defined by the above provision of statute, is not co-extensive with the county as a political subdivision of the state.

Answering your question, I am of the opinion that in the absence of an express provision of the statute authorizing the payment of bills for office supplies, stationery, etc., furnished to the county superintendent of schools, out of the general expense fund of the county upon the approval of the county commissioners, such bills should be approved by the county board of education and paid out of the county board of education fund on the warrant of the county auditor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

LEVY OF TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES TO PROVIDE A ROAD REPAIR FUND CANNOT BE MADE UPON ALL TAXABLE PROPERTY OF TOWNSHIP INCLUDING PROPERTY WITHIN CORPORATE LIMITS OF VILLAGE—OFFICES OF VILLAGE CLERK AND CLERK OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS ARE INCOMPATIBLE.

1. A levy of the trustees of a township, under authority of section 7014, G. C., to provide a repair fund for roads in a township, including a road running into a village within the township, improved under authority of sections 6976, et seq., G. C., must be made upon all the taxable property within the corporate limits of said village.

2. The offices of village clerk and clerk of the board of trustees of public affairs of a village are incompatible and may not be held by the same person.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 17, 1915.

HON. T. B. JARVIS, Prosecuting Attorney, Richland County, Mansfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to reply to your letter under date of March 6, 1915, which is as follows:

"Yesterday the township trustees of Sharon township, Richland county, called on me for a reason why the village of Shelby was excluded in the tax levy from Sharon township for the repairing of certain macadamized roads.

"It seems that several years ago a vote was had and all the legislation regular under section 6976, General Code; bonds were issued and the election held as the chapter requires, but when it came to asking for a levy to keep this road in repair, the levy was made only in the township outside of the village of Shelby.

"While my construction of the statute would be, referring to section 7014, that the levy should have been made on the entire taxable property of the township, including the village of Shelby. The valuation in Sharon township, including the village, is over $7,000,000, while the valuation of the property outside of the village corporation is about $1,500,000.

"The auditor of this county told us that the only reason he knew why the levy was not made for the whole property was that a certain examiner, while here last year, told him it was illegal; that the village could not be held for any part of the expense of repairing this road, although the road runs into the town, and, perhaps, some of it was repaired within the town, and the town voted for the bonds and the improvement originally and until this time have been paying on the bonds. But for the repairs the levy was not made. Will you please give me your opinion with reference to this matter?

"Second. Section 4357 of the General Code with reference to the board of trustees of public affairs shows when a board shall be established. Section 4360 indicates the way the organization of the board shall be effected, and you will note by this section that this board may elect a clerk who shall be known as the clerk of the trustees of public affairs. It so happens in this case that the clerk of the village elected by the people, was also selected by the board of trustees of the public affairs as the clerk of this body. The treasurer has been informed by some attorney that if he honors the warrants of the clerk of the village he cannot honor the warrants of the clerk of this board of trustees; that these offices are incompatible. He says that Attorney Hogan rendered such an opinion some time last summer. I do not have his opinion, but at this time cannot see why there is any inconsistency in the two offices.

"Will you please report at an early date whether the clerk of the village and the clerk of the board of trustees of public affairs under said section, may be the same person?"

Replying to your first question, I understand from your statement of facts that some years ago certain roads in Sharon township, including a road running into the village of Shelby, within said township, were improved by the trustees of said township under the provisions of section 6976, et seq., of the General Code; that said improvements were made in conformity with all the requirements of said statute; that after said improvements were made the trustees of said township determined to provide a fund for keeping said improved roads in repair and to make an annual tax levy for this purpose, under authority of section 7014 of the General Code, which provides:

> "To provide a fund for the keeping in repair of such improved roads and streets the trustees of the township may levy annually an amount not to exceed one-half of one mill upon each dollar of the valuation of all the taxable property in such township in addition to other road taxes by them levied," but that said levy was made only upon the valuation of taxable property within said township outside of the corporate limits of the village of Shelby.

You will observe that under the provisions of section 7014, General Code, above quoted, this levy for the repair fund for said improved roads is to be made "upon each dollar of the valuation of all the taxable property in such township."

I am of the opinion that the levy referred to in your inquiry, should have been made upon all the taxable property in Sharon township, including the taxable property within the corporate limits of the village of Shelby.

While, according to your statement of facts, the auditor of Richland county informed you that one of the state examiners advised him that the levy on all the taxable property in Sharon township, including the village of Shelby, would be illegal, I find, on investigation, that on May 26, 1914, Mr. E. N. Halbedel, of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, addressed a letter to Mr. E. J. Ott, state examiner, in care of county auditor, Mansfield, Ohio, in answer to a letter from Mr. Ott under date of May 18th, in which this same question was asked, and Mr. Ott was advised that "the levy must be made upon all the taxable property of the township, including that of the corporation or municipality within it."

Replying to your second question, permit me to say that upon careful search of the files in this office I am unable to find an opinion rendered by my predecessor, Mr. Hogan, holding that the office of village clerk is incompatible with the office of clerk of the board of trustees of public affairs of the village.

I call your attention to section 4280, General Code, relating to the power and duties of the clerk of the village, which provides:

> "The clerk shall attend all meetings of the council and keep a record of its proceedings and of all rules, by-laws, resolutions and ordinances passed or adopted, which shall be subject to the inspection of all persons interested. In case of the absence of the clerk, the council shall appoint one of its members to perform his duties for the time."

Section 4281, General Code, provides:

> "The clerk shall keep the books of the village, exhibit accurate statements of all moneys received and expended and of all property owned by the village and the income derived therefrom and of all taxes and assessments."

The provisions of section 4283, et seq., of the General Code, relate to the duties of the auditor of a city and, insofar as applicable, to the duties of the clerk of a village. Section 4283, General Code, provides:

> "In the following provisions of this chapter, the word 'city' shall include 'village,' and the word 'auditor' shall include 'clerk.'"

Section 4284, General Code, provides:

> "At the end of each fiscal year, or oftener if required by council, the auditor shall examine and audit the accounts of all officers and departments. He shall prescribe the form of accounts and reports to be rendered to his department, and the form and method of keeping accounts by all other departments, and, subject to the powers and duties of the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, shall have the inspection and revision thereof. * * *"

Section 4286, General Code, provides in part as follows:

> "On the first Monday in each month statements of the receipts and expenditures of the several officers and departments for the preceding month shall be made to the auditor by the heads thereof. * * *"

Under the above sections the village clerk is vested with power to examine and audit the accounts of all officers or departments of the village government.

The authority to establish a board of trustees of public affairs is found in section 4357, General Code, which provides:

"In each village in which waterworks, an electric light plant, artificial or natural gas plant, or other similar public utility is situated, or when council orders waterworks, an electric light plant, natural or artificial gas plant or other similar public utility, to be constructed, or to be leased or purchased from any individual, company or corporation, council shall establish at such time a board of trustees of public affairs for the village, which shall consist of three members, residents of the village, who shall be each elected for a term of two years."

Section 4360, General Code, provides:

"The board of trustees of public affairs shall organize by electing one of its members president. It may elect a clerk, who shall be known as the clerk of the board of trustees of public affairs."

Section 4361, General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 561, provides:

"The board of trustees of public affairs shall manage, conduct and control the waterworks, electric light plants, artificial or natural gas plants, or other similar public utilities, furnish supplies of water, electricity or gas, collect all water, electrical and gas rents, and appoint necessary officers, employes and agents. The board of trustees of public affairs may make such by-laws and regulations as it may deem necessary for the safe, economical and efficient management and protection of such works, plants and public utilities. Such by-laws and regulations when not repugnant to the ordinances, to the constitution or to the laws of the state, shall have the same validity as ordinances. For the purpose of paying the expenses of conducting and managing such waterworks, plants and public utilities, of making necessary additions thereto and extensions thereof, and of making necessary repairs thereon, such trustees may assess a water, light, power, gas or utility rent, of sufficient amount, in such manner as they deem most equitable, upon all tenements and premises supplied with water, light, power or gas, and, when such rents are not paid, such trustees may certify the same over to the auditor of the county in which such village is located to be placed on the duplicate and collect as other village taxes or may collect the same by actions at law in the name of the village. The board of trustees of public affairs shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as are possessed by, and are incumbent upon, the director of public service as provided in sections 3955, 3959, 3960, 3961, 3964, 3965, 3974, 3981, 4328, 4329, 4330, 4331, 4332, 4333 and 4334 of the General Code, and all powers and duties relating to waterworks in any of these sections shall extend to and include electric light, power and gas plants and such other similar public utilities, and such boards shall have such other duties as may be prescribed by law or ordinance not inconsistent herewith."

You will observe that the powers and duties of the board of trustees of public affairs in a village are similar to the powers and duties of the director of public service in a city. You inquire whether it would be permissive for the village clerk to hold the office of clerk of said board of trustees. The statutes do not cover this case and the question arises whether the common law holds these two offices incompatible. The test under common law is as follows:

> "Offices are considered incompatible when one is subordinate or in any way a check upon the other, or when it is physically impossible for one person to discharge the duties of both. State ex rel. Attorney General v. Gebert, 12 O. C. R. N. S., 274."

The latter element is eliminated from this case, inasmuch as the duties of both offices might be discharged by the same person. The only question to be disposed of is as to whether one office acts as a check on the other.

It is the duty of the village clerk, acting as the auditor for the village, to examine the accounts of the board of trustees of public affairs, guard against overdrafts on appropriations, prepare detailed statements of receipts and expenditures, etc., in conformity with the requirements of section 4284, et seq., of the General Code, as above set forth. In other words, the clerk of the village is required to audit the books of said board of trustees and the office of the village clerk, therefore, acts as a check upon the office of the clerk of the board of trustees of public affairs of the village.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that the two offices are incompatible as measured by the common law test and may not be held by the same person.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICIAL BOND EXECUTED BY A SURETY COMPANY—SATISFIES REQUIREMENT OF STATUTE WHEN LANGUAGE STATES "SURETIES" OR "TWO OR MORE SURETIES."

When the language of the General Code requires "sureties" or "two or more sureties" on an official bond, a bond executed by a surety company as sole surety complies with the requirements of the statutes by virtue of the provisions of section 9571, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 18, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your communication of March 12, 1915, in which you request my opinion on the following question, to wit:

> "When the language of the General Code requires 'sureties' or 'two or more sureties' on an official bond, will a bond signed by a surety company comply with the provisions of the law?"

This question is answered in the affirmative by the provisions of section 9571, G. C., which section reads as follows:

> "When a bond, recognizance or undertaking is required or permitted by law, with one or more sureties, its execution or the guaranteeing thereof, as the case may be, as sole surety, by a company authorized to guarantee the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, to guarantee the performance of contracts other than insurance policies, and to execute and guarantee bonds and undertakings in actions or proceedings or by law allowed is sufficient, and when so executed and guaranteed, shall be a full compliance with every requirement of law, ordinance, rule or regulation that such bond, or recognizance must be executed and guaranteed by one surety or two or more sureties, or that such sureties, shall be residents or householders or freeholders."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY SURVEYOR NOT ENTITLED TO PAY FOR SERVICES PERFORMED FOR COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The county surveyor is not entitled to remuneration for services performed under section 4736, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 18, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of February 2, 1915, you inquire as follows:

> "Section 4736 of the General Code provides that county boards of education, in changing boundary lines and other work of like nature, shall ask the assistance of the county surveyor, and that official is required by the section to perform the service. From what fund, if any, shall the surveyor be paid, and what amount?"

The county board of education was first created by the laws enacted at the first extraordinary session of the 80th general assembly. The fund under the control of the county board of education is created from the following sources. First: the surplus transferable from the dog tax fund under section 5653 of the General Code, 104 O. L., 145, which surplus it is provided shall be transferred "to the county board of education fund at the direction of the county commissioners." Another source for such fund is to be found in section 4744-3, 104 O. L., 143, which provides as follows:

> "The county auditor when making his semi-annual apportionment of the school funds to the various village and rural school districts shall retain the amounts necessary to pay such portion of the salaries of the county and district superintendents as may be certified by the county board. Such amount shall be placed in a separate fund to be known as the 'county board of education fund.' The county board of education shall certify under oath to the state auditor the amount due from the state as its share of the salaries of the county and district superintendents of such county school district for the next six months. Upon receipt by the state auditor of such certificate, he shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer in favor of the county treasurer for the required amount, which shall be placed by the county auditor in the county board of education fund."

A third source of said fund is found in section 7820, 104 O. L., being fees collected from applicants for examination by the board of county school examiners.

Section 4734, 104 O. L., 137, provides that

"each member of the county board of education shall be paid his actual and necessary expenses incurred during his attendance upon any meeting of the board. Such expenses, and the expense of the county superintendent, itemized and verified shall be paid from the county board of education fund upon vouchers signed by the president of the board."

Section 4744-1, 104 O. L., 142, provides that the salary of the county superintendent shall be fixed by the county board of education, and shall be paid out of the county board of education fund and further that "the county board may also allow the county superintendent a sum not to exceed three hundred dollars per annum for traveling expenses and clerical help."

Section 7860, 104 O. L., 186, provides that the expense of conducting the county teachers' institute,

"shall be paid out of the county board of education fund upon the order of the president of the county board of education."

Section 4736 referred to in your inquiry is found in 104 O. L., 138. Said section authorizes the county board of education to make certain changes in boundary lines and further provides:

"in changing boundary lines and other work of like nature of the county board shall ask the assistance of the county surveyor and the latter is hereby required to give the services of his office at the formal request of the county board."

I have read the statutes in vain to find any specific provision therein that authorizes the county board to pay the county surveyor for the services performed by him under section 4736. Under familiar rules of statutory construction unless there is provision made by statute for the payment of a public servant for services performed for the public, the rendition of such services is regarded as a gratuity, or as being compensated by the fees, privileges and emoluments accruing to such officer in the matter pertaining to his office.

Clark v. Commissioners, 58 O. S., 107.
Jones v. Commissioners, 57 O. S., 189.

and as a settled rule of law it can be stated that laws providing for compensation of public officials are strictly construed and compensation is only allowed where clearly expressed.

State ex rel. v. Culbertson, 6 N. P. (n. s.) 311.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the county board of education is without authority to pay the county surveyor for services performed under section 4736, there being no specific provision of law authorizing such payment.

In this connection I desire to call attention to the peculiar language of section 4736. Said section provides in part as follows:

> "In changing boundary lines and other work of like nature the county board shall ask the assistance of the county surveyor and the latter is hereby required to give the services of his office at the formal request of the county board."

The fact that the section provides that the county surveyor is required to give the services and the further fact that there is no specific provision of law for the payment of such services indicates to me that the legislature intended that the services performed by the county surveyor under section 4736 were to be performed without compensation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

RECEIPTS OF OHIO STATE SANATORIUM WHEN PAID INTO STATE TREASURY GO TO A SPECIAL FUND—UNEXPENDED BALANCE LAPSES INTO SPECIAL FUND, NOT INTO GENERAL REVENUE FUND.

Receipts of The Ohio State Sanatorium received under section 2072, G. C., when paid into the state treasury go to a special fund and therefore moneys appropriated out of such fund unexpended at the close of business February 15, 1915, lapse back into such fund and not into the general revenue fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 18, 1915.

Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of March 8th, you write as follows:

> "I beg to acknowledge receipt of your opinion under date of March 5th, in reply to my request of March 3rd advising this department in regard to receipts at The Ohio State Sanatorium.
> "At the close of business February 15, 1915, there was a balance in the personal service fund for the Ohio board of administration of $14,305.50, of which $12,459.97 covered receipts from The Ohio State Sanatorium which had been credited to the personal service fund in compliance with the appropriation bill (104 O. L., p. 64).
> "Will you please advise as to whether this balance of $12,459.97 should revert to the general revenue fund or to the credit of The Ohio State Sanatorium?"

Under date of March 6th, we rendered an opinion to your department wherein we held that the moneys received under section 2072, General Code, when paid into the treasury under the provisions of amended section 24, 104 O. L., 178, were to be kept separate and apart from the moneys paid in to the credit of the general revenue fund, for the reason that the moneys received under section 2072 were by virtue thereof impressed with a trust to be used solely for the purposes specified in such section. Such being the case, although there was not created in the state treasury a fund specifically named as the state sanatorium fund, yet in fact such a fund should be set up and all moneys paid in should be credited thereto. In view of such holding the $12,459.97, which you state were from receipts from The Ohio State Sanatorium should lapse back into such fund and not to the general revenue fund.

We are aware that heretofore it has been the custom of the legislature to appropriate all funds out of the general revenue fund and not take cognizance of the special fund in the state treasury. That custom, however, has been set aside in the recent appropriation bill passed to cover the period from February 15, 1915, to July 1, 1915, so that hereafter appropriations will be made so far as the various funds will warrant from the special funds in the state treasury. In view of this fact the amount of money which is appropriated to the Ohio board of administration for maintenance of the state sanatorium will come from the special state sanatorium fund so far as there are moneys in such fund to cover the amount of the appropriation for said sanatorium.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FUNDS APPROPRIATED FOR MAINTAINING AND EXHIBITING LIVE STOCK, AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS, ETC., AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION CANNOT BE USED FOR EXHIBIT TRAIN TO AND FRO.

Funds appropriated for the purpose of installing, maintaining and exhibiting live stock, agricultural products, resources and opportunities of the state of Ohio at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco, cannot be used for the purpose of defraying the expenses of running an exhibit train from Ohio to San Francisco and return, making an exhibit of live stock and agricultural products at stations between such points.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 19, 1915.

The Ohio Commission to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of March 18, 1915, requesting my opinion, which letter is as follows:

> "Can the appropriation or any part thereof made for the purpose of having an agricultural and livestock exhibit at the P.P. I. E. be used toward defraying the expenses of running an exhibit train from here to San Francisco and return, making an exhibit of livestock and agricultural products at stations between here and San Francisco, where said exposition is being held?"

Appropriations for the purpose of paying expenses of the Ohio exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition were made by H. B. 425, found in 101 O. L., page 216, H. B. No. 8 found in 104 O. L., p. 5, H. B. No. 53, found in 104 O. L., p. 211, and H. B. 314, passed by the 81st general assembly. I quote from H. B. No. 53 for the reason that it refers specifically to an exhibit of livestock and agricultural products, and the language of the other appropriation laws above mentioned can only be construed to mean the same. The portion of H. B. No. 53, so far as it is applicable to your question, is as follows:

> "Exposition commissioner for the purpose of installing, maintaining and exhibiting the livestock, agricultural products, resources and opportunities of this state at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in the year 1915, $25,000."

The appropriation therefore being specifically limited to "the purpose of installing and maintaining an exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco," your question must be answered in the negative, and such funds cannot be used toward defraying the expenses of running an exhibit train from here to San Francisco and return, making an exhibit of livestock and agricultural products at other places.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CONDITION IN DEED OF CONVEYANCE RESTRICTING THE SALE OF BEER UPON PREMISES TO THAT BREWED BY THE GRANTOR DOES NOT GIVE TO GRANTOR SUCH INTEREST AS WILL NECESSITATE REVOCATION OF SALOON LICENSE BY THIRD PARTY.

A condition in a deed of conveyance restricting the sale of beer upon the premises to that brewed by the grantor exclusively does not give to the grantor such an interest in the business of conducting a saloon on the premises by a third party under a saloon license as will authorize the revocation of such saloon license under section 9 of article XV of the constitution of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 19, 1915.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have yours of March 5th, requesting an opinion as follows:

> "Will you kindly advise the state board whether it is the duty of a county board to revoke the saloon license of a licensee for the reason that a brewing company has an interest in the license of said licensee in violation of article 15, section 9 of the constitution, under the following state of facts:
> "A brewery company was the owner of a certain parcel of land and on the 5th day of June, 1914, sold and conveyed said premises to John and Martha Doe. The deed thus conveying said premises contains the following stipulation:
> "'It is made a condition of this deed and covenant running with the land that in case the said premises are used for the sale of intoxicating liquors that the beer brewed by said grantor shall be sold on said premises exclusively, bottled beer excepted, for the period of five (5) years next ensuing.'

"A saloon is now being conducted on said premises by one Dick Rowe under a license issued by the county board. Said brewery company now insists on the provisions of the deed as above quoted being carried out by said licensee. Said company has, under an order of the court, restrained said licensee from handling on said premises keg beer brewed by any other person or company and said company is now furnishing to said licensee the keg beer brewed by it for exclusive sale on said premises?"

The answer to your question turns upon whether or not the grantor in the deed of conveyance to the grantee of the premises by reason of the condition and covenant contained therein as above quoted, thereby acquires any interest or such an interest in the business of the lessee who is now conducting a saloon upon the premises, as comes within the terms of the provision of the constitution and the like provision of the liquor license law, as follows:

"License shall not be granted to any applicant who is in any way interested in the business conducted at any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold or kept for sale as a beverage nor shall such license be granted unless the applicant or applicants are the only persons in any way pecuniarily interested in the business for which the license is sought and no other person shall be in any way interested therein during the continuance of the license; if such interest of such person shall appear, the license shall be deemed revoked."

In the case of Sandusky Brewing Company v. Joseph Demke et al., 9 Ohio C. C. Rep. (n. s.) page 130, decided by the circuit court of Cuyahoga county, it was held:

"The condition in a mortgage, given to a brewing company for a sum of money advanced by it to enable the mortgagor to build a saloon upon the mortgaged premises, that the mortgagor shall not, for a period of twelve years, sell upon the mortgaged premises any beer, ale or porter except that manufactured by the mortgagee, is founded upon a valuable consideration, is not against public policy as in restraint of trade, and may be enforced by injunction to prevent the sale on the premises of other brews than that of the mortgagee."

In the case of Diehl Brewing Co. v. Louis A. Konst, decided by the circuit court of Putman county, 12 Ohio C. C. Rep., (n. s.) 577, and affirmed in 79 O. S., 469, it was said:

"2. The lessee of premises leased on condition that only beer manufactured by the lessor shall be sold on the premises, may be enjoined from a repudiation of his agreement not to sell other beer.

"3. A provision in a lease whereby the lessee engages to sell no beer on the leased premises other than that manufactured by the lessor, in nowise affects the public and is not invalid as in restraint of trade or in violation of the Valentine anti-trust law."

Those cases were both decided prior to the adoption of article 15, section 9 of the constitution, as above quoted. The question submitted by you, however, was passed upon in the case of Kopac Zowski v. The Huber Toledo Breweries Co., by the court of appeals of Lucas county, in which the court says:

> "We are not able to see how the transaction set forth in the petition is in any way in conflict with the language above quoted. No license to sell intoxicating liquors on the premises in question has been granted to the brewing company, nor is the brewing company interested in the license which has been granted, nor in the business conducted on the premises. The only relation set forth in the pleading is one showing that the defendants are, and are required to be for a limited period of time, customers of the plaintiff in the event that they sell beer on the premises. If the contention in this respect of the defendant, Szparagowski, were correct, it would follow that his own license to conduct the business on the premises should be revoked. Of course, a brewing company is naturally interested in the success of its customers but that interest is no different in a legal sense in this case from the interest which it has in the success of other customers. The fact that the brewing company is to furnish the entire supply of draught beer sold by the defendants does not give that company an interest in the business any more than an electric light company which supplied light for the saloon or a water company which supplied water, or a gas company which heated the saloon, would have an interest in the business there conducted. It is not such an interest as is within the inhibition of that section of the constitution from which quotation has been made."

I am not aware that this question has been considered by any other court of this state since the adoption of the constitutional provision above quoted. I am, therefore, of opinion that a license may not be deemed to be revoked by reason of the facts stated in your request.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER—HAS AUTHORITY TO LINE TUNNEL OF INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAY—HOW PAID.

The state highway commissioner, acting under an application by county commissioners, has authority to line a tunnel on the route of an inter-county highway under process of construction, and to pay the state's portion of the cost and expense from the state highway fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 19, 1915.

HON. JAMES R. MARKER, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of March 1, 1915, in which you state that on March 21, 1913, the state of Ohio in co-operation with Lawrence county, let a contract for building a section of the inter-county highway No. 404, Ironton-Miller road, Lawrence county, which section begins with the corporation line of the city of Ironton and extends eastward therefrom about one mile. This contract is now nearing completion, a delay having been caused by the contractor making an assignment.

At the corporation line of the city of Ironton on the said road is a tunnel extending on either side of the corporation line a distance of about seventy-five feet. The city of Ironton has recently let a contract for lining that portion of the tunnel within the city limits. The portion of the tunnel without the city limits and which is situated on the said road is dangerous to the public because of the roof of the tunnel disintegrating which causes rock to drop quite frequently therefrom. It is therefore very essential that this portion of the tunnel be lined with concrete or other material as is provided for by the city for the portion within the city limits. The contract for the building of the road, let March 21, 1913, was let under the old state highway law under which the state was no party to the contract for improving or constructing bridges. This contract did not provide for any improvement whatever on the tunnel but did provide for the improvement of the road surface in the tunnel.

You now inquire as to whose duty or authority it is to pay for the improvement of lining said tunnel. Your question also involves a consideration of the proposition of whether the state highway commissioner, if authorized to make said improvement, is also required to make it, or whether the making of the improvement is optional with him. You also inquire whether the improvement, if made by the state highway commissioner, should be paid for from the maintenance and repair fund or from the state highway fund.

The sections relating to the state highway department are silent with reference to the construction and repair of tunnels and any authority to repair the same must, if it exists, be inferred from other powers expressly granted. Under the law as it existed at the time of the letting of the contract in question, it was necessary for the officials making application to provide the requisite right of way and it was required that the cost of all bridges and culverts should be paid from the county bridge fund. All the remaining expense was divided in the first instance between the state and the county, the state paying not more than half. Any expense especially incurred by reason of the existence of a tunnel is closely analogous to the expense incurred in grading a highway; cuts, fills and tunnels all being designed to eliminate steep grades. There would have been no doubt about the authority of the state highway commissioner in the first instance to participate in making an improvement which would have involved the removal of that part of the roof of the tunneling over the section of inter-county highway to be improved. Such a removal would have amounted merely to making a deep cut and would have been clearly within the authority of the state highway commissioner. The reason for a cut and for a tunnel being the same, I am of the opinion that the state highway commissioner in the first instance might have included in the original plans and specifications for the improvement of the Ironton-Miller road a plan for lining that portion of the tunnel outside the city of Ironton, and upon proper action by the commissioners of Lawrence county would have been authorized to pay the state's portion of such cost.

It appears that the contract for the improvement of the road in question has not yet been completed. This being true, the state highway commissioner would not have authority under section 1225 G. C., 103 O. L., 459, to line the tunnel in question and pay the cost thereof from the maintenance and repair fund.

I am of the opinion that under the state of facts suggested by you, the lining of the tunnel is to be regarded as a separate and distinct improvement of an inter-county highway which may be undertaken by the state highway commissioner upon the application in the usual manner of the county commissioners. If the state highway commissioner approves the application, he shall make the necessary plans, specifications and estimates and transmit copies thereof to the county commissioners. Upon the commissioners adopting a resolution that the improvement be made, the highway commissioner is authorized to proceed according to law to make the same, and to pay from the state highway fund the state's portion of the cost and expense as defined and limited by section 1207 G. C.

Answering specifically the questions propounded by you as to your authority to undertake the improvement of lining the tunnel in question, it is my opinion that you have the authority to make the improvement upon the application of the county commissioners, said authority being a necessary incident of the powers expressly granted to you; that the question of whether or not you shall exercise this authority rests in your discretion, being dependent upon your approval of the application; and that if you do undertake the improvement the state's portion of the cost and expense should be paid from the state highway fund.

The above statement is subject to the modification that if the county commissioners do not make use of the apportionment of Lawrence county, as provided in section 1185 G. C., then you would be authorized to make this improvement, either by contract or force account and pay the full cost thereof from any apportionment due Lawrence county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—SHOULD NOT NOW ATTEMPT TO ISSUE BONDS FOR COUNTY EXPERIMENT FARM UNDER VOTE TAKEN IN 1910.

County commissioners should not now attempt to issue bonds for the purpose of purchasing a county experiment farm under a vote taken in 1910 where no action has been taken in the matter for about three years.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 20, 1915.

HON. GEORGE THORNBURG, Prosecuting Attorney, St. Clairsville, Ohio.
DEAR SIR:—On March 3, 1915, you wrote me as follows:

> "In 1910, under authority of section 1165-3 of the General Code, a vote was taken in Belmont county for the establishment of an experiment farm, which vote resulted in a majority of the voters favoring the purchase of a farm. Since that time an attempt has been made on one or two occasions to select a farm but without success. In volume 103, page 436, of Ohio laws, an amendment was made providing the manner for raising the money and selecting the farm. Belmont county now desires to take up the matter and purchase the farm, and the county commissioners are not satisfied that they have the right to purchase the farm under the vote taken in 1910."

On March 6, 1915, in response to my request for further information, you wrote me the following:

> "Replying to your letter of March 5th, I will say that about three years ago the county commissioners levied a tax for the purpose of raising money to purchase an experiment farm. They were about to issue the bonds, but a difference of opinion arose as to the selection of a farm and the matter was dropped, and nothing has been done since. In the experiment farm fund there is now a balance of $1,219.00, but no levy was made for it last year.

"The question that we are particularly anxious to have answered is:

"Can we purchase a farm under the old vote or will it be necessary for the county to again vote on the subject before we can issue the bonds and purchase the farm?"

As indicated by you, a substantial amendment of the law relating to county experiment farms was made by the legislature in 1913, the amendment being found in 103 O. L., 436. Those changes in the law which are especially germane to the present inquiry are found in sections 1165-6 and 1165-7 G. C.

Under the provisions of section 1165-6, as that section stood at the time of the election in Belmont county, the proceeds of the bond sale were required to be deposited in the county treasury, to be applied by the commissioners to the purchase and equipment of a county experiment farm. Under the provisions of this section, as it now stands, and taking into consideration the fact that the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station has been abolished by other legislation, and its duties cast upon the agricultural commission of Ohio, the proceeds of the bond sale must be deposited in the county treasury subject to the order of the agricultural commission of Ohio, to be applied by said agricultural commission to the purchase and equipment of a county experiment farm.

Under the provisions of section 1165-7, as that section stood at the time of the election in Belmont county, it was the duty of the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station to visit the county and assist in the selection of a farm, but no farm could be purchased except with the approval of a majority of said board of control and also a majority of the board of county commissioners. Under this section as it now stands, it is the duty of the agricultural commission to visit the county and select the farm, and the county commissioners or other local officials are stripped of all power and authority in this particular.

It will thus be seen that since the election was held in Belmont county there has been a very substantial change in the law relating to the selection and purchase of the farm. Under the law as it stood at the time of the election, a majority of the county commissioners had the power to prevent the purchase of a farm which did not meet with their approval. Under the law as it now stands, neither the county commissioners nor any other local official or officials have any voice in the selection or purchase of the farm, the entire authority in that direction being lodged in the state commission. It might well be that the electors of Belmont county would be willing to authorize an expenditure of public money for a farm, in case local officials were to have a voice in its selection, and unwilling to authorize such expenditure in case the farm were to be selected without giving local officials any voice in the matter. While the proceeds of the bond issue are still to be devoted to the same purpose, yet a radical change has been made in the machinery provided for the selection and purchase of the farm, and in the absence of any other consideration, this change would raise a serious question as to the right to proceed under the vote had in 1910.

From your statement of facts it also appears that there has been in effect an abandonment of the original proposition of establishing a county experiment farm in Belmont county. The commissioners were about to issue the bonds, but a difference of opinion arose as to the selection of a farm and the matter was dropped, and nothing has been done since the commissioners made a tax levy about three years ago. In view of the lapse of over four years since the vote was taken, and the intervening change in the law, and the further fact that there has been a practical abandonment of the proposition of establishing a county experiment farm in Belmont county through failure to take any action whatever in the premises for about three years, I advise you that the county commissioners of Belmont county should not now attempt to issue bonds under the vote taken in 1910.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FINES COLLECTED UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 12965, G. C., ARE NOT TO BE PAID OUT TO INFORMERS.

No part of the fines collected under the provision of section 12965, G. C., is to be paid as informers' fees.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 20, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Department of Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—This office is in receipt of a request for an opinion as to the disposition of the fines collected under the provisions of section 12965 of the General Code, which deals with parties convicted of the unlawful sale of cigarettes. The request is contained in a letter from the clerk of the criminal court of Canton, Ohio, which is as follows:

> "Will you kindly inform me as to section 12965 of the General Code, relative to the division of the fine in case where an officer of the police department furnishes information leading to the conviction of parties engaged in the unlawful sale of cigarettes?
> "The case in question is one in which an officer furnishes the information which he obtained in the evening while off duty.
> "The conviction resulted, and defendant was fined fifty dollars and costs. Is the officer entitled to half the fine?
> "Kindly give me this information at your earliest convenience, for which I thank you in advance."

An examination of the statutes fails to disclose any provision of law relating to informers in connection with the section mentioned—12965—and the clerk of the court is evidently confusing the case under consideration with those coming under the provisions of sections 12680 and 5899 of the General Code, which provide for the payment of informers' fees in cases relating to other branches of the cigarette laws.

I am of the opinion therefore that there is no authority for the payment of any part of the fine either to an officer or anyone else who may have secured the information leading up to the conviction.

A copy of this opinion has been forwarded to Mr. Ross H. Hurford, clerk of the criminal court, Canton, Ohio.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS SHALL MAKE ALLOWANCE TO SHERIFF FOR NECESSARY EXPENSES COVERING REPAIR ON AUTOMOBILES WHEN SAME IS USED IN DISCHARGING OFFICIAL DUTIES —NO AUTHORITY TO ERECT GARAGE ON JAIL YARD.

Under section 2997, G. C., county commissioners shall make an allowance to the sheriff for actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in paying for repairs on his automobile and in keeping it in good condition, only when said machine is used by him in the discharge of his official duties.

There is no authority in law for the county commissioners to erect a garage on the jail yard in which the machine owned by the sheriff and used by him in the discharge of his official duties might be kept.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 20, 1915.

HON. CHARLES L. BERMONT, Prosecuting Attorney, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter under date of March 8, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

> "I desire to submit for your opinion the following:
> "The sheriff of Knox county owns his automobile and is using the same for the transaction of county business. How far under section 2997, G. C., may the commissioners go in the maintenance of this machine and may the commissioners legally erect a building on the jail yard in which to keep said machine?"

Section 2997, G. C., provides in part as follows:

> "In addition to the compensation and salary herein provided, the county commissioners shall make allowances quarterly to each sheriff for * * * and all expenses of maintaining horses and vehicles necessary to the proper administration of the duties of his office."

In the case of State ex rel. Sartain, as sheriff of Franklin county, Ohio v. Sayre, as auditor, etc., et al., Judge Rathmell of the court of common pleas of said county held that the word "vehicles" as used in the above statute, includes automobiles.

The county commissioners may, therefore, make an allowance to the sheriff for the expenses of maintaining his automobile when used in the proper administration of the duties of his office. The answer to your question calls for a definition of the word "maintaining" as above used.

In the case of State ex rel. Denormandie v. Commissioners of Mahoning County, 10 Ohio Cir. Ct. (n. s.) page 398, the court in construing the above section defined the word "maintaining" as follows:

> "The meaning of the word 'maintaining' as used in this section, in reference to horses and vehicles, means supporting; sustaining; keeping up; supplying with the necessaries of life; and the legislature, therefore, in this provision only meant and intended that sheriffs should be allowed the necessary expense incurred in supporting, sustaining and supplying their horses with the necessaries of life and in keeping their vehicles in good condition, and not in the purchase of them."

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that the county commissioners should make an allowance to the sheriff for actual and necessary expense incurred by him in paying for repairs on his automobile and in keeping it in good condition only when said machine is used by him in the discharge of his official duties. This must not be taken to include an allowance for the purchase of an automobile or for claims on account of depreciation in value.

Replying to the second part of your question, I am of the opinion that there is no authority in law for the county commissioners to erect a garage on the jail yard in which the machine owned by the sheriff and used by him in the discharge of his official duties might be kept.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

NO AUTHORITY EXISTS IN SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS TO GRANT LEASE TO AGENT OF CERTAIN HEIRS.

The superintendent of public works is without authority to grant a lease to the agent of certain heirs; the lease should contain the names of the heirs and lessees and should be executed by them.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 22, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Suprintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have examined the following lease of state lands, triplicate copies of which were transmitted to me for my approval under date of February 26, 1915:

Frank P. Corbett, agent, Columbus, Ohio, $266..

This lease names Frank P. Corbett, agent for heirs of Michael Corbett, as lessee, and is executed by "Frank P. Corbett, agent, for heirs of Michael Corbett."

I am returning this lease without my approval for the reason that no authority exists in the superintendent of public works to grant a lease to the agent of certain heirs. The lease should contain the names of the heirs as lessees, and should be executed by them.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

APPROVAL OF CERTAIN LEASES OF STATE LANDS—LESSEES OF THURSTON, DEFIANCE AND COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Leases of state lands to lessees of Thurston, Columbus and Defiance, Ohio, have been executed in accordance with the provisions of law governing the same.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 22, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have examined the following leases of state lands, triplicate copies of which were transmitted to me for my approval under date of February 26, 1915:

S. M. Miller, Thurston, Ohio	$100.00
S. M. Miller, Thurston, Ohio	100.00
Chas. E. Fisher, Columbus, Ohio	100.00
F. G. Kronenbitter, Columbus, Ohio	100.00
F. G. Kronenbitter, Columbus, Ohio	100.00
F. G. Kronenbitter, Columbus, Ohio	100.00
F. G. Kronenbitter, Columbus, Ohio	100.00
F. G. Kronenbitter, Columbus, Ohio	100.00
W. E. Gest, Defiance, Ohio	300.00

I find that these leases have been executed in accordance with the provisions of law governing the same, and therefore return them with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WHERE PORTION OF A TOWNSHIP IS DIVIDED INTO SEPARATE TOWNSHIP, PAUPERS HAVING RESIDENCE IN TERRITORIAL LIMITS OF NEW TOWNSHIP ARE CHARGEABLE UPON IT—INFIRMARY.

Where a township is divided, and a part thereof is erected into a separate township, paupers having residence within the territorial limits of the newly erected township are chargeable upon it.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 22, 1915.

HON. CYRUS LOCHER, Prosecuting Attorney, Cuyahoga County, Cleveland, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have a communication from your office under date of March 12, 1915, in which the following facts are stated:

> "Under proceedings recently had, a portion of the territory comprising the township of Independence was organized into the village of Independence, and such portion thereafter erected into a separate township under the name of East Independence township. Prior to the time of the commencement of these proceedings, one David Coburn has become a public charge upon the township, and by arrangement with the authorities of the city of Cleveland, was placed in the city infirmary. At the time he became a public charge he resided in that portion of the township of Independence which was later formed into the township of East Independence."

Attention is then called to the case of Pike Township v. Union Township, 5 O., 528, the court in that case holding that where a township is divided by competent authority and a portion of the territory formed into a new township, unless provision is made in the act of separation for a division of the property and paupers both remain with the old township, or that part which retains the name or corporate franchises.

Attention is further called to the fact that the above cited case was disapproved in the case of Trustees of Center Township v. Trustees of Willis township, 7 O. (part 2) 172, the court holding that when a new township is established, paupers having residence within its territorial limits are chargeable upon it, though before charged upon the entire township from which it is taken in whole or in part. This case was cited and followed in the case of Trustees of Williamsburg v. Trustees of Jackson, 11 O. 37, decided in 1841, all of the above cited cases being decided in the absence of any statutory provision dealing with the problem.

Attention is still further called to the fact that in 1852, 50 O. L., 260, the legislature enacted what is now section 3254, G. C., the language of the section being as follows:

> "When a township is altered, diminished, or in any way changed, by the formation of new townships, or additions to other townships, or otherwise, such original township, and all parts or portions thereof, shall remain liable, to the same extent, on contracts, engagements, or liabilities, contracted by such township, prior to the change as if no such alteration, diminution or change had taken place."

The case of Commissioners of Ashland County v. Directors of Richland County Infirmary, 7 O. S., 66, decided in 1857, is cited as authority for the proposition that a pauper remains or becomes a charge upon the township acquiring jurisdiction over the site of his residence, but is hardly applicable to the present state of facts, the dispute in that case being between two counties. The question now is as to whether the liability attaching to a township for the support of a pauper is such a liability as is contemplated by section 3254 of the General Code.

This section was enacted for the obvious purpose of preventing any impairment of the contractual obligations of a township by reason of an alteration in its boundary lines or a reduction in its size. The scope of the section is by its own language limited to contracts, engagements or liabilities contracted by the township.

The object of the section is to insure that all territory that was a part of a township when an obligation was contracted and which presumably shared in the benefit derived from the contract, should contribute to the payment of the obligation, and that a person to whom a township became indebted should be entitled to look for payment to all the territory that was a part of the township when the indebtedness was incurred.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the liability of the original township of Independence, as it existed at the time that a public charge was placed in the city infirmary of Cleveland, for the support of such public charge until the erection of a part of Independence township into a separate township, is such a liability as is contemplated by section 3254, G. C.; and that the liability for the support of said public charge after the erection of the new township is not such a liability as is contemplated by said section. All of the territory comprised in Independence township, as said township existed at the time David Coburn became a public charge, would, therefore, be liable for any unpaid balance due for the care of said public charge prior to the date of the erection of East Independence township. For the care of said public charge, after the erection of East Independence township, that township alone would be liable.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUBMERGED LANDS UNDER WATERS OF LAKE ERIE WHICH BELONG TO OHIO MAY BE DEEDED TO UNITED STATES FOR MARINE HOSPITAL.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 22, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I return to you a letter addressed to you by the secretary of war, with its enclosures, all relating to a proposed bill to be introduced in the general assembly of Ohio with a view to granting to the United States all the right, title and interest of the state of Ohio in and to the submerged lands under the waters of Lake Erie, adjacent to a certain tract of land in the city of Cleveland occupied by the United States and used as grounds for a marine hospital.

The land which it is proposed to authorize the governor to deed to the United States includes some land which has been brought above the level of the water by the deposit of dredged material, and includes also the site of a pier which the government has built and maintained for its own convenience in connection with such hospital.

I have carefully investigated the legality and propriety of the proposed transaction and have no objection to make thereto.

I enclose herewith copies of letters written at my soliciation, directly or indirectly, by Hon. Geo. B. Harris, special counsel representing this department in the city of Cleveland; Hon. Robt. M. Morgan, who formerly represented this department in Cleveland in a similar capacity and has made a special study of the legal questions relative to the title to the submerged lands; and Hon. Newton D. Baker, Mayor of Cleveland, who may be regarded as in a sense representing the city.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EMERGENCY LAWS MUST RECEIVE VOTE OF TWO-THIRDS OF ALL THE MEMBERS ELECTED TO EACH BRANCH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY—THE REASONS FOR SUCH NECESSITY SHALL BE SET FORTH IN ONE SECTION OF THE LAW WHICH SECTION SHALL BE VOTED UPON BY SEPARATE ROLL CALL AND SHALL RECEIVE A TWO-THIRDS VOTE.

Emergency laws must receive a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly and the reason for such necessity shall be set forth in one section of the law, which section shall be voted upon by separate roll call and shall receive a two-thirds vote.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 22, 1915.

To the Officers and Members of the 81st General Assembly of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—A question has been raised regarding the proper interpretation of section 1d of article II of the constitution. While there is no formal request pending before this department, yet in view of the fact that it will be necessary for me to take some definite action in the premises, I feel that the policy of this department should be made public at this time so that the legislature and other state departments may know the attitude of this department.

Section 1d of article II of the constitution provides:

> "Laws providing for tax levies, appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and state institutions, and emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, shall go into immediate effect. Such emergency laws upon a yea and nay vote must receive the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly, and the reasons for such necessity shall be set forth in one section of the law, which section shall be passed only upon a yea and nay vote, upon a separate roll call thereon. The laws mentioned in this section shall not be subject to the referendum."

There has been a general misunderstanding as to the effect of this provision. It has been assumed that the tacking on of what has been called, erroneously, "an emergency clause" to a bill and the passing of that clause in a separate section by a two-thirds vote made the measure an emergency law. That this is not true must be apparent from a reading of section 1d above quoted.

A radical and fundamental change was made by the constitutional amendments of 1912. Up to that time the legislative power to pass laws not in contravention to the constitution was vested in the general assembly exclusively and absolutely (a discussion of the veto power of the governor is unnecessary here). By the 1912 amendments this exclusive and absolute power was taken away, the people constituting themselves a part of the legislative machinery and reserving to themselves the right to annul any law enacted by the legislature, saving only:

> "(1) Laws providing for tax levies.
> "(2) Laws providing for appropriation for current expenses of the state government and state institutions.
> "(3) Emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety.

"Attached to this third class of laws were the conditions (a) that any such law could be passed only by the affirmative votes of two-thirds of all the members elected to each house, upon a yea and nay vote. (b) That the reasons for such necessity should be set out in one section of the law, which section could be passed only upon a separate roll call."

Before an emergency law may be passed the following conditions must exist and steps be observed:

"(a) An emergency in fact must exist.

"(b) The passage of such law must be necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety.

"(c) The emergency law (not one section of it, but all of it) must receive the affirmative votes of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly. Such vote must be a yea and nay vote.

"(d) The law must contain one section in which are set forth valid reasons showing the necessity for the immediate preservation of either, any two of, or all, the public peace, health or safety.

"(e) The section last above referred to must be voted on, by yea and nay vote, on a separate roll call and must also receive the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly (this section being one section of the law)."

Furthermore, the bill must stand or fall as an emergency act. In other words, it cannot be offered as an emergency act and upon being put to vote and receiving a majority but less than two-thirds be declared passed as an ordinary law.

The essence of the bill must be to provide for an emergency and the reasons showing the necessity for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety must be set forth in one section. An emergency is defined by Webster:

"a condition of things appearing suddenly or unexpectedly; an unforeseen occurrence; a sudden occasion. Any event or occasional combination of circumstances which calls for immediate action or remedy; pressing necessity; exigency."

Standard dictionary:

"a sudden or unexpected occurrence calling for immediate action; a perplexing and pressing combination of circumstances, sometimes, less properly, used in the sense of urgent need or exigency."

That the word as used in the constitution is not used in the sense of either "urgent need or exigency" must be apparent from the context. Not all emergency laws may evade the referendum period, but only such laws as are necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, and in one section of which there is set forth the reasons for such necessity.

I have examined the debates of the constitutional convention and find that the committee on phraseology changed the word "acts" to "laws" at the opening of the section and also changed "emergency measures" to "emergency laws." I do not consider this at all significant as the meaning was not changed in the slightest. We all know that no act or measure becomes a law until it has passed beyond the control of the legislature and the governor has either signed it or allowed the ten days to elapse. The meaning must be gathered from within the four corners of each amendment interpreted in the light of the constitution as it stood immediately prior to such amendment.

In the absence of a decision by the court of last resort, I prefer not to express any final conclusion on the following matter, but it does occur to me that the only safe course for the legislature to pursue is to make a distinction between emergency laws and permanent laws. If the theory of the right of referendum be carried out it would seem clear to me that emergency laws must in their nature be temporary and the application of each should be limited to a particular emergency. A pure type of emergency law will be found in 103 O. L., 141, H. B. 640, being the act by which public authorities were authorized to disregard the general laws of the state in making temporary repairs, etc., of public property and ways destroyed by the floods of March and April, 1913.

Notwithstanding the mistake into which the proceding legislature fell in the attempted enactment of emergency laws, I do not think that by such mistake there has been established any precedent, especially as regards the necessity of a two-thirds vote upon the entire bill and a valid necessity clause, which the courts will feel bound to follow. It would be far better to halt now on this manifestly wrong course, and to start anew on the right course at this time than to have matters further complicated by following the erroneous interpretation of a preceding legislature.

I do not for a moment admit the contention that the courts will be bound by the declaration of the legislature that a particular measure is an emergency law. If such contention were true we might as well have no constitutional provision, as the constitution could then be disregarded with impunity.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BID OF KNOWLTON AND BREINIG FOR CONSTRUCTION OF ATHENS ARMORY MAY BE ACCEPTED.

Bid of Knowlton and Breinig for the construction of Athens Armory may be accepted as regular under advertisement and contract awarded on it.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

HON. BYRON L. BARGAR, Secretary Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 1st, which is as follows:

> "I herewith transmit extract from the minutes of the meeting of the armory board on Saturday, February 27, 1915, together with the proof of publication of advertisement for bids for the Athens Armory, and the nine bids received pursuant thereto.
> "You will note that the award of contract for the Athens Armory is made to Knowlton and Breinig subject to your approval. In this connection you will also note that the bid of Knowlton and Breinig does not contain separate bids on each item of the work. It is proper for me to also advise you that this bidder's certified check was a certificate of deposit made to the order of the Ohio state armory board.

"The Knowlton and Breinig bid was accepted because it was the lowest bid which complied with the plans and specifications as specified by section 5258 of the General Code.

"Please advise if the contract should be awarded to Knowlton and Breinig if their bid should not have been accepted please advise if the board can yet award a contract to the next lowest bidder, namely: Bart Davidson, of Athens, Ohio."

With your letter you enclose an extract from the minutes of the meeting of the armory board on Saturday, February 27, relative to the bid for the Athens Armory.

An examination of the bids submitted discloses the fact that that of Knowlton and Breinig is the lowest. I note from the minutes of your meeting that the bid of Knowlton and Breinig was accepted as the lowest bid which complied with the plans and specifications as specified by section 5258 of the General Code.

As the proceedings in connection with the awarding of this contract are regular, it is my opinion that the contract may be awarded to Knowlton and Breinig, of Athens, Ohio, under the provisions of section 5258 of the General Code, it appearing from an investigation of the matter that the provisions of section 2362 of the General Code do not apply.

When the contract and bond are prepared, I will be pleased to examine them immediately upon their receipt to the end that same may be returned to you without delay if approved. The bids submitted with your letter are returned herewith.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

INTERPRETATION OF SECTION 13432, G. C.—APPLICABLE AND MANDATORY WHERE IMPRISONMENT IS PART OF PUNISHMENT.

The provisions of section 13432 are applicable to all prosecutions before justices of the peace in which imprisonment is a part of the punishment and wherein final jurisdiction of the offense is by law conferred upon such justice.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

HON. GEORGE THORNBURG, Prosecuting Attorney, St. Claisville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours of March 11, 1915, requesting an opinion thereon, which is as follows:

"Several of the justices of the peace and mayors in Belmont county are requesting me to ask your interpretation of section 13432 of the General Code, which is as follows:

"'In prosecutions before a justice, police judge or mayor, when imprisonment is a part of the punishment, if a trial by jury is not waived, the magistrate, not less than three days nor more than five days before the time fixed for trial, shall certify to the clerk of the court of common pleas of the county that such prosecution is pending before him.'

"They are claiming that under the above section in all misdemeanors where imprisonment is a part of the punishment and where a jury is not waived, the justice shall certify to the clerk of the court of common pleas that such action is pending before him, and proceed to have a jury drawn and try the matter finally before the justice. If this could be done a great deal of work would be taken from the court of common pleas, and yet it would be very expensive to the county, and inconvenient to jurors, and in the end would probably not avail much."

By an examination of section 13423 and its correlative sections, and sections 1153, 4414, 4416, 12519, 12520 and many others of the penal statutes of this state, it will be observed that there is conferred upon justices of the peace final jurisdiction of numerous offenses, a part of the penalty for which may be imprisonment, and it will be noted that the provisions of section 13432, G. C., above quoted, are applicable only to those cases in which the justice of the peace has final jurisdiction and is authorized to impose the penalty provided by law, a part of which may be imprisonment.

This section of the statute was enacted for the manifest purpose of making operative all those statutory provisions conferring final jurisdiction upon justices of offenses, a part of the punishment for which may be imprisonment, under the constitutional guaranty (article 1, section 10 of the constitution of Ohio) of a trial by jury in cases where imprisonment may be imposed as a penalty. Otherwise all statutory enactments conferring such final jurisdiction upon justices in cases where imprisonment may be imposed as a part or all of the punishment, would be null and void as in violation of the constitution of the state.

The language of said section 13432, G. C., is clear and unequivocal and subject to no other construction than the plain meaning of its terms, and its provisions are clearly mandatory.

The questions of expense and convenience or inconvience of jurors, as suggested by you, are purely matters of policy of administration to be considered in determining in what court a prosecution should be instituted, but can in no way affect the application and construction of a statutory provision so clearly unambiguous.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, and so advise you, that in every case of criminal prosecution before a justice, wherein a part of the punishment may be imprisonment and of which such court has under the law final jurisdiction, the provisions of sections 13432 and 13433, G. C., are applicable and mandatory.

It might also be added that in 11 Cyc., 983, the following rule is laid down:

"When a new cause of action is created by a statute which provides that a particular tribunal shall take cognizance thereof, no other court will have jurisdiction."

So that from this it follows that at least in many of those cases in which final jurisdiction is conferred upon justices of the peace, the court of common pleas would not have original jurisdiction.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES INCOMPATIBLE—MEMBER OF MUNICIPAL BOARD OF HEALTH AND CLERK OF SAID BOARD.

A member of a municipal board of health may not be lawfully appointed clerk of such board.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a request for an opinion upon the following question:

> "May a member of a municipal board of health be lawfully appointed clerk of such board?"

This question is deemed of public importance and the opinion is therefore submitted to you.

By section 4408, G. C., it is provided that boards of health of municipalities may appoint a clerk. Section 4411-1, G. C., (103 O. L., 436) provides:

> "The board shall determine the duties and fix the salaries of its employes, but no member of the board of health shall be appointed as health officer or ward physician."

No other provision of the statute is found authorizing payment of compensation to the clerk of the board of health. Whatever salary or compensation the clerk in such case may then receive, must depend upon the action of the board of health of which the clerk himself in this case is a member. Is it in accord with sound public policy that an officer may appoint or participate in the appointment of himself to another position or office, the duties and compensation of which are subject to the control in whole or in part of himself, acting in a superior official capacity?

In 29 Cyc., 1381, the rule is stated as follows:

> "It is contrary to the policy of the law for an officer to use his official appointive power to place himself in office. So that even in the absence of a statutory inhibition, all officers who have appointing power are disqualified for appointment to the office to which they may appoint."

The statutes above referred to were originally embraced in section 2115, R. S., which provided, among other things, for the appointment of a health officer. As in the case of the clerk of the board of health, no term for which such health officer should be appointed was fixed, and the supreme court in the case of State v. Craig, 69 O. S., 246, held that such officer served only during the pleasure of the board. This rule is as clearly applicable to the clerk of such board. In view of the fact that the clerk is appointed by the board of health, that his duties are to be determined and salary fixed by the board and that his term of service is dependent upon the pleasure of the board, it cannot be maintained that the office or position of clerk is not subordinate to the board itself. In the absence of any statutory inhibition, we come to an application of the common law principle of incompatibility of office in the determination of the question of whether or not the same person may at one time hold two official positions. It is a well recognized rule that where the duties of two offices are incompatible, both may not be held by one person at the same time.

In the case of State v. Gilbert, 12 C. C. (n. s.), 247, the rule of incompatibility of offices is clearly laid down as follows:

> "Offices are considered incompatible when one is subordinate to or in any way a check upon the other; or when it is physically impossible for one person to discharge the duties of both."

It having been heretofore determined that the clerk is subordinate to the board by which he is appointed, the offices of member of the board of health and the clerk by it appointed are then clearly within the rule of incompatibility as above stated, and may not be held by one person at the same time.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PARK COMMISSIONERS—CANNOT GRANT PERMISSION TO BASEBALL PLAYERS TO CHARGE ADMISSION FEE TO ENCOLSURES UPON PUBLIC PARK GROUNDS.

Park commissioners acting under authority of section 4053, et seq., G. C., are without authority to grant permission to baseball players or associations to charge an admission fee to enter any enclosure upon the public park grounds while games are in progress.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of March 2, 1915, requesting a written opinion upon the following question:

> "May park commissioners, acting under authority of sections 4053, General Code, et seq., grant the use of a portion of the park grounds under their control to a baseball organization, which organization charges an admission fee to the baseball enclosure? See letter of the solicitor of New Philadelphia enclosed."

The letter of the solicitor states the following facts to wit:

> "The city of New Philadelphia owns a park, having been purchased by the issuing and selling of bonds for park purposes. Said park is managed and controlled by a board of park commissioners as provided by sections 4053, G. C., et seq. A baseball diamond is inclosed by a fence within the boundary lines of said park property. There is a demand for baseball playing here and the board of park commissioners contemplate a grant of permission to the baseball players to charge an admission fee to enter the inclosure while the games are in progress.

"Query. Can an admission fee be legally charged on public park grounds?"

Chapter 5, division IV, title XII of the General Code, entitled "Parks," sections 4053, et seq., provides for the establishment and maintenance of public parks, and vests the control and management of such parks in a board of park commissioners. The chapter provides for the acquiring of park grounds and the maintenance of public parks by a tax to be levied and collected on the general duplicate of the municipality.

Section 4057, G. C., provides:

> "The board of park commissioners shall have the control and management of parks, park entrances, parkways, boulevards and connecting viaducts and subways, children's playgrounds, public baths and stations of public comfort located in such parks, of all improvements thereon and the acquisition, construction, repair and maintenance thereof * * *."

Section 4059, G. C., provides:

> "The board may adopt and enforce regulations as to the proper use and protection of all such property and the improvements thereon and impose penalties for the violation of such regulations."

I do not find that the question you present has been determined by any court of this state. Two cases have reached the courts wherein a use of public park grounds, other than by the general public was involved, but in each instance the case was disposed of on other grounds and without expression of opinion by the court on the question of authority to grant such use. The cases referred to are:

> City of Columbus v. Biederman, 16 N. P. (n. s.), 140.
> Cincinnati v. University, 13 O. Dec., 284.

The term "public park" as used in the statutes contemplates grounds under the control of public authorities, set apart as a place of resort for the public, for recreation, exercise and amusement. Being provided at public expense, it is necessarily contemplated that it shall be maintained for the equal use and enjoyment of the inhabitants of the city wherein it is so maintained.

Such use and enjoyment by the public is subject, however, to the authority of the board to prescribe and enforce such reasonable regulations and limitations as to time and manner of use as tend to promote and enlarge the enjoyment thereof.

The line of demarcation between the proper and reasonable exercise of such discretion and authority by the board, and an abuse thereof which defeats the public enjoyment is dependent upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case, and is essentially a question of fact and not susceptible of definition or determination by general rule.

Answering your specific question: I am of the opinion that the park commissioners are without authority to grant permission to baseball players or associations to charge an admission fee to enter any enclosure upon the public park grounds while games are in progress.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS — AUTHORITY TO EMPLOY ENGINEER OTHER THAN COUNTY SURVEYOR—SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT—COUNTY INFIRMARY.

County commissioners have authority to employ an engineer other than the county surveyor to supervise the construction of a sewage disposal plant where the plant is being built for the sole purpose of caring for the sewage from county infirmary buildings already constructed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

HON. G. A. STARN, Prosecuting Attorney, Wooster, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communications of February 24, and March 6, 1915, in which you inquire whether the county commissioners have authority to employ an engineer other than the county surveyor to supervise the construction of a sewage disposal plant at the county infirmary, or whether the commissioners are obliged to permit the county surveyor to perform such work. You state that this plant is to be built to care for sewage from the infirmary buildings only, and not for any other purpose, and that the infirmary buildings were built several years ago, and nothing except the disposal plant is being constructed at the present time.

Section 2343, G. C., provides in part as follows:

> "When it becomes necessary for the commissioners of a county to erect or cause to be erected a public building or substructure for a bridge, or an addition to or alteration thereof, before entering into any contract therefor or repair thereof or for the supply of any materials therefor, they shall cause to be made by a competent architect or civil engineer the following: full and accurate plans showing all necessary details of the work and materials required with working plans suitable for the use of mechanics or other builders in the construction thereof, so drawn as to be easily understood; accurate bills, showing the exact amount of the different kinds of material, necessary to the construction, to accompany the plans; full and complete specifications of the work to be performed showing the manner and style required to be done, with such directions as will enable a competent builder to carry them out, and afford to bidders all needful information; a full and accurate estimate of each item of expense, and of the aggregate cost thereof. * * *"

Section 2792, G. C., provides in part as follows:

> "The county surveyor shall perform all duties for the county now or hereafter authorized or declared by law to be done by a civil engineer or surveyor. He shall prepare all plans, specifications, details, estimates of cost, and submit forms of contracts for the construction or repair of all bridges, culverts, roads, drains, ditches and other public improvements, except buildings, constructed under the authority of any board within and for the county. * * *"

I am aware that these two sections refer in their express terms only to the preparation of plans and not to supervision during the construction of any improvement, but the fact that the two sections impliedly authorize in proper cases the designation and employment of an architect, engineer or surveyor to supervise the construction of an improvement is recognized by the provisions of section 2359, G. C., which section authorizes the making of estimates by an architect employed by the commissioners to superintend construction. Sections 2343 and 2792, G. C., establish a rule as to when the commissioners may employ any competent architect or civil engineer and as to when they are compelled to accept the services of the county surveyor. In the erection of a public building or an addition thereto or alteration thereof, the commissioners may employ any competent architect or civil engineer to prepare the plans, while in the preparation of plans for other public improvements the commissioners must accept the services of the county surveyor. The same rule would apply in the work of supervising the construction of a public improvement, and hence the determination of your question depends upon whether or not a sewage disposal plant built for the sole purpose of caring for the sewage from county infirmary buildings already erected is to be regarded within the meaning of section 2343, G. C., as an addition to or alteration of said buildings.

I am of the opinion that this question must be answered in the affirmative and that in the work of supervising the construction of such a sewage disposal plant the county commissioners may under authority of section 2343, G. C., employ an engineer other than the county surveyor.

In determining the meaning of sections 2343 and 2792, G. C., reference must be had to the object sought to be obtained. In enacting section 2343 the legislature evidently had in mind the fact that in designing and supervising the construction of a public building the character of skill required would be different from that demanded of a county surveyor in meeting the problems of land surveying, road and ditch construction and similar engineering work. The legislature therefore gave the commissioners authority in the case of a public building or an addition to or alteration thereof to employ an architect or civil engineer other than the county surveyor. The manifest object of this enactment was to enable the commissioners to secure the services of a specialist in those matters pertaining to buildings. It is a matter of common knowledge that the planning and constructing of a sewage disposal plant involve special knowledge and the reason for the rule established by the legislature would therefore point to a holding that a sewage disposal plant is an addition to the building or buildings, the sewage from which is to be cared for by it.

If it were not for the buildings there would be no use for the disposal plant. The only use of the disposal plant is as an adjunct to the buildings and for the purpose of rendering them more sanitary and convenient. I am of the opinion that the character of the disposal plant and the purpose for which it is to be used are such that for the purposes of section 2343, G. C., it must be regarded as an addition to the infirmary buildings, and that the county commissioners therefore have the right under the state of facts set forth by you to employ an engineer other than the county surveyor to supervise the construction of the sewage disposal plant in question.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WARDEN OHIO PENITENTIARY—CANNOT MODIFY SENTENCE OF IMPRISONMENT BY SUSPENSION.

Warden of the Ohio penitentiary has no authority to release prisoners after commitment, except at expiration of sentence shown in commitment or under the laws governing parole or pardon.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your communication of March 18th, which is as follows:

> "By direction of the board I am enclosing herewith communications from Mr. P. E. Thomas, warden of the Ohio penitentiary, together with four other enclosures concerning the case of Frank McCue, No. 43437, who is now serving an indeterminate sentence in the penitentiary for burglary. The warden states that he has this day received a certificate of suspension of sentence for this man from the trial judge, W. P. Barnum.
> "Your opinion is requested as to the duty of the warden in this matter."

With your communication you enclose several letters from Warden Thomas, two statements of the trial judge relative to Frank McCue, No. 43437, certified copy of the journal entry in the case of the State of Ohio v. Frank McCue et al., and the prosecuting attorney's statement concerning Frank McCue.

Permit me to call your attention to the provisions of section 13720 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "A person sentenced to the penitentiary, or Ohio state reformatory, unless the execution thereof is suspended, shall be conveyed to the penitentiary or Ohio state reformatory by the sheriff of the county in which the conviction was had, within five days after such sentence, and delivered into the custody of the warden of the penitentiary, or superintendent of the Ohio state reformatory, with a copy of such sentence there to be kept until the term of his imprisonment expires or he is pardoned. If the execution of such sentence is suspended, and the judgment be afterwards affirmed, he shall be conveyed to the penitentiary or the Ohio state reformatory within five days after the court directs the execution of sentence; provided, however, that the trial judge, or any judge of said court in said subdivision may, in his discretion, and for good cause shown, extend the time of such conveyance."

It will be seen from a reading of the section quoted above that when a person sentenced to the penitentiary has been delivered into the custody of the warden of the penitentiary with a copy of the sentence, he is to be kept there until the term of his imprisonment expires or he is pardoned.

In the case of Lee v. State of Ohio, 32 O. S., 113, it was held that:

> "Where a court, in passing sentence for a misdemeanor, has acted under a misapprehension of the facts necessary and proper to be known in fixing the amount of the penalty, it may, in the exercise of judicial discretion and in furtherance of justice, at the same term, and before the original sentence has gone into operation or any action has been had upon it, revise and increase or diminish such sentence within the limits authorized by law."

At page 604, volume 7, Nisi Prius Reports, under the heading: "Anonymous—Case of Habeas Corpus," it was held that:

"A police judge after having sentenced a party, and such party having entered upon his sentence, has no authority to then have such party brought again before the court to impose a heavier sentence."

Prisoners in the penitentiary are under the control of and subject to the orders of your board acting through the warden, and an examination of the statutes relating to the pardon and parole of prisoners fails to disclose any provision authorizing the warden to release the prisoner once lawfully committed to his charge, except under the established law relating to paroles, or as provided for in section 13720, quoted above, when a prisoner has completed the term of his imprisonment or he is pardoned.

It is my opinion, therefore, that as Frank McCue, No. 43437, has been lawfully committed to the Ohio penitentiary, where he is now serving an indeterminate sentence for burglary, the warden of the penitentiary is without authority to release him except under the provisions of law as referred to above. To hold otherwise would be to substitute the judge who has attempted to modify the sentence of imprisonment by suspension after it had been partly executed as the paroling power in opposition to the law which provides that such power shall rest in the board of administration.

While the question is not directly raised in your request, attention is also called to the provisions of sections 13761 and 13762 of the General Code, which, although not applicable to the particular case under consideration, provide for the discharge of a prisoner by the warden when by virtue of the reversal of the conviction the prisoner is either ordered discharged or granted a new trial.

The statement of the trial judge, the certified copy of the journal entry, and the prosecuting attorney's statement, submitted with your letter, are returned herewith for the files of your department.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO DEPRIVE ELECTORS OF THE RIGHT OF REFERENDUM ON AN ORDINANCE.

The state board of health has no authority to deprive electors of the right of referendum on an ordinance.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your communication with which you forward a letter addressed to you by Mr. James W. Jackson, secretary of the citizens' protective alliance, and W. A. Calhoun, chairman of the committee on referendum petition, which is as follows:

> "The city of East Liverpool is having a water fight against the chemical filtration gang in exactly the same manner as that of the people of Zanesville. We have before us a copy of the Sunday News of that city under date of February 14th, publishing the letters of yourself and that of the secretary of the state board of health.
> "To shorten this letter it will suffice to say that both situations are practically the same. The city council here have passed an ordinance to issue bonds for $375,000 for a chemical filtration plant when they well knew that 95 per cent. of our electors are against that system. They also have adopted and still have on the books a resolution for a natural filtration system, but the chemical gang got busy and won four councilmen over, how, we do not know, but it occurred all in one day.
> "We are getting out a referendum to confirm or reject the above named ordinance. Are we not strictly within our rights when we have filed the said referendum within the required thirty days?
> "Can an order of the state board of health take away from the electors the right of referendum as guaranteed by the constitution?"

Permit me to advise that in section 4227-2 of the General Code, as amended in 104 Ohio Laws, page 239, it is provided, among other things, that:

> "When a petition signed by ten per cent. of the electors of any municipal corporation shall have been filed with the city auditor or village clerk in such municipal corporation, within thirty days after any ordinance, or other measure shall have been filed with the mayor, or passed by the council of a village, ordering that such ordinance or measure be submitted to the electors of such municipal corporation for their approval or rejection, such city auditor or village clerk shall, after ten days, certify the petition to the board of deputy supervisors of elections of the county wherein such municipality is situated and said board shall cause to be submitted to the electors of such municipal corporation for their approval or rejection, such ordinance, or measure at the next succeeding regular or general election, in any year, occurring subsequent to forty days after the filing of such petition."

In answer to the last question contained in the enclosed letter, namely:

> "Can an order of the state board of health take away from the electors the right of referendum as guaranteed by the constitution?"

I have to advise that the state board of health is not clothed with any authority to deprive the citizens of their constitutional rights upon this or any other question.

You will recall talking with Mr. Price concerning the East Liverpool situation, and he informs me that there is now under consideration with the state board of health the question of an extension of the time specified in the order of the state board of health upon which all of the proceedings referred to in your letter have been based, it appearing that the ordinance passed by the council of East Liverpool does not contain a section setting out the reasons for emergency, and it is sought to begin anew.

The question of the validity of an emergency clause in ordinances is now under consideration by the supreme court in the case of Shryock v. The City of Zanesville.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—ELIGIBILITY TO ELECTION OF DISTRICT AND COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 25, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of yours of March 13, 1915, in which you enclose communication from Mr. J. R. Walton of Perrysville, Ohio, and upon examination of the statutes I find that sections 4738, G. C., and 4739, G. C., provide for the election of district superintendents and section 4744-5, G. C., prescribes the qualifications essential to eligibility to election as such district superintendent, and further provides that the county board of education shall certify to the superintendent of public instruction the qualifications of each county and district superintendent.

I find, however, no statute imposing any duty upon the state superintendent of public instruction relative to determining the eligibility of district superintendents or to enforcing the statutory requirements therefor. It would, therefore, follow that responsibility for the appointment and service of such superintendents of one who is ineligible to election to such office, would not rest upon the state superintendent of public instruction. It might be stated, however, that if the ineligibility of one who is serving as such district superintendent could be substantiated, an action in quo warranto would lie.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SCHOOL FUNDS—SALARIES OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS—DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENTS—SHOULD BE CHARGED AGAINST APPORTIONMENT OF THE STATE COMMON SCHOOL FUND, COMMON SCHOOL FUND AND TUITION FUND OF DISTRICT.

The amounts retained by the county auditor under section 4744-3, G. C., for the purpose of paying part of the salaries of the county superintendent of schools and the district superintendents should be charged against the apportionment of the state common school fund, the common school fund and against the tuition fund of the district.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 26, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of March 13, 1915, requests my opinion as follows:

> "Section 4744-3, page 143 vol. 104 Ohio Laws, reads in part:
> "'The county auditor, when making his semi-annual apportionment of the school funds to the various village and rural school districts, shall retain the amounts necessary to pay such portion of the salaries of the county and district superintendents as may be certified by the county board * * *.'
> "Question. Should county auditors retain the amounts referred to in this section from the tuition fund of the different districts, or from the total amount due the districts before distribution is made?"

You have yourself quoted all of section 4744-3, as amended, that bears in any way upon the question which you submit. Moreover, there are no provisions in the act enacting section 4744-3, or in any of the other measures passed by the same session of the general assembly and relating to schools, which shed any light upon the question unless the re-enactment of section 7600, General Code, by the act found in 104 O. L., 158, which was passed one day after the act enacting section 4744-3 was passed, may be regarded as material. That section provides for the apportionment of school funds in the following language:

> "* * * Each school district within the county shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district, and the balance of such funds shall be apportioned among the various school districts according to the average daily attendance of pupils in the schools of such districts. If an enumeration of the youth of any district has not been taken and returned for any year and the average daily attendance of such district has not been certified to the county auditor such district shall not be entitled to receive any portion of that fund. The local school tax collected from the several districts shall be paid to the districts from which it was collected. Money received from the state on account of interest on the common school fund shall be apportioned to the school districts and parts of districts within the territory designated by the auditor of state as entitled thereto on the basis of thirty dollars for each teacher employed and the balance according to the average daily attendance. All other money in the county treasury for the support of common schools and not otherwise appropriated by law, shall be apportioned annually in the same manner as the state common school fund."

As used in this section the word "apportionment" applies only to the division, among the school districts, of the state common school fund and other miscellaneous moneys to be distributed. In speaking of the local levies the word "paid" is used. This distinction in turn conforms to an obvious distinction in fact. It is not proper to speak of the distribution of local school taxes to the levying district as an "apportionment" because such moneys belong to the district, in the first instance, so that the word "payment" is much more appropriately used as descriptive of what takes place.

On the other hand, sections 7601 and 7603, General Code, which were not amended in 1914, provide that immediately after the apportionment referred to in section 7600 is made, a certificate thereof shall be furnished to each school treasurer and on the basis of the certificate the order for the amount due the district shall be based. In the sense in which the word "apportionment" is used in these two sections, it undoubtedly includes the moneys received from local levies. This makes the question suggested by the language of section 7600 a difficult one. It is not the precise question which you present, but a different one which may be phrased as follows:

Is the amount retained under section 4744-3 of the General Code to be withheld from any local school levies, or is it to be limited to the school moneys which are, in the exact sense, "apportioned?"

In this connection I observe that section 4744-3, General Code, does not state from what moneys the amounts necessary to pay the several districts the proportion of supervision salaries are to be retained. It is only an inference that would suggest a conclusion that such amounts are to be retained from the school funds subject to apportionment, from the school funds subject to distribution or even from any school funds. So long as something must be supplied in the section in order to give it any force and effect whatever, I think we should supply that provision which would most appropriately carry into effect the legislative intent. I do not think it could have been the legislative intent that the moneys should be retained, for example, from contingent levies or building levies whether it is to be retained from any local levies or not. On the othe hand I do not think that the legislature intended to limit the retention to the proceeds of the common school fund because in many supervision districts such proceeds would not be sufficient to pay the necessary amount. On the whole the only intelligible and workable meaning that can be given to the section is that which can be arrived at by holding that the retention is to be from the state common school fund and from the local tuition levy. Section 7603, General Code, provides as follows:

"The certificate of apportionment furnished by the county auditor to the treasurer and clerk of each school district must exhibit the amount of money received by each district from the state, the amount received from any special tax levy made for a particular purpose, and the amount received from local taxation of a general nature. The amount received from the state common school fund and the common school fund shall be designated the 'tuition' fund and be appropriated only for the payment of superintendents and teachers. Funds received from special levies must be designated in accordance with the purpose for which the special levy was made and be paid out only for such purposes, except that, when a balance remains in such fund after all expenses incident to the purpose for which it was raised have been paid, such balance will become a part of the contingent fund and the board of education shall make such transfer by resolution. Funds received from the local levy for general purposes must be designated so as to correspond to the particular purpose for which the levy was made. Moneys coming from sources not enumerated herein shall be placed in the contingent fund."

As this section necessarily implies, the salary of the superintendent is chargeable as an expense of tuition. Accordingly it is chargeable primarily to the moneys received from the state, and if that is not sufficient, to the local levy for tuition purposes. The distribution should be made upon that basis.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

APPROVAL OF AMENDATORY ORDER MADE BY STATE BOARD OF HEALTH, PROVIDING FOR INSTALLATION OF WATER PURIFICATION PLANT, EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 26, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Attached hereto please find an order of the Ohio state board of health adopted at the meeting held on March 24, 1915, and which is as follows:

"Be it ordered by the state board of health of the state of Ohio that the city of East Liverpool shall within eighteen months from the date upon which this order is approved by the governor and the attorney general of the state of Ohio, install and have in operation a water purification plant satisfactory to the state board of health; and shall within six months from the date of said approval award contracts for said improvement."

This order amends a previous order issued on the 26th day of June, 1913, providing for the installation of a water purification plant by the city of East Liverpool prior to January 1, 1915.

I have examined the provisions of the order and approve the same under the provisions of section 1254 of the General Code, which provides for the approval of the order by the governor and the attorney general before the same shall be effective.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX—DOES NOT APPLY TO TRANSFER OF SHARES OF STOCK IN OHIO CORPORATION, BELONGING TO ESTATE OF DECEASED RESIDENT OF ANOTHER STATE.

The Ohio collateral inheritance tax law is not applicable to the transfer of shares of stock in an Ohio corporation belonging to the estate of a deceased resident of Massachusetts.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 26, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 17th, requesting my opinion upon the following question:

> "If a deceased resident of Massachusetts at his death leaves shares of stock in an Ohio company, would this come under the provisions of the collateral inheritance act, and where must the tax be paid?"

Section 5331, General Code, as amended 103 O. L., 463, imposes a collateral inheritance tax on the privilege of succeeding by the laws of descent and distribution, or by will or deed of gift, intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to "all property within the jurisdiction of this state, and any interests therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of this state or not, and whether tangible or intangible."

I am of the opinion that shares of stock in an Ohio company, belonging to the estate of a deceased resident of Massachusetts, do not constitute property "within the jurisdiction of this state" within the meaning of the statute cited.

The means of collecting the tax provided by the related sections are inappropriate to such a case, the shares themselves considered as taxable property do not have a situs in Ohio, and the privilege of inheriting them, which constitutes the real subject of taxation under the Ohio statute, is one which exists under, and is primarily at least protected by, the laws of Massachusetts.

For all of the above reasons, I am of the opinion that if the deceased is a resident of Massachusetts, and at his death leaves shares of stock in an Ohio company, the succession to or transfer of such shares to the personal representatives or legatees of the decedent would not be subject to the collateral inheritance tax of this state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

LIEN FOR ALL TAXES ON REAL PROPERTY ATTACHES THERETO ON DAY PRECEDING SECOND MONDAY OF APRIL OF EACH YEAR —TAXES WHICH BECOME LIEN UPON REAL PROPERTY AFTER DATE OF TRANSFER AND RECORD OF DEED MAY BE REFUNDED WHEN GRANTOR HAS PAID THE TAXES.

Taxes which cannot under the law become a lien upon real property until after the date of the transfer and record of a deed of conveyance of the same and which are thereafter erroneously charged against the grantor in such deed and by him paid, may be refunded.

The lien of the state for all taxes on real property attaches thereto on the day preceding the second Monday of April of each year.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 26, 1915.

HON. CHARLES E. BALLARD, Prosecuting Attorney, Springfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In yours under date of March 19, 1915, you submit for opinion the following:

> "One J. C. Keller, by a general warranty deed, dated, delivered and recorded on February 25, 1914, conveyed to the board of commissioners of Clark county, Ohio, certain real estate. Taxes were returned as levied against said real estate on the auditor's and treasurer's duplicates, due in December, 1914, and June, 1915, in the sum of $50.00. In December, 1914, without any objection or protest, the said J. C. Keller paid said taxes. He now asks that the county return to him the said sum of $50.00, claiming that the lien did not attach until the day preceding the second Monday of April, 1915, and the real estate conveyed being the property of Clark county, Ohio, was not taxable for the year 1914.
> "Should the county refund him the $50.00 paid?"

Since the repeal of section 5547, G. C., (103 O. L., 803) and the enactment of the Warnes law, the time within which real estate is required to be returned for taxation is involved in much uncertainty. It is provided, however, by section 5624-3, G. C., (103 O. L., 798) that on or before the first Monday of February, 1914, the county auditor should deliver to the district assessor abstract books necessary to the appraisement of real estate for taxation.

By section 5624-11, G. C. (103 O. L., 801) it is provided that the district assessor shall transmit to the tax commission of Ohio, on or before the first Monday of July, an abstract of the real and personal property of each taxing district in the county, and by section 5624-12, G. C. (103 O. L., 801) the commission is given until August first to ascertain the correctness of the same and to order an increase or decrease thereof. From this it appears that the valuation of the real estate referred to by you could not have been completed earlier than July, 1914, for the taxes to be collected thereon in December, 1914, and June, 1915.

No statutory provision will be found fixing any particular day or date as of which the value of real estate is required to be assessed for taxation.

Section 5671, G. C., provides as follows:

> "The lien of the state for taxes levied for all purposes, in each year, shall attach to all real property subject to such taxes on the day preceding the second Monday of April, annually, and continue until such taxes, with any penalties accruing thereon, are paid. All personal property subject to taxation shall be liable to be seized and sold for taxes. The personal property of a deceased person shall be liable, in the hands of an executor or administrator, for any tax due on it from the testator or intestate."

By the plain terms of this statute, all taxes lawfully assessed against the real estate conveyed to the commissioners which were to become due and payable in December, 1914, and June, 1915, became a lien thereon on the day preceding the second Monday of April, 1914, subsequent to the date of the conveyance and transfer of the same I am unaware of any provision of law by authority of which it might be said that this real estate was in any way liable for taxes for the year 1914-1915, prior to the date on which the lien by the provisions of the state attached, or from which any personal obligation of the owner of such real estate would arise prior to that date. The taxes for the year 1914, if that be true, could not then be in any sense a claim against said real estate prior to the second Monday of April of that year.

That the taxes for that year could have been lawfully charged against the grantor of the real estate referred to by you at the time the lien therefor attached, is precluded by section 2573, G. C., so much of which as is pertinent here being as follows:

"On application and presentation of title, with the affidavits required by law, or the proper order of a court, the county auditor shall transfer any land or town lot or part thereof charged with taxes on the tax list from the name in which it stands into the name of the owner, when rendered necessary by a conveyance, partition, devise, descent or otherwise. * * *"

So that on the 25th day of February, 1914, the auditor was specifically charged by law with the duty of transferring upon the tax list of the county this real estate to the name of the grantee in this case, to wit: the commissioners, and this, as stated by you, was accordingly done. No taxes for the year 1914 could thereafter have been charged upon the real estate so transferred against the grantor except through error without further conveyance and transfer. If such taxes were so erroneously charged against the grantor for the year 1914, and the same by him paid, the provisions of section 2589, G. C., hereinafter set forth, would apply.

Section 2589, G. C., provides:

"After having delivered the duplicate to the county treasurer for collection, if the auditor is satisfied that any tax or assessment thereon or any part thereof has been erroneously charged, he may give the person so charged a certificate to that effect to be presented to the treasurer, who shall deduct the amount from such tax or assessment. If at any time the auditor discovers that erroneous taxes or assessments have been charged and collected in previous years, he shall call the attention of the county commissioners thereto at a regular or special session of the board. If the commissioners find that taxes or assessments have been so erroneously charged and collected, they shall order the auditor to draw his warrant on the county treasurer in favor of the person paying them for the full amount of the taxes or assessments so erroneously charged and collected. The county treasurer shall pay such warrant from any surplus or unexpended funds in the county treasury."

It may be further suggested that by the provisions of section 5624-17, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 802, the duty of certifying to the auditor all clerical errors in the tax list discovered by him is imposed upon the district assessor and the auditor is thereby required to enter corrections of the same upon the tax list and duplicate.

I am therefore of opinion that no lien for taxes for the year 1914, attached to the real estate in question prior to the second Monday of April and that if the grantor in the conveyance of date of February 25, 1914, paid taxes for that year, he is entitled to a refunder of such payment.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE LIBRARIAN—REQUIRED TO GIVE ONE BOND COVERING FULL AMOUNT—MAY NOT BE DIVIDED.

Bond of State Librarian to be one bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

Board of Library Commissioners, State Library, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am just in receipt of a letter from C. B. Galbreath, who is to assume the duties of state librarian on April 1st, which letter is as follows:

"I have been elected by the board of library commissioners to the office of state librarian. Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of this office, I am required, under section 790, of the General Code, to give bond in the sum of $10,000.00, 'with two or more sureties approved by the board of library commissioners.' I wish to know if I may, under this section, give two bonds of $5,000.00 each, if said bonds are approved by the board of library commissioners. I expect to assume the duties of the office April 1st."

As the question of the approval of this bond rests with your board, the opinion is addressed to you, and a copy of the same furnished to Mr. Galbreath for his information.

Section 790 of the General Code, as amended on page 531 of 103 laws of Ohio, is as follows:

"Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office, the librarian and each assistant shall give bond to the state, the former in the sum of ten thousand dollars, and the latter in the sum of one thousand dollars, with two or more sureties approved by the board of library commissioners, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. Such bond, with the approval of the board and the oath of office indorsed thereon, shall be deposited with the secretary of state and kept in his office."

It is my opinion that in enacting section 790 of the General Code, as amended, the legislature intended that one bond for ten thousand dollars with two or more sureties should be given, and it would therefore not be in accordance with law to accept two bonds of five thousand dollars each, as suggested by Mr. Galbreath in his letter.

I have to advise you, therefore, that unless the bond of the librarian submitted to you for your approval is in the sum of ten thousand dollars and contains the names of at least two sureties, if a personal bond, or a surety company under section 9573 of the General Code, the same should not be approved by you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DETENTION HOMES OF JUVENILE COURTS NOT REQUIRED TO BE CERTIFIED BY BOARD OF STATE CHARITIES.

Detention homes of juvenile courts are not required to be certified under section 1352-1, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

Board of State Charities, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 25th, which is as follows:

"In attempting to apply the provisions of section 1352-1 of the General Code, the question has arisen as to whether detention homes established in accordance with section 1670 comes under the class of institutions required to be certified by the board of state charities.

There seems to be no doubt that such places will be included under the general terms used in section 1352, but there is a difference of opinion among members of our board as to whether they come within the scope of the terms used in section 1352-1.

We desire your advice as to whether the juvenile court detention homes shall be considered as institutions to be certified."

There is no question but that the provisions of section 1352 of the General Code, as amended on page 865 of 103 laws of Ohio, include detention homes.

Section 1352-1 of the General Code (103 O. L., 865) is as follows:

"Such board shall annually pass upon the fitness of every benevolent or correctional institution, corporation or association, public, semi-public or private as receives or desires to receive and care for children, or places children in private homes. Annually at such times as the board shall direct, each such institution, corporation or association, shall make a report, showing its condition, management and competency, adequately to care for such children as are, or may be committed to it or admitted therein, the system of visitation employed for children placed in private homes, and such other facts as the board requires. When the board is satisfied as to the care given such children, and that the requirements of the statutes covering the management of such institutions are being complied with, it shall issue to the association a certificate to that effect, which shall continue in force for one year, unless sooner revoked by the board. No children shall be committed by the juvenile court to an association or institution which has not such certificate unrevoked and received within fifteen months next preceding the commitment. A list of such certified institutions shall be sent by the board of state charities, at least annually, to all courts acting as juvenile courts and to all associations and institutions so approved. Any person who receives children or receives or solicits money on behalf of such an institution, corporation or association, not so certified, or whose certificate has been revoked, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not less than $5.00 nor more than $500.00."

The provisions of the section quoted above relate to benevolent or correctional institutions, corporations and associations, public, semi-public or private that receive, or desire to receive and care for children or which place children in private homes.

Upon the information obtained by investigation as to the fitness of institutions enumerated in the section to care for children, the board bases its action in issuing the certificate referred to in the section. Upon issuing the certificate, or at least annually, it is provided that a certified list of the institutions shall be sent to all courts acting as juvenile courts and to all associations, corporations and institutions so approved. The detention home provided for under the provisions of section 1670 is to all intents and purposes a part of and under the control of the juvenile court. It is a place for the temporary detention only of children under the age of eighteen years who may be placed there for one reason or another, and in my opinion it is not one of the institutions referred to in section 1352-1, quoted above, and does not require certification as the other institutions enumerated in the section.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION—WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO MODIFY SENTENCE OF SOLITARY CONFINEMENT.

Board of administration without power to modify sentence of prisoner insofar as solitary confinement provision is concerned, except in case of illness. Power to modify rests with governor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

THE OHIO BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your request for an opinion under date of March 24, 1915, which is as follows:

"I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your opinion under date of March 5th, concerning one Aleck Kish, No. 43394, Ohio penitentiary, the closing paragraph of which reads as follows:

"'I am of the opinion, therefore, that as the sentence inflicted by the court in the case under consideration was legal that there is no discretion lodged in the warden of the Ohio penitentiary to disregard its provisions, and that it should be carried into full effect until such times as it may be modified by competent authority.'"

"The board respectfully requests your further opinion as to whether or not the board of administration is a 'competent authority' with power to modify the conditions of the sentence referred to in said opinion."

An examination of the laws governing this question discloses the fact that prior to May 1, 1884, there was on the statute books, and known as "paragraph 3 of section 7427 of the Revised Statutes" a provision relative to the modification of a sentence of solitary confinement. Paragraph 3 of section 7427 is as follows:

"If a prisoner is sentenced to solitary confinement, the sentence shall be executed, subject to the right of the board to modify it so far as may be necessary to prevent any serious injury to health; and no unnecessary labor shall be required of any convict on Sunday."

Under date of March 24, 1884, there was passed an act "relating to the imprisonment of convicts in the Ohio penitentiary, and the employment, government and release of such convicts by the board of managers," which went into effect on May 1, 1884, and repealed section 7427 of the Revised Statutes, quoted above. The act referred to took from the board of managers of the Ohio penitentiary the authority previously had to modify a sentence insofar as the provision of solitary confinement when imposed would be any serious injury to the health of the prisoner.

Section 7427 of the Revised Statutes was considered in a case of the State of Ohio ex rel. Attorney-General v. Peters, reported at page 629 of volume 43, Ohio state reports, on the ground that the act was unconstitutional as contravening the provisions of section 11 of article 3 of the constitution of Ohio, which vests in the governor the exclusive right to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons for all crimes except treason and impeachment, and for the further reason that because the act and this regulation was in conflict with section 1 of article 4 of the constitution as being the exercise of a judicial power. The court, at page 647, speaking through Johnson, J., say:

"Revised Statutes, section 6799, authorizes and requires the court in sentencing a prisoner to declare for what period he shall be kept at hard labor, and for what in solitary confinement without labor, and in all cases of conviction the defendant shall pay the cost of prosecution. The trial, verdict and sentence provided by law are judicial functions, and yet no one doubts the power of the legislature as the representative of the state to mitigate the penalty by abolishing hard labor or solitary confinement, and substituting therefor a less severe form of executing the sentence. The manner in which the discipline of the prison shall be enforced must necessarily be left to the board of managers under appropriate legislation. * * *"

The question before the court was as to the right of the board of managers of the Ohio penitentiary to establish and promulgate rules and regulations for the parole of prisoners under sentence other than for murder in the first or second degrees, etc.

Section 2169 of the General Code, as amended on page 474, of volume 103 laws of Ohio, is as follows:

> "The Ohio board of administration shall establish rules and regulations by which a prisoner under sentence other than for treason, or murder in the first or second degree, having served the minimum term provided by law for the crime of which he was convicted and who had not previously been convicted of felony or served a term in a penal institution, or prisoner under sentence for murder in the second degree having served under such sentence ten full years, may be allowed to go upon parole outside of the building and enclosure of the penitentiary. Full power to enforce such rules and regulations is hereby conferred upon the board, but the concurrence of every member shall be necessary for the parole of a prisoner. The board may designate geographical limits, within and without the state, to which a paroled prisoner may be confined, or may at any time enlarge or reduce such limits, by unanimous vote."

Section 2202 of the General Code provides as follows:

> "One or more apartments in the penitentiary shall be prepared for an infirmary. When the attending physician considers a convict so ill as to require removal from work or solitary confinement, he shall be placed in such infirmary until the physician reports to the warden that he is in a proper condition to be removed. The warden shall then order him back to his former labor or cell."

It will be seen from a reading of section 2202 that provision is made for the removal from solitary confinement of a prisoner who is, in the opinion of the physician, too ill to undergo such confinement and there is no other provision of law governing the incarceration of prisoners in the penitentiary which authorizes the board to modify the sentence as to solitary confinement.

It is my opinion, therefore, upon consideration of the questions involved in this case, that the Ohio board of administration is without authority to modify the sentence of Aleck Kish, except temporarily, as might be made necessary on account of illness, and which is provided for in section 2202 of the General Code. In fact, the provisions of section 2202 are mandatory as to the return of a prisoner to his cell after the disability has been removed, and in the absence of legislation there is no discretion lodged in the warden of the penitentiary as to the execution of the sentence until such a time as it might be modified by competent authority as heretofore stated, which authority would rest in the governor of the state.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

ATHENS ARMORY—CONTRACT APPROVED

Contract and contract bond for construction of Athens armory is regular in form, subject to insertion of satisfactory surety on the bond.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

HONORABLE BYRON L. BARGAR, Secretary Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, O.—

DEAR SIR:—I have examined the form of contract and the contract bond submitted by you with your letter of March 25th, relative to the Athens armory, and I find said contract and the bond regular, with the exception that sureties on the bond are not named. The form of contract and the bond are approved, it being assumed, of course, that the same will not go into effect until your board is entirely satisfied as to the sureties on the bond.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—PERSON COMBINING WINE ORIGINALLY PRODUCED FROM RAW MATERIAL BY ANOTHER WITH WINE PRODUCED BY HIMSELF NOT UNDER LIQUOR LICENSE LAW EXEMPTION.

A person who combines wine originally produced from the raw material by another with that so produced by himself is not as to the sale of the former within the exemption of section 6065, G. C., of the manufacture of intoxicating liquors from the raw material.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of March 24, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

> "Will you please advise this board whether the provisions of section 6065, G. C., exempt a manufacturer of wine who combines his own product with the wines of other manufacturers and sells the mixture in quantities of one gallon or more."

Section 6065, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 241, is as follows:

> "The phrase 'trafficking in intoxicating liquor,' as used in this chapter and in the penal statutes of this state, means the buying or procuring and selling of intoxicating liquor otherwise than upon a prescription issued in good faith by a reputable physician in active practice, or for exclusively known mechanical, pharmaceutical or sacramental purposes. Such phrase does not include the manufacture of intoxicating liquors from the raw material, and the sale thereof by the manufacturer thereof in quantities of one gallon or more at one time at the manufactory or the sale thereof in said quantities from the wagon or other vehicle of the manufacturer to the holder of a liquor license or in said quantities to individual consumers where said liquors are delivered to the homes of said individual consumers in territory wherein the sale of intoxicating liquors is not prohibited by law."

From the first sentence of the above quoted section, it will be observed that "trafficking in intoxicating liquor" primarily means any buying or procuring and selling of any intoxicating liquor, as defined in section 6064, G. C. To this general statement it will be noted there are certain exceptions specifically defined in the further provisions of section 6065, G. C., as above quoted.

For the purpose of answering your question, it will be assumed that the wine referred to by you is intoxicating liquor within the definition of that term above referred to. It would not be practicable for a person to obtain "the wines of other manufacturers" in such manner as not to come clearly within the meaning of the term "buying" or "procuring." That is, a person would be unable to obtain wine manufactured by another without either buying or procuring the same. The sale of wine of other manufacturers so bought or procured would then be beyond question a transaction clearly within the primary meaning of the term "trafficking in intoxicating liquor." This your statement seems to presuppose, and your question is: Does such transaction come within the exceptions of section 6065, G. C.?

No reference being made thereto, it is also assumed that such sales were not made "upon a prescription issued in good faith by a reputable physician in active practice, or for exclusively known mechanical, pharmaceutical or sacramental purposes," and that this exception does not apply to your inquiry.

Your question then may be put in the form following: Does a person who buys or procures wine manufactured by another, by the mere process of blending therewith, before sale, a quantity of wine of his own manufacture, become the manufacturer of the wine so bought or procured by him, or of the whole of such blended wine, within the meaning of the exception as to manufacturers in section 6065, G. C., above quoted?

It will be noted that the exemption of manufacturers under section 6065, G. C., is specifically confined to manufacturers of intoxicating liquors from the raw material.

Raw material is a relative term of varied significance, dependent upon the subject-matter in relation to which it is used and its meaning cannot be determined in a particular case by the application of any hard and fast general rule. In its present application, in view of the purpose and policy of the license law, it seems clear that the phrase "raw material" is intended to include only those materials, such as grains and fruits as are ordinarily used in the production of intoxicating liquors in the first instance. That is to say, "the manufacture of intoxicating liquors from the raw material" in contemplation of section 6065, G. C., includes only the original production of intoxicating liquors from grains, fruits and like materials, and the mere pouring of quantities of wine which had theretofore been originally produced by another from the raw material, as that phrase is above construed, with wine so produced by himself, would not bring a person within the meaning of the exemption of the manufacture of intoxicating liquors from the raw material of that section with respect to that portion of such wine originally produced by another.

Therefore, with respect to so much of such blended wine as was originally produced by another, my answer to your interrogatory must be in the negative.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES INCOMPATIBLE—MEMBER OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF OHIO AND CLERK OF THE VILLAGE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A member of the Ohio general assembly cannot serve as a clerk of the village board of education of which he is a member and receive a salary as such clerk.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

HON. RUPERT R. BEETHAM, Member of House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 15th, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "Is it lawful for a member of the Ohio general assembly to serve as clerk of the village board of education of which he is a member, and receive a salary as such clerk?"

Article II, section 4 of the constitution of Ohio provides:

> "No person holding office under the authority of the United States, or any lucrative office under the authority of this state, shall be eligible to, or have a seat in, the general assembly; but this provision shall not extend to township officers, justices of the peace, notaries public, or officers of the militia."

The office of member of the board of education of a village district is not a lucrative office under the authority of the state and does not come within the exceptions provided in the above section of the constitution. A member of a board of education of a village district may, therefore, hold said office if he is able to perform its duties while holding a seat in the general assembly.

The authority of a village board of education to elect a member of said board as clerk of said board, is found in section 4747, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, which provides in part as follows:

> "The board of education of each city, village and rural school district shall organize on the first Monday of January after the election of members of such board. One member of the board shall be elected president, one as vice-president and a person who may or may not be a member of the board shall be elected clerk. The president and vice-president shall serve for a term of one year and the clerk for a term not to exceed two years."

Section 4774, G. C., provides:

> "Before entering upon the duties of his office, the clerk of each board of education shall execute a bond, in an amount and with surety to be approved by the board, payable to the state, conditioned for the faithful performance of all the official duties required of him. Such bond must be deposited with the president of the board, and a copy thereof, certified by him, shall be filed with the county auditor."

Section 4781, G. C., provides:

> "The board of education of each school district shall fix the compensation of its clerk and treasurer, which shall be paid from the contingent fund of the district. If they are paid annually, the order for the payment of their salaries shall not be drawn until they present to the board of education a certificate from the county auditor stating that all reports required by law have been filed in his office. If the clerk and treasurer are paid semi-annually, quarterly, or monthly, the last payment of their salaries previous to August thirty-first, must not be made until all reports required by law have been filed with the county auditor and his certificate presented to the board of education as required herein."

Under the above provisions of the statute, the office of clerk of a village board of education is a lucrative office under the authority of this state and, replying to your question, I am of the opinion that a member of the Ohio general assembly cannot serve as clerk of the village board of education of which he is a member and receive a salary as such clerk.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—AUTHORITY TO BORROW MONEY TO MEET UNPAID INSTALLMENTS OF TEACHERS' SALARIES—BOND ISSUE —LIMITATION FOR THIS AND LIKE PURPOSES.

A board of education may borrow money under section 5656, G. C., for the purpose of paying unpaid installments of teachers' salaries.

Bonds may not be issued under this section, however, unless within the limitations of the law interest and sinking fund levies sufficient to retire them may be made during the years for which they are to run. Such interest and sinking fund levies being preferred to current levies by the act found in 104 O. L., 12, the board should anticipate its needs for current purposes and its needs for interest and sinking fund purposes and so apportion its indebtedness as not to impair its future revenues for either purpose.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

HON. PERRY SMITH, Prosecuting Attorney, Zanesville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I hasten, in compliance with your request, to answer your letter of March 23rd, requesting my advice upon the following question:

"The board of education of Roseville school district are now in debt $2,600.00. They have not paid their teachers for the month of January and February, and they owe their teachers about $1,500.00. Is there any law or provision of the statute by which they can pay their teachers their salary.

"Their levy for school purposes is 15.06 mills on the dollar of all taxable property."

I assume that the indebtedness of which you speak consists of unpaid salaries of teachers. The board of education may, by virtue of section 5661, General Code, contract with its teachers without the presence of money in the treasury sufficient to discharge such contracts on its part. Therefore, the unpaid teachers' salaries constitute a valid indebtedness of the district. Such indebtedness may be funded by the issuance of notes or bonds under favor of section 5656, General Code, and related sections, to which I refer you, when the conditions therein referred to exist.

Inasmuch as you state that the levy for school purposes is 15.06 mills on the dollar (by which I presume you mean that the total levy in the district amounts to this number of mills), it is obvious that the inability of the school district to pay its obligations results from "its limits of taxation," within the meaning of section 5656, General Code.

If bonds are issued article 12, section 11 of the constitution requires that provision be made for the levy and collection of a sufficient amount annually to pay the interest thereon and to provide a sinking fund to retire them at maturity. The only question which arises under the facts stated by you grows out of the possible difficulty which the board will encounter in making such tax levies.

In Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403, it was held that a board of education is without power to issue bonds when it can not reasonably anticipate the possibility of making the tax levies necessary to retire the same; and the principle of this decision becomes even more important under article 12, section 11 of the constitution, above referred to.

However, since Rabe v. Board of Education, supra, was decided the general assembly has so amended the Smith one per cent law as to require that all interest and sinking fund levies shall be placed upon the tax duplicate before, and in preference to, levies for current expenses (104 O. L. 12).

It seems that under the law as it now stands it is possible for a board of education to incur a bonded indebtedness, so long as the sinking fund levies themselves on account of such bonded indebtedness, together with other sinking fund levies applicable in the taxing district, do not exhaust the levying power under the Smith law. The result of such a practice, however, would be in an extreme case to deprive the taxing authorities of the means of raising revenue for current expenses.

Therefore, when bonds of any kind are being issued the indebtedness thereby created should be spread over a sufficient number of years to bring the necessary sinking fund and interest levies within reasonable bounds, and so as not to impair, beyond the necessities of the case, the revenues for the anticipated current needs of the taxing district.

Of course, article 12, section 11, does not apply to notes such as may be issued instead of bonds under section 5656, General Code. There is little distinction, however, in practice between the issuance of notes and the issuance of bonds; for unless the district can provide by taxation sufficient money to pay the notes when they are due, they will ultimately have to be converted into bonds under the restrictions which I have laid down.

The questions which I have suggested are after all practical ones. So far as the power of the board of education to borrow the money inquired about is concerned, I am of the opinion, as above stated, that the authority exists and may be exercised within the limits which I have defined.

The provisions of the law relative to state aid to weak school districts would seem to afford at least partial relief in cases of this sort. You do not, however, state facts which show whether or not the school district in question is qualified to receive any such aid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TAXATION—SCHOOL LEVIES—SECTIONS 7592, 7751, G. C., LIMITED BY SMITH LAW—STATE AID TO WEAK SCHOOL DISTRICTS—APPLICATION UNDER SMITH LAW.

Section 7592, G. C., is no longer in force and no levy outside the five mill limitation of the Smith law can be made thereunder.

Section 7751, G. C., cannot be so interpreted as to permit a levy thereunder outside of the five mill limitation of the Smith law.

The opinion of the attorney general to the auditor of state under date of February 26, 1912, relative to the application of the law for state aid to weak school districts concurred in, but limited to its application to the said law as it then existed.

Opinion of the attorney general to the auditor of state relative to the joint operation of the law for state aid to weak school districts and the Smith one per cent law, found in Vol. 1, annual report of attorney general, 1912, p. 89, modified 1b, p. 108, concurred in and followed, subject to the qualification that a board of education which has submitted a budget estimate requiring the levy of taxes to the full extent of any absolute limitation of the Smith law, such as five mill limitation of section 5649-3a, G. C., should not be held to have disqualified the district to receive state aid, if such amount is insufficient to operate the schools in accordance with the provisions of the state aid law.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of February 27th, requesting my opinion upon the following questions:

> "Question 1: In a district in which the total levy is seven mills, two mills being under section 7592, G. C., must the tuition fund receive three-fourths of the seven mills before the district can receive state aid?
> "Question 2: When an additional two mills are levied by the board of education under section 7751, G. C., must the tuition fund receive three-fourths of the levy exclusive of the additional two mills?
> "The section provides that the proceeds of the levy shall be kept in a separate fund. The question is, must the tuition fund receive three-fourths of the seven mills levy and the special fund be provided for out of the remaining one-fourth?
> "Question 3: Do you concur in the opinion of Attorney General Hogan, rendered to E. M. Fullington, auditor of state, under date of February 26, 1912? Said opinion relates to the payment of teachers in excess of statutory amount, barring districts from receiving state aid.
> "Question 4: Do you concur in the opinion of Attorney General Hogan, rendered to E. M. Fullington, auditor of state, under date of January 17, 1912—page 89, volume 1—1912, as modified page 108, volume 1-1912?"

Your first question can not be answered because it involves a legally impossible state of facts. There can be no levy under section 7592, General Code, in addition to the five mill limitation of section 5649-3a, General Code. The later enactment of the latter section, which is a part of the Smith law, repealed the former section by implication. (Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403).

Your second question is founded upon a similar misapprehension. Section 7751, General Code, which was enacted before the Smith law was passed, provided as follows:

> "Such tuition (for the pupils of a district attending a high school in another district under agreement between the two boards of education) shall be paid from either the tuition or contingent funds and when the board of education deems it necessary it may levy a tax of not to exceed two mills on each dollar of taxable property in the district in excess of that allowed by law for school purposes. The proceeds of such levy shall be kept in a separate fund and applied only to the payment of such tuition."

The phrase in this section "in excess of that allowed by law for school purposes" can not be applied so as to permit a levy in excess of the five mill limitation of the Smith law, which applies to "the local tax levy for all school purposes." As originally enacted, the language of section 7751 referred to the limitations of sections 7591 and 7592, General Code, which, as above stated, were repealed by the Smith law.

Your first and second questions, therefore, do not require any answer.

Answering your third question, beg to state that I concur with the conclusions of Attorney General Hogan, expressed in the opinion of February 26, 1912.

I call your attention, however, to the fact that Mr. Hogan's opinion was an interpretation of the state aid law as it then existed. Since that time the law has been changed by the amendments and supplementary provisions found in 104 O. L., 165. In concurring in the opinion of Mr. Hogan I do not wish you to understand that I hold that that opinion necessarily applies to the present law. That question has not been considered.

Answering your fourth question, beg to state that I concur generally with the conclusions of Attorney General Hogan expressed in his opinion of January 17, 1912, as later modified, subject, however, to the following qualifications:

I am of opinion that when a board of education has filed with the county auditor for budgetary purposes an estimate of its needs for the incoming year, and such estimate of needs goes to the full extent of any absolute limitation imposed upon the district by the Smith one per cent. law, it may safely be assumed that the failure of the board of education to ask for more was due to the certain knowledge of the members of the board that if more had been asked for it would have been denied.

Putting it in another way, I do not think that any board of education ought to be required, in order to qualify the district for state aid, to submit a budget which would require a levy certainly in excess of any such absolute limitation.

By the phrase "absolute limitation" I mean, for example, the five mill limitation of section 5649-3a, General Code.

The inability of a school district to have a levy of more than five mills does not depend upon other levies in the same territory, and the function of the budget commission with respect to the reduction of any excessive levy, measured by this limitation, is purely ministerial.

Therefore, if a board of education should ask for an amount for a given year which fully exhausts the five mill limitation, I would not think that the district would be disqualified for state aid merely because the amount asked for might not be sufficient to conduct an eight months' school and to pay the required minimum salaries to teachers.

The same principle could be applied to any other absolute limitation of law. Under the Smith law, as amended by the Kilpatrick law, however, the limitations provided in section 5649-3a are the only absolute limitations.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—MAY APPORTION PROCEEDS OF LEVY FOR HOSPITALS BETWEEN TWO INSTITUTIONS, BUT NOT WITH HOSPITAL ORGANIZED FOR PROFIT.

The arrangement authorized by section 4021, G. C., whereby a municipal corporation may levy taxes and pay the proceeds thereof to a hospital for charity work, may be made with more than one hospital, but not with a hospital organized for profit.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 27, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 19th, submitting for my opinion the following questions:

> "Question 1. May the council of a city apportion the proceeds of a levy for hospital purposes between two institutions, if such are organized to furnish the hospital services mentioned in section 4021, General Code?
> "Question 2. If a hospital association is a corporation for profit, could such organization receive public funds if it otherwise complies with the law?"

It appears that the questions are submitted at the request of the prosecuting attorney of Licking county, who calls attention to the provisions of article 8, section 6 of the constitution.

Section 4021 of the General Code provides as follows:

> "The council of each municipality, annually, may levy and collect a tax not to exceed one mill on each dollar of the taxable property of the municipality and pay the amount to a private corporation or association which maintains and furnishes a free public hospital for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality, or not free except to such inhabitants of the municipality as in the opinion of a majority of the trustees of such hospital are unable to pay. Such payment shall be as and for compensation for the use and maintenance of such hospital. Without change or interference in the organization of such corporation or association, the council shall require the treasurer thereof, annually, to make a financial report setting forth all of the money and property which has come into its hands during the preceding year and the disposition thereof, together with any recommendations as to its future necessities."

The legislature has, in this section, seemingly undertaken to authorize municipalities to compensate hospitals for charity work, upon the theory that such work is a benefit to the municipality, in that it relieves the public of the burden of caring for the sick poor, which under the general statutes of the state would otherwise be cast upon it.

Inasmuch as the prosecuting attorney raises the constitutional question, this may be first considered.

In Zanesville v. Crossland, 8 C. C., 652, it was held that what is now section 4022, General Code, is constitutional. That section provides, and then provided as follows:

> "Such council may agree with a corporation or association organized in the municipality for charitable purposes, for the erection and management of a hospital for the sick and disabled, and a permanent interest therein to such extent and upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between them. The council shall provide for the payment of the amount agreed upon for such interest, either in one payment or installments or so much each year as the parties may stipulate."

The circuit court, per Jenner, J., on the authority of Walker v. Cincinnati, 21 O. S., 15, limited the words "any joint stock company, corporation or association whatever," as used in article 8, section 6 of the constitution, to "projects originated by individuals, * * * with a view to gain."

There was another question in the case cited, arising under the peculiar language of section 4022. It appeared that the municipality in that case had not acquired "a permanent interest" in the hospital with which it was proposed to enter into a contract, nor did the contract provide for such an interest. The circuit court held that this alleged defect was immaterial.

Now the case of Zanesville v. Crossland was reversed, without report, in Crossland v. Zanesville, 56 O. S., 735. Such reversal may have been upon constitutional grounds or upon grounds arising out of the interpretation of the statute. Inasmuch as the concurrence of a majority of the court was necessary for a reversal, and it is not to be supposed that the constitutional question would have been decided without an opinion, it seems that it must be assumed that the case was reversed upon the second ground above suggested, and that the supreme court did not intend to disapprove the opinion of the circuit court on the constitutional question.

I feel that it would be improper for me to hold that a given statute is unconstitutional where such a holding is not plainly required by the circumstances of the case; and where, as in this case, there is a decision interpreting the constitution in a given way, I feel that I ought to follow such a decision.

Accordingly, I am of the opinion that article 8, section 6 of the constitution should be so interpreted as to prohibit a municipality from in any way contributing to the support of a corporation or association of individuals organized with a view to gain; but that said section does not prohibit a reasonable arrangement under statutory authority between a municipality and a corporation or association not organized with a view to gain, whereby the municipality may be relieved of some of the burdens otherwise cast upon it.

Section 4021, General Code, is in its essential particulars similar to section 4022, which was involved in the Zanesville case. The decision in that case is, I believe, equally applicable to it.

In this connection, and before taking up the question as to the interpretation of section 4021, I wish to state, for the sake of clearness, that a contract between a municipal corporation and a hospital organized with a view to profit, whereby the municipality merely pays the hospital for actual services rendered in the care of the sick poor, would not be prohibited by article 8, section 6 of the constitution. The distinction here is between payment for actual services rendered and the payment of the proceeds of a whole tax levy, regardless of the amount thereof. Even though the payment of such tax levy be regarded as compensatory, it would, in my opinion, constitute the raising of money for or in aid of a corporation, within the meaning of the constitutional provision, the other necessary condition defined in Zanesville v. Crossland, supra, being present.

It follows, therefore, that while section 4021, General Code, is constitutional within its proper sphere, it cannot be so interpreted as to authorize council to pay all, or any part, of the proceeds of a tax levy to a hospital corporation organized for profit.

This statement answers your second question.

Answering your first question, would advise that, in my opinion, the arrangement contemplated by section 4021, General Code, may be made with more than one hospital.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—APPROVAL OF ORDER FOR SEWAGE AND SEWAGE TREATMENT PLANT VILLAGE OF BRYAN, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 29, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—Attached hereto please find order of the Ohio state board of health directed to the village of Bryan, which is as follows:

> "Be It Ordered by the state board of health of the state of Ohio that the village of Bryan shall within five years from the date upon which this order is approved by the governor and the attorney general of the state of Ohio, install and have in operation the necessary sewers and a sewage treatment plant to correct the pollution of Joe run and Lynn run."

This order amends a previous one and is made pursuant to an agreement reached after a conference with the officials of the village of Bryan and those of the state board of health with your knowledge and consent.

I have examined the provisions of the order and I have approved the same. It is now forwarded to you for your approval in accordance with the provisions of section 1254 of the General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FREE EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES—MONEYS APPROPRIATED IN HOUSE BILL NO. 218 TO EXTEND FREE EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES ARE CURRENT EXPENSES OF GOVERNMENT.

The appropriation of five thousand dollars for the purpose of extending the system of free employment agencies, made in house bill 218, passed March 4, 1915, is for "current expenses" of the state government under the provisions of subdivision 9 of section 871-22, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 29, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 25, 1915, with which you enclose certified copy of house bill No. 218. You ask my opinion as to whether or not this act is a current expense under the constitution of the state of Ohio; you also ask what constitutes current expenses of government. The act referred to is as follows:

> "Section 1. That the following sum, for the purpose hereinafter specified, be, and the same is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund, not otherwise appropriated:
> "Industrial commission of Ohio.
> "For the purpose of extending the system of free employment agencies ----------$5,000.00."

The words "current expenses" are used in section 1b of article II of the constitution of the state of Ohio, but are not defined either in the constitution or in the statutes of this state.

The system of free employment agencies is established, extended, conducted and maintained in this state under authority of a law of a general and permanent nature, being subdivision 9 of section 22 of the industrial commission of Ohio act, (103 O. L., 95). This appropriation is made for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this law, and to provide for the running expenses or the "current expenses" of the free employment agencies of this state as may be established and conducted under authority of subdivision 9 of section 2 of the industrial commission act.

Therefore, in my opinion, this appropriation is for "current expenses" of the state government.

It would be extremely difficult, indeed if it would not be impracticable, to attempt a definition of what would constitute "current expenses" of the state. A consideration of the question makes obvious the fact why a definition of these words has not heretofore been attempted, and I therefore suggest that this question can best be determined in each separate instance on the particular facts presented.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—CANNOT DISCONTINUE RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT AND JOIN SUCH DISTRICT TO A RURAL OR VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT CONTIGUOUS THERETO—COUNTY BOARDS SHOULD RESCIND ATTEMPTED ACTION BY RESOLUTION—FUNDS OF RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT SHOULD BE RETURNED TO ORIGINAL DISTRICT—VOTE OF ELECTORS NECESSARY TO ABOLISH RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT—BOND ISSUE FOR SAME MAY BE SUBMITTED AT ONE ELECTION.

The county board of education has no authority under section 4736, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 138, to discontinue a rural school district and join it to a rural or village school district contiguous thereto.

A county board having attempted to discontinue a rural school district by resolution of record, a copy of which has been filed with the county auditor under the provision of section 4736, G. C., as amended, should rescind said resolution and furnish a copy of the rescinding resolution to the county auditor. A copy of such rescinding resolution should also be furnished to the clerks of the boards of education of the school districts mentioned in said former resolution.

If the funds of such rural school district have been turned over to the treasurer of the board of education of the rural or village school district contiguous thereto, as a result of the action of the county board of education, upon receipt of the notice as above provided, said funds should be returned to the treasury of the rural school district from which they were transferred.

It is necessary, in order to abolish a rural school district, that the question be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of such district under the provision of section 4735, G. C., as amended, and supplemented by sections 4735-1 and 4735-2, G. C., 104 O. L., 138.

The question of centralization under provision of section 4736, G. C., as amended 104 O. L., 139, and the question of issuing bonds under provision of section 7625, G. C., may be submitted to the qualified electors of a rural school district at one election.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 29, 1915.

HON. CLARK GOOD, Prosecuting Attorney, Van Wert, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of March 6th, you request my opinion as follows:

> "The board of education of the county of Van Wert, Ohio, acting under the provisions of 4736 of the General Code, passed a resolution to discontinue several special districts in Ridge township, that is, put the special district back into the general township district.
> "1. If their action was contrary to law should they take any further action in reinstating these special districts?
> "2. If the funds of the special district have been transferred to the general township district fund, should there by any further action taken to transfer these funds back to the special school districts?
> "3. Is it necessary, to abolish special school districts, that there be an election held in these special school districts for that purpose?
> "4. In event an election is necessary and a majority voted to go back into the general township district, then in order to centralize in the township should there be an election held on the question of centralization, and then an election held on the question of bond issue, or would one election for the issuing of bonds be sufficient?"

Section 4679, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 133, relates to the classification of the schools of the state, and provides:

> "The school districts of the state shall be styled, respectively, city school districts, village school districts, rural school districts and county school districts."

Section 4735, General Code, 104 O. L., 138, provides:

> "The present existing township and special school districts shall constitute rural school districts until changed by the county board of education, and all officers and members of boards of education of such existing districts shall continue to hold and exercise their respective offices and powers until their terms expire and until their successors are elected and qualified."

Section 4735-1 General Code, as found in 104 O. L., 138, provides:

> "When a petition signed by not less than one-fourth of the electors residing within the territory constituting a rural school district, praying that the rural district be dissolved and joined to a contiguous rural or village district, is presented to the board of education of such district; or when such board, by a majority vote of the full membership thereof, shall decide to submit the question to dissolve and join to a contiguous rural or village district, the board shall fix the time of holding such election at a special or general election. The clerk of the board of such district shall notify the deputy state supervisors of elections, of the date of such election and the purposes thereof, and such deputy state supervisors shall provide therefor. The clerk of the board of education shall post notices thereof in five public places within the district. The result shall be determined by a majority vote of such electors."

Section 4735-2 General Code, as found in 104 O. L., 138, provides:

> "The legal title of the property of the rural school district, in case such rural district is dissolved and joined to a rural or village district as provided in section 4735-1, shall become vested in the board of education of the rural or village school district to which such district is joined. The school fund of such dissolved rural district shall become a part of the fund of the rural or village school district which it voted to join. The dissolution of such district shall not be complete until the board of education of the district has provided for the payment of any indebtedness that may exist."

Section 4735-1 of the General Code, as above quoted, provides the proper procedure to dissolve a school district, formerly designated as a special school district, but now, under the above provision of section 4735 G. C., known as a rural school district, and to join it to a contiguous rural or village school district.

Section 4736 G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 138, provides in part as follows:

> "The county board of education shall as soon as possible after organizing make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the schools according to topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at any regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. A map designating such changes shall be entered on the records of the board and a copy of the resolution and map shall be filed with the county auditor. In changing boundary lines the board may proceed without regard to township lines and shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation. In no case shall any rural district be created containing less than fifteen square miles."

While the county board of education has authority, under the above provision of section 4736 G. C., to change district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another for the purposes therein mentioned, no authority is given to said board to dissolve a rural district and join it to a rural or village school district contiguous thereto.

Replying to your first question, I am of the opinion that the action of the county board of education of Van Wert county, in passing a resolution to discontinue several "special" districts in Ridge Township within said county, had no effect in law and said county board should, by resolution properly passed, rescind its former resolution, correct its records and notify the county auditor of said county by furnishing him with a copy of the rescinding resolution. A copy of such rescinding resolution should also be furnished to the clerk of the board of education of Ridge township rural school district, and to each one of the clerks of the special school districts mentioned in said former resolution.

If the funds of the special districts have been turned over to the treasurer of the board of education of Ridge township rural school district, as a result of the action of the county board of education, above referred to, upon receipt of the above notice said board of education of the Ridge township rural school district should order said funds to be returned.

The answer to your third question is found in the above provisions of section 4735, 4735-1 and 4735-2 General Code (104 O. L., 138).

Your fourth question is answered in opinion No. 41 of this department, rendered to Hon. Frank W. Miller, superintendent of public instruction, under date of January 30, 1915, a copy of which is enclosed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICTS—AUTHORIZED TO CALL SPECIAL ELECTION TO SUBMIT QUESTION OF CENTRALIZATION TO VOTE OF QUALIFIED ELECTORS.

The provision of section 4726, G. C. as amended 104 O. L., 139, taken in connection with the provision of section 4839, G. C., authorizes the calling of a special election in a rural school district for the purpose of submitting the question of centralization to the vote of the qualified electors of such district.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 30, 1915.

HON. D. F. MILLS, Prosecuting Attorney, Sidney, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 6, 1915, in which you state:

"Several of the rural school districts of Shelby county are considering the question of centralization of their schools, and are contemplating submitting the question to the voters of their respective districts, at a special election to be called for that purpose, under section 4726, G. C.

The question raised by you and on which you ask my opinion is whether or not there is any statutory provision for the calling of a special election for such purpose.

Section 4726 G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, provides:

"A rural board of education may submit the question of centralization, and, upon the petition of not less than one-fourth of the qualified electors of such rural district, or upon the order of the county board of education, must submit such question to the vote of the qualified electors of such rural district at a general election or a special election called for that purpose. If more votes are cast in favor of centralization than against it, at such election, such rural board of education shall proceed at once to the centralization of the schools of the rural district, and, if necessary, purchase a site or sites and erect a suitable building or buildings thereon. If, at such election, more votes are cast against the proposition of centralization than for it, the question shall not again be submitted to the electors of such rural district for a period of two years, except upon the petition of at least forty per cent. of the electors of such district."

Under the above provision of the statute, the board of education of a rural district has authority, and, upon the petition of not less than one-fourth of the qualified electors of such district or upon the order of the county board of education it becomes the duty of the board of education of such rural district, to submit the question of centralization to the vote of the qualified electors of such rural district at a general election or a special election called for that purpose.

As observed by you, this section of the General Code makes no provision for the calling of such special election nor for giving notice of the time when and the place where such special election shall be held.

I call your attention to the provision of section 4839, which provides:

"The clerk of each board of education shall publish a notice of all school elections in a newspaper of general circulation in the district or post written or printed notices thereof in five public places in the district at least ten days before the holding of such election. Such notices shall specify the time and place of the election, the number of members of the board of education to be elected, and the term for which they are to be elected, or the nature of the question to be voted upon."

While section 4840 G. C. provides:

"Unless a statute providing for the submission of a question to the voters of a county, township, city or village provides for the calling of a special election for that purpose, no special election shall be so called. The question so to be voted upon shall be submitted at a regular election in such county, township, city or village, and notice that such question is to be voted upon shall be embodied in the proclamation for such election."

this provision does not apply to boards of education, and, replying to your question, I am of the opinion that the provision of section 4726 G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, taken in connection with the provision of section 4839 G. C., authorized the calling of a special election in a rural school district for the purpose of submitting the question of centralization to the vote of the qualified electors of such district.

A board of education, desiring to submit the question of centralization to the qualified electors of its district, at a special election to be called for that purpose, should pass a resolution declaring its intention and fixing the time and place of holding said election. A copy of said resolution should be certified to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of the county, in order that said board may prepare the ballots and make the necessary arrangements for the submission of said question.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FUNERAL REFORM ASSOCIATION — ENGAGED IN MAKING CONTRACTS OF INSURANCE.

The Funeral Reform Association of the United States, as disclosed by the deposition of S. W. Mather, is engaged in making contracts substantially amounting to insurance.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 30, 1915.

HON. FRANK TAGGART, Superintendent of Insurance, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—On January 25, 1915, I received from Mr. E. M. Small, deputy superintendent of insurance, the following request for an opinion:

> "Enclosed herewith you will find deposition entitled 'investigation in the matter of Funeral Reform Association of the United States by the state department of insurance, represented by Messrs H. L. Goodbread, J. W. Harsha and C. E. Nixon, held at Cleveland, Ohio, Thursday, January 14, 1915, for your consideration and advice.
> "The taking by this department of the enclosed deposition was prompted by complaint filed with this department that the Funeral Reform Association, Cleveland, Ohio, is doing an insurance business.
> "We wish to inquire if it is your opinion, based upon the facts as set out in said deposition, that the said association is conducting an insurance business."

At the time this request was submitted to me it was understood that additional information, together with a brief on the question involved, was to be submitted to me by Messrs. Pretzman and Nixon, attorneys of this city. The information desired has but recently been furnished me, and I call your attention to that fact as explaining my delay in submitting to your department my opinion.

The deposition of S. W. Mather, referred to in the request for opinion, discloses that said deponent, S. W. Mather, is and has been for many years past engaged in business as a funeral director and coffin manufacturer in Cleveland, his office and factory both being on the same premises known as No. 3227 West 25th street. His coffin manufacturing business is operated under the name of "The

S. W. Mather Casket Company," but is not incorporated, and said Mather is its sole owner. Said S. W. Mather is also vice-president and general manager of the Funeral Reform Association of the United States, a corporation having its offices and place of business at No. 3227 West 25th street, Cleveland, Ohio, in the same rooms or quarters occupied and used by the said Mather in the conduct of his business of funeral director. The office is maintained by S. W. Mather at his own expense. The Funeral Reform Association is a corporation not for profit. Its ostensible purpose and business is to secure for its members and their families a saving in burial expenses in the event of the death of any member or of one of his family, and in consideration of such membership privileges and benefits, each member is required to pay a fee of $1.00 in case such member is single, and $3.00 if he has a family. The following is a copy of a certificate of membership, designated "Exhibit A" in the deposition:

"THE FUNERAL REFORM ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES.

"To All Persons, Greeting:

"This certifies that ---------- having paid the sum of $3.00 is entitled to all the rights, privileges, and benefits of membership in this association as prescribed by its constitution and by-laws. Given under our hands and seal this ---------- day of ----------, A. D., ------.

"SEAL. President,

"Secretary."

A member receives and is promised no benefit except in the event of his death or of the death of a member of his family. In the event of any such death he is entitled to receive membership benefits only from S. W. Mather with whom the Reform Funeral Association has a contract to furnish undertaking services and casket at a reduced price to its members. If the member employ any undertaker other than S. W. Mather or purchases a casket elsewhere he loses the benefits to which his membership entitles him.

The following is an extract of a circular issued by the Funeral Reform Association, marked "Exhibit D" in the deposition:

"The membership is numbered by the thousands and applications for membership are constantly on the increase. To carry out its purpose a contract was entered into with the S. W. Mather Casket Company to manufacture and furnish funeral supplies for our members, and attend to the burial of our dead at prices designated by the association."

From membership fees paid into the association the agent securing the member gets one-half and the association the other half. It is only by employing Mather as undertaker and purchasing from him the casket and other burial furnishings that a member is able to secure the benefits promised by virtue of his certificate of membership. The association has no contract with any other undertaker or casket manufacturer, and at no other place is the certificate of such member of value to its owner or entitle him to any reduced rate or other benefit.

You inquire whether the Funeral Reform Association, under the facts above stated, is engaged in conducting an insurance business. Section 665 of the General Code, defines who may engage in the insurance business in Ohio, as follows:

"No company, corporation, or association, whether organized in this state or elsewhere, shall engage either directly or indirectly in this state in the business of insurance, or enter into any contracts substantially amounting to insurance, or in any manner aid therein, or engage in the business of guaranteeing against liability, loss or damage, unless it is expressly authorized by the laws of this state, and the laws regulating it and applicable thereto, have been complied with."

Although the deposition discloses that the Funeral Reform Association only guarantees to its members that it will provide reduced burial rates in the event of the death of a member or of one of his family, and that the assessment or premium for this privilege is payable in a lump sum and at the origin of the contract, I do not believe that the character of the contract is changed thereby or that the definition of "insurance" is evaded.

While not altogether free from doubt, I am of the opinion upon the facts revealed in the deposition that the Funeral Reform Association is engaged in making contracts substantially amounting to insurance.

Although your question involves only the question as to whether or not the Funeral Reform Association is conducting an insurance business, yet in examining the testimony of Mr. Mather, my attention is called to the provisions of section 666 of the General Code relative to the insurance of burial and funeral expenses, which is as follows:

"No company, corporation or association engaged in the business of providing for the payment of the funeral, burial or other expenses of deceased members, or certificate holders therein or engaged in the business of providing any other kind of insurance shall contract to pay or pay such insurance or its benefits or any part of either to any official undertaker or to any designated undertaking concern or to any particular tradesman or business man, so as to deprive the representative or family of the deceased from, or in any way to control them, in procuring and purchasing such supplies and services in the open market with the advantages of competition, unless expressly authorized by the laws of this state and all laws regulating such insurance or applicable thereto have been complied with."

Apparently the Funeral Reform Association, under the facts revealed in the deposition, is, without being "expressly authorized by law" also engaged in a class of business prohibited by the above statute and liable to the penalty imposed for such violation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—QUERIES RELATIVE TO RULES ADOPTED BY INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION GOVERNING RATES OF INSURANCE UNDER WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED FIRST BY INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 30, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR:—As per your request I have considered the letter of The Builders' and Traders' Exchange, of Columbus, Ohio, addressed to you under date of March 12, 1915, relative to the rules adopted by the industrial commission governing the rating system under the compensation act.

This body requests its special committee to appear before the "proper authority" and ask for some measure of relief, etc. The "proper authority" is the industrial commission of Ohio, which, under favor of sections 6, 7 and 8, is specifically authorized to fix the rates and penalty complained of.

Section 7 of the act, section 1465-54 of the General Code, provides that:

> "It shall be the duty of the state liability board of awards, in the exercise and discretion conferred upon it in the preceding section, ultimately to fix and maintain, for each class of occupation, the lowest possible rates of premium consistent with the maintenance of a solvent state insurance fund and the creation and maintenance of a reasonable surplus, after the payment of legitimate claims for injury and death that it may authorize to be paid from the state insurance fund for the benefit of injured and the dependents of killed employes. * * *"

For the governor or the attorney general to pass intelligently upon the question of rates it would be necessary to make an exhaustive examination of the nature of the business and the hundreds of various persons and industries coming under the provisions of this law.

Subdivision 3 of section 7 of this act (section 1465-54, G. C.) provides as follows:

> "3. On the first day of July, 1914, and semi-annually thereafter, a readjustment of the rates shall be made for each of the several classes of occupation or industry which, in the judgment of the board, have developed an average loss ratio, in accordance with the experience of the board in the adiministration of the law as shown by the accounts kept as provided herein."

It would be appropriate, and anyone aggrieved thereby would have the right, to appear before the industrial commission, file complaint against unreasonable rates, and be heard in support thereof. If upon such hearing said rates as amended, or as adhered to by the commission, are still unsatisfactory to the party so complaining, then recourse could be had by such party's appealing to the court and the rate attacked on the ground of unreasonableness as not "being the lowest possible rate of premium consistent with the maintenance of a solvent state insurance fund," etc.

The so-called "penalization charges" are the result of the commission's endeavor to maitnain the lowest possible rate. If there are no accidents in excess of what the general rule might contemplate, no so-called penalty attaches, but if such unusual accident occurs, then the additional charge as provided for in rule 5 (bulletin of the industrial commission, January 1, 1915, vol. II, No. 1, page 45) would attach.

A careful personal inspection of all the plants insured in Ohio could be impossible with anything short of an army of inspectors; so this rule has been promulgated in Ohio in its developing stages, and is being amended every six months, as experience dictates. It is but the converse of the rule followed by liability insurance companies. Such companies inspect a man's factory and tell him that the rate will be lower to him if he makes certain changes suggested by the inspector. The plan of the commission is to estimate the lowest possible rate consistent with safety, reserving to itself under its authorized rule the right to attach additional rates if unusual accidents should occur.

A full analysis of this interesting feature of the industrial insurance requires a discussion of considerable length. Inasmuch as these rules are not permanent, but are subject to change, and are being changed, at the end of each six-month period, any complaint should be in the first instance filed and heard before the commission promulgating such rules complained against.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SECTIONAL NUMBER OF HOUSE BILL NO. 522, APPEARING IN 103 O. L., 767, SHOULD BE NO. 3515-1, G. C., FOR ENTIRE BILL—BALLOTS FOR SUBMITTING PLAN OF CITY GOVERNMENT SHOULD BE "CHAPTER 1, SECTION 3515-1, G. C."

House bill No. 522, passed by the general assembly, April 28, 1913, as found in 103 O. L., 767, to 786, both inclusive, has been officially designated as "section 3515-1 of the General Code."

The placing of the word and figures "section 3515-6" opposite section 6 of article 1 of the bill was a clerical error and should be disregarded.

The chapter and section number to be supplied in the blanks appearing in section 3 of article 1 of said house bill No. 522, on the ballots for the submission of the question of adoption of a plan of city government, should be "chapter 1, section 3515-1 of the General Code."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 31, 1915.

HON. C. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of March 26th, requesting my opinion, is received and is as follows:

> "We beg to submit for opinion a question submitted to this department by the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of Columbiana county, Ohio, which communication reads as follows:
> "'We have filed with us a petition to submit the city manager plan of government in the city of Wellsville. We note in section 3 as shown on page 767 of volume 103, that it should be submitted as provided in chapter

__, section __, of the General Code. What chapter and section shall we have printed on the ballot? The city manager plan is given on page 771 of volume 103 as article 4, which is confusing.'"

"Please give us your opinion upon this question as soon as possible."

The law providing for optional plans of government for municipalities and permitting the adoption thereof by popular vote is contained in house bill No. 522, passed by the general assembly April 28, 1913, and is found in volume 103, Ohio Laws, pages 767 to 786, both inclusive.

Opposite the first section of the law as it appears in 103 Ohio Laws, page 767, is found the official Code number, to-wit, section 3515-1. No other Code numbers have been given to any part of this bill, except that opposite section 6 of the bill, on page 769, 103 Ohio Laws, appears the Code number "section 3515-6."

An examination of the enrolled copy of said house bill No. 522 reveals the fact that the first six sections of the bill were originally given Code numbers, being section 3515-1 to 3515-6, both inclusive. Thereafter, all of said Code numbers, except section 3515-1 and section 3515-6, were erased from the enrolled copy, and the bill in this condition was filed with the Secretary of State and carried into 103 Ohio Laws.

It is therefore clear that the official whose duty it was to assign the Code numbers to this law intended to assign but one Code number to the entire bill, and that said number should be "3515-1," and that the number "3515-6" was left on the enrolled bill through a clerical error. This conclusion is supported by the fact that section 6 of the bill, opposite which the Code number "3515-6" appears, is at the top of a page, and in making the erasures above mentioned was evidently overlooked; and by the further fact that the certificate at the end of the bill is in the following words:

"The sectional number on the margin herein is in conformity to the General Code,".

thus indicating that only one sectional number had been assigned to this particular bill.

The Code number "section 3515-6" should, therefore, be disregarded and the entire house bill No. 522 should be regarded as "section 3515-1 of the General Code."

Your question therefore can be answered specifically by saying that there should be printed on the ballots the following question:

"Shall the city manager plan of government, as provided in chapter 1, section 3515-1 of the General Code, be adopted?"

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—NOT AUTHORIZED TO ERECT MEMORIAL BUILDING WHERE LEVY AUTHORIZED BY ELECTORS WAS FOR "A MONUMENT OR OTHER SUITABLE MEMORIAL STRUCTURE."

Under sections 14848 and 14849, Appendix General Code, the commissioners of a county are not authorized to erect a memorial building containing rooms for assemblage and other similar purposes, but only to erect a structure of a monumental character.

When the tax provided for by these sections has been levied and is in the treasury, it may and must be expended for the purpose of erecting a monument or memorial structure, unless the project is formally abandoned. Lapse of time between the making of the levy and expenditure of the money does not affect the case.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 31, 1915.

HON. DEAN N. STANLEY, Prosecuting Attorney, Lebanon, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of March 22nd, the receipt whereof is acknowledged, is as follows:

> "In 1901, the Commissioners of Warren county, Ohio, by virtue of section 3107-38 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio in force at that time, submitted to a vote of the electors of Warren county the question of levying a tax as provided in section 3107-39 of the Revised Statutes, at which election a majority of the votes cast were in favor of such tax. Pursuant thereto, a tax was levied and there is now in the hands of Warren county a sum in excess of $9,000, the proceeds of said tax and the interest thereon.
> "The commissioners of Warren county desire to expend this money in the erection of a memorial building to commemorate the memory of soldiers from said county who served in the Union army in the war of the Rebellion.
> "In 1905, trustees were appointed by Gov. Herrick, as provided in section 3059 of the General Code, who submitted to the voters of this county the question of issuing bonds as provided in said section and those subsequent thereto. A majority of the votes cast upon such proposition were against the issuance of such bonds.
> "I write to request your opinion, first as to whether or not the commisioners may now proceed to erect a memorial building using the funds now in their hands and such additional funds as may be donated for that purpose; second, if your answer upon the first question is in the affirmative, have the commissioners the power to furnish and maintain such building when it is erected."

Section 3107-38 of the Revised Statutes, to which you refer, is now found in the appendix to the General Code under the sectional number "14848." The entire act of which it is a part is as follows:

> "Sec. 14848. The commissioners of any county in this state be and they are hereby authorized to submit to a vote of the people of said county, at any general election for state and county officers, the question whether or not a tax of not more than one-half mill upon each dollar shall be levied upon all property upon the tax duplicate of said county to raise a fund wherewith to erect a monument or other suitable memorial structure to perpetuate the memory of soldiers from said county who served in the union army during the late rebellion."

"Sec. 14849. In case a majority of the voters of any county voting upon said question shall vote in favor of imposing said proposed tax for said purpose, said tax shall be made payable in two installments of one-quarter of a mill each, and shall be imposed and collected during the two years next succeeding the taking of said vote, and the moneys arising from said tax shall be expended by said commissioners in the erection of a monument or other suitable memorial structure, as said commissioners may deem best and most appropriate, at such place in said county as may be designated by said commissioners, and said money shall be applied to no other use or purpose whatever."

The tax having been levied, the commissioners, in my opinion, have the right to expend it for the purpose for which it was levied. Although a period of fourteen years has elapsed since the levy was made, it does not appear that there has been an abandonment of the project, as might have been the case had the vote been favorable, but had the commissioners neglected for an equal number of years to make the levy.

The proceeds of the special tax constitute a trust fund, in a sense, and this fund can be devoted only to the purpose contemplated, in the absence of express statutory authority to the contrary. Such statutory authority is found, if at all, in the provisions of section 5654, General Code, as amended 103 O. L., 521, which is as follows:

"The proceeds of a special tax, loan or bond issue shall not be used for any other purpose than that for which the same was levied, issued or made, except as herein provided. When there is in the treasury of any city, village, county, township or school district a surplus of the proceeds of a special tax or of the proceeds of a loan or bond issue which cannot be used, or which is not needed for the purpose for which the tax was levied, or the loan made, or the bonds issued, all of such surplus shall be transferred immediately by the officer, board or council having charge of such surplus, to the sinking fund of such city, village, county, township or school district, and thereafter shall be subject to the uses of the sinking fund.

I question seriously whether the fund of which you speak can be regarded as a "surplus." Moreover, I do not think that it can be regarded as a fund not needed for the purpose for which it was levied, at least until the county commissioners so find. As long as the commissioners entertain the intention of ultimately using the fund for the purpose for which it was levied, a transfer thereof to the sinking fund can not be compelled, and, in that event, the first sentence of the section would have the effect of preventing the use of the fund for any purpose other than that for which it was levied.

In the came connection I observe that section 14849, supra, expressly provides that "said money shall be applied to no other use or purpose whatever." While this provision could, of course, be modified by the inconsistent provisions of any subsequently enacted statute, no such statute other than section 5654, which has been mentioned, exists.

While your question is possibly open to more than one interpretation, I assume that when you state that the wish of the commissioners is to erect a "memorial building" you mean that it is intended to erect such a building as is contemplated by sections 3059 et seq., General Code, to which you refer. This, in my opinion, can not be done. While section 14849 of the appendix authorizes the use of moneys levied as therein provided for the erection of a "memeorial structure," the nature of the structure, in my judgment, is that indicated by the context. The whole phrase is "a monument or other suitable memorial structure." On familiar principles of statutory interpretation "the other suitable memorial structure" must be in the nature of a monument.

Such a "memorial structure" as might lawfully be erected by the use of the funds in question would, of course, not require furnishings; nor would it require maintenance in the full sense of that term. Such repairs as might be necessary in order to keep the structure in good condition might be lawfully made, I think, by the county commissioners by the use of public funds. The structure would be a "county" structure in the full sense of the word, and the commissioners would have the implied power to keep it in good condition.

Your letter mentions the fact that the commissioners are anticipating the possibility, at least, of receiving donations with a view to the erection of a memorial building. Power to receive donations and to apply them to their intended purpose is expressly conferred upon the county commissioners by section 18 of the General Code.

Just what might be done with a gift of this kind, and to what extent, if any, the commissioners might combine the project of building a monument or memorial structure by the use of the public funds and a memorial building containing rooms for patriotic organizations, etc., by the use of the privately donated funds, I would not undertake to advise without more specific information as to the terms of the proposed gifts. At all events, I am satisfied that the money which the commissioners now have on hand may not be applied to the construction of a "memorial building" in the exact sense, nor to the furnishing and maintenance of such a building.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNCIL IS WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO APPROPRIATE MONEY FOR PUBLIC NURSE.

A city council is without authority to appropriate money for a public nurse.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, March 31, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a request for opinion from Hon. Allan C. Aigler, city solicitor of Bellevue, Ohio, which reads as follows:

> "May the council of a city appropriate money for a public nurse where there is no hospital located within the corporate limits of the municipal corporation? It is the intent of those back of the proposition that the so-called public nurse shall visit, in case of sickness, all homes where a regular nurse cannot be employed because of the financial situation of the parties and further render such aid to the people of the community as will tend to raise the standards of living and preserve the health of the citizens generally. I presume that if such expenditure of money can be legally made, it would have to be done under the direction of the board of health of the city.

"It is my opinion that such nurse cannot be paid out of the funds of the city. So far as I have been able to determine from an examination of the statutes of Ohio there would be no warrant for such expenditure of money, unless it could be done under section 4411 of the General Code of Ohio, which authorizes the board of health to appoint as many persons for sanitary duty as in its opinion the public health and sanitary condition of the corporation require. However, I seriously question whether the duties of nursing are included in the term "sanitary duty" and also whether the police powers given to sanitary police can be legally exercised by a woman whom our board of health desires to aid in the work of a public nurse."

Under our arrangement, this being a municipal matter, I am addressing the opinion to you and sending a copy of same to Mr. Aigler.

I know of no authority by which council would be authorized to appropriate money for a public nurse as described in Mr. Aigler's letter.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SECTION 4665, G. C., GRANTS IMPLIED AUTHORITY TO PAY EXPENSES OF GRAND JURORS INCURRED IN MAKING INSPECTION OF CERTAIN INSTITUTIONS.

Section 4665, G. C., contains implied authority to pay actual and necessary expenses of grand jurors in making an inspection of benevolent and correctional institutions under order of the court.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 1, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 12th, requesting my opinion upon the following question:

> "The grand jury and judge of the common pleas court in a certain county visited three city institutions for the purpose of inspection, under the right granted by section 4665 of the General Code. A bill was presented to the county for the sum of $79.50, as expenses of the trip; of this sum $60.00 was for the hire of three automobiles, and $19.50 for the meals of the jury. This bill was O. Kd. by the foreman of the grand jury and by the judge of the court of common pleas.
> "Question: What section of the General Code authorizes the payment of this bill?"

Section 4665, General Code, is as follows:

> "The general assembly of the state, by a committee, the governor of the state, the council of the corporation, by a committee, the mayor or police judge of a corporation, the board of health of the corporation, the judge of any court of this state, and the grand jury of the county, may at any time visit and inspect any of the benevolent or correctional institutions established by any municipal corporation, and examine the books and accounts thereof."

Section 13556 provides the oath of the foreman of the grand jury, which oath is afterwards by adoption taken by each member of the grand jury and is as follows:

> "Saving yourself and fellow jurors, you, as foreman of this grand inquest, shall diligently inquire, and true presentment make, of all such matters and things as shall be given you in charge, or otherwise come to your knowledge, touching the present service * * *."

Section 13558 provides:

> "The grand jurors, after being sworn, shall be charged as to their duty by the judge * * *."

From independent investigation I have found that in the particular instance referred to one of the judges of the court of common pleas of Hamilton county, whose duty it was to charge the grand jury, instructed them to inspect the benevolent institutions of Cincinnati under the authority given in section 4665, above quoted.

I am of the opinion that the authority to pay the necessary expenses incurred by a grand jury when making an investigation under said section 4665, G. C., is impliedly contained in said section. The duty rests upon the grand jury of making the investigation when so charged by the court, and to hold that the grand jury might not be reimbursed for its actual and necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of the duty performed would be in effect to hold the statute inoperative.

I am therefore of the opinion that the bill as presented, approved by the foreman of the grand jury and the judge of the common pleas court, should be paid from the county treasury from the judicial fund.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

VACANCY—COUNTY AUDITOR—TO BE FILLED BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR UNEXPIRED TERM AND AGAIN RE-APPOINTED UNTIL SUCCESSOR IS ELECTED AND QUALIFIED.

L was a county auditor and was elected to succeed himself at the November, 1914, election. He died January 23, 1915, and D was appointed to the vacancy. D will hold the office until the third Monday of October, 1915, when it will be necessary for the commissioners to make a new appointment. The new appointee will hold office until his successor shall have been elected for the unexpired term at the November, 1916, election, and shall have qualified.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 2, 1915.

HON. A. C. MCDOUGAL, Prosecuting Attorney, Woodsfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of March 17, 1915, in which you state that J. G. Lapp, auditor of Monroe county, died January 23, 1915. The term which he was then serving would have expired on the third Monday of October, 1915. At the general election in November, 1914, he was elected for another term, which term would have commenced on the third Monday of October, 1915. Upon the death of J. G. Lapp, the county commissioners appointed T. A. Dougherty to fill the unexpired term caused by the death of Mr. Lapp. You now inquire whether the commissioners will have to make another appointment to fill the term commencing on the third Monday of October, 1915, or whether the present incumbent, T. A. Dougherty, will hold the office as J. C. Lapp would have done had he not died, i. e., by getting a new commission and given a new bond.

The above statement of facts made by you may be supplemented by the further statement that from the records in the office of the secretary of state it appears that the commissioners used the following language in their journal entry appointing Mr. Dougherty:

> "We hereby appoint T. A. Dougherty county auditor for the unexpired term of the said J. G. Lapp, and until his successor is elected or appointed and qualified."

This action was taken under authority of section 2562, G.C., which section reads as follows:

> "If a vacancy occurs in the office of county auditor, from any cause, the commissioners of the county shall appoint a suitable person, resident of the county, to fill the vacancy."

The question now is as to whether or not the commissioners will have to make another appointment for the term commencing on the third Monday of October, 1915. In answering this question attention should first be given to section 2558, G. C., which reads as follows:

> "A county auditor shall be chosen biennially in each county, who shall hold his office for two years, commencing on the third Monday in October next after his election."

From the language of the above section no power in a county auditor to hold over after the expiration of his term could be inferred. Section 8 of the General Code provides that a person holding an office of public trust shall continue therein until his successor is elected or appointed and qualified, unless otherwise provided in the constitution or laws, but this section does not apply for the reason that with respect to the office of county auditor it is otherwise provided by section 2561, G. C., which section reads as follows:

> "If a county auditor-elect fails to give bond and take the oath of office as required by law on or before the day on which he is so required to take possession of his office, it shall become vacant."

In the case of State ex rel. Adams v. Hopkins, 10, O. S., 509, the court in construing a similar statute said that, were it necessary, it would hold that under such statute an office became vacant upon the failure of a successful candidate, who had died after his election, to give bond and take the oath of office. The court observed that "this failure was caused by the act of God, and not by the laches of the party, but its effect upon the office is the same, whatever may have been its cause."

It, therefore, appears that the commissioners, in acting under section 2562, G. C., and filling the vacancy caused by the death of J. G. Lapp, had authority to appoint only for the unexpired term of Mr. Lapp, and that the term of the appointee, T. A. Dougherty, will cease and the office will become vacant on the third Monday of October, 1915. It, therefore, follows that it will be necessary for the county commissioners to make a new appointment on the third Monday of October, 1915.

Your inquiry also involves a consideration of the tenure of office of the person to be appointed on the third Monday of October, 1915. In this connection your attention is directed to section 10, G. C., which reads in part as follows:

> "When an elective office becomes vacant, and is filled by appointment, such appointee shall hold the office until his successor is elected and qualified. Unless otherwise provided by law, such successor shall be elected for the unexpired term at the first general election for the office which is vacant that occurs more than thirty days after the vacancy shall have occurred. * * *"

There being no other provision of law governing the matter, and the first general election for the office of auditor occurring more than thirty days after the third Monday of October, 1915, being the general election that will occur in November, 1916, it follows that the successor to the person to be appointed on the third Monday of October, 1915, is to be elected at the general election to be held in November, 1916, and that the person so elected will serve until the third Monday of October, 1917. The person appointed on the third Monday of October, 1915, will, therefore, serve until his successor shall have been elected at the November election in 1916, and until that successor shall have qualified. At the same election there will also be chosen in Monroe county a county auditor to serve for the full term beginning on the third Monday of October, 1917.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DELEGATE—TOWNSHIP BOARD OF HEALTH CAN AUTHORIZE THE APPOINTMENT OF ONLY ONE DELEGATE AND PAY HIS EXPENSES TO ATTEND ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF LOCAL BOARDS WITH STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

A township board of health is only authorized to appoint one delegate under section 1245, G. C., and pay his expenses for attending state health conference; if in addition it authorizes president of board to attend likewise, his expenses cannot be paid.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 2, 1915.

HON. DONALD F. MELHORN, Prosecuting Attorney, Kenton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of March 6th, you submitted to me for opinion the following question:

> "Is a president of a township board of health, who attends a state health conference, not as an appointed delegate under G. C., 1245, but in accordance with a resolution of the township board of health directing him to attend such conference, entitled to draw pay for necessary expenses upon production of the certificate specified in G. C., 1245?"

You further state as follows:

> "Some time prior to July 9, 1912, the board of health of Hale township, Hardin county, in regular session, passed a resolution authorizing the president of the board of health, Mr. Mort Ansley, to attend the state health conference at Toledo, Ohio. By the same resolution Mr. John Dille was appointed delegate to the same conference. Both of these men attended said conference and on July 9, 1912, each drew from the township treasury $11.00 as expense money for the same."

A township board of health is provided for by sections 3391, et seq., of the General Code.

Section 3391 provides that township trustees shall constitute the board of health for the township outside the limits of any municipality, and section 3394 grants them the same duties, powers and restrictions as are imposed upon or granted to boards of health in municipalities.

An examination of section 4404, et seq., of the General Code, relating to the boards of health of cities and villages, fails to disclose any power in such boards, by resolution to authorize any member of the board to attend an annual conference with the state board of health. The only provision for a representative of a township board of health to attend such a meeting is by virtue of section 1245 of the General Code, which provides in part as follows:

> "The state board of health may make provision for annual conferences of health officers and representatives of local boards of health. * * *. Each board of health or other body or person appointed or acting in the place of a board of health shall appoint a delegate to such annual conferences. The * * * township shall pay the necessary expenses of such delegate upon the presentation of a certificate from the secretary of the state board that the delegate attended the sessions of such conferences."

Section 1246 permits the board of health to provide for different conferences, but restricts the length of any one conference to three consecutive days, and further provides:

> "and no board of health shall be required or authorized to send a delegate to more than one conference in any year."

The above provisions of statute are clear that it was the intention of the legislature to provide for one delegate and no more to each such conference, and authorize each board of health to appoint such a delegate to attend the conference and to pay him therefor. The attendance at such a conference by any member of the board not appointed as a delegate under the provisions of section 1245, G. C., would not entitle such person so attending to draw pay for necessary expenses upon production of a certificate. The issuance of such certificate by the secretary of the state board of health to one who has not been duly appointed under section 1245 would be a nullity since the statute clearly provides for a certificate to a duly appointed delegate.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES—LIMITATIONS TO PROVIDE RELIEF FOR PROPER COUNTY CHARGES—COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF INFIRMARY—ALSO LIMITED TO PROVIDE OUTSIDE RELIEF FOR COUNTY CHARGE ONLY WHEN IMPRACTICABLE TO PROVIDE OTHERWISE.

Township trustees are authorized to provide relief for person who is proper subject of county charge only for such length of time as is practicable to effect the admission of such person to the infirmary in counties where there is a county infirmary.

The superintendent of a county infirmary may provide outside relief for a county charge only when for any reason it is impracticable to provide such relief in the infirmary of the county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 2, 1915.

HON. CLARK GOOD, Prosecuting Attorney, Van Wert, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your request for an opinion as follows:

> "I should like to ask for an opinion from your department, on the following statement of facts:
> "We have a lady here whose husband is now in the penitentiary serving a term for abandonment of legitimate children and during the time he was absent prior to his incarceration in the penitentiary, the township trustees, of the township in which she lives, have been giving her some assistance, and since her husband is in the pentitentiary they have continued to assist her.
> "Can the county commissioners furnish her aid at her home?
> "Or would her case be considered temporary assistance and would the trustees be the proper ones to furnish her aid?
> "How long should the township trustees furnish aid in a case of this kind, and what is the distinction between temporary and permanent assistance?"

Section 3476, G. C., provides in general for the relief of poor by township trustees, as follows:

> "Subject to the conditions, provisions and limitations herein, the trustees of each township or the proper officers of each municipal corporation therein, respectively, shall afford at the expense of such township or municipal corporation public support or relief to all persons therein who are in condition requiring it."

Sections 3480, 3490, 3491 and 3492, G. C., prescribe the conditions under which and the method by which medical services shall be furnished by township trustees.

Section 3481 requires the visitation of such poor as require public relief by one or more of the trustees or other officers forthwith to ascertain such information as will enable them to determine whether or not such person is under the law entitled to public relief. In counties having infirmaries, provision for further relief is found in section 2544, G. C., as follows:

> "In any county having an infirmary, when the trustees of a township, after making the inquiry provided by law, are of the opinion that the person complained of is entitled to admission to the county infirmary, they shall forthwith transmit a statement of the facts to the superintendent of the infirmary, and if it appears that such person is legally settled in the township or has no legal settlement in this state, or that such settlement is unknown, and the superintendent of the infirmary is satisfied that he should become a county charge, they shall forthwith receive and provide for him in such institution, or otherwise, and thereupon the liability of the township shall cease. The superintendent of the infirmary shall not be liable for any relief furnished, or expenses incurred by the township trustees."

From the provisions of this section it is manifestly the policy of the law that in case of all those persons who are entitled to admission to the county infirmary, and whose circumstances and conditions are such as to reasonably indicate the necessity of public relief for an indefinite or any considerable period of time, the matter of providing relief should in as expeditious a manner as is practicable and in conformity to law, be turned over to the superintendent of the infirmary and that in those cases the trustees should provide only such relief as is necessary for such person during the time required to transmit to the superintendent of the infirmary the statement of facts prescribed and for such person in due course of business to be received by the superintendent. The same rule would also apply in case of persons requiring public relief who have no legal settlement within the county in which they are found, under provisions of section 3842, G. C.

Under the provisions of section 3484, G. C., in counties in which there is no county infirmary, in the case of persons who have no legal settlement within the county, the trustees of the township in which he is found are required to furnish necessary relief until such person is removed to the county of his settlement or taken in charge by the officers of such county.

In counties where there is a county infirmary as well as in those where there is none, cases may be readily imagined in which persons would require public relief for a very short period of time or only to provide for a particular exigency and these I deem to be within contemplation of section 3488, G. C., and with all the foregoing to constitute what may be properly termed temporary relief. From an examination of the statutes above referred to, it will seem clear that there is no authority for trustees providing other than temporary relief in counties having infirmaries except in those cases, if such there be, where persons who for any reason are not entitled to be admitted to any infirmary require public relief.

In those counties having no infirmary, it is incumbent upon the trustees under the provisions of sections 3476, 3488 and 3489, G. C., to provide relief for all those persons having legal settlement within the township for such period of time as their condition and circumstances may require.

Attention is called to section 2544, wherein, after it is determined that a person should become a county charge by the superintendent of the infirmary, it is made the duty of the superintendent to "forthwith receive and provide for him in such institution or otherwise." Again in section 2545, G. C., the superintendent is required to report the names of all persons to whom relief has been given outside of the infirmary. From this it will hardly be doubted that it was the legislative purpose to vest in the superintendent authority to provide relief for persons other than those actually confined in the infirmary under certain contingencies.

In view of the manifest policy of the law as above stated, this provision must be considered in the light of an exception to such general scheme and policy, and by reason thereof be subject to a rather strict construction.

Cases suggest themselves which by reason of their peculiar circumstances render it impracticable that the necessary relief of proper county charges be afforded at the infirmary. A county charge may be in such physical condition as to render his removal extremely hazardous or be affected with a contagious or infectious disease of such character as to render it dangerous to the safety and health of other inmates that he be admitted to the infirmary or by reason of epidemic or other such exigency it may become temporarily impracticable to furnish proper accommodations for all those persons who are properly subject of county charge in the infirmary, hence the necessity for some provision and authority for relief outside of the infirmary. It is my opinion, however, that outside relief by the superintendent should be carefully restricted to cases of a character similar to those above indicated and even in those, outside relief should continue only for such length of time as to render practical admittance to and relief within the infirmary.

Answering your question more specifically, insofar as the facts stated by you will warrant a conclusion, I am of opinion that if the lady referred to is a proper county charge, relief may not be provided her at her home by the superintendent of the infirmary.

As before stated, in counties where there is a county infirmary, township trustees may provide relief to persons who should become a county charge only for such length of time as may be necessary to have such person admitted to the infirmary in the manner provided by law.

The distinction between temporary and permanent relief may not be determined by any hard and fast rule, but depends upon the particular conditions and circumstances of each case.

It may be suggested that it does not follow of necessity from the above conclusion that the lady referred to should be committed to the infirmary and her children to the children's home.

Your attention is directed to section 13019, G. C., as follows:

> "The board of managers of the penitentiary or reformatory to which a person is sentenced or confined under this subdivision of this chapter, shall credit such person with forty cents per day for each working day during the period of such confinement, which shall be paid or cause to be paid by such board to such trustee."

The trustees in this section mentioned should be appointed by the court under the provisions of 13010, G. C.

I further call attention to sections 1683-2 to 1683-9, G. C., inclusive, (103 O. L., 877-79) and 1683-10, G. C., (104, O. L., 199) providing for mothers' pensions which it seems would, perhaps, be applicable to the case stated by you.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

COSTS—HOW TAXABLE UNDER PROCEEDING PROVIDED BY SECTION 13530, G. C.—FEES, WITNESSES, SHERIFF AND PROBATE JUDGE.

Costs are taxable in the special proceeding provided by section 13530, G. C. Fees of witnesses so taxed are to be paid from the county treasury under section 3014, G. C. Fees of the sheriff and probate judge may be recovered from the defendant upon conviction, if he is solvent, and in misdemeanor cases, if the defendant is insolvent; and in all cases, if the state fails to convict, subject, however, to the limitation upon the aggregate amount of such allowances in any one year.

In no case are any such costs payable out of the state treasury.

The probate judge in his judicial capacity is not entitled to any fee for services in such cases.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 2, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of March 26th, requests my opinion upon the following question:

> "Is a proceeding brought under the provisions of section 13530 of the General Code a criminal case, and can costs be taxed in such a proceeding? If so, how are they payable and by whom?
> "We wish to call your attention to an opinion rendered by Hon. J. K. Richards, attorney general, to Mr. W. D. Guilbert, chief clerk of the auditor of state's office, on March 3, 1894, to be found at page 592, vol. 4 of the opinions of the attorney generals of Ohio.
> "If costs are taxable in such a proceeding can witnesses be paid as provided for in section 3014, General Code, and can the sheriff's fees be paid in accordance with the provisions of sections 2845 and 2846, General Code? We would also call your attention to the provisions of section 11204, General Code, in this connection."

The opinion of Attorney General Richards, to which you refer, is not responsive to your question. It goes only to the extent of holding that costs made and taxed in the proceeding about which you inquire are not to be regarded as "costs made in the prosecution" within the meaning of the statutes under favor of which costs are paid out of the state treasury in felony cases.

The sections referred to by you are as follows:

> "Sec. 13530. When a person is committed to jail charged with the commission of an offense, and wishes to be discharged therefrom, the sheriff or jailer shall forthwith give to the probate judge, clerk and prosecuting attorney of the proper county, at least three days' notice of the time of holding an examining court, to attend, according to such notice, at the court house. The judge, having examined the witnesses, including the accused, if he request an examination, shall discharge him, if he find there is no probable cause for holding him to answer; otherwise he shall admit him to bail or remand him to jail. Such judge may adjourn the examination from day to day or for such longer period as is necessary for the furtherance of justice, on good cause shown by the state or the accused.
> "Sec. 11204. The fees of witnesses, jurors, sheriffs, coroners, and constables, for all services rendered in the probate court, or by order of the probate judge, shall be the same as is provided by law, for like services in the court of common pleas."

Section 11204 does not have the effect, in my judgment, of constituting the fees for which it provides taxable costs. In fact, in my opinion, it has no bearing whatever upon the question submitted, which is not as to what the amount of a given fee is, but rather as to whether or not, regardless of its amount, it may be taxed as costs.

Section 3014, General Code, provides as follows:

"Each witness attending under recognizance or subpoena, issued by order of the prosecuting attorney or defendant, before the court of common pleas, or grand jury, or other court of record, in criminal causes, shall be allowed the following fees: * * * When certified to the county auditor by the clerk of the court, fees under this section shall be paid from the county treasury."

Section 2845, General Code, is very lengthy and need not be quoted. It provides the schedule of fees for the sheriff, among them fees for serving subpeonas, for taking a prisoner before a judge or court, and for calling a witness. All fees to which the sheriff is entitled under this section are impliedly authorized to be taxed in the costs of the case.

Section 2846 provides that the sheriff may receive, in addition to his salary, fees for services in criminal cases wherein the state fails to convict and in misdemeanors upon conviction where the defendant proves insolvent, but the allowance is not to exceed three hundred dollars in any one year.

In considering whether these sections authorize the taxation of costs in the special proceeding provided by section 13530, it is of interest to note that section 1602, providing for the fees of the probate judge, makes special provision for his fees "for holding an examining court under section 13531" and makes no provision for holding an examining court under section 13530, nor for acting as a magistrate in any way whatever.

The capacity in which the probate judge acts under section 13530 might be described as in a sense that of an appellate magistrate. The court does not try the accused upon the issue of guilt or innocense, but only determines whether or not probable cause exists, in which particular his function is precisely that of a justice of the peace or other magistrate, except that the probate court is not called upon to act unless the party applying to him has been committed by some magistrate.

I find the following specific provisions respecting taxation of costs in examining courts as such:

"Sec. 3010. When required by an examining court to take charge of the defendant or defendants, during the examination of such defendant or defendants upon any charge for the commission of a crime or offense against the laws of the state, sheriffs, marshals and their deputies, constables, and watchman shall be allowed seventy-five cents for rendering such service, to be taxed and paid as other fees of such officers in like cases. When acting as the officer of such examining courts, such officer shall not receive fees for testifying upon such examination.

"Sec. 3016. In felonies, when the defendant is convicted the costs of the justice of the peace, police judge, or justice, mayor, marshal, chief of police, constable and witnesses, shall be paid from the county treasury and inserted in the judgment of conviction, so that such costs may be paid to the county from the state treasury. In all cases, when recognizances are taken, forfeited and collected and no conviction is had, such costs shall be paid from the county treasury.

"Sec. 3017. In no other case whatever shall any cost be paid from the state or county treasury to a justice of the peace, police judge or justice, mayor, marshal, chief of police, or constable.

"Sec. 3018. In felonies, fees of witnesses before justices of the peace, mayors, and police justices, shall be paid upon the allowance of the commissioners from the county treasury, on the certificate of such officer, notwithstanding the state has failed.

"Sec. 3019. In felonies wherein the state fails, and in misdemeanors wherein the defendant proves insolvent, the county commissioners, at any regular session, may make an allowance to any such officers in place of fees, but in any year the aggregate allowances to such officer shall not exceed the fees legally taxed to him in such causes, nor in any year shall the aggregate amount allowed an officer exceed one hundred dollars."

It is to be observed that the probate court is not mentioned with other examining courts and their officers in the group of sections beginning with section 3016 and ending with section 3019, General Code, as above quoted, although the functions of the probate court under section 13530 are, as above stated, those of a magistrate.

Your general question then is resolved into the following specific ones:

"(1) Is the proceeding provided for by section 13530, General Code, a criminal cause within the meaning of section 3014, General Code?"

If it is, then witnesses are entitled to the fees therein provided for, but they are not to be taxed as costs in the proceedings, but are to be certified to the county auditor by the clerk of court and paid out of the county treasury.

The term "criminal cause" as used in this section has not been defined by the courts. In view of the lack of provision for compensation of witnesses in the case under consideration, unless it be held to be a criminal cause (for it can not be held to be a "civil cause" as contemplated by section 3012, General Code), I am of the opinion that witness fees earned in the proceeding under section 13530, General Code, are to be certified by the probate judge as clerk of his own court to the county auditor and paid from the county treasury.

(2) The question respecting the sheriff's fees stands on a different footing. In the first place, there is specific provision for the sheriff's fee for taking charge of the defendant during the examination under section 3010. This is in addition to whatever fees the sheriff may be entitled to under sections 2845 and 2846, General Code. Section 3010 also manifests a legislative intention that the sheriff's fees for services rendered in an examining court shall be taxed as costs in the case.

Therefore, there is direct evidence that the legislature intended that the fees of the sheriff in connection with the proceeding authorized in section 13530 should be taxed as costs in the case.

When so taxed as costs, fees of the sheriff may be recovered from the defendant in a felony case, if the state convicts and the defendant is solvent; and under favor of section 2846, supra, he may receive his legal fees in such case if the state fails to convict, provided the three hundred dollars allowance therein provided for is not exceeded.

In misdemeanor cases the sheriff is entitled to his fees upon conviction, to be recovered from the defendant, if solvent, and to be paid out of the county treasury under section 2846, if the state fails to convict or if, upon conviction, the defendant is insolvent, subject to the limitations provided in said section.

The question is general, although the specific references in your letter are to the fees of the sheriff and witnesses.

Respecting the probate judge, I am of the opinion that in his judicial capacity he is not entitled to tax any fees whatever or to receive any special fee or compensation out of the county treasury for services rendered under section 13530. This is because of the omission of specific mention of such proceedings in section 1602, which does provide a specific fee for services under section 13531, which provides for a proceeding in some ways similar to that provided for by section 13530.

In his clerical capacity, however, the probate judge is entitled to such fees as might be allowed to the clerk of the court of common pleas for similar services, and by force of section 2902, General Code, he is protected from losing such costs exactly to the same extent as the sheriff is protected by section 2846, General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—AGENT FOR DISTILLING COMPANY IN ANOTHER STATE IS NOT LIABLE TO TAXATION—WHEN FOREIGN DISTILLING COMPANY IS LIABLE FOR TAXATION.

An Ohio agent for a distilling company of another state, whose activities are confined to solicitation, receiving and forwarding orders to such distilling company or its other representatives and collecting from Ohio purchasers on such orders, is not liable to taxation under the provisions of section 6071, G. C.

A foreign distilling company which ships into Ohio and there keeps at a railroad warehouse or other place a stock of intoxicating liquors from which sales and deliveries by it or its agents are thereafter made, is liable to taxation under section 6071, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 3, 1915.

The State Liquor Licensing Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge the receipt of yours under date of March 29, 1915, enclosing request from the auditor of state, for an opinion, in which you join, as follows:

"1. Where a person has an office in the state of Ohio and acts in the capacity of agent for a distilling company in another state, transmitting to such distilling company the orders taken, to be filled by the distilling company by shipment from the distillery direct to the purchaser in Ohio, is the agent liable for the Aiken-Dow tax?

"2. Upon the same state of facts as recited in question 1, is the distilling company so liable?

"3. Where a person has an office in Ohio and acts as the agent for a distilling company in another state, and sells in the state of Ohio the product of such distilling company, sending his orders to a representative of the distilling company in Kentucky, the latter representative directing deliveries to be made from a railroad warehouse in Ohio from a stock on hand held by such warehouse in the name of such distilling company, is the agent liable under the Aiken-Dow law?

"4. Given the same state of facts as recited in question 3, is the distilling company so liable?

"5. Given the same state of facts as recited in question 3 except in the following respect, to wit, that deliveries from the Ohio warehouse were made upon the direct order of the distilling company, is either the agent or the distilling company so liable?

"6. Would the fact that the agent made collections from the purchaser for the distilling company vary the rule of law in either of the foregoing cases?

"Liability under each of these several states of facts concerns the county auditor in at least one county in the state, and this department desires to advise county auditors in the premises, as well as have the information for its own use."

Section 6071, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 241, provides as follows:

"Upon the business of trafficking in spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors, there shall be assessed yearly and paid into the county treasury, as provided by sections 6072, and following, of the General Code, by each person, corporation, or co-partnership engaged therein the sum of one thousand dollars."

The phrase "trafficking in intoxicating liquors" as used in the above section, is defined in section 6065, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 241, in the language following:

"The phrase 'trafficking in intoxicating liquor,' as used in this chapter and in the penal statutes of this state, means the buying or procuring and selling of intoxicating liquor otherwise than upon a prescription issued in good faith by a reputable physician in active practice, or for exclusively known mechanical, pharmaceutical or sacramental purposes. Such phrase does not include the manufacture of intoxicating liquors from the raw material, and the sale thereof by the manufacturer thereof in quantities of one gallon or more at one time at the manufactory or the sale thereof in said quantities from the wagon or other vehicle of the manufacturer to the holder of a liquor license or in said quantities to individual consumers where said liquors are delivered to the homes of said individual consumers in territory wherein the sale of intoxicating liquors is not prohibited by law."

Each of your questions, then, resolves itself into whether or not the facts therein stated constitute the conducting of the "business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors" as above defined, within the state of Ohio. From your statement it is assumed that the agent referred to has no ownership in the liquor sold nor has he possession of or control over the same at any time. In other words, the agent has no connection with the transactions stated in question one, two, three, four or five, further than soliciting orders, receiving the same and forwarding to the distilling company or its other representatives, and to this assumed state of facts is this opinion confined.

From this it may be observed that the solicitation of orders, receiving the same and forwarding to the vendor, at a permanently located office, is in legal aspect not materially different from the ordinary solicitation of sales by a traveling salesman. In neither case does the agent himself buy or procure the subject matter of the sale nor, in a technically legal sense, does such agent sell. So that it would not be seriously contended that such agent comes within the terms of the statute which defines the trafficking in intoxicating liquor as the buying or procuring and selling of the same.

It has accordingly been held in Brooks v. Van Nes, 38 Bulletin, 262, affirmed without report 57 O. S., 642, and Voss v. Hagerty, 26 Bulletin, 268, that:

> "A whiskey broker who negotiates sales of liquor between different parties, but who neither buys nor procures the liquor so sold, is not subject to tax * * * under the Dow law."

Assuming, as above stated, that the activities of the agent referred to are confined to the solicitation and delivery of orders and the negotiation of sales between other parties, I am of opinion that such agent is not liable to the Aiken-Dow tax, and the answer, therefore, to your second, third and fifth question, in so far as the latter relates to the agent, must be in the negative

I come now to a consideration of your second question as to the liability of the distilling company for the Aiken-Dow tax, under the state of facts set forth in your first question.

In an opinion under date of April 25, 1906, rendered to Hon. W. D. Gilbert, auditor of state, by this department, it is said:

> "The negotiation of sales of goods which are in another state for the purpose of introducing them into the state in which the negotiation is made, is inter-state commerce.
> "Robbins v. Shelby Co., 120 U. S., 497;
> "Enert v. Mo., 156 U. S., 319;
> "Toledo Company v. Glenn Co., 55 O. S., 221;
> "Vance v. Vanderhook, 170 U. S., 444;
> "Bowman v. Chicago, etc., Railway, 125 U. S., 489."

Aside, however, from the question of inter-state commerce, it will be borne in mind that the Dow-Aiken law is an exercise of the police power of the state which cannot operate extra-territorily, as held in the case of Voss v. Hagerty, supra, and that therefore only such sales of intoxicating liquors as are made within the state of Ohio are subject to the provisions of such law and constitute the business subject to the tax thereby imposed.

While the question of the particular place at which a particular class of sales may be said to be made, often involves much difficulty, the rule applicable to those classes of sales represented by your several statements seems well established in this state.

In the case of Bellefontaine v. Vassaux, 55 O. S., 323, it is held.

> "As a general rule a sale of personal property is not completed when anything remains to be done to identify the thing sold or discriminate it from other like things."

Conversely, in the case of Jung v. Talbot, 59 O. S., 511, Bellefontaine v. Vassaux, 55 O. S., 325, Deihl Brewing Company v. Beck, 10 C. C. (n. s.) 361, it is held in effect that a place where a stock of intoxicating liquors is kept not in connection with a factory or other place where such liquors are lawfully sold, to which orders are directed and from which the same are filled and delivery is made by the keeper of such place or his agents, is within the terms of the law the place of sale.

In the application of this rule to the facts in your second question, we reach the conclusion that the sale was then made at the distillery and outside of the territorial operation of the Dow-Aiken law, and the answer, therefore, to such question, must be in the negative.

There is no material difference of fact in your fourth and fifth question. The direction of the filling of the orders from stock in a warehouse by a representative of the vendor is in legal effect and for the purposes of your question, under the direction of the vendor.

These two questions may then be considered and answered as one. It would seem from your statement to be unquestionably true that the persons in charge of the railroad warehouse and in possession of the liquor, are for the purposes of sale and delivery of the same the agents of the distilling company. From this is would then appear that the rule applicable thereto is stated in the case of Deihl Brewing Co. v. Beck, 10 C. C., 361, affirmed by the supreme court, as follows:

> "A brewing company manufacturing and selling beer at wholesale, which maintains a cold storage house in a location separate from its manufactory, and from which cold storage house daily deliveries of beer are made to customers on orders previously taken by a soliciting agent, thereby becomes a trafficker in intoxicating liquors within the meaning of Revised Statutes, 4864-9, and is subject to the Dow tax provided for by that act."

Following Jung Brewing Co. v. Talbot; Bellefontaine v. Vassaux, supra. See also Brewing Co. v. Brister, 179 U. S., 444.

The facts submitted by you are not distinguishable in principle from the above cases, and I am therefore of opinion that where orders are taken by an agent in Ohio and filled by an agent of the distilling company from a stock of liquor stored and kept in Ohio, in the manner stated by you, the sales so made constitute trafficking in intoxicating liquors within the terms of the statute, and my answer to your fourth and fifth questions is that the distilling company is liable under such circumstances to the Dow-Aiken tax in either case.

I am of the opinion, in answer to your sixth question, that the fact that the agent made collections from purchasers, would not alone vary the rule in either case, and that the agent would not in that case be liable to the Dow-Aiken tax.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

THE WORD "YEAR" AS USED IN SECTION 2253, G. C., MEANS OFFICIAL YEAR OF THE TERM OF SUCH JUDGE.

The word "year" as used in section 2253, G. C., which limits the amount of expenses for which a common pleas judge may have reimbursement in any one year, means the official year of the term of such judge.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 3, 1915.

HONORABLE JOHN P. BAILEY, Common Pleas Judge, Ottawa, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of March 22, 1915, you ask me to state my opinion upon the following question:

> "What application should be given to the word 'year' as used in original section 2253, G. C., and in the same section as amended in 1913, 103 O. L., 419, and in 1914, 104 O. L., 251. That is to say, if a vacancy should occur in the office of common pleas judge, and a person should be appointed to fill the vacancy, would the 'year' for such appointee begin with his appointment under the statute or is it in all cases to be based upon the official year of the term of office of the position to which he is appointed?"

It will not be necessary to quote section 2253, G. C., in any form in which it has appeared. Suffice it to state that it has at all times provided that the judge of the common pleas court shall receive his actual and necessary expenses not exceeding a certain specified amount "in any one year" incurred in a certain manner. Transposed into its most simple form this provision means, of course, that the judge shall not receive more than a specified amount in any one year by way of reimbursement for expenses.

I think the word "year," as here used, must necessarily refer to the official year and not to the year of service, as such. This I think follows because section 2253, in all the forms in which it has appeared since its original enactment, has provided that the allowance of expenses shall be "in addition to the annual salary * * * in" certain other sections of the General Code. It is clear that the year contemplated by the phrase "annual salary" is the official year, and this idea being the controlling one of the section determines, I think, the meaning of the term "year" as therein used.

Of course some practical difficulties are encountered in applying the maximum limitation upon the allowance of expenses in the event that two judges occupy the same judicial position during different parts of the same year. These difficulties, however, are not insurmountable and they exist as well under one interpretation of the statute as under another.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that a common pleas judge, appointed to fill a vacancy in the middle of the official year determined by the day on which the term of office began, does not, on the day of his induction into office, commence a "year" for the purpose of the expense allowance under section 2253, G. C.; but that whatever may be the rule as to the amount of expenses that may be allowed him during the remainder of the first official year (which is not herein determined), he will begin a new year, for the purpose of the expense allowance, at the expiration of the official year during which he assumed office, and the beginning of the succeeding official year; in other words the word "year," as used in section 2253, G. C., means the official year.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SCHOOL BUILDING—CANNOT BE RENTED BY SECRET SOCIETIES FOR PURPOSES NOT OPEN TO ALL PERSONS OF THE COMMUNITY.

The board of education has no authority in law to rent a school building, or part thereof, to a secret society for the purpose of holding lodge sessions and such social functions and entertainments of such society as are not open to all persons in the community on equal terms or which will not, in the judgment of the board of education, benefit the people of the community.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 3, 1915.

HON. ELI H. SPEIDEL, Prosecuting Attorney, Batavia, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of March 10, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

> "The board of education of the Branch Hill Special School District has requested me for an opinion on the question as to whether or not such board of education can rent the second story of their new school building to the lodge of Modern Woodmen of the World, for the purpose of holding their lodge sessions, and also the social functions and entertainments of the order.
> "After giving this matter some thought, and believing it to be of general public importance, and knowing that the various boards of education of this county are in doubt as to just what purposes a school house can be used for, I am going to ask your office for an opinion on the question submitted."

Section 7622, General Code, provides:

> "When, in the judgment of a board of education, it will be for the advantage of the children residing in any school district to hold literary societies, school exhibitions, singing schools, religious exercises, select or normal schools, the board of education shall authorize the opening of the school houses for such purpose. The board of education of a school district in its discretion may authorize the opening of such school houses for any other lawful purposes. But nothing herein shall authorize a board of education to rent or lease a school house when such rental or lease in any wise interferes with the public schools in such district, or for any purpose other than is authorized by this chapter."

This section as originally enacted in 86 O. L., 11, and until it was amended in 91, O. L., 44, did not contain the provision "the board of education of a school district in its discretion may authorize the opening of such school house for any other lawful purposes." Until such provision was added, the purposes for which a school building or part thereof might be used, were confined to those enumerated in the statute.

It was evidently the intent of the legislature in adding this provision, to give to a board of education the authority to open a school building or part thereof for any lawful public purpose of a similiar nature to those above mentioned, providing its use for that purpose does not in any way interfere with its use for public school purposes. In other words, the school building is a social center of the school district for educational purposes and, in addition to its use for public school purposes, it may be used for any other lawful purpose which, in the judgment of the board of education, will be for the advantage of the people of the community.

The use of a school building, or part thereof, by a fraternal order for the holding of lodge sessions and such social functions and entertainments of the order as are not open to all persons in the community on equal terms, is not public in its nature and meets with the objection that the benefits resulting from such use are confined to the purposes of the order and to such other persons as may be permitted by the order to enjoy said benefits. Such a use is not within the meaning of the above provision of the statute and there is no other statutory provision authorizing such use.

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that the board of education of Branch Hill Special School District has no authority in law to rent the second story of their new school building to a secret society for the purpose of holding their lodge sessions and such social functions and entertainments of such society as are not open to all persons in the community on equal terms, or which will not, in the judgment of the board of education, benefit the people of the community.

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COMMON PLEAS JUDGE—ADDITIONAL SALARY PAYABLE FROM COUNTY TREASURY QUARTERLY—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—MAY PURCHASE COPIES OF OPINIONS OF COURT OF APPEALS FOR USE COMMON PLEAS COURT.

The additional salary of a county common pleas judge elected in 1914 is payable wholly from the treasury of his county in quarterly installments based upon the official year.

County commissioners may in their discretion, purchase typewritten copies of the opinion of the court of appeals of another county in the same appellate district, for the use of the common pleas court of the county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 3, 1915.

HONORABLE ROY H. WILLIAMS, Judge of the Common Pleas Court, Sandusky, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 15, 1915, requesting me to advise you upon the following questions:

(1) You were elected last fall and took office January 1, 1915, in Erie county, Ohio, under the new law. How should your additional salary be paid?

(2) May the county commissioners pay, out of the county treasury, for typewritten copies of the opinions of the court of appeals of Lucas county?

The first question which you submit is not directly covered by my general opinion relative to the additional salaries of common pleas judges, although the principles governing the answer thereto are laid down in dealing with the case of the common pleas judge elected in Clark county, therein referred to. Upon those principles I hold that your additional salary is payable from the county treasury of Erie county in quarterly installments, the quarters being based upon the official year of your term which begins and ends upon January 1st. Of course the additional salary to which you are entitled is at the rate of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each one thousand population of Erie county as determined by the census of 1910, which additional salary must not exceed three thousand ($3,000) dollars.

Answering your second question I may say that there is no express statutory authority for the payment, by the county commissioners out of the county treasury, for typewritten copies of opinions of a court of appeals for the use of a common pleas court. In fact there is no direct statutory authority for the furnishing of any supplies to common pleas judges or for the use of the court, as such. There is an express provision for the furnishing of supplies for the use of the court of appeals which is to be upon a requisition issued by a clerk of courts. (1531, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 414.)

It will not do, however, to apply the general rule that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another in the matter of the expenses of different county offices. Long established practice justifies the conclusion that county commissioners have the power to furnish, for the use of any county officer including the common pleas judges, such supplies and needful things as they see fit to furnish provided they stay within the bounds of a reasonable discretion.

There being no hard and fast provision on the subject, therefore, I am of the opinion that the second question which you submit is one properly addressed to the discretion of the county commissioners.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE—OFFICE RENT—JURISDICTION IN CRIMINAL CASES.

The trustees of a township are not authorized to pay office rent for justices of the peace of their respective townships.

A justice of the peace, having jurisdiction in criminal cases throughout the county, may hold criminal court in any township of the county in which he is elected and where he resides.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 3, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of March 25, 1915, my opinion was requested by Mr. C. A. Kennedy, justice of the peace, Trenton, Ohio, and for the sake of uniformity I am addressing my opinion on such inquiry to you.

The inquiry is as follows:

"1. Is it not the duty of township trustees to pay the office rent of a justice of the peace in their respective townships, said justice not being a salaried justice?

"2. As a justice has jurisdiction in his respective county, in criminal cases, would it be legal for a justice to hold criminal court in the city of Hamilton, Ohio, Butler county, when said justice is elected or appointed in another township outside of the city of Hamilton but in the same county of Butler?"

Upon examination of the statutes, I do not find that any provision is made for payment of office rent for justices of the peace, by the trustees of their respective townships.

The authority to withdraw moneys from the public treasury for such purpose will not, in this state, be implied, and I therefore advise that the township trustees are not authorized to pay the office rent for justices of the peace of their respective townships.

I find that my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, expressed the same conclusion in an opinion rendered to you on October 29, 1913, volume 1 of the attorney general's reports for the year 1913, page 384.

As to your second question, your attention is invited to section 13422, G. C., which provides:

"A justice of the peace shall be a conservator of the peace and have jurisdiction in criminal cases throughout the county in which he is elected and where he resides, on view or on sworn complaint, to cause a person, charged with the commission of a felony or misdemeanor, to be arrested and brought before himself or another justice of the peace, and if such person is brought before him, to inquire into the complaint and either discharge or recognize him to be and appear before the proper court at the time named in such recognizance, or otherwise dispose of the complaint as provided by law. He also may hear complaints of the peace and issue search warrants."

The supreme court has construed the foregoing section in the case of Steele v. Karb, sheriff, 78 O. S., 376, in which the court say:

"Under the provisions of section 610 (Sec. 13422, G. C.), Revised Statutes, a justice of the peace has 'jurisdiction in criminal cases throughout the county in which he is elected and where he resides,' and his authority to hear and dispose of a criminal case in the manner prescribed by the statute is not limited to the township for which he is elected and where he resides."

I do not find that the supreme court has departed from the construction announced in the foregoing case, and I therefore advise that a justice of the peace may hold criminal court in the city of Hamilton, Ohio, Butler county, although said justice is elected or appointed in another township of the county than that in which the city of Hamilton is located.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT WHERE COUNTY, TOWNSHIP AND VILLAGE CO-OPERATE—VILLAGE MAY ISSUE BONDS FOR ITS SHARE AND PAY INTO COUNTY TREASURY THE PROCEEDS—COUNTY BONDS SHOULD BE ISSUED FOR TOWNSHIP; COUNTY PORTION AND LEVIES MUST BE MADE UPON ALL TAXABLE PROPERTY OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP.

Where a county, township and village co-operate in the improvement of a road under sections 6903 et seq., G. C., the proportionate share to be contributed by the village is to be secured through the issuance of bonds by the village. The proportionate shares to be contributed by the county and township are to be secured through the issuance of negotiable notes or bonds of the county, and there is no authority in this scheme of co-operative road improvement for the issuance of township bonds. In making a levy to meet the county bonds, the commissioners and trustees must levy a tax upon all the taxable property of the county and township, respectively, including the taxable property within the village.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 3, 1915.

HONORABLE GEORGE C. VONBESELER, Prosecuting Attorney, Painesville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to reply to your letter of January 25, 1915, requesting an opinion, and which is in part as follows:

"The owners of a majority of the foot frontage on certain county roads in Lake county, in accordance with the provisions of section 6903 of the General Code of Ohio, petitioned the commissioners to grade, drain, curb, pave and improve parts of said roads. Said roads run into and through the township of Perry and the village of Perry, lying within the said township of Perry. The county commissioners, in accordance with the provisions of section 6905, have entered into an agreement with the board of trustees of said township and with the council of said village whereby said board of trustees and said council have assumed and have agreed to pay certain proportions of the costs and expenses of such improvement. The proportions as established, if material to the question, are 45 per cent. to the county, 40 per cent. to the township or the village, and 15 per cent. to the owner of abutting property.

"By resolution the township trustees determined to issue bonds in the sum of $54,000, to pay its share of the cost and expense of improving said roads outside the limits of the incorporated village and the council of the incorporated village to issue bonds in the sum of $20,000, to pay its share of the cost and expense of improving said roads within the limits of the incorporated village.

"A majority of the electors of both the township and the village on the 20th day of January, 1915, voted in favor of issuing said bonds in the sums of $54,000 and $20,000 respectively. The electors of both the village and the township voted on the question of issuing the township's share in the sum of $54,000.

"QUERY:—In order to provide a fund sufficient to pay the interest on and to meet these bonds at maturity, shall the township trustees make the levy upon all the taxable property of the township, including that within the limits of the incorporated village of Perry, or merely upon the taxable property lying without the limits of the incorporated village?"

At the outset, permit me to call your attention to the section of the General Code which provides for the making of an agreement between the board of county commissioners and the township trustees and the council of a village for making an improvement such as is contemplated, and which is embraced in the provisions of section 6905 of the General Code, as follows:

> "The board of county commisioners may enter into an agreement with the board of trustees of any township or the council of any village, or both, into or through which a state or county road improvement is contemplated, whereby said board of trustees or council may assume and pay such a proportion of the costs and expenses of such improvement not assessed upon abutting land in accordance with section 6904 of the General Code, as may be agreed upon between said board of county commissioners and said board of trustees or council, and such agreement or agreements may be entered into at any time before the contract for said improvement is let."

The plan under which action has been taken in this matter embraces the co-operation of the county of Lake, township of Perry, and village of Perry, which lies within the said township of Perry.

The first requisite to the fulfillment of the proposed development of the improvement is to establish or raise a fund from which the expenses of the improvement may be met, and a reading of the statutes affecting the matter shows clearly that the fund is to be made up as follows:

First. A proportionate share to be contributed by the village, and which you state in your letter has been fixed, is provided for and may be secured by the village under the authority contained in section 6905-3 of the General Code, which provides that the village may issue bonds for the total estimated cost and the expenses of the improvement, and the proceeds of the sale of the bonds shall be paid into the county treasury into the fund established for the purpose of carrying out the proposed plan of the improvement. The section is as follows:

> "Sec. 6905-3. Upon receipt of such copy the council of such village by taking such action as is authorized by law for the improvement of its streets, may issue and sell its bonds in anticipation of the collection of the special assessments by it to be made upon the benefited property, or to be paid by any street railroad company operating in said road within the limits of said village, and for the purpose of meeting such cost and expense of such improvement as is by law required to be paid by said village, and the amount of the total estimated cost and expenses of so much of said improvement as is made necessary by reason of the additional width to which the same is to be improved. The proceeds of said bonds shall be paid into the county treasury, into a fund to be established for the purpose and in the manner hereinafter specified."

Second. That portion of the fund to be contributed by the county and township may be secured through the issuance of negotiable notes or bonds of the county as provided for in section 6912-1 of the General Code, which is as follows:

> "Sec. 6912-1. After so certifying said assessment to the auditor of the county, the commissioners may, in anticipation of the collection of all moneys from all sources, required to be raised for said improvement, whether by assessment, taxation, or by agreement with the township trustees or village council, borrow money sufficient to pay the entire estimated cost and expense of the improvement, and may issue and sell negotiable notes or bonds of the county, bearing a rate of interest not to exceed five per cent. per annum. For the purpose of paying their respective shares of the principal and interest on the notes or bonds authorized to be sold, the county commissioners and the township trustees may levy a tax upon all the taxable property of the county or township in addition to all other taxes authorized by law of not to exceed two mills in any one year until said notes or bonds and interest are paid."

Referring to that part of your letter relating to municipal and township bonds in which you state that these bonds are issued under authority of sections 3295 and 3939-22 of the General Code, it is to be noted that while general authority for the issuance of the bonds

"for re-surfacing, repairing or improveing any existing street or streets as well as other public highways," is conferred upon municipalities and townships under and by virtue of the section referred to, particular authority is granted for the issuance of the bonds in connection with the improvement under consideration by municipalities under section 6905-3, quoted above; and in section 6912-1 it is provided that the bonds which otherwise would be issued by a township for the purpose of paying for a road improvement are to be issued by the county, and to be known as "county bonds." There is therefore no specific authority for the issuance of township bonds in the scheme of co-operative road improvement provided for in sections 6903, et seq.

Coming to consider the question of the taxable property upon which the commissioners and trustees should make a levy in order to meet the bonds issued by the county commissioners, it is my opinion that the commissioners and trustees should levy a tax upon all the taxable property of the county or township, including that within the village.

Section 5646 of the General Code confers the general power of township trustees to levy taxes and the taxes are to be levied on "the taxable valuation of the township." These taxes are to be levied "for township purposes including the relief of the poor."

Section 3444 of the General Code provides for a cemetery tax to be levied by township trustees without stating the taxable property upon which such tax shall be levied.

Sections 3282-1 of the General Code, et seq., provide for a tax for certain road purposes without stating the taxable property upon which such tax shall be levied, but these sections provide that the question of levying such tax shall be submitted "to the qualified electors of the township."

Section 7441 of the General Code provides for "an additional road tax" and states that if the trustees deem such tax necessary, they shall determine the per cent. "to be levied upon the taxable property of their respective townships."

Section 7171 of the General Code provides for a tax to be levied by the township trustees to redeem certificates issued for materials taken for road purposes, the tax to be levied by the trustees "upon the taxable property of their respective townships."

Section 7562 of the General Code provides for a tax to be levied by the trustees for bridge purposes without stipulating the taxable property upon which such tax shall be levied, but section 7562-2, General Code, 103 O. L., 198, which provides for a tax for foot bridges, stipulates that the tax shall be levied "upon all of the taxable property in said township."

In striking contrast to all of the above sections, section 7486 of the General Code provides for a road tax to be levied by the trustees on all of the taxable property in the township, "exclusive of an incorporated village."

I have not attempted to refer to all of the provisions authorizing the levying of taxes by township trustees, but have only alluded to a sufficient number of these provisions to illustrate the proposition that taxes which township trustees are authorized to levy, divide themselves into three classes: First, taxes which trustees are required to levy upon all of the taxable property in the township; second, taxes which township trustees are required to levy upon the taxable property in the township outside of an incorporated village therein; and third, taxes which the trustees are authorized to levy and in reference to which no specific direction is given by law as to the taxable property upon which such taxes are to be levied.

The tax which the township trustees are required to levy by section 6912-1 is of the first class named, for by the terms of that section the commissioners and trustees are required to levy a tax "upon all the taxable property of the county or township." It may be safely asserted on the authority of State ex rel. v. Ward et al., 17 O. S., 543, that territory within a township and comprising only a part thereof, does not cease to be a part of the township upon being organized into a municipal corporation.

Answering your specific question, I am therefore of the opinion that the tax which the county commissioners of Lake county, and the tax which the township trustees of Perry township are required to levy, must be levied upon all of the taxable property of said county and of said township, respectively, including the taxable property within the village of Perry.

In view of the fact that there is no provision for the issuance of township bonds, your supplemental question relative to the payment of fees to the township treasurer for the receiving, safekeeping, and paying out of moneys, etc., in connection with the bond issue becomes immaterial.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EMERGENCY LAW—EMERGENCY SECTION MUST STATE FACTS SHOWING LAW IS FOR IMMEDIATE PRESERVATION OF PUBLIC PEACE, HEALTH OR SAFETY—SENATE BILL NO. 14 PROVIDING EXTENSION OF TIME FOR BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS, WHICH ARE DEPOSITORIES FOR STATE FUNDS UNDER EMERGENCY LAW, IS DEFICIENT IN THIS RESPECT.

An emergency law, the emergency section of which does not state facts which show any necessity for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, is not a valid law. At the very least, such a law cannot go into immediate effect.

Senate bill No. 14, passed February 16, 1915, and which provides that building and loan associations receiving state funds as depositories under the emergency law found in 103 O. L., 148, shall have a further extension of time for two years after April 10, 1915, is deficient in this respect, and as it can in no event be effective prior to April 10, 1915, is of no effect whatever.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 5, 1915.

HON. R. W. ARCHER, Treasurer of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of March 12, 1915, you submitted for my opinion the following:

> "As treasurer of state, I am receiving numerous calls from the building and loan associations for loans under the Vonderheide bill, but before taking any action on the matter, I respectfully refer you to senate bill No. 14 which reads:
> "'AN ACT.
> "'To extend the time for repayment of funds of the state of Ohio deposited at interest with building and loan associations located in districts devastated by the flood of 1913.'
> "The question is: Are building and loan associations now not being a state depository permitted to receive these funds who did not receive this money at the original letting in April, 1913? Or would building and loan associations who were designated as depositories in 1913, under the senate bill No. 14 granted an extension of time, be entitled to receive more money from the state?"

An answer to your question requires consideration of the special emergency act, 103, Ohio Laws, at page 148, which was passed by the general assembly on April 10, 1913, and approved by the governor April 12, 1913. This act provided in part as follows:

> "Section 1. That in order to meet the emergency arising from the devastation caused by the unprecedented floods of _____, 1913, in portions of the state of Ohio, and in order to conserve and preserve the life, health and peace of the people of those portions of the state of Ohio, the state treasurer of the state of Ohio, with the approval of the governor, is hereby authorized to deposit funds of the state of Ohio, not exceeding in the aggregate three million dollars, with building and loan associations organized under the laws of the state of Ohio and located in those portions of the state of Ohio so affected by the said floods, said sums to be deposited with said associations for a period not to exceed two years from the passage of this act.

"Section 2. Such of said associations in said portions of said state as desire to avail themselves of the provisions of this act shall have the right at any time from the date of the passage hereof to apply to become depositories of said funds, and upon said associations being approved by the state board of deposits, in writing, to be proper depositories for the state funds, the state treasurer shall apportion and deposit said funds among said associations as in his judgment may be in accordance with the respective needs of said associations and the territory in which they are located, but in no case shall any association have on deposit at any one time more than its paid-in capital stock, and in no event more than three hundred thousand dollars. The state treasurer shall apportion and deposit said funds from time to time as applications are received therefor.

"Section 6. This act is hereby declared to be an emergency law necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage: the necessity arising from the fact that by reason of the widespread destruction of and damages to residences in such flooded districts and of the sewer connections and sanitary arrangements in the homes therein, the public peace, health and safety is menaced and would be conserved and benefited by depositing state funds in building and loan associations in such flooded districts for a period not to exceed two years to enable such associations to loan money to the owners of property in such districts for rebuilding and repairing their homes and residences and placing them in sanitary condition."

Section 1 above quoted provides, among other things, that the treasurer of state, with the approval of the governor, is authorized to deposit in building and loan associations organized under the laws of Ohio and located in those portions of Ohio affected by the flood a sum not to exceed three million dollars, and for a period of time not to exceed two years from the passage of the act.

Section 2 provides that such associations as desire to avail themselves of the privileges of this act shall have the right at any time from the date of the passage thereof to apply to become depositories of said funds, and that after approval of said institutions by the state board of deposits, the state treasurer shall apportion and deposit said funds as further provided in said sections.

As I construe this act, building and loan associations having the qualifications above mentioned may at any time between the date of the passage of this special act and the time limited, to wit: two years, apply to the treasurer of state and, when approved by the state board of deposits, receive deposits, provided the sum of three million dollars has not already been deposited.

Senate bill No. 14, to which you refer, provides as follows:

"Section 1. That, whereas, certain of the inactive funds of the state of Ohio, deposited with building and loan associations located in those parts of the state devastated by unprecedented floods of 1913, under an act of the legislature passed April 10, 1913, and entitled 'An act to make building and loan associations oragnized under the laws of the state of Ohio and located in those portions of the state of Ohio affected by the floods of 1913, depositories of state funds for a period not to exceed two years,' will be needed after the expiration of said period of two years to enable the further accomplishment of the purpose of said act, in securing the peace and health of the people located in such districts, through the rehabilitation of homes and by effecting more complete sanitation of devastated property, the state treasury of the state of Ohio is hereby authorized and directed to extend the time for payment of such said funds as still remain on deposit, for a further period of two years from April 10, 1915, the date of the expiration of said original term.

"Section 2. Such deposits now outstanding shall be further held and repaid under all the terms and conditions prescribed in said original act of April 10, 1913, not in conflict with the extension herein provided.

"Section 3. This act is hereby declared to be an emergency act and its enactment is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public safety and welfare. The necessity thereof lies in the fact that the public safety and welfare requires the retention of said funds for a further period of two years from April 10, 1915, in securing the peace and health of the people located in those portions of the state of Ohio affected by the floods of 1913, and in the further fact that the period provided for in said act expires on April 10, 1915, and the withdrawal of said funds at said time would work a hardship upon many home owners, borrowers of said associations, to the detriment of the safety and welfare of the people in said districts of the state of Ohio."

I ascertain that both the original act of 1913, and senate bill No. 14, above quoted, received the proper number of votes when put upon their final passage to be enacted as emergency laws.

I am of the opinion, which I have expressed in a letter to the general assembly, that the reasons for the necessity of putting a law into immediate effect for the preservation of the public peace, health or safety, required by section 1d of article II of the constitution to be stated in a separate section of each emergency law, must be such reasons as show on their face the existence of a real necessity for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety.

Section 3 of senate bill No. 14 does not satisfy this test. It states no facts which show any necessity for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety. The emergency which existed when the original law was passed, as declared in section 6 thereof, no longer exists, nor does section 3 of senate bill No. 14 state that that precise emergency, which was the immediate need of replacing and repairing sewer connections, etc., is a condition which still exists. On the contrary, the only fact (as distinguished from legal conclusions) which is stated in section 3 of senate bill No. 14 is "that the withdrawal of said funds at said time (April 10, 1915), would work a hardship upon many home owners, borrowers of said associations."

The hardship which would be worked upon borrowers of the associations (if any) could not in any way affect the public peace, health or safety.

Therefore, I am of the opinion that senate bill No. 14 is not valid as an emergency law, and being passed as such is not valid at all. At the very least it will not be in effect on April 10, 1915, and if not effective then will never become effective, because its object is defeated unless it can go into effect prior to that date.

I am unable to advise you otherwise than that no action whatever is to be taken under senate bill No. 14, but that you should ignore the provisions of this act and proceed under the original law of 1913, to call in the deposits which were made in that year with certain building and loan associations in the flooded districts.

The matter is very clear to me, but if it is desired to raise the question for the determination of the courts, I shall gladly co-operate to the end that an action in mandamus may be speedily instituted in the supreme court for this purpose.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AUDITOR OF STATE—WHEN OFFICIAL TERM BEGINS AND ENDS—SALARY—SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS—SALARY.

The official term of auditor of state begins on the second Monday of January next after his election and extends to the second Monday of January four years thereafter, and he is entitled to a salary of $26,000.00 for the full term.

The four-year term of the superintendent of banks is four calendar years, and he is entitled for each full month's service one-twelfth of his annual salary.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of February 18, 1915, you submitted several inquiries to this department.

Your first inquiry is as follows:

> "Sec. 235, G. C., fixes the beginning of the term of the auditor of state on the second Monday of January and to run for a period of four years.
> "Sec. 2248, G. C., fixes the annual salary of said officer at $6,500.00.
> "The term of the present auditor of state began the second Monday of January, 1913, on the 13th day of the month and will terminate at 12 o'clock m., January 7, 1917, the day preceding the second Monday, or five days less than four calendar years.
> "Query. How many dollars is he entitled to receive for his whole term of office?"

Section 235 of the General Code provides that the auditor of state shall hold his office for a term of four years and until his successor is elected and qualified; that the term of office of the auditor "shall commence on the second Monday of January next after his election."

Section 2248, G. C., fixes the "annual" salary of the auditor of state at $6,500.00. The official year of the auditor of state begins on the second Monday of January and terminates on the day preceding the second Monday of January of the following year, and the $6,500.00 annual salary is to compensate him for services during his official year.

Specifically answering your question, the auditor of state is entitled to the sum of $26,000.00 for the four-year period of his term beginning on the second Monday in January next after his election and extending until the day preceding the second Monday in January, four years thereafter.

You next inquire:

"When does a state appointee's term begin—the day of appointment, the day of confirmation or approval, or the day on which he actually begins to perform his duties?"

As I view the question propounded by you it is entirely too comprehensive and broad to permit of a definite answer. I shall be glad to answer any specific question which you have in mind upon which you ask the general question.

You next inquire:

"The superintendent of banks is entitled to an annual salary of $5,000.00. If an appointee takes his office on January 1, 1915, and retires from office at the close of January 31, 1915, how much salary is he entitled to receive?"

The salary of the superintendent of banks is fixed by section 2250, G. C., which provides, in part, as follows:

"The annual salaries of the appointive state officers and employes herein enumerated shall be as follows: * * * Superintendent of banks, five thousand dollars. * * *"

The first question to be determined is as to what is the official year of the superintendent of banks and is to be answered by consideration of the statute under which he is appointed.

Section 710, G. C., provides:

"The governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a superintendent of banks, who shall hold his office for the term of four years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. * * *"

There is no definite day specified upon which the term of the superintendent of banks shall begin and, therefore, I am of the opinion, that the calendar year and his official year are the same.

Section 2260, G. C., provides:

"The salaries provided in this chapter to be paid by the state shall be paid in equal installments as follows:

"Lieutenant governor, judges, officers and employes of state institutions, monthly.

"All other salaries herein provided, semi-monthly.

"When an officer ceases to hold office, salary then due shall be paid him."

Section 2260 is included in the same chapter as section 2250 and, therefore, the provisions of section 2260 apply in reference to the annual salaries fixed by section 2250. The salary of the superintendent of banks, therefore, is to be divided into equal installments, payable semi-monthly, which would, of course, make twenty-four installments. The superintendent of banks, being entitled to an annual salary of five thousand dollars, who takes office on the 1st day of January and retires from office at the close of the 31st day of January would have served one full month, or two semi-monthly periods, and would, therefore, be entitled to one-twelfth of the annual salary. Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COURT CONSTABLES—COMPENSATION—MAY NOT BE TAXED AS COSTS—NOT SUBJECT TO ALLOWANCE BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The compensation of court constables is limited by the maximum fixed by section 1693, G. C., and may not be taxed as costs, nor is the same subject to allowance by county commissioners.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

HON. C. P. KENNEDY, Prosecuting Attorney, Akron, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your request for an opinion under date of March 8, 1915, which is as follows:

"One of our common pleas judges has recently heard a election contest in which the present Democratic county recorder contested the election of the incoming county recorder, a Republican. In the course of the hearing the court directed a recount of the ballots, some twenty-eight thousand in all. The final judgment of the court was against the contestor.

"There being no provision of law governing or outlining the manner in which a recount should be conducted, the trial judge appointed six court constables under the authority of section 1692 of the General Code, found in Vol. 103, O. L., page 417, four of whom were to conduct the work of the recount. Their compensation was fixed at $5.00 per day. Each of the four were members of the board of elections. Three others were appointed to assist in the recount at a compensation of one dollar and a half per day. The entire count took 10½ days.

"The general authority under which the court made the order is found in the latter part of section 1692, Vol. 103, O. L., page 417, and is as follows:

"'And discharge such other duties as the court requires.'"

"The bills for services of the court constables have been presented to the county commissioners for payment, and they have referred the matter to our office. The question that presents itself is: Who is liable for the court costs? Section 5153 of the General Code provides in part:

"'The court shall render judgment against the party failing in the case for all the costs of the contest, including the costs of depositions.'"

"There is no other provision relating to the payment of costs in a contest for election of a county officer. The work done by the individual members of the election board in connection with the recount was not a part of their regular duties. I therefore see no reason why they cannot receive compensation for their services the same as if they were not election officials.

"Can the payment of the amount due be properly made by the county commissioners? And if it can, ought not the amount so paid by them be entered as a part of the costs of the contest and the same collected from the failing party and repaid into the county treasury? This is the way I have looked at the matter, but as it is of considerable importance and we may, perhaps, be establishing a precedent in other election contests, I am very desirous of having your opinion in the matter."

From a supplemental statement of facts submitted by Hon. E. D. Fritch, who presided in the court during the trial of the case, it further appears that by the agreement and consent of all the parties thereto, the re-count of the ballots was made in open session and in the presence of the court, and under his personal supervision and control, with the ministerial assistance of those persons named as court constables, and every judicial function was performed by the court in person; that when the ballots were opened the undisputed ballots were by agreement of counsel tabulated and when that had been completed, the court passed upon the counting of all disputed ballots, and the result thereof added to the totals of undisputed ballots.

The question of the eligibility of deputy state supervisors of elections to appointment in this case, is deemed foreclosed by agreement of the parties and is, therefore, not here considered.

That part of section 1692, G. C., defining the duties for which court constables may be appointed, and from which you quote, is as follows:

> "to preserve order, attend the assignment of cases in counties where more than two common pleas judges regularly hold court at the same time, and discharge such other duties as the court requires."

Experience teaches, and it appears from the statute above quoted, that the duties of court constables are in the nature of a personal attendant upon the court and of a purely ministerial character, and it seems clear that the duties performed by the court constables appointed in this case were within this limit.

The sole authority for payment of compensation of court constables is found in section 1693, G. C., 103 O. L., 418, as follows:

> "Each constable shall receive the compensation fixed by the judge or judges of the court making the appointment. In counties where four or more judges regularly hold court, such compensation shall not exceed twelve hundred and fifty dollars each year, in counties where more than one judge and not more than three judges hold court at the same time, not to exceed one thousand dollars per year, and in counties where only one judge holds court two and one-half dollars each day, and shall be paid monthly from the county treasury on the order of the court. Such court constable or constables may, when placed by the court in charge of the assignment of cases, be allowed further compensation not to exceed one thousand five hundred dollars, as the court by its order entered on the journal determines."

While it is not disclosed in your statement how many judges regularly hold court in Summit county, it is assumed that no difficulty will be found in the application of the provisions of the above section to the facts in that particular.

It will be observed that in addition to fixing a maximum compensation it is provided that the same shall be paid monthly from the county treasury on the order of the court. Since the maximum compensation authorized in any case may not exceed twelve hundred and fifty dollars each year, it follows that such compensation must be fixed at a rate not in excess of twelve hundred and fifty dollars per year.

No statutory authority is found for taxing the compensation of court constables as a part of the costs in any case, nor does any more reason therefor appear than for the taxing of the compensation of the court as a part of the costs in the trial of a cause.

In answer to your question, I am therefore of the opinion that the compensation of the court constables appointed in this particular case may be paid from the county treasury upon the order of the court, but that the same may not be in an amount in excess of the maximum rate prescribed in section 1693 above quoted, for the time employed. Such compensation may not be taxed as costs in the case nor is the same subject to allowance by the county commissioners.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY EXPERIMENT FARM—PURCHASE PRICE PAID ON WARRANT OF COUNTY AUDITOR, UPON CERTIFICATE OF AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION.

The purchase price of a county experiment farm is to be paid upon the warrant of the county auditor upon the proper certificate of the agricultural commission, and the allowance of a claim for such purchase price by the county commissioners is neither necessary nor proper.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Apil 6, 1915.

The Agricultural Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have a communication from Mr. Benj. F. Gayman, secretary of your commission, under date of March 31, 1915, which communication is as follows:

> "The electors of Trumbull county, at the fall election in 1914, voted favorably on the proposition to purchase and equip a county experiment farm under the provisions of sections 1165-6-7-8. Bonds were issued and sold; the agricultural commission visited the county and selected a farm for the purpose specified in the act; the money for the purchase and equipment of said farm is now in the county treasury, the farm has been surveyed and all that is necessary is to know how to proceed under section 1165-6 to complete the purchase and equipment of this farm.
> "The agricultural commission will thank you for an interpretation of this section and particularly of the language 'and the proceeds of the sale thereof shall be deposited in the county treasury subject to the order of the agricultural commission,' etc."

It appears from the above statement of facts that the money derived from the bond sale has been deposited in the county treasury of Trumbull county and section 1165-6 of the General Code, referred to by you and found in 103 O. L., 436, stipulates that the deposit shall be subject to the order of the board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station to be applied by said board to the purchase and equipment of an experiment farm.

The board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station was abolished and its powers and duties were cast upon your commission by the agricultural commission act found in 103 O. L., 304. For this reason this department held in an opinion to your commission dated February 20, 1915, that in reading section 1165-6, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 436, the expression "board of control of the Ohio agricultural experiment station" occurring therein must be read "agricultural commission." It therefore follows that the proceeds of the bond sale in question now in the county treasury of Trumbull county are subject to the order of your commission and are to be applied by your commission to the purchase and equipment of a county experiment farm. Your commission having proceeded under authority of section 1165-7, G. C., to visit Trumbull county and select a farm, the farm having been surveyed, and the purchase price having been agreed upon between your commission and the present owner of the farm, you now inquire as to the method of making payment from the funds in the county treasury.

It may be observed in the first instance that the purchase price of the farm cannot be paid upon the allowance of the county commissioners, for the reason that they do not have control over the fund from which payment is to be made, such fund being made by the statute "subject to the order of" the agricultural commission. Your attention is directed to section 2460, G. C., which provides in part as follows:

> "No claims against the county shall be paid otherwise than upon the allowance of the county commissioners, upon the warrant of the county auditor, except in those cases in which the amount due is fixed by law, or is authorized to be fixed by some other person or tribunal in which case it shall be paid upon the warrant of the county auditor, upon the proper certificate of the person or tribunal allowing the claim."

The purchase price of the farm, being a payment authorized by law, is a claim within the meaning of this section. The agricultural commission being vested with the power of selecting the farm, the fund from which the payment of the purchase price is to be made being subject to the order of said commission, and said commission being enjoined by statute to apply said fund to the purchase and equipment of a county experiment farm, it would seem clear that this is a case in which the amount due is authorized to be fixed by some tribunal or person other than the county commissioners, to wit: by the agricultural commission. I am therefore of the opinion that the the purchase price of the farm is to be paid upon the warrant of the county auditor, upon the proper certificate of the agricultural commission, and that allowance of the claim by the county commissioners is neither necessary nor proper.

Some embarrassment is occasioned by the fact that while the fund for the purchase of the farm is to be disbursed on the order of the agricultural commission, yet the farm when purchased will belong to the county. The deed will therefore be made to the board of county commissioners, that board being a quasi corporation in whom is vested by law the title to all the property of the county. It therefore appears that the purchase price is to be ordered paid by one body, while the title is to be taken by and the deed delivered to another body. It will therefore be necessary for the agricultural commission to withhold its requisition upon or certificate to the county auditor to draw his warrant in favor of the present owner for the amount of the purchase price of the farm until the agricultural commission shall have been satisfied by proper certificates from the county commissioners that the deed has been delivered to them and from the prosecuting attorney that the deed is in proper form and that the title thereby conveyed is good. The same result might be obtained by the agricultural commission issuing to the county auditor a certificate to draw his warrant in favor of the present owner for the amount of the purchase price, upon his being satisfied by proper certificates from the county commissioners and prosecuting attorney that the deed had been delivered and was in proper form and that the title thereby conveyed was good.

In paying for equipment for the farm the rule herein announced is to be followed, and the purchase price of equipment for the farm is to be paid upon the warrant of the county auditor, upon the proper certificate of the agricultural commission.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES COMPATIBLE—DEPUTY STATE SUPERVISORS OF ELECTION —CLERK OF MUNICIPAL COURT.

The office of deputy state superintendent and inspector of elections and the office of the municipal court are not incompatible.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You have requested my opinion upon the following proposition:

> "May the same person hold the positions of deputy state supervisor and inspector of elections in an annual registration city and the office of clerk of the municipal court of the same city at the same time and draw salaries out of the public treasuries for both positions? If not, what kind of a finding should be made in the premises?"

The deputy state supervisor and inspector of elections is a state officer and although part of his salary, at least, is payable by the city, nevertheless it does not change his status as a state officer.

The clerk of the municipal court is an officer of the city. You do not state in your letter what city you have in mind relative to the clerk of the municipal court, but generally speaking the clerk of such a court would have no duty to perform which would be inconsistent with the duties to be performed by the same person as one of the deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections. It is true that he might be called upon to issue a summons or subpoena as clerk of such court upon himself as deputy state supervisor, but I do not consider that that is in any way a check of one office upon the other, nor do I see any other incompatibility of office between the two offices.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the same person may hold both positions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FOREIGN CORPORATION—STOCK NOT EXEMPT FROM TAXATION IF PART LOCATED IN FOREIGN COUNTRY.

Stock of foreign corporation not exempt from taxation if part of its property is located in a foreign country.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Acknowledging receipt of your letter of March 22nd, and noting your request that I consider Attorney General Hogan's opinion of December 15, 1914, construing the provisions of section 192, General Code, beg to advise that I have considered the opinion referred to and concur in the conclusions expressed by Mr. Hogan.

I reach this conclusion with regret, as what I regard as the unavoidable interpretation of section 192, General Code, makes the application of that section unequal and inequitable. However, it is not what is embodied in section 192 that produces the inequitable result, but rather the failure of the section to go far enough; for if there were no such provision the state of the law would be even more incongruous than it is now. (See Lee v. Sturges, 46 O. S., 153.)

The considerations which make one hesitate to reach the conclusion to which Mr. Hogan and myself have been driven are, after all, addressed to the legislature and not to those who interpret the laws.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MAIN MARKET ROAD LAW—STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER—HAS IMPLIED AUTHORITY TO COMPENSATE ABUTTING LAND OWNER FOR DAMAGES SUFFERED BY REASON OF CHANGE OF GRADE IN HIGHWAY.

Under the main market road law, sections 6859-1 to 6859-8, inclusive, of the General Code, the state highway commissioner has implied authority to compensate an abutting land owner for damages suffered by reason of a change of grade in the highway, the general manner or method of making compensation being subject to the approval of the governor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

HON. CLINTON COWAN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

SIR:—On July 15, 1914, Maude E. Knapp brought suit against your predecessor in office, Hon. James R. Marker; William Keesecker, a contractor; and the county commissioners of Trumbull county, the suit being brought in the common pleas court of Trumbull county. On August 5, 1914, Frank Moyer and Minnie V

Moyer brought suit against the same defendants and in the same court, and both suits are still pending. In both cases the plaintiffs aver that the defendants are threatening to raise the grade of the highway in front of their premises to their great and irreparable injury, and in both cases temporary restraining orders were allowed and are still in force. It may safely be asserted that the threatened injury to the Moyer land is slight, if indeed any injury is threatened, and I am informed that the local officials of Trumbull county stand ready to deal with the Moyer case and secure a dismissal of the same in case some method can be devised of dealing with the Knapp case. I shall, therefore, in this opinion refer only to the Knapp case, and the conclusion herein expressed is limited to the facts of that case as herein stated.

Prior to the bringing of these suits, the state highway commissioner had begun the improvement as a main market road of the highway extending southeast from Warren to Youngstown. Knapp was the owner of a small farm abutting on this highway, most of his land lying in a rather deep ravine just north of Girard. Knapp's land is improved with an artificial pond, ice house and greenhouse. A number of years ago a trolley line was built on this highway, the track being constructed on the side of the highway next to the Knapp land. The track was carried over the ravine above referred to on a trestle, and the supporting piers were of considerable height, permitting a free passage under the track. At two points the span between the piers was shortened, thus permitting the use of narrow girders and increasing the clearance under the track. These two points were situated approximately opposite the ice house and greenhouse of Knapp and at these two points Knapp had convenient means of passing from the highway to his land, with a sufficient clearance under the track of the trolley company to permit the use of covered vehicles.

The improvement of the highway as now planned, involves a substantial raising of the grade through the ravine referred to, and the highway will be so far elevated, if the plans are executed, as to make it impossible to pass from the highway under the track of the trolley company onto the lands of Knapp. At the same time the highway will not be sufficiently elevated to permit passage from the same over the track of the trolley company on to the lands of Knapp, except at one corner of his farm and that the most remote from the improvements above named. Even at that point the driveway over the track will be less convenient than before the change in grade. It will thus be seen that Knapp will be substantially damaged by the change of grade. He has offered to settle on a basis of $1,000.00, and the local officials of Trumbull county regard this as an advantageous settlement from the point of view of the public.

As before observed, this improvement is being constructed as a main market road and the entire cost is to be paid from the fund for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of main market roads created by section 6859-3, G. C., 103 O. L., 155. The further fact should be noted that this improvement was undertaken at a cost of some $125,000 by the state highway commissioner, in consideration of an agreement on the part of the county commissioners of Trumbull county to similarly improve another section of highway at a cost of some $160,000. The county commissioners have fulfilled this contract, and, while the same was only a gentleman's agreement, yet the state is in honor bound to complete its part of the agreement if legal means can be found so to do. The improvement which consists of some regrading and the laying of a brick pavement has been completed except in front of the Knapp and Moyer premises. At that point sufficient grading to destroy the old highway was done before the restraining orders were secured. Since that time nothing could be done, and the highway is now very dangerous and well nigh impassible. The resulting danger and inconvenience are all the greater by reason of the fact that this highway is a part of the main route from Cleveland through Youngstown to Pittsburgh, and the traffic is very heavy.

The legal question presented by the above facts is as to the right of the state highway commissioner to compensate a land owner for damages suffered by reason of a change of grade in the highway in front of his premises where such highway is being improved by the state highway commissioner as a main market road under the provisions of the main market road law, 103 O. L., 155.

Section 3 of the main market road law, being section 6859-3, G. C., provides that twenty-five per cent. of all moneys paid into the treasury of the state by reason of the state levy for state highway improvement purposes shall be used for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of certain main market roads located along and upon the route of portions of certain inter-county highways designated in the section.

Section 4 of the main market road law, being section 6859-4, G. C., reads as follows:

> "The construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of said main market roads as defined and designated in the preceding section hereof may be begun at any point and shall be executed in such manner and method. with such road materials and in accordance with such plans, details and specifications, as may be adopted by the state highway commissioner with the approval of the governor; and as to such main market roads there shall be no necessity for petitions being presented and filed as in other improvements and no procedure for construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of roads as is provided for in any other act or acts of the general assembly shall apply to such main market roads."

Section 5 of the main market road law authorizes the state highway commissioner to purchase equipment and materials and employ labor and to construct main market roads without letting contracts and to use convict labor in the building of such roads.

From a consideration of the above provisions, it is apparent that the legislature in enacting the main market road law, intended to free the highway commissioner from the restrictions of all other road laws, provide an elastic procedure in the construction of main market roads, and permit the building of these roads in any manner or method deemed wise by the state highway commissioner, subject only to the approval of the governor. The legislature must be taken to have known and had in mind when it enacted this law, that in the construction of such roads it would be highly expedient and well nigh necessary at times to change the lines of highways, secure additional land for wider rights-of-way, and change grades to the damage of owners of adjoining real estate. No express authority in the highway commissioner to expend money for these purposes is conferred, and the act by its express terms excludes all other procedure for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of roads as provided in any other law.

In view of the above, I am of the opinion that under the provisions of the main market road law the state highway commissioner has implied authority to compensate an abutting owner of real estate for damages sustained by reason of a change of grade in the highway, such implied power being necessary to enable the highway commissioner to carry out the powers expressly conferred.

Applying this principle to the facts in the Knapp case, I am of the opinion that in that case and under the facts thereof as stated herein, the state highway commissioner has implied authority to make a reasonable compensation to Knapp for the damages suffered by him by reason of the change of grade in front of his premises. While this implied power to make such compensation clearly exists, I recognize the wisdom of the policy of invoking it only in exceptional cases, where the merit of the claim is beyond dispute, and desire to limit any implied recommendation of the wisdom of such a course to the particular facts of this case.

The general course of procedure in making such compensation will require the approval of the governor under section 4 of the main market road law, 103 O. L., 157, and no steps should be taken in the matter until his approval is secured.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAYS—MAIN MARKET ROADS—SELECTING AND CHANGING ROUTES—STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER HAS NO AUTHORITY TO CHANGE ROUTE—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—IF THEY PROCEED TO ABANDON LAND UNDER SECTION 6860, G. C., AND OBJECTIONS ARE FILED, AND THEY THEN PROCEED UNDER SECTION 6885, G. C., THEY CANNOT PROCEED UNDER SECTION 1195, G. C., THE LATTER WOULD BE INCONSISTENT.

In selecting additional routes as inter-county highways and main market roads, under section 1184-4, G. C., 103 O. L., 451, and in changing to a more practicable location, the state highway commissioner acts under the same limitations that applied in the original designation of inter-county highways, and he must designate the original route or the altered route so that the same will follow the line of an existing highway. The state highway commissioner has no authority under the above section, to change a route from an existing highway and establish the same across privately owned lands.

Where a board of county commissioners, for the purpose of acquiring a strip of land upon which to lay out and establish a county road, over which an inter-county highway may be established by the state highway commissioner, with the approval of the governor, proceeds under authority of sections 6860, *et seq., G. COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

HON. JAMES F. FLYNN, JR., Prosecuting Attorney, Sandusky, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter under date of March 16, 1915, which is in part as follows:

"Confirming the conversation had over the long distance telephone today, with either Mr. Ramsey or myself, the question we have confronting us, but to which, if it is to be of any use, we should have an immediate answer. is this: whether in view of the provisions of section 1184-4, G. C., the state highway commissioner having designated the inter-county highway extending from this city to Lorain, thence to Cleveland, as Main Market Road, No. 13, and having determined that a part of a section in this county which we now desire to improve is not a practicable location, but that its entrance into the city of Sandusky should be changed or altered, necessitating the construction of perhaps a mile and a half of new road, the commissioners of this county may proceed to acquire the requisite land for this mile and a half of new road, under the provisions of section 1195, G. C.

"As I understand it, this is substantially the question propounded to Mr. Ballard of your office by Mr. Ramsey over the telephone today, and it is with greater particularity perhaps, the same question covered in the next to the last paragraph of my letter of March 5th to Mr. Marker, which was turned over to your office for consideration, is indicated in my letter of the 5th instant, the commissioners here have proceeded under the provisions of section 6860, et seq., but the viewers' report has met with objection, which will probably result in an appeal to the probate court by perhaps three of the property owners, thereby working an extended delay, and probably precluding the carrying out of the improvement as planned by the county commissioners and the state highway commissioner jointly. If this section of a mile and a half of new road as located by the state highway commissioner under the provisions of section 1184-4 can be properly termed a 'deviation' or a change or alteration so that we may proceed under section 1195, then it is obvious that the right conferred by that section upon failure to agree for the commissioners to deposit the money with the probate court, institute condemnation proceedings, and thereupon take immediate possession of the land, will obviate the necessity and difficulty of delay, if we may legally proceed in that way at once, and abandon existing proceedings."

From the statement of facts set forth in your letter, supplemented by certain statements made by you and Mr. R. K. Ramsey over the telephone, and by information obtained from the state highway department, I understand that the highway in question is an inter-county highway extending from Sandusky through Huron to Lorain, which highway has been designated as a main market road under the main market road law.

It seems that the state highway commissioner contemplated the improvement of this highway as a main market road, and when said improvement was projected a sentiment arose in favor of establishing a new road and of changing the route of the main market road so that said main market road was run over the new road, the reason for this suggested change being that the new route would avoid a dangerous railroad crossing and would be more direct.

For the purpose of establishing this new road, the commissioners began proceedings under section 6860, et seq., of the General Code. While it is not clear just how far these proceedings had been carried at this date, it seems that the report of the viewers have been read twice as provided by section 6880 of the General Code. In your letter to Mr. Marker under date of March 5, 1915, you state:

"We have had our third reading of the viewers' report and intend letting the dissatisfied owners go into the probate court,"

I assume from this state that the county commissioners either have adopted or are about to adopt the favorable report of the viewers and cause the report, survey and plat to be recorded and make an order for the payment of the damages assessed.

It appears that three land owners interested in this improvement are dissatisfied with the damages assessed in their favor and propose to appeal to the probate court under sections 7061, et seq., of the General Code, providing for appeals in road cases. The order of the county commissioners cannot be executed for twenty days, pending a possible appeal. This appeal, if perfected, will result in a still further delay. The county commissioners cannot take possession of the land appropriated until the damages assessed for it are paid, and those damages cannot be paid, at least in the cases of the three land owners, because said land owners either have appealed or are going to appeal to the probate court on the question of damages.

This situation prevents the taking possession of the land appropriated and the opening of the new road and as a result the contract for the construction of the main market road improvement cannot be let at least in so far as this contract extends over the line of the new road now in process of establishment.

It should be observed that there is no intention to abandon any part of the old road and the proposed new road leads in a direction different from the old road and has a different western terminus.

On December 28, 1914, the state highway commissioner assuming to act under section 1184-4, G. C., 103 O. L., 451, made an order changing the route of the Cleveland-Sandusky inter-county highway, No. 3, and Main Market route, No. 33, and attempted to change the route from the existing highway and establish the said road over the projected new road which the commissioners of Erie county were seeking to establish in the proceedings above referred to, and this attempted action of the state highway commissioner was approved by the governor.

The state highway commissioner was without authority to make this change. As above stated, he assumed to act under section 1184-4, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 451, a part of which is as follows:

> "the state highway commissioner may, subject to the approval of the governor, designate additional routes as 'inter-county' highways and main market roads, and he may change to a more practicable location, the route of any 'inter-county' highway or 'main market road.'"

It seems clear from a careful reading of sections 1184-1 to 1184-4, inclusive, of the General Code, that the state highway commissioner has no authority to re-locate any inter-county highway or main market road in any location other than along the line of an existing public highway of the state. In other words, in selecting additional routes and in changing to a more practicable location, the state highway commissioner acts under the same limitation that applied in the original designation of inter-county highways and he must designate the additional route or the altered route so that the same will follow the line of an existing public highway. The state highway commissioner has no authority under this section, to change a route and establish the same across privately owned lands. That is what he undertook to do in this case for the reason that there was not yet any public highway along the line of the new route. There was only a pending proceeding for the establishment of a public highway, with the possibility that the proceeding would fail. The act of the state highway commissioner in attempting to change the route was, therefore, without legal effect and the legal location of the inter-county highway in question is still along the old route.

You now inquire whether the county commissioners of Erie county can abandon the pending proceedings under section 6860, et seq., of the General Code, and proceed under section 1195, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 453.

Section 1195, G. C., as amended, provides:

"If the line of a highway proposed to be improved under the provisions of this act deviates from the existing highway, or if it is proposed to change the channel of a stream in the vicinity of the highway, the officials making application for such improvement must provide the requisite right of way. If the board of county commissioners are unable to contract upon fair and equitable terms with the owner or owners of such land, or property, as may be necessary for such change or alteration, or if additional right of way is required for the same and if such owner or owners of the land or property in question refuse to sell or contract with the commissioners of the county, for a reasonable compensation for such land or property required for such change or alteration, then the board of county commissioners as the case may be, may by resolution condemn and appropriate for public use such land or property, and upon the deposit of the amount of money as determined by said board of county commissioners with the probate court of the county, for such owner or owners, the board of county commissioners shall be authorized to take immediate possession of and enter upon said lands for such purposes. The county commissioners are hereby authorized to issue their order upon the county auditor. in favor of the probate judge, who shall hold such moneys until such litigation is decided. The right of appeal of any person in interest shall be allowed in the manner as contained in section 7517 of the General Code.

"If the line of any highway proposed to be improved by the state highway commissioner without the co-operation of county commissioners deviates from the existing highway, or if it is proposed to change the channel of a stream in the vicinity of such highway, the state highway commissioner may provide the requisite right of way, allowing reasonable damages and compensation in securing the same, which shall be charged as a part of the cost of such improvement. If the state highway commissioner is unable to contract upon fair and equitable terms with the owner or owners of such land or property as may be necessary for such change or alteration, or as may be necessary in order to secure material to improve such highway, or if additional right of way is required for the same, and if such owner or owners of the land, property or material in question refuse to sell or contract with the state highway commissioner for reasonable compensation or damages, or both, for such lands, property or material required for such change, alterations or improvement, the state highway commissioner shall condemn and appropriate for public use such lands, property or material, and upon the deposit of the amount of money, as determined by the state highway commissioner, with the probate court of the county in which the highway improvement is located, for such owner or owners, the state highway commissioner shall be authorized to take immediate possession of, and enter upon said lands for said purposes. The state highway commissioner is hereby authorized to issue an order upon the state auditor in favor of the probate judge, who shall hold such moneys until such litigation is decided.

"An appeal from the amount of compensation or damages allowed by the state highway commissioner for the payment of land, property or material so condemned, and appropriated for public use, shall be allowed to the probate court of the county. The appeal shall be perfected and docketed and other proceedings followed as provided in sections 7517-7523 of the General Code, except that the appellants shall be the plaintiff and the state highway commissioner the defendant."

While the county commissioners of Erie county can abandon the proceedings under sections 6860, et seq., of the General Code, an abandonment being authorized by section 6885, G. C., if they determine so to do, their jurisdiction will be exhausted and they cannot proceed under the above provision of section 1195, G. C., as amended, for the reason that the provisions of section 1195 are applicable only to inter-county highways, and in this case no inter-county highway has ever been established over the line of the proposed new highway. No inter-county highway can be established except over the line of an existing public highway. The change in the route of the existing highway proposed by the board of county commissioners of Erie county is not a deviation within the meaning of the above provision of section 1195, G. C. The deviation referred to in said provision is a change deemed necessary for the purpose of eliminating curves or turns in the highway or to avoid bad grades, and involves an abandonment of the old road and a substitution of the new therefor. The attempt of the county commissioners in this case does not involve an abandonment of the old road and the proposed new road leads in a different direction and has a different terminus from the old road.

If the county commissioners of Erie county desire to have this inter-county highway established along the line of the proposed new road, they must first establish the new road and then the state highway commissioner can act under the above provision of section 1184-4 of the General Code.

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that inasmuch as the board of county commissioners of Erie county has proceeded under the provisions of section 6860, et seq., of the General Code, for the purpose of laying out and establishing a new road, if said board abandons said proceedings under authority of section 6885, General Code, it cannot then proceed under the provisions of section 1195, General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 453, for the purposes above mentioned.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY—LEGAL ADVISER OF ROAD COMMISSIONERS

Road commissioners appointed under sections 7232 et seq., G. C., may not employ and compensate an attorney other than the prosecuting attorney, and the prosecuting attorney must serve as legal adviser without extra compensation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

HON. W. C. BROWN, Prosecuting Attorney, Steubenville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of March 27, 1915, in which you inquire whether road commissioners, appointed under favor of sections 7232 et seq., of the General Code, may employ an attorney other than the prosecuting attorney to advise, counsel, prepare bonds, contracts, advertisements, etc., and pay him for such services from the special fund derived from the special taxing road district.

In connection with your inquiry you call attention to section 2917, G. C., which section makes the prosecuting attorney the legal adviser of the county commissioners and all other county officers and county boards, and provides that no county officer may employ other counsel or attorney at the expense of the county except as provided in section 2412, G. C. The exception created by section 2412, G. C., is that if it deems it for the best interests of the county, the county commissioners may, upon the written request of the prosecuting attorney, employ legal counsel to assist the prosecuting attorney in the prosecution or defense of any suit or action brought by or against the county commissioners or other county officers and boards, in their official capacity.

You suggest that your question might be answered in the affirmative and that road commissioners appointed under sections 7232 et seq., of the general Code, might be held to have authority to employ and compensate an attorney other than the prosecuting attorney, upon the theory that such road commissioners are neither county officers nor a county board.

While this matter, in the exact form in which it is presented by you, has not been passed upon by this department, yet my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, rendered an opinion upon a proposition so similar to yours that his opinion, if adhered to, would be decisive of your inquiry. The opinion to which I refer was rendered October 9, 1912, to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, and is found at page 372 of the annual report of the attorney general for that year. In that opinion, after pointing out that road commissioners under the one mile assessment pike law are appointed by the county commissioners, are required to file their maps, profiles and reports with the latter, cannot levy a special tax but must act through the county commissioners, must turn over their completed work to the county commisioners, and are clearly made the agents of the county commissioners for the accomplishment of county work, it was held that under section 2917 of the General Code, the prosecuting attorney is made the legal adviser of the road commissioners and must serve them without compensation, and that a finding of the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices is justified for the amount of any extra compensation paid to a prosecuting attorney for services rendered the pike commissioners.

In rendering the above opinion the then attorney general followed an opinion rendered by his predecessor, Hon. U. G. Denman, on Sept. 20, 1910, to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, in which opinion the same conclusion was expressed.

Both of the above opinions contain copious references to the provisions of the one mile assessment pike law. It is sufficient to observe that under this law the laying out and establishing of free turnpike roads is very largely under the control of the county commissioners. Section 7232, G. C., provides that the original petition shall be filed with them. Section 7234 provides that the county commissioners shall appoint the three road commissioners. Section 7236 provides that the county commissioners shall have the power to remove road commissioners for cause and to fill vacancies. Section 7237 provides that the map and profile of the road shall be filed with the county commissioners. Section 7238 provides that the county commissioners shall direct the auditor to levy a tax for the construction of the road. Sections 7239 and 7240 authorize the county commissioners, under certain circumstances, to order that the work on the proposed road shall not be done and that no tax for said road shall be levied.

Under section 7241 the county commissioners must be satisfied that the extra taxes to be levied will build a good and sufficient turnpike road before the proposed road shall be built. Under section 7255 the county commissioners have authority upon petition therefor to extend the boundaries of the road. Under section 7262 the road commissioners must make an annual settlement with the county commissioners. Section 7265 provides that the county commissioners shall designate the name by which the road commissioners shall be known. Under section 7268 the road when completed is received by the county commissioners who are to enter a finding to that effect upon their journal. Section 7270 provides that the expense of surveying and locating the road shall be paid out of the county treasury, and section 7275 provides that county commissioners may change the location of any part of a free turnpike road.

After alluding to the above provisions, my predecessor, Hon. U. G. Denman, in the opinion above referred to, observed that > "while certain powers are given to the board of turnpike commissioners nevertheless one mile assessment pikes are laid out and established under the control and direction of the county commissioners and that expenses, other than the amount received from the levy upon property within the road district, are paid out of the county treasury.

> "If, therefore, the turnpike commissioners are officers at all, it would seem that they are county officers because they are engaged in county work. It is difficult, however, to term them county officers for the reason that, under sections 1 and 2 of article 10 of the constitution, county officers are elected, whereas turnpike commissioners are appointed by the county commissioners. I believe, therefore, that it is better to take the view that turnpike commissioners are the agents of the county commissioners in the construction of one mile assessment pikes.
> "Taking this latter view, it would be the duty of the prosecuting attorney to advise the county and turnpike commissioners as to all legal questions arising under the one mile assessment pike law. Taking the former view and considering the turnpike commissioners as a board with powers of its own, their work is nevertheless so largely of a county nature that I believe it would be the duty of the prosecuting attorney to serve the turnpike commissioners in the same manner as he serves county commissioners and county boards."

My predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in the opinion above referred to, in reaching a similar conclusion, used the following language:

> "The road commissioners are in fact the agents of the county commissioners in the construction of the one mile assessment pike. They are appointed by the county commissioners and are required to file their maps, profiles and reports with the county commissioners. They cannot levy the special tax but must act through the county commissioners. They are the agents of the county commissioners in this work."

I concur in the views expressed by my predecessors, and, answering your specific inquiry, I am of the opinion that road commissioners appointed under favor of sections 7232 et seq., of the General Code, may not employ and compensate an attorney other than the prosecuting attorney, and that the prosecuting attorney must serve them as legal adviser without extra compensation.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT—COUNCIL HAS AUTHORITY TO FIX ELECTRIC CURRENT RATES TO PRIVATE CONSUMERS.

The council of cities owning municipal electric light plants has authority to fix the rate at which electric current shall be furnished to private consumers.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 6, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of yours under date of March 31, 1915, requesting an opinion as follows:

> "Does the council, or director of service of cities have the authority to fix the rates to be charged by municipally owned and operated electric light plants for service rendered by such plants to private consumers?"

Section 3636, General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 263, enumerating the powers of municipal corporations, provides:

> "To regulate the erection of buildings and the sanitary condition thereof, the repair of, alteration in and addition to buildings, and to provide for the inspection of buildings or other structures and for the removal and repair of insecure buildings; to require, regulate and provide for the numbering and renumbering of buildings either by the owners or occupants thereof or at the expense of the municipality; to provide for the construction, erection, operation of and placing of elevators, stairways and the escapes in and upon buildings."

Section 3618, General Code, provides:

> "To establish, maintain and operate municipal lighting, power and heating plants, and to furnish the municipality and the inhabitants thereof with light, power and heat, to procure everything necessary therefor, and to acquire by purchase, lease or otherwise, the necessary lands for such purposes, within and without the municipality."

Section 2990, General Code, provides in part:

> "The council of a municipality may, when it is deemed expedient and for the public good, erect gas works or electric works at the expense of the corporation, or purchase any gas or electric works already erected therein, etc."

I am unable to find, after a careful examination, any express statutory provision for fixing the rates to be charged for electric current furnished to inhabitants of a municipal corporation from an electric light plant owned by it, and authority for such fixing of rates, therefore, comes by necessary implication arising from the specific grant of authority to own and maintain lighting and power plants and to furnish light therefrom to the inhaibtants of such municipal corporation.

An opinion was rendered upon this question by my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, under date of April 1, 1912, to Hon. C. T. Thomas, city solicitor of Troy, Ohio (in which I concur), as follows:

"Your question, however, presents a more difficult preliminary question, to wit: What department of the city government has the power to fix the rates chargeable for electric current furnished to citizens and inhabitants thereof? The director of public service, under the provisions of section 4326, is vested with the power to manage municipal water, lighting, heating, power, garbage and other undertakings of the city, and, therefore, there can be no question as to the authority of the director of public service to manage the municipal lighting and heating plants and other property of the corporation not otherwise provided for. But whether such a general grant of power suffices to confer upon the department of public service authority to fix rates and make contracts relating to the price of electric current; or whether council, in pursuance of its general legislative authority, and especially under section 127, Municipal Code, which provides that,

"'* * * All powers conferred by this act upon municipal corporations shall be exercised by council, unless otherwise provided herein,' may fix such rates, is not exactly clear. It is my opinion, however, that section 127, Municipal Code, governs and the council should fix rates and direct the director of public service to enter into contracts respecting electric current to be furnished to consumers from the municipal plant. The authority was directly conferred by statute, upon the director of public service to fix the price to be charged for water furnished by the municipal water plant to consumers of water within the municipality, but the statutes do not confer such power upon the director of public service in relation to electric current furnished by the municipality from a municipal plant to users of current within said municipality. I am, therefore, of the opinion that the holding of my predecessor, Hon. U. G. Denman, that the council of a municipality should fix rates to be charged for electric current to be furnished consumers from a municipal plant, rendered to Hon. E. C. Long, city solicitor of Bellefontaine, Ohio, under date of October 22, 1910, is correct upon the reasoning therein set forth."

This, however, does not apply to villages.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OIL INSPECTION FEES—SHOULD BE CREDITED TO GENERAL REVENUE FUND—APPROPRIATION FOR OIL INSPECTION DEPARTMENT—SALARIES—CHIEF INSPECTOR AND STENOGRAPHERS, HOW PAID—FEES OF DEPUTIES—FEE SECTION OF LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Since the amendment of section 24, G. C., 104 O. L., 78, oil inspection fees when paid into the state treasury should have been credited to the general revenue fund, there being no special fund consisting of such fees.

In 1914 the appropriation for the use of the oil inspection department consisted of the departmental receipts. Therefore, expenditures of the department between the time when the amendment to section 24 became effective and March 11, 1915, when that bill was repealed, could be made only from this appropriation.

The partial appropriation of 1915 for the use of the oil inspection department, however, is from the general revenue fund and is not limited to any specific receipts.

The salaries of the chief inspector of oils and his stenographer and their expenses accruing and incurred prior to March 11, 1915, may be paid only from the balances of the 1914 appropriation, consisting of receipts; but such salaries and expenses accruing and incurred since that date are payable out of the appropriation made from the general revenue fund.

As to the deputies' fees earned prior to March 11, 1915, the same rule applies, and such fees may be paid from any receipts during the official year, whether the receipts of a given month are sufficient to pay the fees earned in that month or not.

On March 4, 1915, the supreme court of Ohio held generally that the oil inspection law is unconstitutional because the fees exacted by it are excessive. Later the court of appeals held that the fee sections of the law were the only unconstitutional ones. In this condition of affairs the salaries and fees of the members of the oil inspection department should continue to be paid out of the appropriation made by the legislature for that purpose, at least until the question as to extent of the unconstitutionality of the oil inspection act is finally determined.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 7, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your letter of March 19th, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "We have had presented to us for the issuance of warrants, several vouchers from the state oil inspector, some being for traveling expenses and salaries under section 848 G. C., and others for fees of deputies under section 849 G. C. We are in doubt as to whether we can legally draw our warrants therefor.
> "These vouchers are in two classes, one class being for salaries and fees earned prior to March 4th, the other being for salaries, traveling expenses and fees of deputies earned thereafter.
> "The compensation of deputies of three cents per barrel inspected during January, 1915, has been fully paid. The earnings of the state from inspections during February, 1915, have been paid into the state treasury, but are insufficient to pay the sum of the vouchers for deputies' fees and salaries for that period. That is to say, the fees received by the state for inspections in February are not equal to the fees allowed deputies for such inspections as were made.
> "The vouchers for compensation subsequent to March 4th, cannot be drawn upon the funds prescribed by sections 848 and 849, G. C., because there is no money in that fund except an old balance which represents earnings of the state for inspections for which the inspector and deputies have been fully compensated.

"In addition to the doubts which these facts raise, the provisions of section 1 of the partial appropriation measure raised further doubts. I desire an opinion from your department upon the following questions so arising:

"1. Can I legally draw my warrant in favor of the inspector and his stenographer for salaries and expenses upon the moneys now on hand derived from inspections?

"2. If I cannot draw such a warrant can I draw one on the general fund?

"3. As to deputies' fees prior to March 4th, can I draw my warrants upon the moneys derived from inspections, without regard to whether the fees under section 850, G. C., for the inspections for which the deputy claims his compensation, have been paid?

"4. As to deputies' fees both preceding and after March 4th, can I draw my warrant for deputies' fees upon the money derived from inspections to the extent of the balance of such moneys on hand (provided it does not exceed the total appropriation)?

"5. If I cannot draw such warrants in favor of the deputies, can I legally draw the same upon the general fund?"

The following provisions of law give rise to the legal questions which are presented by the facts stated by you:

"Section 848. The state inspector of oils shall receive an annual salary of thirty-five hundred dollars, and an allowance for the salary of a stenographer, not to exceed seven hundred and twenty dollars in any year. He shall also be allowed his necessary traveling expenses not to exceed six hundred dollars in any year. Such salaries and expenses shall be paid monthly from moneys received by the state inspector under the provisions of this chapter.

"Section 849. For inspections under the provisions of this chapter, each deputy inspector of oils shall receive a fee of three cents for each barrel of oil of fifty gallons inspected by him. Such fees shall be paid from the fees collected under the provisions of the next following section, but no deputy inspector shall receive more than twelve hundred dollars in any year."

"Section 853. After payment of salaries due him and his deputies and the expenses incident to the conduct of his office, the state inspector of oils shall pay, quarterly, into the state treasury all moneys received by him under this chapter. On the second Monday of each year he shall make and deliver to the governor a report of inspections and a statement of the receipts and expenditures of his department during the preceding year."

The sections which I have quoted were passed in 1908 (99 O. L., 513).

In 1914 the general assembly passed what is known as the "Mooney Law," amending section 24 of the General Code and containing certain other provision, as follows (104 O. L., 78):

"Section 1. That section 24 of the General Code be amended to read as follows:

"Section 24. On or before Monday of each week every state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid shall pay to the treasurer of state all moneys, checks and drafts received for the state, or for the use of any such state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid, during the preceding week, from taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, fees, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals or otherwise, and file with the auditor of state a detailed, verified statement of such receipts. * * *

"Section 2. That said original section 24 of the General Code be and the same is hereby repealed.

"Section 3. All sections and parts of sections of the General Code which provide for the custody, management and control of moneys arising from the payment to any state officer, state institution, department, board, commission, college, normal school or university receiving state aid of any fees, taxes, assessments, licenses, premiums, penalties, fines, costs, sales, rentals or other charges or indebtedness and which are inconsistent with the provisions of section 24 of the General Code as herein amended, are, to the extent of such inconsistency, hereby repealed."

The appropriation law of 1914 (104 O. L., 54-71) appropriated to the state oil inspector the receipts of his department.

The partial appropriation law of 1915 (H. B. 314) appropriated to the state oil inspector for the current expenses of his department for the perod beginning February 16, 1915, and ending June 30, 1915, certain specific sums of money for his salary and that of his chief clerk and for the fees of deputy inspectors.

Section 6 of this act provides in part as follows:

"All balances in any appropriation account against which there is no liability on February 16, 1915, and any excess of such balances over liabilities, shall lapse into the fund from which the same were appropriated."

Section 8 of the same law provides that "The law approved February 17, 1914, and entitled 'An act to make general appropriations and to repeal House Bill No. 670, approved May 9, 1913 (103 O. L., 627) entitled 'An act to make general appropriations,' is hereby repealed, provided, however, that such repeal shall not affect the balances now remaining in any appropriation accounts created by such act in so far as contingent liabilities have heretofore been created or incurred under contracts authorized by law."

This law was approved and went into effect on March 11, 1915.

Section 1 of the act last above referred to provides in part as follows:

"Appropriations hereinafter enumerated for departments * * *, for the uses and purposes of which, or of any activity or function thereof, specific funds in the state treasury are provided by law, are hereby made from such specific funds in so far as such funds are subject by law to appropriation and expenditure for the purposes hereinafter mentioned, and to the extent that the moneys to the credit of such specific funds on February 16, 1915, or credited thereto prior to July 1, 1915, shall be sufficient to satisfy such appropriations. Any sums necessary to supply the balance of such appropriations are hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund, except that no moneys shall be taken from the general revenue fund to support the highway department."

One of the questions which is encountered in dealing with the facts stated by you is as to whether or not the department of oil inspection is a department "for the use and purposes of which, or of any activity or function thereof, specific funds in the state treasury are provided by law."

In order to answer this question the legislative history apparent on the face of some of the statutory provisions above quoted must be considered. In the first place, it is apparent that under the oil inspection act itself, without regard to the "Mooney Law," the revenue arising from the operation of the department did not constitute a specific fund in the state treasury.

Section 853, General Code, above quoted, provided as to the excess of moneys received by the state oil inspector over and above the salaries due him and his deputies and the expenses incident to the conduct of his office, merely that they should be paid "quarterly into the state treasury." They were not to be paid into the state treasury to the credit of any specific fund, and in law and in fact were always treated as belonging to the general revenue fund. (Section 2264, G. C.)

The Mooney law, being section 24 of the General Code as amended, with section 3 of the amendatory act as above quoted, effected no change in the character of the revenues derived from oil inspection by express provision; nor did this law have the effect, as a general rule at least, of creating in the state treasury any funds that did not theretofore exist therein.

The above quoted sections of the oil inspection act had the general effect of requiring certain expenses, salaries and fees to be paid from the inspection fees before the same were paid into the state treasury. The enactment of the Mooney law had the effect of repealing the requirements that such expenses should be so paid. The repeal, in my judgment, went to the length of dispensing with any implication that might have been derived from the former sections, to the effect that in no case should the fees, salaries and expenses in question be paid otherwise than from the fees in question. This was doubtless the intent of the original law, but after the Mooney law was passed and went into effect that intent could not be enforced or carried into effect by judicial or administrative action, but only by legislative action. Inasmuch as one session of the legislature can not bind its successors, it follows that after the Mooney law became effective there was no requirement of an existing law to the effect that the salaries, expenses and fees payable under the oil inspection act should be paid only from the oil inspection fees.

As I have remarked, the surplus at least of the oil inspection fees under the original law when paid into the state treasury were credited to the general revenue fund. There is no machinery provided by the Mooney law or by the oil inspection law whereby when all the proceeds of oil inspection fees are paid into the state treasury under the former, any portion of them can be set aside and constituted a fund for the use of the state inspector of oils, the remainder of them being credited to the general revenue fund. Therefore, all of such proceeds should, in my judgment, be credited to the general revenue fund.

I am of the opinion, for the reasons above stated, that since the Mooney law became effective the oil inspection fees when turned into the state treasury should be credited to the general revenue fund.

In the first budget bill of 1914 the legislature of that year preserved the practical separation of the oil inspection fees by appropriating from the general revenue fund all the receipts of the department. This appropriation remained in existence until March 11th last, and from the time when the Mooney law went into effect until March 11, 1915, all receipts from oil inspection were appropriated to the uses and purposes of the oil inspection department. Out of this appropriation and by virtue of its terms and not by virtue of the provisions of the oil inspection act, all fees of deputies and salaries and expenses of the department should have been paid.

Since March 11, 1915, however, when the appropriation law of 1915 took effect, this appropriation has not been in existence except to the extent of liabilities against the same theretofore created.

The appropriations made in the current appropriation bill are like any other appropriations from the general revenue fund. They are not limited in amount or in expenditure to any particular revenues. The auditor of state should have on his books no appropriation account of the fund made up of oil inspection fees, except that represented by the unlapsed portion of the appropriation of receipts made in the year 1914.

In your statement of facts you seem to assume that for the purpose of paying the fees of deputies each month's business must be separately considered; or, in other words, if a deputy does not earn in a given month enough to pay one-twelfth of his maximum compensation for that month, but has earned enough in previous months in excess of such portion of his compensation to make up the deficiency for the month in question, he is not entitled to have the deficiency made up. This is not the case. Hon. U. G. Denman, as attorney general, advised the state inspector of oils on February 3, 1909, in an opinion to be found in the annual report for that year, page 352, that the year is the unit, and that each deputy is entitled to receive the full amount of his fees for the entire year beginning and ending on May 15th, provided the same does not exceed twelve hundred dollars.

Therefore, the facts stated by you that "the compensation of deputies of three cents per barrel inspected during January, 1915, has been fully paid" is immaterial. If the revenues for February, 1915, are insufficient to pay the fees actually earned in that month, the surplus, so to speak, from January or any preceding month can be used for that purpose.

Answering your questions specifically, beg to state that:

(1) You may legally draw your warrant in favor of the inspector and his stenographer for salaries and expenses accruing prior to February 16, 1915, upon any balance in the appropriation under the 1914 bill, consisting of receipts of the oil inspection department.

You may legally draw your warrant for salaries and expenses of the state oil inspector accruing subsequently to that date from the present appropriation account. Such warrants should be drawn upon the general revenue fund and the proper budgetary classification of the appropriation for the department of state oil inspector.

The salary of the inspector of oils and the expenses of his office are provided for by law, and it no longer being possible to pay them directly out of the oil inspection fees as such in the manner originally provided, there is no limitation upon the source from which they may be paid. The general assembly has appropriated moneys for this purpose and the appropriation is out of the general revenue fund, there being no such thing as a state oil inspection fund.

(2) The answer to your first question also constitutes an answer to your second question.

(3) As to deputies' fees earned prior to March 4th, you may lawfully draw warrants upon the proper appropriation as indicated by my answer to your first question, regardless of whether or not the state has received the inspection fees representing the inspections made. Even under the original oil inspection act of 1908 it was not necessary that a deputy collect the main or principal fee in order to be entitled to receive his inspection fee of three cents per barrel.

As to deputies' fees claimed to have been earned after March 4th, the most serious question involved in your inquiries arises. The same question is partially involved in your first question respecting the salaries and expenses of the state inspector and his stenographer, but I have purposely passed over the question in connection with that inquiry in order to deal with it here.

The supreme court in Castle v. Mason did not finally determine just how much of the oil inspection act was unconstitutional. This question was directly raised in the court of appeals when that court came to enter judgment, after overruling the state's demurrer in accordance with the mandate of the supreme court. The court of appeals has just decided that the only provisions of the oil inspection law which are unconstitutional are sections 850 and 858 thereof, prescribing the fees to be collected from the owners of the oil for making inspections. Whether this finding of the court of appeals will be made the basis of further error proceedings in the supreme court or not, I am unable to advise at the present writing. However unless and until it is finally and definitely determined that the entire oil inspection act is unconstitutional I believe that the salaries and fees of the state inspector and the deputy inspectors and the other expenses of the department should be paid, provided the department is making the inspections and otherwise discharging all the duties imposed upon it by law, except, of course, the collection of the inspection fees from the owners of the oil.

I reach this conclusion because the appropriation bill of 1915, to which reference has already been made, was passed by the legislature a week after the decision of the supreme court in Castle v. Mason. Presumably the legislature acted with full knowledge of the court's decision, which, limited to the narrowest extent, must be regarded as putting an end to the right of the state inspector and his deputies to enact inspection and his deputies to exact inspection fees from the owners of oil inspected. Therefore, the appropriation bill must have been passed with the knowledge that the state revenue from oil inspection fees had been cut off and with the intention that the work of inspection should go on, and that the fees and salaries of the officials necessary to administer it should be paid from the appropriations which were made out of the general revenue fund. Of course, if the courts ultimately determine that the entire act is unconstitutional, all activities under it should cease and no money should be paid out of the state treasury for the salaries accruing, expenses incurred or fees earned thereunder after the date of such a decision.

(4) The answer to your fourth question with respect to deputies' fees is similar to that given to your first question with respect to salaries of the inspector and his stenographer. All fees earned and constituting liabilities against the appropriation of 1914 can be paid only from the receipts of the department, because the appropriation of 1914 was limited to such receipts. So long as the statutory maximum, or such proportionate part thereof as represents the part of the official year which has elapsed, is not exceeded, it makes no difference that the receipts paid into the state treasury during the month of February, for example, may not have been equal to the fees earned in that month.

(5) Your fifth question has been answered by the general statement that both the appropriation for the year 1914 and that for the year 1915 are from the general revenue fund, the one being limited to receipts of the department and the other being made generally without reference to the existence of any receipts.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

NOTARY FEE—MUST BE PAID BY PUBLISHER ON AFFIDAVIT IN PROOF OF PUBLICATION.

A notary fee on an affidavit in proof of publication is not a public charge unless made so by statute, and the expense thereof is to be borne by the publisher.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 7, 1915.

HON. JOHN V. CAMPBELL, Prosecuting Attorney, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of February 25, 1915, your Mr. Groom wrote to this department wherein he stated that he understood that the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices had given instructions pursuant to an opinion of the attorney general's office that the forty cents for notary fees on an affidavit in proof of publication is not a public charge, and further that the business manager of one of the local papers had stated to him that said business manager had received a letter from the bureau stating that he was not obliged to furnish an affidavit in proof of publication without pay for the same. Mr. Groom further states:

> "We have been cleaning up the forfeited lands duplicate by foreclosing the lien of the state and consequently have a large number of publications for non-resident defendants requiring the affidavit in proof thereof. On account of the limitations of section 5637, General Code, relating to the judiciary levy, we are compelled twice each year to file action for transfer of funds, which also requires publication and proof thereof.
> "The law requires proof of publication and undoubtedly contemplates payment for notary services for the affidavit, as a notary is not to furnish his services free. If payment cannot be made by assessing the notary fees as part of the costs of the case in public litigation, the burden falls upon the officer or board filing the suit. As the service is a public service this undoubtedly is not proper."

Mr. Groom then asks for a reconsideration of the former opinion if the same covers the matter referred to by him.

We have searched the files of the office and are unable to find any opinion which covers the question that you ask. However, section 6251, G. C., specifically states to what amount a publisher is entitled for the publication of a legal notice.

If the law requires him to furnish proof of the publication thereof, the charge for the same should be paid for by the publisher and not charged as costs in the case; nor is the same to be paid by the officer receiving the affidavit and proof of publication. The affidavit and proof of publication is the substantiation of the publisher under oath that the publication has been properly made, and that is and should be a prerequisite to his receiving compensation therefor.

I am therefore of the opinion that the forty cents for notary fees on an affidavit in proof of publication is not a public charge but one to be borne by the publisher who publishes the advertisement unless there is a specific provision in a particular statue which authorizes the payment of the notary fee on an affidavit in proof of publication of a particular advertisement such as is found relative to the affidavit on a proof of claim against a decedent estate, as is found in section 10717, General Code.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—BENSE ACT—NEW ORDER SHOULD BE MADE WHEN TIME LIMIT HAS EXPIRED ON OLD—SEWAGE, VAN WERT, OHIO.

The State Board of Health should make a new order under the Bense Act rather than attempt to enforce an old order concerning which there may be question, owing to the expiration of the time stated in the old order.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, APRIL 8, 1915.

State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of April 6, 1915, which is as follows:

> "I shall be glad to have your advice as to the procedure to be followed by the state board of health in the following case.
> "In 1908, upon receipt of complaint that the city of Van Wert was responsible for a nuisance in Town Creek, the state board of health caused an investigation to be made and found that the city of Van Wert had permitted the discharge of sewage and other wastes into said creek with the result that a nuisance had been created detrimental to the health and comfort of the persons who live in the vicinity of the stream. An order was adopted requiring the city of Van Wert to putify its sewage in a manner satisfactory to the state board of health on or before December 1, 1909. This order was approved by Governor Harris and Attorney General Denman on January 4, 1908. Owing to litigation pending in the case of the city of Greenville v. Demerest, et al., action was not taken by the state board of health to enforce the provisions of its order. This litigation was pending until May, 1912, when the supreme court handed down the decision to the effect that the law was constitutional.
> "No further complaints were received in regard to conditions at Van Wert until recently when an investigation shows that no steps have been taken by the city to obey the order of the state board of health and conditions still exist which would warrant the state board of health in taking action against the city of Van Wert. As I have stated the original order was adopted in 1908. The point on which I wish your advice is as to whether the state board of health should proceed under this order or should make another investigation and adopt a new order in which definite time would be fixed for compliance."

In view of the facts stated in your letter, which show clearly that the order made by your board in 1908 directing the city of Van Wert to purify its sewage was not enforced within the time limit set, to wit, December 1, 1909, there is grave doubt in my mind as to the advisability of attempting to proceed to its enforcement at this time, because the city of Van Wert, in order to accomplish the purpose designed by the order, will have to proceed under the statutory provisions relative to the issuance of bonds, and it is therefore my opinion that if the facts heretofore considered are at present existing and justify such course, another order covering the situation should be issued by your board, which would of course become effective upon the approval of the governor and the attorney general. It would be useless to proceed under any questionable authority when at the outset the doubt on that question may be removed.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

SCHOOL DISTRICT—WHERE NO BONDED INDEBTEDNESS EXISTS, BOARD OF EDUCATION NEED NOT HAVE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF SINKING FUND—NEED NOT BE APPOINTED BEFORE OFFERING BONDS TO INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

Where a school district has no bonded indebtedness, and a board of sinking fund commissioners has not been created, the board of education of the district in the issue and sale of its bonds, is not required to procure the appointment of a board of commissioners of sinking fund for the district before proceeding to offer such bonds to the Industrial Commission and to advertise and sell such bonds or any residue not purchased by the Industrial Commission.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. P. A. SAYLOR, Prosecuting Attorney, Eaton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—On March 24th you requested my written opinion upon the following proposition:

"On March 20th Lanier township school district, Preble county, Ohio, voted on the question of issuing bonds in the sum of $59,000.00 for the purpose of purchasing a site and erecting and furnishing a school building thereon, the proposition being approved by a majority vote of the electors of the district and the boards of education are now proceeding to issue and sell bonds in the above amount.

"Lanier township rural school district has no bonded indebtedness as yet, and there is no board of commissioners of the sinking fund of Lanier township school district.

"Will it be necessary, under the requirements of the Code, to have the board of commissioners of the sinking fund for the district appointed before proceeding further with the bond issue, or in the absence of a board of commissioners of the sinking fund for the district, can the bonds be first offered to the state liability board of awards, and if not taken by that body advertised and sold according to law?"

Section 7614, G. C., provides in part:

"The board of education of every district shall provide a sinking fund for the extinguishment of all its bonded indebtedness, which fund shall be managed and controlled by a board of commissioners designated as the 'board of commissioners of the sinking fund of ----------' (inserting the name of the district), which shall be composed of five electors thereof, and be appointed by the common pleas court of the county in which such district is chiefly located, except that, in city or village districts the board of commissioners of the sinking fund of the city or village may be the board of the school district. * * *"

Section 7619 provides:

"When a board of education issues bonds for any purpose, such issue shall first be offered for sale to the board of commissioners of the sinking fund, who may buy any or all of such bonds at par. Within five days of the time when notice is given, the board shall notify the board of education of its > action upon the proposed purchase. After that time the board of education shall issue any portion not purchased by such commission according to law."

By the terms of section 7614, supra, the board of education of the district is required to provide a sinking fund, only for the purpose of extinguishing the bonded indebtedness of the district together with interest accruing thereon, and only upon the creation of such sinking fund is there any requirement or occasion for the creation of a board of sinking fund commissioners and the appointment of five electors as such commissioners.

It appearing from your statement of facts that there is no bonded indebtedness against the Lanier township school district to this time, the condition has not arisen requiring the creation of the sinking fund and the appointment of the board of commissioners for such sinking fund. No requirement for the appointment of such board arises out of the issue of bonds now in process in the district until the bonds have been sold, thereby creating an indebtedness of the district, at which time the provisions of section 7614, G. C., will become operative.

As there is no board of commissioners in your district, and the conditions requiring the appointment of such board under the law have not yet arisen, I am of the opinion that the board of education may proceed with the sale of the bonds in question without the appointment of a board of commissioners of the sinking fund and offering the bonds to such board, as a preliminary to the further procedure prescribed by the statutes.

It is to be observed, however, that the industrial commission of Ohio has superseded that state liability board of awards, and therefore the bonds should, before being advertised, be first offered to the industrial commission of Ohio.

Section 12 of the act creating the industrial commission of Ohio, 103, O. L. 95, provides in part as follows:

> "The industrial commission shall supersede and perform all the duties of the state liability board of awards * * * and said commission, on and after the first day of September, 1913, as successor to the said state liability board of awards, shall be vested with and assume and exercise all powers and duties cast by law upon said state liability board of awards."

I, therefore, advise that the board of education may proceed to offer the bonds in question to the industrial commission of Ohio, and if not purchased may advertise and sell such bonds or any portion thereof not so purchased by the industrial commission without reference to the provisions of section 7619 relative to offering said bonds to the board of sinking fund commissioners.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PROVISIONS OF SECTION 5265, G. C., IMPERATIVE—ARMORY BOARD RULES THAT NO ARMORY SHALL RECEIVE MORE THAN $40,000 —CANNOT CONTROL LEGISLATURE IN MAKING APPROPRIATIONS.

Section 5265, G. C., is an operative statute. Rules of the armory board cannot in anywise control the legislature in making appropriations.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. FRANK H. REIGHARD, Chairman, The Finance Committee, 81st General Assembly Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your chairman's request for opirion, under date of April 6, 1915, reading as follows:

> "I beg leave to call your attention to page 32 of the budget submitted to the 81st general assembly by W. A. Heffernan, Commissioner, and especially to the third paragraph of the critical comment, and to this clause 'that section' (5265) has no legal effect.
> "I desire to know exactly the meaning of that paragraph as it relates to appropriations for the national guard; (1) Must the auditor of state set apart each year 10 cents per capita? (2) Can more than $40,000 be appropriated out of the armory board fund for the erection of any armory? That is, I understand the board has adopted a rule that no armory shall receive more than $40,000 out of the national guard fund. Now, if the finance committee sees fit to appropriate $100,000 for the erection of an armory, can they appropriate this money out of the armory board fund?
> "These are two of the questions that are bothering us mostly, and we have given some consideration to the critical comment of the budget commissioner."

The criticism of Mr. Heffernan referred to is as follows:

> "The legislature has for several years past based its appropriation upon section 5265 of the General Code, which provides that the auditor of state set aside ten cents for each person in Ohio as enumerated in the last federal census to maintain the national guard. That section has no legal effect; it simply indicates the policy of the state as the particular session of the general assembly which passed that section saw it. To interpret it in any other way would be to admit that it is a continuing appropriation and therefore in violation of that provision of the constitution which forbids appropriations for more than two years."

Section 5265 of the General Code provides as follows:

> "The auditor of state shall credit to the 'state military fund' from the general revenues of the state, a sum equal to ten cents for each person who was a resident of the state as shown by each last preceding federal census. Such fund shall be a continuous fund and available only for the support of the organized militia. It shall not be diverted to any other fund or used for any other purpose."

The error into which Mr. Heffernan fell is shown in his last sentence above quoted. Mr. Heffernan assumed that section 5265 as an appropriation statute, but such is not the case. This section simply directs the auditor of state to segregate a military fund equal to ten cents for each person who was a resident of the state as shown by the last preceding federal census. Such fund cannot be used unless there is an appropriation by the legislature.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that section 5265 of the General Code is a fully operative statute and that it is a duty of the auditor of state thereunder to segregate such a fund; but the auditor of state has no power to pay anything out of such fund until an appropriation has been made in regular form by the general assembly.

2. Your second question involves a consideration of section 5261 of the General Code, which provides as follows:

> "The maximum amount to be expended by the state for the building or purchase of an armory for a company or single organization, shall not exceed twenty thousand dollars, and ten thousand dollars additional thereto for each organization or headquarters provided for. In no city or village shall more than one building be erected or purchased until provisions have been made for all organizations therein, nor shall a building be leased or rented for the use of a company or single organization in excess of six hundred dollars per year for each organization provided for."

As will be seen from a reading of the above quoted section, the amount to be expended for the purpose of erecting an armory depends on how many organizations or headquarters are to be provided for.

Section 5261, G. C., has been amended by House Bill No. 217, passed March 8 1915, approved March 16, 1915, but not yet in effect. The only difference between the amended section and the present one is that the furnishing and equipment of armory buildings is provided for by the amendment.

The armory board is limited by the provisions of this section and the mere appropriation by the legislature of the sum of one hundred thousand dollars for the erection of an armory would not authorize such expenditure unless it was made clear in the appropriation bill that as to the particular expenditure the provisions of section 5261, G. C., were not to apply. The present legislature, of course, has the power to repeal or amend section 5261, so as to allow the sum of one hundred thousand dollars to be spent for an armory, providing the money is appropriated.

No rule of the armory board could control the legislative policy if the legislature saw fit to authorize a different amount to be spent than that provided for by any rule of the armory board. In the absence of legislation to the contrary and within the maximums provided for in section 5261, the armory board would have the power, by rules or otherwise, to limit the amount to be expended for a particular building.

Section 5261, G. C., provides simply that "not to exceed" certain amounts shall be expended, but, as above stated, this matter may be regulated by the legislature notwithstanding any rule that the armory board may have adopted and it is within the province of the legislature, if they see fit, to make the erection of a building costing not less than a certain amount mandatory.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

JUSTICE OF PEACE—AUTHORITY TO APPOINT TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE—CONSTRUCTION OF WORDS "OLDEST COMMISSION."

The phrase "oldest commission" as used in section 3262, G. C., means the unexpired commission of earliest date.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. HAROLD W. HOUSTON, Prosecuting Attorney, Urbana, Ohio.

I acknowledge the receipt of your request for an opinion, under date of April 3, 1915, as follows:

Section 3262, G. C., provides in part:

> " 'When for any cause a township is without a board of trustees or there is a vacancy in such board, the justice of the peace of such township holding the oldest commission,' etc.
> "My question is directed to the meaning of the phrase 'holding the oldest commission.' Does the phrase refer to the present commission of the justices, or is it to be determined by taking into consideration former commissions, and ascertaining which of the justices is oldest in point of service?
> "My opinion is that the appointing power under the above section would be determined by considering the present commissions of the justices only, regardless of the fact of which justice had served the longest by virtue of former successive commissions. The rule seems to be entirely arbitrary, but I would like a ruling of your department on the matter."

In answer to your inquiry, I concur in your opinion on the question submitted. Section 3262 of the General Code, provides as follows:

> "When for any cause a township is without a board of trustees or there is a vacancy in such board, the justice of the peace of such township holding the oldest commission, or in case the commission of two or more of such justices bear even date, the justice oldest in years shall appoint a suitable person or persons, having the qualifications of electors in the township, to fill such vacancy or vacancies for the unexpired term."

The word "commission" as here used has reference to a live commission, that is to say, after the term of a commission has expired, it ceases to be a commission within the meaning of the terms of this statute. This view is strengthened by the provision of the above quoted section of the statute in case two commissions are of even date and is in accord with the former holding of my predecessor, Hon. U. G. Denman, under date of February 1, 1910, as follows:

> "I beg to advise that under date of August 8, 1906, this department rendered an opinion to the secretary of state in which it was held that section 1452, which provides that the justice of the peace 'holding the oldest commission,' in case of vacancy in the office of township trustees, shall fill the same by appointment, does not refer to a commission earlier than the one under which the justice is now holding office, and it is entirely immaterial as to what terms were served or commissions held by either justice prior to the current term."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

POSITION OF VILLAGE SOLICITOR IS NOT AN "OFFICE."

The position of village solicitor is not an "office" within the meaning of section 5617, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of April 5, 1915, Hon. L. C. Davis, village solicitor, Middleport, Ohio, requested my opinion as follows:

> "Will you kindly advise me whether or not employment as village solicitor is included in the word 'office', as used in section 5617 of the General Code, which reads:
> " 'A district assessor, deputy assessor, member of a district board of complaints or any assistent, clerk or other employe of a district assessor or district board of complaints shall not, during his term of office or period of service or employment, as fixed by law or prescribed by the tax commission of Ohio, hold any office of profit, except offices in the state militia and the office of notary public.' "

Section 5617, to which reference is made in the inquiry, is found in 103 O. L. at page 796, and the quotation therefrom is of the section in full.

Section 4220, G. C., provides:

> "When it deems it necessary, the village council may provide legal counsel for the village, or any department or official thereof, for a period not to exceed two years, and provide compensation therefor."

In an opinion rendered by my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, to Hon. Frank W. Miller, superintendent of public instruction, under date of March 2, 1912 attorney general's report for 1912, vol. 1, at page 487, it was held:

> "The village solicitor being appointed by contract, fulfilling only contractual duties, serving for an indefinite term and not being obligated to take oath or give bonds, is not an 'official' within the meaning of section 4762, General Code, which stipulates that these duties shall fall upon any official serving in a similar capacity to that of prosecuting attorney or city solicitor."

In the course of the opinion it is stated as follows:

> "As stated by Gilmore, J., in State v. Wilson, 29 O. S., 345, let us examine to determine whether 'some of the indicia' of an officer may be found. Is he appointed for a definite term? No, he is hired by contract and the hiring may be for one case, or for one month, or for any other time, so long as it does not exceed the limitation two years fixed by law. Must he take an oath of office or give a bond? No, no more than any other mere employe of the village. Must he be an elector of the village? Not at all; many cases have come to my notice where, by reason of there being no attorney-at-law in a village, or for some other good and sufficient cause, legal counsel have been employed from neighboring jurisdictions. In fact, I cannot find any legal necessity for his being an elector at all, nor (though I do not pass upon the question) would I see any objection to the employment of an alien or a woman counsel, if the village council saw fit. It does not appear to me that this position is such an 'office' as, under article 15, section 4, of the constitution, would render it necessary for the person to be possessed of the qualifications of an elector. The duties of village counsel are not prescribed by statute but fixed by contract. If he die or resign his duties are not cast upon a successor; a new contract is necessary, with a new party.

"So, I conclude that the legal counsel of the village is not an official in the true sense of the word, and was not contemplated under the provisions of section 4762, General Code."

I concur in the opinion of Mr. Hogan and therefore hold that the employment as village solicitor is not included in the word "office" as used in section 5617, General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION 7600, GENERAL CODE, WHICH PROVIDES THAT EACH SCHOOL DISTRICT SHALL RECEIVE $30.00 FOR EACH TEACHER EMPLOYED IN DISTRICT MEANS EACH TEACHER EMPLOYED FOR ENSUING YEAR.

The provision of section 7600, G. C., which reads "each school district within the county shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district" means for each teacher to be employed in such district for the ensuing year.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of February 27, 1915, you request my written opinion upon the following question:

"Section 7600, vol. 104, O. L., page 159, reads in part: '* * * Each school district within the county shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district * * *.' Does this mean the teachers employed at the time of the distribution of the funds, or teachers employed during the preceding year?"

Section 7582, G. C., 104 O. L., 159, provides as follows:

"The auditor of state shall apportion the state common school fund to the several counties of the state semi-annually, upon the basis of the enumeration of youth therein, as shown by the latest abstract of enumeration transmitted to him by the superintendent of public instruction. Before making his February settlement with county treasurers, he shall apportion such amount thereof as he estimates to have been collected up to that time, and, in the settlement sheet which he transmits to the auditor of each county, shall certify the amount payable to the treasurer of his county. Before making his final settlement with county treasurers each year he shall apportion the remainder of the whole fund collected, as nearly as it can be ascertained, and in the August settlement sheet which he transmits to the auditor of each county shall certify the amount payable to the treasurer of his county."

The above section governs the auditor of state in his distribution of the state common school fund to the several counties and is based upon the enumeration of youth. However, after the state auditor has made his settlement with the county treasurers, under the above section, for the state common school fund, the distribution of such fund within the county is governed by the provisions of section 7600. Section 7600 provides in part as follows:

"After each annual settlement with the county treasurer, each county auditor shall immediately apportion school funds for his county. The state common school funds shall be apportioned as follows:

"Each school district within the county shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district, and the balance of such funds shall be apportioned among the various school districts according to the average daily attendance of pupils in the schools of such districts. * * *"

In an opinion rendered by my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, to your bureau, under date of August 3, 1914, No. 1086, it was held that the words "each annual settlement" as used in section 7600, G. C., means and designates the August settlement, and that the apportionment should take place at that time, although the actual distribution of the money might be made, part at the August settlement and the balance at the following February settlement.

Section 4744-2, 104 O. L., 142, provides as follows:

"On or before the first day of August of each year the county board of education shall certify to the county auditor the number of teachers to be employed for the ensuing year in the various rural and village school districts within the county school district, and also the number of district superintendents employed and their compensation and the compensation of the county superintendent; and such board of education shall also certify to the county auditor the amounts to be apportioned to each district for the payment of its share of the salaries of the county and district superintendents."

Section 4744-3, 104 O. L., 143, provides in part as follows:

"The county auditor when making his semi-annual apportionment of the school funds to the various village and rural school districts shall retain the amounts necessary to pay such portion of the salaries of the county and district superintendents as may be certified by the county board. * * *"

An opinion by my predecessor, Mr. Hogan to Hon. Benjamin Olds, prosecuting attorney of Morrow county, under date of October 8, 1914, referring to the difference in the provisions of section 7600, G. C., which requires an annual apportionment and section 4744-3, G. C., which refers to the semi-annual apportionment, states that the difficulty thus encountered is more apparent than real; that while section 7600 provides only for an annual apportionment, yet insofar as it governs the actual distribution of taxes and at least insofar as it applies to the payment to the several district of rural school taxes levied by them, it covers the discharge of a function which must be exercised semi-annually.

Section 7600, supra, requires at each August settlement an apportionment, by the county auditor to each school district, of the state common school fund, and each school district within the county "shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district."

Section 4744-2, which requires the county board of education to certify the number of teachers employed by the various school districts under the supervision of the county board of education, would seem to be for the purpose of advising the county auditor as to the number of teachers that would be employed during the ensuing year. There is nothing in section 7600 which in itself determines whether or not the language means the teachers employed at the time of the distribution of the fund or the teachers employed during the preceding year. However, so far as the rural boards of education are concerned section 4744-2 gives us some principle upon which to determine the question. Furthermore, since the Smith one per cent. law, so called, and particularly section 5649-3c thereof, requires all expenditures of a school district to be provided for out of appropriations made at the beginning of each fiscal half year, and since the amount of the state common school fund, which is apportioned to the various school districts within a county, is for the purpose of taking care of the expenses of such school district for the ensuing year or part thereof, I am of the opinion that the apportionment under section 7600 should not be made upon the basis of the number of teachers employed during the preceding school year, but should be made in accordance with the number of teachers to be employed for the ensuing year, as contained in the certificate by the county board of education to the county auditor to be made on or before the first day of August of each year.

Section 4744-2, supra, applies only to rural and village school districts within the county school district, but I construe the provisions of section 7600, which embraces all school districts within the county, to the effect that each school district within the county shall receive thirty dollars for each teacher employed in such district to mean "for each teacher to be employed in such district for the ensuing year."

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PRIVATE BANKS—SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS—LIQUIDATING DEPARTMENT—BOOKS AND PAPERS MAY BE RETURNED AFTER DEPOSITORS AND CREDITORS ARE PAID IN FULL.

The superintendent of banks, after depositors and creditors of a private bank, which is in the process of liquidation have been paid in full, may properly turn over to the owner or owners of such bank, or to a trustee or agent named by them, the books and papers belonging to the bank which came into his possession at the time it was taken over by him.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. HARRY T. HALL, Superintendent of Banks, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of April 6th, requesting my opinion as follows:

"We have in process of liquidation a private bank in which the depositors will be paid in full. After the declaration of the final dividend the remaining assets will be turned over to a trustee for the owners. In this connection the question has arisen, may we properly turn over to the trustee the books and papers that were received by this department at the time the bank's affairs came into its hands?"

I am considering your question in the light of the further supplemental information which you have orally furnished me, to the effect that there are no creditors of the private bank in question, except its depositors, and that the word "depositors" as used in your letter was intended to cover and include all creditors of the said bank.

By virtue of sections 744-1 to 744-13, inclusive, private banks are subject to inspection, examination and regulation of the state banking department. Sections 742-11, 742-12 and 742-13 of the General Code, being a part of the act relative to the liquidation of

"Any corporation, company, commercial bank, savings bank, safe deposit company, trust company, or any combination of two or more of such classes of business, or society for savings or banking association doing business under the provisions of the banking laws of this state."

are as follows:

"Section 742-11. Whenever the superintendent of banks shall have paid to each depositor and creditor of such corporation, company, society or association (not including stockholders) whose claim or claims as such depositor or creditor shall have been duly approved and allowed, the full amount of such claims, and shall have made proper provision for unclaimed or unpaid deposits or dividends, and shall have paid all the expenses of the liquidation, the superintendent of banks shall call a meeting of the stockholders of such corporation, company, society or association, by giving notice thereof for thirty days in one or more newspapers published in the county wherein the office of such company, corporation, society or association was located."

"Section 742-12. At such meeting the stockholders shall determine whether the superintendent of banks shall continue to administer its assets and wind up the affairs of such corporation, company, society or association, or whether an agent or agents shall be elected for that purpose; and in so determining the said stockholders shall vote by ballot in person, or by proxy, each share entitling the holder to one vote and the majority of the stock shall be necessary to a determination. In case it is determined to continue the liquidation under the superintendent of banks, he shall complete the liquidation of the affairs of such corporation, company, society or association, and after paying the expenses thereof shall distribute the proceeds among the stockholders in proportion to the several holdings of stock, in such manner and upon such notice as may be directed by the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such corporation, company, society or association was located."

"Section 742-13. In case it is determined to appoint an agent or agents to liquidate, the stockholders shall thereupon select such agent or agents by ballot—a majority of the stock present and voting, in person or by proxy, being necessary to a choice. Such agent or agents shall file with the superintendent of banks a bond to the state of Ohio in such amount and with such sureties as shall be approved by the superintendent of banks for the faithful performance of all the duties of his or their trust, and thereupon the superintendent of banks shall transfer to such agent or agents all the undivided or uncollected or other assets of such corporation, company, society or association, then remaining in his hands; and upon such transfer and delivery the said superintendent of banks shall be discharged from all further liability to such corporation, company, society or association and its creditors."

By virtue of section 744-9 of the General Code, the provisions of the above quoted sections are made applicable to private banks which are being liquidated by the superintendent of banks.

The provisions of sections 742-11, 742-12 and 742-13, above quoted, were enacted to secure to the stockholders of an incorporated bank a proper distribution of such of its assets as remain in the hands of the superintendent of banks after all depositors and creditors have been paid. A private bank is either an individual, a partnership or an unincorporated association, therefore the provisions of the sections above quoted, insofar as they refer to stockholders, are not applicable to a private bank.

After all the depositors and creditors of the private bank under consideration are paid in full the interest of the superintendent of banks in the further liquidation of the assets of the said bank is at an end. It was the intent of the statutes relative to the liquidation of banks to protect and safeguard depositors and creditors. Therefore in the absence of any provision of law directing otherwise, it is the duty of the superintendent of banks to immediately turn over the remaining assets of the said bank to its owner or owners, or to a trustee or agent designated by the owner or owners.

I am therefore of the opinion that you may properly turn over to a trustee or agent named by the owners of a private bank, or to the owners themselves, after all depositors and creditors have been paid in full, such books and papers belonging to the bank as were received by your department at the time the bank was taken over for liquidation.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC—EXPENSES INCURRED NOT CHARGEABLE AGAINST COUNTY, EXCEPT FOR PROPER COUNTY CHARGES.

The county is not liable for expenses incurred due to epidemic of smallpox in township for persons other than those who are proper county charges.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. JOSEPH T. MICKLETHWAIT, Prosecuting Attorney, Portsmouth, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of January 25th, you state as follows:

"In January, 1914, an epidemic of smallpox broke out in Rush township, Scioto county, Ohio. The matter became very serious there being in all about forty-six cases. The township trustees realizing that they would be unable to deal adequately with the situation called a meeting and appointed one of their number to meet the then prosecuting attorney of this county. The prosecuting attorney advised the trustees to warrant all the poor and needy that were afflicted with smallpox over to the county infirmary, and the trustees were to see that all persons so warranted were properly cared for and that the county would bear the expenses of all who were so warranted as above, to the infirmary.

"At the time the epidemic broke out only one family was a county charge.

"Subsequently claims for the expenses thus incurred were presented to the county commissioners who allowed the claim amounting in all to about five hundred dollars, but the county auditor upon a ruling from the bureau of accounting later refused to issue warrant on the treasurer, except the expense in caring for one family who was a charge at the time the epidemic broke out.

"Was it lawful for the commissioners to allow these claims and should the auditor now issue his warrant for the expenses thus incurred?"

The provisions of the General Code which govern relative to the duties of boards of health of cities in cases of epidemic are found in sections 4425, et seq., of the General Code.

Section 4436, G. C., provides as follows:

"When a house or other place is quarantined on account of contagious diseases, the board of health having jurisdiction shall provide for all persons confined in such house or place, food, fuel, and all other necessaries of life, including medical attendance, medicine and nurses, when necessary. The expenses so incurred, except those for disinfection, quarantine, or other measures strictly for the protection of the public, when properly certified by the president and clerk of the board of health or health officer where there is no board of health, shall be paid by the person or persons quarantined, when able to make such payment, and when not by the municipality in which quarantined. (Italics ours.)

Section 3391, G. C., constitutes the township trustees a board of health for the township outside the limits of a municapility, and section 3394 provides that such boards of health shall have the same duties, powers and jurisdiction within the township and outside of a municipality as by law are imposed upon and granted to boards of health in municipalities. There is, however, in the sections of the General Code constituting the township trustees the township board of health no provision relative to the payment of the expenses as is provided for in section 4436, supra: However in section 2128 of the Revised Statutes (section 1536-741) of which section 4436, G. C., purports to be a codification, it is provided in part as follows:

"When a house or other place is quarantined on account of contagious disease it shall be the duty of the board of health having jurisdiction to provide for all persons confined in such house or place, food, fuel, and all other necessaries of life, including medical attendance, medicine and nurses, when necessary; the expenses so incurred, except those for disinfection, quarantine, or other measures strictly for the protection of the public, when properly certified by the president and clerk of the board of health, or health officer where there is no board of health, shall be paid by the person or persons quarantined, when able to make such payment, and when not, by the city, village, hamlet or township in which he or they were quarantined; * * *"

It will, therefore, be seen that the Revised Statutes provided that when a person was unable to pay the quarantine expenses other than those specifically exempted the same should be paid by either the city, village or township. The failure to so include a township in the codification of section 2128, R. S., in section 4436, G. C., at first blush appears to be a material change in the statute, but when we consider that section 3394, G. C., provides that the township boards of health shall have the same duties, powers and jurisdiction within the township outside of a municipality as are imposed on boards of health in municipalities, such provision to my mind is sufficient authority to require a township to pay the quarantine expenses of a person who is unable to pay the same, since there is no authority given for the payment of the same, and such obligations must be paid.

It appears from the facts submitted that there was but one family which was a county charge at the time the epidemic broke out, and I assume there is no controversy over the payment of the expenses of such family, and therefore all statements hereinafter made are made relative only to those persons who it is stated in your inquiry were warranted over to the county infirmary when the epidemic broke out.

I further assume from the statement of facts submitted that there is no dispute in regard to such persons having a legal settlement in the county.

On March 19, 1915, in response to a letter from me asking for additional information you state:

> "I am in receipt of your communication of March 12th, and in reply thereto will say:
> "1st. The superintendent of the county infirmary took no action whatsoever, so far as my information goes, under section 2544 of the Code.
> "2nd. The trustees' services were for guard duty and looking after enforcement of quarantine.
> "3rd. The claims are filed in the names of the merchants who furnished the merchandise.
>
> "If there is any further information I can furnish you on this matter I will be pleased to do so."

Section 2544, G. C., provides as follows:

> "In any county having an infirmary, when the trustees of a township, after making the inquiry provided by law, are of the opinion that the person complained of is entitled to admission to the county infirmary, they shall forthwith transmit a statement of the facts to the superintendent of the infirmary, and if it appears that such person is legally settled in the township or has no legal settlement in this state, or that such settlement is unknown, and the superintendent of the infirmary is satisfied that he should become a county charge, they shall forthwith receive and provide for him in such institution, or otherwise, and thereupon the liability of the township shall cease. The superintendent of the infirmary shall not be liable for any relief furnished, or expenses incurred by the township trustees."

In order that a person may be received into a county infirmary through township trustees it is necessary that such trustees transmit a statement of facts to the superintendent of the county infirmary and that such superintendent "be satisfied that he should become a county charge."

It appears from your letter of March 19th, that in the case in question the superintendent of the county infirmary took no action whatever in the premises. Therefore, the persons in question did not become county charges and the county is not liable for expenses growing solely out of the epidemic except for the one family which was a county charge, the expenses for which family have been paid.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT—PRINTING OF STATIONERY AND BLANK FORMS—BULLETINS AND REPORTS—HOW PAID.

All the printing for the state highway department is to be ordered through the supervisor of public printing and executed under his supervision. The cost of printing stationery and blank forms for the highway department is to be paid out of the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing. The cost of printing bulletins and reports prepared by the highway commissioner and to be distributed by him is to be paid out of any fund or funds available for the use of the state highway department.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. J. E. CROSS, Supervisor of Public Printing, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your communication of March 30, 1915, in which you inquire as follows:

> "In regard to the printing of all stationery and reports in connection with the annual report of the highway commission (a separate opinion in the latter which I herewith enclose), will you kindly give me an opinion as to our duties in this matter?"

I also have your supplementary communication of April 5, 1915, in response to my request for further information, in which communication you phrase your inquiry as follows:

> "Shall the supervisor of printing order the printing done for the highway commission? Heretofore they have done their own work along this line."

I am further informed by you and by the state highway commissioner, that the highway commissioner has ordered through you a considerable amount of printing. This order consists largely of stationery and blank forms for the highway department, but also includes four pamphlets as follows, to wit: (1) tabulation and results of bids received at contract letting on April 2nd, (2) bulletin containing instructions for dragging roads, (3) pamphlet containing instructions to superintendents, and (4) bulletin as to load distribution tests of reinforced concrete slab floors.

The opinion referred to by you was rendered by this department to Hon. Frank Harper, supervisor of public printing, on January 27, 1915, and that opinion was limited strictly to the printing of the annual report of the state highway commissioner, it being held that that report should pass through the department of public printing and that the expense of the same should be paid for out of the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing. Inasmuch as some confusion seems to exist on the subject, I will, in answer to your inquiry, state the rule that should govern as to all the printing for the state highway department, other than the annual report, the printing of that report being covered by the opinion referred to above.

Your attention is first directed to a number of the provisions of the chapter of the General Code relating to the supervisor of public printing. Section 748 G. C. provides that except as otherwise provided by law, the supervisor of public printing shall examine and correct the proof sheets of the printing for the state and see that the work is executed in accordance with law. This section also provides as follows:

> "* * * The printing for the executive documents shall be ordered through him, and he shall see that the number of copies ordered is received from the printer and delivered to the proper department."

In this section as passed in 1880, the word "departments" was used in the above quoted sentence instead of the word "documents," the language being as follows:

> "* * * All printing for the executive departments shall be ordered through the supervisor, and he shall see that the full number of copies ordered is received from the printer and delivered to the proper department." 77 O. L., 53. Revised Statutes of Ohio, section 312.

Earlier forms of the same section also used the word "departments" instead of the word "documents"; 57 O. L., 94; 61 O. L., 11; 76 O. L., 132. The codifying commission changed the word "departments" to "documents" and the argument that this change was through inadvertence rather than design finds force in the concluding words of the sentence to the effect that the supervisor shall see that the number of copies ordered is received from the printer and delivered to the proper department.

Section 749, General Code, provides that the supervisor of public printing shall audit the accounts for printing and binding and keep a record of the cost thereof, the amount of paper used, and the expense of each document. This section further provides that a copy of each document, with the cost endorsed on it, shall be filed and preserved in the office of the supervisor of public printing. Section 786, G. C., provides that all printing and binding for the state not authorized by the provisions of the chapter relating to the supervisor of public printing shall be subject to the provisions of that chapter, so far as practicable These and other provisions of the chapter relating to the supervisor of public printing clearly indicate a legislative intent that all public printing for the various state departments should be ordered through the supervisor of public printing unless otherwise provided by law.

Coming now to consider those provisions of the law relating to the state highway department, and dealing with the subject of printing, it may be observed that the right of the state highway commissioner to be supplied with stationery is not left to inference, as it is provided in section 1180, G. C., that the office of the state highway commissioner shall be furnished by the state with necessary stationery. In section 1183, G. C., it is provided that the state highway commissioner "may prepare and publish and distribute bulletins and reports," and in the same section it is further provided that "all expenses incurred by reason of the provisions of this chapter shall be paid out of any fund or funds available for the use of the department."

It will be observed that this section does not provide that bulletins and reports shall be ordered in any manner other than through the supervisor of public printing. It merely permits the state highway commissioner, if he sees fit, to prepare and publish and distribute bulletins and reports, and provides that if he does see fit so to do, then the expense of preparing and publishing and distributing such bulletins and reports shall be paid out of any fund or funds available for the use of the state highway department. I am of the opinion that this section cannot be taken to alter the general rule that state printing is to be ordered through the supervisor of public printing. So far as the provisions of this section relate to printing, they can be taken only to authorize the printing of bulletins and reports for distribution, in case the state highway commissioner deems such action expedient, and to provide that if such bulletins and reports are printed, then the expense of such printing shall be paid from the funds available for the use of the state highway department instead of from the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing.

I therefore conclude that all the printing for the state highway department is to be ordered through the supervisor of public printing and executed under his supervision. The cost of printing all stationery and blank forms required by the highway department is to be paid for out of the appropriation for printing for the department of public printing. The cost of printing all bulletins and reports prepared by the state highway commissioner and to be distributed by him is to be paid out of any fund or funds available for the use of the state highway department.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MAIN MARKET ROADS— STATE AID CANNOT BE USED UPON A HIGHWAY WITHIN THE LIMITS OF A VILLAGE—FUNDS.

Moneys raised under section 6859-1, G. C., 103 O. L., 155, and which by the term of section 6859-3, G. C., are required to be used for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of main market roads, cannot be used upon a highway within the limits of a village.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 8, 1915.

HON. CYRUS LOCHER, Prosecuting Attorney, Cuyahoga County, Cleveland, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of February 19th, requesting my opinion upon a question which I interpret as follows:

> "Can moneys raised under section 6859-1 of the General Code, 103 O. L., 155, and which by the terms of section 6859-3 of the General Code, are required to be used for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of main market roads, be used upon a highway within the limits of a village?"

In reaching a conclusion as to this matter, considerable assistance may be derived by examining the history of the legislation relating to the state highway department. This department was created in 1904 by two acts found in 97 O. L., 511 to 514, and 97 O. L., 523 to 529. In section 4 of the first named act, which related to all applications for state aid in constructing highways, it was provided that the application should be accompanied by a certified resolution of the county commissioners "stating that the public interest demands the improvement of the highway described therein, but said description shall not include any portion of a highway within the boundaries of any city or village."

In the creation of the state highway department the policy of the state was thus declared to be that the state should not aid in the construction of any highway within the limits of any city or village. This declaration of policy did not take the form of an express provision that the state highway department should not expend any of its funds upon any highway within the limits of a city or village, but the legislature adopted the equally effective method of providing that state aid should be extended upon application by the county commissioners, and that the county commissioners in describing the road for which they desired state aid must not include in the description any portion of a highway within the boundaries of any city or village.

No change in the section above referred to is found in 98 O. L., and in 99 O. L., 308 to 320, the legislature in repealing all existing legislation relating to the state highway department and enacting a new law upon the subject re-enacted this section without change.

This section was carried into the Code as section 1186 thereof, the language of the original code section being as follows:

> "Each application for state aid in the construction of an improvement of highways shall be accompanied by a properly certified resolution of the county commissioners having jurisdiction of the road to be improved, stating that the public interests demand the improvement of the highway therein described. Such description shall not include any portion of a highway within the limits of a city or village."

This section was repealed in 102 O. L., 333, as such bill was passed by the legislature. The governor vetoed the repealing clause, but this section is probably repealed by implication, through the enactment and approval by the governor of section 13 of said act, which reads as follows:

> "Each application for state aid in the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of highways, shall be accompanied by a proper certified resolution of the county commissioners or township trustees having jurisdiction of the road to be constructed, improved, maintained or repaired, stating that the public interest demands the improvement of the highway therein described; that the description does not include any portion of the highway in the limits of any municipality. Provided, also, that when all the inter-county highways within a county have been improved to the standard specified by the state highway commissioner, then the appropriation may be used, in the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of any road within such county. Each application for state aid shall also contain an agreement on the part of the county commissioners or township trustees having jurisdiction over the road, to pay one-half of the cost and expense of surveys and other expenses preliminary to the construction, improvement, maintenance or repair of said road."

From the above it will be seen that the legislature, prior to 1913, and beginning in 1904, had four times limited state aid in highway construction to such highways as were situated outside of municipalities. Such was the state of the law when the legislature convened in 1913, and such had been the law during the entire nine years of the life of the state highway department.

In this connection it is important to consider the language of section 1186, quoted above, and also the language of the same section as amended in 103 O. L., 449, 452. Whether reference be had to the section as quoted or to the amended section, it is provided that each application for state aid shall be accompanied by a certified resolution of the commissioners, reciting, among other things, that the description of the highway to be improved does not include any portion of the highway in the limits of any municipality. This section also provides that when all the inter-county highways in the county have been improved the appropriation may be used on other highways within the county. Reading these two provisions together, it would seem that any part of a highway within a municipal corporation is not to be regarded as an inter-county highway. In other words, if the commissioners can only apply for state aid in the improvement of highways outside of municipalities, and if under this limitation they can eventually apply for and secure state aid in the improvement of all the inter-county highways in the county, it would seem to necessarily follow that only highways outside of municipalities can be regarded as inter-county highways.

Coming now to consider the act relating to main market roads, found in 103 O. L., 155, it is provided therein that main market roads "shall be located along and upon the route or portions of said inter-county highways designated as follows, to wit:"

etc. It is apparent from this act that in locating main market roads the legislature intended to designate as main market roads certain of the more important inter-county highways of the state, and did not intend to establish a main market road over any portion of any highway that had not previously been designated according to law as an inter-county highway. If only highways outside of municipalities can be regarded as inter-county highways, a conclusion which would seem to be well supported by the language of section 1186, G. C., then since the legislature in section 3 of the act relating to main market roads has provided for the location of said roads along and upon the routes of inter-county highways, it would follow that only highways outside of municipalities can be regarded as main market roads.

It might be urged against this conclusion that the descriptions of the various routes contained in section 3 of the act relating to main market roads, contain the statement that the various routes shall pass "through" certain municipalities therein named. In view of the statement in the first part of this section to all effect that main market roads shall be located along and upon routes and portions of inter-county highways, I do not regard this contention as well taken, and am of the opinion that the statement to the effect that the various routes of the main market roads shall pass "through" certain municipalities is to be taken only as indicating the general course of the main market roads, and not as enlarging the jurisdiction of the state highway department so as to include highways within municipalities.

So far as the provisions of section 4 of the law relating to main market roads are concerned, I am of the opinion that they relate only to procedure and not to jurisdiction. This section removes the necessity for the filing of a petition and also provides that "no procedure for construction, improvement, maintenance and repairs of roads as is provided for in any other act or acts of the general assembly shall apply to such main market roads." It will be noted that this last provision is limited solely to procedure and it could hardly be taken as enlarging, to include municipalities, the jurisdiction of the state highway department which had theretofore been limited strictly to highways outside of municipalities.

I am of the opinion, for the reasons above stated, that there is nothing in the law relating to main market roads to warrant the inference that the legislature, in passing that law, intended to reverse the policy of the state which had theretofore been to limit the state's participation in highway construction to such roads as were located outside of municipalities, and that therefore, in the present state of the law, the state may not expend upon a highway located within a village any of the moneys raised under section 6859-1, G. C., and required to be expended upon main market roads by section 6859-3, G. C. I am further of the opinion that it will be necessary to enact appropriate legislation before moneys raised under house bill 134, 103, O. L., 155, may be used to improve portions of highways that lie within the limits of any municipality.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

BOARD OF PARK COMMISSIONERS—POWER TO CONTRACT—COUNCIL MUST AUTHORIZE EXPENDITURE OF CONTRACT IN EXCESS OF FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS, UNLESS FOR COMPENSATION OF PERSONS EMPLOYED BY BOARD.

The power of boards of park commissioners to contract is governed by the provisions of sections 4063 and 4328, G. C., and is limited to contracts involving an expenditure not in excess of five hundred dollars, unless the same is first authorized and directed by ordinance of council, or such expenditure is for compensation of persons employed by such board.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am directing to you an opinion upon a question submitted to me by Hon. George J. Carew, city solicitor of Youngstown, Ohio, which I deem of public importance, as follows:

> "We have a board of park commissioners in this city, by a vote of the people, who in turn have appointed a superintendent of parks, and he has referred to this department the following question, which we in turn refer to you: 'Has the board of park commissioners power to contract up to one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars without the authorization of city council?'
> "Section 4063, General Code, found in Ellis' Municipal Code, page 433, is as follows:
> " 'In letting of contracts, the board of park commissioners shall be governed by the same laws as govern the letting of contracts by the director of public service.'
> "I take it that this means that any contract involving an expenditure of more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars cannot be entered into by the board of park commissioners without the authorization of city council.
> "I understand that the park commissioners have had a ruling from my predecessor in office that they had the right to contract in any amount up to one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, and he gave as his authority section 4077, General Code, found in Ellis' Municipal Code, page 436, which is as follows:
> " 'Before entering into any contract for the performance of any work, the cost of which exceeds one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, the board shall cause plans and specifications and forms of bids to be prepared and when adopted by the board it shall have them printed for distribution among bidders.'
> "This section comes under 'trustees of park funds.' I believe this section does not apply to the board of park commissioners in the letting of contracts and think that they are governed by the same laws as govern the director of public service.
> "I would like to have your opinion on this matter as to whether the park commissioners are governed by section 4063, General Code, or section 4077. If, in your opinion, they are governed by section 4077, have they the right to expend any amount up to one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars without the authorization of council?"

Section 4077, G. C., was originally enacted as section 6 of an act passed March 17, 1898, 93 O. L., 464, and applicable only to cities of the second class, third grade A (Springfield) and was section 2515-45 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio.

Sections 4066 to 4069, G. C., were originally enacted as section 220 of the Municipal Code, of October 22, 1902, 96 O. L., 92, which contained the further provision that such park board should be governed by certain specifically designated statutes, among which was section 2616-45f, Revised Statutes, thus making the section thereafter of general application, for which reason it was carried into the General Code and became section 4077 thereof, and is a part of that plan provided by sections 4066 to 4082, General Code, inclusive, for the management, administration and control of property or funds owned, or held as trustee, by any municipality for park purposes under deed of gift, device or bequest, to which its application was specifically confined by section 220 of the act of 1902, under section 4066, G. C. The administration management and control of such property and funds were vested in a board of park trustees and complete machinery therefor provided.

Section 4053 to section 4065, General Code, authorizes the appointment of a board of park commissioners, which shall have control and management of all public parks, park-ways, park entrances, boulevards, connecting viaducts and subways, children's play grounds, public baths and stations of public comfort located in such parks, and of all improvements thereon and the acquisition, construction, repair and maintenance thereof, and prescribes the rule under which such authority of management and control may be exercised by such board of park commissioners.

The laws governing the letting of contracts by the director of public service, as referred to in section 4063 above quoted, and which by reason of the foregoing control the letting of contracts by the board of park commissioners, is as follows:

Section 4328, General Code:

> "The director of public service may make any contract or purchase supplies or material or provide labor for any work under the supervision of that department not involving more than five hundred dollars. When an expenditure within the department, other than the compensation of persons employed therein, exceeds five hundred dollars, such expenditure shall first be authorized and directed by ordinance of council. When so authorized and directed, the director of public service shall make a written contract with the lowest and best bidder after advertisement for nor less than two nor more than four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation within the city."

The provisions of this section adopted by reference to section 4063, G. C., is applicable to contracts made and entered into by boards of park commissioners.

From the above, answering your inquiry more specifically, I am of the opinion that a board of park commissioners may not make an expenditure in excess of five hundred dollars, unless the same is authorized and directed by ordinance of council, except for compensation of persons employed by such board.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

TOWNSHIP BONDS NOT TAKEN BY SINKING FUND TRUSTEES ARE REQUIRED TO BE OFFERED TO THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION BEFORE ADVERTISING THEM FOR SALE.

Township trustees are required to offer to the industrial commission of Ohio such bonds issued by them as may not have been taken by the sinking fund trustees, before advertising the same for sale.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN —A question has just been submitted to this office by Mr. C. B. McClintock, solicitor for the village of Brewster, Stark county, which is as follows:

> "Question has arisen as to the interpretation of section 11 of the duties of the state liability board of awards and taxing districts. This section is found on page 76 of the 103 Ohio Laws. The question that has arisen is whether or not it is the duty of the township trustees of a township before advertising bonds for sale to offer them to the state liability board of awards. The statute is clear as to villages and school districts, but it does not seem so clear as to township trustees. This question has arisen in the joint enterprize on behalf of the village of Brewster, and the township trustees, in which the trustees are issuing bonds and the village is paying a portion of the expense with reference to it. Would you kindly advise me at a very early date as to what your interpretation of this section is, as to whether or not it is the duty of township trustees before advertising bonds for sale to offer them to the state liability board of awards."

Section 11 of the act "To further define the powers, duties and jurisdiction of the state liability board of awards," etc., is to be found on page 76 of 103 Ohio Laws, and from it I quote as follows.

> "The state liability board of awards shall have the power to invest any of the surplus or reserve belonging to the state insurance fund in bonds of the United States, the state of Ohio, or of any county, city, village or school district of the state of Ohio, at current market prices for such bonds; provided that such purchase be authorized by a resolution adopted by the board and approved by the governor; and it shall be the duty of the boards or officers of the several taxing districts of the state in the issuance and sale of bonds of their respective taxing districts, to offer in writing to the state liability board of awards, prior to advertising the same for sale, all such issues as may not have been taken by the trustees of the sinking fund of the taxing district so issuing such bonds; and said board shall, within ten days after the receipt of such written offer either accept the same and purchase such bonds or any portion thereof at par and accrued interest, or reject such offer in writing; and all such bonds so purchased forthwith shall be placed in the hands of the treasurer of state, who is hereby designated as custodian thereof, and it shall be his duty to collect the interest thereon as the same becomes due and payable, and also the principal thereof, and to pay the same when so collected, into the state insurance fund. The treasurer of state shall honor and pay all vouchers drawn on the state insurance fund for the payment of such bonds when signed by any two members of the board upon delivery of said bonds to him when there is attached to such voucher a certified copy of such resolution of the board authorizing the purchase of such bonds, and the board shall sell any of said bonds upon like resolution, and the proceeds thereof shall be paid by the purchaser to the treasurer of state upon delivery to him of said bonds by the treasurer."

A reading of the section quoted above discloses the fact that the state liability board of awards is therein authorized to invest in the bonds of the United States, state of Ohio, or of any county, city, village or school district of the state of Ohio at current market prices for such bonds. It is provided further, however, that it shall be the duty of the board or officers of the several taxing districts in the state in the issuance and sale of bonds of their respective taxing districts to offer in writing to the state liability board of awards prior to advertising the same all such bonds as may not have been taken by the trustees of the sinking fund of the taxing district so issuing such bonds.

I do not understand the nature of the "joint enterprise on behalf of the village of Brewster and the township trustees" referred to in the letter. However, it is my opinion that under the provisions of secton 1465-58 of the General Code (to be found on page 76 of the 103 O. L., section 11) and above quoted, township trustees are required to offer bonds issued by them to the state liability board of awards, now the industrial commission of Ohio, before advertising the same for sale.

A copy of this opinion has been sent to Mr. C. B. McClintock, solicitor for the village of Brewster.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES COMPATIBLE—DIRECTOR OF SAFETY AND CLERK OF COUNCIL.

The same person may hold office of director of safety and clerk of council.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of March 1st you requested my opinion as follows:

"May the director of safety of a city legally serve as clerk of council and receive the salary attached to both positions?"

So far as I can ascertain there is no statutory inhibition prohibiting the same person from occupying the two offices named, at the same time, nor can I see that there is any check of one office upon the other, the two being entirely separate and distinct.

Therefore, I hold that the director of safety may legally serve as clerk of council and receive the salary attached to both positions, provided it is not physically impossible for the same person to occupy both positions at the same time.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—FAILURE TO OBSERVE PROPER PROPORTIONS IN PREPARING ANNUAL BUDGET DOES NOT PREVENT SCHOOL DISTRICTS FROM RECEIVING STATE AID.

If the certified statement of facts of the county auditor to the state auditor under the provision of section 7596 G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 267, shows that the proper proportions required by section 7595, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 165, have been observed in the use of the funds of a school district, the negligence of the board of education of such district in the preparation of its annual budget and of the budget commissioners of the county in their consideration of said budget, in failing to observe said proportions, does not prevent the district from receiving state aid provided such district has complied with all the other requirements of the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of March 26, 1915, you request my opinion upon the following question:

> "If a board of education asks in its budget for a sufficient sum to conduct its schools for a legal school year, making the request in a lump sum, then the budget commission, in separating the amount into the different statutory funds, does not observe the proportions required in section 7595, General Code, i. e., three-fourths tuition and one-fourth contingent, will the district be prevented from receiving state aid because of this, providing that when the money is received by the district that it is placed in the ratio required by law, i. e., three-fourths tuition and one-fourth contingent, assuming that the district has complied with the other state aid statutory requirements?"

Under the provision of section 5649-3a, General Code, the board of education of a school district, in submitting its annual budget to the county auditor, shall specifically set forth, among other things, "the amount to be raised for each and every purpose allowed by law for which it is desired to raise money for the incoming year."

Section 5649-3c, General Code, provides:

> "The auditor shall lay before the budget commissioners the annual budgets submitted to him by the boards and officers named in section 5649-3a of this act, together with an estimate to be prepared by the auditor of the amount of money raised for state purposes in each taxing district in the county, and such other information as the budget commissioners may request, or the tax commission of Ohio may prescribe. The budget commissioners shall examine such budgets and estimates prepared by the county auditor and ascertain the total amount proposed to be raised in each taxing district for state, county, township, city, village, school district, or other taxing district purposes. If the budget commissioners find that the total amount of taxes to be raised therein does not exceed the amount authorized to be raised in any township, city, village, school district or other taxing district in the county, the fact shall be certified to the county auditor. If such total is found to exceed such authorized amount in any township, city, village, school district or other taxing district in the county, the budget commissioners shall adjust the various amounts to be raised so that the total amount thereof shall not exceed in any taxing district the sum authorized to be levied therein. In making such adjustment the budget commissioners may revise and change the annual estimates contained in such budgets, and may reduce any or all the items in any such budget, but shall not increase the total of any such budget nor any item therein. The budget commissioners shall reduce the estimates contained in any or all such budgets by such amount or amounts as will bring the total for each township, city, village, school district or other taxing district within the limits provided by law.'

"When the budget commissioners have completed their work they shall certify their action to the county auditor, who shall ascertain the rate of taxes necessary to be levied upon the taxable property therein of such county, and of each township, city, village, school district or other taxing district returned on the grand duplicate, and place it on the tax list of the county."

While the duty of fixing the rate of taxation for all school purposes in a school district is no longer imposed upon the board of education, it is the duty of the board under the above requirement of section 5649-3a, General Code, in the preparation of its annual budget, to estimate the amount of money needed for the incoming year in each one of the funds enumerated in section 7587, G. C., to wit, tuition fund, building fund, contingent fund and bonds, interest and sinking fund.

However, inasmuch as the budget commissioners, in their consideration of said budget, separated the amount requested by said board of education into the different statutory funds, the negligence of said board in failing to comply with the above requirement of section 5649-3a will not be material as affecting the right of the district to receive state aid.

For the purpose of meeting the requirements of section 7595, G. C., 104 O. L. 165, the board of education, in the preparation of its budget, should observe the proportions therein provided.

Section 7595, G. C., as amended, provides:

"No person shall be employed to teach in any public school in Ohio for less than forty dollars a month. When a school district has not sufficient money to pay its teachers such salaries as are provided in section 7595-1, for eight months of the year, after the board of education of such district has made the maximum legal school levy, three-fourths of which shall be for the tuition fund, then such school district may receive from the state treasurer sufficient money to make up the deficiency."

Section 7596, G. C., as amended, in 103 O. L., 267, provides as follows:

"Whenever any board of education finds that it will have such a deficit for the current school year, such board shall on the first day of October, or any time prior to the first day of January of said year, make affidavit to the county auditor, who shall send a certified statement of the facts to the state auditor. The state auditor shall issue a voucher on the state treasurer in favor of the treasurer of such school district for the amount of such deficit in the tuition fund."

According to the facts stated in your inquiry, the board of education in submitting its budget, and the budget commissioners in the consideration of said budget, failed to observe the proportions required by the above provision of section 7595, but when the distribution of funds was made by the county auditor, the money paid to the treasurer of the school district was placed to the credit of the different funds in the proper ratio. This must result in an expenditure for tuition purposes of three-fourths of the money received from the school levy as allowed by the budget commissioners of the county.

The policy of the state as expressed by the legislature in the enactment of the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts, is to standardize the schools of the state and to equalize, as far as possible, the advantages of education.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that if the certified statement of facts of the county auditor to the state auditor, under the above provision of section 7596, G. C., as amended shows that the proper proportions have been observed in the use of the funds of the district, the negligence of the board of education in the preparation of its budget and of the budget commissioners of the county in their consideration of said budget, in failing to observe said proportions, does not prevent the district from receiving state aid, provided such district has complied with all the other requirements of the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MAYOR—JUSTICE OF PEACE—MAY NOT REMIT FINES IN CASES BROUGHT FOR VIOLATION OF THE STATUTES.

Mayors of municipalities and justices of the peace may not remit fines in cases brought for violation of the statutes, except in proper proceedings for such purpose.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of March 30, 1915, in which you inquire if mayors of municipalities or justices of the peace have the power to remit fines in cases brought for violation of the statutes.

In reply thereto I advise you that former attorney general, Hon. Wade H. Ellis, was asked the same question by the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, and on October 24, 1907, gave his opinion thereon, holding that there is no authority for a mayor to remit any fines due the state of Ohio.

In concluding his opinion Mr. Ellis stated:

> "In the foregoing no question is made as to the authority of a mayor to revise or modify his judgment in any such cases by proper proceedings for such purpose."

I approve this opinion, found on page 161 of the attorney general's reports for the year 1907, and herewith enclose copy thereof.

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General

SCHOOL DISTRICTS—EXCESS LEVIES MADE ILLEGALLY—PROPORTIONS OF LEVIES NOT REQUIRED IN ORDER TO QUALIFY DISTRICT TO RECEIVE STATE AID—TUITION PURPOSES—LEVIES MUST BE COUNTED IN ASCERTAINING DEFICIENCY FOR WHICH STATE AID IS ASKED.

Levies illegally made in excess of the legal maximum for school districts are not required to be divided in the proportion of three-fourths for tuition and one-fourth for other purposes in order that a school district so levying may be qualified to receive state aid, but so much of the proceeds of such levies as are applied to tuition purposes must be counted as receipts of the board for the purpose of ascertaining the deficiency for which state aid is to be extended

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 2d, in which you re-submit for my consideration the first two questions considered by me in my opinion No. 179, under date of March 27, 1915, which questions are as follows:

> "Question 1: In a district in which the total levy is seven mills, two mills being under section 7592, G. C., must the tuition fund receive three-fourths of the seven mills before the district can receive state aid?
> "Question 2: When an additional two mills are levied by the board of education under section 7751, G. C., must the tuition fund receive three-fourths of the levy exclusive of the additional two mills?
> "The section provides that the proceeds of the levy shall be kept in a separate fund. The question is, must the tuition fund receive three-fourths of the seven mills levy and the special fund be provided for out of the remaining one-fourth?"

I answered these two questions in the opinion referred to by pointing out that no additional levy under either of the sections mentioned could lawfully be made.

You now state that such levies have actually been made in cases that have come under the observation of the bureau, and in which the school districts so levying are applicants for state aid. You then request me to advise you on the following question:

> "How must money thus raised be distributed in order to entitle a district to receive state aid under sections 7595 to 7597, page 165 of Vol. 104, Ohio Laws?"

I take it that you are concerned only with the following qualifying language of the state aid law, found in amended section 7595, General Code, to which you refer, viz.:

> "after the board of education of such district has made the maximum legal school levy, three-fourths of which shall be for the tuition fund."

The grammatical construction of this phrase is simple. The requirement is that three-fourths of the maximum legal school levy shall be for the tuition fund. The levies of which you speak are not included in the legal school levies. As you have been previously advised, they are, in the most accurate sense, illegal levies and could have been enjoined as such by any objecting taxpayer.

I am therefore of the opinion that if additional levies have been illegally made beyond the limits fixed by law, the proceeds of such levies are not required to be distributed in the proportion of three-fourths to the tuition fund and one-fourth to the purposes for which taxes may be locally levied.

Of course, the proceeds of such levies are to be regarded as receipts of the board and, to the extent that any part of them has been used for tuition fund purposes, must be taken into consideration in determining the amount of the actual or anticipated deficiency for which the district may receive state aid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER
Attorney General.

LAWS ESTABLISHING DAYTON STATE HOSPITAL.

The legislature creating and constituting the Dayton State Hospital will be found by reference to the following:

50 O. L., 196	71 O. L., 139
52 O. L., 22	73 O. L., 80
53 O. L., 22	84 O. L., 203
53 O. L., 81	91 O. L., 23

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 10, 1915.

The Ohio Board of Administration, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—An inquiry of April 3, 1915, from Dr. E. A. Baber, superintendent of Dayton State Hospital, has been received and is as follows:

> "I desire to obtain a certified copy of the legislation creating and constituting the Dayton state hospital. I request this document for the use of the commissioner of internal revenue it being necessary to file with the papers applying for the withdrawal of alcohol from warehouses, free of government tax for the use of the institution.
> "I have been referred by the Ohio board of administration with whom I took this matter up originally, to the secretary of state, whose office has replied as follows:
>
> " 'Replying to your letter of March 19th, we respectfully beg to state that if you will furnish us with the sectional number or volume and page of the session laws of the acts of which you desire certified copies, we will notify you of the cost of same.'
> "I would be appreciative, if your office will supply me with the necessary references to procure the copies referred to."

The Dayton state hospital is quite an old institution, and the legislation by which it was established, and by which it has come to be known as "The Dayton State Hospital" extends over quite a long period of time. As the name of the institution has been changed several times, it will be necessary for you to have certified copies of several acts of the legislature in order to properly connect the institution with the original act by which it was created, and satisfy the commissioner of internal revenue that it is a duly created and constituted state hospital.

The following are deemed sufficient to meet the needs however:

"1. An act creating two additional asylums, in pursuance of which the asylum at Dayton was constructed. 50 O. L., p.196.

"2. An act making appropriations for the year 1854 and 1855 in which an appropriation is made for heating apparatus, etc., for the lunatic asylum at Dayton. 52 O. L., 146.

"3. An act making appropriations to pay the indebtedness of benevolent institutions, in which $67,682.49 was appropriated for the Dayton asylum. 53 O. L., 22.

"4. An act for the uniform government and better regulation of lunatic asylums. By this act the Dayton Asylum was designated as the Southern Ohio Lunatic Asylum. 53 O. L., 81.

"5. An act to provide for the management and better regulation of hospitals for the insane. By this act the Dayton Asylum's name was changed to Western Hospital for the Insane. 71 O. L., 139.

"6. An act to provide for the organization, regulation and management of hospitals for the insane. By this act the name was again changed to the Dayton Hospital for the Insane. 73 O. L., 80.

"7. House Bill 887, passed March 21, 1887. 84 O. L., 203. By this act the name was again changed to Dayton Asylum for the Insane.

"8. House Bill No. 58, passed February 13, 1914. 91 O. L., 23. By this act the name was changed to the present name, Dayton State Hospital."

Appropriations have been made from year to year for this institution under the various names above mentioned. The above acts will show the history of the institution from the beginning, and will undoubtedly be sufficient for your needs. If the commissioner should require anything further the same will be furnished, upon request.

A copy of the opinion has been sent to Dr. Baber.

Respectfully

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

AN APPROPRIATION FOR "PROSECUTION AND TRANSPORTATION OF CONVICTS" UNDER HEADING "PERSONAL SERVICE," IS AVAILABLE TO PAY COSTS OF APPREHENDING PAROLE VIOLATORS—SALARIES AND EXPENSES OF PAROLE OFFICERS PAID UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTIONS 2212-3 AND 2215, G. C.—COSTS OF CONVICTION PAYABLE UNDER SECTION 13727, G. C.

The partial 1915 appropriation for "prosecution and transportation of convicts" under the single specific heading "personal service" is available to pay costs of apprehending parole violators under section 103, G. C., the salaries and expenses of a parole officer and field agents of the Girls' Industrial Home, the Penitentiary, the Boys' Industrial School, under sections 2212-3 and 2215, G. C., and the costs of conviction and transportation fees payable out of the state treasury under section 13727, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 12, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 7, 1915, which is in full as follows:

"Section 103, G. C., provides for the settlement by the state of claims for the arrest, examination and transportation of convicts who have been pardoned and have broken the conditions of the pardon. Sections 2112-3 and 2215 provide for the payment of salaries and necessary expenses of field officers. The former claim is expressly payable out of the appropriations made by the general assembly for the prosecution and transportation of convicts and the second is expressly payable out of the appropriations made by the legislature for the conviction and transportation of convicts.

"The partial appropriation bill makes the following appropriation:

" 'Prosecution and transportation of convicts, personal service, unclassified, $48,500.00.'

"In the appropriation the letter and figure 'A3' precedes the word 'unclassified,' but nowhere in the bill is any meaning given to the letter and figure.

"Section 2 of the appropriation act provides: 'The moneys appropriated in the preceding section shall not be in any way expended to pay liabilities or deficiencies existing prior to February 16, 1915, or incurred subsequent to June 30, 1915.'

"Section 3 of this act provides: 'The sums set forth in the column designated "terms," in section 1 of this act, opposite the several classifications of detailed purposes, shall not be expended for any other purposes except as herein provided.'

"In this particular appropriation the sum '$48,500.00' is set opposite the classified purpose 'personal service, unclassified.'

"We are in doubt as to the construction to be given to this rule of action laid down for the guidance of the auditor of state and other officers by this act, in relation to claims under section 103, G. C., and in relation to the payment of salaries and expenses under sections 2112-3 and 2215, G. C., and desire an opinion upon the subject, particularly in the following respects:

"1. Where the appropriation is for 'prosecution and transportation of convicts' is that appropriation available under sections 2112-3 and 2215 as being an appropriation for 'conviction and transportation of convicts?'

"2. Does the appropriation, being for 'personal service' become available for the payment of claims that are not 'personal service?'

"3. Are the expenses anticipated by sections 2112-3 and 2215, 'personal service?'

"4. Is a claim for costs under section 103, G. C., a claim for personal service?

"The questions of construction presented herein will also determine the attitude of this department in regard to cost bills that may be presented under section 13727, G. C."

Section 103, G. C., provides as follows:

"The probate judge shall prepare and approve under his official seal a bill of the costs of the arrest and examination of a convict, which the sheriff shall deliver to the warden of the penitentiary. The warden shall allow so much thereof as he finds in accordance with law and certify such amount to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant in favor of the sheriff upon the treasurer of state for its payment from the appropriation for the prosecution and transportation of convicts."

Section 2112-3 relates to the appointment, duties, salaries and expenses of parole officers of the Girls' Industrial Home, and its pertinent provision is that "their salaries and expenses shall be paid as provided in section 2215 of the General Code."

Section 2215 relates to salaries and necessary expenses of field officers of the Penitentiary, the Boys' Industrial School and the Girls' Industrial Home, and provides as follows:

> "Upon presentation of itemized vouchers properly approved by the board of managers, the auditor of state shall issue his warrant upon the state treasurer to pay the salaries and necessary expenses of field officers from the appropriation for conviction and transportation of convicts. In like manner shall be paid the salaries and expenses of the parole officers of the Boys' Industrial School and the Girls' Industrial Home."

You have yourself sufficiently quoted the provisions of the appropriation bill of 1915.

Answering your questions specifically I beg to advise that in my opinion the phrase "prosecution and transportation of convicts," and the phrase "conviction and transportation of convicts," as used in the pertinent statutes and in the appropriation bill, are synonomous. Your first question is, therefore, answered in the affirmative.

Answering your second question I beg to advise that as a general rule the term "personal service," as used in the appropriation bill, is limited in its meaning to services in the exact sense. However, in a given case where the intent is clear, other related expenditures may be made from an appropriation for personal service, so that it is not safe to lay down any hard and fast general rule.

Answering your third and fourth questions together I beg to advise that in my opinion the expenses and costs payable under all the statutes referred to herein constitute personal service, as the term is used in the specific appropriation for the prosecution and transportation of convicts. I think the intention of the legislature here is very clear despite some inadvertence in the use of the term. The controlling account for which the appropriation is made is prosecution and transportation of convicts. In contemplation of law this phrase includes the matters and things referred to in the statutes which have been quoted. Not all of the expenditures coming under this head in the statutes constitute "personal service" in the exact sense, yet in a more liberal sense they do constitute personal service, as nothing is included in the catalogue of expenditures which may be made under these sections which is not either compensation or reimbursement for expenses. It is unreasonable to suppose that the legislature would deliberately appropriate for salaries and personal service, in the exact sense, and withhold an appropriation available for expense reimbursement when the statutes expressly provide that both classes of expenditures shall be treated alike and paid from the same appropriation. Therefore, I hold that the intent of the legislature in appropriating the sum of $48,500 for the prosecution and transportation of convicts, under the heading of "personal service," is to provide for all expenses under the sections just considered properly chargeable to an appropriation for prosecution and transportation of convicts.

I note that you say that the attitude of your department in regard to cost bills that may be presented under section 13727, G. C., would also be governed by the interpretation which I have placed upon the above appropriation.

I agree with you that the application of the appropriation to payments under section 13727 is governed by the principles which I have above laid down, but the question is not, after all, quite as easy of solution to my mind as the others which have been considered. Said section 13727 is the concluding section of a group of statutes relating to the execution of a sentence for a felony. Other related statutes provid that in felony cases, upon conviction, the costs of the prosecution, if not made on execution, shall be paid out of the county treasury, and the complete bill thereof properly certified shall be presented by the sheriff to the warden of the Penitentiary.

The sheriff is entitled to certain transportation charges consisting of fees fixed by section 13725, G. C., for taking a prisoner to the Penitentiary. The sheriff's fees and costs paid by the county are to be certified to by the warden of the Penitentiary, and if the auditor of state finds them to be correct are to be paid to the order of the clerk of courts of the county. It is not necessary to quote sections 13726 and 13727 further than to state that both of them provide merely that the charges "shall be paid by the state."

These sections then differ from the other sections that have been considered in that there is no express provision therein for payment out of any designated appropriation. However, as I understand it, the appropriation "for the prosecution and transportation of convicts," or the "conviction and transportation of convicts" had its origin by reason of the existence of the sections now under consideration. In order that they might be made effective it was and has always been necessary to make biennial appropriations, and in practice these appropriations to be disbursed by the auditor of state have been named by succeeding sessions of the general assembly in the manner in which they are designated in sections 103 and 2215, G. C. That is to say because of sections 13726 and 13727, which are very old provisions, the payment of costs and transportation fees in connection with conviction of felons became, so to speak, a fixed charge of the state and had to be provided for by an appropriation which eventually took on a stereotyped name: so that when, in later legislation, the general assembly provided for the payment of costs, salaries and expenses of the other kinds considered, it adopted and referred to this customary appropriation account.

Except as to sheriff's fees for transportation, payments under section 13727 partake, least of all cases which have been considered, of the nature of personal service. Although the costs taxed in the criminal prosecution represent personal services, in a sense, in the first instance, yet when paid by the state they constitute reimbursement to the county treasury for expenditures already made from it. Nevertheless, on the principles which I have laid down in stating my view of the intention of the legislature in passing the current appropriation bill, I am of the opinion that all charges payable under section 13727 are to be paid out of the appropriation referred to by you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SPENCERVILLE ARMORY—APPROVAL OF CONTRACT.

Award of contract for Spencerville Armory to J. W. & P. H. Sereff of Lima, Ohio, approved.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 12, 1915.

COLONEL BYRON L. BARGAR, Secretary Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your communication of April 9th, which is as follows:

"I herewith transmit the following papers relating to the Spencerville Armory:

"1. Extract from the armory board minutes of April 3, 1915, showing receipt of bids and tabulation thereof and action thereon.

"2. The four bids just received and opened.

"3. The proof of publication of advertisement for bids.

"Please advise whether or not you approve of the award of contract shown by enclosure No. 1."

With your letter you submitted the original bids set out in the extract from the armory board minutes of April 3, 1915, relative to the Spencerville Armory, which is as follows:

"Spencerville Armory: Prior to twelve o'clock noon, four sealed proposals for the construction of Spencerville Armory were received and filed at the adjutant general's office, pursuant to law. At 12:05 p. m., these bids were publicly opened by the board and found to be as follows:

"Clemner & Johnson, Hicksville, Ohio.
"Material	$13,125 00
"Labor	5,669 00
"Building complete	18,794 00
"Certified check	400 00
"Meyers Brothers, Leipsic, Ohio.
"Material	$18,580 00
"Labor	---
"Building complete	18,580 00
"Certified check	380 00
"Ernst Kroemer, Dayton, Ohio.
"Material	9,500 00
"Labor	9,000 00
"Building complete	18,500 00
"Certified check	380 00
"J. W. and P. H. Sereff, Lima, Ohio.
"Material	16,950 00
"Labor	16,950 00
"Building complete	16,950 00
"Certified check	380 00

"Spencerville Armory Continued: After consideration of said bids it was unanimously

"Resolved: That the bid of J. W. and P. H. Sereff, of Lima, Ohio, proposing to construct building complete for the aggregate sum of sixteen thousand, nine hundred and fifty ($16,950.00) dollars is the lowest bid which complies with the plans and specifications for said armory and is filed and made pursuart to law. A contract is therefore awarded to said Sereff Bros. for the construction of said Spencerville Armory at said bid price on condition that the contract and this award be approved by the attorney general of Ohio. The contract bond is hereby fixed at eighty-five hundred ($8,500.00) dollars.

"I hereby certify that the above is an axact copy of the minutes of the meeting of April 3, 1915, relative to the Spencerville Armory.

(Signed) B. L. BARGAR,
Secretary O. S. A. B."

After an examination of the bids, it is my opinion that the award of the contract made to J. W. and P. H. Sereff, of Lima, Ohio, is in accordance with law, the bidders having conformed to the advertisement and submitted with their bid a check of $380.00 as stipulated.

When contract and contract bond have been prepared, the same will receive prompt consideration by this office.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—COUNCIL MAY NOT IMPOSE LICENSE FEE UPON A BUSINESS WHEN AGENTS GO FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE AND DO NOT SELL ON THE STREETS.

Council of a municipal corporation may not impose a license fee upon the business of soliciting sales and delivering goods through agents who go from house to house and do not sell on the public streets.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 12, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of April 3d requests my opinion as follows:

> "We are requested to pass upon the legality and constitutionality of an ordinance of a city council imposing a license fee of ten dollars per day upon agents soliciting business in such municipality for a corporation organized under the laws of the state, and doing business within the state. Said agent goes from door to door soliciting sales and delivering goods for said corporation. The question is whether or not a fee of ten dollars per day has the effect of being prohibitive and, therefore, unconstitutional. In order that we may give advice in regard to said ordinance, we would respectfully ask your opinion thereon."

The only section of the General Code which authorizes a municipal corporation to exercise powers like those inquired about is section 3673, which is as follows:

> "Section 3673. To license transient dealers, persons who temporarily open stores or places for the sale of goods, wares or merchandise, and each person who, on the streets, or traveling from place to place about such municipality, sells, bargains to sell, or solicits orders for goods, wares or merchandise by retail. * * *"

The syllabus in the case of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. The Village of Tippecanoe, 85 O. S., 120, is as follows:

> "In view of the guaranties of the bill of rights, section 3673 of the General Code, cannot be so interpreted as to authorize a municipal council to impose a license fee upon merchants who do not sell upon the public streets or places, but only solicit orders and negotiate future sales at the residences of their customers."

In view of this decision, it seems clear that an ordinance of the kind described by you would be void, regardless of the amount of the per diem license fee.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

APPROVAL OF CERTAIN LEASES, VAN WERT, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 13, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

SIR:—I have your communication of April 2, 1915, transmitting to me for my consideration the following leases, to wit:

	Valuation.
C. F. Palmer, Van Wert, Ohio	$300 00
G. A. Berger, Van Wert, Ohio	200 00

I find that these leases have been executed in accordance with law, and am therefore returning the same to you with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CORPORATION NOT FOR PROFIT—BY AMENDMENT TO ITS ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION MAY ACQUIRE CAPITAL STOCK—COST OF FILING CERTIFICATE OF AMENDMENT.

A corporation not for profit and originally having no capital stock may, by amendment to its articles of incorporation, acquire authority to have capital stock.

The fee for filing a certificate of amendment of this character is twenty cents for each hundred words, and in no case less than five dollars.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 13, 1915.

HON. CHAS. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—You have submitted to this department the correspondence between yourself and Messrs. Freiberg & Lewis, attorneys-at-law, Cincinnati, Ohio, relative to the filing of a proposed amendment to the articles of incorporation of The Cincinnati Tennis Club, a corporation not for profit. While no letter accompanies the papers, it is very clear to me that the following two questions are presented:

> "(1) May a corporation not for profit, and originally having no capital stock, by amendment to its articles of incorporation acquire authority to have a capital stock, if such amendment does not so change the purpose of the corporation as to make it a corporation for profit?

"(2) If the answer to the first question be in the affirmative, what should be the fee for filing such a certificate of amendment?"

That a corporation not for profit may lawfully have a capital stock, divided into shares, is settled in Snyder v. Chamber of Commerce, 53 O. S., 1.

While there are special statutes applicable to corporations of the character of the one which was a party to this action, yet a perusal of the syllabus and the opinion in the case shows that no reliance was placed upon such special statutes, but general sections relative to the formation of corporations were the only ones considered.

Inasmuch, therefore, as the articles of incorporation of the club might originally have provided lawfully for a capital stock, I am of the opinion that such a provision for capital stock is something "omitted from or which lawfully might have been provided for originally in such articles" within the meaning of paragraph 4 of section 8719 of the General Code, relative to amendments to articles of incorporation.

Inasmuch as the corporation has no capital stock whatever, provision for such stock would not, in my opinion, constitute "an increase of capital stock" within the meaning of the same paragraph, which provides further that "the capital stock of the corporation shall not be increased or diminished by such amendment."

Therefore, my answer to the first question which is suggested by the correspondence is in the affirmative.

The question as to the fee is not difficult so far as the statutory provisions themselves are concerned. Paragraph 9 of section 176, General Code, provides that the secretary of state shall charge and collect "for filing an amendment to articles of incorporation, twenty cents for each hundred words, but in no case less than five dollars."

From your point of view, however, the difficulty arises by reason of the fact that if the corporation had been organized originally with a capital stock, it would have had to pay a minimum fee of ten dollars under paragraph 1 of section 176, whereas by organizing without capital stock and as a non-mutual corporation not for profit and then acquiring capital stock by amendment, it escapes, so to speak, with a charge of seven dollars.

The practical result of the application of the statute in this respect is, in my opinion, immaterial, and I advise that the proper fee for filing a certificate of amendment of the character referred to is five dollars.

I herewith return the correspondence submitted to me by you, together with the check of Stanley W. Lewis for $5.00, payable to your order. I have a letter from Messrs. Freiberg & Lewis which will constitute a sufficient reference file for the purposes of this office.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DISTRICT TAX ASSESSORS—REMOVAL—SUCCESSORS—PAY OF NEW ASSESSORS BEGINS AT THE SAME TIME THEY ASSUME DUTIES OF THEIR OFFICE.

The procedure for the removal of district assessors on March 31, 1915, and the subsequent appointment of their successors considered, and held that under the facts as they occurred the pay of the outgoing assessor should cease and that of the incoming assessor begin at the same time, viz.: upon the assumption by the latter of the duties of his office after proper qualification.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 13, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of April 7th, you request my opinion upon the following question:

> "When does the pay of the district assessors, removed by Governor Willis, in the counties of the state, stop, and when does the compensation of the newly appointed district assessors commence?"

The so called "Warnes law," 103 O. L., 786, provides that "the tax commission of Ohio may, with the consent of the governor, remove any district assessor," but vests in the governor the exclusive power to appoint.

I find upon investigation that what actually transpired in connection with the matter about which you inquire was as follows:

On March 31, 1915, the tax commission entered upon its journal a declaration that all the district assessors in the state "are hereby declared to be removed from office with the consent of the governor." The consent of the governor was given to this act in writing.

The commission, however, did not certify any removal to the local authorities as required by section 33 of the Warnes law until the appointment of successors. It appears that the successors were not all appointed at the same time, but that in each case, upon receiving notice of an appointment by the governor, the commission notified the outgoing and the incoming assessor contemporaneously and instructed each outgoing assessor to turn over the office as soon as the incoming assessor had qualified.

I am satisfied that, in substance, the removals in question were not effected until the new appointees had qualified and until when, in pursuance of the orders of the tax commission, the outgoing assessors had turned over their respective offices to the incoming assessors.

I am not advised of any case in which the outgoing assessor refused to turn over the office to his successor upon the appointment and qualification of the latter, and therefore assume that this took place in all cases.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the compensation of the outgoing district assessors stopped and that of the incoming assessors commenced in each case on the date on which the latter qualified and assumed the duties of their respective offices.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS—HOW TO CORRECT ERRORS IN ESTIMATING RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES FOR CURRENT SCHOOL YEAR WHEN DISTRICT RECEIVES MORE OR LESS THAN IS REQUIRED BY LAW.

If a school district, because of an error in estimating receipts and expenditures for the current school year, receives an amount more than sufficient to make up its actual deficit for such year, it is the duty of the state auditor, upon discovering such error, to correct the same by drawing on the treasurer of such school district for the extra amount. If there is not a sufficient amount of money in the treasury of such school district to the credit of the tuition fund to honor said draft, the state auditor should withhold said amount from the next allowance made to such district on its application for state aid. On the other hand, if the district, because of such an error, fails to receive an amount necessary to make up its deficit, the state auditor upon discovering such error, should pay to the treasurer of such school district an amount sufficient to make up such deficit.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 14, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of March 18, 1915, you request my written opinion upon the following question:

> "Section 7595, General Code, provides that if a board of education does not have sufficient money in the tuition fund to conduct its school for eight months, paying salaries fixed by statute, it may receive from the state treasurer sufficient money to make up the deficiency.
> "Section 7596, Vol. 103 O. L., page 267, reads:
> " 'Whenever any board of education finds that it will have such a deficit for the current school year, such board shall on the first day of October, or any time prior to the first day of January of said year, make affidavit to the county auditor, who shall send a certified statement of the facts to the state auditor. The state auditor shall issue a voucher on the state treasurer in favor of the treasurer of such school district for the amount of such deficit in the tuition fund.'
>
> "Question: Provided the application for state aid does not correctly set up the receipts and expenditures and it is ascertained at the end of the year that an error has been made, is it the duty of the auditor of state to correct such error, or is the payment of the application final?
> "In other words if a district, because of an error in estimating receipts and expenditures for a given period, received $100.00 more than sufficient to make up the actual deficit for a year, is it the duty of the auditor of state to recover that amount from the district either by withholding it from the next amount of state aid paid, or by making draft on the district when the error is discovered? Or, if a district fails to receive, because of an error in application, an amount necessary to make up the deficiency amounting to $100.00, is it the duty of the auditor of state to pay this additional amount when the error is discovered?"

To comply with the above provision of section 7596, G. C., the board of education of a school district, for the purpose of securing state aid, must file a sworn statement of facts with the county auditor before the first day of January of the current school year. At the time of filing such statement, it is impossible for said board to determine what its exact deficit will be at the end of the school year. Errors in estimating receipts and expenditures for the balance of the school year are liable to be made, and this gives rise to your question.

If, as the result of such an error, a school district receives an amount more than sufficient to make up its actual deficit for the school year, I am of the opinion that it is the duty of the state auditor, upon discovering the error, to correct the same by drawing on the treasurer of such school district for the extra amount. If there is not a sufficient amount of money in the treasury of such school district to the credit of the tuition fund to honor said draft, the state auditor should withhold said amount from the next allowance made to such district on its application for state aid. On the other hand, if the district, because of such an error, fails to receive an amount necessary to make up its deficit, the state auditor, upon discovering such error, should pay to the treasurer of such school district an amount sufficient to make up such deficit, provided the appropriation for state aid has not been exhausted.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—PROPORTIONS FOR LEVY AS REQUIRED BY SECTION 7595, G. C., NOT FOLLOWED—NEVERTHELESS DISTRICT MAY RECEIVE STATE AID IF OTHER REQUIREMENTS PERFORMED.

If the board of education of a school district, in its annual budget, fails to observe the appropriations required by section 7595, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 165, to wit: three-fourths tuition fund and one-fourth for all other purposes, but in making the levy of the amount allowed by the county budget commissioners said proportions are observed, said district is not prevented from receiving state aid on account of the negligence of the said board of education, provided said district has complied with all the other requirements of the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 14, 1915.

HON. JOHN V. CAMPBELL, Prosecuting Attorney, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 19, 1915, in which you enclose a copy of your letter to Hon. A. V. Donahey, auditor of state, under date of December 21, 1914.

The question raised by you and upon which you request my opinion, may be stated as follows:

> "If, in the preparation of its annual budget the board of education of a school district in estimating 'the amount to be raised, for each and every purpose allowed by law, for which it is desired to raise money for the incoming year,' fails to observe the proportions required by section 7595, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 165, to wit: three-fourths for tuition fund and one-fourth for all other purposes, but in making the levy for all school purposes of the amount allowed such district by the county budget commissioners, said porportions are observed, is such district prevented from receiving state aid by the above provision of section 7595, G. C., as amended, provided said district has complied with all the other requirements of the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts?"

Your question has been answered in opinion No. 226 of this department, rendered to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, under date of April 10, 1915, a copy of which is herewith enclosed.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DISAPPROVAL OF CERTAIN LEASES EXECUTED BY SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, AKRON, THORNPORT AND DAYTON, OHIO.

Leases executed between the superintendent of public works and John J. Brady, Harvey Walker and the Dayton Pure Milk & Butter Company, as submitted for approval, are irregular.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 14, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR.—I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of April 2, 1915, transmitting to me for my consideration the following leases, to wit:

	Valuation.
John J. Brady, Akron, Ohio	$1,000 00
Harvey Walker, Thornport, Ohio	250 00
The Dayton Pure Milk & Butter Co	3,666 66

In connection with the lease to John J. Brady, permit me to call your attention to my communication to you under date of February 8, 1915, suggesting the necessity of reciting in a lease of this character that the land sought to be leased is not under an existing lease and is not now in possession of any person or persons or corporation having a building or buildings or other valuable structures thereon. The lease to Mr. Brady does not contain a recital of such facts.

I note that a plat is attached to the original and duplicate copies of the lease to Harvey Walker, and that no reference to this plat is made in the body of the lease, the appropriate reference to the plat being scriken out of the body of the lease. I suggest that the appropriate reference to the attached plat be inserted in the body of the lease and that a copy of the plat be attached to the triplicate copy thereof. I also note that the signature of the lessee is attached by the signature of only one witness instead of two, and therefore suggest that the signature of a second witness to the signature of Mr. Walker be attached to the lease.

In reference to the lease to the Dayton Pure Milk & Butter Company, it does not appear from an examination of the lease whether the lessee is a corporation or whether it is a partnership operating under a fictitious name. I learn by an investigation of the records in the office of the secretary of state that the Dayton Pure Milk & Butter Co. is a domestic corporation. I therefore suggest that there be inserted in the first clause of the lease following the name of the lessee, a recital to the effect that said lessee is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the state of Ohio. The lessee being a corporation, it follows that proper evidence that the directors of the corporation authorized the making of the lease should also be required by you. The directors of the corporation, if they have not already done so, should adopt a resolution authorizing the making of the lease by the corporation and instructing the president and secretary thereof to execute the same on behalf of the company. Triplicate copies of this resolution, properly certified, should be furnished, and one copy attached to each copy of the lease.

The signature to this lease on the part of the lessee is as follows:

"The Dayton Pure Milk & Butter Co.
By Harry Burkhart, Pres.
L. J. Burkhardt, Secy."

but the seal of the company is not attached. While it has been held in Ohio that it is not necessary for a corporation to use its seal in the execution of instruments of this character, yet inasmuch as it is necessary to return this lease for the correction above suggested, I suggest the advisability of having the officers of the corporation attach the corporate seal, if the company has a seal.

For the reasons above stated, I am returning the three leases above referred to without my approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PROPER FORM FOR BOND RESOLUTION UNDER SECTION 1223, G. C.

Proper form for bond resolution, under section 1223, G. C., prescribed.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 13, 1915.

HON. FRANKLIN J. STALTER, Prosecuting Attorney, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of March 19, 1915, enclosing a proposed form of bond resolution under section 1223 of the General Code of Ohio, and also your communication of March 31st, regarding the same, and note that you desire my opinion as to the regularity of the resolution submitted.

The resolution submitted by you is of considerable length and I deem it unnecessary to set forth the same in this opinion.

The resolution is irregular in that it omits certain preliminary recitals which should be included. I refer to the recitals of the fact of an application by the county commissioners to the state highway commissioner for state aid in the improvement of an inter-county highway, the approval of said application by the state highway commissioner, the making of a map and plans, specifications and estimates for said proposed improvement by the state highway commissioner, and the transmission of such plans, specifications and estimates to the county commissioners. There are also certain other minor irregularities, and the section of the resolution in question which relates to tax levies is somewhat longer and more involved than necessary. It might be that the omission of the preliminary recitals referred to by me would not be fatal, but it would certainly be the part of wisdom to include them.

For your guidance in framing a resolution in accordance with the above suggestions, I am herewith submitting a form of resolution proper in this case. In the preparation of this form I assume that the facts recited in the resolution submitted by you are correct.

The form which I suggest is as follows:

RESOLUTION.

Whereas, The commissioners of Wyandot county, Ohio, on the_____day of_____, 19___, in accordance with section 1185 of the General Code of Ohio, duly made application to the state highway commissioner of the state of Ohio, for state aid in the improvement of section No. 3 of Upper Sandusky-Findlay inter-county highway No. 222, to wit:

Beginning at the south end of section No. 2 of the Upper Sandusky-Findlay road, inter-county highway No. 222, thence in a south-easterly direction along the route of said inter-county highway No. 222, to the northwest corporation line of the village of Upper Sandusky, a distance of 20,600 lineal feet or 3.90 miles, being the Crane and Salem townships in said county. _____lineal feet of said improvement lying in said Crane township and _____lineal feet of said improvement lying in said Salem township, and

Whereas, The state highway commissioner, in accordance with sections 1190 and 1191 of the General Code of Ohio, has duly approved said application and has caused a map of said highway, and plans and specifications for said improvement, and an estimate of the cost and expense thereof to be prepared and has transmitted a certified copy of such plans, specifications and estimates, together with his certificate of approval thereof, to the county commissioners of Wyandot county, Ohio, and

Whereas, The county commissioners of Wyandot county, on the____day of_____, 19___, in accordance with section 1194 of the General Code of Ohio, by a majority vote, duly adopted a resolution that said highway above described be constructed under the provisions of sections 1178 to 1231-4, inclusive, of the General Code of Ohio, and transmitted a certified copy of said resolution to the state highway commissioner, and

Whereas, The total estimated cost and expense of improving such highway according to said plans and specifications is thirty-six thousand, five hundred dollars ($36,500.00) of which total estimated cost and expense one-half thereof, or eighteen thousand, two hundred and fifty dollars ($18,250.00) is to be paid by said Wyandot county, said Crane and Salem townships, and the owners of the property abutting on the said improvement, and

Whereas, In accordance with the provisions of section 1208 of the General Code of Ohio, twenty-five per cent. of the total estimated cost and expense of improving such highway according to said plans and specifications is apportioned to and is to be paid by said Wyandot county, _____per cent. of said cost is apportioned to and is to be paid by the whole of said Crane township, _____per cent. of said cost is apportioned to and is to be paid by the whole of said Salem township, _____per cent. of said cost is apportioned to and is to be paid by the owners of the property in said Crane township abutting on said improvement according to the benefits accruing to said owners of the lands so located, and_____per cent. of said cost is apportioned to and is to be paid by the owners of the property in said Salem township abutting on said improvement according to the benefits accruing to the said owners of the lands so located; and

Whereas, The amount of bonds herein proposed to be issued, added to the total amount of bonds heretofore issued by said county under the authority of section 1223 of the General Code of Ohio, does not exceed in the aggregate one per cent. of the tax duplicate of said county, and

Whereas, No part of said highway sought to be improved is situated within the limits of any municipality; Now Therefore;

Be It Resolved: By the board of county commissioners of Wyandot county, Ohio, that in the judgment of said board of county commissioners it is now necessary, in anticipation of the collection of taxes and assessments, to issue and sell the bonds of said county in the aggregate sum of eighteen thousand, two hundred and fifty dollars ($18,250.00) to provide a fund for the payment of that part of the cost and expense of improving said highway above described according to the terms of said resolution of said county commissioners above referred to, to be paid by Wyandot county, Crane and Salem townships, and the owners of the land assessed for said improvement;

Be It Further Resolved: That the bonds of said county be issued in said aggregate sum of eighteen thousand, two hundred and fifty dollars ($18,250.00) for the purposes aforesaid, under and by virtue of the authority of section 1223 of the General Code of Ohio; each of said bonds to be in the denomination of $_____, and numbered consecutively from one to_____, dated_____and payable as follows, to wit:

Numbers_____ _____

Said bonds shall state on their face the purpose for which they are issued and that they are issued in pursuance of this resolution and under and by virtue of section 1223 of the General Code of Ohio, and said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of _____ per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on _____and_____of each year, the interest on said bonds to be evidenced by coupons attached thereto, authenticated by the signature of the county auditor, or he may have his signature printed or lithographed thereon. Both principal and interest shall be payable at the office of the county treasurer of Wyandot county, Ohio. Said bonds shall be prepared, issued and delivered under the direction of the county commissioners and county auditor, and shall be signed by the county commissioners and attested by the signature and official seal of the county auditor. Said bonds shall be first offered to the industrial commission of Ohio at par and accrued interest, and if said industrial commission of Ohio refuses to take all or any part of said bonds, such bonds so refused shall be advertised for public sale once each week for four consecutive weeks in the Daily Chief and Union-Republican, two newspapers published and having a general circulation within said county of Wyandot. Said bonds shall be sold to the highest bidder in the manner provided by law, but not for less than par and accrued interest, and the proceeds of the sale thereof shall be deposited in the county treasury and used exclusively for the payment of the cost and expense of the construction and improvement of said inter-county highway aforesaid.

Be It Further Resolved: That for the purpose of paying the interest upon and retiring at maturity the bonds herein authorized to be issued, and to create and maintain a sinking fund for that purpose, there shall be and is hereby levied, in addition to all other levies authorized by law for county and township purposes, respectively, subject, however, to the maximum limitation upon the total aggregate amount of all levies now in force, the following annual taxes, to wit:

Upon all the taxable property within the county of Wyandot, an annual tax sufficient to yield the county's proportion of the amount required to pay the interest coupons on said bonds when due and to retire said bonds at maturity.

Upon all the taxable property within the township of Crane, an annual tax sufficient to yield said township's proportion of the amount required to pay the interest coupons on said bonds when due, and to retire said bonds at maturity.

Upon all the taxable property within the township of Salem, an annual tax sufficient to yield said township's proportion of the amount required to yield said township's proportion of the amount required to pay the interest coupons on said bonds when due, and to retire said bonds at maturity.

The township trustees of said Crane and Salem townships are hereby ordered to apportion the amount of the cost and expense of said improvement to be paid by the owners of the abutting property, making said apportionment according to the benefits accruing to the said owners of the land so located and to certify said assessments to the county auditor of Wyandot county, who is hereby directed to place said assessments upon the tax duplicate to be collected in the same manner as other taxes are collected and in such payments as may be approved by the county auditor of Wyandot county.

The taxes hereby levied shall be and are hereby ordered to be certified, levied, and extended upon the tax duplicate of Wyandot county and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that the taxes for general purposes in each of said years are certified, extended and collected, and all funds derived from said taxes and from the assessments to be made by the township trustees of Crane and Salem townships, as hereinbefore provided, shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which, together with all interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged to the prompt payment of the interest and principal of the said bonds when and as the same falls due, and the said board of county commissioners of Wyandot county, Ohio, hereby orders and directs that all other and further action be taken that may now or hereafter be required in providing the funds to pay the interest on and to retire said bonds at maturity.

You will note that the above form follows closely the one suggested by you, the principal changes being in the addition of a number of preliminary recitals and in the section relating to tax levies. I would not want to be taken as holding that the resolution submitted by you would be invalid, and therefore expressly state that in this opinion I am not passing upon the validity of said resolution. I am merely suggesting that the resolution omits some recitals that might be regarded by the courts as jurisdictional, and am submitting a form of resolution containing these recitals in proper form.

In calculating the division between the townships of the fifteen per cent. of the total estimated cost and expense of the improvement apportioned to the whole of the two townships and the division between the townships of the ten per cent. of said cost apportioned to the owners of abutting property, the division is to be made according to the number of lineal feet of the improvement lying in each township, this being provided in section 1208, G. C. Not having the necessary information on which to base this calculation, I am unable to make the same.

I trust the above will be a complete answer to your inquiry.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

STATE REGISTRAR OF VITAL STATISTICS—MAY NOT PREPARE TRANSCRIPT OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS FOR FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

The registrar of vital statistics may not lawfully act as the agent of the United States census bureau in procuring transcripts of births and deaths for said bureau as provided in section 231, General Code.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 14, 1915.

HON. C. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 3d, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "We find upon investigation in the bureau of vital statistics that the practice of the former registrar of vital statistics has been to furnish United States census bureau transcripts of deaths and births, and has received fees for doing so from the United States census bureau; that said registrar, after paying from said fees collected for labor performed in compiling said statistics, has retained the balance of said fees so collected by him.
> "We are unable to ascertain by what authority of law said registrar would be entitled to retain any fees coming into his hands while in his official capacity, he, as registrar, being on a salary basis.
> "We are submitting this question to you for the purpose of obtaining an opinion by which the present registrar of vital statistics may be guided, and an early opinion from you will be appreciated."

The question invites consideration of the following provisions of the statutes relative to the department of vital statistics in the office of the secretary of state:

> "Section 231. The state registrar shall furnish any applicant therefor a certified copy of the record of a birth or death registered under provisions of this chapter relating to vital statistics, for which he shall receive a fee of fifty cents, from the applicant. * * * For a search of the files and records when no certified copy is made, the state registrar shall receive a fee of fifty cents from the applicant for each hour or fractional hour of time of search: Provided, that the United States census bureau may obtain without cost to the state, transcripts of births and deaths without payment of the fees herein prescribed.
> "Section 232. The state registrar shall keep a correct account of fees by him received under these provisions, and pay the same to the state treasurer on or before the fifteenth day of each month. * * *"

I take it that the fees of which you speak in your letter were agreed upon by the United States census bureau and the registrar, and that in compiling the statistics required by the federal department the registrar was acting as its agent, so that in this capacity he was receiving compensation from the federal government. It is apparent, therefore, that the fees so received are not "the fees herein prescribed" within the meaning of section 231, General Code, nor are they "fees by him received under these provisions" within the meaning of section 232, General Code.

The clear intention of section 231, General Code, is to enable the census bureau to employ some one to obtain for it the transcripts of births and deaths desired by it without the payment of fees. The bureau has actually employed the registrar himself, and the question is as to whether or not the registrar may lawfully accept such an employment.

I find no reason for holding that the employment by the federal government is incompatible with the position of registrar of vital statistics. Because the registrar is as you point out, compensated for his service to the state by his annual salary, he is not thereby precluded from pursuing any gainful occupation which will not interfere in any way with the discharge of his duties as registrar. The census bureau and the state can have no contractual relation with respect to the obtaining of the transcripts of births and deaths of which section 231 speaks by the express terms of that section itself, for the state is to suffer no cost and is to reap no benefits from the obtaining of such transcripts. Therefore, that species of incompatibility which arises when the incumbent of one office or employment is required to or may deal with the incumbent of another office or employment in an adversary capacity or relation does not exist in this case.

The question which is raised in my mind exists by reason of the language "without cost to the state" as used in section 231. The primary intention of the general assembly in using this language is clear. The idea undoubtedly was to guard against the use of the state's agencies in preparing the transcripts in question. The state could only incur costs in connection with such a service in two ways:

(1) By consuming blank forms and other supplies used up in the preparation of such transcripts; and

(2) By consuming the time of the state's employes.

Manifestly the first item of cost is inconsequential and could not have been the chief object of the legislature. Therefore, I think it is clear that the legislature intended that the time of the state's employes should not be taken up with the preparation of transcripts for the use of the census bureau, but that the bureau, as already observed, should employ its own agents for that purpose.

In contemplation of law at least the registrar of vital statistics is precluded from entering into such a contract with the federal government because he is an employe of the state, and in rendering services to the federal government in the preparation of transcripts for the use of the census bureau he is subjecting the state to the very kind of "cost" which is prohibited by section 231, General Code.

Your question, however, suggests that in point of fact the registrar may not have devoted any of his personal time to the work of preparing transcripts at all, but may have employed a clerk on his private account to do the work for him. If this be the case, it is, in my opinion, immaterial on the principle that what one may not do directly he is not permitted to do indirectly; so that there is no more authority for the state registrar to receive compensation from the federal government for doing the work referred to and paying a clerk part of such compensation to do the work for him than there is for the doing of the work by the registrar himself.

I therefore conclude that though the positions are not in a sense incompatible, yet the state registrar of vital statistics may not lawfully enter into a contract with the federal government for furnishing transcripts of births and deaths for the use of the census bureau.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

HOUSE BILL No. 549—EFFECT ON SMITH ONE PER CENT. LAW.

Effect of the levy prescribed by House Bill No. 549 upon the limitations of the so-called Smith one per cent. law.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 14, 1915.

HON. EDWARD BOHM, Secretary Committee on State and Economic Betterment, House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I hasten to comply with your request of even date herewith for an opinion as to the effect of the levy prescribed by House Bill No. 549 upon the limitations of the so-called Smith one per cent. law

You also refer me to House Bill No. 567, but as to this bill, which relates to the purchasing and holding of forestry lands by a municipality, I do not find that there is any question under the Smith one per cent. law whatsoever.

Returning to House Bill No. 549, I note the following provisions thereof:

> "Section 7622-7. The board of education of any school district may levy annually upon the taxable property of such school district or such city within the limitations of sections 5649-2 and 5649-3 of the General Code, but in addition to all other taxes allowed by law, not to exceed two-tenths of a mill for a social center fund to be used for social and recreational purposes."

Answering your specific question beg to advise that the levy therein provided for is to be made within the limitations of section 5649-2 of the General Code, and by reason of this fact is subject to what is known as the ten mill limitation of the Smith law and also to the fifteen mill limitation of the Smith law, for any levy which is subject to the ten mill limitation is likewise subject to the fifteen mill limitation.

The effect of the provision that the levy shall be "in addition to all other taxes allowed by law" is to take the particular levy out of the five mill limitation which is prescribed by section 5649-3a. Perhaps I may best illustrate the effect of this provision by saying that it makes the levy like the state levy for common school and university purposes, except that the latter cannot be reduced by the budget commission, while the proposed levy may be reduced by the budget commission in case such reduction is necessary to enforce the ten mill or fifteen mill limitation.

I wish it to be distinctly understood that I do not in any way pass upon the policy of the bill nor that of the specific provision thereof under consideration. I may be permitted, however, to point out that the reference to "section 5649-3" of the General Code in line 51 of the bill is an error, because that section of the original Smith law was repealed by the Kilpatrick law and is no longer in force.

I question also whether the words "or such city" in line 50 are proper. I do not believe that authority can be given to a board of education to levy taxes upon the duplicate of the city as such. The taxing district under their control is the school district and not the city.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CLERK OF COMMON PLEAS COURT—HOUSE BILL No. 527 EXTENDING TERM FROM TWO TO FOUR YEARS, CONSTITUTIONAL.

The term of the clerk of the court of common pleas may be in even number of years not exceeding four, and the legislature may extend such term provided the extended term expires at the time when the term would otherwise have expired had no extension been made.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 14, 1915.

HON. ADAM OBERLIN, Member House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—As requested by you, I have examined House Bill No. 527, amending section 2867 of the General Code so as to provide that the term of the clerk of the court of common pleas shall be four years instead of two years. You invite my particular attention to section 2 of the bill, which extends the terms of the clerks elected on November 3, 1914, from the time when they would otherwise expire to the first Monday in August, 1919. The effect of this section is to make these terms four years instead of two.

Without in any way passing upon the policy of this measure, I beg to advise that, in my opinion, it conflicts with no constitutional provision.

It was held in the recent case of State ex rel Young v. Cox, 90 O. S. 219, decided May 26, 1914, that the provisions of article XVII, sections 1 and 2 of the constitution control, to the exclusion of those of article IV, section 16, which originally fixed the term of office of the clerk of courts at three years, so that now the term of the clerk may be such even number of years, not exceeding four years, as may be prescribed by law, this being the provision of article XVII, section 2.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SPENCERVILLE ARMORY—CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT AND CONTRACTOR'S BOND APPROVED.

The construction contract and contractor's bond for the construction of the Spencerville Armory are drawn in compliance with the provisions of the General Code.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

COL. BYRON L. BARGAR, Secretary of Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of April 13, 1915, which is as follows:

> "In compliance with your instructions of the 12th inst., I herewith have the honor to transmit triplicate copies of the tentative construction contract and contractor's bond for erection of the Spencerville Armory."

I have carefully examined the copies of the tentative construction contract and the contractor's bond referred to in your letter, and I am of the opinion that they are drawn in compliance with the provisions of the General Code relative to the making of contracts by your board.

I am herewith returning you the several copies of the contract and bond with my approval.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER—WITHOUT AUTHORITY NOW TO MAKE CONTRACTS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAYS IN EXCESS OF AMOUNT APPROPRIATED IN HOUSE BILL No. 314—DISTINCTION OF APPROPRIATION BILLS UNDER WHICH RULINGS OF THIS DEPARTMENT WERE MADE.

The state highway commissioner has not at the present time any authority to enter into contracts or incur contingent liabilities for the construction of inter-county highways in excess of the amount appropriated for that purpose in the current appropriation measure, house bill No. 314.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of April 6, 1915, which reads as follows:

> "Your interpretation and opinion is respectfully asked in re section 6859-2 and section 1222 of the General Code.
> "After the collection of the taxes and the settlement by the respective counties with the state auditor, in compliance with the law governing the same, that officer certifies to this department a lump sum, three-fourths of the three-tenths mill levy, which he terms 'The state road building funds,' whereupon we divide this gross sum by eighty-eight, the number of counties in the state, and regard such amount as set aside for use in each county. Some of the counties which are at times delinquent do not make use of this particular allotment during the year in which it is appropriated, while other counties wish to anticipate the collection of the June taxes and enter into contracts for road improvement.
> "Would it be proper for this department to contract for the aggregate amount of money that has been levied for the entire calendar year to construct roads while the last half of such levy is in the process of collection, taking into account the fact that such amount has been levied and placed on the tax list and is due the state from the respective counties?
> "In other words, this department desires to enter into contracts at present, the money to pay same being due the state, and which will be paid into the state treasury immediately following the August settlement."

The levy of three-tenths of a mill referred to by you is authorized by section 6859-1, G. C., the levy being made on all the taxable property within the state for the purpose of creating the state highway improvement fund.

Section 6859-2, G. C., provides that seventy-five per cent. of all money paid into the treasury of the state by reason of said levy, shall be applied to the maintenance of he state highway department and for the construction, improvement, maintenance t and repair of inter-county highways, in the manner designated in the chapter of the General Code relating to the state highway commissioner, being sections 1178 to 1231-4, inclusive.

Section 1222 of the General Code, referred to by you, reads as follows:

> "Moneys appropriated by the state for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this chapter, shall not be used in any manner or for any purpose except as provided herein. Moneys so appropriated shall be equally divided among the counties of the state, except such moneys as are appropriated for the use of the department and for surveys, plans and estimates, and the maintenance and repair of state highways."

The question propounded by you was passed upon by my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in an opinion rendered to Hon. James R. Marker, state highway commissioner, on May 23, 1914. In that opinion it was held that it would be both proper and legal for the state highway department to contract for the aggregate amount of money that had been levied for the entire tax year, less the expense of said department even though the second installment of the tax was not in the state treasury and would not come into the treasury until August. This holding was based on the reason that such second installment of tax was in process of collection, and would be in the state treasury before it was actually needed and before the fund arising from the first installment of the tax would have been exhausted in making payments to contractors on estimates.

The opinion above referred to is of little value in reaching a conclusion as to the present rights of the state highway department, for the reason that at that time the state highway department was operating under one appropriation bill, while at the present time the department is operating under another and radically different appropriation bill. The appropriation bill under which the department was operating at the time the opinion of my predecessor was rendered, appropriating for the state highway department generally, and without stipulating the amount of the appropriation all the proceeds of the tax authorized by section 6859-1, G. C., and also the revenue paid into the state treasury for the repair, maintenance, protection, policing or patroling of the public roads or highways of the state under the law, providing for registration, identification and regulation of motor vehicles.

Permit me to direct your attention to house bill 314, passed by the legislature now in session, being an act to make appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and state institutions, for the period beginning February 16, 1915, and ending June 30, 1915. Section 1 of this act provides that no moneys shall be taken from the general revenue fund to support the state highway department. In the part of this act relating especially to the highway department, instead of appropriating generally the proceeds of the tax authorized by section 6859-1, G. C., the legislature appropriated for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of inter-county highways the specific sum of $780,976.50. No appropriation bill has yet been passed covering the period following June 30, 1915. It is therefore manifestly beyond the power of the state highway commissioner to create any contingent liabilities against the money that will come into the treasury for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of inter-county highways under sections 6859-1 and 6859-2, G. C., at the next semi-annual settlement, for the reason that such funds have not yet been appropriated for the use of the state highway department. Your authority in making contracts and creating contingent liabilities is, at the present time, limited by the current appropriation measure now in force, being house bill 314 referred to above, and when you have exhausted the $780,976.50 appropriated in said act, for the construction, improvement, maintenance and repair of inter-county highways, you will have no further authority to enter into any contracts involving the expenditure of money upon the inter-county highways of the state, until the legislature by appropriate action has appropriated and placed at your disposal further funds for this purpose.

I deem it proper in this connection to call your attention to the further fact that under the current appropriation measure, house bill 314 referred to above, the moneys therein appropriated cannot be in any way expended to pay liabilities or deficiencies existing prior to February 16, 1915, or incurred subsequent to June 30, 1915. See section 2 of said act.

The legislature not yet having passed an appropriation measure governing the period following June 30, 1915, it is impossible at the present time to render any opinion as to what your rights in this matter will be after such appropriation measure shall have been passed and shall have gone into effect.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—EXPENSES OF REPRESENTATIVES WHO VISIT OTHER SCHOOL BUILDINGS FOR IDEAS CANNOT BE PAID FROM SCHOOL FUND—COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION MUST AUTHORIZE INSTITUTE BEFORE TEACHERS ATTENDING SAME CAN BE PAID SUBSEQUENT TO MAY 20, 1914—MEMBER OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY AND TEACHER IN SCHOOLS, COMPATIBLE.

Rural or village boards of education are unauthorized to pay from school funds the expenses of "representatives" whom the boards designate and send to inspect schools or school buildings.

Superintendents and teachers may not be paid for attending a teachers' institute held subsequent to May 20, 1914, unless such institute was duly authorized to be held by the county board of education.

Members of the general assembly may be employed as teachers in the public schools during the time the legislature is not in session.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge the receipt of your request for opinion as follows:

"1. May rural or village boards of education pay from school funds the expenses of representatives whom they send to inspect schools, or school buildings, to the end that a report of conditions may be given said board so that the members may act with more definite and intelligent knowledge in planning for the betterment of schools of the district over which they have jurisdiction?

Section 7620, General Code, reads as follows:

"The board of education of a district may build, enlarge, repair and furnish the necessary schoolhouses, purchase or lease sites therefor, or rights of way thereto, or purchase or lease real estate to be used as playgrounds for children, or rent suitable schoolrooms, provide the necessary apparatus and make all other necessary provisions for the schools under its control. It also shall provide fuel for schools, build and keep in good repair fences inclosing such school houses, when deemed desirable plant shade and ornamental trees on the school grounds and make all other provisions necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools within the subdistricts.

"Does the closing paragraph of section 7620 authorize the payment of expenses of the nature referred to above?

"2. May superintendents be allowed fees for attending an annual teachers' institute held after section 7870 became a law, before such institute has been authorized by the county board of education?

"3. Can members of the state legislature legally be paid from school funds for services rendered by them as teachers during the time the legislature is not in session?"

In consideration of your first question, a careful examination of the statutes fails to disclose any authority for the payment of expenses of representatives of boards of education in making such inspections as are referred to by you, nor indeed for the appointment or designation of such representatives for making any such inspections, unless the same may be found within the terms of the statute above quoted. (Section 7620, General Code.)

It is a principle of law too familiar to require reference to authorities, that public officers may exercise only such authority as is specifically conferred by the statute, or is, of necessity, essential to a proper discharge of a duty so imposed or exercise of power so granted.

It is also a well established rule of statutory construction to be uniformly observed, that "general words following particular words must be confined to things of the same kind as those specified." State v. Johnson, 64 O. S., 270.

While this rule is subject to that other familiar principle that where the reason altogether fails the rule does not apply, the facts must be sufficient to bring the case clearly within the latter that it may operate as an exception to the former.

In the application of the foregoing principles to the provisions of section 7620, G. C., and more properly to the last sentence of the same, since it is not anticipated that it would be contended that the first sentence is at all applicable to the first case, it cannot be maintained, in my opinion, that the legislature in the requirement that the board of education should provide fuel, build fences, and when deemed desirable plant trees, had in contemplation the appointment of representatives of the board to make inspection of schools and school buildings beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the board at public expense for any purpose.

My answer to your first question must, therefore, be in the negative.

Section 7870, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 157, referred to in your second question, provides as follows:

"When a teachers' institute has been authorized by the county board of education the boards of education of all school districts shall pay the teachers and superintendents of their respective districts their regular salary for the week they attend the institute upon the teachers or superintendents presenting certificates of full regular daily attendance, signed by the county superintendent. If the institute is held when the public schools are not in session, such teachers or superintendents shall be paid two dollars a day for actual daily attendance as certified by the county superintendent, for not more than five days of actual attendance, to be paid as an addition to the first month's salary after the institute, by the board of education by which such teacher or superintendent is then employed. In case he or she is unemployed at the time of the institute, such salary shall be paid by the board next employing such teacher or superintendent, if the term of employment begins within three months after the institute closes."

Section 7868, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 157, which is deemed pertinent to this question, is as follows:

"The teachers' institutes of each county shall be under the supervision of the county boards of education. Such boards shall decide by formal resolution at any regular or special meeting held prior to February 1st of each year whether a county institute shall be held in the county during the current year."

The provisions of the above section, it will be noted, were effective on or after May 20, 1914, the same having been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state on February 19, 1914.

The language of the statutes above set forth is clear and unequivocal insofar as pertinent to the matter under consideration, and it is the manifest policy of the law that teachers' institutes shall be subject to the control and supervision of the county boards of education and that the same be conducted in accordance therewith is made a condition precedent to the payment of teachers and superintendents for their attendance. In other words, it was clearly the purpose of the legislature that teachers and superintendents should receive pay for attending only such institutes as are held within the provisions of section 7868, G. C., and by the county board of education formally authorized and approved.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, in answer to your second inquiry, that superintendents of schools may not be paid for attending a teachers' institute held subsequent to May 20, 1914, unless such institute was authorized to be held by the county board of education.

In answer to your third question, your attention is called to an opinion of my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, under date of July 14, 1913, rendered to Hon. George S. Crawford, member of house of representatives, Grayville, Ohio, a copy of which is herewith enclosed, in which I concur. That opinion holds that "the position of teacher in public schools is not considered a public office, consequently there is no inhibition against a member of the general assembly being employed as a teacher in the public schools."

This opinion was rendered, however, prior to the amendment of section 15, G. C., by an act passed February 16, 1914, 104 O. L., 252, as follows:

"Section 12. No member of either house of the general assembly except in compliance with the provisions of this act shall:

"1. Be appointed as trustees or manager of a benevolent, educational, penal or reformatory institution of the state, supported in whole or in part by funds from the state treasury;

"2. Serve on any committee or commission authorized or created by the general assembly, which provides other compensation than actual and necessary expenses;

"3. Accept any appointment, employment or office from any committee or commission authorized or created by the general assembly or from any executive, or administrative branch or department of the state, which provides other compensation than actual and necessary expenses.

"Any such appointee, officer or employee who accepts a certificate of election to either house shall forthwith resign as such appointee, officer or employee, and in case he fails or refuses to do so his seat in the general assembly shall be deemed vacant. Any member of the general assembly who accepts any such appointment, office or employment shall forthwith resign from the general assembly and in case he fails or refuses to do so his seat in the general assembly shall be deemed vacant. But the provisions of this section shall not apply to township officers, justices of the peace, notaries public or officers of the militia."

It may be first observed that it is not altogether clear that boards of education by whom teachers are employed constitute either an executive or administrative branch or department of the state. While the whole scheme of common school education is controlled by state law, members of boards of education are neither state officers nor employes of the state. On the contrary they are the agencies of the local government of a territorial subdivision of the state only. The establishment, alteration, maintenance and repair of township roads are subject to authority and operation of state law alone, yet it could hardly be maintained that a board of township trustees charged with the administration of a part or all the statutes of the state relative thereto, was a department of the state.

Practically all government outside of municipalities is based solely, immediately and directly upon state law, yet much of the administration and execution of that law is entrusted by the state to local governmental agencies which may not be said in any strict or true sense to be branches or departments of the state government. For instance, relief for the poor is subject to state legislation, but that the administration thereof by the township trustees, the county commissioners and the superintendent of the infirmary in a given township is an administrative branch or department of the state is involved in much doubt.

While the constitutionality of this statute may be seriously questioned, it is not deemed necessary to the present consideration that the same be here passed upon. If it be conceded that the provisions of this statute are valid and operative under the constitution, it will be observed that there is prescribed a definite and specific remedy or penalty for its violation, and this is emphasized by change in this respect in such amendment making more clear the intent of the legislature that a violation of this statute should work a forfeiture of the seat in the general assembly.

If we may then in the construction of this statute apply that familiar maxim of the law Expressio Unius est exclusio alterius, it results that it is inoperative insofar as it relates to the question now before us; that is, whether a member of the general assembly may be lawfully paid for services as teacher in the public schools of the state when the legislature is not in session. That is to say, the provisions of this statute have no application to the payment of persons for services rendered as teachers of public schools even though at the same time a member of the general assembly.

Your third question is therefore answered in the affirmative.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

WHAT CONSTITUTES "BUSINESS IN THIS STATE" AS USED IN SECTION 5502, G. C., FOR PURPOSE OF DETERMINING THE TAX TO BE IMPOSED ON FOREIGN CORPORATIONS FOR PRIVILEGE OF EXERCISING CORPORATE FRANCHISES IN OHIO.

The word "business" as used in section 5502, G. C., is synonymous with the same word as used in sections 5499 and 183, G. C.

Sales of a foreign corporation to customers in Ohio solicited by traveling salesmen or by mail and necessitating the interstate transportation of the articles sold are not to be regarded as representing "business" of such a corporation in Ohio under section 5502, G. C., although the corporation also carries on other activities in Ohio which do constitute Ohio business.

But if a stock of goods of foreign manufacture is maintained in Ohio and sales are made in this state from that stock, or are made wherever negotiated to an Ohio customer from such stock, the business is "Ohio business" within the meaning of said section.

The operation of a factory in Ohio by a foreign corporation having its principal place of business in another state constitutes "doing business" in Ohio, regardless of where the products of such factory are sold or transported; and it is reasonable and lawful under section 5502 to measure the volume of such business by sales of manufactured articles, whether such sales otherwise represent interstate commerce or not.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

The Honorable Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of February 2d, requests my opinion upon the following facts:

> "Swift & Company is a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Illinois, with its principal place of business and actual business office in that state. The company has various manufacturing plants located throughout the country. Two of these plants are in Ohio; one of them, a packing house, at Cleveland, and the other a fertilizer works, at Parma.
> "In its report to the commission as a foreign corporation for the year 1914, the company reports as the amount of business transacted in Ohio the following items:
> " 'Sales from the Cleveland packing house to customers within the state of Ohio;
> " 'Sales from the Cleveland packing house to branch houses within the state of Ohio;
> " 'Sales from the Parma fertilizer works to customers within Ohio.'
> "The company fails to report the following business:
> " 'Sales from the Cleveland packing house to customers or branch houses located in states other than Ohio;
> " 'Sales from the Parma fertilizer works to customers or branch houses in states other than Ohio;
> " 'Sales from plants located outside of the state of Ohio to customers or branch houses in Ohio.' "

You request my opinion as to whether any of the items which the company does not report may be legally taken into consideration by the tax commission in determining the proportion of the authorized capital stock of the corporation in question represented by property owned and business transacted in this state.

This question invites consideration of section 5502, General Code. It is obvious on the face of this statute that in order to determine the "proportion" of which it speaks "the property and business in this state" must be compared with the property and business of the company everywhere. The ultimate question then being as to what constitutes "business in this state" for the purposes of this statute it at once appears that this term has no fixed and definite meaning of its own independent of the context in which it is found. That is to say, the words used do not have any such primary meaning as to make the statute plain on its face. That being the case a consideration of the object and intent of the whole body of the law applicable to the subject-matter is invoked.

The section which is to be interpreted is a part of the law imposing an annual tax upon foreign corporations with respect to their privilege of exercising corporate franchises in Ohio; and the section itself prescribes the rule of apportionment of the tax.

The operative section, i. e., the provision imposing primary liability for the tax, is section 5499, General Code, which provides as follows:

> "Annually, during the month of July, each foreign corporation for profit, doing business in this state, and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, and subject to compliance with all other provisions of law, and in addition to all other statements required by law, shall make a report in writing to the commission in such form as the commission may prescribe."

I think that the phrase "doing business in this state, and owning or using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state," as used in section 5499, General Code, must necessarily mean the same thing as the same phrase as it is found in the identical words in section 183, General Code.

I call attention then to the fact that the phrase "business in this state" is used three times in the body of the law applicable to foreign corporations, namely, once in section 183, which provides that "before doing business in this state," foreign corporations, organized for profit and owning or using a part or all of their capital or plant in this state, shall do certain things; once in section 5499, General Code, providing that foreign corporations "doing business in this state" and owning or using a part or all of their capital or plant in this state, shall make certain reports and pay certain taxes; and once in the section immediately under consideration; that is in section 5502, which apportions the tax in part on the basis of "business in this state." I think it is apparent that the word "done" is to be understood in, or read into section 5502, so that the complete phrase is "business (done) in this state." The identity of the three phrases becomes clearer on the making of this interpolation.

I am of the opinion that the meaning of the phrase in question is the same in each of its uses, and that that is "business (done) in this state," within the meaning of section 5502, General Code, which constitutes the "doing of business," within the meaning of sections 5499 and 183, General Code.

Therefore, the question as to what constitutes "business in this state," under section 5502, may be answered by considering what would constitute "doing business" within the meaning of section 183, General Code.

The application of such a test results in at least a partial elimination of the third class of sales, which the company concerning which you inquire has refused to report.

If any of these sales are made upon solicitation in Ohio, of orders by mail, or through traveling salesmen or local agents, requiring deliveries to be made from the foreign factories to the customer and thus necessitating interstate transportation, such sales do not represent "business done in Ohio."

Toledo Commercial Co. v. Glen Mfg. Co., 55 O. S., 217.

Robbins v. Shelby County Taxing District, 120 U. S., 489.
Brennan v. Titusville, 153 U. S., 289.

In this connection, see section 188, General Code, which provides that the compliance section shall not apply inter alia "to foreign corporations entirely non-resident soliciting business or making sales in this state by correspondence or by traveling salesmen."

But if any of the sales of this class, consisting of the products of factories located in other states, are made in Ohio from stocks of such products located in Ohio, or, whether entirely negotiated in Ohio or not, involve merely a delivery from an Ohio warehouse or stock room to an Ohio customer, such sales do represent "business done in Ohio."

The other two classes of sales may be considered together because they present the same legal questions. I am of the opinion that the operation of factories in Ohio by a foreign corporation constitutes "doing business" in Ohio regardless of where the products of such factories are sold.

Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S., 1.
United States v. E. C. Knight Co., 156 U. S., 1.
Diamond Glue Co. v. United States Glue Co., 187 U. S., 611.
Baltic Mining Co. v. Massachusetts, 231 U. S., 68.
Treadway v. Reilly, 32 Neb., 495.
Baltic Mining Co. v. Massachusetts, 207 Mass., 387.
S. S. White Dental Mfg. Co. v. Mass., 212 U. S., 35.
Attorney General v. Electric Storage Battery Co., 188 Mass., 239.

I am of the opinion that under the provisions of section 5502, General Code, it is the duty of the commission to select some factor or criterion which will represent the volume of the business done in Ohio as compared with the volume of the business of the company as a whole; and that the business being manufacturing, and all manufacturing being for the purpose of sale, the sales of the products of the factories may be used as such a measure of the volume of the manufacturing business. When so used the sales do not represent commerce at all, but manufacture, and may just as appropriately be used for this purpose as any other criterion, such as the total value of the manufactured articles.

I am therefore of the opinion that sales, being the apparent factor which has been chosen by the commission as a measure of the business of the company in Ohio and elsewhere, all the sales of the two factories in Ohio must be reported by the company in question as business done in Ohio.

I think I should supplement the statement of my conclusions respecting your specific question by pointing out that though it may seem inconsistent to use sales as a measure of volume of manufacturing business in the first instance, and then to consider some sales like those dealt with in answering your third question, as representing commerce instead of manufacturing, such inconsistency is rather apparent than real. When a manufacturing company sets up in another state a separate selling agency, maintaining a warehouse or a stock of goods from which sales are made, it in effect embarks in a separate and distinct enterprise and the business in which it engages in such a guise is not that of manufacturing only. Under such circumstances, the corporation must, so to speak, pay for the special privilege of conducting such a selling business in addition to paying for whatever privileges it may exercise in the state as a manufacturing company only.

It must not be forgotten that in all excise and franchise taxation it is possible to use the same receipts, or sales, or earnings, as the case may be, more than once in the apportionment of the tax. This is not double taxation, because these factors are not themselves subjects of taxation, but are used merely for the purpose of apportioning a tax upon a privilege.

My predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in an opinion addressed to the commission, held on authority of Baltic Mining Co. v. Massachusetts, supra, that any and all business which might be regarded as carried on in Ohio, whether interstate in character or not, should be reported as Ohio business under section 5502, General Code. It will be observed that my conclusion as to the interpretation of the statute does not agree with that of Mr. Hogan. Baltic Mining Co. v. Massachusetts is authority for the conclusion that the state may apportion an annual franchise tax against foreign corporations upon the basis of the total authorized capital stock thereof, without distinction as to the relative amount of business transacted in the state and that transacted elsewhere, provided the law imposing the tax does not apply to corporations engaged in the actual carrying on of interstate commerce or engaged in the state exclusively in interstate commerce. But the Ohio law and the Massachusetts law are very different in phraseology.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EFFECT OF CERTAIN AMENDMENTS IN HOUSE BILL No. 615 ON EIGHT HOUR DAY ON PUBLIC WORK.

The amendments proposed in House Bill No. 615 relative to the eight hours a day on public work, will not relieve any department or office or contractor performing public work from necessity of complying with the provisions of article II, section 37 of the constitution of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

Agricultural Committee, House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

I have your letter of April 14, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "The agricultural committee would respectfully request an opinion from you on the constitutionality of house bill 615, as amended, and also the effect the amendment suggested by the state highway commission would have on the constitutionality of the bill, if so amended."

House bill No. 615, as amended, is as follows:

> To amend section 17-1 of the General Code, relating to the provision for an eight hour day on public work in the state.
> Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio:
> "Section 1. That section 17-1 of the General Code be amended to read as follows:
> "Section 17-1. Except in cases of extraordinary emergency, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work * * * for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract or otherwise, and it shall be unlawful for any person, corporation or association, whose duty it shall be to employ or to direct and control the services of such workmen, to require any of them to labor more than eight hours in any calendar day or more than forty-eight hours in any calendar week, except in cases of extraordinary emergency. This section shall not be construed to include policemen or firemen, nor employes of the agricultural experiment station who are engaged in field work of any kind.

"Section 2. That said original section 17-1 of the General Code, be and the same is hereby repealed."

The amendment proposed in your letter is as follows:

"After the words extraordinary emergency in line 2:

" 'But this shall not be construed to forbid any workman, or workmen, employe or employes, engaged in road or highway construction, maintenance or repair from contracting for extra hours of labor to be performed by him or them; and shall not be construed to include policemen or firemen, nor employes of the agricultural experiment station who are engaged in field work at any time.' "

In considering the effect of this amendment, permit me to call your attention to article II, section 37 of the constitution of Ohio, which is as follows:

"Except in cases of extraodinary emergencies, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work, and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work, for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract, or otherwise."

This section of the constitution is undoubtedly self-executing and the only practical effect secured by the passage of section 17-1 of the general Code as enacted in 103 O. L., 854, was to add the sanction of a penalty to the provisions of the section of the constitution above quoted. Prior to the adoption of section 17-1 of the General Code, no means of enforcing the provisions of this section of the constitution existed except by resorting to a court of competent jurisdiction and securing an injunction.

The effect of the proposed amendment to section 17-1 of the General Code is to remove from the operation of its penalty clause, contained in section 17-2 of the General Code, the doing of certain things which are prohibited by the constitution.

Whether or not the entire act will be rendered unconstitutional by the proposed amendments is, for all practical purposes and results, immaterial, because in either event the constitutional provision referred to will remain intact and operative, and the doing of certain things which it is apparently the intention of the amendment to make lawful will still be prohibited by the constitution. The removal of the sanction of the penalty would doubtless render more difficult the enforcement of the constitutional rule, but the duty of limiting the work day to eight hours and the work week to forty-eight hours on all public work carried on or aided by the state, etc., will still remain the law of Ohio.

The effect of the first proposed amendment, i. e., omitting the words "or permit" in line nine will render the penalty clause practically inoperative by reason of the difficulty in securing proof of any violation.

The second amendment, i. e., omitting the words "and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work" will remove the sanction of a penalty for labor on more than six days per week.

The last amendment removes the penalty for any violation of the constitutional provision relative to all "highway construction, maintenance or repair." The provision relative to firemen, policemen, and employes of the agricultural experiment station, etc., is, in my opinion, meaningless, as this character of work and employment is not included in the class of work contemplated by the constitutional provision.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the effect of the amendments suggested will not relieve any department or officer or contractor performing public work from the necessity of complying with the provisions of article II, section 37, of the constitution of Ohio.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER.
Attorney General.

BOARD OF CENSORS—MAY NOT DELEGATE ASSISTANTS TO VIEW PICTURE FILMS FOR APPROVAL OR REJECTION BY BOARD.

The board of censors may not delegate assistants to view picture films and make to the board a report upon which the board may approve or reject such picture film.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a request for an opinion submitted by Hon. Chas. G. Williams, chairman of the Ohio board of censors, as follows:

> "We are acting as the board of censors under the provisions of O. L. Vol. 103, page 397.
> "The industrial commission furnishes clerks, stenographers and typists to assist us in our work.
> "In many instances it is necessary that the board have assistance in the viewing of pictures; that is, to view a picture submitted to the board for approval and make notes as to its character, and submit same to the board; the board rendering the final judgment.
> "We desire to know if it is legal for us to use the employes furnished us by the industrial commission to assist us in the manner above stated. In other words, does the law require the members of the board to actually view each picture passed upon by said board, before rendering final judgment, or may they render judgment on the information furnished them by the employes who have viewed the picture."

Section 871-46, G. C. (103 O. L., 399), provides for the appointment of a board of censors of motion picture films by the industrial commission of Ohio. The further provisions of the statutes pertinent to your inquiry, are as follows:

Section 871-47, G. C. (103 O. L., 399-400), provides:

> "The industrial commission shall furnish the board of censors with suitable office rooms and with sufficient equipment to properly carry out the provisions of this act. The board of censors may organize by electing one of its members as president. The secretary of the industrial commission shall act as secretary of the board. Each member of the board of censors shall receive an annual salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per year. Such salary and expenses shall in no case exceed the fees paid to the Ohio board of censors for examination and approval of motion picture films.

"The members of the board shall be considered as employes of the industrial commission and shall be paid as other employes of such commission are paid. The industrial commission shall appoint such other assistants as may be necessary to carry on the work of the board."

Section 871-48 (103 O. L., 400), in so far as pertinent to the question submitted, is as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the board of censors to examine and censor as herein provided, all motion picture films to be publicly exhibited and displayed in the state of Ohio. Such films shall be submitted to the board before they shall be delivered to the exhibitor for exhibition. * * *"

Section 871-49 (103 O. L., 400) reads:

"Only such films as are in the judgment and discretion of the board of censors of a moral, educational or amusing and harmless character shall be passed and approved by such board. They shall be stamped or designated in an appropriate manner and consecutively numbered. Before any motion picture film shall be publicly exhibited, they shall be projected upon the screen the words 'Approved by the Ohio board of censors' and the number of the film."

While it will be noted that the legislature has chosen to make it clear that the members of the board of censors are employes of the industrial commission, it will be also observed that by the provisions of section 871-48, G. C., above quoted, the duty of the examining and censoring all motion picture films to be publicly exhibited and displayed in the state of Ohio, is imposed upon the board of censors.

It is further provided, that only such films as are in the judgment and discretion of the board of censors of moral, educational or amusing and harmless character, shall be passed and approved by such board.

There is thus imposed upon the board the duty to exercise its judgment and discretion after an examination specifically required to be made by the board. That is to say, it seems clearly within the contemplation of the legislature that the examination of films by the board itself is essential to the exercise of that judgment and discretion required by the statute.

It would scarcely be argued with seriousness that the legislature in the enactment of the picture censor law had in contemplation the delegation by the censor board of a stenographer, however efficient in that line, to censor picture films. Nor would it be permissible for such clerk, stenographer or other employe to make an examination of such film for the purpose of making a report thereon, that the board from such report may approve or reject the same.

I am therefore of opinion, in answer to your inquiry, that each picture passed upon must be actually examined by the board of censors.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

IN RE: APPROPRIATIONS—STATE AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION—STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE—BOARD OF CONTROL OF OHIO EXPERIMENT STATION.

Form of appropriation in case of abolition of state board and evolution of its powers and duties upon other agencies by laws subject to referendum.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 15, 1915.

HON. FRANK H. REIGHARD, Chairman Finance Committee, House of Representatives, Eighty-first General Assembly, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of the 12th inst., you call my attention to the fact that laws have passed or are pending in the general assembly, abolishing the state agricultural commission and distributing its powers and duties between two agencies to be known as the "board of control of the Ohio Experiment station" and the "state board of agriculture," respectively. You also call attention to the fact that the general assembly is about to appropriate money for the current expenses of the various state departments and institutions for the year commencing July 1, 1915, and ending June 30, 1916; that the present agricultural commission will continue to exist at least until the third week in July, 1915, and, if referendum petitions are filed requiring the submission of the measures it passed, and signed by the governor, to a vote of the people, for some time thereafter.

You inquire how the appropriation for carrying on the several activities and functions of the present agricultural commission can be so made as to be properly available for expenditure by appropriate agencies of the state at all times during the fiscal year for which appropriations are to be made. You also inquire specifically whether the necessary result can be accomplished by framing what you term "a section with an inheritance clause."

It will be manifestly impracticable, for reasons which you yourself suggest, to make separate appropriations for the state agricultural commission and for its two successor agencies for definite and specific parts of the fiscal year for which appropriations are to be made, because of the uncertainty respecting the possibility both of the filing of referendum petitions and the defeat by the electors of the measures, if signed by the governor. It would be much better from a practical viewpoint to do as you suggest and to prepare "an inheritance clause." I take it that by the use of this expressive phrase you mean to refer to a provision like that which was inserted in the 1913 appropriation act with regard to the organization of the very commission which the present legislature has determined to abolish. This provision is found in 103 O. L., 633, and is as follows:

> "Whatever sums herein specified and appropriated for the purpose of the dairy and food commissioner, state board of agriculture, the secretary of the state board of agriculture, the board of live stock commissioners, the board of control of the state agricultural experiment station, the commission of fish and game, the state board of veterinary examiners, and the state board of pharmacy; and whatever sums have been appropriated or may be appropriated for the purposes of said departments shall, on and after July 15, 1913, be available for the uses and purposes of the agricultural commission of Ohio."

In my judgement, such a provision as this is valid and intelligible, and, with the necessary adaptation to present conditions, should be employed by the framers of the appropriation bill for the year 1915–16.

In order to avoid confusion, I suggest that the appropriations for those activities and functions of the present agricultural commission, which are to be devolved upon the board of control of the Ohio experiment station, be separated wholly from the appropriations for the current expenses for other purposes of the present commission relative to the matters and things which are to be devolved upon the new state board of agriculture. Then let the initial appropriations in each instance be made to and for the use of the state agricultural commission, with two inheritance clauses, one following the specific appropriations for the one class of expenditures and the other following those for the second class of expenditures. Then let the form of the "inheritance clause," as you call it, be as follows:

> "1. The sums hereinbefore specified and appropriated for the uses and purposes of the agricultural commission of Ohio shall, on and after the day on which (here refer to the act creating the board of control of the Ohio experiment station, designating it by bill number, date of passage and approval, and title) shall become effective, be available for the uses and purposes of the board of control of the Ohio experiment station."

(Following this clause should be all appropriations to the agricultural commission for the second class of purpose above defined. Then should follow the second inheritance clause, as follows:)

> "2. All sums herein specified and appropriated for the uses and purposes of the agricultural commission of Ohio, excepting the sums which are to be hereafter available for the uses and purposes of the board of control of the Ohio experiment station in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall, on and after the day on which (here refer to and describe the law creating the new state board of agriculture) shall become effective, be available for the uses and purposes of the state board of agriculture."

I understand that the measure creating the state board of agriculture is separate and distinct from the one creating the board of control of the Ohio experiment station, and that they severally repeal different sections of the present act providing for the powers and duties of the agricultural commission. My opinion is based upon this assumption.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

JUDGES OF COURT OF APPEALS—EXPENSES WHEN HOLDING COURT OUTSIDE OF THEIR DISTRICTS—IN COUNTIES OF THEIR DISTRICTS—EXPENSES OF COMMON PLEAS JUDGES IN OFFICE.

When holding court outside of their respective districts under the assignment of the chief justice, as provided in section 1528, G. C., judges of the court of appeals are entitled to the expense allowance of five dollars per day provided in section 1529, G. C., and to no other reimbursement for expenses. In other cases such judges are entitled to be reimbursed for their actual and necessary expenses incurred while holding court in a county other than that in which they reside, as provided in section 2253, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 252, such expenses not to exceed $300 in any one year; but the $300 limitation does not include expenses payable under section 1529, G. C.

A common pleas judge in office June 8, 1914, was entitled to receive for expenses not more than $300 in the portion of his official year preceding that date; if on that date he had been reimbursed for expenses in an aggregate amount exceeding $150 he could have received lawfully from the state treasury thereafter no further allowance for expenses; if the amount received by him prior to that date was less than $150, he could lawfully have received thereafter such amount only by way of reimbursement for expenses as together with the sums already paid to him would equal $150.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 16, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 10th, submitting for my opinion the following questions:

> "1. To what amount of actual and necessary expenses are the judges of appeals annually entitled?
> "2. To what amount for actual and necessary expenses would a judge of the court of common pleas, whose official year began January 1, 1914, and ended December 31, 1914, be entitled for said year? Please give basis for computing amount due, when part of official year was prior and part subsequent to June 8, 1914.
> "3. In view of section 2253-2, 104 O. L., 252, are judges of the court of appeals entitled to $5.00 per day as provided by section 1529, General Code? When so serving, if they are entitled to five dollars per day, are they entitled in addition thereto to their actual and necessary expenses as provided in section 2253, General Code?"

Your first and third questions are of similar character, both relating to the expenses of judges of the court of appeals, while your second question relates to the expenses of judges of courts of common pleas. Therefore I shall consider the first and third questions together. These questions require an interpretation of the following existing provision of law: Section 2252-2, G. C., as enacted 104 O. L., 251, section 2253, G. C., as amended 104 O. L., 251, section 1528 G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 414, and section 1529, as amended 103 O. L., 414. These sections read as follows:

> "Section 2252-2. All judges of the court of common pleas and superior courts and probate courts heretofore elected, shall, during the term for which they were elected, receive the salary, additional salary compensation and expenses provided for by law at the time of their election, the additional salary to be paid quarterly out of the treasury of the county in which such judge resides, upon the warrant of such county.

"Section 2253. In addition to the annual salary and expenses provided for in sections 1529, 2251, 2252, 2252-1, each judge of the court of common pleas and of the court of appeals, shall receive his actual and necessary expenses, not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year, incurred, while holding court in a county in which he does not reside, to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state, issued to such judge; * *

"Section 1528. Upon request of the presiding judge of a district to the chief justice of the court of appeals, to assign a judge, or judges of the court of appeals to hold court with the judge or judges of such district or to assign judges to hold an additional court in such district, the chief justice of the court of appeals, upon being satisfied that the business of such district requires it, shall assign such judge or judges of the court of appeals, as in his opinion can be so assigned without impairing the business of the district of which he is a resident, to hold court in such district.

"Section 1529. A judge so assigned, shall be paid five dollars a day for expenses for each day he shall perform such judicial duties, including the time necessarily devoted to going to and returning from such assignment and to the examination and decision of cases heard by him while he is so engaged ontside of the district for which he was elected. Such expenses shall be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state, issued upon the certificate of the chief justice of the court of appeals, or the judge making the assignment."

I have quoted section 2252-2, G. C., as amended 104 O. L., 251, because you mention it in stating your third question. As a matter of fact, this section has no relation whatever to the compensation or expenses of the judges of courts of appeals. The phrase "superior courts," as used therein, does not contemplate courts of appeals, but is a technical term which applies solely to the superior court of Cincinnati. That this is the legislative intention is, I think, made manifest not only because the act in which the section is found makes no change in the salary or compensation of judges of the courts of appeals save with respect to expenses which are provided in section 2253, so that there would seem to be little reason for the operation of any such saving clause as is embodied in said section 2252-2, G. C., with respect to the judges of courts of appeals; but also because in section 2252, G. C., as amended in the same act, and not quoted herein, a change is made in the salary of judges of the superior court, and the phrase as used in that section is clearly limited in its application to the superior court of Cincinnati. The only element of doubt respecting the interpretation of section 2252-2 in this particular is introduced by the fact that the word "courts," as therein used, is in the plural, whereas there is but one superior court in the state. The plural number may have been used by inadvertance; or it may have been used with a view of providing against the creation of other superior courts in addition to the superior court of Cincinnati. In any event, the mere use of the plural number is not sufficient in my mind to give to the phrase "superior courts," as used in section 2252-2, a distinct meaning inclusive of courts of appeals.

With section 2252-2, G. C., eliminated, the first part of your third question is answered, and the answer to the remainder of that question, and to your first question, becomes dependent upon the remaining statutory provisions above quoted.

Sections 1528 and 1529, G. C., as amended 103 O. L., 414, are plain and unambiguous. They provide for the assignment of judges of the court of appeals to hold court in districts other than their own and for the payment of a certain sum for expenses incurred by such a judge in connection with such an assignment. The allowance is $5.00 a day for each day such judge shall perform such duties, including the time necessarily devoted to traveling and to the examination and decision of cases heard outside of the district. This allowance is the same as that formerly payable to judges of circuit courts under sections bearing the same numbers. The changes in the sections other than those necessary to eliminate the words "circuit courts" and introduce the words "courts of appeals" are scarcely material in this connection.

Section 2253, General Code, as amended 104 O. L., 251, is clear in at least one respect, viz.: that the expense allowance therein provided for is to be in addition to that provided for in section 1529. Section 2253 expressly so provides. The doubtful question is as to whether or not the actual and necessary expenses allowed by section 1523, G. C., are receivable by a judge of the court of appeals when incurred in connection with holding court in a county outside of his own district; that is to say, the question is as to whether or not when holding court outside of his district under the assignment of the chief justice of the court of appeals a judge of the court of appeals is entitled to receive the allowance of $5.00 a day for expenses provided for in section 1529, and also the actual and necessary expenses as provided by section 2253, as amended.

Preliminary to a discussion of this question I may point out that in this respect section 2253 was not amended in 1914; for this part of section 2253 as it appears in 104 O. L., 251, is in the same language as section 2253 as amended, in the same act in which sections 2253 and 1529 are amended (103 O. L., 419) is phrased, so that the question must be approached in the light of the fact that sections 1529 and 2253, G. C., as they now appear, were put in their present form by the same legislative enactment.

I think that it is fair to presume that the legislature would not have provided two district expense allowances in connection with the same service; as a result of which presumption it would follow that section 2253, G. C., insofar as it applies to the judges of courts of appeals is limited to expenses in connection with holding court in the county other than the county in which the judge of the court of appeals resides, but in the same appellate district; while section 1529 is intended to provide for expenses incident to holding court outside of the district.

Over against this presumption is the fact which may be imagined that five dollars a day may not be in a given case an adequate amount for expenses—that is, this amount may not be sufficient to cover the actual and necessary expenses incurred by a judge of the court of appeals in traveling; for example, half way across the state, paying hotel bills and proper incidental expenses and returning again to his home county, under assignment of the chief justice of the court of appeals. So it might be argued that the legislature sought to provide for actual and necessary expenses in all cases by section 2253, and so to speak, to convert section 1529 into a provision for special compensation rather than an allowance for expenses. There is no constitutional limitation against providing such special compensation for judges of the courts of appeals, because section 14 of article IV of the constitution, which is the only provision which might be interpreted as a limitation of this character within its proper field, does not apply to the judge of courts of appeals, so that in view of this case, the five dollars a day provided by section 1529 might be viewed in the same light as the ten dollars a day provided by section 2253, G. C., to be paid to common pleas judges in addition to expenses, for the special service of holding court in counties other than those in which they reside, under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court.

I think, however, that this view of section 1529 must be rejected because of the language employed in that section itself. In the first place, the allowance is expressly stated to be "for expenses" although it is to be for days in which the judges engage in the examination of cases and is in effect, if not in theory, a per diem fee. In the second place, the second sentence of the section refers to the allowance as "such expenses." Whatever one may regard as the effect of the section, it is clear that the allowance is intended to be in lieu of expenses, and I think it may be most appropriate to describe it as per diem fee inclusive of expenses.

This conclusion makes it necessary, then, to determine whether it is to be finally presumed that the general assembly did not intend that in a given case a judge of the court of appeals should be entitled to the $5.00 allowance under section 1529 and to his actual and necessary expenses under section 2253. Against such a presumption might be urged the fact already alluded to that section 2253 expressly provides that the allowance for actual and necessary expenses shall be "in addition to the * * * expenses provided for in section 1529." I do not think, however, that this phraseology necessarily imports that there shall be a double allowance of expenses in a given case. It would be a fair interpretation of the section to hold that the allowance under section 2253, which is limited to $300.00 in any one year, is in addition to the allowance of $5.00 a day under section 1529, and applicable in another class of cases. That is to say, the legislature may have used this language in order to make it clear that the $300.00 limit in section 2253 did not include the $5.00 a day special allowance under section 1529. In point of fact I think this must have been the legislative intent. It is much more reasonable to suppose that this is the case than it is to suppose that the legislature intended that for one day's expenses incurred while holding court under the assignment of the chief justice outside of his district there should be an allowance of $5.00 "for expenses," and in addition a complete allowance of actual and necessary expenses (unless, of course, the $300.00 maximim had been reached).

I am of the opinion, therefore, that section 2253, General Code, does not apply to the case to which section 1529, G. C., applies, or, in other words, that when a judge of the court of appeals is holding court outside of his district, as provided by section 1528, G. C., he is entitled to the special allowance of $5.00 a day, including the time devoted to travel and to the examination and decision of cases, and to that allowance only; and that the allowance provided in section 2253, as amended, is limited to the actual and necessary expenses incurred in holding court in a county in the district other than that in which the judge resides.

I reach this conclusion without consideration of the whole of section 2253 as it is found in 104 O. L., 251, because, as already stated, the language now under consideration was the same in section 2253, as amended in 103 O. L., 419. I am not so sure, however, that present section 2253 does not shed some light upon the meaning of the same section as it existed before the amendment. The remainder of this section in its present form, other than that which I have quoted, provides for an allowance of special compensation and expenses to judges of the court of common pleas in holding court under the assignment of the chief justice of the supreme court. This provision for expenses indicates that the general assembly placed upon section 2253 of the General Code, as amended in 1913, an interpretation which would exclude its application to cases of this character: that is, it seems likely at least, that the general assembly repeated its provisions for expenses in the second part of section 2253 in its present form because it supposed that the first part of the section, which had been put in its present form in 1913, could not provide for expenses incurred while holding court under the assignment of the chief justice, but would be limited, as held in my opinion of recent date respecting the salary and expenses of common pleas judges, to expenses otherwise incurred.

If this inference is proper, it strengthens the view that the first part of section 2253, G. C., was never intended to apply to expenses incurred outside the district in aiding in disposing of business under the order of the chief justice, either as to judges of the court of common pleas, or as to judges of the court of appeals.

For all of the foregoing reasons, then, I answer your first question and the second part of your third question as follows:

Judges of the court of appeals are entitled to receive their actual and necessary expenses, not exceeding $300.00 in any one year, incurred while holding court in counties other than those in which they reside, otherwise than upon the assignment of the chief justice under section 1528, G. C.; such expenses to be paid from the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state; in addition to such expenses to the amount of $300.00 such judges are entitled to receive the $5.00 allowance for expenses provided by section 1529, G. C., when holding court under the assignment of the chief justice of the court of appeals, outside of their respective appellate districts; such expenses to be paid from the state treasury upon warrant of the auditor of state, issued upon the certificate of the chief justice or the judge making the assignment. There is no limit upon the amount of expense allowance of this character which such judges may receive. Therefore, looking at both sections together, I can answer your first question by saying that there is no all-inclusive limitation upon the amount of actual and necessary expenses to which judges of the courts of appeals are annually entitled; but that the $300.00 limitation of section 2253, G. C., applies only to expenses of the first class.

The second part of your third question is answered generally in the negative.

Your second question is based principally upon my opinion of recent date respecting the salaries and expenses of common pleas judges, in which I held among other things, that judges elected prior to June 8, 1914, are entitled under the law becoming effective on that date, to expenses incurred while holding court in their districts, in an aggregate amount not to exceed $150.00 per year, as provided by original section 2253, G. C., adopted by reference in section 2252-2, G. C., as enacted 104 O. L., 251; although section 2253, as amended in 1913 had increased the limit provided by the original section to $300.00 in any one year. That is to say, I hold that as to judges elected prior to June 8, 1914, the limit on the amount of expenses payable annually from the state treasury had been raised in 1913 and lowered again in 1914.

I interpret your second question as general, rather than as particular in scope, and considering it as such, answer it as follows:

All expenses of the common pleas judge elected prior to June 8, 1914, incurred since the beginning of the official year in which that date fell, and prior to that date, are to be paid out of the state treasury provided they do not exceed in the aggregate $300.00. If on June 8, 1914, the amount of such expenses incurred during the official year in which that date fell was equal to, or in excess of, $150.00, then such judge was not entitled to reimbursement for any expenses thereafter incurred while holding court in a county within his district other than that in which he resided. If such amount was less than $150.00, then the expenses subsequently incurred during the official year would be limited to $150.00 for the whole year.

In other words, I do not think that the change in the law had the effect of imposing what would be termed a pro rata limit on the expenses for the entire year. The situation is rather the precise reverse of what it was in 1913, when the limit was increased, and although the result might in conceivable cases be such as to allow some judges more than $150.00 in the official year in which June 8, 1914, fell, and to limit other judges to that sum by way of reimbursement for such expenses, this result in my opinion cannot be avoided.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SUPERINTENDENT OF CEMETERIES—CITY—SUSPENSION AS AFFECTING RIGHT OF SALARY—CIVIL SERVICE.

The superintendent of cemeteries of a city suspended by the director of public service having been suspended pending determination of charges of misconduct, and not as a disciplinary measure, and thereafter having been restored to office by the director, is entitled to receive his salary for the time he was so suspended.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 16, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of March 24, 1915, you requested my written opinion upon the following proposition, to wit:

> "The superintendent of cemeteries was suspended by order of the director of service pending investigation by the civil service commission, said commission reinstating the superintendent. Is said superintendent entitled to the regular salary fixed by ordinance during the time he was under suspension?"

You enclose a letter of the director of public service of the city of Cambridge, which together with a supplemental statement from said director of public service furnish the following facts and details in addition to your statement, to wit:

On the first of March the superintendent of cemeteries of the city of Cambridge, Ohio, was suspended by order of the director of public service, pursuant to charges of fraud and bad faith and misconduct in office, preferred by an investigating committee.

Subsequent to the suspension aforesaid the civil service commission held a hearing on said charges and declined to sustain same, but recommended the reinstatement of the superintendent, which was accordingly done on the 20th of March. It appears that the salary has not been paid for the time such superintendent was so suspended, his compensation being a monthly salary.

The order of suspension was in the following form:

> "H. T. Hall is this day suspended from the service of the city of Cambridge, Ohio, as superintendent of cemeteries, for the following reasons, to wit:
>
> "Upon the investigation of the cutting of certain trees in Northwood cemetery, I have learned that there was an agreement between superintendent H. T. Hall and his assistant, Ross Gibson, that Gibson was to act as the purchaser and secretly divide the lumber with superintendent Hall. That Hall fraudulently deceived the director of public service as to the value and amount of the lumber cut from these trees. That Hall authorized and permitted the cutting of one ash tree without authority or the knowledge of the director of public service, and delivered the same as part payment of his saw bill for the sawing of the other lumber.
> "[Signed] DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SERVICE."

A copy of said order and reasons was filed with the civil service commission. Section 4162, General Code, of the chapter entitled "cemeteries" provides:

> "The director shall direct all improvements and embellishments of the ground and lots, protect and preserve them, and subject to the approval of the council appoint necessary superintendents, employes and agents, determine their term of office and the amount of their compensation."

Under the civil service law, 103 O. L., 698, the office of superintendent of cemeteries of a city would fall within the classified service, as defined by section 8 of said act.

Section 2 of the civil service act (G. C., section 486-2), provides in part:

"On and after January 1, 1914, no person shall be appointed, removed, transferred, laid off, suspended, reinstated, promoted, or reduced as an officer or employe in the civil service under the government of this state, the counties, cities and city school districts thereof, in any manner or by any means other than those prescribed in this act."

Section 17 of the civil service act (G. C., 486-17), provides:

"No person shall be discharged from the classified service, reduced in pay or position, laid off, suspended or otherwise discriminated against by the appointing officer for religious or political reasons. In all cases of discharge, layoff, reduction or suspension of a subordinate, whether appointed for a definite term or otherwise, the appointing officer shall furnish the subordinate discharged, laid off, reduced or suspended, with a copy of the order of discharge, layoff, reduction or suspension and his reasons for the same, and give such subordinate a reasonable time in which to make and file an explanation. Such order together with the explanation, if any, of the subordinate, shall be filed with the commission.

"Nothing in this act shall limit the power of an officer to suspend without pay, for the purposes of discipline, a subordinate for a reasonable period not exceeding thirty days: provided, however, that successive suspensions shall not be allowed."

Obviously, a distinction is made in the statute between a suspension as a disciplinary measure, limited as to time not to exceed thirty days and in which case a suspension of salary may be imposed, and suspension on the other hand looking to the final dismissal and elimination of the officer from the service.

The order of suspension under consideration does not impart any of the conditions specified in the statute as distinguishing a suspension for discipline.

The conditions upon which a suspension of salary may be imposed, being specified in the statute, it would seem to be exclusive, and being of the opinion that the order of suspension, neither in its terms nor as intended and contemplated by the director of public service, falls within the proviso of section 17 of the civil service act, it may not now be converted by construction into such disciplinary measure, but must be considered as a measure, in its effect, merely holding in a state of indecision or indetermination the right of the officer to further exercise and enjoy the privileges and emoluments of the office pending a final determination of charges preferred.

Without discussing or determining the force of the considerations leading to the restoration of the superintendent to the exercise of his office, or the jurisdiction and authority of the civil service commission in relation thereto, the operative fact remains that the superintendent of cemeteries has been restored to office by the order of the director of public service.

The order of restoration must be taken as a determination by the director that the suspension was without sufficient cause, and this together with the fact that the council of the city did not concur in the action of the director, determines that, in contemplation of law, the superintendent of cemeteries was never out of the service of the city. His separation from the service, not coming within the authority of the proviso as a disciplinary measure, therefore, was wrongful, and I am of the opinion that the superintendent is entitled to draw his salary for the period during which he was so under the order of suspension.

Answering your questions specifically: I advise that the superintendent of cemeteries will be entitled to draw his salary for the period elapsing from the date of his suspension to the date of his restoration.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—LITERATURE EXPENSES—HOW PAID.

Literature may be printed as part of exhibits authorized by law for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, and not necessarily ordered through the supervisor of public printing. Expense of such printing must be paid from specific appropriations for such exhibits.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 17, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, Governor of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

MY DEAR SIR:—You ask me:

First. If literature in pamphlet form or otherwise may be edited, printed and published, and the expense incurred thereby paid from the appropriations made by the legislature for the various exhibits authorized to be made by the state of Ohio at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to be held in the city of San Francisco, in the year 1915.

Second. Is such printing, if authorized, to be ordered through the supervisor of public printing and executed under his supervision.

Third. May the expense of such printing, if authorized and done, be paid from funds appropriated to the supervisor of public printing.

Replying to your enquiries in the order of their presentment, I beg to advise that on May 31, 1911, the legislature passed an act, by the terms of which the governor of Ohio was appointed commissioner, to be known as the "Panama-Pacific International Exposition Commissioner," for the purpose of installing, maintaining and exhibiting the products and resources of the state of Ohio at an international exposition to be held in San Francisco, in the year 1915, known as the "Panama-Pacific International Exposition."

On February 28, 1914, the legislature passed an act conferring additional powers upon the governor with reference to making such exhibits, in addition to appropriating "from any moneys in the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund and not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, for the purpose of erecting a state building to house and exhibit the state products, of securing complete and creditable display of the interests of the state at such international exposition", etc.

On February 26, 1914, the general assembly passed an act to make sundry appropriations, in which is contained the following item:

"Exposition commissioner, for the purpose of installing, maintaining and exhibiting live stock, agricultural products, resources and opportunities of this state at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, in San Francisco in the year 1915, $25,000.00."

It is apparent that the legislature intended that the governor, as such exposition commissioner, should cause to be exhibited at such exposition a proper representative exhibit of the products and resources of this state at such exposition. Because of the diversity of Ohio's products and the richness of the resources and opportunities which the state affords, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to make such exhibits and advisements relating thereto without resorting to the use of placards, pamphlets and publications descriptive thereof.

In my opinion such publications would be necessary and convenient incidents to the making of such exhibits and promulgating the resources of the state and may be done to such extent as in the sound discretion of the governor, as such exposition commissioner, he may authorize and approve.

In answer to your second enquiry I beg to say that owing to the character of the printing that may be required, the distance of the location of the exposition and the exhibits to be made from Ohio, and the language used by the legislature in these several enactments, conferring extraordinary power upon the governor, as such commissioner, I am of the opinion that in this particular instance the printing that may be done is not necessarily subject to be ordered through the supervisor of public printing and executed under his supervision.

In answer to your third enquiry, I beg to advise that Ohio's exhibit at this exposition is to be made by reason of authority especially conferred and with money appropriated for that exclusive purpose by the legislature. It therefore follows that all expense incurred under this authority, either directly or indirectly, must be paid from such funds so appropriated, exclusive of all other appropriations.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—HAS AUTHORITY UNDER PROVISIONS OF SECTION 5656, G. C., TO FUND INDEBTEDNESS CONSISTING OF UNPAID TEACHERS' AND JANITORS' SALARIES, BUT NOT FOR CONTINGENT EXPENSES.

The board of education of a school district has authority under the provisions of sections 5656, et seq., G. C., to fund indebtedness consisting of unpaid salaries of the teachers and janitors of the schools of such districts.

The board of education of a school district does not have authority, under the provisions of sections 5656, et seq., G. C., to fund indebtedness consisting of unpaid bills for contingent expenses.

COLUMBUS OHIO, April 17, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of March 26th, which is as follows:

"Several city solicitors and members of boards of education have submitted to this department requests for an opinion as to the authority of boards of education issuing bonds under section 5656 of the General Code, to fund indebtedness caused by a lack of funds (1) to pay the salaries of the teachers and janitors of their schools, and (2) to pay the current contingent expenses after such indebtedness has been incurred. We therefore ask your interpretation of the authority given in section 5656 toward the payment of (1) teachers' and janitors' salaries, and (2) contingent expenses."

Your question as to the authority of the board of education of a school district to issue bonds under the provisions of section 5656 et seq. of the General Code, to fund indebtedness consisting of unpaid salaries to teachers, is answered in opinion No. 178 of this department rendered to Honorable Perry Smith, prosecuting attorney of Muskingum county, under date of March 27, 1915. A copy of this opinion is enclosed.

This opinion holds that the board of education of a school district may, under the authority of section 5661, G. C., contract with its teachers without the presence of money in the treasury sufficient to pay the salaries of said teachers, and that the unpaid salaries of its teachers, therefore, constitute a valid indebtedness of the district, which may be funded by the issuance of notes or bonds under favor of section 5656, G. C., and related sections referred to in said opinion.

Section 5661, G. C., provides:

"All contracts, agreements or obligations, and orders or resolutions entered into or passed contrary to the provisions of the next preceding section, shall be void, but such section shall not apply to the contracts authorized to be made by other provisions of law for the employment of teachers, officers, and other school employes of boards of education."

The provision "other school employes of boards of education" includes janitors of school buildings, and the reasons given and authorities cited in the above opinion apply, therefore, to the salaries of janitors as well as to the salaries of teachers of the school district.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that the board of education of a school district has authority under the provisions of section 5656 et seq. of the General Code, to fund indebtedness consisting of unpaid salaries of the janitors of its schools.

Under the above provision of section 5661, G. C., contracts for the employment of teachers, officers and other school employes are excepted from the provisions of section 5660, G. C.

Section 5660, G. C., provides:

"The commissioners of a county, the trustees of a township and the board of education of a school district, shall not enter into any contract, agreement, or obligation involving the expenditure of money, or pass any resolution or order for the appropriation or expenditure of money, unless the auditor or clerk thereof, respectively, first certifies that the money required for the payment of such obligation or appropriation is in the treasury to the credit of the fund from which it is to be drawn, or has been levied and placed on the duplicate, and in process of collection and not appropriated for any other purpose; money to be derived from lawfully authorized bonds sold and in process of delivery shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed in the treasury and in the appropriate fund. Such certificate shall be filed and forthwith recorded, and the sums so certified shall not thereafter be considered unappropriated until the county, township or board of education is fully discharged from the contract, agreement or obligation, or as long as the order or resolution is in force."

Inasmuch as indebtedness, consisting of unpaid bills for contingent expenses, does not come within the exceptions to the provision of section 5660, G. C., as provided in section 5661, G. C., I am of the opinion that the board of education of a school district does not have authority under the provisions of section 5656 et seq. of the General Code, to fund such indebtedness by the issue of notes or bonds.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE SUPERVISOR AND INSPECTOR OF ELECTIONS—COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—MAY MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS FOR APPOINTMENT OF DEPUTY STATE INSPECTOR OF ELECTIONS—TIME—PRIOR TO NOVEMBER ELECTION FOR STATE OFFICERS.

A county executive committee which represents a party from which the law requires such appointment to be made at the time of the appointment, may make recommendation to the state supervisor and inspector of elections of a person for appointment as deputy state supervisor and inspector of elections, prior to the November election for state officers next preceding the time such appointment is required to be made.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 17, 1915.

HON. CHAS. Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of April 15, 1915, you submit for an opinion the following question:

"May a county central committee or a county executive committee legally recommend, on August 22, 1914, a person for appointment as a deputy state supervisor and inspector of elections for a term beginning May 1, 1915?"

This inquiry involves a consideration of the statutes relative thereto, as follows:

Section 4789, G. C. "On or before the first day of May, biennially, the state supervisor and inspector of elections shall appoint for each such county two members of the board of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections, who shall each serve for a term of four years from such first day of May. One member so appointed shall be from the political party which cast the highest number of votes at the last preceding November election for governor, and the other member shall be appointed from the political party which cast the next highest number of votes for such officer at such election."

Section 4790, G. C. "If the executive committees of the two political parties in the county, casting the highest and next highest number of votes in the state at the last preceding November election for state officers, recommend qualified persons to the state supervisor and inspector at least five days before the first day of May the state supervisor and inspector shall appoint the persons so recommended to the number of which such party is entitled. If no such recommendation is made, the state supervisor and inspector shall make the appointments as provided in this chapter."

It will be observed that the statute authorizes recommendations to be made only by executive committees, and that by section 4961, G. C., each county central committee is required to elect an executive committee. The central committee may constitute such executive committee if it so determines, and for the purposes of the present inquiry, it is assumed that the central committee had determined to constitute itself the executive committee of the county.

The matter here under consideration is much simplified by holding, as I do, that the question here presented is to be determined by the state supervisor and inspector of elections, when such appointments are by him to be made. In other words, the question becomes material only at the time when such appointments are by virtue of law to be made, and the provisions of the statutes above quoted are referable to that date. That is to say, the last sentence of section 4789, G. C., as above quoted, is clearly applicable to the state supervisor and inspector of elections only.

By the operation of section 4790, G. C., the state supervisor and inspector of elections is restrained from making appointment for the term beginning May 1st until within five days prior thereto, and when he comes to make such appointment, the question which confronts him, the answer to which solves the question here submitted, is this: Is there then before the state supervisor and inspector of elections the recommendation of a qualified person for appointment for deputy state supervisor and inspector of elections, made by the executive committee of the county for which such appointment is required to be made, then representing the party which is under the law entitled to such officer and which was filed at least five days prior to the first day of May?

In determining which two parties are entitled to the officer so required to be appointed, whose term begins on the first day of May biennially, the state supervisor and inspector of elections must refer to the vote for governor at the lastpreceding November election at which a governor was elected, or, which is otherwise phrased in section 4789, G. C., to the highest and next highest number of votes cast in the state at the last preceding election for state officers, and this, of course, has no other meaning than the election for state officers next preceding the first day of May on which such term will begin.

It being determined which political parties are entitled to the appointment by the above rule, the state supervisor and inspector of elections is next to determine whether or not there is before him a recommendation of a qualified person for such office made by the executive committee then representing the party, from which such appointment is by law required to be made. If the state supervisor and inspector of elections finds filed with him, at least five days prior to May 1, 1915, the recommendation of a qualified person for the office of deputy state supervisor and inspector of elections for any county in which such officer is then required to be appointed, which recommendation was made by the same executive committee that then represents the party from which such appointment is required to be made, it is mandatory upon such state supervisor and inspector of elections to appoint the person so recommended.

It may be observed that if an executive committee of any party should choose to make a recommendation prior to a November election of state officers next preceding the date of such appointment, and from the result of such election it developed that the party represented by that committee cast neither the highest or next highest number of votes for governor, such recommendation would not be recognized or considered by the appointing officer. On the other hand, if the same committee which represents a party entitled to such appointment at the time the same is made, has chosen to make its recommendation prior to an election, the result of which entitles such party to the appointment, no provision of law or reason would require such committee to make a re-recommendation.

I therefore, for the reasons above stated, answer your question in the affirmative.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES COMPATIBLE—DISTRICT ASSESSOR OR DEPUTY DISTRICT ASSESSOR AND MEMBER OF COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The offices of district assessor or deputy district assessor and member of county board of education are not incompatible.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 19, 1915.

HON. TOM S. MADDOX, Prosecuting Attorney, Washington C. H., Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge the receipt of your request for an opinion upon the following question:

> "Are the offices of an assessor and member of the county board of education compatible?"

It may be noted that section 5617, G. C. (103 O. L., 796), provides:

> "A district assessor, deputy assessor, member of a district board of complaints or any assistant, clerk or other employe of a district assessor or district board of complaints shall not, during his term of office or period of service or employment, as fixed by law or prescribed by the tax commission of Ohio, hold any office of profit, except offices in the state militia and the office of notary public."

So that no person holding any office within the terms of this statute could be lawfully appointed to or hold the office or position of district assessor, deputy district assessor, member of district board of complaints, clerk or other employe of a district assessor or district board of complaints. This inhibition, however, is confined by specific terms to offices of profit. From this it clearly follows that an office, to come within the provisions of this statute, must yield to the incumbent thereof some profit. He must of necessity be under the law entitled to receive some such salary, remuneration, fees or compensation by reason of such incumbency as might fairly be termed profit.

Members of county boards of education may be paid only actual and necessary expenses incurred during attendance upon meetings of the board under the provisions of section 4734, G. C. (104 O. L., 137), as follows:

> "Each member of the county board of education shall be paid his actual and necessary expenses incurred during his attendance upon any meeting of the board. Such expenses, and the expenses of the county superintendent, itemized and certified, shall be paid from the county board of education fund upon vouchers signed by the president of the board," and are therefore not within the inhibition of section 5617, G. C., above quoted.

In the absence of constitutional or statutory inhibition, the same person may hold two or more offices unless they are in law incompatible and the compatibility of public offices is dependent upon the nature and character of the duties necessary to proper exercise of the powers and functions of such offices.

The rule as to incompatibility of public offices at common law is stated in Throop on public offices, section 33, as follows:

> "Offices are said to be incompatible and inconsistent, so as not to be executed by the same person, when from the multiplicity of business in them they cannot be executed with care and ability, or when, there being subordinate and interfering with each other, it induces a presumption that they cannot be executed with impartiality and honesty."

And in Dillon on Municipal Corporations (section 166, note) it is said that

> "incompatibility in offices exists, where the nature and duty of the two offices are such as to render improper, from considerations of public policy, for one incumbent to retain both."

And in State v. Gebert, 12 C. C. (n.s.), 275, the court says:

> "Offices are considered incompatible when one is subordinate to, or in any way a check upon the other, or when it is physically impossible for one person to discharge the duties of both."

The duties of the district assessors and deputy district assessors, as defined by house bill No. 571, known as the Warnes law, sections 5579 to 5624-20, G. C. (103 O. L., 786), are confined to the valuation and listing of property for taxation, while the powers and duties of members of county boards of education, as prescribed in house bill No. 13, 104 O. L., 133, relate to the administration of public schools.

It does not appear that the duties of one of these offices are in any way in conflict with those of the other, that one office is in any way a curb upon or subordinate to the other, nor that it would be physically impracticable for the same person to fully and efficiently discharge the duties of both at the same time.

I am therefore of the opinion that the office of assessor (whether district assessor or deputy district assessor be referred to) and member of the county board of education are not incompatible.

It may be observed, however, that, in some instances, members of the county board of education are at the same time members of rural boards of education, and that by reason of the provisions of section 5617, G. C. (103 O. L., 796), and section 4715 G. C. (104 O. L., 135), a person may not be at the same time a member of a rural board of education and a district or deputy district assessor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—CONTRACTS—NO AUTHORITY FOR BONUS PROVISION IN A CONTRACT—LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—MAY BE PROVIDED IN CONTRACT IF CONTRACTOR FAILS TO COMPLY WITH TIME LIMIT SPECIFIED.

There is no authority in law for the incorporation of a bonus provision by a board of county commissioners in any contract made by such board, and where, as the result of such a provision, money has been paid out of the county treasury, a finding should be made against the contractor for the amount so paid.

A board of county commissioners may provide in a contract that for each day's delay in the performance of the contract, after the time specified therein for its completion, for which the contractor is responsible, said contractor shall forfeit a reasonable sum to be fixed by the terms of the contract and agreed upon by the parties to said contract as liquidated damages accruing to the county because of such failure to perform, and to be withheld by the board of county commissioners from any payments due or to become due said contractor upon the proper completion of said contract.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 19, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of March 10, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

"We respectfully ask your written opinion upon the following matter:

"One of our examiners reports that in a certain county the commissioners entered into an agreement with a firm to make the quadrennial tax maps, we presume as provided by section 5549, General Code. The contract or agreement was entered into March 20, 1913, and the work was to be completed by January 1, 1914, for a total sum of $12,800.00. The agreement further provided that the firm should forfeit $20.00 per day for each day's delay after January 1, 1914, and also that the firm should be allowed a bonus of $20.00 per day for each and every working day said maps were completed prior to January 1, 1914. The work was completed forty-six (46) days prior to January 1, 1914, and the commissioners allowed the firm the sum of $13,720.00, the aggregate of the bonus, as will be seen, amounting to the sum of $920.00.

"QUESTION: Did the county commissioners have any legal authority to make such a contract or agreement?

"Are the commissioners legally empowered to incorporate bonus, or forfeiture, provisions in any contract made by them under the laws governing their actions? If not, what findings should our examiners make under circumstances like those stated above?

"Section 4330, General Code, seems to indicate that this may be done in municipal affairs, but we fail to find any laws under which the county commissioners can do this."

There is no provision of the statutes authorizing the allowance of a bonus by a board of county commissioners in any contract made by such board.

The objection to such a provision in the particular contract to which you call my attention is apparent for the reason that the contracting firm, by increasing its working force, could have furnished the quadrennial maps in less time, and the bonus would have been correspondingly greater, while no additional advantage or benefit could result to the county in having said maps furnished prior to the day specified in said contract for the completion of the work.

The contract, above referred to, was made by the county commissioners under authority of section 5549, G. C., which provided for competitive bids and for the letting of a contract for furnishing the quadrennial maps to the lowest and best bidder, if it was to the interest of the county to do so.

The allowance of a bonus of $20.00 per day for each day the work was completed prior to the time specified in said contract was contrary to the plain purpose of the statute in having the work done at the least possible expense to the county. Such an allowance was without authority in law, is opposed to public policy, and the bonus allowed by the county commissioners and paid to the contracting firm should be returned to the county treasury.

On the question of the validity of a forfeiture provision in a contract made by a board of county commissioners, permit me to say there is no statute authorizing the incorporation of such a provision in said contract.

While section 2331, G. C., provides:

> "All contracts under the provisions of this chapter (relating to building regulations) shall contain provision in regard to the time when the whole or any specified portion of work contemplated therein shall be completed, and that for each and every day it shall be delayed beyond the time so named the contractor shall forfeit and pay to the state a sum to be fixed in the contract, which shall be deducted from any payment or payments due or to become due the contractor," this provision applies to contracts for the construction of state buildings and does not apply to a contract made by a board of county commissioners for the construction of a county building.

The question arises—Can a board of county commissioners, in the absence of express statutory authority, lawfully provide for the forfeiture of a definite sum by the contractor, in case the contract is not completed at the time specified therein and the contractor is responsible for the delay?

The necessity of such a provision in contracts made by boards of county commissioners seems clear. It is the duty of the board of county commissioners of a county to require prompt performance of such contracts, and the incorporating of a provision that for each day's delay in the completion of the performance of the contract after the time specified therein, for which the contractor is responsible, said contractor shall forfeit a reasonable sum to be fixed by the terms of the contract and agreed upon by the parties thereto as liquidated damages accruing to the county because of such failure, and to be withheld by the board of county commissioners from any payment or payments due or to become due said contractor upon the completion of said contract to the satisfaction of said board of county commissioners—tends to make such requirement effective and cause the contractor to be diligent in the performance of the contract.

I think the general authority of the board of county commissioners to make a contract carries with it the implied authority to incorporate such a provision in said contract.

While the validity of such a provision in a contract made by a board of county commissioners has not been passed upon by any court, I am of the opinion that the rule of law applicable to such a provision in a private contract applies with equal force to a contract made by a board of county commissioners.

The rule of law governing a provision for liquidated damages for the breach of a private contract is laid down by the supreme court of Ohio in the case of Doan v. Rogan, 79 O. S., 372. The second branch of the syllabus provides as follows:

"Whether a stipulation providing for liquidated damages for the breach of a contract is to be construed as liquidated damages or as a penalty, depends upon the intention of the parties to be gathered from the entire instrument. While courts will not construe contracts in a way authorizing recovery for liquidated damages simply because the parties have used that term in the agreement, yet, where parties to a contract otherwise valid have in terms provided that the damages of the injured party by a breach on the part of the other of some particular stipulation, or for a total breach, shall be a certain sum specified as liquidated damages, and it is apparent that damages from such breach would be uncertain as to amount and difficult of proof, and the contract taken as a whole is not so manifestly unreasonable and disproportionate as to justify the conclusion that it does not truly express the intention of the parties, but is consistent with the conclusion that it was their intention that damages in the amount stated should follow such breach, courts should give effect to the will of the parties as so expressed and enforce that part of the agreement the same as any other."

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that there is no authority in law for the incorporation of a bonus provision by a board of county commissioners in any contract made by such board, and where, as the result of such a provision, money has been paid out of the county treasury, a finding should be made against the contractor for the amount so paid.

On the other hand, I am of the opinion that a board of county commissioners may provide in a contract that for each day's delay in the performance of the contract, after the time specified therein for its completion, for which the contractor is responsible said contractor shall forfeit a reasonable sum to be fixed by the terms of the contract and agreed upon by the parties to said contract as liquidated damages accruing to the county, because of such failure to perform, and to be withheld by the board of county commissioners from any payment or payments due or to become due said contractor upon the proper completion of said contract.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TAX LIMITATIONS—DO NOT APPLY WHEN QUESTION OF BOND ISSUE IS SUBMITTED TO ELECTORS—ON CONTRARY, LIMITATIONS DO APPLY AFTER FAVORABLE VOTE OF ELECTORS AND MAY PREVENT THEIR ISSUANCE—EFFECT OF RABE CASE LIMITED BY AMENDMENT OF 1914.

The tax limitations do not operate as debt limitations in the manner defined in Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403, nor under article XII, section 11, of the constitution, when a board of education, under section 7625, G. C., merely determines to submit the question of the issuance of bonds in a given amount to a vote of the electors. Such limitations apply, however, when after a favorable vote the board proceeds to issue the bonds, and prevent their issuance, unless within the period for which the bonds are to run sufficient interest and sinking fund levies can be made within the tax limitations.

Even in such case the principles referred to have a limited application because of the fact that the bonds are issued by a vote of the people and because of the amendment to section 5649-1, G. C. (104 O. L., 12.)

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 19, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a letter under date of April 5, 1915, fro n Hon. Harry W. Koons, city solicitor of Mt. Vernon, in which he requests my advice as to the effect of the decision in Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403, upon the powers of the board of education under section 7625 et seq. of the General Code, and particularly with respect to the form of the resolution calling the election under section 7625.

The matter is of such importance that I have deemed it proper to address an opinion to the bureau in the premises.

I am of the opinion that nothing in the decision referred to or in article XII, section 11 of the constitution, materially affects the action of the board of education under section 7625 in merely fixing the date of an election and estimating the amount of money required for any of the purposes therein referred to. It is only when, after a favorable vote, the board of education comes to the passage of the resolution provided by section 7626, General Code, and must determine the length of time bonds should run that the effect of the principles embodied in the decision and in the constitutional provision is exerted. When the bonds have been authorized they may not be issued unless they are spread over a sufficient number of years to enable the district, within the limitations allowed by law, to provide for the interest and sinking fund requirements thereof in the manner required by the constitution.

So far as the Rabe case itself is concerned, its effect is somewhat mitigated at least by the subsequent amendment of section 5649-1 (104 O. L., 12). That is, it is no longer strictly true that interest and sinking fund issues must be postponed to current expenses. Of course, practically, the necessity of providing for current expenses first, still exists and should be borne in mind when the bonds are issued.

Moreover, the Rabe case concerned the issuance of bonds without a vote of the people. Interest and sinking fund levies for the retirement of bonds like those about which Mr. Koons inquires, would be met by levies outside of the limitations applicable to current expense levies. Insofar, however, as the operation of the combined maximum rate limitations of fifteen mills provided by law might, in a given case, tend to limit available interest and sinking fund levies, the principles which Mr. Koons has in mind and to which I have referred to would apply.

Repeating my specific conclusion with respect to the question submitted I am of the opinion that a board of education is in no wise limited by considerations arising out of tax limitations and the necessity of making sinking fund and interest levies when the question of issuing bonds for school improvement purposes is submitted to the electors under section 7625; but that such practical limitations do operate upon the powers of the board of education when it comes to issue the bonds under section 7626 of the General Code.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—CANNOT DISSOLVE RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT AND JOIN IT WITH CONTIGUOUS RURAL OR VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT—ELECTION FAVORABLE TO DISSOLUTION AND REORGANIZATION OF RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT MUST FIRST BE HELD.

The board of education of a county school district has no authority under the provisions of sections 4735 and 4736, G. C., as amended 104 O. L., 138, to dissolve a rural school district and join it with a contiguous rural or village school district, within said county district. An election for this purpose must be held under authority of section 4735-1 and 4735-2, G. C., as found in 104 O. L., 138, resulting in a vote favorable to the dissolution of such rural school district and to its union with the contiguous rural or village school district, before the question of centralization can be submitted to the electors of the rural or village school district resulting from such union.

The provisions of section 4726, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 139, apply only to the schools of a school district, now known as a rural school district, under the provision of section 4735, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 138.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 19, 1915.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS, Prosecuting Attorney, Elyria, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of March 25, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

> "In Columbia township, Lorain county, are three school districts, two special districts organized under the old statute, by application to the probate court, etc., and one township district consisting of the remainder of the township after the organization of the special districts, all rural districts under present section 4735.
> "Recently an election was held in said township in which one of the special districts and the former township districts participated, the question being the centralization of the schools under section 4726. The proposition carried, and upon applying to me for advice in reference to the details of centralization, it occurs to me that if as stated in 4735, "present existing township and special school districts constitute rural school districts" no election under 4728 could be held upon the question of the centralization of the schools of the former township and special district, but that before such election could be held, one of the districts must be dissolved and joined to the other.
> "I would like your opinion upon the following questions:
> "First. Has the county board of education authority under sections 4735 and 4736 to change the boundary line of these districts, to the end that one district shall exist, without a vote upon the question under 4735-1, or must action under 4735-1 or 4741, General Code, by the former special district, be taken to consolidate before election to centralize can be held?

"Second. Am I right in assuming that the question of centralization, according to 4726, comprehends only the centralization of schools within a district now designated as a rural district?"

The first part of your question is answered in opinion 183 of this department, rendered to Hon. Clark Good, prosecuting attorney of Van Wert county, under date of March 29, 1915, a copy of which is herewith enclosed. This opinion holds that it is necessary, to dissolve a school district, formerly known as a special school district, now known as a rural school district, under the provision of section 4735, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 138, and to join it to a contiguous rural or village school district, that there be an election held for that purpose, under the provisions of sections 4735-1 and 4735-2 of the General Code, as found in 104 O. L., 138, resulting in a majority vote of the electors of such district in favor thereof.

It follows, that this election, resulting in a vote favorable to such dissolution and union with a contiguous rural school district, must be held in either the special school district, or the township rural school district, referred to in your inquiry, before the question of centralization can be submitted to the electors of the rural school district of the township, as consolidated with said special school district within said township.

The authority of the board of education of a rural school district to submit the question of centralization to a vote of the qualified electors of such district is found in section 4726, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., page 139. This section, as amended provides:

"A rural board of education may submit the question of centralization, and, upon the petition of not less than one-fourth of the qualified electors of such rural district, or upon the order of the county board of education, must submit such question to the vote of the qualified electors of such rural district at a general election or a special election called for that purpose. If more votes are cast in favor of centralization than against it, at such election, such rural board of education shall proceed at once to the centralization of the schools of the rural district, and, if necessary, purchase a site or sites and erect a suitable building or buildings thereon. If, at such election, more votes are cast against the proposition of centralization than for it, the question shall not be again submitted to the electors of such rural district for a period of two years, except upon the petition of at least forty per cent. of the electors of such district."

Replying to your second question, I am of the opinion that the above provisions of section 4726, General Code, as amended, apply only to the schools of a district, now known as a rural school district, under the provision of section 4735, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 138.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TAX LISTING DAY—AGREEMENT ENTERED INTO PRIOR TO TAX LISTING DAY PURPORTING TO PROVIDE FOR LEASE OF CERTAIN REAL ESTATE FOR TERM COMMENCING AFTER TAX LISTING DAY IS NOT SUCH INTEREST IN LESSOR AS TO BE TAXABLE—SUCH TAXES SHOULD BE REFUNDED—TAX COMMISSION—HAS NO JURISDICTION OVER COMPLAINT FILED IN 1915 ABOUT REAL ESTATE VALUATION MADE IN 1910.

An agreement entered into prior to tax listing day, purporting to provide for the lease of certain real estate for a term to commence after tax listing day, in consideration of which the lessee promises to pay, on the first day of the term, a certain sum, and on a subsequent date a certain other sum, with interest from the first day of the term, the lessor agreeing to convey property on demand to the lessee for a further payment in addition to the two payments called "rents" does not create in the lessor any taxable interest existing on tax listing day; and an assessment so made should be corrected, if taxes have been paid thereon (unless voluntarily) they should be refunded under section 2589, G. C.

The tax commission of Ohio has not jurisdiction to entertain a complaint filed in the year 1915 respecting a valuation of real estate made by the quadrennial appraisers in the year 1910.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 19, 1915.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You have submitted to me the papers and correspondence in two matters which are pending before the commission and requested my advice upon the questions presented thereby, which are as follows:

"(1) An instrument styled 'Lease with option to purchase' provides that the lessee shall have and hold the premises to which it relates for a period of ten years; and that he shall pay to the lessor $5,000 on the first day of the leasehold and $5,000 five years later, with interest at five per cent. per annum, payable annually on the anniversary of the commencement of the estate. The lessor agrees that he will at any time during the continuance of the lease, and not later than the expiration of a period of ten years, convey the premises to the lessee for the sum of $17,000 in cash, with interest from the commencement of the leasehold estate until paid, said sum of $17,000 to be in addition to the principal sum of $10,000, which is referred to as 'rental.' The lessee is to pay the taxes.

"The lease was executed October 28, 1913, but was to be effective on March 1, 1914, on which date the estate was to begin and the initial payment of $5,000 was to be made. In fact, the term of the lease is described as being 'ten years next ensuing from the first day of March, 1914,' while the first payment was to be made 'on the first day of March, 1914.'

"At tax listing time on February, 1914, the district assessor for the proper county, considered the interest of the lessor, arising under the instrument above described, as his 'credits,' and valued the same at $20,000.

"Is the lessor's interest taxable as a credit and, if so, what is its value?

"What is the remedy of the taxpayer in the event his interest is not taxable, or in the event that it has been over-valued?

"(2) A complaint was filed March 18, 1915, with the tax commission against the valuation of real estate made by the quadrennial appraisers in the year 1910. The original valuation of the land in question was complained of to the board of review of the city in which it is located and a reduction thereon was made by said board in the year 1911.

"Has the commission jurisdiction to entertain the complaint and to afford any relief that may be proper in the premises?"

In February, 1914, the lessor had no absolute rights under the lease above described. Unless the lessee took possession of the land under the lease he would not be obliged to pay the $5,000 initial payment, which may be regarded as rent in advance for a period of five years. If the lessee had refused on March 1st to take possession of the land and abandoned the lease, the lessor would have a right of action, but the action would have been for damages for breach of contract. He could not have sued as upon an absolute promise to pay either $5,000 or $10,000.

As to the option of purchase, I can discover nothing in the terms of the lease which would give to this feature of it any effect other than that which the same purports. The effect of the whole instrument is not that of sale, creating the right of absolute demand for purchase money; but if it had been there would have been no credit due or to become due in February, 1914, for at that time the strongest effect which could have been given to the relation of the parties was to regard the lease as a contract to sell and not as a sale.

I therefore conclude that the interest of the lessor under the lease above described, as it existed in February, 1914,was not a credit: that is, a legal claim or demand due or to become due.

Of course, the interest of the lessor does not come under any of the other classes of subjects of property taxation.

Therefore, I am of the opinion that the assessment made by the district assessor in 1914 was erroneous.

I note from the papers submitted that the taxes in question have been paid. If they were voluntarily paid under a mere mistake of law and without any compulsion on the part of the taxing authorities, either actual or constructive, there is at least grave doubt as to whether there is any authority of law for refunding them. (See State ex rel. v. Louis, 20 C. C., 319; Bridge Co. v. Commissioners, 9 Bull. 16.) The correspondence, however, seems to indicate that the taxpayer has at all times vigorously asserted his rights by such proceedings as were open to him without recourse to the courts. That being the case, it seems likely that his payment could not be regarded as voluntary, in which event the case is one for adjustment under section 2589, General Code, which provides in part as follows:

"Section 2589. * * * If at any time the auditor discovers that erroneous taxes or assessments have been charged and collected in previous years, he shall call the attention of the county commissioners thereto at a regular or special session of the board. If the commissioners find that taxes or assessments have been so erroneously charged and collected, they shall order the auditor to draw his warrant on the county treasurer in favor of the person paying them for the full amount of the taxes or assessments so erroneously charged and collected. The county treasurer shall pay such warrant from any surplus or unexpended funds in the county treasury."

I understand that the matter is now pending in the office of the district assessor, who writes to the tax commission for advice in the premises.

The proper procedure would be for the district assessor to call the attention of the auditor to the facts of the case, whereupon it would become the auditor's duty to lay such facts before the commissioners, and it would be the commissioners' duty to order a warrant drawn as provided in the above section.

In answering your second question, I beg to advise that at the present time the tax commission has no authority or power whatsoever to reduce the valuation of individual tracts of real property, save by way of appeal from a decision of a district board of complaints as provided in the Warnes law. The power which the commission formerly had in such cases existed under favor of sections 5617-2 and 5617-6 of the General Code (102 O. L., 224; sections 147 and 151, respectively), but these sections were expressly repealed by section 68 of the Warnes law (103 O. L., 803). The general provisions of section 26 of the General Code, would operate to save from the effect of such repeal, any pending proceeding or cause of proceeding; but it having been held in Standard Oil Co. v. Hopkins, 24 O. C. D., 170, that the powers of the commission were not available to an aggrieved taxpayer as a remedy of which he might avail himself as a matter of right, it follows that the section could not apply in a case like the one under discussion.

I am advised further by you that the controversy inquired about in your second question is involved in an action pending in the common pleas court of one of the counties of the state, which court, under the decision last above cited, has jurisdiction of the action without any appeal to the tax commission. It would seem that under such circumstances the commission should not attempt to exercise jurisdiction where its power to do so may be at all doubtful.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

> "I desire your opinion at the earliest date possible upon the following matters, for the reason that I have cases pending in this county involving the questions herein submitted, and they will be on trial very soon:
> "First: When a person has been indicted and the case is set for trial, but one or more material witnesses are not within the state of Ohio, but in the state of Pennsylvania, and it is very necessary to have these witnesses on the witness stand before the jury, and they are willing to come on the condition that they receive the usual allowance for witnesses and the usual mileage for witnesses, but on no other conditions. Under this state of facts, has the prosecuting attorney a right to request them to come and promise them the usual mileage for witnesses and the usual fees, and thereby obligate the county to pay same, provided such witness comes pursuant to such request? There is no argument but that they are without the jurisdiction of our court, and they cannot be served with subpoenas.

"Second: Or should this matter be first taken before the commissioners and have them to give the prosecutor the authority to make such an arrangement, or would the commissioners have any jurisdiction over it, even though they were inclined to grant the request?

"Third: Could the prosecuting attorney charge it up as part of his expense account, as provided in section 3004, G. C.?

"Fourth: Or if the same cannot be done as above suggested, how can it be done, or at all?

"Depositions probably could be taken, but you are fully aware of the fact that depositions are always unsatisfactory and it is much better to have the witnesses themselves before the court and the jury.

"Your full and complete reply to the foregoing at the very earliest date possible, in view of the fact that I, within a very few days, will be required, to resort to some means of getting evidence from foreign states, will be much appreciated."

If you will have the subpoenas issued and you mail them to the witnesses you may then have their attendance, and mileage from the state line, paid by order of the court, showing that the witnesses came upon the call of the prosecuting attorney, and taxed as costs in the case. Any deficiency in the amount of their actual mileage is a proper charge against your "in furtherance of justice fund" under section 3004, G. C.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX—APPLICATION TO CERTAIN BEQUESTS—INCOMES TO AID WORTHY THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS, EXEMPT—TO AID NEEDY MINISTERS OF CERTAIN RELIGIOUS DENOMINATION, TAXABLE—IN TRUST TO BE DISTRIBUTED FOR BENEVOLENT AND CHARITABLE PURPOSES, TAXABLE—TO A CHURCH FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES, TAXABLE—TO CEMETERY CORPORATION, WHEN EXEMPT—TO CHARITABLE HOME FOR JEWISH AGED AND INFIRM, TAXABLE, UNLESS OPEN TO ALL MEMBERS OF CERTAIN RACE—TO JEWISH HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION, OPEN TO ALL, EXEMPT—TO COLLEGE, FOR LIBRARY, IF OPEN TO ALL, EXEMPT.

A bequest to a college, the income of which is to be used in aiding worthy students of a theological seminary, is exempt from the inheritance tax, when the seminary is open to all the public upon the same terms, and if not operated for profit.

A bequest to a society for aiding needy ministers of a certain religious denomination is subject to the inheritance tax.

A bequest to executors in trust to be distributed to any societies and corporations organized for benevolent and charitable purposes is subject to the inheritance tax.

A bequest to an individual to be administered for charitable purposes is subject to the inheritance tax.

A bequest to a church to be administered for charitable purposes in the discretion of the trustees of the church is subject to the inheritance tax.

Two bequests in the same will to the same cemetery corporation, the income of which is to be used, respectively, for the maintenance of different cemetery lots, are to be regarded as separate estates for the purpose of the inheritance tax, and if neither exceeds five hundred dollars in amount no tax is assessable.

A bequest to a charitable home for Jewish aged and infirm, which is open only to members of a specified religious denomination or sect, or those entertaining a given religious belief, is not exempt from taxation; but if the home is open to all members of a certain race upon the same terms, the bequest is exempt from the inheritance tax.

A bequest to a Jewish hospital association maintaining a hospital which is open to all on the same terms and is charitable in its nature is exempt from the inheritance tax.

A bequest to a college, the income of which is to be used in sustaining a library therein, is exempt from taxation, if the college is open to all on the same terms, and is not operated for profit.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 19, 1915.

HON. WILLIAM H. LUEDERS, Probate Judge, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 3d, requesting my opinion upon the application of the collateral inheritance tax law to certain devises and bequests:

> "1. A bequest to the German Wallace College, a corporation under the laws of Ohio, the income of which is to be used in aiding worthy students of a theological seminary in connection therewith.
>
> "2. A residuary devise and bequest to executors in trust, the first $50,000 to be distributed to 'the preacher's aid society or their equivalent societies in such German Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church as they may select,' and the balance to 'any societies and corporations organized for benevolent and charitable purposes as in their judgment they may deem best.'
> "3. A bequest in trust, with direction to invest and pay the net income

'for the relief and assistance of needy and deserving persons, in such manner and in such amounts as he (the trustee) may deem wise.' The codicil making this bequest states it is the wish of the testator 'to provide a fund to help in emergencies occasioned by sickness, accident and other trouble,' but the distribution of the income shall rest wholly in the discretion of the trustee, who shall serve without bond.

"There is a further provision that upon the death or incapacity of the trustee, the bequest, and any undistributed income, shall be 'turned into the hands of trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church, incorporated under the laws of Ohio, to be administered in the manner above provided for.'

"4. Two bequests in the same will to the proprietors of a cemetery corporation in trust, the income to be used for the care, preservation and improvement of certain lots and monuments therein. Each bequest is in the sum of $500 and they relate to different cemetery lots.

"The question in this case is as to whether or not the exemption of $500 applies to each bequest or to both together (in which latter event it is assumed that the remaining $500 of the aggregate bequest will be subject to taxation).

"5. A bequest to a home for the Jewish aged and infirm, which is open only to Israelites, that is, persons of this particular religious faith.

"6. A bequest to a Jewish hospital association, the income of which is to be used for the general benefit of the hospital. The hospital is open to all persons of whatever creed, nationality or color, on equal terms."

With respect to the first question which you submit, it is to be noted that the theological seminary therein referred to is under the control and supervision of a certain church; yet it is stated that the pupils therein are or may be of all denominations and that there are no restrictions as to creed or nationality for admission. I take it, therefore, that a pupil might prepare himself for the ministry or some related life work in the theological seminary under consideration, without being obligated in any way to enter the ministry of the church which supervises the seminary.

Therefore, in my opinion, the mere fact that the seminary is under the supervision of the church and is perhaps primarily designed and intended to inculcate the religious doctrines of that church, does not deprive it of its public character any more than a college of liberal arts or a parochial school maintained under the supervision of a church would, by reason of that fact, be deprived of a similar character.

Gerke v. Purcell, 25 O. S., 229.
Little v. Seminary, 72 O. S., 417.

The case last cited is almost directly in point, being distinguishable only on the ground that it related to exemption from general property taxation, which, however, is I think analogous to the question submitted by you. It appeared that the institution involved in that case was a theological seminary free and open to all on the same conditions, and controlled and managed by the synods of the United Presbyterian Church of North America. The court held that it was as institution of purely public charity for the purpose of the statutes relating to general property taxation.

The exemption provisions of the collateral inheritance tax laws are found in section 5332, General Code, as follows:

"Section 5332. The provisions of the next preceding section shall not apply to property, or interests in property, transmitted to the state of Ohio under the intestate laws of the state, or embraced in a bequest, devise, transfer or conveyance to, or for the use of the state of Ohio, or to or for the use of a municipal corporation or other political subdivision thereof for exclusively public purposes, or public institutions of learning, or to or for the use of an institution in this state for purpose only of public charity or other exclusively public purposes. The property, or interests in property so transmitted or embraced in such devise, bequest, transfer or conveyance shall be exempt from all inheritance and other taxes while used exclusively for any of such purposes."

The bequest in question, while made to the college as such, is not, in my judgment, to be regarded as one "to or for the use of * * * public institutions of learning" because the use is not the general maintenance of the college, but the aid and support of worthy students in the seminary. Therefore, the question presented is as to whether or not it is "to or for the use of an institution in this state for purpose only of public charity."

I am of the opinion that the bequest is "for purpose only of public charity" within the meaning of the statutes. The distinction between a public and a private charity is found, I think, in the case of Philadelphia v. Masonic Home, 160 Pa., 572. The opinion in that case, which related to the taxation as property of an institution maintained for the benefit of members of certain fraternal order and their dependents, contains the following language:

"A charity may restrict its admissions to a class of humanity, and still be public; it may be for the blind, the mute, those suffering from special diseases, for the aged, for infants, for women, for men, for different callings or trades by which humanity earns its bread, and as long as the classification is determined by some distinction which involuntarily affects or may affect any of the whole people, although only a small number may be directly benefited, it is public. But when the right to admission depends on the fact of voluntary association with some particular society then a distinction is made which concerns not the public at large. The public is interested in the relief of its members, because they are men, women and children, not because they are Masons. A home without charges exclusively for Presbyterians, Espiscopalians, Catholics or Methodists, would not be a public charity. But then to exclude every other idea of public, as distinguished from private, the word 'purely' is prefixed by the constitution; this is to intensify the word 'public,' not 'charity.' It must be purely public: that is, there must be no admixture of any qualification for admission, heterogeneous, and not solely relating to the public. That the appellee is wholly without profit or gain only shows that it is purely a charity, and not that it is a purely public charity."

It will be observed that the line of demarcation between what is a public charity and what is a private charity may be finely drawn. For example, the Pennsylvania court seems to classify occupations as creating involuntary distinctions, and it must be admitted that occupational classifications have always been upheld as public charities. It seems to me that the somewhat liberal definition which has been given to the phrase "public charity" includes a gift for the benefit of a class of students in a particular public institution of learning.

The principles upon which I have reached my conclusion then would apply to any gift for the benefit of students of a particular institution, as distinguished, for example, from gifts for the benefit of needy students or apprentices of a particular branch of learning. The institution to the students of which the bequest is limited, being itself open to all on equal terms, the charity is public.

The doctrine of Philadelphia v. Masonic Home, supra, is in accord with the rule in Ohio.

Morning Star Lodge v. Hayslip, 23 O. S., 144.

I have chosen to cite the Pennsylvania case because of the careful distinctions which are drawn from the opinion, and which are serviceable in connection with your question.

I therefore conclude as to the first bequest concerning which you inquire that the same is exempt from the collateral inheritance tax.

2. Coming now to the second bequest, I advise, on the principles above discussed, that the primary distribution thereunder to the preacher's aid society or equivalent societies of certain conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church is not exempt. In so advising I assume that the societies mentioned exist for the purpose of relieving and aiding the ministers of a certain denomination. See the opinion of my predecessor in the matter of the Western Methodist Book Concern, vol. 1, annual report for 1912, page 617, with which I agree. Mr. Hogan's opinion relates to property taxation, but the underlying principles are the same with respect to inheritance taxation.

The question as to the balance of the residuary devise and bequest is more difficult. It is for the use of "any societies and corporations organized for benevolent and charitable purposes." As pointed out in the Pennsylvania case, a corporation or institution may be organized for benevolent or charitable purposes without being publicly charitable in its nature. Moreover, an institution might be one of public charity, and yet not be within the exemption because the same is limited to institutions "in this state."

Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S., 67.

The residuary bequest and devise is therefore so general and vague in its terms as, in my opinion, to deprive it of the privilege of exemption. In order to be entitled to exemption it must satisfy the statutory requirements, whereas the trustees might, within the terms of the trust, apply its proceeds for the use of institutions other than those mentioned in the statute.

3. The initial bequest which is next mentioned in your letter is clearly not exempt from taxation, because it is not made "to or for the use of * * * an institution in this state." The trustee is an individual and so are the intended beneficiaries. The rule here is that a bequest to an individual trustee for the relief of needy individuals is not exempt. The charity in order to take by will or inheritance exempt from the tax must be institutional.

The difficulty here arises from the fact that upon the decease or incapacity of the original trustee, the principal sum, together with the accumulated and undistributed income, is to be turned over "to trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church, incorporated under the laws of Ohio," to be administered for the benefit of needy individuals, in the manner provided for.

Although I incline to the opinion that a church, which is not an institution of purely public charity, is such an "institution" as may administer a gift "for the purpose only of public charity" within the meaning of the inheritance tax law, I question whether this part of the bequest is exempt from taxation, if indeed it is valid at all. My reasons for expressing this doubt are two:

> "1. I do not believe that there is in existence any such specific institution as 'the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church incorporated under the laws of Ohio.' If this is the exact language of the codicil, it would seem that the gift over would fail for lack of definiteness. Every local society of this church is, as I understand it, incorporated, but there is no central incorporated organization of this name.
> "2. The original trust was to be administered 'in the discretion of the trustee.' The trustee might exercise this discretion so as to limit the charity and thus make it not public in character."

For both of these reasons I am of the opinion that no part of the bequest in question is exempt from taxation, so that the division of it into two successive estates becomes immaterial, and the tax should now be assessed and collected upon the whole estate.

4. The answer to your fourth question also is suggested by observing the exact language of the statutes. Although the five hundred dollars minimum of section 5331, General Code, is often spoken of as an exemption, in strict contemplation of law it is not an exemption, as inheritances of less than five hundred dollars are simply not subject to the tax at all. The section provides in part as follows:

"All property within the jurisdiction of this state, and any interests therein * * * which pass by will or by the intestate laws * * * or by deed * * * made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, to a person in trust or otherwise, other than to or for the use of the * * * lineal descendant * * * shall be liable to a tax of five per cent. of its value, above the sum of five hundred dollars."

Of course, a corporation is a "person" within the meaning of the section. On the other hand, it must be admitted that two or more gifts, devises or bequests might be made to the same trustee for distinct and separate uses, and would then have to be regarded as separate inheritances, it being the rule that the beneficial use, and not the legal title, determines the quality of the inheritance.

The case you submit then presents the question as to whether the purposes of the trust are so far separate and distinct as to keep the bequests themselves separate; or whether, the trustee being the same, the two should be added together for the purpose of determining the value of the property passing to "a person," within the meaning of the statute.

I am of the opinion that the bequests are separate and distinct, and that the fact that the trustee is the same in each case is immaterial. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the exemption attaches to each, and that no tax is chargeable on account of both or either.

5. Before answering your question respecting the fifth bequest mentioned by you, I feel obliged to place an interpretation upon your letter so that the conclusion which I shall express will not be misunderstood.

You say that you are advised "that no one can be admitted to the home except he be an Israelite." If by this statement you mean that membership in any religious body or denomination, or adherence to any particular religious belief is a prerequisite to admission to the home, then on the principles laid down in Philadelphia v. Masonic Home, supra, and in the opinion of my predecessor in the matter of the Western Methodist Book Concern, to which I have referred, the bequest would be taxable. This is the meaning which I have given to your letter in stating the question at the outset of this opinion.

But if you mean that persons of the Hebrew race are admitted without discrimination on the grounds of religious belief or otherwise, then on the principles laid down in the authorities above cited, the charity would be a public one and the inheritance would be exempt from taxation.

6. The principles just referred to will result, of course, in the conclusion that the sixth bequest of which you speak is exempt from inheritance taxation.

I acknowledge receipt in connection with the letter of a brief prepared by Messrs Webber & Webber and a statement prepared by John C. Marting, treasurer of the Baldwin-Wallace college, mailed under separate cover.

The information and arguments set forth in these papers bear upon the question as to the exemption of another bequest which is mentioned by you in your letter, viz:

> "A bequest to the German Wallace college of $5,000 in trust, the same to become and remain a part of the library fund of the college and its theological seminary, and the income to be used in sustaining a library for the use of the college and seminary."

You stated in your first letter that you were of the opinion that this bequest is exempt. In this opinion I concur. In view of your expression of opinion I have refrained from discussing the question more elaborately.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ABSTRACT OF TITLE—LAND IN CITY OF CINCINNATI BELONGING TO THE RIDING CLUB—ARMORY SITE.

Abstract, The Riding Club of Cincinnati, property, to Ohio state armory.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 20, 1915.

Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Complying with your request for an opinion in reference to the title of certain real estate situated in the city of Cincinnati, Hamilton county, Ohio, as the same is shown by an abstract furnished by the Guarantee Title and Trust company of Cincinnati, under date of Janauary 23, 1915, said abstract purporting to contain the chain of title of the following described real estate, I beg to state that my examination of the title discloses the following situation:

The property under examination is as follows:

> "Situate in section 13, township 3, fractional range 2, of the Miami purchase, and in the city of Cincinnati, Hamilton county, Ohio, and more particularly described as follows: Commencing at a point on the north side of Helen or Nellie street, thirty-five (35) feet west of the east line of section 13 Millcreek township; thence northwardly on a line making a northwest angle with the north line of Helen or Nellie street of 75 degrees, 34 minutes, 225.80 feet, to the north line of the McCormick property; thence westwardly with the said McCormick line 107.30 feet; thence southwardly parallel with the first described line 247.13 feet to a point in the north line of Helen or Nellie street; thence east with the north line of Helen or Nellie street, to the place of beginning.
> "Also the following described real estate, situate in the same state, county, city, township, section and fractional range as aforesaid, and more particularly described as follows: Commencing at a point in the north line of Helen or Nellie street, 135 feet west of the east line of section 13, Millcreek township; thence northwardly on a line making a northwest angle with the north line of Helen or Nellie street of 75 degrees, 34 minutes, 247.13 feet, to the north line of the McCormick property; thence westwardly with the said McCormick's line 5.365 feet (plat shows 5.305); thence southwardly parallel with the first described line 248.20 feet to the north line of Helen or Nellie street; thence east with said north line of Helen or Nellie street, 5 feet to the place of beginning.

"Also, the following described real estate, situate in the city of Cincinnati, Hamilton county, Ohio, and being part of lot No. 26 of Reakirt and Donaldson's subdivision, as the same is recorded in plat book 5, pages 62 and 63 of the records of Hamilton county, Ohio, and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point on the east side of Cumberland street at the northwest corner of said lot No. 26; thence eastwardly along the north line of said lot 26, 58 feet more or less, to a point where said line is intersected by the middle of Burnet avenue produced northwardly; thence southwardly along said middle line of Burnet avenue produced 30 feet more or less, to the south line of said lot 26; thence westwardly along said south line 60 feet, more or less, to the east line of Cumberland street; thence northwardly along the east line of Cumberland street 18.65 feet to the place of beginning.

"Also, the following described real estate in the city of Cincinnati, Hamilton county, Ohio, and being part of lot 73 of Reakirt and Donaldson's subdivision as aforesaid, and bounded and described as follows, towit: Beginning at a pcint in the south line of said lot 73, where the same is intersected by the west line of five-foot (5) strip conveyed to The Riding Club of Cincinnati, by William J. McCormick, by deed recorded in deed book No. 778, page 502, Hamilton county, Ohio, records of deeds; thence westwardly along the west line of said five (5) foot strip extended 59.55 feet, more or less, to the north line of said lot 73; thence eastwardly along the said north line of said lot 73_____feet to the west line of Cumberland street; thence southwardly along the west line of Cumberland street 59.55 feet, more or less, to the southeast corner of said lot 73; thence westwardly along the south line of said lot 73; to the place of beginning."

I find, upon the showing made by the abstract hereinbefore mentioned, that the title to the above described property is good of record in fee simple in the name of "The Riding Club of Cincinnati" (except as hereinafter noted), subject to the following:

1. To the taxes for the year 1914, which are a lien, and unpaid.
2. To the taxes for the year 1915, which are now a lien (amount not yet determined).
3. The Riding Club of Cincinnati is a corporation (not for profit) organized under the laws of Ohio.

I have examined the minutes of the aforesaid corporation, a copy of which is attached to the abstract and considered in forming this opinion. It appears that on the 10th day of December, 1914, a proposition, covering among other things, the property under examination, was made by the Seton Realty Company, wherein an option was asked until the 30th day of April, 1915. Thereupon, on the same day, the trustees of said corporation, by a three-fourths (¾) affirmative vote (voting in person and not by proxy) adopted a resolution accepting the proposition of purchase, granting the option, and instructed its secretary to legally notify the members of a called meeting, stating the time, place and purpose of the same. Notice was given both by publication in a newspaper and by registered mail. Pursuant to the notice, the meeting of the members was held at the time and place stated therein, and by an affirmative vote of three-fourths (¾) of the members, either in person or by proxy, the action of the trustees was ratified. A ten cent United States revenue stamp, duly cancelled, appears on each proxy, and the vote of the individual member is endorsed thereon.

I have also examined senate bill No. 80, passed and approved February 11, 1915, the same providing funds and having reference to the manner in which this property is to be acquired.

I have also had an inventory made of the chattel property situated in the building located on the property herein described, the same being included in the contract between the state of Ohio and the Seton Realty Company, and a copy of which I herewith enclose.

I am informed, that it was the intention of the Seton Realty Company, in accordance with the terms and provisions of its contract with the Riding Club of Cincinnati, to designate the state of Ohio as the purchaser, and have the Riding Club execute instruments of conveyance directly to the state.

The Riding Club cannot legally comply with the provisions of senate bill No. 80. Aside from its contract with the Seton Realty Company, the Riding Club has no authority in law to make a gift of its property. The mere designation of the state as a purchaser would not relieve the conveyance of its gift character.

In order for the Seton Realty Company to comply with the terms of its contract with the state, there must first be a conveyance to it by the Riding Club.

An examination of the Hamilton county records fails to disclose anything that would prevent the Seton Realty Company from conveying this property free, clear and unincumbered, in the event of the transfer as above suggested.

At a conference had with the officers of both the corporations, it was agreed that the above suggestions be carried out, and the Riding Club has executed, and is ready to deliver warranty deed and bill of sale, conveying to the Seton Realty Company the real estate and the chattel property covered by the contract, and the Realty Company will in turn convey to the state.

A certified copy of the minutes of the Riding Club of Cincinnati has been prepared and the same will be made a matter of record, and I am informed that the matter can be closed up without any delay.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MIAMI UNIVERSITY LANDS—LEASED PRIOR TO 1851, UNDER ACT INCORPORATING UNIVERSITY ARE EXEMPT FROM STATE TAXES.

Miami University lands held under leases executed prior to 1851 are under the terms of the act incorporating the university are exempt from all state taxes.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 20, 1915.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 14th, which is as follows:

> "For the past twenty-five years or more, no state sinking fund or university fund taxes have been laid on university lands in the townships of Hanover, Milford and Oxford, Butler county, Ohio. These lands are held under lease by the present holders who pay an annual rental direct to Miami University.
> "Please give the commission your written opinion whether or not such lands are exempt from the payment of state or any other taxes."

The lands in question are evidently a part of those which were vested by the congress of the United States, by the act of March 3, 1803, in the state of Ohio, for the purpose of establishing an academy to be located in the John Cleves Symmes' purchase, and which were in turn vested by the legislature in the corporation designated by the name and style of "The President and Trustees of the Miami University" created by the act of February 9, 1809, 7. O. L., 184. This act created Miami University, and its president and trustees as a body politic, erected certain designated individuals into a body politic and corporate, defined the powers of the trustees and corporation as such, and with respect to the lands made the following, among other provisions:

> "Section 10. * * * That the said lands * * * be and the same are hereby vested in the said corporation, which, by this act is created, and their successors forever, for the sole use, benefit and support of the said university, to be held by said corporation, in their corporate capacity, with full power and authority to divide, sub-divide and expose the same to sale in tracts of not less than eighty, nor more than one hundred and sixty acres, and for the term of ninety-nine years, renewable forever, subject to a valuation every fifteen years, always considering the land in an unimproved state for the purpose of valuation * * * and the said tenants or lessees shall enjoy and exercise all the rights and privileges which they would be entitled to enjoy did they hold the said lands in fee simple, any law to the contrary notwithstanding * * *."
> "Section 11. That the clear, annual rents, issues and profits of all the estate, * * * of which the said corporation shall be seized * * * in their corporate capacity, shall be appropriated to the endowment of the said university. * * *"
> "Section 13. That the lands appropriated and vested in the corporation, with the buildings which may be erected thereon, for the accommodation of the president, professors and other officers, students and servants of the university, and any buildings appertaining thereto; and also the dwelling-house and other buildings which may be built and erected on the lands, shall be exempt from all state taxes."

In Armstrong v. Treasurer of Athens County, 10 Ohio Reports 235, it was held that Ohio University lands vested in the trustees of that institution under circumstances quite similar to those above outlined with respect to Miami University, lost their exemption when under authority of subsequent legislation they were sold and deeded in fee simple to the purchasers. The court, in its opinion per Hitchcock, judge, however, clearly recognizes the application of article I, section 10 of the constitution of the United States, prohibiting passage by the state of laws impairing the obligation of contracts.

In Matheny v. Golden, 5. O. S., 361, other Ohio University lands which had not been sold, but were still held under lease for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, were held exempt from taxation under a provision of the act establishing the Ohio University, which corresponded with the provisions of the act incorporating Miami University which is now being considered. The syllabus of the case is, in part, as follows:

> "Where the state, by an act incorporating the Ohio University, vested in that institution two townships of land for the support of the university and instruction of youth, and in the same act authorized the university to lease said lands for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, and provided that lands thus to be leased, should forever thereafter be exempt from all state taxes: Held, that the acceptance of such leases at a fixed rent or rate of purchase by the lessees, constitutes a binding contract between the state and the lessees.

"A subsequent act of the legislature, levying a state tax on such lands, is a 'law impairing the obligation of contracts,' within the purview of the 10th section of the 1st article of the constitution of the United States, and is therefore, pro tanto, null and void."

Elaborate opinions in support of the judgment and dissenting therefrom were filed by Brinkerhoff, J., and Bartley, C. J., respectively, but the majority of the court sustained the opinion of the former, in which it was held, conformably to the syllabus, that the state having offered lands on terms and conditions which included perpetual exemption from state taxes could not by subsequent statutes, or even by subsequent constitutional amendment, impair the corresponding obligation of contracts which were entered into when the leases were executed. The following language from the opinion is pertinent:

"Here, then, were parties competent to contract; for no one will question the competency in this respect of the complainant and those for whom he sues. Did those parties agree? Did their minds meet? What were the facts? The state opens the negotiation, and, speaking through her legislative act, makes her proposition to the complainant and his associates to this effect: If you will lease these lands at a fixed rent, payable to the Ohio University, for ninety-nine years, your lands thus leased shall be perpetually exempt from all states' taxes. This is the proposition of the state. The complainant and his associates lease the lands accordingly; they bind themselves to pay, have paid and must continue to pay, a fixed rent accordingly; a rent fixed, as a matter of course, at a considerably higher rate than they would have been willing to pay had it not been for the proposed exemption. Relying on the faith of the state for the fulfillment by her of a contract based on her own proposition, they take leases; and thus accept the proposition of the state pure and simple, without modification; and thus the minds of the parties have met. They have respectively agreed to do other particular things.

"Was there a good and valid consideration? To promote and secure the instruction of her youth, may properly be said to have been the primeval, as it is the fundamental and favorite policy of Ohio. This policy originated with the congress of the old confederation, is indicated in the resolutions of that body authorizing the first sale of lands within the limits of our state to the Ohio Company of Associates, and was provided for in the contract of sale between the board of treasury and the agents of that company, while the state was still in embryo. In the constitution of 1802, the first organic law of the state, it is declared that 'religion, morality and knowledge, being essentially necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of instruction shall forever be encouraged by legislative provision, not inconsistent with the rights of conscience.' Our present constitution declares that 'the general assembly shall make such provision, by taxation or otherwise, as * * * will secure a thorough and efficient system of common schools throughout the state.' And this very year the state is levying a tax for educational purposes alone, amounting in the aggregate to not less than one million two hundred thousand dollars.

"In the payment by those lessees, then, of a larger rent, in faith of the promised exemption, than they otherwise would have been willing to pay, to be paid to the Ohio University, the trustee of the state, and the creature of her legislation, in trust for the promotion of her wise and favorite policy, we find an adequate and valuable consideration for the exemption proposed by the state, and accepted as a material part of the contract by the lessees.

"Here, therefore, we have parties competent to contract; a meeting of minds, and mutual agreements to do and not to do particular things; and finally a good and valid consideration; and thus there is filled, in every particular, the legal definition of a binding contract.

"Contracts stipulating for exemptions of this kind are not favored in law, and will never be presumed. Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Peters 420; Taney, C. J., in Ohio Life Ins. & Trust Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 435. And, as an individual member of this court, and speaking for myself alone, I am free to say that I am very far from being friendly to the policy of such exemptions, and am gratified that our present constitution has effectually prohibited the grant of them in future. But the question of constitutional and legislative policy is one thing, and the questions of law and fact now before us are other and very different things. That here was a contract, perfect in all its requisites, is clear; the language and conduct of the parties is unequivocal, admits of but one interpretation, and leaves no room for presumptions.

"Is the recent legislation of the state such as to impair the obligation of this contract? The question, unfortunately, can have but one answer. It has attempted to tax lands which it had solemnly contracted never to tax. Perhaps we ought to presume—and we should certainly be very glad to be able to presume—that this recent legislation complained of was the result of oversight. But—and we feel neither pride nor pleasure in saying it—the language of that legislation seems to be too explicit, and too direct in its application to those lands, to admit of so charitable a presumption."

That the principles of this decision apply to all state taxes, and not merely to such state taxes as might have been reasonably anticipated at the time the contract was entered into is settled in State ex rel. Treasurer v. Auditor of State, 15 O. S., 482.

If, then the lands concerning which you inquire were leased prior to the adoption of the constitution of 1851, under the terms and conditions of the act of 1809, they are exempt from the state taxes which you mention, and also from all other state taxes such as those for state common school purposes and state highway levies.

I cannot answer your question more specifically without tracing the history of the title of the lands in question.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION—AMENDMENT NOT TO BE FILED IF TO RETIRE PREFERRED STOCK BY ISSUING COMMON STOCK.

The secretary of state should not accept or file an amendment to articles of incorporation, whereby it is sought to retire preferred stock by issuing common stock, thereby exceeding the authorized amount of common stock.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 20, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your request for an opinion under date of April 1st, transmitting the letter of the firm of lawyers stating the facts upon which you desire said opinion. This letter reads as follows:

> "We have your favor in reference to the conversion by amendment of charter of preferred stock into common stock, in which you say you know of no law which will permit it.
> "We know of no law which will permit the conversion of common stock into preferred, but nevertheless past attorney generals have advised that it can be done and we did it within the last year.
> "We would like very much if you would get an opinion from the attorney general upon this point, as we would like to know what position you will take if we undertake to file an amendment to the charter of the company automatically converting preferred as retired into common."

This department has a further letter from the same firm of attorneys which states the facts a little more fully as follows:

> "We represent a corporation that has seven million dollars of preferred capital outstanding and eight million dollars of common.
> "Under their charter they are compelled to retire $350,000.00 of the preferred stock annually.
> "We would like to know whether we can amend the charter and convert the preferred stock when it is retired into common stock, and we would like further to know whether you will consider it proper for us to so amend the charter that the preferred stock would automatically become common whenever it was retired and cancelled, so that in the end we would have a corporation with fifteen million dollars of common stock.
> "We are writing a similar letter to the secretary of state. We do not seem to have any authority in Ohio upon this subject, except we have an authority that common stock may be converted into preferred. We can see no reason why preferred stock could not be likewise converted into common. We also see no reason why it should not be automatically converted after it is retired, but before taking any action we thought we ought to confer with you in reference to the same."

As to the statement contained in the letter to you that "past attorney generals have advised that common stock may be converted into preferred," I can find no such ruling in the office. However, that is immaterial at the present time.

Section 8719, G. C., provides as follows:

> "A corporation organized under the general corporation laws of the state may amend its articles of incorporation as follows:

"1. So as to change its corporate name, but not to one already appropriated, or to one likely to mislead the public.

"2. So as to change the place where it is to be located, or its principal business transacted.

"3. So as to modify, enlarge or diminish the objects or purposes for which it was formed.

"4. So as to add to them anything omitted from, or which lawfully might have been provided for originally, in such articles. But the capital stock of a corporation shall not be increased or diminished, by such amendment, nor the purpose of its original organization substantially changed."

I assume from the statement of facts that at the time of the incorporation of this company it was authorized to issue eight million dollars of common stock and seven million dollars of preferred stock, the preferred stock to be retired at the rate of $350,000.00 per annum.

A conversion of preferred stock into common stock beyond the amount of common stock authorized would create an increase in common stock, and as provided in paragraph four of section 8719 of the General Code, this may not be accomplished by amendment.

The authorized capital stock of this company is not unconditionally fifteen millon dollars. It is authorized to issue eight million dollars of common stock and no more. It is also authorized to issue seven million dollars of preferred stock, but this amount is to be annually reduced until there is no preferred stock, at which time the total authorized capital of the company will be eight million of dollars.

Apparently no right was reserved in the original charter to redeem the preferred stock with authorized common stock.

Without going into the rights of the stock holders of the respective classes to object to the proposed amendment (which I am clear they have a right to do), I am of the opinion that you are not authorized by law to allow the filing of the proposed amendment.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BONDS—AUTHORITY TO ISSUE UNDER BENSE ACT FOR PURPOSE OF INSTALLING NEW WATER SUPPLY OR PUMPING WORKS THEREBY ENLARGING EXISTING WATERWORKS—DECISION COURT OF APPEALS DOES NOT REMOVE TAX LIMITATIONS OF BONDS ISSUED UNDER SECTION 1259, G. C.

The decision in Howland v. The Village of Cuyahoga Falls (circuit court of appeals of the eighth district, October 13, 1914), to the effect that bonds issued under section 1259, G. C. (the Bense Act), are subject to the one per cent. limitation of section 3940, G. C. (the "Longworth Act"), does not apply to bonds issued under section 1259, G. C., for the enlargement or extension of waterworks when the income from the existing works is sufficient to pay the operating expenses of the enlarged works, interest charges and to pass an amount to the sinking fund sufficient to retire such bonds when they mature.

Nor does the other ground of the decision in said case, to the effect that the tax limitations must be taken into consideration in determining whether bonds may be issued under section 1259, G. C., apply to such an issue of bonds.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 21, 1915.

DR. E. F. MCCAMPBELL, Secretary and Executive Officer State Board of Health, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of April 6th you quote from a letter addressed to you by Hon. John Sherman Taylor, city solicitor of Cambridge, Ohio, calling attention to the decisions of the common pleas court and court of appeals of Summit county in the case of Howland v. The Village of Cuyahoga Falls, and questioning the effect of the decision upon the power of the city to issue bonds under the Bense act for the purpose of installing a new water supply or purifying works in connection with an existing waterworks plant.

You request my opinion upon the question so suggested, coupling your request with the statement that the present waterworks may be made "self supporting."

The decision cited was an interpretation of section 1259 of the General Code in connection with sections 3939 to 3951, inclusive, of the General Code, the first section being a part of what is known as the "Bense act" and the second group of sections constituting what is known as the "Longworth act" in its present form. Section 1259, General Code, provides for the issuance of bonds by municipal corporations for the purpose of raising the necessary funds to comply with the orders of the state board of health relative to water purification or sewage disposal, and provides in part as follows:

> "Section 1259. * * * The bonds authorized to be issued for such purpose shall not exceed five per cent. of the total value of all property in any city or village, as listed and assessed for taxation, and may be in addition to the total bonded indebtedness otherwise permitted by law. The question of the issuance of such bonds shall not be required to be submitted to a vote."

The provisions of the Longworth act pertinent to the question decided by the court of appeals of the eighth circuit and that submitted by you are as follows:

> "Section 3939. When it deems it necessary, the council of a municipal corporation, by an affirmative vote of not less than two thirds of the members elected or appointed thereto, by ordinance, may issue and sell bonds in such amounts and denominations, for such period of time, and at such rate of interest, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as said council may determine and in the manner provided by law, for any of the following specific purposes:

"2. For extending, enlarging, improving, repairing or securing a more complete enjoyment of a building or improvement authorized by this section, and for equipping and furnishing it.

"11. For erecting or purchasing waterworks for supplying water to the corporation and the inhabitants thereof.

"14. For constructing sewers, sewage disposal works, flushing tunnels, drains and ditches.

"Section 3940. Such bonds may be issued for any or all of such purposes, but the total indebtedness created in any one fiscal year, by the council of a municipal corporation, under the authority conferred in the preceding section, shall not exceed one per cent. of the total value of all property in such municipal corporation, as listed and assessed for taxation.

"Sec. 3941. The net indebtedness created or incurred by the council under the authority granted it in section one (1), (G. C., Section 3939), of this act, and in an act passed April 29, 1902, to amend sections 2835, 2836 and 2837 and to repeal section 2837a of the Revised Statutes (O. L., v. 95, p. 318), together with its subsequent amendments, shall never exceed four (4) per cent. of the total value of all property in such municipal corporation as listed and assessed for taxation.

"Sec. 3942. In addition to the authority granted in section one (1), (G. C., section 3939), of this act and supplementary thereto, the council of a municipal corporation, whenever it deems it necessary, may issue and sell bonds in such amounts, or denomination, and for such period of time and rate of interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as it may determine upon for any of the purposes set forth in said section one, (G. C., section 3939), upon obtaining the approval of the electors of the corporation at a general or special election in the following manner.

"Sec. 3948. The net indebtedness created or incurred by a municipal corporation under authority of sections one (G. C., section 3939), and four (G. C., section 3942), of this act and under the authority of an act passed April 29, 1902, to amend sections 2835, 2836 and 2837, and to repeal section 2837a of the Revised Statutes (O. L., v. 95, p. 318), (G. C., sections 3939 to 3947), (original numbering), together with its subsequent amendments, shall never exceed in total eight (8) per cent. of the total value of all property in such municipal corporation as listed and assessed for taxation.

"Sec. 3952. That from and after the passage of this act and until and including the 30th day of September, 1911, the limitations of four and eight per cent. prescribed in this act shall be applied to and based upon the total value of all property listed and assessed for taxation in such municipal corporation as determined by the duplicate for the year 1910. On and after the first day of October, 1911, the said four per cent. limitation shall be reduced to two and one-half per cent., and the said eight per cent. limitation shall be reduced to five per cent., and such reduced limitations shall be applied to and based upon the value of all the property listed and assessed for taxation in such municipal corporation as determined by the duplicate then or thereafter in force.

"Sec. 3949. The 'net indebtedness' prescribed in sections three and ten (G. C., sections 3941 and 3948), of this act shall be the difference between the par value of the outstanding and unpaid bonds and the amount held in the sinking fund for their redemption. In ascertaining the limitations of one per cent., four per cent. and eight per cent. herein prescribed, the following bonds shall not be considered:

"f. Bonds issued for the purpose of purchasing, constructing, improving and extending waterworks when the income from such waterworks is sufficient to cover the cost of all operating expenses, interest charges and to pass a sufficient amount to a sinking fund to retire such bonds when they become due."

In Howland v. Cuyahoga Falls, supra, there was involved the question as to whether a particular prospective bond issue in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of constructing certain lines of trunk sewers and a sewage disposal plant to be used in connection therewith was lawful. The common pleas court, per Rogers, J., held upon the questions argued and presented:

"1. That the state board of health had no authority to order the village to construct the sewers in connection with the sewage disposal plant, but its authority extended only to the installation of the plant itself; so that bonds could not be issued under section 1259, General Code, and subject to its peculiar limitations, the proceeds of which were to be in part devoted to the construction of a system of sewers.

"2. That under the tax limitation laws of the state the village would be without power to levy the necessary taxes to meet the interest and sinking fund requirements of the proposed bond issue."

The court of appeals passed over the first question decided by the common pleas court, and planted its decision at least in part upon the proposition that the effect of section 1259, General Code, is not to remove as to bonds issued thereunder all the limitations of the Longworth act, but only those relative to the net indebtedness outstanding at any one time, that is, the limitations of section 3941 and 3948, General Code, as above quoted, respectively; so that the limitation of section 3940, relative to the amount of bonds that might be issued in any one year remains applicable to bond issues under section 1259. In reaching this conclusion the court gives to the phrase "in addition to the total bonded indebtedness otherwise permitted by law" a strict interpretation, emphasizing the word "total."

It appearing in the case before the court of appeals that the bonds proposed to be issued by the village of Cuyahoga Falls would cause the one per cent. limitation of the Longworth act to be exceeded, this of itself was considered to be a sufficient ground for enjoining their issuance.

But the court of appeals also held with the common pleas court that levies to retire bond issues under the Bense act would have to be made within the appropriate limitations of the Smith one per cent. law, so called, and that under the facts of the case it did not appear that the necessary interest and sinking fund levies could be made within the limitations. The court here based its decision in part upon Rabe v. Board of Education, 88 O. S., 403, giving to that decision what appeals to me as a rather strict interpretation. There is, however, no question that under the decision in Rabe v. Board of Education, supra, the tax limitations constitute, indirectly, debt limitations.

With the foregoing analysis of the decision in Howland v. Cuyahoga Falls in mind its application to the question presented by you may be considered. It is clear from paragraph "F" of section 3949, General Code, that under certain circumstances waterworks bonds are in a class by themselves for the purpose of the Longworth act. Just what the exact application of this provision may be I do not feel called upon to determine, as no facts are stated in your letter which call for a precise interpretation or the application thereof. I assume, however, that by the phrase "self-supporting," as applied to the present waterworks of the city of Cambridge, you mean that the water rents are such or will, prior to the issuance of the bonds, be made such as that the revenue resulting from the operation of the works is, or may be reasonably anticipated to be in the future, sufficient to cover the cost of all operating expenses on account of the improved and extended works, the interest charges on all outstanding bonds, including those proposed to be issued, and the creation of a sinking fund to retire the proposed bonds when they become due. If these conditions exist at the time the bonds are issued, then by the express provisions of section 3949, General Code, such bonds would not be considered in ascertaining the one per cent. limitation; that is, their issuance would not be subject to that limitation. That being the case, one ground of the decision in Howland v. Cuyahoga Falls would not apply to nor prevent the issuance of bonds for such purposes, even if the amount to be issued would exceed one per cent. of the duplicate of the city.

A more difficult question is presented with respect to the application of the other ground of the decision in Howland v. Cuyahoga Falls to a case of bonds issued for waterworks purposes under the circumstances stated by you. Such bonds are, of course, general tax duplicate bonds for the retirement of which under article XII, section 11 of the constitution, provision must be made at the time of issuance by the levy and collection of taxes. Yet under the implied authority of section 3949, General Code, and under the direct authority of section 3959, General Code, the interest and sinking fund charges of a waterworks bond issue may be met out of the surplus earnings of the waterworks, and thus not become a burden upon the general tax duplicate.

Said section 3959, General Code, is as follows:

> "Section 3959. After paying the expenses of conducting and managing the waterworks, any surplus therefrom may be applied to the repairs, enlargment or extension of the works or of the reservoirs, the payment of the interest of any loan made for their construction or for the creation of a sinking fund for the liquidation of the debt. The amount authorized to be levied and assessed for waterworks purposes shall be applied by the council to the creation of the sinking fund for the payment of the indebtedness incurred for the construction and extension of waterworks and for no other purpose whatever."

Upon careful consideration I reach the conclusion that waterworks are not within the doctrine of Rabe v. Board of Education and Howland v. Cuyahoga Falls, supra, when it can be anticipated at the time the bonds are issued that the net income from the waterworks, after paying operating expenses, will be sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund requirements of the bonds. At the very least the surplus water rentals over operating expenses would obviate the necessity of making levies which might otherwise be made for extensions and betterments of the waterworks, and in any view of the case would, if sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund requirements of the bond issue, have to be regarded as dispensing pro tanto with the necessity of levying taxes. Therefore, the limitations upon the taxing power would in no wise be involved in such a case. There is a direct relation between the ability of the municipality to levy under the tax limitations for the retirement of such bonds and the existence of a surplus from water rentals.

It is my opinion, therefore, that neither of the grounds upon which Howland v. Cuyahoga Falls, supra, was decided would apply to or present the issuance of bonds for the purpose of constructing improvements in connection with the waterworks of the city under the Bense act, when the income from the waterworks is sufficient to pay all operating expenses of the works and to pay interest charges and accumulate a sinking fund for the retirement of the bonds at maturity.

In answering your question I think it proper to refer to the provision of article XVII, section 12 of the constitution, which is as follows:

> "Section 12. Any municipality which acquires, constructs or extends any public utility and desires to raise money for such purposes may issue mortgage bonds therefor beyond the general limit of bonded indebtedness prescribed by law; provided that such mortgage bonds issued beyond the general limit of bonded indebtedness prescribed by law shall not impose any liability upon such municipality but shall be secured only upon the property and revenues of such public utility, including a franchise stating the terms upon which, in case of foreclosure, the purchaser may operate the same, which franchise shall in no case extend for a longer period than twenty years from the date of the sale of such utility and franchise on foreclosure."

If action is taken under this provision, it is obvious that neither the debt limitations nor the tax limitations provided by general laws will in any way affect or impair the authority of the municipality to issue such mortgage bonds.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER.
Attorney General.

DISTRICT ASSESSOR—MERE APPOINTMENT OF DEPUTY ASSESSOR FROM ELIGIBLE LIST IS NOT COMPLETE APPOINTMENT SO AS TO ENTITLE PERSON TO PROTECTION OF CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

When a district assessor notifies one of two persons on the eligible list for appointment as deputy assessor of a meeting of deputy assessors, but does not otherwise indicate that he has appointed such person as a deputy assessor, and in fact no such appointment is recorded or certified, and where the person in question does not regard the notice as an appointment and does not accept it as such, no appointment has been made and the person in question is not entitled to the protection of the civil service law.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 21, 1915.

The Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letters of April 16th and April 20th submitting for my opinion thereon the following facts:

> "On the morning of March 31, 1915, E. J. Carey, district assessor of Hardin county, was removed by the tax commission, and so notified by telegram. R. D. Turner was appointed his successor, but did not qualify and assume his office until Saturday, April 3rd. He was notified by Mr. Carey that there was a vacancy in the assessor's force for the city of Kenton, made some time previous by the resignation of C. J. Griffith. On Saturday, the second place in the city of Kenton was made vacant by the resignation of Ross W. Scott. There are but two assessors in the city of Kenton. A year ago, when the civil service examinations were held, but four candidates qualified for the two places, so on the resignation of Griffith and Scott, the eligible list consisted of two names. The civil service commission holds that where there are less than three names on the eligible list, the district assessor has the right to disregard the eligible list entirely and make an outside appointment, subject to their approval. Finding no record of an appointment for a successor of either Mr. Griffith or Mr. Scott, Mr. Turner, the district assessor, appointed I. A. Wynn and D. W. Wagner to these assessorships, and applied to the civil service commission for their approval of the provisional appointments.

"In reply he received the following letter:

" 'MR. R. D. TURNER,
" 'Kenton, Ohio.
' 'DEAR SIR:—The two provisional nominations for deputy assessor in Kenton have not been approved by the commission.
"Our records show that Albert McFarland was duly appointed from an eligible list, and if he is willing to serve it will be necessary to give him the work. You should then indicate to this commission one of the two provisionals you desires us to act upon.
" 'Yours very truly,
[Signed.] " 'C. H. BRYSON,
" 'Acting Secretary.'

"Upon investigation and conference with the civil service commission, we find that the only written notification that Mr. McFarland had, consisted of a carbon copy of a circular letter reading as follows:

" 'DEAR SIR:—There will be a meeting of the deputy assessors, Saturday, April 3rd, at 1 p. m., to make preparation to commence the valuation of property on Monday, April 5th.
" 'It is important that you be here, and to get through with the work we want to commence promptly at 1 p. m.
" 'Very truly yours,
[Signed.] " 'C. J. CAREY,
" 'District Assessor.'

"Mr. Carey did not certify either to the county auditor or to the tax commission of Ohio, his appointment of Mr. McFarland as is required under section 33 of the Warnes law. No one would have known of the appointment had he not raised the question himself with the civil service commission, which held this afternoon that the receipt of this circular letter itself, constituted the appointment. Mr. McFarland did not furnish a bond, and he did not appear at the conference of district assessors called by Mr. Turner and advertised in the paper.
"Mr. Carey, before he left the office, made out a list of deputy assessors for his successor, Mr. Turner, Mr. McFarland's name did not appear on this list.
"On the evening of March 31, Mr. McFarland called Mr. Turner by telephone and asked him if he (McFarland) would be appointed as deputy assessor. He called Mr. Turner again on Friday afternoon, April 2nd. In neither conversation, according to Mr. Turner, did Mr. McFarland say anything about his alleged appointment. He never called at the office of the district assessor."

As you yourself suggest, the only question in the case appears to be as to whether or not Mr. McFarland was appointed by the outgoing district assessor. If he was appointed then it may be assumed that he is entitled to the place unless removed by the incoming district assessor. If he was not appointed then it would appear that the provisional appointment for the place in question was regular and should be approved by the civil service commission. I have no hesitancy in holding that no valid appointment was made.

The following essential facts may be recapitulated from your very full statement:

> "1. The outgoing district assessor made no record of such an appointment.
> "2. No such appointment was certified, as required by section 33 of the Warnes law, to the county auditor or to the tax commission of Ohio.
> "3. No direct evidence of any kind exists showing that such an appointment was made. The only evidence of an intention to appoint is the sending out of a circular letter by the outgoing district assessor. That this was not treated as an appointment is clear from the fact that Mr. McFarland himself did not so regard it."

Even if there had been an appointment, so far as the outgoing district assessor could have made it such, the appointment could not have been complete unless accepted by Mr. McFarland. Mr. McFarland did not, of course, accept the appointment as such.

For the foreging reasons, I am of the opinion that no complete appointment has been made, and that within the reason and spirit of the civil service act Mr. McFarland did not at the time the provisional appointment was made hold a position in the classified service of the assessment district of Hardin county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BONDS—INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION OF OHIO—LAKE COUNTY INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAY.

Bonds in amount of $68,000 issued by Lake county for improvements of the inter-county highway held invalid and their purchase not recommended.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 21, 1915.

The Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of April 2, 1915, enclosing transcript of the proceedings and records of the county commissioners of Lake county, Ohio, relative to the issuance of bonds to the amount of $68,000.00 for the improvement of the Cleveland-Buffalo inter-county highway No. 2, together with a copy of the proposed form of bond, and requesting my opinion relative to the authority of your commission to purchase the same.

If the bonds in question are valid obligations of Lake county, the industrial commission is authorized to purchase the same under section 1465-58 of the General Code. Therefore, a determination of whether or not the bonds in question are valid obligations of Lake county will answer both of your questions.

The transcript discloses that said bonds have been issued under authority of section 1223 of the General Code for the purpose of securing money to pay the county's share of improving said inter-county highway. The portion of such cost assumed by the county in the first instance was 50 per cent. of the entire estimated cost, and in addition, the entire cost of the necessary bridges and culverts. The portion of the road to be improved lies in Willoughby and Mentor townships, and the trustees of each of these townships by resolution adopted and certified to the county commissioners, have agreed to pay an amount equal to twenty-five per cent. of the entire cost of improving so much of the road as lies within their respective townships, which, in effect, relieves the county as such from paying one-half of the amount originally assumed by it, and to the same extent transfers the burden of such payment to said townships of Willoughby and Mentor.

According to the agreement contained in the original application of the county commissioners, and the subsequent shifting of a portion of the burden to Willoughby and Mentor townships, accomplished through resolutions of their respective trustees, one-half of the money necessary to pay interest and create a sinking fund to redeem said bonds when due must be raised by tax levy upon all the taxable property of the county, and the remaining half, divided in the proportions above stated, must be raised by a tax levy upon all the taxable property of Willoughby and Mentor townships.

Section 11 of article XII of the constitution of Ohio provides as follows:

> "No bonded indebtedness of the state, or any political subdivision thereof, shall be incurred or renewed, unless, in the legislation under which such indebtedness is incurred or renewed, provision is made for levying and collecting annually by taxation an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds, and to provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity."

The resolution of the county commissioners of Lake county authorizing the issuance of said bonds contained the following provisions:

> "That for the providing an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity, there shall be, and hereby is ordered levied upon all the taxable property of said county, in addition to all other taxes, the following direct annual tax, to wit:
> "In the year 1915, a tax sufficient to produce the sum of..... $1,700
> "In " " 1916, " " " " " " " 10,400
> "In " " 1917, " " " " " " " 10,050

Apparently, the above is the only provision which has been made by the county commissioners of Lake county for the payment of interest upon said bonds, and to create a sinking fund for their redemption as they become due. No provision has been made for levying a tax upon the townships of Willoughby and Mentor to secure funds to pay their proper proportion of the interest and the principal of these bonds. I am unable to understand how the county commissioners expect to collect from Willoughby and Mentor townships the respective amounts which they have agreed to pay. Neither am I able to understand by what authority a levy of taxes is authorized and directed against the taxable property of Lake county to pay the entire amount of the interest and principal of these bonds, when by specific agreement the county is under obligations to pay only one-half of the same.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the county commissioners of Lake county, in authorizing the issuance of the bonds to the amount of $68,000.00 for the improvement of the Cleveland-Buffalo inter-county highway No. 2, have not complied with the requirements of the section of the Ohio constitution above quoted, and that the same should not be purchased by the industrial commission of Ohio.

In the event that the county commissioners of Lake county decide to correct their proceedings, and in anticipation of a future re-submission of the question of the validity of these bonds, I desire to call attention to certain omissions in the transcript of information necessary to enable me to intelligently advise your commission:

1. There is no affirmative showing that the state highway commission designated said road by name and number as an inter-county highway.

2. There is no showing of what portion of the total existing bonded indebtedness of Lake county has been issued for the improvement of the inter-county highways. (Section 1223 of the General Code.)

3. Resolution authorizing bond issue should provide for a levy on the duplicates of Willoughby and Mentor townships to pay their respective shares of the bonds issued.

4. Transcript fails to show the amount of the tax duplicate of Willoughby and Mentor townships; also fails to show whether the townships can raise funds for the obligation assumed and still keep within the tax limitation.

Transcript does not show the amount of the bonded indebtedness of the townships of Willoughby and Mentor.

Although there is no information to that effect in the submitted transcript, yet upon investigation at the office of the state highway commissioner, I find that there is only $16,000.00 in the inter-county highway fund available for use in Lake county. It is evident from the records that the state highway department intends to pay the remaining portion of the state's 50 per cent. of the cost of said road improvement from the main market road fund. The state highway department has advertised for and received bids for the proposed improvement in two parts—one contract covering the cost of grading, etc., and the other contract covering the cost of the concrete foundation and the surfacing.

Although the state highway commissioner is given wide latitude and authority in respect to the main market road fund under section 6859-5 of the General Code, yet it is extremely doubtful whether or not he is authorized to pool any portion of such fund with the inter-county highway fund and with funds of the several counties and townships.

A more serious question arises, however, relative to the right of the county commissioners to agree with the state highway commissioner to pay one-half of the cost of a road improvement, and to issue bonds upon the strength of such agreement, when, as a matter of fact, there is not sufficient money in the inter-county highway fund available to pay the portion of the cost of such improvement assumed by the state.

Some other method of procedure should be adopted and followed. If the road in question is, as I am informed, a main market road, the highway commissioner has undoubted authority to improve any part of the same out of the main market road fund, and since the county commissioners are not limited by law to the payment of 50 per cent. of the cost of improving an inter-county highway, but may pay any portion thereof (Section 1207, General Code) in the event that there is not sufficient inter-county highway funds available to pay the state's full 50 per cent. I see no reason why the state highway commissioner may not, by separate and distinct contracts, improve a section of the road from the main market road fund and the remainder from funds supplied by the several townships, assessments upon abutting property and the inter-county highway funds. Such a method would keep the main market road fund and the inter-county highway fund separate, and remove any question as to the validity of the bonds issued by the county commissioners, which might arise from the method of pooling inter-county highway and the main market road funds.

I am herewith returning to you the transcript and bond form submitted with your enquiry.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MUNICIPAL COURT, CITY OF COLUMBUS—JUSTICE OF PEACE—TERM CANNOT BE EXTENDED AS MUNICIPAL JUDGE BY LEGISLATURE.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 21, 1915.

To the Judiciary Committee of the Ohio Senate, Columbus, Ohio, HON. OTTO E. VOLLENWEIDER, Chairman.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of April 20, 1915, in which you request my opinion as follows:

> "A question arises before our committee relative to the bill amending 'An act creating a municipal court for the city of Columbus.'
> "Mr. T. H. Hennessy was elected justice of the peace in the city of Columbus, for a period of two years beyond the time at which the municipal court begins, and the question is whether or not we can, under the present bill, extend the term of justice Hennessy for two years.
> "The law creates a court of larger jurisdiction and larger salaries, and abolishes the present justices of the peace and police courts. It was passed in 1913. The present bill is amendatory of that act.
> "Justice Hennessy has been before our committee, and is in favor of the municipal court, but the question of the extension of his term comes up at this time.
> "The committee will appreciate very much an early opinion from you as to the advisability of extending this term."

As recited in your letter, the act creating a municipal court for the city of Columbus (103 O. L., 292), sections 1558-46, et seq., of the General Code, as well as the present bill before your committee to amend said act, abolishes the offices of justice of the peace and police court in the city of Columbus, and creates a municipal court for said city, having larger jurisdiction than that exercised by said justice of the peace and police courts.

As I understand the question submitted, it involves the right of the legislature to appoint Mr. T. H. Hennessy as one of the judges of the municipal court of Columbus for a period of two years, commencing with the installation of the court.

In answering your question, permit me to call your attention to section 27 of article II of the constitution of Ohio, which is as follows:

> "The election and appointment of all officers, and the filling of all vacancies, not otherwise provided for by this constitution, or the constitution of the United States, shall be made in such manner as may be directed by law; but no appointing power shall be exercised by the general assembly, except as prescribed in this constitution, and in the election of the United States senators; and in these cases the vote shall be taken 'viva voce.' "

A full and very apt discussion of the language used in the above quoted section of the constitution, which denies the appointing power to the general assembly, is found in the case of State ex rel. Attorney General v. Kennon, et al., 7 O. S., 546. The principle involved is stated at length and clearly explained in the syllabus as follows:

> "1. That the general assembly may by law direct the manner in which all offices existing or created by law or vacancies therein shall be filled by appointment, except in cases provided by the constitution.
> "2. Directing by law the manner in which an appointment shall be made, and making an appointment, are the exercises of two different and distinct powers; the one prescribing how an act shall be done, being legislative; and the other, doing the act, being administrative.
> "3. The constitutional provision which authorizes the general assembly to prescribe by law how an appointment shall be made, by express provision and condition withholds from the general assembly all appointing power.
> "4. Conceding that the general assembly may provide by law for the creation of an office in the form of a board clothed with the power of selecting, appointing and removing all officers and filling all vacancies not otherwise provided for by the constitution, in all offices; and conceding an unlimited power in the general assembly to pass laws providing for the creation of offices or boards in such cases, even permanent or for life (question which are not before us), yet the general assembly cannot exercise any appointing power to fill such boards or offices.
> "5. The exercise of the power of appointment and removal of state officers, and the filling of vacancies which may occure in state offices, is a high public function and trust, and not a private, or casual, or incidental agency; and the officers of the board so created by statute, to exercise these public functions, are vested with official state power, and hold and exercise a public franchise and office."

There is no analogy between the facts presented in your inquiry and the facts which were before the supreme court of Ohio in the case of State ex rel. v. Yeatman 89 O. S., 44. In that case the acts of the legislature, "Providing for enlarging and extending the jurisdiction of the police court of the city of Cincinnati, and changing the name of such court to the municipal court of Cincinnati" (103 O. L., 279); also a similar act relating to the city of Dayton (103 O. L., 385), were before the court upon the question of their validity. These acts did not abolish the existing police courts of Cincinnati and Dayton, nor did they create any new courts.

The situation presented by your letter and by the act creating the municipal court of Columbus presents an entirely different situation. By this act the offices of judge of the police court for Columbus and of justices of the peace for Montgomery township are abolished, and an entirely new court is created.

I am therefore of the opinion that the legislature is prohibited by section 27 of article II of the constitution of Ohio from appointing Mr. T. H. Hennessy, or any other person, as one of the judges of the municipal court of the city of Columbus.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI—TRUSTEES NOT REQUIRED TO PURCHASE SUPPLIES FROM PURCHASING DEPARTMENT ESTABLISHED UNDER SECTION 3626, G. C.

The trustees of the University of Cincinnati are not required to make purchases from purchasing department established under section 3626, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 21, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter of March 2, 1915, requesting my opinion upon the following question:

> "The city of Cincinnati has a regularly established purchasing department, established under authority of section 3626, General Code, et seq.
> "Are the trustees of the University of Cincinnat, acting under the special laws creating said board of trustees, required to make purchases of supplies, etc., through said purchasing department (see section 3626), or may they act independently of said department?"

Section 3626, G. C., authorizes council of a city:

> "To establish and furnish the necessary equipment for a municipal department to be known as the department of purchase, construction and repair. Such department shall be under the management and control of the director of public service, who shall purchase all material, supplies, tools, machinery and equipment, together with all construction, alterations and repairs of every kind and thing in each of the departments of the municipality whether established by law or ordinance."

Such department is under the management of the director of public service, who is required to purchase the things therein enumerated "in each of the departments of the municipality whether established by law or ordinance." The term "departments" as therein used has a peculiar signification and does not mean each and every branch of government, as, for example, under the provisions of section 4323 there is established a department of public service; under the provisions of section 4367 a department of public safety; under the provisions of section 4205-1 a municipal pawn department. See also sections 3787 and 3796.

The laws relating to municipal universities are contained in sections 4001-4003, inclusive, and sections 7902-7922, inclusive. In none of said sections, however, is there any indication that the legislature intended that such a university should be considered within the restricted definition of "department" of a municipality. Consequently I am of the opinion that the trustees of the University of Cincinnati are not required to make purchases of supplies, etc., through the purchasing department established under section 3626, G. C.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER—CONTRACT—FOR ROAD IMPROVEMENT IN CUYAHOGA COUNTY LEGALLY AWARDED.

Upon the facts as now submitted, a contract for a road improvement in Cuyahoga county was legally awarded by the state highway commissioner to the firm of Aikens & McCleary, and no legal ground exists for the cancellation of the same.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 22, 1915.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of March 30, 1915, your predecessor Hon. James R. Marker, addressed a communication to this department relative to a contract with the firm of Aikins & McCleary, the communication being received by me on April 2nd. In this communication it was stated that there was on file in the office of the state highway commissioner an opinion rendered January 6, 1915, by my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, relative to the Aikins & McCleary contract. It was further stated that this opinion was based upon a certain statement of facts incorporated in the formal request for the same, and that it now appears that a full and complete statement of facts was not submitted and that certain undisclosed facts existed which, had they been known at the time the opinion was rendered, might have had a bearing upon the decision of the attorney general. These additional facts are submitted with the communication of your predecessor in the form of correspondence and affidavits, and my opinion is requested as to the matter involved.

From an examination of the files of this office, it appears that the communication of my predecessor, under date of January 6, 1915, was not in the nature of a formal opinion, but was merely a letter addressed to the state highway commissioner, in response to a request as to how to proceed in the matter of the Aikins & McCleary contract. It also appears from the letter of my predecessor above referred to, that the facts on which the same was based were not embodied in any formal request for an opinion, but were gathered from the correspondence on file in the office of the state highway commissioner, and in an informal way by a representative of this department.

The only document on the files of this office which appears to relate to the Aikins & McCleary contract, other than the letter of my predecessor referred to above, is a letter from Mr. Marker, under date of December 4, 1914, addressed to this department, in which the following language was used:

> "The county surveyor of Cuyahoga county some months ago asked our advice as to what disposition should be made of a certain contract which had been awarded, under what seemed to be suspicious circumstances, to a former employee of the Cuyahoga county surveyor's office. This matter was turned over to Mr. P. J. Monahan, and he and Mr. H. J. Bradbury called upon the county surveyor at Cleveland in an attempt to adjust it. They are both familiar with all the facts, and should again confer with the Cuyahoga county officials without unnecessary delay."

The letter of my predecessor dated January 6, 1915, and referred to as an opinion in the communication of your predecessor, dated March 30, 1915, appears to have been an answer to the letter quoted above, and reads as follows:

In re—AIKINS & MCCLEARY CONTRACT.

"You have asked for advice as to how to proceed in the above entitled matter.

"The facts as taken from the correspondence and from personal investigation by your department, are that you appointed Mr. Frank Lander, the surveyor of Cuyahoga county, as resident engineer for that county, to make surveys of and to prepare land estimates and specifications for the improvement of the Richmond road, section No. 7, in said county.

"A Mr. McCleary, who was a deputy in the office of the county surveyor, was authorized by his chief to direct the work of surveying said road and of the making of plans, specifications and estimates for the construction thereof. Mr. McCleary certified to the highway commissioner the results of his alleged survey.

"After the time of making the survey, etc., and before the advertisement for bids and the letting of the contract for said improvement, Mr. McCleary retired from the county surveyor's office and formed a partnership with a Mr. Aikins under the firm name of Aikins & McCleary. This firm submitted a bid for the construction of said improvement, and its bid being the lowest, was accepted. A contract was duly entered into between you, representing the state, and the firm of Aikins & McCleary.

"After entering into the contract, but before any work was done thereunder, the alleged discovery was made that certain quantities named in the alleged estimates of Mr. McCleary were much in excess of the actual quantities to be moved. It is stated in the correspondence that no actual survey had been made for this improvement, from which the quantities could be accurately computed, because it was presumed that the work would be let on a unit price basis and that Mr. McCleary had knowledge that the quantities were excessive.

"My advice to you, based upon the above mentioned information, is to declare said alleged contract forfeited on the ground that the estimate certified to you by Mr. McCleary, upon which the contract was based, was grossly excessive, and furthermore that it is against public policy to permit Mr. McCleary to derive benefit from the knowledge he had of the facts surrounding this transaction. You should then have a proper estimate made, readvertise for bids, and award the contract to the lowest bidder."

Attached to the request for an opinion on the facts as they now appear are certain documents, which documents are as follows: First, a letter to Mr. Marker from Tolles, Hogsett, Ginn & Morley, attorneys of Cleveland, Ohio, representing Aikins & McCleary; Second, affidavit of J. M. McCleary, member of the firm of Aikins & McCleary; third, affidavit of S. H. Murdock, a former employ of the county surveyor's office of Cuyahoga county; fourth, letter from Tolles, Hogsett, Ginn & Morley to William A. Stinchcomb, resident engineer for Cuyahoga county; and fifth, a letter from Mr. Stinchcomb to Tolles, Hogsett, Ginn & Morley. I am left to gather from these exhibits the facts on which my opinion is now requested, and have therefore been forced to resort to the files in your office and to a report of a personal investigation of the matter made at Cleveland by a representative of this department, in an effort to secure all the facts before passing on the matter.

In this connection it should be stated that certain correspondence relating to the Aikins & McCleary contract appears to be missing from the files of your office. The filing clerk states that this correspondence was taken in 1914 from the files in the office of the state highway commissioner by a representative of this department, who was engaged in investigating the matter, and that the correspondence in question was mislaid or lost and cannot now be found. The facts as they now appear are as folows:-

In September, 1913, Aikins & McCleary bid on the construction of an intercounty highway in Cuyahoga county. The bids were opened on October 1, 1913, and Aikins & McCleary were awarded the contract upon their bid of $65,981.00, the estimate for the work being $68,031.50. There were two bidders other than Aikins & McCleary and their bids were $67,600.00 and 67,800.00 respectively. A contract was duly entered into between Aikins & McCleary and the state highway commissioner acting on behalf of the state of Ohio, and work was started on the construction of the road. In the meantime, there had been a change in resident engineers on this road improvement. Mr. William A. Stinchcomb succeeded Mr. Frank R. Lander, and Mr. Stinchcomb called the attention of the highway department to certain alleged irregularities affecting the contract. The matter was referred to the then attorney general, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, who advised that the alleged contract be declared forfeited, his decision being based on the supposed facts set forth in his letter of advice to the state highway commissioner under date of January 6, 1915, and quoted above. Aikins & McCleary had started work on the road on March 26, 1914, but on March 28, 1914, the state highway commissioner notified them not to do any more work on the road until the matters brought to the attention of the highway department by Mr. Stinchcomb had been adjusted. Aikins & McCleary complied with the terms of the notice given them by the state highway commissioner and have not done any further work on the road, but have always insisted that they had been legally awarded the contract and that they would insist upon being allowed to perform the same. It will be noted from the above that the charge that there was something irregular in the awarding of this contract was in the hands of the state highway commissioner as early as March 28, 1914, but that the letter of advice of my predecessor to the effect that the contract be declared forfeited or cancelled was not written until January 6, 1915.

It now develops that the assumed facts upon which the letter of advice of my predecessor was based were not correct, and that in some manner he had been misinformed as to the real facts of the case. The actual facts were that prior to September 1, 1913, J. M. McCleary was employed as a deputy in the office of the county surveyor of Cuyahoga county, Mr. Frank R. Lander. On September 1, 1913, upon the retirement of Mr. Lander from office of county surveyor, Mr. McCleary left the employ of that office and formed a partnership with one Aikins for the purpose of engaging in the contracting business. Mr. Lander had been appointed resident engineer on the road improvement in question on June 27, 1913. As such resident engineer in the month of August, 1913, he designated one S. H. Murdock, who had been employed as one of Mr. Lander's deputies in the county surveyor's office, to prepare an estimate for the road improvement in question. This duty was performed by Murdock and McCleary had nothing whatever to do with the preparation of this estimate, neither had he anything to do with the old survey on which this estimate was based. After McCleary left the office of the county surveyor on September 1, 1913, and formed his partnership with Aikins, the firm about September 15, 1913, bid on the road improvement in question and was awarded the contract. McCleary in his affidavit says that before bidding for the contract he made a personal investigation of the improvement in question, going over the road with the grading foreman employed by his firm, and afterward making a comparison between the estimate and the actual grading paid for on a similar section of this road, and that from this investigation he gathered the information on which he based his firm's bid. It appears as a matter of fact that the estimate made by Murdock was largely a guess, that he made little effort to get exact results due to his understanding that the contract was to be let on a unit price basis rather than on lump sum bids, and due to the further fact that the state highway department insisted on the estimate being made in a very few days, the time not permitting a careful survey of the road. As a result, Murdock's estimate of the amount of excavation was considerably in excess of the amount that will actually be required in the performance of the contract.

Previous to this time it had been the custom of the highway department to let all Cuyahoga county contracts on a unit price basis, but this contract was advertised to be let on lump sum bids. As soon as the form of the advertisement came to the notice of Mr. Lander, he called the attention of the highway department to the fact that the grading estimate was probably excessive, inasmuch as the estimate was prepared on the theory that bids were to be taken on a unit price basis. The highway department, however, took no action on the information furnished by Mr. Lander, evidently relying upon the printed information furnished all bidders to the effect that the estimates were only approximate, although the result of calculation, and that the contractor must be responsible for his own data on which to base his bid. There is no evidence of fraud or of collusion between Murdock and McCleary, and no charge made by any person that any such fraud or collusion existed. It is not claimed by any one that the Aikins & McCleary bid is excessive, taking into account the work that will actually be required in the performance of the contract, and Mr. Stinchcomb, the present resident engineer, in his letter to Tolles, Hogsett, Ginn & Morley, has the following to say:

> "The present controversy results in no way because of a belief in the mind of the writer that the amount bid for the work to be done is unreasonable or excessive, and your statement that in comparison with similar work on the same road, it appears that the bid submitted by Aikins & McCleary is practically the same per mile as that for which the previous work was done, is correct."

Upon the above statement of facts the question presents itself as follows: Is a firm disqualified from bidding on a contract for a road improvement to be let by the state of Ohio upon the ground and for the reason that a member of the firm was in the employ of the county surveyor as a deputy at the time the estimate was prepared for the proposed state road improvement, the county surveyor and the resident engineer on the proposed state road improvement being the same person, the member of the firm in question not having anything to do with the preparation of the estimate or the survey on which the same was based, that work being done by another person under the direction of the resident engineer, it being a fact that the estimate was considerably in excess of the actual amount of grading required to be done in the performance of the contract, and the further fact existing that all bidders were required, in submitting their bids, to use a blank upon which was the printed information that the estimates were only approximate and that contractors must be responsible for their own data on which to base their bids.

I am of the opinion that this question must be answered in the negative, and that upon the facts above stated, the firm of Aikins & McCleary was not disqualified from bidding on the contract in question. The contract having been awarded to said firm, I am of the opinion that the facts stated above, standing alone, do not constitute a ground for cancelling the contract.

This opinion is based upon the assumption that the facts now presented to me and stated herein are true, and that they constitute all material facts in the case.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

TOWNSHIP BONDS—ERROR IN PRINTING AS TO DATE OF MATURITY —TERMS OF RESOLUTION OF TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES WILL GOVERN IN SUCH CASES.

A typographical or clerical error in the printing of township's bond as to the date of maturity will be controlled by the terms of the resolution authorizing their issuance relative thereto and the bonds will mature according to the terms of the resolution.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 22, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your request under date of April 7, 1915, for an opinion as follows:

> "1. If a board of township trustees issue bonds in the sum of $20,000.00 for the improvement of roads in the township, the first bond to mature September, 1914, and it develops later that in printing the bonds a mistake was made and that they were all made to mature in 1920, and the bank holding same has agreed to accept payment as provided in the original resolution, may township trustees pay in addition to the interest accrued on the bonds up to the correct date of its maturity, an additional amount to cover the time from said date to the time of the compromise? In other words, can they legally pay interest in excess of the amount that would have been due had the bond been printed and delivered as provided for in the resolution authorizing the issue?
> "2. Inasmuch as the bonds delivered did not conform in date of maturity to the resolution authorizing same, can such bonds be legally paid at any time?"

It is assumed from your statement that every statutory requirement essential to the validity of the issue and sale of the bonds referred to was fully complied with up to the point of delivery of the bonds and that it was contemplated and provided throughout the proceedings for the issue and sale of said bonds that the same or a part thereof should fall due and be paid at intervals, the first installment to be paid September, 1914.

The power of trustees to issue and sell bonds is confined strictly within the statutory authority therefor and is dependent upon a strict conformity to the procedure therein prescribed. It is stated that the original resolution of the trustees provided that the first bond should become due in September, 1914, and from that it is assumed that the entire issue was to be paid at intervals definitely fixed in such resolution. This resolution was an essential prerequisite to the issuance of the bonds upon which the subsequent proceedings leading up to the sale of the same was based, and a matter of record, and fixed the limitations of the authority of the trustees beyond which they could create no legal liability of the township.

Of all the terms of this resolution and its consequent limitations and restrictions upon the power and authority of the trustees, the purchaser must be conclusively presumed to have had actual notice at the time of his acceptance of such bonds.

Section 2295-3, G. C., 103 O. L., 179, makes it the duty of the clerk or other officer having charge of the minutes of the trustees of the township to furnish to the successful bidder a true transcript of all resolutions, notices and other proceedings had with reference to the issuance of said bonds, etc. So that notwithstanding the recitals of the bonds, the purchaser had full knowledge of terms of the resolution and the extent of the authority of the trustees, and is bound thereby.

It then became the duty of the purchaser of such bonds to present them for payment when they were made by the terms of the resolution to become due, and upon failure so to do, the interest thereon would cease to run if there was then money in the treasury of the township sufficient in amount and applicable to the payment thereof. If such of these bonds as in fact by the terms of the resolution became due in September, 1914, were not then nor thereafter presented for payment, and if there was then money in the treasury of the township sufficient in amount and applicable to the payment thereof, no interest accruing subsequent thereto may lawfully be paid.

From this it also follows that the remainder of the bonds should be paid at the time fixed in the resolution for their maturity.

It is suggested further that with the consent of the purchasers of said bonds the date of the maturity should be corrected on the face thereof to correspond with the provisions of the resolution in that regard.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BONDS ISSUED PURSUANT TO VOTE OF PEOPLE—DESTRUCTION OF SCHOOL BUILDING BY FIRE OR OTHER CASUALTY—BY ORDER OF CHIEF INSPECTOR OF WORKSHOPS AND FACTORIES—LEVY NOT WITHIN FIVE MILL LIMITATION OR ANY LIMITATIONS OF SMITH ONE PER CENT. LAW—BOARD OF EDUCATION—AUTHORITY TO BORROW MONEY OR ISSUE BONDS UNDER SECTION 5656, G. C.—AUTHORITY OF BOARD OF EDUCATION TO EXERCISE LEVYING POWER.

A levy for the payment of principal and interest on bonds issued to erect or repair school buildings, rendered necessary as a compliance with the orders of the chief inspector of workshops and factories or by the destruction of school buildings by fire or other casualty, said bonds being issued pursuant to a vote of the people, is not within the five mill limitation or any of the other limitations of the Smith one per cent. law.

A board of education not having fully exercised the authority conferred by law to levy taxes for sinking fund and interest on bonds falling due, is not authorized to borrow money or issue bonds for the purpose of extending or refunding said indebtedness under the provisions of section 5656, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 22, 1915.

HON. J. H. MUSSER, Prosecuting Attorney, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of March 17, 1915, you submitted to me for written opinion thereon, the following statement of facts and inquiries, to wit:

> "After May 31, 1911, the New Knoxville village school district voted a bond issue of $18, 500.00, under section 7625, G. C., it being necessary for the district to erect a new school house, for the reason that the use of the then existing school house had been prohibited, by an order of the chief inspector of workshops and factories.

"In July, 1914, the budget commissioners of Auglaize county fixed the following levy for New Knoxville village school district:

"Tuition	2.58 mills.
"Contingent	1.18 mills.
"Sinking, since May 31, 1911	1.24 mills.
"Total	5.00 mills.

"Their valuation is $774,740.00.

"The board of education must pay, each year, $750.00 of bonds, and about $800.00 interest, so that you can see, from the above levy for sinking fund, that the district will not have sufficient money with which to pay bond and interest this year.

"The budget commissioners were of the opinion, last July, that the levy for the sinking fund for this bond issue had to come within the five mill limitation, provided by section 5649-3a, G. C. It seems to me that this levy for sinking fund, under the provisions of section 7630-1, and section 5649-4, 103 Ohio Laws, 527, would not have to be included within the five mill limitation.

"Please advise me as to your ideas about the matter.

"If this levy for sinking fund could be made, in addition to the five mill limitation, what would you suggest as to the manner of taking care of their bonds and interest due this year, as they will not have sufficient money to do so. A part of their indebtedness is due in April. Do you think that this can be taken care of under section 5656, G. C.? The board desires to adjust this matter in some manner, and I wish you would give your opinion as to what would be best to do in the matter."

Section 7630-1, G. C., 103 O. L., 527, provides:

"If a school house is wholly or partly destroyed by fire or other casualty, or if the use of any school house for its intended purpose is prohibited by any order of the chief inspector of workshops and factories, and the board of education of the school district is without sufficient funds applicable to the purpose, with which to rebuild or repair such school house or to construct a new school house for the proper accommodation of the schools of the district, and it is not practicable to secure such funds under any of the six preceding sections because of the limits of taxation applicable to such school district, such board of education may, subject to the provisions of sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty-seven, and upon the approval of the electors in the manner provided by sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-five and seventy-six hundred and twenty-six issue bonds for the amount required for such purpose. For the payment of the principal and interest on such bonds and on bonds heretofore issued for the purposes herein mentioned, and to provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity, such board of education shall annually levy a tax as provided by law."

Section 5649-4, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 527, provides:

"For the emergencies mentioned in sections forty-four hundred and fifty, forty-four hundred and fifty-one, fifty-six hundred and twenty-nine, seventy-four hundred and nineteen, and 7630-1, of the General Code, the taxing authorities of any district may levy a tax sufficient to provide therefor irrespective of any of the limitations of this act."

Section 5649-4, supra, insofar as it relates to the provisions of section 7630-1, authorizes a levy irrespective of any of the limitations of the Smith law, so-called, for the payment of principal and interest on bonds that may be issued or bonds theretofore issued, for the purpose of rebuilding or repairing a school building or constructiong a new school building in compliance with the orders of the chief inspector of workshops and factories or when the same is rendered necessary by reason of the destruction of a school building by fire or other casualty. From your statement of facts it appears that bonds aggregating $18,500.00 were issued in New Knoxville village district for the purpose of erecting a new school building for the district, rendered necessary by the orders of the chief inspector of workshops and factories in prohibiting the further use of the then-existing school building; and that the bonds were issued pursuant to the provisions of section 7625, G. C., which requires the submission of the proposal to issue the bonds to the electors and its approval by a majority vote.

Your inquiry relates to the application of the five mill limitation of section 5649-3a to the power of the board to levy a tax for the payment of interest on such bonds to and provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity, under the facts as above stated. The five mill limitation is found in section 5649-3a, and that part of the section directly in point provides as follows:

> "* * * The aggregate of all taxes that may be levied by a county, for county purposes, on the taxable property in the county on the tax list, shall not exceed in any one year three mills. The aggregate of all taxes that may be levied by a municipal corporation on the taxable property in the corporation, for corporation purposes, on the tax list shall not exceed in any one year five mills. The aggregate of all taxes that may be levied by a township, for township purposes, on the taxable property in the township on the tax list, shall not exceed in any one year two mills. The local tax levy for all school purposes shall not exceed in any one year five mills on the dollar of valuation of taxable property in any school district. Such limits for county, township, municipal and school levies shall be exclusive of any special levy, provided for by a vote of the electors, special assessments, levies for road taxes that may be worked out by the taxpayers, and levies and assessments in special districts created for road or ditch improvements, over which the budget commissioners, shall have no control."

Your inquiry seems to be answered by the provisions of section 7630-1, G. C., and 5649-4, G. C., authorizing a levy outside all of the limitations of the law, for the payment of the principal and interest on the bonds, whether issued pursuant to section 7630-1 or theretofore issued, for the erection or repair of school buildings, rendered necessary in compliance with orders of the chief inspector of workshops and factories or where school buildings have been destroyed by fire or other casualty.

Your second inquiry relates to the power of the board to borrow money or issue bonds under the provisions of section 5656, G. C., which provides:

> "The trustees of a township, the board of education of a school district and the commissioners of a county, for the purpose of extending the time of payment of any indebtedness, which from its limits of taxation, such township, district, or county, is unable to pay at maturity, may borrow money or issue the bonds thereof, so as to change, but not increase the indebtedness in the amounts, for the length of time and at the rate of interest that said trustees, board or commissioners deem proper, not to exceed the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable annually or semi-annually."

From the conclusions above announced, it is apparent that the inability of the board of education here in question to pay the bonded indebtedness and interest falling due during the current year does not result directly from its limits of taxation, but rather from its failure to exercise its levying power to the extent conferred by law, and I am of the opinion that the plain language of section 5656, G. C., imposing the condition, viz.: inability to pay by reason of its limits of taxation, may not be disregarded, and that under the facts as above stated the board of education is not authorized to borrow money or issue bonds by the provision of the said section.

I do not find any statute making provision similar to that contained in section 5656, and applicable in its terms, to extension of time for payment of indebtedness which, from mere failure to levy as authorized by law, the taxing authority is unable to pay at maturity.

Section 5649-1, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 12, provides:

> "In any taxing district, the taxing authority shall, within the limitations now prescribed by law, levy a tax sufficient to provide for sinking fund and interest purposes for all bonds issued by any political subdivision, which tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items, and for the full amount thereof."

In respect to the levy for retiring the bonds in question, the foregoing section does not have the force of imposing any different limitation on the rate than that prescribed in the sections above quoted, but is effective to impose the duty of placing such tax before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof, and in any event the board of education should provide an adequate levy in the next annual budget to retire all outstanding bonds then due and unpaid together with the interest thereon.

It was the duty of the board to provide a levy sufficient to pay the interest on these outstanding bonds and to provide a sinking fund for their redemption at maturity, at the time of making the last annual levy, and the levy for this purpose does not come within any of the limitations of the law with respect to rates of taxation, and if necessary the board should have had recourse to the courts to carry into effect this requirement of the statutes.

Answering your question specifically, I am of the opinion:

First. That the levy for the interest and sinking fund purposes for the bonds mentioned in your statement of facts is not within the five mill limitation of section 5649-3a, nor is it within the ten mill limitation or the fifteen mill limitation of the Smith law.

Second. That the board of education is not authorized to borrow money or issue bonds to pay the bonded indebtedness falling due during the current year, under authority of section 5656, G. C., for the reason that the board has not exercised its powers to levy, as conferred by law, and is, therefore, not within the terms of section 5656, G. C., but must provide an amount sufficient in its next annual levy to pay both the bonds falling due this year and unpaid and those maturing during the ensuing year.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—ELECTORS IN TERRITORY ATTACHED TO VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT BY COUNTY BOARDS MAY VOTE ON ALL SCHOOL QUESTIONS AND OFFICES IN SUCH DISTRICT.

Electors residing in territory attached to a village school district for school purposes by the county board of education, may vote for school offices and on all questions in such village school district.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am directing to you an opinion upon a statement submitted to me by Hon. H. W. Woodruff, chief deputy supervisor of elections of Gallia county, which I consider of general public interest, as follows:

> "The school board of Vinton special school district have agreed upon a new high school building of the first grade, and have asked for a bond issue. The vote will be taken on it April 24th.
> "On March 5th, the school board advertised this bond issue in the local paper, and have continued it as the law prescribes.
> "On the 27th of March, the county school board met at the county superintendent's office and agreed by ballot to take in some additional territory into the Vinton special school district for the purpose of increasing the tax duplicate of said special district.
> "The parties so taken into the district were notified previous to this meeting so they might meet and state their objections to being set in if they had any. No objections were filed, so the board had a map drawn taking in some territory from Huntington township and a portion of Morgan township. The question now arising is this: Can the parties taken in vote on the bond issue next Saturday, April 24th? Will there be any difference between those of Huntington and those of Morgan township? The special district being in Huntington precinct, which was a part of Huntington township originally."

By virtue of section 4736, G. C. (104 O. L., 138), the county board of education is authorized to change the lines and territorial limits of school districts under its supervision, as follows:

> "The county board of education shall as soon as possible after organizing, make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the schools according to topography and population, in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at any regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. A map designating such changes shall be entered on the records of the board and a copy of the resolution and map shall be filed with the county auditor. In changing boundary lines, the board may proceed without regard to township lines and shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation. In no case shall any rural district be created containing less than fifteen square miles. In changing boundary lines and other work of a like nature, the county board shall ask the assistance of the county surveyor and the latter is hereby required to give the services of his office at the formal request of the county board."

It will be noted that the county board may make such changes without regard to township lines so that upon the action of the county board, in accordance with the provisions of the above section, the additional territory referred to in the above statement became a part of what is termed the Vinton school district, which I learn from the office of the superintendent of public instruction of the state, is a village school district for all school purposes, and the electors residing within such attached territory are therefore entitled to vote upon all school questions and for school officers of such village district.

Section 4711, G. C., provides as follows:

"Electors, residing in territory attached to a village district for school purposes, may vote for school officers and on all school questions at the proper voting place in the village to which the territory is attached. If the village is divided into precincts, the board of education of the village school district shall assign such attached territory to the adjoining precinct or precincts of the village, and have a map prepared showing such assignment, which map shall be made a part of the records of the board. Electors residing in such attached territory, may vote in the precinct to which they are assigned, but if no assignment of territory is made, they shall vote in the precinct nearest their residence. An elector residing in the village, but not in the village school district, shall not vote in such village school district."

The provisions of this section govern the conduct of school elections in such village school districts, and prescribe the rules for determining where such electors shall be allowed to vote upon school questions and for school officers.

It will be noted that the language of this section is substantially the same as that of section 4714, G. C., applicable to territory attached to township school districts for school purposes, and the last inquiry in the above statement is answered in opinion No. 104, under date of February 23, 1915, which holds, that unless there has been an assignment of territory made, the electors residing in the attached territory shall vote on school questions and for school officers in the precinct in which such elector resides.

It is suggested, that in this opinion, the validity of the bonds proposed to be issued is not under consideration, nor is the same here passed upon.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

OFFICES INCOMPATIBLE—DISTRICT ASSESSOR OR DEPUTY DISTRICT ASSESSOR—CITY CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

A district assessor or deputy district assessor may not be a member of a city civil service commission.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Deeming the same of importance and general public interest, I am directing to you an opinion upon a question submitted by Hon. Jonathan Taylor, city solicitor of the city of Akron, Ohio, which may be stated as follows:

> "May the district assessor, at the same time, serve as a member of a city civil service commission?"

This question involves a consideration of section 5617, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 796, as follows:

> "A district assessor, deputy assessor, member of a district board of complaints or any assistant, clerk or other employe of a district assessor or district board of complaints, shall not, during his term of office or period of service or employment, as fixed by law or prescribed by the tax commission of Ohio, hold any office of profit, except offices in the state militia and the office of notary public."

Section 486-19, G. C. (103 O. L., 708), provides for the appointment of a civil service commission in each city of the state, defines their duties and powers, prescribes the term of office and qualifications, and the first paragraph of said section concludes with the following provision:

> "The expense and salaries of any such municipal commission shall be determined by the council of the city and a sufficient sum of money shall be appropriated each year to carry out the provisions of this act in any such city."

From the unequivocal terms of section 5617, G. C., no district assessor, deputy assessor, member of a district board of complaints or any assistant, clerk or employe of such assessor or board may hold any office of profit, and it is provided that the city council shall determine the salaries of the members of city civil service commissions. The office of civil service commissioner of a city is, therefore, an office of profit within the terms of section 5617, G. C., and a district assessor, deputy assessor, member of a district board of complaints or any clerk, assistant or employe of such assessor or board may not hold the office of such commissioner.

The answer to the question here submitted must, therefore, in my opinion, be in the negative.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—MAY ALLOW AGENT APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR EXPENSES INCURRED TO EXTRADITE PERSONS CHARGED WITH FELONIES WHO HAVE FLED FROM THIS STATE—MISDEMEANOR CHARGE—FELONY.

The county commissioners, under authority of section 2491, G. C., may allow to an agent appointed by the governor, under section 109, G. C., his necessary expenses incurred in traveling to the governor's office at Columbus, to present the papers mentioned in sections 110 and 111, G. C.

The fact that a person returned to Ohio upon requisition under a felony charge is thereafter prosecuted on a misdemeanor charge, the felony charge being ignored, will not preclude the commissioners from allowing the necessary expenses of the agent.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your communication of April 9, 1915, which communication reads as follows:

"We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following questions:

"If a prosecuting attorney sends the sheriff, a constable, or a private individual with the necessary papers mentioned in sections 110 and 111 of the General Code, to the governor at Columbus, Ohio, for a requisition for the return of a person charged with a felony from another state, when does the officer, or person, so sent by the prosecuting attorney, become an agent of the state; at the time he leaves his county seat, or after the papers have been delivered to him by the governor?

"Section 2491, General Code, authorizes the county commissioners to pay the actual and necessary expenses of the agent designated in such requisition. The question is—If the person so designated does not become an agent of the state until after the governor has issued the requisition, how is he to be reimbursed for his expenses from the county that he started from to Columbus? If a sheriff, or constable, he does not really present any writs to the governor upon which mileage may be taxed under either section 2845 or 3347, G. C. Could this preliminary expense be paid by the prosecuting attorney out of his contingent fund, provided by section 3004, General Code?

"Can the county commissioners legally allow the necessary and actual expenses of an agent of the state who has brought back from another state, upon requisition, a person charged with a felony when, after said person is brought back, he is prosecuted on a misdemeanor charge, the felony charge under which he was extradited being ignored?"

Section 109, G. C., provides that on application the governor may appoint an agent to demand of the executive authority of another state or territory a person charged with felony who has fled from justice in this state. Sections 110 and 111, G. C., cited by you, provide that the application referred to in section 109, G. C., must be accompanied by sworn evidence of certain facts; a duly attested copy of an indictment or information, or a duly attested copy of a complaint, accompanied with an affidavit or affidavits to the facts constituting the offense charged, by persons having actual knowledge thereof; a statement in writing from the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, which statement shall set forth certain facts, and such further evidence as the governor may require.

Section 2491, G. C., provides as follows:

> "When any person charged with a felony has fled to any other state, territory or country, and the governor has issued a requisition for such person, or has requested the president of the United States to issue extradition papers, the commissioners may pay from the county treasury to the agent designated in such requisition or request to execute them, all necessary expenses of pursuing and returning such person so charged, or so much thereof as to them seems just."

You now inquire when a person who is sent by the prosecuting attorney of a county to the governor at Columbus with the necessary papers mentioned in sections 110 and 111, G. C., and who is appointed under section 109, G. C., as agent to demand of the executive authority of another state or territory a person charged with felony who has fled from justice in this state, becomes the agent of the state, an answer to that question being necessary to a determination of the further question as to the right of the county commissioners to make reimbursement under section 2491, G. C., for the expenses incurred by such person in traveling to Columbus to present the papers mentioned in sections 110 and 111, G. C.

You will note that the authority given the county commissioners by section 2491, G. C., is very broad, they being authorized to pay all the necessary expenses of pursuing and returning the accused, or so much thereof as to them seems just. I am unable to say that the expense incurred by a person in carrying to the governor's office at Columbus the papers mentioned in sections 110 and 111, G. C., is not a necessary expense incident to the pursuit of the accused. On the other hand, it is often of vital importance that extradition papers be secured without any delay, and necessary that a messenger be used in transmitting to the office of the governor the papers required by the statutes. I am, therefore, of the opinion, from the language of the statute and the nature of the matter, that in case the person carrying to the office of the governor in Columbus the papers mentioned in sections 110 and 111, G. C., is designated as agent under section 109, G. C., then the expenses of such person while engaged in carrying said papers to the office of the governor may be allowed by the county commissioners under section 2491, G. C. Such expenses being covered by said section 2491, G. C., it follows that they should not be paid by the prosecuting attorney out of the allowance made to him by section 3004, G. C., for the reason that they are otherwise provided for by law.

Your next inquiry is as follows: Can the county commissioners legally allow the necessary and actual expenses of an agent of the state who has brought back from another state upon requisition a person charged with a felony, when after said person is brought back he is prosecuted on a misdemeanor charge, the felony charge under which he was extradited being ignored? In answering this question, it is necessary to look only to the provisions of section 2491, G. C., above quoted. Under that section it is only necessary in order that the county commissioners may allow the necessary expenses of the agent in pursuing and returning the accused, or so much of such expenses as to them seems just, that the accused should be charged with a felony, that he should have fled to some other state, territory or country, and that the governor should have issued a requisition for such person, or should have requested the president of the United States to issue the extradition papers. It will be seen that the right of the county commissioners to reimburse the agent for expenses incurred is in no way made dependent upon the subsequent bringing to trial of the accused upon the charge on which he was extradited, or indeed upon his subsequently being brought to trial upon any charge. I am, therefore, of the opinion that under the facts related by you, the county commissioners have authority to allow the necessary expenses of the agent incurred in pursuing and returning the accused, or so much thereof as to them seems just.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL — APPLICATION OF SECTION 3141 G. C., FOR MAINTAINING SUCH HOSPITAL—EXPENSES OF PATIENTS IN COUNTY WHERE THERE IS NO SUCH HOSPITAL—HOW PAID—POOR FUND—COUNTY INFIRMARY.

The provision of section 3141, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 492, authorizing an annual tax levy to provide a fund for maintaining a county tuberculosis hospital, does not apply to a county which does not maintain such a hospital, and, in such county, the county commissioners should make appropriation to meet the expense resulting from a contract made under authority of, and in compliance with, the requirements of section 3143, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 492, out of the infirmary or poor fund of said county.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter of March 20, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

> "When county commissioners make arrangements for the care and maintenance of tubercular patients under the provisions of section 3143, as amended 103, O. L., page 492, out of what fund shall appropriations be made to meet this expense—the county fund, or the infirmary or poor fund?"

Sections 3139 to 3143, both inclusive, of the General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 492, provides as follows:

> "Section 3139. On and after January first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, no person suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, commonly known as consumption, shall be kept in any county infirmary.
> "Section 3140. Whenever complaint is made to the state board of health that a person is being kept or maintained in any county infirmary in violation of section 3139 of this act, such state board of health may make arrangements for the maintenance of such person in some hospital or other institution in this state, devoted to the care and treatment of cases of tuberculosis, and the cost of removal to, and the cost of maintenance of, such person in such hospital or institution shall become a legal charge against, and be paid by the county in which such person has a legal residence. If such person is not a legal resident of this state, then such expense shall be paid by the county maintaining the infirmary from which removal is made.
> "Section 3141. In any county where a county hospital for tuberculosis has been erected, such county hospital for tuberculosis may be maintained by the county commissioners, and for the purpose of maintaining such hospital the county commissioners shall annually levy a tax and set aside the sum necessary for such maintenance. Such sum shall not be used for any other purpose.

"Section 3142. An accurate account shall be kept of all moneys received from patients or from other sources, which shall be applied toward the payment of maintaining a tuberculosis hospital. The joint board of commissioners, as hereinafter provided for, may receive for the use of the hospital, in its name, gifts, legacies, devises, conveyances of real or personal property or money.

"Section 3143. Instead of joining in the erection of a district hospital for tuberculosis, as hereinafter provided for, the county commissioners may contract with the board of trustees, as hereinafter provided for, of a district hospital, the county commissioners of a county now maintaining a county hospital for tuberculosis, or with the proper officer of a municipality where such hospital has been constructed, for the care and treatment of the inmates of such infirmary or other residents of the county who are suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. The commissioners of the county in which such patients reside shall pay to the board of trustees of the district hospital or into the proper fund of the county maintaining a hospital for tuberculosis, or into the proper fund of the city receiving such patients, the actual cost incurred in their care and treatment, and other necessaries, and they shall also pay for their transportation. Provided, that the county commissioners of any county may contract for the care and treatment of the inmates of the county infirmary or other residents of the county suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis with an association or corporation, incorporated under the laws of Ohio for the exclusive purpose of caring for and treating persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis; but no such contract shall be made until the institution has been inspected and approved by the state board of health, and such approval may be withdrawn and such contracts shall be cancelled if, in the judgment of the state board of health, the institution is not managed in a proper manner. Provided, however, that if such approval is withdrawn, the board of trustees of such institution may have the right of appeal to the governor and attorney general and their decision shall be final."

The provisions of sections 3139 and 3140 of the General Code, as amended, make it mandatory for the county commissioners to remove from the county infirmary all persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis and to provide for their care and treatment in a tuberculosis hospital.

In a county which has not erected a county tuberculosis hospital, and which does not join in the erection and maintenance of a district tuberculosis hospital, under authority of sections 3148, et seq., of the General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 494, the county commissioners of such county may contract for the care and treatment of the inmates of the county infirmary or other residents of the county, who are suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, in the manner provided in section 3143, G. C., as amended. In case such contract is made, the county commissioners of such county are required to pay the actual cost incurred in the care and treatment of such patients and for other necessaries furnished to them, and you inquire out of what fund said expense shall be paid.

Section 3143, G. C., prior to the above amendment, provided as follows:

"Instead of providing for the erection of a hospital for tuberculosis, the commissioners and infirmary directors may contract with the infirmary directors of a county or with the proper officer of a municipality, where such hospital has been constructed, for the care and treatment of the inmates of such infirmary or other residents of the county who are suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. The infirmary directors of the county in which such patients reside shall pay into the poor fund of the county or into the proper fund of the city receiving such patients, the actual cost incurred in their care and treatment, and other necessaries, and they shall also pay for their transportation."

It is evident, that prior to the establishment of a maintenance fund, under authority of section 3141, G. C., the expense of maintaining a county tuberculosis hospital was properly paid out of the county poor fund. It necessarily follows that, where a county did not maintain a tuberculosis hospital, and did not join in the establishment and maintenance of a district hospital, under authority of sections 3148, et seq., of the General Code, the expense incident to a compliance with the requirement of section 3143, G. C., was properly paid out of the county poor fund of such county.

Inasmuch as the provision of section 3141, G. C., as amended, authorizes an annual tax levy to provide a fund for maintaining a county tuberculosis hospital, does not apply to a county which does not maintain such a hospital, I am of the opinion that in such county, the county commissioners should make appropriation to meet the expense resulting from a contract made under authority of, and in compliance with, the requirements of section 3143, G. C., as amended, out of the infirmary or poor fund of said county.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OHIO SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' ORPHANS' HOME—SUPERINTENDENT—APPOINTMENT—BOND.

The trustees of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home are authorized to appoint a superintendent for said home, require him to give a bond and fix his salary.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

HON. JOSEPH O'NEALL, Commissioner of Soldiers' Claims, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your communication of April 14, 1915, in which you inquire as follows:

"Have the trustees of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home statutory authority to appoint a superintendent of said home, require him to give a bond and fix his salary?"

The board of trustees of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home is created by section 1931-1, G. C., 103 O. L., 159, and in that section is found the following provision:

"Such board shall govern, conduct and care for such home, the property thereof and the inmates therein as provided in the laws governing 'the Ohio board of administration,' so far as the provisions thereof are not inapplicable and are not inconsistent with the provisions of the laws governing such home."

The provisions of law governing the home are found in section 1931 to 1946-2, inclusive, of the General Code. These sections contain numerous references to a superintendent for the home, but no authority to employ a superintendent is specifically conferred by them. Section 1946, G. C., found in the chapter relating to the home, provides that the compensation of the officers and employees of the home shall be fixed by the board of trustees. The statutes relating specifically to the home are silent as to requiring bonds of the officers and employees of the home. From the above it will be seen that the sections of the General Code relating specifically to the home authorize the trustees of the home to fix the salary of the superintendent, but are absolutely silent as to any authority in the trustees or in any other officer or board to appoint a superintendent or to require the appointee to furnish bond for the faithful performance of his duties as superintendent.

In view of the above facts, reference must be had to the laws governing the Ohio board of administration, this reference being warranted by the provision of section 1931-1, G. C., 103 O. L., 159, above quoted, to the effect that the board of trustees of the home shall govern, conduct and care for the home as provided in the laws governing the Ohio board of administration, so far as the provisions thereof are not inapplicable and are not inconsistent with the provisions of the laws governing such home.

Section 1842, G. C., being one of the sections relating to the Ohio board of administration, provides in part as follows:

> "Each of said institutions shall be under the executive control and management of a superintendent or other chief officer designated by the title peculiar to the institution, subject to the rules and regulations of the board and the provisions of this act. Such chief officer shall be appointed by the board to serve for the term of four years, unless removed for want of moral character, incompetency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance, after opportunity to be heard."

Section 1855, G. C., being another of the sections relating to the Ohio board of administration, provides as follows:

> "The board shall require its secretary and fiscal supervisor, and each officer and employe of every institution under its control, who may be charged with custody or control of any money or property belonging to the state, or who is now required by law to give bond, to give a surety company bond, properly conditioned, in a sum to be fixed by the board, which when approved by the boards shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. The cost of such bonds, when approved by the board, shall be paid from funds available for the board or the respective institutions."

Nothing in the above quoted provisions of sections 1842 or 1855 of the General Code is inapplicable to the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, and nothing therein is inconsistent with the provisions of the laws governing such home. I am therefore of the opinion that by virtue of sections 1931-1 and 1842 of the General Code, the trustees of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home are authorized and required to appoint a superintendent for such home to serve for the term of four years, unless removed for want of moral character, incompetency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance, after opportunity to be heard.

By virtue of sections 1931-1 and 1855 of the General Code, the trustees of said home must require the superintendent to give a surety company bond, properly conditioned in a sum to be fixed by the trustees. As already indicated, the trustees of said home are authorized and required by section 1946, G. C., to fix the compensation of the superintendent.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—BOND ISSUE UNDER AUTHORITY OF SECTION 7625, G. C.—WHEN UNDER SECTION 7629, G. C., ADDITIONAL SUM FOR SAME PURPOSE CANNOT BE PROVIDED.

Where a board of education of a school district submits the question of a bond issue to a vote of the electors of the district, under authority of, and in compliance with, the requirements of sections 7625, et seq., of the General Code, for any of the purposes mentioned therein, by submitting said bond issue for an amount of money which said board estimates will be sufficient for said purpose, said board exhausts its authority for this particular purpose and cannot provide an additional sum for the same purpose, under authority of section 7629, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

HON. E. A. SCOTT, Prosecuting Attorney, West Union, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of March 27, 1915, you request my opinion as follows:

> "Kindly give me your opinion on the following:
> "Section 7629 of Code, provides that board of education can issue bonds without submitting same to electors when the aggregate does not go above the rate of two mills on taxable property The tax duplicate shows property to the amount of $738,000.00 in West Union special school district. Bond issue for repairing school building a few weeks past amounts to $4,200.00; vote on same by people. The old debt against school district for bond issue amounts to $2,800.00, making a total amount of $7,000.00. The last bond issue is for heating apparatus, and contracts are to be let Friday night. It will take $500.00 to complete contract, and can board of education issue $500.00 in bonds under the above section without vote on same?"

From your statement of facts, I understand that the board of education of West Union special district, acting under authority of section 7625, G. C., submitted to the electors of said district the question of issuing $4,200.00 of bonds for the purpose of installing heating plants in certain school buildings in said district; that a majority of the electors voting on said proposition voted in favor thereof, and that said bonds have been issued in conformity with the requirements of section 7625, et seq., of the General Code. The board of education having taken the necessary steps preliminary to the opening of bids and the awarding of the contracts, as are required by law, you now anticipate that the lowest bid submitted will be for a greater amount than the amount in the treasury of said board of education at its disposal for the above mentioned purpose, including the amount realized from the sale of bonds issued under authority of section 7625, et seq., of the General Code.

You assume that an additional sum of $500.00 will be needed by said board of education before it can let said contract, and you inquire whether said board can issue bonds in this amount without a vote of the electors of the district under authority of section 7629, G. C.

Before the board of education can exercise its authority under section 7625, et seq., of the General Code, it must determine first that for the proper accommodation of the schools of the district, it is necessary to make the proposed improvement; second, that the funds at its disposal or that can be raised under the provisions of section 7629 and section 7630, are not sufficient to accomplish the purpose and that a bond issue is necessary.

Section 7629, General Code, provides:

"The board of education of any school district may issue bonds to obtain or improve public school property, and in anticipation of income from taxes, for such purposes, levied or to be levied, from time to time, as occasion requires, may issue and sell bonds, under the restrictions and bearing a rate of interest specified in sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty-seven. The board shall pay such bonds and the interest thereon when due, but provide that no greater amount of bonds be issued in any year than would equal the aggregate of a tax at the rate of two mills, for the year next preceding such issue. The order to issue bonds shall be made only at a regular meeting of the board, and by a vote of two-thirds of its full membership, taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon its journal."

The requirements that the board shall first determine that the funds that may be raised under the provision of section 7629, General Code, will not be sufficient to accomplish the purpose in question, does nor necessarily imply that the board shall first exhaust its power under said section and may only invoke the provisions of sections 7625, et seq., of the General Code, to provide the deficiency remairing. On the contrary, the requirements of section 7625, G. C., are satisfied when the board, in anticipating the probable cost of the contemplated improvement, finds and determines that the funds that may be raised under the limitations of section 7629, G. C., will be insufficient, and that a bond issue outside of such limitations will be necessary.

Having made this determination, and proceeded to the issue of bonds under the provisions of section 7625, et seq., of the General Code, with the approval of a vote of the electors, it now appears to the board of education that the amount of money in the school treasury available for the purpose of the proposed improvement, including the amount realized form the sale of the bonds, will be insufficient for said purpose. From the facts stated, it further appears that the additional sum of $500.00, which you estimate will be needed before the contract can be let for said purpose, can be produced by a bond issue within the two mill limitation upon the taxable property of this district, if the authority of section 7629, G. C., may be invoked.

Inasmuch as the board of education of the West Union special school district, before submitting the question of a bond issue, to a vote of the electors of said district, for the purpose hereinbefore mentioned, determined that the funds available for such purpose, or that might be raised under the provisions of sections 7629 to 7630, G. C., would not be sufficient for such purpose, and that a bond issue under the provisions of sections 7625, et seq., of the General Code, would be necessary, by submitting the question of a bond issue to the electors of said district, under authority of sections 7625, et seq., of the General Code, for an amount of money which said board estimated would be sufficient for said purpose, said board has exhausted its authority for this particular purpose, and I am of the opinion that said board cannot now provide an additional sum for this same purpose by a bond issue, under authority of section 7629, General Code.

The board of education can revise its plans and specifications for the purpose of reducing the estimated cost of the proposed improvement and again advertise for bids. In all probability the money in the treasury available for the purpose of making such improvement will then be sufficient.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

SCHOOL AND MINISTERIAL LANDS—ORIGINAL SURVEYED TOWNSHIPS—LEASES OF SUCH LANDS—APPLICATION OF PRESENT LAW RESERVING OIL, GAS, COAL AND OTHER MINERALS, TO FORMER LEASES OF SUCH LANDS.

Section 3209-1, G. C. (105 O. L.), applies to unsold portions of sections sixteen and twenty-nine, or other lands granted in lieu thereof, of original surveyed townships under lease.

Section 3210, G. C. (105 O. L.), applies to all unsold portions of section sixteen and twenty-nine, or other lands granted in lieu thereof, of original surveyed townships not under lease.

Section 3210 (105 O. L.), applies to surrender of all leases of sections sixteen and twenty-nine, or other lands granted in lieu thereof, of original surveyed townships entered into prior to legislation permitting surrender.

As to whether section 3210 (105 O. L.), applies to surrender of leases of sections sixteen and twenty-nine, or other lands granted in lieu thereof, of original surveyed townships entered into after legislation permitting surrender not answered because the right to surrender such lease would depend on the legislation existing at the time of entering into lease.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

HON. C. B. SMITH, State Representative, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of April 8th you submitted for my opinion the following:

"At the second extraordinary session held July 20, 1914, a law was passed relating to the school and ministerial lands, known as sections sixteen and twenty-nine of the original surveyed townships. This law provides in part that in all sales or leases of such lands by the state, all oil, gas, coal and other minerals shall be reserved to the state.

"During the first half of the nineteenth century, many of these lands were leased for a ninety-nine year term, renewable forever, and such lands are still held under the original tenure. The laws under which these leases were made were supposed to be valid enactments of the legislature. The law as passed July 20, 1914, without doubt, would apply to the sales or leases made subsequent to its passage, but the question is—does such law apply to the leases and sales made prior to the passage of such law. Many of the lessees of the school lands have failed to pay the annual rentals provided for in such leases, and they undoubtedly would be amenable to the law, but I would like to know whether any lessee who had paid his rentals to date, as per the original agreement, and in whose lease no reservation of any kind was made as to any mineral rights, possesses such rights, or whether the state of Ohio could read into his lease conditions and reservations which were not contemplated at the time such lease was made, or whether such application would not make the law retro-active and in abrogation of the right of contract. Persons holding the leases in good faith should be protected, and if the late law takes away this protection I shall introduce a bill amending the law so that it will not operate against lessees whose leases were made prior to its enactment. If it is your opinion that such a law is inoperative as to such persons, an amendment will be unnecessary.

"Enclosed I am sending you a copy of the act in question and should like very much to have your opinion as to the necessity of an amendment to accomplish my purpose."

Section 3210, G. C., as amended, 105 O. L., —, provides in part as follows:

> "Section sixteen and all lands instead thereof, granted for school purposes, may be sold, and such sales shall be according to the regulations hereinafter prescribed. * * * Provided, that such sales shall exclude all oil, gas, coal, or other minerals on or under such lands, and all deeds executed and delivered by the state shall expressly reserve to the state all gas, oil, coal, or other minerals, on or under such lands, with the right of entry in and upon said premises for the purpose of selling or leasing the same, or prospecting, developing or operating the same, and this provision shall affect and apply to pending actions."

Section 3222, as amended, 105 O. L., —, which relates to the surrender of leases of school lands and the purchase of the fee thereof, provides as follows:

> "Section 3222. On being satisfied of the truth of the facts set forth in such petition, the court shall appoint such appraisers who shall proceed under oath to make a just valuation of the premises in money without reference to the improvements made thereon under and by reason of such lease, or to any gas, oil, coal or other minerals that may be upon such lands, and shall return such valuation in writing to the court. If satisfied that the valuation is just, the court shall confirm it, and order it, with the petition and other proceedings therein to be recorded."

In your letter you state the question to be whether such law applies to leases and sales of school lands made prior to the passage of such law.

Section 3209-1, as amended, 105 O. L., —, authorizes the auditor of state to lease for oil, gas, coal or other minerals, any unsold portions of section sixteen and section twenty-nine, or other lands granted in lieu thereof, although the lands are already under lease under the statutes existing for many years in this state. However, the original leases that were made of both sections sixteen and twenty-nine were for the surface rights only. The state simply granted a lease to the original lessees for agricultural purposes and such other purposes as would be considered necessary to grant solely for surface rights. The state as the trustee did not grant any further rights in such leases than would have been granted by an ordinary property owner. Consequently the lessee of the surface has no right to any gas, oil or other minerals, nor the right to lease to another person for the purpose of taking out any oil, gas or other minerals.

Therefore, I am clearly of the opinion that section 3209-1, G. C., to which reference has hereinbefore been made, applies to the premises held under lease prior to July 20, 1914, and also that section 3210, G. C., applies to any sales that may be made of lands that were not under lease prior to July 20, 1914.

As to whether or not the provisions of said act would apply to lands sought to be surrendered by the original lessees is a question that can not be determined except on consideration of each and every lease entered into. As a general principle, however, I would state that prior to 1827 school lands were authorized to be leased for a term of ninety-nine years, renewable forever, at which time the state did not have any authority whatever to sell the lands but solely to lease the same; and prior to 1833 the ministerial lands were authorized to be leased for a period of ninety-nine years, renewable forever, but no authority was vested by the United States government in the state to sell said lands.

In 1826, or thereabouts, the United States government granted authority to the state to sell or cause to be sold the school and ministerial lands, and to invest the proceeds thereof for the benefit of the schools and religion in lieu of the rentals that would have been obtained from the lands.

As to those leases that were entered into prior to the obtaining from the United States government of authority to sell the school and ministerial lands, it was not contained therein, nor became a part of the conditions of any of the leases, that the right of surrender was granted to the lessee. After that date it may be that certain of the leases for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, on both school and ministerial lands were entered into after the state had enacted legislation looking to the surrender of the leases.

As to those leases last mentioned I am of the opinion that the right of surrender would be considered as a part of the conditions of the lease, and that in consideration of the rentals to be paid and other covenants to be kept the right to surrender would be considered as a part of the contractual rights between the parties. However, as to those leases that were executed during the time that a right of surrender existed by statute, the statutes relative to such right of surrender as it then existed must be inquired into in order to determine whether or not there is an existing right of surrender. In the early statutes that were passed by the legislature immediately after authority was granted by congress of the United States to sell school and ministerial lands, the right of surrender was materially limited, especially as to time, some of the statutes only granting a right of surrender for a year subsequent to the enactment of such statute, and it was not until 1843 that a general right of surrender at any time was given by general statute. There are, however, innumerable special statutes which would always have to be examined into and considered relative to each and every lease the right to surrender which and to obtain from the state a title in fee simple, without reservation, is claimed by the lessee. No general rule, therefore, can ge given relative to those leases for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, entered into after the authority was granted by the United States to sell school and ministerial lands.

As to those leases which were executed prior to the enactment of legislation by the state permitting surrender, I am of the opinion that the right to surrender did not and could not become a part of the lease; and consequently the taking away of such right of surrender or the curtailment of the same could not be considered as in violation of any contract rights, and that, therefore, the provisions of section 3210, G. C., would apply to such leases. I do not, however, in any way pass upon the question as to whether or not the provisions of section 3210 would apply to those leases which were entered into after legislation by the state as to surrender.

Senate bill No. 3, passed at the second extraordinary session of the 80th general assembly, in which is found sections 3209-1, 3210 and 3222, G. C., hereinbefore commented upon and to be found in 105 O. L., page —, contained an emergency clause to the following effect:

> "Section 6. This act is hereby declared to be an emergency law necessary for the immediate preservation of the public safety. The necessity therefor lies in the fact that the state is now suffering, and is being threatened with, great financial loss, by reason of the waste and loss of valuable mineral resources now in existence on the lands described in the act, and which if immediately conserved will result in great material benefit to the state and its citizens."

The only laws that can be declared to be emergency laws under the provisions of article II, section 1d of the constitution are those "necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety." Section 6 of the act above quoted does not in any manner satisfy the above requirement of the constitution. The question as to whether or not a bill that has been passed as an emergency law, which does not on its face show that it is properly an emergency measure, can be considered as an ordinary law passed by the legislature is indirectly involved in a case before the supreme court, and I do not in any way pass upon that question in this opinion, but simply call attention to the fact that, in my judgment, section 6, which undertakes to declare the law to be an emergency law for the immediate preservation of the public safety, and the necessities set forth in said section as the reasons for the passing of the bill, does not in any way satisfy the constitutional requirements as to emergency laws.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PROBATE JUDGE ACTING AS JUVENILE JUDGE—FEES AS CLERK OF SUCH COURT—HOW ASSESSED—PAID INTO PROBATE JUDGE'S FEE FUND.

The probate judge, exercising juvenile jurisdiction in proceedings against an adult for contributing to delinquency, is entitled by virtue of section 1651, General Code, to receive as clerk of his own court the same costs as are taxed and paid to the clerk of courts in criminal cases, to be covered into probate judge's fee fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 23, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Under date of March 1, 1915, you submitted for my opinion the following:

> "We would respectfully request your written opinion upon the following questions:
>
> "Section 1602, General Code, one of the fee sections of the probate judge, provides in part:
> "'* * * When acting as judge of the juvenile court, for each case filed against a delinquent, dependent, or neglected child, two dollars and fifty cents; for proceedings to take child from parent or other persons having control thereof, two dollars and fifty cents: * * *'
> "Question: What, if any, fees or costs can be taxed for clerical work or services rendered by a probate judge exercising the jurisdiction of a juvenile judge in a proceeding against an adult under the juvenile court laws?
> "Question: If any fees for the judge can be taxed against an adult defendant, and are paid, must they be accounted for to the probate judge's fee fund?
> "Question: In a case against an adult under the juvenile court laws, can the juvenile judge tax fees for himself under the provisions of section 1603, General Code? If this can be done, and the defendant proves insolvent, can same be paid to the judges out of the county treasury?"

By virtue of section 1584 the probate judge is made ex-officio the clerk of his own court. Section 1651, G. C., 103 O. L., 871, provides in part as follows:

> "Any person charged with violating any of the provisions of this chapter or being responsible for or with causing, aiding or contributing to the delinquency, dependency, or neglect of a child, or with acting in a way tending to cause delinquency in a child, arrested or cited to appear before such court, at any time before hearing, may demand a trial by jury, or the judge upon his own motion may call a jury. The statutes relating to the drawing and impaneling of jurors in criminal cases in the court of common pleas, other than in capital cases, shall apply to such jury trial. The compensation of jurors and costs of the clerk and sheriff shall be taxed and paid as in criminal cases in the court of common pleas."

In answer to your first question, by virtue of section 1651, supra, the probate judge is entitled as clerk of his own court to receive the same costs as are taxed and paid in criminal cases in the court of common pleas.

Section 2977 provides in part:

"All the fees, costs, * * * collected or received by law as compensation for services by a * * * probate judge * * * shall be so received and collected for the sole use of the treasury of the county in which they are elected and shall be held as public moneys belonging to such county and accounted for and paid over as such as hereinafter provided."

In answer to your second question I am of the opinion that the provisions of section 2977 apply and that the fees so paid must be accounted for to the probate judge's fee fund.

Since the matter of the costs of the probate judge is determinable by section 1651, in a case against an adult under the juvenile court laws, such section prevails and it is not necessary to consider section 1603, which reads as follows:

"For other services for which compensation is not otherwise provided by law, the probate judge shall be allowed the same fees as are allowed the clerk of the court of common pleas for similar services."

The probate judge would be entitled, as clerk of his own court, on the insolvency of the defendant, to the same fees as the clerk of the common pleas court would be entitled to in criminal cases.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

OFFICES COMPATIBLE—HUMANE OFFICER—PROBATE OFFICER OF JUVENILE COURT—QUESTION OF FACT—PHYSICALLY POSSIBLE TO PERFORM DUTIES OF BOTH OFFICES.

There is no statutory inhibition against the same person holding the position of humane officer and probation officer of the juvenile court. It is a question of fact to be determined in each instance whether it is physically possible for the same person to perform the duties of both offices.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 24, 1915.

HON. F. M. ACTON, Probate Judge, Lancaster, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of April 16, 1915, which communication reads as follows:

"Kindly advise me whether in your opinion there could be legal objection to an officer being compensated as probation officer under section 1662, G. C., and also as humane officer under section 10072, G. C.

"By provision of section 10072 you will note that the city and county join in paying the humane officer, and under section 1662, the county alone compensates the probation officer. The question is, may a person be compensated by the county as humane officer and also as probation officer?

"If this can be done lawfully it will result in better service at less cost to the county."

In the absence of constitutional or statutory inhibition, the same person may hold two or more offices unless they are in law incompatible. I find no statutory provision that would prevent a person from holding the offices of probation officer and humane officer at the same time. It therefore becomes important to inquire whether or not these two offices are incompatible.

The compatibility of public offices is dependent upon the nature and character of the duties necessary to the proper exercise of the powers and functions of such offices. The law as laid down by the courts is aptly stated in the case of State ex rel. v. Gebert, 12 O. C. C., (n. s.) 274, as follows:

"Offices are considered incompatible when one is subordinate to, or in any way a check upon, the other; or when it is physically impossible for one person to discharge the duties of both."

An examination of the statutes relating to the duties of probation officers and of humane officers, discloses that the duties of one of these offices do not conflict in any way with those of the other, and that one office is not in any way a check upon or subordinate to the other. The question of whether or not it would be physically possible or practicable for the same person to fully and efficiently discharge the duties of both offices at the same time, is not susceptible of a general answer applicable in all the counties of the state. I would have no hesitancy in saying that in the small counties of the state, it would be physically practicable for the same person to efficiently discharge the duties of both offices at the same time, and that in the very large counties of the state it would be impossible for one person so to do.

This question is one of fact to be determined by reference to the needs and requirements of each county. If, as a matter of fact, it is physically practicable in your county for the same person to fully and efficiently discharge the duties of both offices at the same time, then my answer to your question would be that no legal objection exists to the same person holding both offices at the same time. If, as a matter of fact, it is not physically practicable for the same person to efficiently discharge the duties of both positions at the same time, then under the rule set forth above, the two offices are to be considered incompatible and may not be held by one person at the same time.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—THREE METHODS PERMITTED BY LAW FOR BOND ISSUE TO REPAIR OR ERECT SCHOOL BUILDING IN COMPLIANCE WITH ORDERS OF CHIEF INSPECTOR OF WORKSHOPS AND FACTORIES OR WHEN RENDERED NECESSARY BY DESTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS BY FIRE OR OTHER CASUALTY—TAX LEVIES AND LIMITATIONS IN SUCH CASES.

For the purpose of repairing or erecting school buildings in compliance with orders of the chief inspector of workshops and factories, or when rendered necessary by destruction of buildings by fire or other casualty, a board of education may issue and sell bonds under the provisions of section 7629, G. C., without a vote of the electors; the tax levy therefor being within the five mill and ten mill limitations of the Smith law.

If the funds at its disposal, or that can be raised under section 7629, G. C., would not be sufficient, the board may submit the proposition to the electors in conformity with the provisions of section 7625, G. C., et seq.. the tax levy for such bonds and interest being outside the five mill and ten mill limitations, but within the fifteen mill limitation of the Smith law.

Upon determination that sufficient money cannot be raised within the limitations applicable to each of the foregoing methods, the board may submit the proposition to issue bonds pursuant to the provisions of sections 7630-1, G. C., and 5649-4, G. C., to which latter procedure none of the limitations on taxation is applicable.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 24, 1915.

HON. DONALD F. MELHORN, Prosecuting Attorney, Kenton, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of April 9th, you requested my written opinion upon the following inquiry, to wit:

> "On June 4th, 1914, the industrial commission of Ohio, through its department of inspection, issued an order requiring the board of education of the city school district of Kenton, Ohio, to make numerous improvements in the various school buildings in said city. These improvements are to be accomplished by changing doors and windows, reseating several rooms, placing chemical fire extinguishers, putting in furnace and fuel rooms, and installing sanitary toilets, etc. Said order is to be complied with by the first of September, 1915.
> "Said board of education now has a levy of four mills for all school purposes, and has no money on hand for the purposes aforesaid.
> "To comply with the above order would cost from $5,000 to $7,000.
> "What I would like to have your opinion on is this:
> "Has the board of education authority to issue and sell bonds for the purpose aforesaid, without submitting the question to a vote of the electors of said district?"

The changes and installations set out in your statement of facts as required by the orders of the department of inspection, constitute improvements of the public school property within the terms of section 7629, G. C., and I am of the opinion that the board of education may, subject to the provisions of said section, issue and sell bonds for the purpose of making such improvements.

Section 7629 provides:

> "The board of education of any school district may issue bonds to obtain or improve public school property, and in anticipation of income from taxes, for such purposes, levied or to be levied, from time to time, as occasion requires, may issue and sell bonds, under the restrictions and bearing a rate of interest specified in section seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty-seven. The board shall pay such bonds and the interest thereon when due, but provide that no greater amount of bonds be issued in any year than would equal the aggregate of a tax at the rate of two mills, for the year next preceding such issue. The order to issue bonds shall be made only at a regular meeting of the board and by a vote of two-thirds of its full membership, taken by yeas and nays, and entered upon its journal."

Section 11, article XII, of the constitution, as amended, 1912, provides that no bonded indebtedness of the state, or any political subdivision thereof, shall be incurred unless in the legislation under which such indebtedness is incurred, provision is made for leving and collecting annually by taxation, an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds, and providing a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity. The tax levy for the payment of interest and to provide a sinking fund for the retirement of the bonds at maturity under the foregoing section would have to be within the ten mill aggregate limitation provided by section 5649-2 of the Smith law, so-called, and within the five mill limitation for school purposes as provided in section 5649-3a of said law.

The statutes providing the limitation upon the tax that may be levied, furnish the basis also, for calculation of the bond issue that may be made in anticipation of the collection of such taxes. In this connection, your attention is directed to the case of Rabe et al. v. Board of Education of Canton School District, 88 O. S., 403.

If, however, the amount of money that can be raised under the provisions of section 7629, and within the limitations above referred to, will not be sufficient for the purpose in question, then, in order to raise the needed amount by bond issue, it will be necessary to submit the proposition to a vote of the electors.

Upon determining that the funds at its disposal, or that can be raised under the provisions of section 7629, et seq., are not sufficient, the board may avail itself of the provisions of section 7625, G. C., et seq., which require the submission of the question of issuing bonds to a vote of the people. Upon the approval of the proposition, submitted in conformity to the provisions of section 7625, the bonds may be issued as provided in the succeeding sections, and a tax may be levied for their retirement at maturity and for payment of interest thereon, outside the five mill limitation and the ten-mill aggregate limitation above referred to, but within the fifteen mill limitation prescribed in section 5649-5, et seq., G. C.; but it is provided in section 5649-4, that a tax may be levied outside of any of the limitations of the Smith law, so-called, for the purpose of erecting or repairing school buildings, when the same is rendered necessary as a compliance with the orders of the chief inspector of workshops and factories, or when school buildings have been destroyed by fire or other casualty, when the board of the district is without sufficient funds applicable to the purpose with which to rebuild or repair such school buildings, and it is not practicable to secure such funds under the provisions of sections 7625 to 7630, inclusive, General Code, as provided in section 7630-1, G. C.; the full text of said section being as follows:

"Section 7630-1 (103 O. L., 527). If a school house is wholly or partly destroyed by fire or other casualty, or if the use of any school house for its intended purpose is prohibited by any order of the chief inspector of workshops and factories, and the board of education of the school district is without sufficient funds applicable to the purpose, with which to rebuild or repair such school house or to construct a new school house for the proper accommodation of the schools of the district, and it is not practicable to secure such funds under any of the six preceding sections because of the limits of taxation applicable to such school district, such board of education may, subject to the provisions of sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-six and seventy-six hundred and twenty-seven, and upon the approval of the electors in the manner provided by sections seventy-six hundred and twenty-five and seventy-six hundred and twenty-six, issue bonds for the amount required for such purpose for the payment of the principal and interest on such bonds and on bonds heretofore issued for the purposes herein mentioned, and to provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity, such board of education shall annually levy a tax as provided by law."

Section 5649-4 (103 O. L., 527), provides:

"For the emergencies mentioned in sections forty-four hundred and fifty, forty-four hundred and fifty-one, fifty-six hundred and twenty-nine, seventy-four hundred and nineteen and 7630-1, of the General Code, the taxing authorities of any district may levy a tax sufficient to provide therefor irrespective of any of the limitations of this act."

Answering your question specifically, therefore, I am of the opinion that if sufficient funds can be provided within the limitations of section 7629 and the limitations of the Smith law, as above pointed out, such bond issue may be made without submitting the question to a vote of the electors, but if sufficient funds cannot be provided within such limitations, and upon a determination of that fact by the board, and if there are not sufficient funds in the treasury available for the purpose, the proposition to issue bonds may then be submitted to a vote of the electors as provided in section 7625; the tax levy for interest and sinking fund purposes for retirement of said bonds not being within the five mill limitation or the ten mill aggregate limitation of the Smith one per cent law, but within the fifteen mill limitation of said law.

If sufficient funds cannot be raised within the limitations of law applicable to each of the above named methods of procedure relative to bond issues, and upon a determination to that effect by the board, and if the school district is without sufficient funds applicable to the purpose, the board may proceed to submit to the electors the proposition of issuing bonds for the purpose of erecting or repairing school buildings as the case may be, in conformity to the provisions of section 7630-1, and the tax levy for payment of interest on such bonds and to provide a sinking fund for their retirement at maturity is not limited by the provisions of the Smith law.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION 3495, G. C.—EXPENSES OF BURIAL OF DEAD BODY PAID BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS IRRESPECTIVE OF WHETHER OR NOT PERSON IN LIFE HAD LEGAL SETTLEMENT IN COUNTY OR STATE, OR WAS UNKNOWN.

The provisions of section 3495, G. C., that upon notice, the county commissioners "shall cause the body to be buried at the expense of the county" applies to the burial of the dead body of a person who in life had a legal settlement in the county as well as to the burial of the dead body of a person who in life did not have a legal settlement in the state, or whose legal settlement is unknown.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 24, 1915.

HON. FRANK B. GROVE, Prosecuting Attorney, Cadiz, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of April 14, 1915, you wrote to this department as follows:

"Some difference of opinion has arisen as to the correct meaning and construction of section 3495, General Code, which said section reads as follows:

" 'When information is given to the trustees of a township or proper officer of a municipal corporation, that the dead body of a person, having a legal settlement in the county, or whose legal settlement is not in the state or is unknown, and not an inmate of a penal, reformatory, benevolent or charitable institution, has been found in such township or corporation, and is not claimed by any person for private interment at his own expense or delivered for the purpose of medical or surgical study or dissection in accordance with law, they shall cause it to be buried at the expense of the township or corporation, but, if such trustees or officer notify the infirmary directors (commissioners), such directors shall cause the body to be buried at the expense of the county.'

"On December 3, 1914, my predecessor in office, Mr. Pettay, acting under instructions from one of the state examiners, here at the time, sent the following to each of the various clerks in the county:

" 'Owing to recent court decisions with reference to burial of paupers, and owing to a change of the rule by the state bureau of accounting, the township trustees, on being notified of a deceased pauper in their township to be buried at public expense, may notify the county commissioners that such deceased pauper is not claimed for burial by any person for private interment at his own expense. And in such case the county commissioners shall bury such pauper at the expense of the county.'

"Since above has been sent out, each township has been demanding that all its indigent and pauper deceased be buried at the expense of the county, claiming that under above instructions all the indigent deceased and paupers which were formerly buried at the expense of the township, must now be buried at the expense of the county, if proper notice is given to the county commissioners.

"It does not appear to me that section 3495 is entitled to the broad construction contained in the letter sent out by Mr. Pettay, at the suggestion of said examiner. I am more inclined to the view that said section is intended to cover only those cases of persons found dead and whose bodies are unclaimed for interment, and that said section does not mean that all the indigents and paupers which were formerly buried at the expense of the township must now be buried at the expense of the county.

"Kindly inform me as to your construction of section 3495 in regard to what cases it covers. Does it mean that, if notice is given to the county commissioners, they must bury at the expense of the county, every indigent person whose friends will not, or are unable to, bury the same?"

Section 3495 provides for the burial at public expense of the body of a person having a legal settlement in the county or whose legal settlement is not in the state or is unknown, provided such deceased person may not have been at the time of his death an inmate of a penal, reformatory, benevolent or charitable institution, and provided said body is not claimed by any person for private interment at his own expense or delivered to a medical college.

While I am not clear as to the exact question you desire answered, I assume that your question is:

Whether the county commissioners, on being duly notified, must bury the body of a person who in life had a legal settlement in the county and who was not an inmate of a penal, etc., institution, or only a person who in life did not have a legal settlement in the state or is unknown.

To my mind, the statute is clear that it is the duty of the county commissioners, they being the successors of the county infirmary directors, to cause to be buried, not only the body of a person who has a legal settlement in the county, but also the body of a person who did not have a legal settlement in the state or who is unknown.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

EXHUMING DEAD BODY—EXPENSES PAID OUT OF PROSECUTING ATTORNEY'S CONTINGENT FUND—ANALYSIS OF STOMACH—EXPENSES MAY BE ALLOWED BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS —EXPERT WITNESSES BEFORE CORONER ALLOWED ONLY PER DIEM MILEAGE—EXPERTS MAY IN CERTAIN CASES RENDER SERVICES AND BE ALLOWED COMPENSATION BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

1. The expense of exhuming a dead body for purpose of examination by a county coroner, or other physician or surgeon designated by him, can only be paid when such expense is authorized or ratified by the prosecuting attorney of the county, in which case it may be paid out of the contingent fund of the prosecuting attorney provided by section 3004, G. C.

2. The expense of an analysis of the contents of the stomach of a dead person may, when ordered by the county coroner or other proper officer, in conducting a post mortem examination, be allowed by the county commissioners in such an amount as they deem proper, (section 2495, G. C.).

3. Expert witnesses testifying before the coroner cannot be paid more than the usual per diem and mileage paid the other witnesses.

4. Expert witnesses may upon the certificate of the prosecuting attorney or his assistant, that the services of an expert or the testimony of expert witnesses were or will be necessary in the preliminary examination before an examining court, the grand jury investigation or the trial of a person accused of crime, be allowed such compensation as the county commissioners deem proper and the court approves.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 24, 1915.

HON. FOREST G. LONG, Prosecuting Attorney, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Your two letters of March 25th and April 15, 1915, received, and are in part as follows:

> "The Logan county grand jury yesterday indicted Margaret Adelaide Bentz for murder in the first degree. She is charged with having poisoned a little babe (not her own). The county coroner was called in in this case and he had a chemical analysis made of some of the contents of the stomach, but he did not get a sufficient quantity for a proper test, and after the child was buried the body was exhumed and some parts taken and further analyzed, revealing that the child had died from morphine poisoning, supposedly at least.
> "Now, what I desire to know is, how and from what fund shall the cost of the post mortem in that case be paid? May that expense and the expense for the chemical analysis, which amounts to one hundred dollars, be paid under favor of section 2495 of the General Code? If not, who should pay it, and from what fund?
> "The analyst and the pathologist both live in Columbus and have asked in addition twenty-five dollars per day for each day that they are called to this county to testify. The twenty-five dollars each being in addition to their regular fees as ordinary witnesses. May these amounts be legally paid to them as expert witnesses, and if so, would you please indicate in what manner, and from what fund?
> "Referring to my letter to you of March 25th, and your letter to me of the 27th, I wish to say that the body mentioned in said letter was exhumed upon the order of the county coroner for the purpose of making a post mortem examination."

For convenience in answering your questions, I have divided them into four parts as follows:

1. Can the expense of exhuming the body be paid, and if so from what fund?

From your letter it appears that this is an expense incurred solely on the order of the coroner and for the purpose only of conducting his inquest.

Section 2866, G. C., provides the fees which may be paid to the coroner and is as follows:

> "Coroners shall be allowed the following fees: For view of dead body, three dollars; for drawing all necessary writings, and return thereof, for every one hundred words, ten cents; for traveling, each mile, to the place of view, ten cents; when performing the duties of sheriff the same fees as are allowed to sheriffs for similar services."

No provision is here made for the payment of this expense, and there is no other authority for the payment of any fees or expenses incurred by, or on the order of the coroner.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that such expense, when incurred by or on the order of the coroner, cannot be paid from any public fund.

The facts stated by you do not call for an opinion as to whether such expense could be incurred at the direction of the prosecuting attorney and paid out of his contingent fund provided by section 3004, General Code. It is suggested that the prosecuting attorney may now, if he deems such expense a proper one in the furtherance of justice, ratify the act of the coroner and pay the same from said fund.

2. Can the cost of the analysis of the contents of the stomach be paid, and if so how?

Section 2495, General Code, provides as follows:

> "The county commissioners may allow a physician or surgeon making a post mortem examination at the instance of the coroner or other officer such compensation as they deem proper."

The making of the analysis being a necessary part of the post mortem examination and having been made at the instance of the coroner, such compensation therefor can be allowed by the commissioners as they deem proper.

3. Can the men who made the analysis and who appear before the coroner to testify as experts be paid more than other witnesses are paid?

The only authority for the payment of expert witnesses by the state in criminal cases is found in section 2494, General Code, as follows:

> "Upon the certificate of the prosecuting attorney or his assistant that the services of an expert or the testimony of expert witnesses in the examination or trial of a person accused of the commission of crime, or before the grand jury, were or will be necessary to the proper administration of justice, the county commissioners may allow and pay such expert such compensation as they deem just and proper and the court approves."

Prior to the enactment of this statute expert witnesses testifying on behalf of the state could not be paid more than the ordinary witness fees—Pengelly v. Ashland Co., 11 O. D., 620, decided in 1901, the first syllabus of which is as follows:

"Witness fees in criminal cases governed by section 1302, Rev. Stat.

"Authority for payment of claims out of the county treasury is statutory and the only fees which can be allowed witnesses, expert or non-expert, in criminal proceedings, are the per diem fees and mileage allowed by section 1302, Rev. Stat. Custom in such cases, of paying experts additional fees, does not make it lawful to do so."

Coming now to section 2494, enacted in 1902 (95 O. L., 282), it will be seen that expert witnesses can only be paid upon the certificate of the prosecuting attorney or his assistant, "that the services of an expert or the testimony of expert witnesses in the examination or trial of a person accused of the commission of a crime, or before the grand jury, were or will be necessary to the proper administration of justice."

The authority of the coroner to hold an inquest is found in section 2856, G. C., which is in part as follows:

"When informed that the body of a person whose death is supposed to have been caused by violence has been found within the county, the coroner shall appear forthwith at the place where the body is, issue subpoenas for such witnesses as he deems necessary, administer to them the usual oath, and proceed to inquire how the deceased came to his death, whether by violence from any other person or persons, by whom, whether as principals or accessories before or after the fact, and all circumstances relating thereto."

While the coroner has authority in conducting his inquest to inquire into the question of "how the deceased came to his death, whether by violence from any person or persons, by whom, whether as principals or accessories after the fact," yet when it is considered that the prosecuting attorney may act independent of the coroner in the prosecution of any person charged with the crime, and is provided by law with the machinery so to do—to wit: the examining court and the grand jury, it becomes clear that the use of the word "examination" in section 2494, above quoted, has reference to the preliminary hearing before an examining court, and does not include the coroner's inquest. The coroner's inquest is not for the purpose of examining or trying a person accused of a crime, but primarily for the purpose of determining whether or not there should be such an examination or trial.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the men who made the analysis and who appeared and testified before the coroner cannot be paid more than the usual per diem and mileage allowed for ordinary witnesses.

In reaching this conclusion due regard has been given to the case of state ex rel. Brown, 62 O. S., 307, in which the court say:

"It is thus indicated that the inquest is intended to aid in the detection of crimes and in the punishment of those who perpetrate them."

This case is not regarded as having any bearing on this question because of the independent character of the coroner's inquest as distinguished from the authority and duty of the prosecuting attorney, and the clear intention that section 2494, above quoted, should apply only to the proceedings which the prosecuting attorney may institute and over which he has control.

It is further suggested that such witnesses who appear before the coroner to testify cannot be paid extra compensation by the prosecuting attorney out of his contingent fund provided by section 3004, General Code, because compensation for such witnesses is otherwise provided by law, to wit, per diem and mileage.

4. May the men who made the analysis be paid extra compensation for testifying before the examining court, the grand jury or at the trial of the case?

Under section 2494 above quoted it is clear that such witnesses upon the proper certificate being made by the prosecuting attorney, as provided therein, may be allowed such compensation by the commissioners as they deem proper and the court approves.

In this connection, however, I call your attention to the case of state ex rel. v. Guilbert, 77 O. S., 333, in which it was held that such extra compensation so paid to expert witnesses could not be collected from the state by the county allowing and paying the same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WHERE WARRANT FOR TAXES MAILED VILLAGE BY COUNTY AUDITOR IS LOST IN MAILS—DUTY OF AUDITOR TO MAKE DUPLICATE WARRANT WHEN PROPER APPLICATION HAS BEEN MADE.

When a warrant for taxes due a village is mailed to the treasurer of the village by the county auditor and is lost in the mails, it is the duty of the auditor upon proper application therefor, to issue and deliver to such treasurer a duplicate warrant.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 24, 1915.

HON. ALDRICH B. UNDERWOOD, Prosecuting Attorney, Medina, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of April 20, 1915, you request my written opinion upon the following statement of facts and inquiry, to wit:

"I am writing to you in regard to two warrants, issued on the treasury of Medina county, and lost in the mails.

"These warrants were issued on the 5th day of March, A. D., 1915, and were made payable to J. N. Leatherman, or order, said Leatherman being the treasurer of Wadsworth village, and said warrants being for the share of taxes, belonging to said village.

"These warrants bore the Nos. 4010 and 4043 respectively, and called for a total of $14,920.06. The mailing of these warrants was checked up by the auditor's working force, and has been proven beyond any doubt. The said J. N. Leatherman, treasurer of the village of Wadsworth, has never received same, and the presumption is that they have been lost, stolen, or have fallen into the hands of some other person.

"The village of Wadsworth is in immediate need of these funds to meet accruing bills, and to pay its bonded indebtedness. The city solicitor of Wadsworth visited Medina today, and has made it clear that something must be done, and be done at once.

"The solution which first suggests itself was for the county auditor to issue duplicate warrants. So far, we have been unable to find any law in the General Code of Ohio authorizing a county auditor to issue a duplicate warrant. In order to protect the county, all local banks have been notified not to cash the original warrants, and as much publicity as possible has been given the matter, as might prevent any person from presenting them for payment.

"A bond has been drawn up for said J. N. Leatherman to sign, to indemnify and save harmless the county of Medina. A copy of this bond is enclosed. Said H. N. Leatherman, as treasurer of the village, refuses to sign this bond."

Section 4298 of the General Code, authorizes the treasurer of a village to demand and receive all taxes and moneys due and payable to the village.

Section 4301, G. C., directs the county treasurer to pay to the treasurer of a municipal corporation the moneys due to such corporation arising from tax levies and assessments.

Section 2674 provides that no money shall be paid from the county treasury except upon the warrant of the county auditor, except moneys paid over to the state treasury, which shall be on the warrant of the state auditor.

Section 2602 provides:

"The auditor shall open an account with each township, city, village, and special school district in the county, in which, immediately after his semi-annual settlement with the treasurer in February and August of each year, he shall credit each with the net amount so collected for its use.

"On application of the township, city, village, or school treasurer, the auditor shall give him a warrant on the county treasurer for the amount then due to such treasurer, and charge him with the amount of the warrant, but the person so applying for such warrant shall deposit with the auditor a certificate from the clerk of the township, city, village, or district, stating that he is treasurer thereof, was duly elected or appointed, and that he has given bond according to law."

The statute contemplates an application by the treasurer of the village, in person, for the warrant for the proceeds of the tax levy for the village, and provides that upon the deposit with the auditor, by the person so applying, of a certificate from the clerk of the village that he is the duly qualified treasurer thereof and has given bond according to law, the auditor shall give him a warrant on the county treasurer for the amount then due to such village.

Any departure from the terms and spirit of the statute in effecting a delivery of the warrant is at the peril of the auditor, and any negligence occurring in the performance of the duty is chargeable against him.

It appears that the method of transmission of the warrant adopted by the auditor, viz.: The placing of it in the mails did not result in its delivery. The treasurer of the village, not having received it, is entitled upon application therefor, and the deposit of the certificate prescribed by the statute, to receive a warrant for the moneys due the village, and the only practicable means of discharging the auditor's obligation will be to issue and deliver a duplicate warrant for the amount so due.

There seems to be no express statutory authority for the issuance and delivery by the auditor of duplicate warrants, as such, but the obligation to issue and deliver a warrant is controlling, and we are not concerned with its character as "original" or "duplicate," but must leave it to the auditor to respond for his act in the unauthorized disposition of the additional warrant issued in this case.

The conclusion herein expressed is based on the presumption that the mailing of the warrant by the auditor was not authorized by the village treasurer.

By section 246, G. C., 104 O. L., 162, the state auditor is authorized to issue duplicate warrants in case of loss of the original, but this statute is not in terms applicable to the county auditors.

A bond issued on the part of the village treasurer, conditioned to save the county from liability to pay said original warrant on account of its endorsement by himself or any one by him authorized, it seems to me would be very proper in this case, but the refusal or inability of the treasurer to execute such bond will not excuse the delivery of the warrant by the auditor.

However, any endorsement and negotiation of the original warrant by the village treasurer would be a violation of his official bond, while it is the general rule that a forged endorsement transfers no title.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, that if it appears that the original warrant has been lost, it is the duty of the county auditor to issue and deliver a duplicate warrant to the village treasurer, upon the proper application therefor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER.
Attorney General.

VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT—DISSOLUTION—TITLE TO SCHOOL PROPERTY THEN VESTS IN CONTIGUOUS RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT TO WHICH VILLAGE DISTRICT IS JOINED—INDEBTEDNESS OF VILLAGE DISTRICT MUST BE PAID BY SUCH DISTRICT—RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT HAS NO RIGHT TO ASSUME INDEBTEDNESS—VILLAGE BOARD OF EDUCATION MUST CONTINUE FOR PURPOSE OF LEVYING A TAX TO PAY INDEBTEDNESS.

Upon the dissolution of a village school district, the title to the school property of said district passes to and vests in the board of education of the contiguous rural school district to which such village school district is joined, but only the property within the limits of said village school district will be subject to a tax levy for the payment of any indebtedness incurred by the board of education of said village school district, and the board of education of said rural school district will have no authority in law to assume said indebtedness or to levy a tax to provide a fund for the payment thereof either upon the property within the limits of said village school district or upon the general duplicate of said rural school district.

If the levy for the payment of said indebtedness has not been made by said board of education of said village school district at the time of dissolution, said village school district as a separate taxing district, and its board of education as its taxing authority, must continue for the purpose only of levying a tax for the payment of such indebtedness until such time as said indebtedness will have been paid.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 26, 1915.

HON. F. C. GOODRICH, Prosecuting Attorney, Troy, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of March 31st, which is as follows:

> "Under the recent law passed by the legislature, giving village districts of less than fifteen hundred population the right to dissolve and go back into the school district, West Milton, Ohio, is contemplating taking a vote to dissolve their special district, and become a part of Union township, Miami county.
> "Will you please advise me that if the vote to dissolve is successful, and this district becomes a part of the township district, does the school property at West Milton become the property of the township? If so, and there is a bonded indebtedness on the property now in the West Milton special district, does this property have to be turned over to the township free of incumbrance, or will the whole township assume this indebtedness and pay it off from the taxes on the general duplicate of Union township?"

Section 4682-1, G. C., as found in 104 O. L., 133, provides:

"A village school district containing a population of less than fifteen hundred, may vote at any general or special election to dissolve and join any contiguous rural district. After approval by the county board, such proposition shall be submitted to the electors by the village board of education on the petition of one-fourth of the electors of such village school district or the village board may submit the proposition on its own motion, and the result shall be determined by a majority vote of such electors."

Section 4683, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 133, provides:

"When a village school district is dissolved, the territory formerly constituting such village district shall become a part of the contiguous rural district which it votes to join in accordance with section 4682-1, and all school property shall pass to and become vested in the board of education of such rural school district."

If a majority of the electors of West Milton village school district vote in favor of dissolving said district and joining it to the contiguous rural district of Union township, in accordance with the above provision of section 4682-1, General Code, said village of West Milton being located within said Union township, upon such dissolution, the title to the school property of said village school district will pass to and vest in the board of education of said Union township rural school district, under the above provision of section 4683, G. C.

In your letter you refer to West Milton village school district as "West Milton special district." Upon investigation I find that this district is known as West Milton village school district, and is in fact a village school district.

The statutes governing the dissolution of a village school district and the disposition of its bonded indebtedness are separate and distinct from the statutes governing the dissolution of a district formerly known as a special district, now known as a rural district under the provisions of section 4735, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 138, and the disposition of the indebtedness of such rural school district. The two classes must not be confused.

Section 4689, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 134, provides:

"The provisions of law relating to the power to settle claims, dispose of property or levy and collect taxes to pay existing obligations of a village that has surrendered its corporate powers, shall also apply to such village school district and the board of education thereof."

Section 3513, G. C., provides:

"Villages may surrender their corporate powers upon petition to council of at least forty per cent. of the electors thereof, to be determined by the number voting at the last municipal election, and an affirmative vote of a majority of such electors at a special election which shall be provided for by council, and conducted, canvassed, and the result certified and made known as regular municipal elections within the corporation. If the result of the election is in favor of such surrender, the clerk of the village shall certify the result to the secretary of state and the recorder of the county, who shall record it in their respective offices, and thereupon the corporate powers of such village shall cease."

Section 3514, G. C., provides:

"Such surrender of corporate powers shall not affect vested rights or accrued liabilities of such village, or the power to settle claims, dispose of property, or levy and collect taxes to pay existing obligations, but after the presentation of such petition, council shall not create any new liability until the result of the election is declared, nor thereafter, if such result is in favor of the surrender of corporate powers. Due and unpaid taxes may thereafter be collected, and all moneys or property remaining after such surrender shall belong to the school district embracing such village."

Under the above provisions of the statutes it seems clear that the dissolution of West Milton village school district will not be complete until the payment of the indebtedness of said district is provided for. Inasmuch as the question of the dissolution of said village school district is to be submitted only to the electors of said district, and not to the electors of Union township rural school district, I do not think that the property in said township rural school district can be held liable for the payment of any indebtedness incurred by the board of education of such village school district.

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that, upon the dissolution of West Milton village school district, the title to the school property of said district will pass to and vest in the board of education of Union township rural school district, but only the property within the limits of said village school district will be subject to a tax levy for the payment of any indebtedness incurred by the board of education of said village school district, and the board of education of Union township rural school district will have no authority in law to assume said indebtedness or to levy a tax to provide a fund for the payment thereof either upon the property within the limits of said village school district or upon the general duplicate of the Union township rural school district. If the levy for the payment of such indebtedness will not have been made by said board of education of said village school district at the time of dissolution, I am of the opinion that said village school district as a separate taxing district, and its board of education as its taxing authority, must continue for the purpose only of levying a tax for for the payment of such indebtedness until such time as said indebtedness will have been paid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General

COUNCIL OF MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—NOTES ISSUED IN ANTICIPATION OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS—HOLDER OF NOTES ENTITLED TO INTEREST AFTER MATURITY IF HE MAKES PROPER PRESENTMENT—WHAT CONSTITUTES PRESENTMENT OF NOTE.

The holder of a negotiable note issued by the council of a municipal corporation in anticipation of assessments, and made payable at the office of the sinking fund trustees, is entitled to interest thereon at the contractual rate after the maturity of the note if he makes proper presentment of the same at maturity and payment is refused by the sinking fund trustees, or if he fails to make proper presentment thereof but the sinking fund trustees did not have on hand or subject to their order at maturity sufficient funds to meet the note; but if such funds were on hand and proper presentment was not made, the holder is not entitled to past due interest and the payment of such interest to him is illegal.

In order to make proper presentment it is necessary ordinarily to exhibit the note at the place at which it is made payable, but under special circumstances this rule is relaxed.

Presentment of such a note at the office of the sinking fund trustees is legal, though the trustees themselves are not present and are represented only by their secretary, who is not authorized to determine whether or not a given obligation shall be paid.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 26, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 19th, in which you call attention to the opinion of my predecessor under date of April 27, 1914, relative to the payment of interest on negotiable notes issued by a municipal corporation after the same are due, and state that the opinion in question applies to facts developed in an examintation under the direction of your department of the books and accounts of the sinking fund trustees in the city of Steubenville.

You advise that the examination to which you refer has thus far disclosed the total amount of past due interest paid out of the funds of the city during a given period of time, together with the amount paid under the administration of each particular board of sinking fund trustees, which, under the ordinances of the city, had been charged with the payment of such notes. You state, however, that your examiner has thus far not ascertained whether or not at the time of maturity of each certificate of indebtedness there were funds in the hands of the sinking fund trustees available for the payment of the particular obligation. To do so you say would entail a vast amount of work, due to the condition of the sinking fund accounts and the methods employed in collecting the special assessments, in anticipation of which the notes were issued.

You suggest the possibility of making and enforcing a finding against the holders of such certificates for the amount of past due interest received, on the ground that such holders did not legally present the certificates at maturity. In this connection you state that your examiner has allowed interest in all cases in which it appears on the face of the certificate by a proper endorsement that same was presented at maturity, or where the journal of the trustees of the sinking fund shows the fact of such presentation to the trustees.

You advise further that in numerous instances there is no record of such presentment being made, and describe in your letter and verbally two methods of what might be termed "informal presentment," viz.:

> "(1.) Verbal notice to the secretary of the sinking fund trustees, sometimes given by telephone, that the certificates were held by the holder, coupled with an inquiry as to whether or not they were to be paid.

"(2.) Actual presentment of the note at the office of the sinking fund trustees to their secretary."

You also advise that the sinking fund trustees had never, formally at least, authorized their secretary to act in such cases.

Upon these facts you raise two legal questions, and request my advice thereon for the guidance of the department, viz.:

"(1.) Is it necessary in order to establish the illegality of the payment of past due interest, when no proper presentment has been made (and assuming that the failure of the holder to make proper presentment would be material as affecting the legality of the payment of further interest), to show that the sinking fund trustees had at a given date of maturity money on hand sufficient to pay the note and available for its payment?

"(2.) Is presentment in either of the ways above described sufficient?"

Section 8175 of the General Code, being part of what is known as the "negotiable instruments law," provides in part as follows:

"Section 8175. Presentment for payment is not necessary in order to charge the person primarily liable on the instrument; yet if by its terms, the instrument is payable at a special place, and he is able and willing to pay it there at maturity, and has funds there available for that purpose, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment on his part. * * *"

This provision is probably declaratory of the common law, but at all events it governs, in my opinion, as to the respective rights and liabilities of municipal corporations and those dealing with them in the issuance of what are termed "certificates of indebtedness" by section 3913, General Code, and "notes" by section 3915, General Code. They are negotiable instruments. There are with respect to their payment no peculiar statutory provisions which need be noted in connection with your first question. Therefore, it seems to me that the general rules of law, whether of statute or otherwise, apply.

This being the case, the answer to your first question is very clearly suggested by section 8175, supra. This section prescribes what shall be equivalent to a tender in case a negotiable instrument is made payable at a special place. By necessary inference no act or circumstance other than those prescribed in the section constitutes such a tender.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, that unless it should be established that the city at the date of maturity of a given note had funds at the office of the sinking fund trustees, i. e., subject to their order, available for the purpose of paying the note, the mere fact that the holder of the note did not properly present the same at maturity would not make the subsequent payment of past due interest illegal. I think that as to municipal corporations, section 8175, insofar as it provides that the maker must be "able and willing to pay it there at maturity," does not apply. The willingness of the municipality as such to pay the obligation at the time and place specified would, in my opinion be presumed if its officers were shown to have funds available for that purpose at such time and place.

I am, therefore, obliged to advise you, with considerable regret, that in order to determine the liability, if any, of the holders of the obligations to which you refer, who have received past due interest, it will be necessary further to examine the books and accounts of the sinking fund trustees in order to ascertain whether or not at the maturity of each note on which such past due interest was paid there was available and in the hands of the sinking fund trustees sufficient money to pay it.

In making this determination the general sinking fund balances may not be taken into account. As pointed out in the opinion of my predecessor, it is not the duty of the sinking fund trustees under the general laws of the state to administer the payment of notes and certificates of indebtedness as distinguished from bonds, but primarily at least such obligations are to be paid by the city treasurer. However, in the case with which you are dealing council of the municipality delegated to the trustees of the sinking fund the duty of caring for such certificates and notes, and caused to be placed on the face of each of them a recital to the effect that they were payable at the office of the sinking fund trustees.

This may be regarded, strictly speaking, as ultra vires legislation, but inasmuch as the rights of bona fide holders are involved I think the city as against third parties cannot claim anything on account of such irregularity. But while the city, having issued notes payable at the office of the sinking fund trustees, has hereby incurred the obligation of providing funds with which the sinking fund trustees may pay such obligations when due, it could not authorize the trustees to use the general sinking fund balances which are appropriated to other purposes by the self-executing provisions of the statute. The only revenues, therefore, available for the payment of such notes would be the proceeds of the special assessments or general levies anticipated by the notes themselves, together with such special tax levies as might be made for the purpose of supplying any deficiency in the special assessments, or otherwise providing, in whole or in part, for the payment of such notes. These funds would have to be kept separate from the general sinking fund balances and would have to be identified in each case before the conditions upon which the possible liability of the holders of the notes could be made to appear.

The first part of your second question is answered by section 8179, General Code, which provides as follows:

> "Section 8179. The instrument must be exhibited to the person from whom payment is demanded, and when it is paid must be delivered up to the party paying it."

This section is declaratory of the common law. (See Daniel on Negotiable Instruments, section 654.)

While these principles apply primarily to presentment for the purpose of charging indorsers, yet in my opinion they apply also in all other cases where the question of presentment becomes material. The maker is entitled before being charged with further liability on a negotiable instrument to have the same personally presented to him at maturity, unless there is some good and sufficient reason for dispensing with such presentment, or unless same is waived by the maker. In the case you describe mere verbal notice to the clerk or secretary of the sinking fund trustees is not a sufficient presentment, nor is the verbal refusal of the secretary to pay the note the act of the city or of the trustees.

Therefore, I am of the opinion that in the first case described by you in stating your second question the holder of the note would be the recipient of an illegal payment if past due interest were subsequently paid to him, and if at the time of his verbal notice to the secretary of the sinking fund trustees the trustees actually had, subject to their order, funds of the municipality available for the payment of the note.

The second case described by you presents a more difficult question.

Sections 4509 and 4510, General Code, provide as follows:

> "Section 4509. The trustees of the sinking fund, immediately after their appointment and qualification, shall elect one of their number as president and another as vice-president, who, in the absence or disability of the president, shall perform his duties and exercise his powers, and such secretary, clerks or employes as council may provide by an ordinance which shall fix their duties, bonds and compensation. Where no clerks or secretary is authorized, the auditor of the city or clerk of the village shall act as secretary of the board.

"Section 4510. The trustees of the sinking fund shall make their own rules, but their meetings shall be open to the public, and all questions relating to the purchase or sale of securities, payment of bonds, interest or judgments or involving the payment or appropriation of money shall be decided by a yea and nay vote with the name of each member voting recorded on the journal, and no question shall be decided unless approved by a majority of the whole board."

While, as hereinbefore stated, the duties of the sinking fund trustees primarily relate to the payment of bonds, yet when council by legislation such as has been described has imposed upon them the duty to administer the payment of certificates of indebtedness and notes, it is my opinion that such legislation is to be interpreted in the light of the above sections. That is to say, when the trustees are charged with the payment of notes they may not, in my judgment, act otherwise than in accordance with the rule provided in section 4510. At the very least the payment of notes and interest is a "question * * * involving the payment or appropriation of money," which under this section must be "decided by a yea and nay vote, with the name of each member voting recorded on the journal."

It is clear, therefore, that as a matter of municipal administration, the secretary of the sinking fund trustees has no authority to determine whether or not a given payment will be made.

Section 8177, General Code, provides in part that "Presentment for payment, to be sufficient, must be made * * * to the person primarily liable on the instrument, or if he is absent or inaccessible, to any person found at the place where the presentment is made."

While all persons are, of course, chargeable with notice of such statutes of the state as to which recitals on the face of a negotiable instrument call attention, yet the holder of such an instrument issued by a city in not to be put to any greater effort in preserving his rights than the holder of any other similar obligation. So if such holder makes proper presentment of the note in his possession at the place where it is made payable, viz., the office of the sinking fund trustees, and finds there the secretary of the board (as would be the case under normal circumstances, the trustees not ordinarily remaining at their office during business hours), and such presentment is during ordinary business hours, it is sufficient; and even though the secretary may not have power as an officer of the corporation to decide whether the note shall be then paid or not, such presentment is a sufficient demand upon the trustees to pay the note. If then the trustees at the first opportunity do not pay the note, the circumstances are the equivalent of a demand upon them and a refusal by them to pay.

Therefore, I am of the opinion that the presentment described by you in stating the second case in connection with your second question is legal, and if the sinking fund trustees do not forthwith pay the note so presented the city is liable for the interest thereon until the same is paid, regardless of whether or not there was sufficient money, subject to the order of the sinking fund trustees, available for the payment of the note at the time of presentment.

It occurs to me in connection with your questions, however, that the secretary of the sinking fund trustees was probably in possession of accurate knowledge as to the funds in the hands of the trustees; and if as a matter of fact the funds were at a given time insufficient to pay accruing obligations, and he so stated to the holder, the fact that proper presentment was not made would be immaterial, for in that event the payment of the interest after the maturity of the note could not be regarded as illegal.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—AN EMPLOYE HAVING BUT ONE EYE AND LOSING THAT IN THE COURSE OF HIS EMPLOYMENT, IS TOTALLY AND PERMANENTLY DISABLED.

An employe, under sections 33 and 34 of the workmen's compensation act, having but one eye, and losing that in the course of his employment, is totally and permanently disabled.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter in which you advise that the industrial commission has held that where a person having lost the sight of one eye becomes an employe of one to whom the provisions of the workmen's compensation act applies, and loses the sight of the other eye as a result of an injury while in the course of his employment, that a case of permanent total disability is presented, and that said employe is entitled to the compensation provided for under section 34 of the said act. You ask my opinion as to the correctness of this ruling.

Section 34 of the workmen's compensation act (1465-81, G. C.), provides that in cases of permanent total disability the award shall be 66⅔ per cent. of the average weekly wage, and shall continue until the death of such person totally disabled, with a maximum of twelve dollars and a minimum of five dollars per week. This section makes the loss of both hands, or of both arms, or of both feet, or of both legs, or of both eyes, or any two thereof, prima facia evidence of permanent and total disability.

Section 33 (1465-80, G. C.), of the workmen's compensation act provides, in part, that for the loss of an eye, the compensation shall be 66⅔ per cent. of the average weekly wage for a period of one hundred weeks, with a maximum of twelve dollars and a minimum of five dollars per week. Section 33 also contains a provision that,

> "In case of an injury resulting in partial disability the employe shall receive sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of the impairment of his earning capacity during the continuance thereof, not to exceed a maximum of twelve dollars per week, or a greater sum in the aggregate than thirty-seven hundred and fifty dollars."

From the various provisions contained in this section 33, it appears that for the loss of an eye 66⅔ per cent. of the average weekly wages shall be paid for one hundred weeks when such loss results in a partial disability. This can only mean that the employe had vision in both of his eyes at the time of the injury and is left with the vision of one eye. He is therefore not permanently and totally disabled. But section 34 provides compensation as heretofore set out when the injury received in the course of his employment results in permanent total disability.

Now, an employe at some prior time having lost one eye, and loses the second or last eye as a result of an injury sustained in the course of his employment, is prima facia permanently and totally disabled just as fully as though he had lost the sight of both of his eyes at the time and under the circumstances he lost the second or last eye.

The supreme court of Wisconsin reached a similar conclusion in the case of Mellon Lumber Company v. Industrial Commission of Wisconsin, et al., 142 N. W., 187, 3 N. C. C. A., 649.

I am, therefore, of the opinion, that the language of these two sections fully sustains the ruling of the commission.

It is the well settled law that whoever takes a cripple into his employment takes him subject to his crippled condition; so the language of these two sections and the ruling of the commission in construing the same are in accordance with the general rule of law in the premises. The loss of the sight in both eyes constitutes a prima facia case of permanent total disability whether the unfortunate condition results from loss of both eyes or from the loss of the second or last eye.

The compensation authorized for the partial disability caused by the loss of one of two eyes is much less than the compensation authorized for total permanent disability caused by the loss of the second and last eye or both eyes. Therefore, the individual who has but one eye will be handicapped both in his application for and retaining of employment—when his employer is subject to the terms of this act. If the legislature did not have this contingency in mind while enacting these statutes, its attention should be called to it now.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SCHOOL DISTRICT MAY UPON ORDER OF COMMON PLEAS COURT, TRANSFER A SURPLUS IN ITS TUITION FUND TO ITS BUILDING FUND UNDER CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS.

If the board of education of a school district finds that there is a surplus in its tuition fund, resulting from the local tax levy for said fund, which will not be needed for any of the purposes of said fund, and that it is necessary to transfer said surplus to its building fund to be used in the construction of a school building which the board of education finds necessary for the proper accommodation of the pupils of its district, such board may, upon the order of the common pleas court, on an application duly made in compliance with the requirements of section 2296, et seq., G. C., transfer said surplus from said tuition fund to the building fund for the purpose above named.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. CARL SCHULER, Prosecuting Attorney, Millersburg, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of April 8th, you request my opinion as follows:

> "Can a school board, acting under section 2296, file a petition in the common pleas court, by virtue of that section, asking the court to transfer money in the tuition fund, to a building fund, the board having a large surplus in the tuition fund, and not having any in the building fund? Section 7603 providing that the tuition fund shall only be appropriated for the payment of superintendents and teachers, the latter section, or rather the portion referred to herein with reference to the tuition fund, having been passed by the legislators since the passage of section 2296. In case they could have this transferred, a new school house could be built without resorting to a bond issue, at the same time, they would have ample funds with which to pay superintendents and teachers for the ensuing year.

"It is my opinion, that they can file a petition asking for this transfer under section 2296, and those that follow, but having some doubts by reason of section 7603, there being no court decisions or opinions from attorney generals with reference to same, I submit this proposition."

Section 2296, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 522, provides:

"The county commissioners, township trustees, the board of education of a school district, or the council or other board having the legislative power of a municipality, may transfer public funds, except the proceeds or balances of special levies, loans or bond issues, under their supervision, from one fund to another, or to a new fund created under their respective supervision, in the manner hereafter provided, which shall be in addition to all other procedure now provided by law."

Under authority of this section, the board of education of a school district may, by order of court, on application duly made in compliance with the requirements of section 2297, et seq., of the General Code, transfer surplus money in any school fund, except the proceeds or balances of special levies, loans or bond issues, to another school fund which the board of education finds does not have sufficient money to its credit to pay valid existing obligations charged against said fund, or to meet additional expenditures which the board deems will be necessary for the proper accommodation of the schools of the district.

You call my attention to the provision of section 7603, G. C., which is as follows:

"The certificate of apportionment furnished by the county auditor to the treasurer and clerk of each school district must exhibit the amount of money received by each district from the state, the amount received from any special tax levy made for a particular purpose, and the amount received from local taxation of a general nature. The amount received from the state common school fund and the common school fund shall be designated the "tuition fund," and be appropriated only for the payment of superintendents and teachers. Funds received from special levies must be designated in accordance with the purpose for which the special levy was made, and be paid out only for such purpose, except, that, when a balance remains in such fund, after all expenses incident to the purpose for which it was raised have been paid, such balance will become a part of the contingent fund, and the board of education shall make such transfer by resolution. Funds received from the local levy for general purposes must be designated so as to correspond to the particular purpose for which the levy was made. Moneys coming from sources not enumerated herein shall be placed in the contingent fund.'

While this statue provides that the money received from the state common school fund and the common school fund shall be designated as the "tuition fund," and shall be appropriated only for the payment of superintendents and teachers, the term "tuition fund," as above used and limited to the money received from the state, may be only a part of the general statutory fund known as the tuition fund and for which the board of education may make a local tax levy in addition to the amount received from the state.

Before any money can be transferred under authority of section 2296, et seq., of the General Code, it must appear to the court that the amount of money which the board of education asks to have transferred is not needed in the particular fund for any of the purposes for which such fund is by law established, and that such transfer is necessary.

In view of the provision of section 7603, G. C., above referred to, it seems clear that the authority of a board of education to transfer money from its tuition fund is limited to the surplus money in said fund resulting from the local tax levy for said fund.

In an unreported case in the common pleas court of Champaign county, where the board of educaton of a school district in said county made application to said court, under provision of section 2296, G. C., for an order authorizing a transfer from its tuition fund to its contngent fund, Judge E. P. Middleton, of said court, required said board of education to show that the surplus money in its tuition fund, which said board desired to transfer, resulted from the local tax levy for said tuition fund, and that no part of said surplus resulted from the money received by said district from the state.

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that if the board of education, referred to in your letter, finds there is a surplus in its tuition fund, resulting from the local tax levy for said fund, which will not be needed for any of the purposes of said fund, and that it is necessary to transfer said surplus to its building fund to be used in the construction of a school building which the board finds necessary for the proper accommodation of the pupils of its district, such board may, upon the order of the common pleas court, on an application duly made in compliance with the requirements of section 2296, et seq., of the General Code, transfer said surplus from said tuition fund to the building fund for the purpose above mentioned.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

APPROPRIATION BILL—AN AGGREGATE SUM AVAILABLE FOR PAYMENT OF SALARIES OF A DESIGNATED NUMBER OF CLERKS MAY BE EXPENDED ONLY FOR SUCH NUMBER, AND THE WHOLE SUM MAY NOT BE DIVIDED AMONG THE SALARIES OF A LESSER NUMBER OF CLERKS.

An item in an appropriation bill specifying an aggregate sum to be available for the payment of the salaries of a specific number of clerks may be expended only in the payment of the number of salaries designated; if fewer than the designated number of clerks are actually employed, the whole sum appropriated may not be divided among the salaries of such lesser number of clerks, but such salaries may not exceed in the aggregate such a sum as will leave in the appropriation a sufficient amount to pay a substantial salary for each of the remaining positions contemplated by the appropriation.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 22nd, requesting my opinion on the following questions:

> "The partial appropriation act provides as follows:
> "In relation to the department of industrial commission, under the subheading 'Investigation and Statistics,' on page 26 of the bill, the following appropriation was made, with the figures carried into the column headed 'Items':

" 'Two Statistical Clerks..... $900 00.'
" 'Fifteen Statistical Clerks..... 5,422 50.'

"Question 1. Are the words 'two' and 'fifteen' controlling, i. e., is the sum appropriated for the payment of such clerks to be used anong fifteen clerks in the second case and two clerks in the first case?

"Question 2. If the words 'two' and 'fifteen' are controlling, and if the commission employs two clerks at a total cost of $900.00, and ten clerks under the second item, may the commission pro-rate the whole appropriation of $5,422.50 among the ten?

"Question 3. If the commission employs under the second appropriation eighteen clerks, may it divide the entire appropriation among the eighteen?

"Question 4. If more or less than the number of clerks specified in the act are employed, and the board is required to pro-rate the appropriation on the basis of seventeen clerks receiving $6,322.50, then what rule shall be applied in determining whether the commission has properly calculated the sums. For instance, if only eight are employed, what proportion of the entire appropriation of $6,322.50 shall be permissibly used for salaries of the eight?"

I call attention at this point to an error in your statement, in that the figures to which you refer are not carried into the column headed, "Items," but in the column headed "Appropriations, February 16, 1915—June 30, 1915." That is, these are specific appropriations for personal service, and are not merely primary limitations upon the purpose for which a larger specific appropriation may be expended.

Answering your questions specifically, I am of the opinion:

(1). That the words "two" and "fifteen" are controlling, and that the sums appropriated are for the purpose of paying the salaries of two clerks, in the first case, and fifteen clerks, in the second case.

(2). Answering your second question, I am of the opinion that it is not lawful to expend the sum appropriated for salaries of fifteen statistical clerks in paying the salaries of ten such clerks; that is, to expend in this manner the entire sum so appropriated and divide it among ten clerks instead of fifteen clerks.

(3). I am further of the opinion that it is likewise not lawful to employ eighteen clerks and to divide an appropriation for fifteen clerks among such number of clerks in the payment of their salaries.

(4). In answer to your fourth question, I am of the opinion that the only rule which can be applied in determining whether the commission or department has properly calculated the division of a lump sum appropriation for the payment of the salaries of a specified number of clerks is as follows:

The division must be made in such manner as that a real and substantial salary will be assigned to each position for which the general assembly made an appropriation. What constitutes a real and substantial salary will necessarily vary with the grade of work to be performed and other like factors. It should not be difficult to determine in a given instance, however, whether, if the number of clerks for the salaries of which a lump sum appropriation has been made is not actually employed by the department, and the salaries of such clerks as are employed as fixed by the department do not exhaust the appropriation, the remainder, or what might be termed "the unused portion of the appropriations," represents a substantial and adequate aggregate compensation for the number of clerks which have not been employed.

Further than this, I feel that I cannot go as a matter of law, as I do not think that an appropriation of the kind specified by you is to be taken as indicating that the salaries of all the clerks to be employed and paid therefrom shall be equal.

The questions respecting the application of the state civil service law and the possibility of deductions in paying thereunder are not considered in this opinion, as no facts are stated upon which to base any consideration of such questions.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT—SCHOOLS SHALL NOT BE SUSPENDED UNTIL AFTER SIXTY DAYS' NOTICE, EVEN THOUGH ATTENDANCE FOR PRECEDING YEAR WAS LESS THAN TWELVE.

The provision of section 7730, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, that no school of any rural district shall be suspended or abolished until after sixty days' notice has been given by the school board of such district, is mandatory, and no school is suspended until such notice is given even though the average daily attendance in such school for the preceding year was less than twelve.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. E. E. LINDSAY, Prosecuting Attorney, New Philadelphia, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of April 16th, which is as follows:

> "Section 7730 of the General Code, as amended, 104 O. L., page 139, provides in part as follows:
> " 'When the average daily attendance of any school for the preceding year has been below twelve, such school shall be suspended * * *. No school of any rural district shall be suspended or abolished until after sixty days' notice has been given by the school board of such district. Such notice shall be posted in five conspicuous places within such village or rural school district.'
> "In the event that the average daily attendance of any school for the preceding year has been below twelve, and the board of education refuses or neglects to suspend such school, is such school suspended by the provision of this section, notwithstanding the board of education fails or neglects to suspend the same? Or must the sixty days' notice be given as provided in said section before such school can be suspended, even though the average daily attendance is less than twelve for the preceding year?"

The answer to your question is found in an opinion of my predecessor, Mr. Hogan, rendered to Hon. B. F. Enos, prosecuting attorney of Guernsey county, under date of August 10, 1914.

This opinion holds that the provision of section 7730, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, "no school of any rural district shall be suspended or abolished until after sixty days' notice has been given by the school board of such district," is mandatory and that no school is suspended until such notice is given even though the average daily attendance in such school for the preceding year was less than twelve.

I concur in this opinion and enclose copy of same.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENTS—CANNOT REQUIRE TEACHERS TO ATTEND MEETINGS ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON—TEACHERS ARE ENTITLED TO REGULAR PAY AND MUST ATTEND MEETINGS HELD ON REGULAR SCHOOL DAYS—DISTRICT SO PAYING TEACHERS NOT INELIGIBLE TO STATE AID—DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT WHO DRAWS PAY PARTLY AS TEACHER—BOARD SHOULD INCLUDE HIS SALARY WHEN ESTIMATING DEFICIT TO SEEK STATE AID.

District superintendents cannot require the teachers of their district to attend the meetings provided for in section 7706-1, G. C. (104 O. L., 144), on Saturday afternoons.

If the board of education of a district authorizes the holding of these meetings on regular school days and during school hours, it is the duty of the teachers of said dis rict to attend such meetings, and said teachers are entitled to their regular pay for attending said meetings the same as if they had taught during the time used for such meetings.

Such district, by paying its teachers for attendance at meetings held on regular school days, does not, on this account, render itself ineligible to receive state aid, providing it complies with all the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts.

Where a district superintendent, employed under the provision of section 4740, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 141, gives one-half of his time to teaching, the proportionate amount paid him as a teacher, based upon the minimum salary of $70.00 per month, mentioned in item 4 of the schedule of salaries provided in section 7595-1, G. C. (104 O. L., 165), should be included by the board of education of the district in which he teaches in estimating its deficiency for the purpose of making application for state aid, and the fact that said superintendent has been paid for teaching one-half his time, does not prevent said district from receiving state aid, providing said district has complied with all of the requirements of the statutes relating thereto.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—In your letter under date of February 27th, you request my opinion upon the following questions:

"1st. Have district superintendents a legal right to require teachers of their districts to attend the meetings provided for in section 7706-1, vol. 104 O. L., page 144, on Saturday afternoons, and would it be legal for boards of education to pay teachers for attending such meetings on Saturdays in addition to their regular salaries?

"2nd. Is it legal for district superintendents to hold these meeetings on regular school days, and if so, are the teachers entitled to their regular pay for such attendance the same as if they had taught?

"3rd. Would the district be eligible to receive state aid under section 7595, General Code, if it so paid its teachers?

"4th. If a teacher is employed one-half his time in supervision and one-half in teaching, can the amount paid him as teacher be included in the expense going to make up the deficiency on which is based application for state aid under section 7595, General Code? If not, would the fact that a teacher had been so paid for one-half his time, prevent the district from receiving state aid, provided it had complied with the other requirements of the weak school district sections?"

I call your attention to the following provisions of the statutes relating to the management and control of schools, the employment of teachers and district supervision:

Section 7690, G. C., provides in part:

"Each board of education shall have the management and control of all of the public schools of whatever name or character in the district. * * * Each board shall fix the salaries of all teachers, which may be increased, but not diminished during the term for which the appointment is made."

Section 7699, G. C., provides:

"Upon the appointment of any person to any position under the control of the board of education, the clerk promptly must notify such person verbally or in writing, of his appointment, the conditions thereof, and request and secure from him within a reasonable time to be determined by the board, his acceptance or rejection of such appointment. An acceptance of it within the time thus determined shall constitute a contract binding both parties thereto until such time as it may be dissolved, expires, or the appointee be dismissed for cause."

Section 7701, G. C., provides:

"Each board may dismiss any appointee or teacher for inefficiency, neglect of duty, immorality, or improper conduct. No teacher shall be dismissed by any board unless the charges are first reduced to writing and an opportunity be given for defense before the board, or a committee thereof, and a majority of the full membership of the board vote upon roll call in favor of such dismissal."

Section 7705, G. C., as amended, and section 7706, G. C., as amended, and supplemented by section 7706-1, G. C., as found in 104 O. L., 144, provides as follows:

"The board of education of each village, and rural school district shall employ the teachers of the public schools of the district, for a term not longer than three school years, to begin within four months of the date of appointment. The local board shall employ no teacher for any school unless such teacher is nominated therefor by the district superintendent of the supervision district in which such school is located except by a majority vote. In all high schools and consolidated schools one of the teachers shall be designated by the board as principal and shall be the administrative head of such school."

Section 7706:

"The district superintendent shall visit the schools under his charge, direct and assist teachers in the performance of their duties, classify and control the promotion of pupils, and shall spend not less than three-fourths of his working time in actual class-room supervision. He shall report to the county superintendent annually, and oftener if required, as to all matters under his supervision. He shall be the chief executive officer of all boards of education within his district and shall attend any and all meetings. He may take part in their deliberations, but shall not vote. Such time as is not spent in actual supervision shall be used for organization and administrative purposes and in the instruction of teachers. At the request of the county board of education he shall teach in teachers' training courses which may be organized in the county school district."

Section 7706-1:

"The district superintendent shall, as often as advisable, assemble the teachers of his district for the purpose of conference on the course of study, discipline, school management and other school work and for the promotion of the general good of all the schools in the district. The county superintendent shall co-operate with the different district superintendents in holding such teachers' meetings and shall attend as many of them as his other duties will permit."

When a teacher is nominated by the district superintendent, and employed by the local board of education, under authority of section 7705, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 144, and enters into a contract with said local board of education, as required by section 7699, G. C., by accepting the appointment and entering into the contract, he agrees to comply with the rules and regulations of said board in so far as they are consistent with the statutes governing said board, and to perform his duties as a teacher according to the terms and conditions of said contract, and according to the requirements of the statutes governing his duties.

The district superintendent is employed by the boards of education of the district either under authority of section 4739, G. C., or section 4740, G. C., as such sections are amended in 104 O. L., pages 140 and 141.

Section 4739, G. C., as amended, provides:

"Each supervision district shall be under the direction of a district superintendent. Such district superintendent shall be elected by the presidents of the village and rural boards of education within such district, except that where such supervision district contains three or less rural or village school districts the boards of education of such school districts in joint session shall elect such superintendent. The district superintendent shall be employed upon the nomination of the county superintendent, but the board electing such district superintendent may by a majority vote elect a district superintendent not so nominated."

Section 4740, G. C., provides:

"In village or rural districts, or union of school districts for supervison purposes, which already employs a superintendent and which officially certifies by the clerk or clerks of the board of education, on or before July 20, 1914, that it will employ a superintendent who gives at least one-half of his time in supervision, shall, upon application to the county board of education, be continued as a separate supervision district so long as the superintendent receives a salary of at least one thousand dollars, and continues to give one-half of his time to supervision work. Such districts shall receive such portion of state aid for the payment of the salary of the district superintendent as is based on the ratio of the number of teachers employed to forty, multiplied by the fraction which represents that fraction of the regular school day which the superintendent gives to supervision. The county superintendent shall make no nomination of a district superintendent in such district until a vacancy in such superintendency occurs. After the first vacancy occurs in the superintendency of such a district, all appointments shall be made on the nomination of the county superintendent in the manner provided in section 4739. A vacancy shall occur only when such superintendent resigns, dies or fails of re-election."

The district superintendent, in the performance of his duties shall, as often as is deemed advisable, assemble the teachers of the district for the purpose of conference in matters pertaining to the affairs of the district.

The question arises, can a board of education, either by an express provision in the contract of employment with a teacher or by implied authority under the statutes governing said employment, require said teacher to attend a teachers' meeting on Saturday afternoons?

Section 7689, General Code, provides:

"The school year shall begin on the first day of September of each year and close on the 31st day of August of the succeeding year. A school week shall consist of five days, and a school month of four school weeks."

It is clear, under the latter provision of this statute, that a board of education cannot compel a teacher to teach more than five days in any one week. The custom of keeping the schools in session the five working days of each week during the school term, exclusive of Saturday, is well established, and a teacher having taught the required time prescribed by the above provision of the statute, is not required by law, to render additional service outside of the five school days constituting the school week.

A teacher's attendance at a meeting called by the district superintendent within the limits of time above prescribed, is the performance of a duty incidental to his employment. It must therefore follow that if a teacher cannot be called to teach more than five days in any one week, he cannot be compelled to attend a teachers' meeting at a time other than for that which he is employed to render services.

The provision of section 5978, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 566, is an additional prohibition against the board of education compelling a teacher to teach or attend a teachers' meeting on Saturday afternnoon. This section, as amended, provides as follows:

"Every Saturday afternoon of each year shall be a half legal holiday for all purposes, beginning at twelve o'clock noon and ending at twelve o'clock midnight. Nothing however, in this section or any other, or any decision of any court shall in any manner affect the validity of or render void or voidable any check, bill of exchange, order, promissory note, due bill, mortgage or other writing obligatory made, signed, negotiated, transferred, assigned or paid by any person, persons, corporation or bank, upon said half holiday, or any other transaction had thereon."

I do not think a board of education can ignore the plain provisions of this statute. Even if the teachers of a supervision district would be willing to attend teachers' meetings on Saturday afternoons, no authority is conferred by statute upon boards of education to pay the teachers for attending such meetings, in addition to their regular salary.

Replying to your first question, I am of the opinion that district superintendents cannot require the teachers of their districts to attend the meetings provided for in section 7706-1, G. C. (104 O. L., 144), on Saturday afternoons.

If the boards of education of the district authorize the holding of these meetings on regular school days and during school hours, it is the duty of the teachers of the district to attend such meetings, and, answering your second question, I am of the opinion that said teachers are entitled to their regular pay for attending said meetings the same as if they had taught during the time used for such meetings.

Your third question calls for a consideration of section 7595, G. C., as amended and supplemented by section 7591, G. C., 104 O. L., 165, section 7596, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 267, and section 7597, G. C., as amended in 104, O. L., 165, in addition to the provisions of the section of the statute hereinbefore set forth.

Section 7595, General Code, as amended, provides as follows:

> "No person shall be employed to teach in any public school in Ohio for less than forty dollars a month. When a school district has not sufficient money to pay its teachers, such salaries as are provided in section 7595-1, for eight months of the year, after the board of education of such district has made the maximum legal school levy, three-fourths of which shall be for the tuition fund, then such school district may receive from the state treasurer sufficient money to make up the deficiency."

Section 7595-1, G. C., provides:

> "Only such school districts shall be eligible to receive state aid which pay salaries as follows:
>
> "(1) Elementary teachers without previous teaching experience in the state and with no professional training, forty dollars per month.
> "(2) Elementary teachers having at least six weeks' professional training, forty-five dollars per month.
> "(3) Elementary teachers who have completed the full two years' course in any normal school, teachers' college, college or university approved by the superintendent of public instruction, fifty-five dollars per month.
> "(4) High school teachers, seventy dollars per month."

Section 7596, G. C., as amended, provides:

> "Whenever any board of education finds that it will have such a deficit for the current school year, such board shall on the first day of October, or any time prior to the first day of January of said year, make afidavit to the county auditor, who shall send a certified statement of the facts to the state auditor. The state auditor shall issue a voucher on the state treasurer in favor of the treasurer of such school district for the amount of such deficit in the tuition fund."

Section 7597, G. C., as amended, provides:

> "No district shall be entitled to state aid as provided in sections 7595, 7595-1 and 7596, unless the number of persons of school age in such district is at least twenty times the number of teachers employed therein, and the schools in such district are maintained at least eight months of the year."

The holding of teachers' meetings by the district superintendent, as required by the above provision of section 7706-1, is a part of the school work, and is vital to the welfare of the schools. It was certainly not the intent of the legislature, in making it mandatory on the district superintendent to hold these meetings to thereby disqualify weak districts from receiving state aid.

Replying to your third question, I am of the opinion that the district referred to in your second question, by paying its teachers for attendance at meetings held on regular school days, does not on this account render itself ineligible to receive state aid, providing it complies with all the statutes governing state aid to weak school districts.

The duties of a superintendent employed under authority of the above provision of section 4740, G. C., who is not required to give more than one-half of his time to supervision work, differs from the duties of a superintendent employed under authority of section 4739 General Code, who is required by the provision of section 7706, G. C., to spend not less than three-fourths of his working time in actual class room supervision and the balance of his time for organization and administrative purposes, and in the instruction of teachers. The minimum salary of the district superintendent under each of the two sections above referred to, is the same. The apportionment of state aid for the payment of his salary varies according to the time given to supervision work and the number of teachers in the district.

Your fourth question applies only to the case of a superintendent employed under authority of section 4740, G. C., district supervision, whether under section 4739 or section 4740, G. C., is mandatory, and the question arises whether a district which contributes its proportionate part of the salary of the district superintendent, who gives one-half of his time to teaching in a school within said district, is, on this account, disqualified under the above provision of the statute relating to state aid.

The minimum salary of a district superintendent under section 4740, G. C., is one thousand dollars, and one-half of this amount, plus the proportionate amount paid for supervision, in addition to the amount received from the state, must be contributed by the district in which said superintendent teaches.

The district superintendent must have the qualifications of a high school teacher under the provisions of section 4744-3, G. C., as found in 104 O. L., 143.

For the time he teaches, his salary is more than $70.00 per month, the minimum for a high school teacher mentioned in item four of the schedule of salaries provided in section 7595-1, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 165. It does not follow, however, that the district which pays said superintendent for teaching one-half of his time, is on this account prevented from receiving state aid.

I call your attention to an opinion of my predecessor, Mr. Hogan, rendered to Hon. E. M. Fullington, auditor of state, under date of February 20, 1912, and found at page 98 of the annual report of the attorney general, for the year 1912.

In commenting on the provisions of section 7595, G. C., as in force at that time, Mr. Hogan said:

> "As I view the provisions of section 7595, General Code, it means simply if the school district does not receive into its tuition fund a sum which would be sufficient to pay its teachers forty dollars a month for eight months, such school district is entitled to receive enough money to make up the amount which would be necessary to pay its teachers such minimum salary. It does not mean, as it seems to me, that the board of education cannot pay other obligations which are placed either primarily or secondarily upon the tuition fund from such tuition fund, nor does it mean that it is restricted to the payment of the minimum salary to the various teachers of the school district, but merely that the state will only pay to such school district the difference between the total amount of the tuition fund received and the amount which would have been necessary to pay its teachers the minimum salary.
> "I am therefore, of the opinion, that a board of education may use the tuition fund for the payment of obligations in excess of forty dollars a month for teachers, but that in applying for state aid, such board of education shall only be entitled to an amount which would equal a sum necessary to pay the requisite number of teachers a salary of forty dollars a month after deducting the total amount of the tuition fund actually received."

I concur in this opinion in so far as the same is applicable to the provisions of section 7595, G. C., as amended and supplemented by section 7595-1, G. C., 104 O. L., 165.

Replying to your fourth question, I am of the opinion that where a superintendent employed under the provisions of section 4740, G. C., gives one-half his time to teaching, the proportionate amount paid him as a teacher, based upon the minimum salary of $70.00 per month, should be included by the board of education of the district in which he teaches, in estimating its deficiency for the purpose of making application for state aid, and the fact that said superintendent has been paid for teaching one-half his time, would not prevent said district from receiving state aid providing said district has complied with the above requirements of the statutes relating thereto.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—HAS AUTHORITY TO ACQUIRE TITLE TO CHURCH PROPERTY FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES UNDER SECTION 7624, G. C., AS AMENDED, 103 O. L., 466.

If the board of education of a school district, by a proper resolution of record, determines that it is necessary to procure a tract of land on which a church parsonage is located for school purposes, and that it is unable to agree with the official or officials of the church organization holding the title to said property in trust for said organization, upon the sale and purchase thereof, said board of education, acting under authority of and in compliance with the requirements of section 7624, G. C., as amended in 103 O. L., 466, may acquire the title to said property in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of private property by municipal corporations.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. FRANK W. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. C. L. Curl, treasurer of the village of North Lewisburg, Ohio, under date of April 7, 1915, requesting my opinion on a matter of public interest, and I am, therefore, addressing an opinion thereon to you.

The letter is as follows:

"We would be pleased to know if a church parsonage can be condemned and appraised and paid for to be used for school purposes."

Section 7624, General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., 466, provides:

"When it is necessary to procure or enlarge a school site or to purchase real estate to be used for agricultural purposes, athletic field or play ground for children, and the board of education and the owner of the property needed for such proposed are unable to agree upon the sale and purchase thereof, the board shall make an accurate plat and description of the parcel of land which it desires for such purposes, and file them with the probate judge, or court of insolvency, of the proper county. Thereupon the same proceedings of appropriation shall be had which are provided for the appropriation of private property by municipal corporations."

The tract of land on which a church parsonage is located, being private property of a church organization, is subject to appropriation for public purposes the same as any other private property.

The case of School Board of the Village of New Berlin v. Peter et al., 9 Ohio, N. P. (n. s.), 232, relates to condemnation proceedings by a board of education, and the first branch of the syllabus is as follows:

"The probate court acquires jurisdiction in a condemnation proceeding brought by a school board by determining before the jury is summoned: First, that the school board has passed the necessary resolution; second, the inability of the board to agree with the owner on the question of price; third, the necessity for the appropriation for the purpose described in the petition; and fourth, that all parties having an interest in the property have been legally notified."

I am of the opinion that if the board of education of a school district, by a proper resolution of record, determines that it is necessary to procure a tract of land on which a church parsonage is located for school purposes, and that it is unable to agree with the official or officials of the church organization, holding the title to said property in trust for said organization, upon the sale and purchase thereof, said board of education, acting under the authority of, and in compliance with, the requirements of section 7624, G. C., as amended, may acquire the title to said property in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of private property by municipal corporations.

I am sending a copy of this opinion to Mr. Curl.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BUDGET COMMISSION—TIME OF CONVENING—SMITH ONE PER CENT. LAW RESPECTING TAX DUPLICATE ON THE BASIS OF WHICH ADJUSTMENTS SHALL BE MADE NOT AFFECTED BY DECISION IN STATE EX REL., POGUE v. GROOM—HOUSE BILL No. 342 WILL GOVERN IN THESE RESPECTS SHOULD IT BECOME A LAW.

The effect of the decision in State ex rel., Pogue v. Groom (September 15, 1914), considered and held that the provision in amended section 5649-3b (104 O. L., 233), respecting the time of the convening of the budget commission and that respecting the tax duplicate on the basis of which the adjustments shall be made therein, are not affected by said decision

If house bill No. 342, passed by the eighty-first general assembly becomes a law, it will govern these matters.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

The Honorable Tax Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter of April 23, 1915, requests my opinion as follows:

"The supreme court, in the case of the State ex rel., Pogue v. Groom, on September 15, 1914, held that the act of April 16, 1913, amending section 5649-3b (103 O. L., 522), and the act of February 16, 1914, amending the same section (104 O. L., 233), are unconstitutional.

"Please render this department your opinion as to whether or not the valuations of 1915 are to be used this year for the purposes of said act or the valuations of last year."

The question which you ask is raised by the following legislative history:

"Section 5649-3b, as originally enacted, 102 O. L., 266: 'The county auditor, the mayor of the largest municipality in the county, as shown by the last federal census, and the prosecuting attorney shall constitute a board to be known as the budget commissioners, for the annual adjustment of the rates of taxation. The budget commissioners shall meet at the auditor's office in each county on the first Monday of June, annually, and complete their work on or before the first Monday in July next following.' "

The foregoing section is a part of the Smith one per cent. law which originally imposed certain rate and amount limitations upon the taxes which might be levied in any taxing district in the state. The application of the rate limitation, in particular, required the use of some tax duplicate of the given taxing district; for under other sections of the law the budget commissioners were to have submitted to them estimates of budgets of the various taxing districts levied within the county, and in order to enforce the limitations of the act it was necessary, so to speak, to translate amounts into rates by assuming or otherwise taking into consideration a given total tax duplicate for each taxing district.

Now in the original Smith law, in which the above quoted section appeared, there was no express provision as to what tax duplicate should be so employed, but inasmuch as the work of the budget commissioners was to be completed between June and July, and inasmuch as the duplicate for the year for which taxes were being levied was not, at that time under the then existing laws, made up; and inasmuch, further, as there was no express authority of statute to estimate the amount of the uncompleted duplicate, some doubt at least seems to have arisen as to whether the computations of the budget commission were to be made upon the basis of the duplicate upon which the levies were to be extended or upon the basis of the duplicate of the preceding year, the amount of which, at the time the budget commission was required to act, was definitely ascertainable. In the view I take of the case, it will not be necessary to express any definite conclusion as to what the meaning of the original Smith law, in this particular, was. It is sufficient to note that it was merely silent on this point.

Further history of the legislation is shown by the following amendments to section 5649-3b, cited by you. (As amended, 103 O. L., 552):

"The budget commission of each county shall consist of three members, the county auditor, the mayor of the largest municipality of the county as shown by the last federal census. In counties in which the amount of taxable property in the cities and villages thereof exceeds the amount of taxable property of territory outside of the cities and villages, the third member of such commission shall be the city solicitor of the largest municipality in the county as shown by the last federal census. In other counties the third member shall be president of the school board of the school district containing the largest municipality of the county as shown by the last federal census, if an elector, and if such president be not an elector then a member of such board who is an elector to be designated by the board.

"The amount of taxable property for purposes of this act shall be governed by the amount of tax duplicate of the preceding year. The budget commissioners shall meet at the auditor's office in each county on the first Monday in June, annually, and shall complete their work on or before the first Monday in July following."

As amended, 104 O. L., 237:

"The budget commission of each county shall consist of three members, the county auditor, the mayor of the largest municipality of the county as shown by the last federal census. In counties in which the amount of taxable property in the cities and villages thereof exceeds the amount of taxable property of territory outside of the cities and villages, the third member of such commission shall be the city solicitor of the largest municipality in the county as shown by the last federal census. In other counties the third member shall be president of the school board of the school district containing the largest municipality of the county as shown by the last federal census, if an elector; and if such president be not an elector then a member of such board who is an elector to be designated by the board.

"The amount of taxable property for purposes of this act shall be governed by the amount of the tax list of the current year as fixed by the district assessor and equalized by the tax commission of Ohio. The budget commissioners shall meet at the auditor's office in each county on the first Monday in August, annually, and shall complete their work on or before the third Monday in that month; provided, however, that for good cause the tax commission of Ohio may extend the time for completing the work. * * *"

I call attention to the following important facts respecting these two amendments:

The first amendment related to the personnel of the budget commission, and also to the basis of computation of the limitations, but it did not change the original law as to the date when the budget commission should convene and the time within which it should complete its work. The second amendment changed the law with reference to the basis of the computation of the limitation and also with reference to the date when the budget commission should convene and the time within which it should complete its work, but it did not change the law respecting the personnel of the budget commission.

In other words, for our present purposes there may be said to be three distinct provisions in section 5649-3b in its present form, at least, though only two of these provisions were in the original section. The three provisions of the section are that respecting the personnel of the budget commission, that respecting the basis of computation of the rate limitation and that respecting the time within which the budget commission should perform its work. The first amendment changed the law with reference to the first two of these three matters only, while the second amendment changed the law with respect to the second two of these matters only.

While analyzing these sections permit me to point out that there is no necessary, or even logical relation between the provision respecting the personnel of the budget commission and those respecting either of the other two matters; whereas there is a necessary and logical relation between the provision respecting the basis of the computation of the rate limitation and that respecting the time within which the budget commission shall complete its work, for I have pointed out the difficulty which arose under the original Smith law respecting the duplicate which was to be used in working out the rate limitation; this difficulty evidently led to the amendment of 1913, which insofar as it related to this subject, clarified the law and removed the doubt; but it was at least illogical to impose a rate limitation upon a taxing district and then to provide that the duplicate used should be that of the preceding year. The legislature in 1914 evidently desired to do away with this inconsistency in the law, and being convinced that this could not be done without changing the date of the meeting of the budget commission solved the problem by postponing that date for a period of two months, and then providing that the budget commission should be governed by the tax duplicate of the current year, which could be ascertained under legislation that had, in the meantime, been enacted with sufficient definiteness by the first Monday in August.

There is still a little difficulty in the interpretation of these sections in that the use of the terms "preceding year" and "current year," as they appear in the respective amendments, is not exactly clear. I am of the opinion, however, that the phrase "the preceding year," as used in the amendment of 1913, means the year preceding the year for which taxes are to be levied; that is, the tax collection year which was actually the current year at the time the budget commission was then required to act, and for similar reasons I am of the opinion that the phrase "current year," as used in the amendment of 1914, means the year for which tax levies are to be determined by the budget commission. Indeed there is less difficulty in reaching this conclusion that there is in interpreting the legislation of 1913, because the current tax year ends at the time of the August settlement, whereas the period within which the budget commission is to complete its work under the law of 1914, begins shortly prior to that settlement and extends beyond it; so that if a strictly technical interpretation be given to the phrase "current year," as used in the act of 1914, such an interpretation would render the amendment meaningless.

Having arrived then at an understanding of what the legislature intended to do in so amending section 5649-3b in 1913 and 1914, we must now ascertain what, in the light of the decisions referred to by you, the legislature actually succeeded in doing.

The first two branches of the syllabus in State ex rel., Pogue v. Groom, are as follows:

> "The act of the general assembly passed February 16, 1914 (104 O. L., 237), amending section 5649-3b, General Code, as amended April 16, 1913 (103 O. L., 552), insofar as it purports to designate who shall constitute the county budget commission, is unconstitutional and void.
> "The act of the general assembly passed April 16, 1913 (103 O. L., 552), purporting to amend section 5649-3b, General Code, by designating who shall constitute the county budget commission, is to that extent unconstitutional and void, and the repealing clause of the act, insofar as it repeals that portion of section 5649-3b, is invalid."

A careful reading of the entire opinion bears out the reservations made in the syllabus, as above quoted, and makes it clear that the supreme court intended merely to hold that the provision which is common to both amendments, respecting the personnel of the budget commission, was unconstitutional, without holding the entire section, as amended in either year, to be affected thereby. It will not be necessary to quote from the opinion as it is not more definite than the syllabus in this particular. It seems very clear to me that the supreme court has been careful to limit the effect of its decision to the first paragraph of amended section 5649-3b, and to indicate, by the inferences which must necessarily be drawn from the language which is used in the syllabus, that the remainder of the section, as amended, is not affected thereby.

One very good reason for taking this view of the decision is that the court, by its judgment in this case and by its decision in the case of State ex rel., Durr v. Budget Commission of Hamilton county, decided, about the same time, necessarily held that the unconstitutionality of the amended law did not affect the essential machinery of the Smith law, nor the remaining amendments affected by the Kilpatrick law of 1913. The court has clearly held in these decisions that the body of legislation consisting of the Smith law as amended by the Kilpatrick law, and as again amended in 1914, is not an entirety, but that the subject-matter of the personnel of the budget commission is severable from the remaining provisions of the act.

Of course an act is to be separated into its constituent parts for the purpose of measuring the effect of a judgment of partial unconstitutionality, not by any such artificial division as section numbers, but by subject-matters which constitute the only true and real divisions of the law. Therefore, a holding that a section is void, insofar as it relates to a given subject-matter, does not vitiate the entire section if there is in it some other subject-matter not necessarily related to the void portion.

I have already pointed out that the provision with respect to the time of the meeting of the budget commission, and the basis of applying the rate limitations, is, in no way, related to the provision respecting the personnel of the budget commission.

Another way of stating the same thing is to say that the legislature did not intend that it should be the budget commission, consisting of the county auditor, the mayor and the solicitor, or president of the school board, which should meet in August, and be governed by the amount on the tax list of the current year, and that commission only; but if it had been advised that it could not have constructed a budget commission having such a personnel, it would nevertheless have inserted in the law, for other sufficient reasons, the provision respecting the time of meeting and the basis of computation.

For all the foregoing reasons I am of the opinion that what you term the valuations of 1915, by which I assume that you mean the valuations now being made in the year 1915, and which will go on the duplicate upon which taxes are to be collected in December, 1915, and June, 1916, are to be used by the budget commission which is to convene in August, 1915, for the fixing of the tax rates; and that what you term the valuations of "last year," by which I suppose you mean the valuations which are to be found on the duplicate now in the possession of the treasurer for the collection of the second half of the taxes for the year 1914 in June 1915, are not to be so used.

In connection with your question I call your attention to the passage, by the present session of the legislature, of house bill No. 342, further amending section 5649-3b so as to obviate the constitutional infirmity pointed out by the court in the case above cited. This measure has not yet been signed by the governor, but if it is signed by the governor and becomes a law (and its effectiveness can hardly be postponed so as to keep it from going into operation this year), it will remove all doubt in the premises, for it provides that the budget commissioners shall meet on the first Monday in August annually, and shall complete their work on or before the third Monday in that month, unless for good cause the tax commission of Ohio shall extend the time for completing the work; and that the budget commissioners shall be governed, in their adjustments, by the amount of the taxable property as shown on the auditor's tax list for the current year, provided, that if the auditor's tax list has not been completed, the auditor shall estimate it as nearly as practicable, and the commissioners shall be governed by such estimate. As amended by house bill No. 342, the section is, it will be observed, absolutely clear.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PARTIAL APPROPRIATION BILL FOR 1915, HOUSE BILL No. 314—EFFECT ON ACT FOUND IN 104 O. L., 211, RESPECTING APPROPRIATIONS MADE IN 1914 AND 1915.

Section 6 of the partial appropriation bill for 1915, House Bill No. 314, practically, though not technically, repeals the appropriation accounts created by the act found in 104 O. L., 211 for purposes for which appropriations are made in the 1915 law; but has no effect whatever upon the other appropriation accounts in said act of 1914.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I hasten to comply with your written request of April 22d for my advice upon the following question:

> "Does the enactment of house bill No. 314, to make appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and state institutions for the period beginning February 16, 1915, and ending June 30, 1915, repeal house bill No. 53 passed by the 80th general assembly, to make sundry appropriations?"

It is not difficult to answer your question categorically in the negative. That is, house bill No. 314, passed by the present session of the general assembly, does not expressly repeal all or any part of house bill No. 53, passed by the 80th general assembly at its first extraordinary session in 1914 (104 O. L., 211). The only express repeal in house bill No. 314, above referred to, is of the law approved February 17, 1914; that is, house bill No. 47, passed by the 80th general assembly at its first extraordinary session in 1914 (104 O. L., 64).

I apprehend from the manner in which your question is asked that you have in mind another legal question arising under section 6 of said house bill No. 314. This section provides in part as follows:

> "All liabilities incurred on or before June 30, 1915, shall be paid from appropriations herein provided in section 1. All balances in any appropriation account against which there is no liability on February 16, 1915, and any excess of such balances over liabilities, shall lapse into the fund from which the same were appropriated;"

The question which I apprehend has been raised in your department is as to the effect of this provision, respecting the lapsing of balances, upon balances remaining in appropriation accounts created by house bill No. 53 of 1914, which is not expressly repealed.

Said house bill No. 53 presents certain striking peculiarities. In the first place, section 1 of the act appropriates "the following sums, * * * to be available to pay the liabilities herein below specified." Then follows a list of miscellaneous appropriations, not departmental in character and obviously relating to liabilities incurred prior to the passage of said house bill No. 53, such as, for example, the refund of taxes, the payment of expenses incurred by a special commission, payment for services rendered to the state in different capacities, etc.

There are also in the bill certain departmental appropriations relating to liabilities theretofore incurred, other than those of a contractual nature, such as would be prohibited by the statute against the creation of deficiencies. Thus we find a number of appropriations under the heading "Ohio National Guard," consisting, in a large measure at least, of the allowance of claims for damages against the State, and under the heading "Department of Public Works" we find a list of appropriations of a similar character.

In the second place, the bill carries a general clause to the following effect:

> "The moneys herein appropriated shall be paid upon the approval of a special auditing committee, consisting of the chairman of the senate finance committee, the chairman of the house finance committee and the auditor of state, and said auditing committee is hereby authorized and directed to make careful inquiry as to the validity of each and every claim herein made, and to pay only so much as may be found to be correct and just."

Of course this clause is appropriate only to the auditing of claims against the state and would hardly be appropriate in the case of disbursement of appropriations for the current expenses of state departments and institutions.

The difficulty which I imagine is presented arises, however, out of the fact that in the so-called "sundry bill" (house bill No. 53) the legislature of 1914 inserted a number of what might be termed "anticipatory appropriations," that is, appropriations intended to provide for expenses to be incurred in the future. Thus we find an appropriation for the expenses of legislative committees; one for the geological survey of Ohio; one for the rental of Longview hospital; one for conducting the summer term of the Ohio State University; an appropriation of $25,000 for installing, maintaining and exhibiting the live stock, agricultural products, resources and opportunities of this state at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in the year 1915; and others of a different specific character, but of the same general class.

It is only by inference that it can be ascertained that there are two classes of appropriations in the law in question; for the law lacks any such clause as is ordinarily found in a general or partial appropriation law relative to the availability of the appropriation accounts for the payment of liabilities incurred prior to or subsequently to a given date.

The appropriations are made without limitation with respect to the liabilities to meet which they may be disbursed, as is the case in the ordinary form of current expense appropriation laws. Nevertheless, I think it is very clear that the legislature intended that the appropriations, some of which I have mentioned, should be disbursed in the ordinary manner and be subject to pay liabilities incurred in the activities of the departments and commissions to which they were made.

I am therefore of the opinion that the restrictive clause relative to the special auditing committee and its powers and duties, above quoted, does not apply to the disbursement of such appropriations, but only to the disbursement of appropriations made, as therein provided, for the payment of "claims."

The question which I have assumed to exist, then, is this:

> "Is the general language of section 6 of the act of 1915, to the effect that all balances in 'any appropriation account against which there is no liability on February 16, 1915, and any excess of such balances over liabilities shall lapse into the fund from which the same were appropriated,' applicable to balances of the appropriation accounts created by said house bill No. 53 of 1914, and effect a lapse of any net balances therein?"

It is clear that the appropriation accounts in question, unless affected by house bill No. 314, passed by the present session of the general assembly, continue to be available for disbursement and to constitute authority for the incurring of liabilities, and will continue to be such, unless exhausted, until two years from the passage of house bill No. 53, insofar as the same are for the current expenses of the state government or its institutions, or until two years from a date ninety days subsequent thereto, with respect to other appropriations of a continuing character. This is true because of the lack of any specific limitation on the life of the appropriation and under article II, section 22 of the constitution, which provides that "no appropriation shall be made for a longer period than two years," by force of which an appropriation made without limitation as to time is good for a period of two years unless sooner exhausted. Therefore, the question which you submit is directly raised.

The first sentence of section 6, above quoted, to the effect that all liabilities incurred on or before June 30, 1915, shall be paid from appropriations provided in section 1 thereof, is primarily a legislative declaration of policy as to the disbursement of the moneys appropriated by section 1. Of itself it is not sufficient, in my judgment, to cut off the right to disburse moneys appropriated by some other law, though of prior enactment, for purposes other than those covered by the 1915 law and to prohibit such appropriations from being used to pay liabilities incurred "on or before June 30, 1915." In fact, so far as this sentence is concerned, any practical application thereof would be impossible without reading into the sentence some beginning date, such as the date of the passage of the act or the date suggested by the succeeding sentence and the title of the bill, viz.: February 16, 1915.

The purpose of the act is, as indicated in the title and elsewhere, to provide appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and its institutions for the period beginning on February 16, 1915, and ending June 30, 1915. The bill was not passed until March 11, 1915, and though the law could have no effect until that date, when it did go into effect it governed through this sentence all expenditures within its purview, on account of liabilities incurred on and after February 16, 1915.

If limited to the period between February 16, 1915, and June 30, 1915, this sentence can be given a definite meaning. Taken in connection with the title of the bill and the specific appropriations made therein, I think it must be interpreted as follows:

> "The sums appropriated in section 1 of the partial bill of 1915 are to be the only sums available for the payment of liabilities therein authorized, incurred between February 16, 1915, and June 30, 1915. If there is a subsisting appropriation for such purposes and a balance therein, the right to expend that appropriation is suspended as to such liabilities incurred between these two dates."

There is nothing inconsistent in such an interpretation of house bill No. 314 with anything that is expressed in house bill No. 53, passed in 1914; for as already pointed out, the appropriations therein made are for no specific period of time and it is only by inference that they are held available for expenditure on account of liabilities incurred at any time within two years after they became effective. We have then the case of a specific provision operating as an exception to a general provision. The subsequent declaration of the legislature, to the effect that the appropriations made in 1915 should be the only appropriations available for the uses and purposes for which they are made on account of liabilities incurred within a given period of time, merely suspends the authority to incur liabilities against the preceding appropriations during that period.

The first sentence of section 6 of the 1915 partial law, then, does not have the effect of lapsing the continuing appropriations found in house bill No. 53, but as to appropriations therein for the purposes covered by the 1915 law does have the effect of suspending the authority to expend them or to incur liabilities against them until June 30, 1915, when, unless there is a similar clause in the appropriation bill which is to be passed to provide for the current expenses of the state on and after July 1, 1915, he authority to incur liabilities against such balances would be restored.

t

The foregoing is a discussion of the first sentence of section 6 only. The effect of the first part of the second sentence in that section will now be considered.

The exact language of this portion of the section is as follows:

> "All balances in any appropriation account against which there is no liability on February 16, 1915, and any excess of such balances over liabilities, shall lapse into the fund from which the same were appropriated;"

In my opinion, this part of section 6 is controlled by the same legislative intention which is discerned in the first sentence of that section. That is to say, while the language is general, the intent of the whole bill is to legislate with respect to the governmental expenses for which appropriations are made in section 1 thereof.

Therefore, the words "any appropriation account," as used in the sentence now under examination, must be held to mean any appropriation account for a purpose for which an appropriation account is created by section 1 of house bill No. 314, passed in 1915. The effect of this sentence, then, is exerted only upon outstanding appropriation accounts, by whatever appropriation law they may have been created, for purposes for which appropriations are made in section 1 of the act. As to such appropriations the auditor of state should lapse the balances as therein provided for; but as to appropriations for other purposes than those covered by the 1915 bill the auditor of the state should not so act.

It follows that the second sentence of section 6 goes a step further than the first sentence thereof, and that while the first sentence standing by itself would have no effect other than to suspend appropriation accounts for purposes for which appropriations are made in section 1 of the 1915 law, the second sentence thereof has the effect of lapsing the net balances in such appropriation accounts.

In conclusion, then, it is my opinion that house bill No. 314, passed in 1915, has the substantial, though not technical, effect of repealing so much of house bill No. 53, passed by the 80th general assembly, as relates to the subjects for which appropriations are made in said house bill No. 314; but that as to those appropriations made in house bill No. 53 for purposes not covered by the 1915 law, the latter has no effect whatever.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

CITY OF COLUMBUS—STREET PAVING AND SIDEWALK IMPROVEMENTS —APPROPRIATIONS IN 1914 NOT AFFECTED BY 1915 PARTIAL APPROPRIATION, HOUSE BILL No. 314.

The specific appropriations to the city of Columbus for the payment of the state's share of certain improvements in the law found in 104 O. L., 211, are not affected by the 1915 partial appropriation bill, house bill No. 314.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In an opinion of even date herewith I have advised generally as to the effect of house bill No. 314—the 1915 partial appropriation bill—upon the balances of appropriations made by house bill No. 53 (104 O. L., 211).

You advise me verbally that the particular appropriations in said house bill No. 53 about which you are concerned are the following:

"CITY OF COLUMBUS

"Repaving of High street from Broad to State in front of state ground	$5,000 00
"Paving Eleventh avenue along state fair grounds	9,500 00
"Cement walks on Eleventh avenue along state fair grounds	2,500 00"

The fact is that none of the improvements for which appropriations were thus made had been completed, or even begun, when house bill No. 53 was passed in 1914. According, these are not appropriations to pay liabilities or claims against the state such as are subject to the audit of the special committee provided by the bill; nor are they appropriations for the current expenses of the state government or institutions. In effect, these items of the bill amount to provisions that the state shall pay its proper proportion or share of the cost of making the improvements therein specified when ascertained. That is, the bill authorizes the city of Columbus to make the improvements on the faith of the state's appropriation.

The nature of these appropriations is best illustrated by calling attention to the fact that similar appropriations are made to the city of Columbus in house bill No. 314, recently passed by the present session. None of these appropriations, however, relates to the particular improvements covered by house bill No. 53.

It is apparent, therefore, that the subject-matter of these appropriations in house bill No. 53 is one not within the purview of the act of 1915. Therefore, nothing in that act, interpreted as I have stated in the main opinion to which this is supplementary, in any way affects the balances in these appropriation accounts.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General

ELECTION BOARDS—CHIEF DEPUTIES AND CLERKS ELECTED IN AUGUST, 1914, HOLD OFFICE UNTIL ORGANIZATION OF SUCH BOARDS WITHIN FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER THE FIRST DAY OF MAY, 1916—APPOINTIVE OFFICES.

The chief deputies and clerks of boards of deputy state supervisors of elections chosen in August, 1914, will continue to hold such offices until the organization of such boards within fifteen days after the first day of May, 1916.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 27, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of yours under date of April 19, 1915, submitting for my opinion the following:

> "Shall the chief deputy and clerk of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, organized in the month of August, 1914, continue to be chief deputy and clerk of said board until the first day of May, 1916, or does their term expire at the end of one year from the date of their selection, as provided by section 4811, General Code, and a new selection be made to end on the last day of April, 1916."

The sections of the statutes referred to by you and which are determinative of the question submitted, are as follows:

"Section 4804, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 215:

" 'On or before the first Monday in August, 1913, the state supervisor of elections shall appoint for each such county, two members of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, who shall each serve until the first day of May, 1916, and whose successors shall then be appointed and serve for a term of two years from and after such date. And on or before the first Monday in August, 1914, such state supervisors of elections shall appoint for each such county two members of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections who shall each serve until the first day of May in the year 1917, and whose successors shall then be appointed and serve for a term of two years from and after such date. One member so appointed shall be from the political party which cast the highest number of votes at the last preceding November election for governor, and the other member shall be appointed from the political party which cast the next highest number of votes for such officer at such election.'

"Section 4811, G. C.:

" 'Within fifteen days after such appointment in each year, the deputy state supervisors shall meet in the offices of the county commissioners and organize by selecting one of their number as chief deputy, who shall preside at all meetings and a resident elector of such county, other than a member of the board, as clerk, both of which officers shall continue in office for one year.' "

It is by reason of the provisions of section 4804, G. C., supra, eliminating the appointment of deputy state supervisors of elections in the year 1915, that your question arises. Prior to such amendment, there was appointed, on or before the first Monday of August, each year, two members of the board of deputy state supervisors of elections, thereby giving rise to an annual change in the personnel of the board, or at least made possible such change each year. It was manifestly in view of this state of the law that it was provided in section 4811, G. C., that within fifteen days after such appointments in each year, the deputy state supervisors of elections should meet and organize. That is, the manifest reason for the requirement that the board organize each year, was the then, at least possible change in its personnel each year, and hence the provision that such organization be made after such appointments.

It may be further observed, that the phrase "in each year" as found in section 4811, G. C., relates to the time of such appointments rather than to the time of organization of the board.

While it is provided that the chief deputy and clerk shall continue in office for one year, it is quite apparent that such term is fixed with particular reference to the appointments and organization required to be made in each year. Since no such appointments and organization may be made, the reason of that rule fails, and hence the rule in this case does not apply. The manifest purpose and intent of that provision is that such officers should continue in office until the next succeeding appointments and organization made thereafter. In short, the appointment of a new members of the board is the foundation for a re-organization of the board and a controlling factor.

For the above reasons, I am of the opinion that since no such appointments as are referred to in sections 4804 and 4811 are to be made in the year 1915, and consequently the personnel of the board will remain unchanged until the first day of May, 1916, no organization of such board should be made or changed until after such appointments are made in that year.

Answering your question more specifically, the chief deputy and clerk of the boards of deputy state supervisors of elections will continue as such until such boards are organized within fifteen days after May 1, 1916.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AKRON ARMORY BOARD—ABSTRACT OF TITLE.

Abstract of title for armory, city of Akron, Summit county, approved.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 28, 1915.

HON. BYRON L. BARGAR, Secretary, Ohio State Armory Board, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter with which you transmit an abstract of title and copy of proposed deed for the Akron Armory site situated in the city of Akron, Summit county, Ohio, and asking me to advise the armory board whether or not the state will acquire a sufficiently good title under the proposed deed to this site to authorize it to accept the same for armory purposes.

In reply to your enquiry I beg to advise that I have examined the abstract end the proposed deed, and I find that the city of Akron is the owner of the premises described therein with power to convey the same in fee simple, and that the deed tendered by the city of Akron to the state is a deed in fee simple to the state of Ohio of the premises therein described, subject to the constitutionality of section 3631 of the General Code.

I return herewith the abstract of title and the deed referred to above.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOXING EXHIBITION—PRIZE FIGHT—QUESTION OF FACT—A BOXING EXHIBITION BEFORE MEMBERS OF A FRATERNAL ORGANIZATION NOT A PUBLIC EXHIBITION—PRINCIPALS OF SUCH CONTEST WOULD BE CRIMINALLY LIABLE—MEMBERS OF CLUB EXEMPT FROM LIABILITY, CRIMINALLY.

The question of whether a so-called boxing exhibition is in fact a boxing exhibition, or whether it is a prize fight within the meaning of the statutes, is one of fact.

Where a fraternal organization entertains its members by giving boxing exhibitions, to which only members of the organization are admitted, such exhibitions cannot be classed as public.

If the organization is not such as to bring it within the exceptions created by section 12803, G. C., then under section 12802, G. C., the principals in such boxing exhibitions would be criminally liable, but no criminal liability would attach to the members of the organization aiding, assisting or attending the boxing exhibitions.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 29, 1915.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS, Prosecuting Attorney, Elyria, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of April 17, 1915, in which you inquire as follows:

> "I desire to know whether under any of the statutes now existing regarding prize fighting and public boxing exhibitions, it is unlawful for a fraternal organization to entertain the members of the organization by giving boxing exhibitions in their club rooms, charging an admission to the same?
> "Bear in mind that to this exhibition are admitted all members of the organization, without reference to the location of their lodge, and so far as I am aware, the principals in the boxing exhibition are hired for the occasion."

An answer to your inquiry involves in the first instance a determination of the question of whether the exhibitions to which you refer are prize fights, or whether they are sparring or boxing exhibitions within the meaning of the statutes. A determination of this question depends upon the particular facts of each case. For a particularly lucid and able discussion of this matter, I desire to cite you to the opinion of Judge Hollister in the case of State ex rel. Sheets v. Hobart, et al, 8 O. N. P., 246.

A prize fight is defined in the Century dictionary as a pugilistic encounter or boxing match for a prize or wager, and this definition was quoted with approval in the case of Seville v. State, 49 O. S., 117-131. It was also held in this case that it is not an essential ingredient of the crime of engaging in a prize fight in this state that it take place in public. If the contests to which you refer come within this classification, that is, if they are prize fights, then it may be stated without qualification that the principals would be criminally liable under section 12800, G. C., and all persons aiding, assisting or attending as backer, trainer, second, umpire, assistant or reporter, would be criminally liable under section 12801, G. C.

It was held in State v. Aston, 57 O. S., 672, 39 Weekly Law Bulletin, 117, that a sparring exhibition between two persons hired for the purpose at a definite compensation without intention to harm each other and without harming each other, is not a prize fight. If the contests to which you refer are of this class, as seems to be indicated by your letter, then they are governed by the provisions of sections 12802 and 12803 of the General Code.

Section 12802, G. C., reads as follows:

"Whoever agrees to fight and wilfully fights or boxes at fisticuffs or engages in a public sparring or boxing exhibition without gloves or with gloves, or aids, assists or attends such boxing exhibition or glove fight, or being an owner or lessee of grounds, or a lot, building, hall or structure, permits it to be used for such exhibition or purpose, shall be fined not more than two hundred and fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than three months, or both."

Section 12803, G. C., reads as follows:

"The next preceding section shall not apply to a public gynasium or athletic club, or any of the exercises therein, if written permission for the specific purpose has been obtained from the sheriff of the county, or, if the exercise or exhibitions are within the limits of a municipal corporation, from the mayor of such corporation."

Section 12802 divides itself into two parts and applies (1) to "whoever agrees to fight and wilfully fights or boxes at fisticuffs," and (2) to "whoever engages in a public sparring or boxing exhibition without gloves or with gloves, or aids, assists or attends such boxing exhibition or glove fight, or being an owner or lessee of grounds, or a lot, building, hall or structure, permits it to be used for such exhibition or purpose." Under the first part of this section it is unlawful to agree to fight and wilfully fight or box at fisticuffs, unless the act be brought within the exceptions created by section 12803, G. C., and, applying the reasoning of the court in the case of Seville v. State, supra, it would not be essential that the fighting or boxing take place in public. The second part of this section, and which more especially concerns your specific inquiry, makes it a criminal offense to aid, assist, or attend a public boxing exhibition or glove fight and further provides that it shall be unlawful for an owner or lessee to permit premises to be used for such purposes, except, of course, as is provided in section 12803, G. C. This part of the section applies only in case the boxing exhibition is public. The word "public" when used as an adjective, is defined in the Century dictionary as follows:

"Open to all the people, not limited or restricted to any particular class of the community."

It was held in the case of Commonwealth v. Mack, 187 Mass., 441, that where a statute specifies public boxing matches, or sparring exhibitions, it is necessary that the contest be one to which the public generally is admitted; that is, all persons must be admitted in the same way as to theaters and other public places of amusement, in order to bring the contest within the provisions of the statute. It appears from your inquiry that the exhibitions in question are open only to the members of a certain lodge or fraternal organization and hence they cannot be classed as public exhibitions, because not open to all persons on the same terms and indeed, not open at all to the general public.

I am therefore of the opinion, that if such exhibitions are not prize fights and are only boxing or sparring exhibitions, under the rule laid down by the supreme court of Ohio in the cases cited above, and if it be further assumed that such exhibitions do not come within the exceptions created by section 12803, G. C., then under the first part of section 12802, G. C., the principals in such boxing exhibitions would be criminally liable for the reason that it is not necessary, in order to make them liable, that the exhibitions be public; and under the last part of said section, the members of the fraternal organization aiding, assisting or attending such boxing exhibitions would not be criminally liable for the reason that under the terms of the section it is necessary that the exhibitions be public in order to make them liable.

Coming now to consider the exceptions created by section 12803, it need only be observed that if the exhibitions in question are boxing exhibitions and not prize fights, and if the fraternal organization in question is in fact organized as a bona fide athletic club, and if the written permission provided for by this section has been duly obtained, then the entire transaction would be a lawful one and no criminal liability would attach even to the principals. If all of the above facts do not exist, then the section would have no application. As has been previously observed, the question of whether a given exhibition is a prize fight or whether it is a boxing exhibition, is one of fact, and is to be determined under the rules referred to herein by a reference to all the facts of the particular case.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DRY COMMODITIES—SALE IN OHIO—SECTION 6418-1, G. C., AS IT FORMERLY STOOD EFFECTIVE AFTER SUBSEQUENT AMENDMENT AND REPEAL DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL—WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Section 6418-1, G. C., repealed by act subsequently declared unconstitutional, revived and again effective.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 29, 1915.

HON. S. W. BRATTON, Director of the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to acknowledge receipt of your favor of April 20th, which is as follows:

> "In a publication which will soon be issued by this bureau, the various states are classified by the method of selling dry commodities required by law. Section 6418-1 of the General Code of your state, as amended February 27, 1913, requires sales by weight of certain commodities in the absence of written agreement, and your state was originally so classified.
> "In case No. 14508, 'In the matter of the application of Henry Steube for a writ of habeaus Corpus,' the supreme court of Ohio has declared section 6418-1 of the General Code unconstitutional. We are in some doubt as to the present status of your law in relation to this matter, and would like your opinion on the following question.
> "Is section 6418-1, as it existed prior to the amendment of February 27, 1913, now the law in your state, or is section 6418-1 to be considered as rendered entirely null and void, and if so, does Ohio have any law whatever in relation to weights per bushel and the manner of sale of dry commodities?
> "We would appreciate a prompt reply very much in order that no mistake may occur in the proper classification of Ohio in our publication."

Answering your request for an opinion as to whether or not section 6418-1 of the General Code is to be regarded as in effect the same as prior to the opinion of the supreme court of Ohio in the matter of the application of Henry H. Steube for a writ of habeas corpus, I have to advise that the questions in that case arose through the enforcement of the amendment to section 6418-1, wherein the law was changed by the insertion of the words "in writing" which qualified the form of agreement provided for in section 6418-1, and it was on the ground that the exaction of "an agreement in writing of the contracting parties" that the law as amended was declared unconstitutional, it being held by the court that the provision referred to above conflicted with the right to make contracts and constituted an invasion of property rights guaranteed by the constitution of the state of Ohio.

In the case of State ex rel. Wilmot et al. v. Buckley et al., 60 O. S., 273, the court, at page 296, said:

> "As this section 2926-b, as passed April 16, 1896, is unconstitutional and inoperative, the repealing section of the act is also inoperative."

It is a well recognized principle of law that where an act repealing another act and providing a substitute therefor is itself invalid, the repealing clause must also be held inoperative.

It is my opinion, therefore, that as the attempt to repeal section 6418-1 of the general code was made by an act subsequently declared to be unconstitutional, the said attempt to repeal was wholly ineffective and that section 6418-1 as it formerly stood is now the law in this state.

I trust that the above will supply the information you desire for the publication you contemplate issuing.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—MAY NOT EXACT EXCESSIVE LICENSE FEE FOR PEDDLERS—QUESTION OF FACT IN EACH CASE—MAY REGULATE AND LICENSE PEDDLERS—SECTION 3673, G. C., UNAFFECTED BY DECISION IN GREAT ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC TEA COMPANY V. THE VILLAGE OF TIPPECANOE, 85 O. S., 120.

That part of section 3673, G. C., which authorizes a municipal corporation to license persons, who on the streets or traveling from place to place about such municipality, sell goods, wares or merchandise by retail, is unaffected by the decision in the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. v. The Village of Tippecanoe, 85 O. S., 120, and in Wooster v. Evans, decided April 27, 1915.

Authority to regulate and license peddlers is also found in section 3670, G. C.

Under authority of either of these sections, a municipal corporation may not exact an excessive license fee. What is an excessive license fee in a given case is ultimately a question of fact to be decided under principles discussed in the opinion.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You have returned to me opinion No. 232, given to you on April 12, 1915, with the statement that the same does not answer the question which you have in mind. In that opinion you were advised that under the decision in The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. v. The Village of Tippecanoe, 85 O. S., 120, section 3673, G. C., cannot be so interpreted as to authorize a municipal council to impose a license fee upon merchants who merely solicit orders and negotiate future sales at the residences of their customers. Your question as originally phrased, was by me interpreted as an inquiry respecting the validity of an ordinance imposing a license fee of ten dollars a day upon persons soliciting sales and delivering goods for a domestic corporation, going from door to door in a municipality, and it was supposed by me that the case was one within the rule of the decision cited.

You now state that you have in mind a case wherein the person subject to license does not solicit for the sales, but actually makes sales from a small stock of goods which he carries with him, in his house to house visit; that is to say, in case of successful solicitation on his part, he makes immediate delivery from said stock.

You also advise me that you are primarily interested in the amount of the license fee, and for this purpose desire me to assume a valid ordinance under section 3673, G. C., than to consider merely the size of the fee, viz., ten dollars a day for the business described.

I must say that it is now a matter of considerable doubt as to whether section 3673, G. C., is constitutional at all or not. On April 27, 1915, the supreme court of this state held, in the case of City of Wooster v. Evans, that on the principles of the decision in The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. v. Tippecanoe, section 3673, G. C., could not be so interpreted as to authorize the licensing of persons who temporarily open stores or places for the sale of goods, i. e., transient dealers.

Now it is obvious, that in deciding the two cases in question, the supreme court has held the statute (section 3673), unconstitutional, in part at least. For though the decision may be palliated by the statement that the section cannot be interpreted in a certain way, yet the fact is that it cannot be interpreted in any other way than the way in which the court holds it should not be.

Section 3673, G. C., provides as follows:

> "To license transient dealers, persons who temporarily open stores or places for the sale of goods, wares or merchandise, and each person who, on the streets. or traveling from place to place about the municipality, sells, bargains to sell, or solicits orders for goods, wares or merchandise by retail. The granting of such license shall be controlled by the provisions of the next preceding section."

This section authorizes the licensing of a person, who, traveling from place to place about such municipality, solicits orders for goods by retail. Yet in the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company case the decision was that it could not be so interpreted as to authorize such a license. The section also plainly authorizes the licensing of transient dealers or persons who temporarily open stores or places for the sale of goods, wares or merchandise, but in Wooster v. Evans, supra, this was the exact business of the defendant in error, and it was held that the section could not be so interpreted as to authorize the municipality to license.

The court, however, has never held that the section is wholly unconstitutional. In all probability its several provisions are severable. We may say then, for the purpose of your question at least, that the following portion of the statute remains unaffected by the judicial decision:

> "To license * * * each person who, on the streets or traveling from place to place about such municipality, sells, * * * goods, wares or merchandise by retail."

Section 3673 also provides that "the granting of such license shall be controlled by the provisions of the next preceding section."

The next preceding section (3672) provides that the municipality "in granting such license, may exact and receive such sum of money as it may think reasonable, but no municipal corporation may require of the owner of any product of his own raising, or the manufacturer of any article manufactured by him, license to vend or sell in any way, by himself or agent, any such article or product. Such council may confer upon, vest in and delegate to the mayor of the corporation authority to grant, issue and revoke licenses."

I assume from the form of your question that the case which you have in mind is not within the exception of this provision, and that in point of fact the agents of the corporation mentioned by you conduct their business substantially as peddlers do. If this is the case, there is special authority to license them in section 3670, G. C., which provides as follows:

> "To regulate and license * * * peddlers. In the granting of any license a municipal corporation may exact and receive such sums of money as the council shall deem proper and expedient."

I call your attention to the fact that this statute may be regarded as somewhat broader than section 3673 in that it authorizes regulation as well as license, while section 3673 authorizes license only. However, both are subject to the same principles.

The principles in point are as follows:

Under the power to license, or the power to regulate and license, a municipal corporation may not exact a license fee for the purpose of supplying general revenue; for this would constitute an attempted exercise of an entirely different power, viz.: the power of taxation, and municipalities do not possess the general taxing power, but only that which has been specifically delegated to them by the law, which in Ohio is power to levy taxes upon the property duplicate.

A municipality having the power to license or to regulate and license may not exact a license fee so high as to be prohibitive; for the power to license or to regulate does not imply the power to prohibit. All of the occupations mentioned in the license statutes are presumptively lawful, and the city will not be held to have the power to prevent their pursuit, the power extending merely to the imposition of such restraint thereon as may be exerted through regulation and license.

In determining what constitutes an exaction, palpably for the purpose of revenue, allowance must be made for the fact that the municipality is not limited in fixing the license fee merely to compensating itself for the actual expense for issuing the license, but it is permitted to take into account the expenses of enforcing its own ordinances, so that the fact that some revenue is produced in addition to the expense directly chargeable to the machinery of issuing the license does not, of itself, establish the excessiveness of the fee.

Where the power is not limited to the mere license, but extends to regulation as well, as under section 3670, G. C., and the occupation to be regulated, while lawful in itself, is subject to become by abuse a public nuisance (and it has been so held as to peddling), the license fee may be such as to exceed the total cost of all governmental expenses properly attributable to the licensed business, and thus to produce some incidental revenue if so fixed for the purpose merely of restricting the number of persons engaged in the occupation, or guaranteeing that they shall be persons of sufficient financial responsibility to pay the exaction; or especially where there are provisions for the revocation of licenses for misconduct, so as to impose, in this way, a sufficient restraint upon the licensed persons. But even in such cases the exaction must not be so high as to amount to prohibition, and the production of revenue must be merely incidental and not the purpose of the ordinance.

Subject to these primary rules, the determination of what amount may be excessive for a given occupation in a given municipal corporation, is really a question of fact. The presumption is, that a license fee exacted under favor of a constitutional statute is reasonable in amount, and the burden is upon the defendant in a prosecution to show that the amount of the fee is excessive. What may be a reasonable fee for one business would be an unreasonable fee for another business; and what might be a reasonable fee for a business in one municipality might be an unreasonable fee for the same business in another municipality.

For these reasons I hesitate to state that ten dollars a day is, as a matter of law, an excessive license fee under any and all conditions when exacted from those carrying on such a business as that described by you. I must say, however, that I have examined a number of decisions respecting the licensing of peddlers and itinerant traders, and find that in at least the very great majority of them ten dollars a day was held to be excessive. The amount does seem very high, and it is very likely true that it would exceed all reasonable expectations of profit which could be made by a person engaged in such business. If that is the case, it would be prohibitory in effect, and on that ground alone could not be sustained. Just whether or not the fee is prohibitory is a matter of fact, in the exact sense, and not a matter of law.

For your information I cite the following decisions:

Carrollton v. Bazzette, 159 Ill., 284.

(License fee of ten dollars a day upon peddlers and itinerant vendors held prohibitory, the court remarking that "the business of itinerant merchants would have to be much more remunerative than ordinary merchandising in small cities to survive under a burden of this character, amounting to more than $3,000 per annum.")

State ex rel. Clark v. New Brunswick, 43 N. J., 175.

(The question of unreasonableness and production of excessive revenue held to be one of fact upon which testimony may be offered; so that summary conviction without opportunity to attack the ordinance in this way may not be sustained.)

Van Hook v. Selma, 70 Ala., 361.

(This decision discusses at length the underlying principles surrounding the question of reasonableness of a license fee. The amount of the fee here was ten dollars—not ten dollars a day, but merely ten dollars for the granting of the license—; it seems from the opinion that the court below had given a charge to the jury upon these principles, from which I take it that the question was regarded as being one of fact.)

St. Paul v. Colter, 12 Minn., 41.
Chaddock v. Day, 75 Mich., 527.
Brooks v. Mangan, 86 Mich., 576.
(Ordinance exacting ten dollars for the first day and five dollars for each subsequent day held prohibitory.)

It so happens that there are no decisions in this state in which the reasonableness of the exact amount of the license fee mentioned by you has been considered. The principles which I have stated have, however, been established in the following cases:

Mays v. Cincinnati, 1 O. S., 268.
Cincinnati v. Buckingham, 10th Ohio, 257.
Baker v. Cincinnati, 11 O. S., 534.
Sipe v. Murphy, 49 O. S., 536.

I may add that the language which is found in both of the statutes which have been considered, proposing to delegate to the council of the municipality authority to "exact and receive such sum of money as it may think reasonable" or "proper and expedient," does not alter the case. Council would, without such a provision, have primarily the discretionary power to fix the amount of the fee, and presumptively the fee fixed by it would be reasonable and just. But the reasonableness and justice of the fee is ultimately a question for the courts.

With the statement then that in most of the cases which I have examined, ten dollars a day, as applied to peddlers or itinerant vendors in small municipalities, is held to be excessive, and that such a holding would almost unquestionably be made upon the facts which may be assumed, if a case should arise upon the facts submitted by you I must nevertheless advice that strictly and technically the question is, in the last analysis, a question of fact.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS—NOMINATION OF CANDIDATES—TOWNSHIP OFFICES—MAY NOT BE HELD UNLESS PETITIONED FOR BY A MAJORITY OF ELECTORS OF SUCH TOWNSHIP.

Primary elections for the nomination of candidates for township offices may not be held in any township unless petitioned for by a majority of the electors of such township.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of yours under date of April 21, 1915, as follows:

> "Section 7 of article V of the constitution of the state of Ohio is as follows:
> "'All nominations for elective state, district, county and municipal offices shall be made at direct primary elections or by petition as provided by law, and provision shall be made by law for a preferential vote for United States senator; but direct primaries shall not be held for the nomination of township officers or for officers of municipalities of less than two thousand population, unless petitioned for by a majority of the electors of such township or municipality.'
> "Section 4951 of the General Code, as amended, 103 O. L., 476, reads as follows:
> "'The provisions of this chapter shall not extend nor be applicable to the nomination of candidates for township offices or for the elective offices of any municipality which has less than two thousand population as ascertained at the federal census next preceding such nomination, unless the voters of such township shall so petition the board of deputy state supervisors of elections.'
> "QUESTION: Shall primary elections be held in township of a population of two thousand or more as ascertained by the last census, unless petitioned for by a majority of the voters of such township?"

The language of the above constitutional and statutory provisions is, it seems, quite clear and unequivocal. It will be observed that in the general constitutional provision requiring that nomination shall be made at direct primaries or by petition no mention is made of township officers, while in the exception to this general provision township officers are specifically referred to. This would indicate a clear distinction between township officers and municipal officers, and that it was not intended that the phrase "municipal officers" as used in the general provision should be construed to include township officers as referred to in the exception. Indeed, it may well be argued that the primary purpose of the first phrase of the exception in reference to township officers was to clear up any possible ambiguity that might arise in the interpretation of the phrase "municipal officers," and to emphasize the intent that township officers were not subject to the preceding provisions except when within the subsequent terms of section 7 of article V of the constitution.

To my mind the phrase "of less than two thousand population" modifies only municipalities and does not relate to townships. It appears that if the intent of this provision had been to limit this exception as to township officers to those townships having a population of less than two thousand, and that the prepositional phrase "of less than two thousand" should relate to or modify townships, the word township would have been used as a noun rather than as an adjective, and that the phraseology in the first instance would have been officers of a township as distinguished from township officers, and the terms placed in similar relationship to those of the latter phrase.

In the absence of some manifest and controlling reason to the contrary the usual grammatical construction should prevail.

In answer to your question I am, therefore, of opinion that primary elections may not be held for the nomination of township officers unless petitioned for by a majority of the electors of such township.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AUDITOR OF STATE—REQUIRED TO ISSUE WARRANTS FOR COSTS OF CONVICTION AND TRANSPORTATION OF PERSON SENTENCED FOR FELONY—EXECUTION AND SUSPENSION OF SENTENCE.

The auditor of state is required to issue his warrant for the proper costs of conviction and transportation of a person sentenced for a felony to the penitentiary or the Ohio state reformatory upon the delivery of the person to the warden of the penitentiary or the superintendent of the reformatory, and a proper certification of such costs and transportation, notwithstanding that the execution of such sentence may be subsequently suspended by order of the court.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your request for an opinion under date of April 13, 1915, as follows:

> "FACTS: Upon a verdict of guilty, the court of common pleas sentenced two men to the reformatory at Mansfield. Within the five days prescribed by law, but pending application for a suspension of sentence for the purpose of instituting proceedings in error, the sheriff, disregarding the request of counsel for the convicted men, transported the prisoners to the reformatory, presented his cost bill to the warden upon surrendering the prisoners, had the cost bill approved by the warden and presented same to this department for payment. Meanwhile, and before payment of said cost bill, this department is advised that the court of appeals ordered a suspension of sentence, and that the two prisoners were ordered returned to the county jail pending the determination of the error proceedings which were instituted.

"QUESTION: Is the state liable for the costs of the conviction and transportation of these two men, and may the auditor of state at this time issue his warrant for the same, regardless of the determination of the courts upon the proceedings in error?"

Your inquiry involves a consideration of the statutes relative to the execution of sentence for felony. Section 13720, G. C., provides:

"A person sentenced to the penitentiary or Ohio state reformatory, unless the execution thereof is suspended, shall be conveyed to the penitentiary or Ohio state reformatory by the sheriff of the county in which the conviction was had, within five days after such sentence, and delivered into custody of the warden of the penitentiary, or superintendent of the Ohio state reformatory, with a copy of such sentence there to be kept until the term of his imprisonment expires, or he is pardoned. If the execution of such sentence is suspended, and the judgment be afterward affirmed, he shall be conveyed to the penitentiary or Ohio state reformatory within five days after the court directs the execution of sentence; provided, however, that the trial judge, or any judge of said court in said subdivision may, in his discretion, and for good cause shown, extend the time of such conveyance."

Section 13722, G. C., provides:

"Upon sentence of a person for a felony, the officers, claiming costs made in the prosecution, shall deliver to the clerk itemized bills thereof, who shall make and certify, under his hand and the seal of the court, a complete bill of the costs made in such prosecution, including the sum paid by the county commissioners for the arrest and return of the convict on the requisition of the governor, or on the request of the governor to the president of the United States. Such bill of costs shall be presented by such clerk to the prosecuting attorney, who shall examine each item therein charged, and certify to it if correct and legal."

It will be observed that the above section is applicable to all sentences for felony and not confined to sentences to the penitentiary alone. While it is true that at the time of the enactment of this section in its present form sentences to the penitentiary may have been the only sentences for felony authorized by law, such subsequent changes as have been made in that respect must be presumed to have been so made with full recognition of the provisions of this section, so that the above provisions, together with those of sections 13726 and 13727, G. C., infra, must be read with section 2131, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 885, as follows:

"The superintendent shall receive all male criminals between the ages of sixteen and thirty years sentenced to the reformatory, if they are not known to have been previously sentenced to a state prison. Male persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one years, convicted of felony, shall be sentenced to the reformatory instead of the penitentiary. Such persons between the ages of twenty-one and thirty years may be sentenced to the reformatory if the court passing sentence deems them amenable to reformatory methods. No person convicted of murder in the first or second degree shall be sentenced or transferred to the reformatory."

Under section 13723, G. C., the clerk is required to issue forthwith to the sheriff executions against the property of the person so sentenced for the costs of the prosecution. Section 13724, G. C., provides that if the convict is sentenced to the penitentiary or death, and no property has been levied upon, the sheriff shall deliver such cost bill, with the convict, to the warden of the penitentiary.

Section 13726, G. C., provides:

"When the clerk certifies on the cost bill that execution was issued according to the provisions of this chapter, and returned by the sheriff 'no goods, chattels, lands or tenements, found whereon to levy,' the warden of the penitentiary shall allow so much of the cost bill and charges for transportation as is correct, and certify such allowance, which shall be paid by the state."

Section 13727, G. C., is as follows:

"Upon the return of the writ against the convict, if an amount of money has not been made sufficient for the payment of the costs of conviction, and no additional property is found whereon to levy, the clerk shall so certify to the auditor of state, under his seal, with the statement of the total amount of costs the amount made and the amount remaining unpaid. Such amount so unpaid as the auditor finds to be correct, shall be paid by the state, to the order of such clerk."

Considering together then the provisions of sections 13722, 13726, 13727, G. C., and 2131 and 2134, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 885, and which latter section provides relative to the duties of sheriffs, upon sentence to the reformatory, as follows:

"In transporting a prisoner to the reformatory, the sheriff shall perform like duties, have like powers and receive like compensation as provided by law for transporting prisoners to the penitentiary."

I am led to the opinion that it was the legislative purpose and intent, fairly deducible therefrom, that costs should be paid by the state in the same manner in cases of sentence to the reformatory as where sentence is to the penitentiary.

It will be observed that the sheriff is specifically required to convey every person sentenced thereto to the penitentiary or reformatory within five days after such sentence, unless the same be suspended or by order of court the time of such conveyance is extended. From this it is clearly mandatory that the convict be delivered by the sheriff within five days to that institution to which he has been sentenced, barring the above mentioned exceptions. One of those exceptions is in case of suspension of execution of sentence.

Express provision is made for securing a suspension of execution of sentence of a person convicted of an offense by the court of common pleas as follows:

"Section 13698: When a person has been convicted of an offense and gives notice to the court of his intention to file, or apply for leave to file, a petition in error, such court, on his application, may suspend execution of the sentence or judgment against him until the next term of the court, or for such period not beyond the session as will give him a reasonable time to apply for such leave."

A mere request of counsel, directed to the sheriff, is not in any way such a compliance with this requirement of the law as compels recognition by the sheriff.

Provisions for the suspension of execution of sentence in the court of appeals is found in section 13757, G. C., as amended, 103 O. L., 435, in the language following:

> "Upon filing such petition in error in the supreme court, the execution of sentence, in cases of felony, shall be thereby suspended, and in cases of misdemeanor, the court or judge, allowing the motion, shall order such suspension. Proceedings in error in other courts shall not suspend execution of sentence except in capital cases, where such suspension must be for good cause shown, on motion, and on notice to the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, ordered by a majority of the judges of the court of appeals of the county, and in other cases in such court, by one judge thereof, and in cases in the common pleas court by one of the judges of such court. * * *"

Thus ample provision is made for securing the suspension of execution of sentence of persons to the penitentiary or to the reformatory prior to their commitment thereto. If, however, a person so sentenced neglects or refrains from seeking suspension until after the expiration of the full time within which the sheriff is required to convey such person to the penitentiary or reformatory, it could not be maintained that a suspension then granted by the court would absolve the state from the payment of the costs.

From your statement it is assumed that all statutory requirements preliminary to the surrender of the convicts to the superintendent of the Mansfield reformatory, relative to the collection of costs, have been fully complied with, and to such assumed state of facts this opinion is confined.

Every step, then, having been taken which is necessary to bring the costs of prosecution of the two convicts within the provision of the statute, which requires that the same shall be paid by the state, does a subsequent suspension of execution of the sentence suspend the operation of or abrogate the authority to pay such costs from the state treasury? An immediate pardon, parole, escape or death of the prisoners would not be held to bar the payment of the costs, even though the warrant had not yet been issued by the auditor of state therefor. Indeed, the liberation of the prisoner in any other manner than that stated in your request, would not suspend the operation of the statutory requirement of the state to pay the costs. It seems clearly the legislative purpose and intent that when the convict has been delivered into the custody, control and jurisdiction of the warden of the penitentiary or superintendent of the reformatory, that the costs of prosecution and transportation of such convict shall be paid by the state. I am, therefore, of opinion, in answer to your question, that the state is liable for the costs under the facts stated, and that the auditor of state should issue his warrant therefor.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION—GENERAL EXPERIMENT STATION WORK NOT PUBLIC WORK—EIGHT HOUR LAW.

General experiment station work is not public work within the meaning of sections 17-1 and 17-2, G. C., 103 O. L., 854, or of section 37 of article II of the Ohio constitution.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. CHARLES E. THORNE, Director Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio.
DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of April 20, 1915, requesting my opinion as follows:

"Your opinion is desired regarding the application of the eight hour law to the state, district and county experiment farms of Ohio.

"First: Is experiment work 'public work' in the meaning of the act in question?

"Second: If experiment station work is public work, would that portion of the station's work which has to do with live stock and field operations be regarded as 'extraordinary emergency' work?

"The daily feeding and care of live stock, including the milking of dairy cows, cannot be crowded into eight hours continuous work. If careful experiment work is to be carried on it is essential that the same men should feed, care for and make observations throughout the day. If this work cannot be conducted with absolute accuracy, there is no need for doing it at all. With the hundreds of animals under experiment, if their care at time of mating, parturition and during sickness was regarded as 'extraordinary emergencies' such occurences would be encountered daily.

"And the various experiments in the field with crops, fruits and fertilizers must be carried on with extraordinary care. In order to get reliable results under present conditions the station often has to ask its men to work over ten hours, which they are very willing to do upon receiving extra pay for the overtime. In comparative tests of oats, wheat, corn, etc., it is important to plant an entire series of plots in one day, for a rain over night might delay the planting of the balance of the test two weeks, thus ruining the test. The station has learned these things by unpleasant experiences.

"The station's field and live stock work cannot be carried on as it should be by hiring extra men, as might be done in ordinary farming. If the eight hour law is held to apply to this work it will seriously cripple it."

I assume that by the term "eight hour law" you refer to sections 17-1 and 17-2 of the General Code (103 O. L., 854), which are as follows:

"Section 17-1. Except in cases of extraordinary emergency, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work, for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract or otherwise; and it shall be unlawful for any person, corporation or association, whose duty it shall be to employ or to direct and control the services of such workmen to require or permit any of them to labor more than eight hours in any calendar day or more than forty-eight hours in any week, except in cases of extraordinary emergency. This section shall not be construed to include policemen or firemen.

"Section 17-2 Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be fined not to exceed five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than six months or both.

"This act shall be in force and applicable to all contracts let on and after July 1, 1915."

Section 37 of article II of the constitution of Ohio, under authority of which the above sections of the General Code were evidently enacted, is as follows:

"Except in cases of extraordinary emergencies, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work, and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work, for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political subdivision thereof, whether done by contract, or otherwise."

This constitutional provision was undoubtedly self-executing, and went into effect on January 1, 1913. It will be observed that the statutory enactment follows the language of the constitution and the only result accomplished by the general assembly was to add to an existing constitutional enactment the sanction of a penalty, and to specifically designate who should be subject to such penalty.

Although the general assembly might, under authority of section 34 of article II of the constitution, enact legislation "fixing and limiting the hours of labor" generally, yet in view of the fact that they have adopted the very language of section 37 of article II, above quoted, it must be assumed that the legislative intent was to provide an effective method of enforcing this constitutional declaration of the state's policy relative to labor employed by or under the state in the performance of a certain class of work.

The answer to your question depends necessarily upon the meaning and scope of the words, "public work carried on or aided by the state." The meaning of this language has been considered and construed by my predecessor, the Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, in two opinions -one of the date of March 11, 1914, addressed to Hon. R. H. Hughes, acting president of Miami University, and the other of date April 29, 1914, addressed to Hon. C. E. Van Dusen, city solicitor of Lorain, Ohio.

Without going into or repeating the process of reasoning and argument contained in these two opinions, suffice it to say that I agree with the conclusions reached by Attorney-General Hogan, and I am of the opinion that the language referred to in section 37 of article II of the constitution and in section 17-1 of the General Code, applies only to public work of a constructive, improvement or betterment character, and not to the general routine work performed under or in various departments of the state. As stated in the opinion of April 29, 1914, above referred to, there is a wide distinction between "workmen engaged in public work" and "workmen working for the public."

I am, therefore, of the opinion that general routine experiment station work does not come within the purview of sections 17-1 and 17-2 of the General Code.

If, however, any constructive work, such as erecting buildings, making roads, etc., which is outside of the general routine of what is commonly understood as experiment station work, and which requires the employment of labor in addition to the regular force of employes, should be undertaken by your department, the employment of labor thereon would be governed by the provisions of said sections of the General Code.

I am enclosing you copies of the two opinions referred to above, also a copy of an opinion dated April 15th, and addressed to the agricultural committee of the house of representatives.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION—AWARD PAID BY COMMISSION CANNOT BE RECOVERED IN ABSENCE OF FRAUD.

An award paid by the industrial commission, in the absence of fraud, on the part of the applicant, cannot be recovered by the commission.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

Industrial Commission of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—You submit for my opinion thereon the following facts:

> "Mr. William Martin sustained injuries on the 23rd of March, 1914, which caused him to be disabled from said date until June 22, 1914, as a result of falling from a ladder attached to a water tank located near the residence on a farm near Canal Dover, and owned by Nina B. Martin, wife of said William Martin. On said 23rd day of March, 1914, said William Martin was and for some time prior thereto the general manager of The Consumers Brewing and Ice Company of Canal Dover, Ohio, at a salary of $125.00 per month. This company was owned and operated by Nina B. Martin. Said Nina B. Martin, as owner and operator of said brewing and ice company, under the name of The Consumers Brewing and Ice Company of Canal Dover, Ohio, at the times herein referred to, carried industrial insurance. As a result of said injury, William Martin made application to the industrial commission for an allowance of compensation as an employe of said The Consumers Brewing and Ice Company of Canal Dover, Ohio, claiming to have been injured within the course of his employment. On August 4, 1914, this claim was heard by the commission, and a compensation of $142.29 was allowed the applicant. On August 14, 1914, the claim was reheard, and medical expenses aggregating the sum of $173.46 were allowed and paid."

You ask me:

> "First. Was William Martin injured in the course of his employment?
> "Second. If the commission was in error as to William Martin's being injured in the course of his employment and unlawfully paid such sums of money, what authority, if any, has the commission to recover said sums so awarded and paid?"

As to your first question I may say that I have examined the record in this case, and I fail to find any evidence tending to show or prove that William Martin, at the time of his injury, out on the farm of his wife, was doing anything whatever that had any connection with, or in any way related to, his duties as general manager of The Consumers Brewing and Ice Company of Canal Dover, Ohio. Under the rule that the onus of proving that the accident arose out of or in the course of his employment rests upon the said William Martin, and the record disclosing no such evidence, it follows that the application of William Martin should have been denied.

In answer to your second enquiry, I beg to say that the commission is only authorized to make an award and pay the same after it finds that the injury was received in the course of his employment, not on purpose, and while the injured person is doing what a person may reasonably do within a time during which he is employed, and at a place where he may reasonably be during that time to do that thing. When the commission has so found and paid the award as a result of such finding, the injured employe, or his representatives, receiving such award, in the absence of fraud, have a vested interest therein.

The legislature, in the enactment of the workmen's compensation law under consideration, did not anticipate that the commission would in any instance make an award and pay the same until after the applicant had satisfied the commission by competent evidence that the award should be made; hence the legislature did not attempt to confer upon the commission the power to recover such an award so made when once paid.

Applying this conclusion to the case of William Martin, he is under moral but not legal obligations to refund the money he has received as a result of his application aforesaid.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

FEES OF SHERIFF AS MASTER COMMISSIONER ARE PAYABLE INTO FEE FUND—CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION 11692, G. C.—FEES ARE PERSONAL WHERE SHERIFF, UNDER SECTION 11927, G. C. IS APPOINTED AS SUITABLE PERSON TO MAKE SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

Fees paid to sheriff while making a sale as master commissioner are official and payable into the fee fund under section 11692, G. C.

When the suitable person appointed to make a sale of real estate under section 11927, G. C., is the sheriff of the county, the fee received by such person is personal and not payable into the sheriff's fee fund.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your letter of April 13, 1915, requesting my opinion upon the following questions:

> "Section 11692, General Code, provides that a sheriff may act as master commissioner. Is the allowance made to him by the court for acting as such payable to his fee fund, or is he entitled to keep this personally?
> "If a court appoints a person who is serving as sheriff under section 11927, General Code, to sell property in an action commenced under section 11925, General Code, is the compensation allowed to such person to be paid into his fee fund or is it his personal fee? Would this also apply to any of the salaried county officers should any of them be chosen by the court under section 11927, General Code?"

Under the provisions of section 11691 of the General Code, when there exists some special reason that the sale of real estate shall not be made by the sheriff of the county where the decree or order was made, the court shall make and issue an order to a master commissioner for the sale of such real estate.

Section 11692 of the General Code provides that, "a sheriff may act as a master commissioner," and "on notice and for a reasonable compensation to be paid him by the master out of his fee, he shall attend and make the sale for the master, who, by reason of sickness, is unable to attend."

We have here the anomalous situation of the master commissioner's being appointed only when the sheriff, for some special reason deemed sufficient by the court, is disqualified to make the sale; and upon the master commissioner's being unable to attend by reason of sickness the statute directs said sheriff so disqualified in the first instance to attend and make the sale for the master. Such is the provision of the statute. The sheriff makes the sale as sheriff, hence the "reasonable compensation to be paid him" comes to him in his official capacity as a county officer.

Section 2977 of the General Code provides:

> "All the fees, costs, percentages, penalties, allowances and other perquisites collected or received by law as compensation for services by a county auditor, county treasurer, probate judge, sheriff, clerk of courts, or recorder, shall be so received and collected for the sole use of the treasury of the county in which they are elected, and shall be held as public moneys belonging to such county, and accounted for and paid over as such as hereinafter provided."

It therefore follows that this compensation so earned by the sheriff is payable into the sheriff's fee fund.

As to your second enquiry, section 11927 and other sections of the same chapter of the General Code, in pari materia therewith prescribe the method for the sale of entailed and other estates. If, upon the hearing provided for in said sections, the application of the petitioner is granted, "the court shall direct a sale to be made, the manner thereof, and appoint some suitable person or persons to make it."

Now, if under this authority the court appoints as such "suitable person or persons" the individual or individuals who are serving as sheriff or other county officers, the compensation allowed for the making of such sale will be payable to such person or persons as individuals and not in their official capacities. Therefore, such compensation is the property of the person or persons making the sale, and is not subject to be paid into the fee fund provided for in said section 2977 of the General Code.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS—AUTHORITY TO BRING SUIT FOR DAMAGES —INJURIES—OBSTRUCTIONS ON NATIONAL ROAD LYING OUTSIDE OF MUNICIPALITIES—REMOVAL OF FENCES ON NATIONAL ROAD.

The authority to bring suits for damages for injuries to or obstructions of that part of the national road lying outside of municipalities, rests with the county commissioners of the county in which the injury occurs.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. CLINTON COWEN, State Highway Commissioner, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your communication of April 20, 1915, which reads as follows:

> "Last year the state highway department undertook the task of rebuilding the National Road east of Columbus. The right of way is 80 feet wide, and after a conference with the officials of your office it was decided to have all fences moved back and all obstructions removed to the full width in order to give the state an opportunity to beautify the road and make it a fitting part of the national highway known as 'The Old Trails Route.' "

"To this end buildings have been removed at various places and fences have been set back to the 80 foot width. But it now develops that a few property owners have refused to comply with the instructions given by the state and are setting their fences on the public highway as they previously existed.

"I feel that it is very desirable for us to preserve the full width, if possible, and would request a conference with you, or your representative, concerning the proper procedure to pursue."

I desire to call your attention to certain sections of the General Code applicable to the situation presented by you.

Under section 7524, G. C., that part of the National Road outside of municipalities, is placed in the care and control of the boards of county commissioners. The section reads as follows:

"Commissioners of counties, through which part of the National Road passes, shall take under their care and control in behalf of their respective counties, so much of the road as lies within the limits of their counties respectively, except such parts thereof as are by law under the control of cities or villages. The road shall be kept in such repair by each county, so taking possession thereof, as is contemplated by the acts of congress ceding to the state the jurisdiction and control of such portion of the national road as lies within the limits of this state. The commissioners shall be governed in all respects by the laws in force relating to such road, except as hereinafter provided."

By sections 2408 and 2424 of the General Code, suits growing out of injuries to or obstructions of state and county highways are to be brought by the county commissioners of the proper county. Section 2408, G. C., reads as follows:

"The board of county commissioners may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded in any court of judicature, bring, maintain and defend all suits in law or in equity, involving an injury to any public, state or county road, bridge, ditch, drain or watercourse established by such board in its county, and for the prevention of injury thereto. The board shall be liable in its official capacity for damages received by reason of its negligence or carelessness in not keeping any such road or bridge in proper repair, and shall demand and receive, by suit or otherwise, any real estate or interest therein, legal or equitable, belonging to the county, or any money or other property due the county. The money so recovered shall be paid into the treasury of the county, and the board shall take the treasurer's receipt therefor and file it with the county auditor."

Section 2424, G. C., reads as follows:

"If a bridge or any state or county road, or any public building, the property of or under the control or supervision of a county, is injured or destroyed, or when any state or county road or public highway has been injured or impaired by placing or continuing thereon, without lawful, authority, any obstruction, or by the changing of the line, filling up or digging out of the bed thereof, or in any manner rendering it less convenient or useful than it had been previously, by a person or corporation, such person or corporation shall be subject to an action for damages. The board of commissioners of the proper county may sue for and recover of such person or corporation the damages which have accrued by reason thereof, or such as are necessary to remove the obstruction or repair the injury."

By section 2917 of the General Code, the prosecuting attorney is made the egal adviser of county commissioners and required to prosecute and defend all suits and actions to which county commissioners are parties. Under the above provisions of law, your proper course of procedure would be to take this matter up with the county commissioners of the proper county or counties. The commissioners will be authorized and required to take all steps necessary to fully protect the rights of the public, and their legal adviser in the matter will be the prosecuting attorney of their county.

I will be very glad at any time to co-operate with the proper local officials in order to secure the ends desired by you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—NO AUTHORITY TO LEVY A TAX UPON AN ADJOINING COUNTY FOR ROAD IMPROVEMENT OF LANDS LYING IN ONE MILE ASSESSMENT DISTRICT—COMMISSIONERS OF EACH COUNTY REQUIRED TO ACT JOINTLY WHEN ROAD LIES IN MORE THAN ONE COUNTY—ASSESSMENT APPORTIONED UPON SEPARATE COUNTIES BY COMMISSIONERS OF THEIR RESPECTIVE COUNTIES.

The commissioners of a county, acting under authority of section 6956-2 and related sections of the General Code, governing the improvement of a road, or part thereof, lying entirely within such county and having a terminus at the county line between such county and an adjoining county, have no authority to levy a tax upon the taxable property of said adjoining county, or to place an assessment against any lands in said adjoining county, to pay a proportionate part of the cost of improving said road, or part thereof. The owners of lands lying in said adjoining county, and within one mile from said terminus of said road, have no right to sign the petition for said improvement.

If the petition filed with the commissioners of a county describes a road, or part thereof, lying in more than one county, the commissioners of the several counties, in which such road, or part thereof is located, are required to act jointly on said petition in the manner provided by section 6956-3 and other related sections of the General Code, governing the improvement of a road, or part thereof, lying in more than one county. The owners, residing in any of said counties, of lands lying within one mile from either side, end or terminus of said road, have the right to sign said petition, and the commissioners of said counties acting jointly under authority of section 6956-11, G. C., are required to apportion the cost and expense of such improvement in the manner provided by said section, and the commissioners of each county, separately, are required to assess the expense falling upon their respective counties, in the same manner and form as if the improvement were wholly within one county, in the proportion provided in section 6956-10, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. T. B. JARVIS, Prosecuting Attorney, Mansfield, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of April 16, 1915, which is as follows:

"Under the law as passed May 10, 1910, known as section 6956-2, which provides that when a majority of the owners of the real estate who reside within the county and who own lands lying within one mile in any direction from either side, end or terminus of the road or part thereof to be laid out, constructed or improved shall petition to the commissioners of any county in the state asking for the levying of a special tax for the construction, repair, improvement or alteration of the public road, or any part thereof upon the filing of the petition, etc.

"The question raised in my mind is as to whether lands lying immediately within one mile of the end of the road that begins on the county line and traverses the county should be taxed, which land lies in another county, although it may be owned by the man living within the county where the road is constructed, and further whether the land within a mile of the end of this road which lies in another county, can be assessed for the improvement as contemplated by the statute?

"We have a number of farmers who have petitioned for the improvement of a road under the one mile assessment plan as contemplated by the section referred to, but all of the petitioners live within Richland county, and the east end of the road ends at the Ashland and Richland county line. Should the farmers in Ashland county be expected to sign the petition, and if they do not sign the petition can they be assessed for a distance of one mile from the end of this road? The road in Ashland county is not improved and may not be improved for years to come. Should the improvement of the Richland county road extend over into Ashland county a few rods, would this not change the situation, if they cannot be compelled to pay an assessment under the other plans?

"You may have ruled upon this question before, but it has slipped my memory, or I have not seen it. Let me have your opinion as soon as possible."

From your statement of facts it appears that a number of persons residing in Richland county, and owning lands lying within one mile from either side, end or terminus of a road, lying entirely within said county and having its eastern terminus at the county line between Richland county and Ashland county, have petitioned the commissioners of Richland county to improve said road under authority of sections 6956-1 et seq., of the General Code, known as the Braun Law.

It is evident that a part of the lands lying within one mile from the eastern terminus of said road, lies in Ashland county.

You ask my opinion on the following questions:

"(1) Have the owners of said lands lying in Ashland county, a right to sign the petition for the improvement of the above described road?

"(2) If said owners do not have the right to sign said petition, can the commissioners of Richland county levy a tax on, or place an assessment against said lands, lying in Ashland county, to pay their proportionate part of the cost of said improvement?

"(3) If the petition filed with the commissioners of Richland county described a road or part therof lying in both Richland and Ashland counties, would the owners of lands lying in Ashland county and within one mile from either side, or from the eastern terminus of said road or part thereof, have the right to sign said petition for said improvement, and would said lands be subject to the tax and assessments for their proportionate part of the cost?"

Section 6956-2, G. C., provides as follows:

"When a majority of the owners of real estate who reside within the county and who own lands lying and being within one mile in any direction from either side, end or terminus of the road or part thereof, to be laid out, constructed or improved shall present a petition to the commissioners of any county in the state asking for the laying out, construction, repair, improvement or alteration of any public road or part thereof, and upon the filing of a bond in such an amount and with such security as the county commissioners shall deem sufficient, conditioned for the payment of the cost and expense of the preliminary survey, the county commissioners shall go upon the line of said road or part thereof of such proposed road, and if in the opinion of the county commissioners it seems that the public utility and convenience require such road to be laid out, constructed, repaired, improved, altered, straightened, or widened as petitioned for, the commissioners shall determine the route and termini of such road, if the petition is for the laying out of a new road, the kind and extent of the improvement or repairs, and what alterations in the line or change of grade of said road, if any, should be made, and at the same time the commissioners shall appoint the county surveyor as engineer, to go upon the line of such road or proposed road, and make such surveys, plats, profiles, estimates and specifications as the commissioners shall order; provided that in locating such road and road improvements within the territorial limits of any municipality the county commissioners shall be confined to the platted streets of such municipality."

The provisions of this section apply to a road, or part thereof, lying entirely within one county.

The provisions of section 6956-3, G. C., apply to a road, or part thereof, lying in more than one county, and read as follows:

"When the road or any part thereof proposed to be laid out and constructed, repaired, improved, straightened, widened or altered is in more than one county, or along the county line between two or more counties in this state, and a majority of the owners of real estate who reside within the counties and who own lands lying and being within one mile in any direction from either side, end or terminus of such proposed road or road improvement shall present the petition and give the bond provided for in section two of this act to the commissioners of any such county the commissioners of the county to whom the said petition is first presented shall file a certified copy of such petition and bond with the commissioners of each of the counties in which the proposed road is to be laid out, constructed, repaired, improved, straightened, widened, or altered. The several boards of county commissioners of such county shall thereupon go upon the line of such proposed road or road improvement at a time to be agreed upon by the boards, and shall act jointly (in the same manner and form as though they were one and the same board) as provided in the preceding section. The counting of the signatures on the petition of residents of their respective counties may be done separately or jointly, at the will of the joint board, but a majority of all shall be sufficient for action thereof."

The provision of section 6956-10, G. C., governing the apportionment of costs, apply to a road, or part thereof, lying within one county. This section provides as follows:

"When the improvement is wholly within one county, the cost and expense of said improvement including all damages and compensation awarded, shall be apportioned by the commissioners as follows: Not less than thirty-five per cent. (35%) nor more than fifty per cent. (50%) thereof shall be paid out of the proceeds of any levy or levies upon the grand duplicate of all the taxable property of the county, or out of any funds available therefor, as provided in section 6956-14 of this act; not less than twenty-five per cent. (25%) nor more than forty per cent. (40%) thereof shall be paid out of the proceeds of any levy or levies upon the grand duplicate of the county levied upon the taxable property of any township or townships in which said improvement may be situated in whole or in part, as provided in section 6956-14 of this act; and the balance, which shall not be less than twenty per cent. (20%) nor more than thirty-five per cent. (35%) thereof shall be assessed upon and collected from the owners of real estate lying and being within one mile from either side, end or terminus of the improvement and assessed according to benefits derived from the improvement as determined by the commissioners. Such assessment shall be in addition to all other assessments authorized by law notwithstanding any limitation upon the aggregate amount of assessments on such property."

Section 6956-11, G. C., governs the apportionment of cost when the road, or part thereof, is in more than one county, and provides as follows:

"When any part of the improvement is in more than one county or along the line between two or more counties, the cost and expense of the entire improvement including all damages and compensation awarded, shall be divided between the counties in which such improvement may be in the proportion the distance in such county bears to the whole distance improved, and the amount of expense so falling upon the several counties shall be assessed by the commissioners of said counties separately in the same manner and form as though the improvement was wholly in one and the same county, and in the proportion provided in the preceding section."

In view of the provisions of section 6956-3 and related sections of the General Code, which apply to the improvement of a road, or part thereof, lying in more than one county, I am of the opinion that the county commissioners of Richland county acting under authority of section 6956-2 and related sections of the General Code, which apply to the improvement of a road, or part thereof, lying entirely within one county, cannot, under authority of section 5966-10, G. C., levy a tax on or place an assessment against land in Ashland county for the improvement of a road, or part thereof, lying entirely in Richland county, and having its eastern terminus at the county line between Richland county and Ashland county.

The answer to your second question must, therefor, be in the negative.

Inasmuch as the lands in Ashland county are not subject to a tax or assessment for the improvement of said road, I am of the opinion that the owners of said land lying in Ashland county, have no right to sign the petition for said improvement.

The answer to your first question is, therefor, in the negative.

If the petition filed with the commissioners of Richland county, described a road, or part thereof, lying in both Richland and Ashland counties, the owners of lands lying in Ashland county and within one mile from either side or from the eastern terminus of said road, or part thereof, would have the right to sign said petition and the boards of commissioners of said counties could act jointly under authority of section 6956-3 and other related sections of the General Code, which apply to the improvement of a road, or part thereof, lying in more than one county. Said boards of county commissioners, acting jointly under authority of section 6956-11, G. C., could apportion the cost and expense of such improvement in the manner provided in said section, and the amount of expense falling upon each county would be assessed by the board of county commissioners of each county, separately, in the same manner and form as if the improvement was wholly within one county, in the proportion provided in section 6956-10, G. C.

The answer to the third question is, therefore, in the affirmative.

The commissioners of Richland county have no authority to improve that part of the road lying in Ashland county, without the co-operation of the commissioners of Ashland county, as authorized and required by the provisions of section 6956-3 and other related sections governing the improvement of a road lying in more than one county, or to levy a tax on the taxable property of Ashland county or place an assessment against any lands in said county, without such co-operation.

The provisions of sections 6956-1 to 6956-15, both inclusive of the General Code, as applied to the laying out, construction, repair or improvement of a public road lying entirely in one county, and having a teminus at the county line between such county and the adjoining county, have not been passed upon by any of the courts of the state.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

MEMBER OF THE LEGISLATURE—SHALL RECEIVE MILEAGE ONLY BY "THE MOST DIRECT ROUTE OF PUBLIC TRAVEL" TO AND FROM THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Section 50, G. C., will not allow a member of the legislature to receive mileage for travel to and from the seat of government to his place of residence by the most convenient route unless said route is also "the most direct route of public travel."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. M. P. TOTMAM, Chairman Committee on Mileage, House of Representatives, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of April 28, 1915, requesting a ruling on the following:

> "Mr. Lovett, a member of the general assembly, of Adams county, travels to and from his home by the way of Cincinnati, it being the most convenient route and making good connections so can make the trip all in one day, the distance being one hundred and ninety-two miles, but the most direct route is by the way of Portsmouth, a distance of one hundred and forty miles, but he must stay over night in Portsmouth on account of not being able to make connections. How many miles is he entitled to draw mileage for, the 192 miles, the most convenient route, or the 140 miles, the most impractical route?"

Section 50 of the General Code provides in part as follows:

> "Each member shall receive two cents per mile each way for mileage once a week during the session from and to his place of residence, by the most direct route of public travel to and from the seat of government, to be paid at the end of each regular or special session. If a member is absent without leave or is not excused on his return, there shall be deducted from his compensation the sum of ten dollars for each day's absence."

The law clearly states that mileage is to be computed "by the most direct route of public travel to and from the seat of government." This language is clear and unmistakable and means exactly what it says. Therefore, mileage should be allowed to Mr. Lovett for only 140 miles.

It is not the province of this department to do other than to apply the law as enacted by the legislature. If the legislature deems the above provision to be inequitable it is within its province to change the law.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES—HAVE NO AUTHORITY TO PAY RENT TO FAMILIES IN NEED OF SUPPORT—SECTION 3476 GENERAL CODE, CONSTRUED.

As a general rule, township trustees have no authority to pay rent under sections 3476 et seq., G. C., to families in need of support. They can only do so when, from extraordinary circumstances, such help is needed only temporarily.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, April 30, 1915.

HON. O. W. KENNEDY, Prosecuting Attorney, Bucyrus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of March 11th, you inquire, whether under the provisions of section 3476, et seq., of the General Code, township trustees have authority to pay rent to families who are in need of support as provided in said sections.

Section 3476, G. C., makes it the duty, subject to certain conditions, provisions and limitations, of the trustees of each township, at the expense of such township, to afford public support or relief to all persons therein who are in condition requiring it.

Section 3486, G. C., provides for the annual report of the township clerk to the auditor, and requires said report to show "all expenditures in that behalf as follows: First, the aggregate of physicians' fees paid; second, the aggregate paid for supplies, food, clothing, etc.; third, aggregate of per diem and expenses of such trustees and municipal officers in connection with the poor laws."

Section 3486 shows from its provisions relative to the annual report that something further than supplies, food and clothing is contemplated to be within the power of the trustees to furnish. Rent has always been considered in law as one of the necessaries which come within the purview of the attachment laws of Ohio, and is classed in the same category with food and necessary clothing.

The relief which the township trustees are authorized to grant under the above sections is only what can be termed "temporary" relief; that is to say, in order to help those in need of support over a temporary emergency.

As a general rule, I would state that the township trustees are not authorized to pay rent for families who are in need of support; and the only exceptions thereto would be when under extraordinary circumstances such help is needed only temporarily.

If a family should be in need of other than temporary support, such family should be warranted by the township trustees over to the county infirmary to become county charges.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ABSTRACT OF TITLE—ARMORY—CITY OF DELAWARE, OHIO.

Abtract of title for armory at Delaware, Ohio, approved in part.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 1, 1915.

Ohio State Armory Board, COL. B. L. BARGAR, Secretary, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I have received from adjutant general B. W. Hough, abstract of title and deed, executed April 2, 1915, in which there is conveyed to the state of Ohio, by The Delaware Ice and Coal Company, the following described premises:

> "Situated in the county of Delaware, in the state of Ohio, and in the city of Delaware, and bounded and described as follows:
> "1. Being in-lot number eighty-eight (88), as designated on the town plat of said town of Delaware, excepting therefrom, forty-three (43) feet from the east side thereof, being the same premises conveyed by H. E. Martin and wife, to E. A. Adams, by deed of date July 2, 1869.
> "2. Also, all that part of a fractional lot lying immediately south of in-lot No. 88, in the town of Delaware, county of Delaware, and state of Ohio, sold by Lucy Martin and her husband to E. A. Adams, not conveyed by quit-claim deed to one Calvin Welch, and being the same premises conveyed to E. H. Hyatt, by William Brown, sheriff of Delaware county, on the 4th day of January, A. D. 1873—being the same, more or less, but subject to all legal highways—being the same premises conveyed by E. H. Hyatt and wife, to Margaret A. Perry, March 16, 1878, and recorded in volume 71, page 363, Delaware county record of deeds."

The abstract of title to said premises was prepared by E. S. Mendenhall, abstracter, Delaware, Ohio, and from my examination of said abstract and the deed above referred to, I am of the opinion that the state of Ohio has a good and marketable title to the first tract above described.

As to the second tract, I do not believe that said abstract of title and the deed above referred to show a good and marketable title to the state of Ohio, for the reason that there is a defect in the title, as shown by said abstract at sections 41 and 43 thereof.

At section 41, there is shown a conveyance for this tract from George and Clara Bomford, by Milo D. Pettibone, their attorney, to Jacob Drake, which conveyance is recorded in volume 9, at page 148, of the Delaware county record of deeds. The abstract then fails to disclose any conveyance of said tract from said Jacob Drake or anyone claiming under him.

At section 43, Lucy M. Martin and husband convey said second tract by quit-claim deed to E. A. Adams, which conveyance is recorded in volume 60, page 557, of the deed records of Delaware county, Ohio.

While this property has been in the possession of Margaret A. Perry since 1878, as shown by the conveyance at section 46, of this abstract, yet I feel it proper that I should call attention to the defects hereinbefore set out.

I am informed by adjutant general Hough, that the proposed armory building will be located entirely upon the first tract above described.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ABSTRACT OF TITLE—BOWLING GREEN NORMAL SCHOOL.

Approval of abstract of title for Bowling Green normal school.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 1, 1915.

Board of Trustees of the Bowling Green Normal School, Bowling Green, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—At the request of Mr. J. E. Schatzel, secretary of the board of trustees of the Bowling Green normal school, I have carefully examined the various abstracts of title to the following described real estate, to wit:

> "The southeast corner of out-lot number ninety-seven (97) in the city of Bowling Green, Wood county, Ohio, as said lot is recorded on plat records in volume 7, page 5, recorder's office of Wood county, Ohio. The part of said lot hereby conveyed is bounded and described as follows:
> "Commencing at a point where the west line of Wayne street (formerly Cemetery street), intersects the curb line on the north line of Wooster street in the aforesaid city of Bowling Green; thence running west along said curb line fifty (50) feet; thence north parallel with the west line of said Wayne street two hundred (200) feet; thence east fifty (50) feet to the west line of said Wayne street; thence south along said west line of Wayne street to the curb line of Wooster street a distance of two hundred (200) feet to the place of beginning."

The first of said abstracts examined was made by The Wood County Abstract and Loan Company, under date of April 11, 1911; the second is a continuation of said first abstract and was made by Robert Dunn, abstracter, under date of June 14, 1911; and the third of said abstracts is a continuation of the second abstract, made by The Wood County Abstract and Loan Company, under date of April 28, 1915.

From my examination of said abstracts, I am of the opinion that on the 28th day of April, 1915, Frank L. Deffenbach was possessed of a good and marketable title to said premises, subject only to the following incumbrances:

> "1. The taxes for the last half of the year 1914, amounting to $19.38; and the taxes for the year 1915, the amount of which has not yet been ascertained.
> "2. The balance of the assessment for the improvement of Kelly road, as shown on the records in the office of the county auditor of Wood county, Ohio, amounting to fifty-nine cents (59c).
> "3. The balance of the assessment for sanitary sewer improvement, as shown by the records in the office of the city auditor of Bowling Green, Ohio, amounting to $16.47."

I have also examined the deed for said premises executed by Frank L. Deffenbach and Mina Deffenbach, his wife, to the state of Ohio, under date of April 9, 1915, and find same to be in proper form.

The various abstracts, together with the deed above mentioned, are herewith returned to you.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PUBLIC WORKS—APPROVAL OF CERTAIN LEASES.

Approval of certain leases submitted to department of public works.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 1, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your communications of April 28, 1915, transmitting to me for my examination the following leases:

	Valuation.
The Dayton Pure Milk & Butter Co., Dayton, Ohio	$3,666 00
Harvey Walker, Thornville, Ohio	250 00
John J. Brady, Akron, Ohio	1,000 00
Agricultural Commission of Ohio	4,000 00

I find that these leases have been executed according to law, and therefore return them to you with my approval endorsed thereon.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

PUBLIC WORKS—CERTAIN LEASES DISAPPROVED.

Leases to L. P. Schimke and The Odenweller Milling Company, as submitted for approval, are not in legal form.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 1, 1915.

HON. JOHN I. MILLER, Superintendent of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your communication of April 28, 1915, transmitting to me for examination the following leases, to wit:

	Valuation.
L. P. Schimke	$2,250 00
Odenweller Milling Co	250 00

In reference to the lease executed to L. P. Schimke, I note that the same provides for an annual rental of $100.00 for the first five years, $125.00 for the second five years, and $150.00 for the third five years.

While not desiring to question or pass upon the wisdom of such an arrangement, I desire to call your attention to the provisions of section 13965, et seq., of the Appendix to the General Code of Ohio, relating to the leasing of canal lands; it being provided in these sections that before such lands may be leased, they must be valued at their true value in money, and that after being so valued, they may be leased for fifteen years at an annual rental of six per cent. per annum of said valuation. The statutes are silent as to any sliding scale of valuations upon which rental is to be based, and in the absence of statutory authority for the use of such a sliding scale of valuations, I am of the opinion that lands which are to be leased should first be valued at their true value in money at the present time, and that the annual rental should be six per cent. per annum of such valuation, and should be the same throughout the life of the lease.

In reference to the lease of the Odenweller Milling Co., permit me to call your attention to an opinion rendered by me to you on April 14, 1915, as to certain lease executed between you and the Dayton Pure Milk and Butter Company, in which the following language was used: "The lessee being a corporation, it follows that proper evidence that the directors of the corporation authorized the making of the lease, should also be required by you. The directors of the corporation, if they have not already done so, should adopt a resolution authorizing the making of the lease by the corporation, and instructing the president and secretary thereof to execute the same on behalf of the company. Triplicate copies of this resolution, properly certified, should be furnished, and one copy attached to each copy of the lease." In the lease in question, it does not even appear that Ed. C. Odenweller, who assumed to execute the same on behalf of the corporation, is an officer of the company.

In reference to both of the above mentioned leases, it should be stated that in the body of the lease, there is a reference to a plat which it is stated is attached to and made a part of the lease. An examination of the leases discloses that no plat has been attached, and this omission should be supplied.

For the above reasons, I am herewith returning these leases without my approval.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION—AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER PART OF RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT TO A CONTIGUOUS VILLAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT—COUNTY BOARD CANNOT SUSPEND SCHOOL IN TERRITORY TRANSFERRED—VILLAGE BOARD MUST SUSPEND.

A county board of education, acting under authority of, and in compliance with, the provisions of section 4736, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 138, has authority to transfer a part of a rural school district to a contiguous village school district,but said county board of education has no authority in law to suspend any school in the territory so transferred. Said suspension can only be effected by proper action of the board of education of said village school district under authority of section 7730, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, and in compliance with the requirements of said section.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 1, 1915.

HON. CLARK GOOD, Prosecuting Attorney, Van Wert, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your letter of April 19th, which is as follows:

"There is located in our county, on the township line, running north and south, between York and Jennings townships, the village of Venedocia. To the village, there was attached, prior to the 13th day of April, 1915, certain adjoining territory. This territory, together with the territory within the corporation limits, was known as 'The Venedocia Village School District,' since the new school code went into effect.

"The residents of the school district, as constituted prior to April 13, 1915, petitioned the county board of education to transfer certain territory from the York township rural district and from the Jennings township rural district to the Venedocia village school district. The territory located in York township, and lying north and west of the Venedocia village school district, comprised what was known as the Auglaize school district, and was a complete subdistrict of the York township rural school district. The territory in Jennings township consisted of territory lying north and east of the Venedocia village school district, and comprised what was known as the Horeb school district, and was a complete subdistrict of the Jennings township rural school district. The territory lying east and south of the Venedocia village school district comprised what was known as the Berry school district, and was a part of that complete subdistrict in the Jennings township rural school district.

"On the 13th day of April, 1915, on the request made in the petition of the residents of the Venedocia village school district, the county board of education, acting under authority claimed by section 4736 of the General Code of Ohio, passed February 5, 1914 (104 O. L., 138), made an order transferring the Auglaize school district in York township, from the York township rural school district to the Venedocia village school district; also, the Horeb school district in Jennings township, and the north part of the Berry school district in such township, to the Venedocia village school district.

"In each of these school districts, there is located a school house, and in each, the enrollment of pupils is such that a school must be maintained therein. In none of these school districts is there any present probability of the average daily attendance falling below such a number, that the board would be required to suspend this school, and transfer the pupils to other school or schools.

"In the order made by the county board of education, the territory transferred from the rural districts to the Venedocia village school district is described by sections and parts of sections. There is a good and sufficient school building in each one of these subdistricts which is located within the territory so ordered transferred. In that part of the territory, so ordered transferred, lying in Jennings township, there are fifty-four (54) voters, thirty-three (33) of whom protested against the territory in Jennings township being transferred by the county board, and all of the parties protesting are opposed to the centralization of their schools. The action taken by the county board of education works a centralization of the different subdistricts in the rural districts of York and Jennings townships, without the matter being submitted to the electors, as required under the law, provided for the centralization of schools.

"I would be pleased to have an opinion from you regarding the authority of the county board of education, under section 4736 of the General Code, or any other section therein, to make an order transferring territory in this manner, and thus arbitrarily centralize the schools in these various subdistricts, by attaching them to the Venedocia village school district."

From your statement of facts, it appears that, on April 13, 1915, the board of education of Van Wert county school district, acting under authority of section 4736, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 138, made an order transferring a part of York township rural school district, and certain parts of Jennings township rural school district, to Venedocia village school district, said rural school districts and said village school district all being within the Van Wert county school district, and the parts of said rural school districts, which the county board of education ordered transferred, being contiguous to said village school district.

While you state that the order of the county board of education was made on the petition of certain persons residing in the Venedocia village school district, permit me to say that the jurisdiction of the county board of education to act under authority of section 4736, G. C., as amended, is not dependent upon the filing of an application or petition signed by one or more persons residing in the district or districts which will be affected by such action.

Section 4736, G. C., as amended 104 O. L., 138, provides, in part, as follows:

"The county board of education shall, as soon as possible after organizing, make a survey of its district. The board shall arrange the schools according to the topography and population in order that they may be most easily accessible to pupils. To this end the county board shall have power by resolution at any regular or special meeting to change school district lines and transfer territory from one rural or village school district to another. A map designating such changes shall be entered on the records of the board and a copy of the resolution and map shall be filed with the county auditor. In changing boundary lines the board may proceed without regard to township lines, and shall provide that adjoining rural districts are as nearly equal as possible in property valuation. In no case shall any rural district be created containing less than fifteen square miles. * * *."

It is clear that the county board of education, acting under authority of the above provision of section 4736, G. C., and in compliance with the requirements of said statute, had the right to make the order, above referred to, and the filing of the petition signed by certain persons residing in Venedocia village district was not material as affecting the jurisdiction of said county board of education to make said order.

The provisions of section 4736, G. C., as amended, must not be confused with the procedure to dissolve an entire rural district and join it to a contiguous rural or village district, as provided in sections 4735-1 and 4735-2, G. C., 104 O. L., 138, which require the filing of a petition, signed by not less than one-fourth of the electors residing in such rural school districts, with the board of education of such district, and the submission of the question of dissolution and union with the contiguous rural or village school district to a vote of the electors.

Coming now to the effect of the order of the county board of education above referred to, upon the status of the rural schools which passed, under said order, from the township rural school districts into the Venedocia village school district, I call your attention to the provisions of section 7730, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 139, which are as follows:

> "The board of education of any rural or village school district may suspend any or all schools in such village or rural school district. Upon such suspension, the board in such village school district may provide, and in such rural school district shall provide, for the conveyance of the pupils attending such schools to a public school in the rural or village district, or to a public school in another district. When the average daily attendance of any school for the preceding year has been below twelve, such school shall be suspended and the pupils transferred to such other school or schools as the local board may direct. No school of any rural district shall be suspended or abolished until after sixty days' notice has been given by the school board of such district. Such notice shall be posted in five conspicuous places within such village or rural school district."

The board of education of Venedocia village district has the authority under the above provisions of section 7730, G. C., to suspend any or all of the schools, in the territory transferred to said village school district by order of the county board, by a proper resolution on its records and by giving the notice required by the latter provision of said section.

Upon such suspension, it would be the duty of said board of education of said village school district to transfer the pupils attending such school or schools so suspended, to such other school or schools in said district as said board might direct. It would be discretionary with said board to provide for the conveyance of said pupils to the school or schools in said district to which said pupils would be transferred, except in the case where a pupil were living more than two miles from the nearest school in said district, in which case it would be the duty of said board of education to provide transportation for such pupil to and from such school as required by section 7731, G. C., which provides:

> "No township school shall be centralized under the next preceding section by the board of education of the township until after sixty days' notice has been given by the board, such notices to be posted in a conspicuous place in each subdistrict of the township. When transportation of pupils is provided for, the conveyance must pass within at least the distance of one-half of a mile from the respective residences of all pupils, except when such residences are situated more than one-half of a mile from the public road. But transportation for pupils living less than one and one-half miles, by the most direct public highway, from the school house shall be optional with the board of education."

Replying to your question, I am of the opinion that the board of education of Van Wert county school district, acting under the provisions of section 4736, as amended, and in compliance with the requirements of said section, had the authority to make the order, referred to in your inquiry, but said county board of education has no authority in law to suspend any school in the territory, transferred under said order, from the York township and Jennings township rural school districts to the Venedocia village school. Said suspension can only be effected by proper action of the board of education of said village school district under authority of section 7730, G. C., as amended, and in compliance with the requirements of said section.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

COUNTY TREASURER—AUTHORITY FOR COLLECTING DELINQUENT PERSONAL TAXES—MUST DISTRAIN SUFFICIENT GOODS AND CHATTELS TO PAY TAXES AND ACCRUED COSTS.

Under the provisions of section 2658, G. C., it is the duty of the county treasurer, acting in person or through his deputy, to distrain sufficient goods and chattels belonging to a person charged with delinquent personal taxes, if such goods and chattels can be found in the county, to pay such taxes and accrued costs, and, upon such distraint being made, it is his duty to advertise and sell said goods and chattels, or so much thereof as will pay said taxes and costs in the manner provided in said section, provided said taxes and costs are not paid by the owner of said property before the day appointed for said sale. The county treasurer is neither required nor authorized by the provisions of section 2658, G. C., to resort to a justice's court for the purpose of collecting delinquent personal taxes.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 1, 1915.

HON. CARL H. CURTISS, Prosecuting Attorney, Ravenna, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. A. L. Kreinberg, treasurer of Portage county, asking to be advised as to the proper procedure under section 2658, General Code, for the collection of delinquent personal taxes.

As you are the legal adviser of Mr. Kreinberg as treasurer of said county, I am addressing my opinion, on the question asked by him, to you.

His letter is as follows:

> "As I do not fully understand the procedure under section 2658, General Code of Ohio, for the collection of delinquent personal property tax, I beg leave to ask your opinion in the matter as to whether the treasurer, deputy or his agent is to seize the goods or chattels and advertise etc., or does the treasurer leave the accounts with a justice of the peace for collection? Also, are there legal blanks on the market for use in making collections under this section of the law."

Section 2658, G. C., provides:

> "When taxes are past due and unpaid, the county treasurer may distrain sufficient goods and chattels belonging to the person charged with suc taxes, if found within the county, to pay the taxes so remaining due and th costs that have accrued. He shall immediately advertise in three public places in the township where the property was taken, the time and place it will be sold. If the taxes and costs accrued thereon are not paid before the day appointed for such sale, which shall be not less than ten days after the taking of the property, the treasurer shall sell it at public vendue or so much thereof as will pay such taxes and the costs."

This section gives to the county treasurer plenary power for the purpose of collecting delinquent personal taxes. Its constitutionality has been upheld by the courts in numerous cases, among which is the case of Scottish Union & National Insurance Co. v. Bowland, treasurer et al., 196 U. S., 611. One branch of the syllabus relates to the provisions of section 2658, G. C., and is as follows:

"The collection by distraint of goods to satisfy taxes lawfully levied is one of the most ancient methods known to the law, and in this case the law of Ohio authorizing it does not violate the constitutional right of a foreign insurance company and deprive it of its property without due process of law."

Under the provisions of section 2658, G. C., the county treasurer has authority to take possession of sufficient goods and chattels belonging to the person charged with delinquent personal taxes, if such goods and chattels are found within the county to pay such taxes and accrued costs. When goods and chattels are distrained for this purpose it is the duty of the county treasurer to immediately advertise in three public places, in the township where the property was taken, the time when and the place where said property will be sold. If the taxes and accrued costs are not paid before the day appointed for the sale, which shall not be less than ten days after taking possession of the property, it is the duty of the treasurer to sell said property or so much thereof as will pay such taxes and accrued costs at public vendue.

It will be observed that in these proceedings by the county treasurer, under authority of section 2658, G. C., no resort to the court is necessary, and no greater power could be gained by litigation.

It was held in Myers v. Shiels, 8. O. F. D., 339, that the tax duplicate has the force of an execution.

The authority of the county treasurer, under the provisions of section 2658, G. C., is separate and distinct from that conferred upon him by the provision of section 2660, G. C., which applies to the case where he is unable to collect the taxes by distraint, and from the authority conferred by section 2665, G. C., which provides:

"If a person charged with a tax has not sufficient property which the treasurer can find to distrain to pay such tax, but has moneys or credits due, or coming due him from any person within the state, known to the treasurer, or if such taxpayer has removed from the state or county, and has property, moneys, or credits due, or coming due him in the state, known to the treasurer, in every such case the treasurer shall collect such tax and penalty by distress, attachment, or other process of law. He may make affidavit that the residence of such taxpayer is to him unknown, or that he is not a resident of the county where such property is found, or where such debtor resides, or that such taxpayer has no property in the county sufficient to distrain to pay such tax. Thereupon an attachment, with garnishee process, shall be issued, and such proceedings had, and such judgment rendered for taxes, penalty, and costs, as are lawful in other cases of attachments. If the treasurer serves upon any person indebted to such taxpayer a written notice stating the amount of delinquent tax and penalty due, such debtor may, after the service of such notice, pay such tax and penalty to the treasurer, whose receipt therefor shall be a full discharge of so much of the indebtedness as equals the tax and penalty so paid."

I call your attention to the provision of section 5697, G. C., as I think Mr. Kreinberg has confused the provision of this section as well as the provision of section 2665, G. C., with the provision of section 2658, G. C.

Section 5697, G. C., provides:

"When personal taxes stand charged against a person, and are not paid within the time prescribed by law for the payment of such taxes, the treasurer of such county, in addition to any other remedy provided by law for the collection of personal taxes, shall enforce the collection thereof by a civil action in the name of such treasurer against such person for the recovery of such unpaid taxes. It shall be sufficient, having made proper parties to the suit, for the treasurer to allege in his bill of particulars or petition that the taxes stand charged upon the duplicate of the county against such person, that they are due and unpaid, and that such person is indebted in the amount appearing to be due on the duplicate, and the treasurer need not set forth any other or further special matter relating thereto. The tax duplicate shall be prima facie evidence on the trial of the action, of the amount and validity of the taxes appearing due and unpaid thereon, and of the nonpayment thereof, without setting forth in his petition any other or further special matter relating thereto."

This statute provides an additional method of collecting delinquent personal taxes and should not be confused with the authority of the county treasurer to distrain and sell goods and chattels for said purpose under authority of section 2658, G. C.

I am of the opinion, therefore, that under the provisions of section 2658, G. C., it is the duty of the county treasurer, acting in person or through his deputy, to distrain sufficient goods and chattels belonging to a person charged with delinquent personal taxes, if such goods and chattels can be found in the county, to pay such taxes and accrued costs, and, upon such distraint being made, it is his duty to advertise and sell said goods and chattels or so much thereof as will pay said taxes and costs in the manner provided in said section, provided said taxes and costs are not paid by the owner of said property before the day appointed for such sale. The county treasurer is neither required nor authorized by the provisions of section 2658, G. C., to resort to a justice's court for the purpose of collecting delinquent personal taxes.

I am sending a copy of this opinion to Mr. Kreinberg.

Respectfully,

EDWARD C. TURNER,

Attorney General.

STATE INSPECTOR OF OILS—FEES—NO PAYMENT ALLOWED FOR INSPECTION OF OIL FOR TIME BETWEEN DECISION OF SUPREME COURT AND TAKING EFFECT OF NEW BILL PRESCRIBING NEW RATE OF FEES FOR INSPECTION—EFFECT OF HAVING PAID FEES.

The state inspector of oils and his deputies may not demand fees at the rate prescribed by senate bill No. 183, passed April 27, 1915, after that bill goes into effect for the period intervening between March 4th, when the case of Castle v. Mason was decided by the supreme court, and the date of the signing of the bill; nor may the inspector or his deputy demand any inspection fees on account of inspections made prior to March 4, 1915, on account of which fees have not theretofore been paid.

Such fees, if voluntarily paid, however, may be received by the inspector and paid into the state treasury.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 3, 1915.

HON. J. M. CARR, State Inspector of Oils, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of your letter April 28, 1915, which is as follows:

> "By reason of the recent decision of the supreme court, touching the fee sections of the act under which the state oil department had been operating, we advised our deputy inspectors, who continued making inspections as heretofore, that in making their reports to the various companies and concerns for which inspection was made, that they should enter no rate nor fees charged for the time since the rendering of this decision by the supreme court until the date of the signing of the new act.
> "Beginning with this date, the bill being signed today by the governor, our deputy inspectors will enter into their statements the new rate of three cents and the aggregate amount of fees resulting therefrom. Some of the companies doing business in the state have inquired if they should not make payment for inspections made during the period of uncertainty, March and April, at a rate of three cents. I have answered such inquiry by saying that we would make no statement to them covering that period, no fee being in legal existence. Kindly advise me if my position has been well taken, as I am very desirous of passing through this fallow period with the utmost caution, and with due care as to the legality of our acts and statements.
> "There is, however, in a number of cases a delinquency on the part of companies for the February and prior inspections, the same not being due until the 10th or 15th of the subsequent month. I have in mind, in my communication to these companies, to call their attention to this delinquency, but not with the suggestion of making collection or any idea of rendering a statement, but leaving it wholly up to them as a matter of conscience or equity to remit any portion or all of their delinquency as they see fit."

You request my advice as to whether or not the course upon which you have determined is proper.

The bill referred to by you in the second paragraph of your letter is, I presume, senate bill No. 183, which provides an entirely new system of oil inspection and revises the schedule of fees chargeable against the owners of the inspected oil and other by-products of petroleum, so as to conform to the decision referred to by you. I ascertain upon inquiry, however, that this bill has not yet been signed by the governor. I take it that you are otherwise advised of your error in stating that the bill was signed on April 28th, and that your statement as to what is to be done under the new law relates to the date when the law shall be actually signed by the governor.

I am of the opinion that the procedure as you have outlined it is, in all respects, proper. I would advise, however, that in communicating with the owners of oil, respecting the payment of fees on account of inspections heretofore made, you be careful to advise that they are under no legal obligation to pay the same so that your letters may not in any way be interpreted as demands.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

JUVENILE COURT—NO AUTHORITY TO COMMIT YOUTH OVER EIGHTEEN YEARS OF AGE TO BOYS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL ALTHOUGH DELINQUENCY ATTACHED PRIOR TO ARRIVING AT AGE OF EIGHTEEN.

Juvenile court judge is without authority to commit youth over eighteen years of age to Boys' Industrial School, notwithstanding status of delinquency attached to youth prior to arriving at age of eighteen.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 3, 1915.

HON. ELWIN C. PECK, Judge Juvenile Court, Williams County, Bryan, Ohio.

MY DEAR JUDGE:—Permit me to acknowledge you request for an opinion, contained in your letter of April 27th, which is as follows:

> "As judge of the juvenile court of Williams county, Ohio, I would like your opinion at your earliest convenience in the following matter and upon the following facts:
> "I have a boy who, when he was fourteen years of age, was found to be delinquent and placed on probation and permitted to remain with his parents and report to the court or to the probation officer. He has very recently violated his probation and is now confined in the county jail awaiting the action of the authorities. He has just passed his eighteenth birthday. The superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School seems to be of the opinion that the school cannot receive him because he is now eighteen years of age.
>
> "I call your attention to sections 1643, 1652 and others of the General Code of Ohio. 1643 provides that a delinquent child becomes a ward of the court until he arrives at the age of twenty-one years, and that the power of the court shall continue until the child attains such age.
> "If the court cannot commit such child after it arrives at the age of eighteen years for the violation of its probation, then it would seem that the power of the juvenile court over such child after it becomes eighteen years of age was not very great, and of very little value. I would like your opinion as to whether or not the juvenile court has power to commit such child, under such circumstances, to any reformatory in the state of Ohio, and if so, what one?"

In answer to my letter addressed to you under date of April 29th, you advise me that the youth referred to in your previous letter, which is quoted above, was placed in the jail by order of the juvenile court for violating his probation, and that the violation of the probation consisted in the committing of an offense against the laws of the state, viz.: Either petit larceny or grand larceny, and that if he may not at this time be committed to the Boys' Industrial School or some other reformatory, the offense which he recently committed will be considered by the grand jury of Williams county, which is about to convene.

Your attention is invited to the provisions of section 2084, of the General Code, as amended in 103 O. L., page 864, which is as follows:

> "Male youth, not over eighteen nor under ten years of age, may be committed to the Boys' Industrial School in the manner provided by law on conviction of an offense against the laws of the state."

So that, in an ordinary case, a boy over eighteen years of age would not be committed to the Boys' Industrial School by any court, and there would be no authority in the superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School to accept one over eighteen years of age as an inmate of the school.

You invite my attention to the provisions of section 1643 of the General Code, as amended on page 869, 103 O. L., which is as follows:

> "When a child under the age of eighteen years comes into the custody of the court under the provisions of this chapter, such child shall continue for all necessary purposes of discipline and protection, a ward of the court, until he or she attain the age of twenty-one years. The power of the court over such child shall continue until the child attains such age."

Section 1652 of the General Code, as amended on page 871, 103 O. L., is as follows:

> "In case of a delinquent child the judge may continue the hearing from time to time, and may commit the child to the care or custody of a probation officer, and may allow such child to remain at its own home, subject to the visitation of the probation officer or otherwise, as the court may direct, and subject to be returned to the judge for further or other proceedings whenever such action may appear to be necessary; or the judge may cause the child to be placed in a suitable family home, subject to the friendly supervision of a probation officer, and the further order of the judge, or he may authorize the child to be boarded in some suitable family home in case provision be made by voluntary contribution or otherwise for the payment of the board of such child, until suitable provision be made for it in a home without such payment; or the judge may commit such child, if a boy, to a training school for boys, or, if a girl, to an industrial school for girls, or commit the child to any institution within the county that may care for delinquent children, or be provided by a city or county suitable for the care of such children. In no case shall a child, committed to such institutions, be confined under such commitment after attaining the age of twenty-one years; or the judge may commit the child to the care and custody of an association that will receive it, embracing in its objects, the care of neglected or dependent children, if duly approved by the board of state charities, as provided by law. Where it appears at the hearing of a male delinquent child, that he is sixteen years of age, or over, and has committed a felony, the juvenile court may commit such child to the Ohio State Reformatory."

It appears from the statement of facts presented by you that when the case under consideration was originally disposed of in your court, the youth was placed on probation, committed to the charge of his parents and directed to report to the probation officer. At that time the court might have, had it seen fit, committed the boy to the Boys' Industrial School, he being under the age of eighteen years, to wit: fourteen years. This was not done and the industrial school authorities, therefore, did not acquire jurisdiction over the boy such as would enable them at this time, notwithstanding his having passed the age of eighteen years, to receive him as an inmate of the school.

While under the provisions of section 1643 of the General Code, as amended, quoted above, the delinquent remains a ward of the court for all necessary purposes of discipline and protection until he or she attains the age of twenty-one years, the extent to which the juvenile court may exercise its powers of discipline and protection is necessarily limited by the existing laws, in the case under consideration, to the particular limitation against the comitment of a boy over the age of eighteen years to the Boys' Industrial School.

Under the provisions of section 1652 of the General Code, as amended, quoted above, the juvenile court is authorized to have returned to him a delinquent who has been placed on probation when it is made apparent to the court that further proceedings are necessary and until the time when the boy has reached the age of eighteen years the court would be authorized to commit him to the Boys' Industrial School. Failing to act before that time, however, the Boys' Industrial School would not be open to receive a boy over eighteen years of age, the only exception to this law being in the case of the retaking of a boy who, under the provisions of sections 2091 and 2092 of the General Code as amended on page 880, 103 O. L., has been paroled from the home and has violated the conditions of his parole.

The juvenile court law, having for its purpose the segregation of youth under the age of eighteen years who may be guilty of violation of the law, to a great extent relieves the youth from the ordinary forms of prosecution. However, there is no provision of the law to be found which will relieve one having the status of delinquency from answering for the violation of the law after the delinquent has reached the age of eighteen years.

It is my opinion, therefore, that if the delinquent who is now over eighteen years of age has violated a law, the jurisdiction to hear and determine his case would rest in some tribunal other than the juvenile court, notwithstanding that for such purposes the jurisdiction of the juvenile court attached to said delinquent and continues until he may have reached the age of twenty-one years and that there is no jurisdiction in the juvenile court to commit, in the case under consideration, for an offense committed by the boy, although possessing the status of delinquency, when said offense against the law was committed after the boy had reached the age of eighteen years.

I agree with you that the power of the juvenile court over a boy between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one years may be slight, however, it is to be exercised to the extent possible under the law and no further. It would hardly be contended that the purpose of the law would be carried out if boys ranging from the age of ten years and upwards, in care of the Boys' Industrial School and who have been disciplined there, should be thrown into contact with boys between the age of eighteen and twenty-one years who might be sent there on account of offenses committed by them after they had reached that age, and the provision of law limiting the entrance age to eighteen years is, in my opinion, a wise one.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

DISTRICT TAX ASSESSOR—INCONSISTENCY AS TO DATE OF APPOINTMENT—DATE OF COMMISSION ITSELF GOVERNS AND FIXES DATE OF APPOINTMENT.

In case of inconsistency between the date of the commission of the district assessor, under the Warnes law, and the date thereof as shown on the record of appointments kept in the governor's office, the date of the commission itself governs and fixes the date of the appointment.

The date of an informal announcement by the governor respecting appointments and the date of the delivery of the commissions are both immaterial as affecting the date of appointment. Where a district assessor was appointed by the execution of a commission to him on December 1, 1913, and with actual notice thereof immediately thereafter entered upon the performance of his duties and within reasonable time gave bond, he is entitled to receive compensation from the date of the commission.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 3, 1915.

The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a letter from Hon. Robert P. Duncan, prosecuting attorney of Franklin county, written at the request of Messrs. C. E. Ellis and John Pfeiffer, former district assessors for Franklin county, and requesting my opinion upon the question which my predecessor, Hon. Timothy S. Hogan, considered in his opinion to the bureau under date of December 21, 1914, or rather, to be more accurate, upon additional facts bearing upon the main question considered by Mr. Hogan.

The question passed upon by Mr. Hogan was as follows:

> "Could the district assessor be legally compensated in a sum equaling one-twelfth of his annual salary for the full month of December, 1913, if he was not officially appointed until the fifth day of that month, even though his bond as such had been approved before that date? In the event that he did not file his bond, and have same approved by the county auditor until some time after the 5th day of December, 1913, would he be only legally entitled to that portion of the month of December, 1913, as represents the number of days following the date of approval of his official bond by the county auditor?"

Mr. Hogan held that the term of a district assessor commences on the date of his appointment, and that his annual compensation should be computed from that date as the beginning of his official year regardless of the date of the filing and approval of his bond. Mr. Hogan also considered in his letter facts of which he was advised otherwise than by the bureau's letter requestion his opinion, namely, that the district assessors had been called upon to render some services prior to December 5, 1913. The facts respecting these services were also held to be immaterial as affecting the date of the commencement of the term.

With these conclusions I agree, with the qualification expressed in another opinion to your bureau that where a district assessor had rendered no services prior to the date of his appointment, nor subsequently thereto for a considerable period, such an assessor would be entitled to receive compensation only from the date on which he actually began his official services, but this qualification does not affect the principles underlying the conclusion expressed by Mr. Hogan; the official year in both cases was the same, but in the second case the individual assessor did not enter upon his official services until after the commencement of his official term, and accordingly should not receive compensation for the intervening period of time.

The additional facts which are now submitted may be summarized as follows:

While the records of the governor's office show that the first district assessors under the Warnes law were appointed on December 5, 1913, and while you advise me that this was the date upon which the commissions of the several district assessors were delivered to them, yet the governor publicly announced his appointments on November 25, 1913, and signed the commissions of at least some of the district assessors, if not all of them, on December 1, 1913.

The persons raising the present question accept the principles of Mr. Hogan's opinion, to which I have expressed adherence, but insist that under the additional facts to which they call attention, their official terms commenced on December 1, 1913, and they having rendered official services continuously from that date to the time of their removal, they claim compensation from December 1, 1913.

Consideration of the question thus presented starts from the assumption that the date of appointment is the date of the commencement of the term. This is true, although section 138, G. C., provides as follows:

> "A judge of a court of record, state officer, county officer, militia officer and justice of the peace, shall be ineligible to perform any duty pertaining to his office, until he presents to the proper officer or authority a legal certificate of his election or appointment, and receives from the governor a commission to fill such office."

This section bears upon the eligibility of the person to discharge the duties of the office and not upon the commencement of the term of office. The Warnes law does not fix the commencement of the terms of office of district assessors, and it is well-settled that in the absence of such a provision, the term of office commences when the election or appointment is made, regardless of the date of the issuance of a commission, and regardless of the date of the performance of other qualifying acts on the part of the incumbent. Sawyer v. Pollner, 18 C. C., 304; Bushnell v. Koon, 8 C. C., n. s., 163, affirmed 71 O. S., 521, should be distinguished on this point because of the application of a statute especially applicable to justices of the peace, the holding being that by virtue of this statute the term of office of the justice began with the date of his commission, and not with the date of his election. But this case holds that the date upon which bond is given or the oath of office taken, does not determine the commencement of the term, though such date is subsequent to the date of the commission.

The general rule being, than, as stated, the inquiry must be as to when the appointment of the district assessors in 1913 was made. Two official writings exist as evidence of the date of such appointment, but they are not in mutual accord. The commissions are dated December 1st, and the governor's record of the commissions shows their issuance on December 5th.

Aside from the written records and documents, it appears that informal announcement of the governor's choices was made on November 25th, and that the commissions were delivered on December 5th.

Were, then, the appointments made on November 25th, when they were apparently determined upon by the governor in his own mind on December 1st, when he signed the commissions, or on December 5th, when he delivered the commissions, and made a permanent record in his office, showing their issuance?

We may put aside the date upon which the governor announced his appointments as immaterial, because until he had committed some official act he might have changed his mind as to any given appointment. The rule is that an appointment is made when the executive or appointing authority has committed the official act which fixes his choice and places the matter beyond his recall save through the exercise of the power of removal.

In Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 135, it was held, in the language of chief justice Marshal, that:

> "The acts of appointing to office, and commissioning the person appointed, can scarcely be considered as one and the same; since the power to perform them is given in two separate and distinct sections of the constitution. (This language being applicable to the case under consideration because the power of the governor to appoint and to commission is given in two separate sections of the statutes.) * * *.
> "This is an appointment made by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and is evidenced by no act but by the commission itself. In such case, therefore, the commission and the appointment seem inseparable; it being almost impossible to show an appointment otherwise than by proving the existence of a commission; still the commission is not necessarily the appointment, though conclusive evidence of it.
> "But at what stage does it amount to this conclusive evidence?
>
> "The answer to this question seems an obvious one. The appointment being the sole act of the president, must be completely evidenced, when it is shown that he has done everything to be performed by him.
> "Should the commission, instead of being evidence of an appointment, even be considered as constituting the appointment itself; still it would be made when the last act to be done by the president was performed, or, at farthest, when the commission was complete.
> "The last act done by the president is the signature of the commission. He has then acted on the advice and consent of the senate to his own nomination; the time for deliberation has then passed; he has decided. * * * This appointment is evidenced by an open, unequivocal act; and being the last act required from the person making it, necessarily excludes the idea of its being, so far as respects the appointment, an inchoate and incomplete transaction."

In this case the secretary of state had refused to deliver to an appointee a commission that had been signed by the president. The court held that the delivery of the commission was a mere ministerial act, the performance of which could be compelled by mandamus, and as apparent from what has been quoted from the decision, that the signature of the president to the commission is conclusive evidence of the making of an appointment.

The keeping of a record of appointment is provided for by section 144 G. C., as follows:

> "The governor shall cause to be kept in his office the following records:
> * * * * * *
> "2. An appointment record in which shall be entered the name of each person appointed to an office by the governor * * * the office to which appointed, the date of the appointment, the date of the commission, and of the beginning and expiration of the term * * *."

A question arises as to whether or not, under this statute, the date of the commission is conclusive as to the date of appointment, upon the principles laid down in Marbury v. Madison, supra. It must be admitted, I think, that the official record which the statute requires to be kept is evidence of the date of a given appointment. The statute was enacted for this purpose. Yet the record therein provided for is, at best, but secondary evidence, and an entry thereon does not constitute an appointment, but only a memorandum showing that an appointment has been made, and when it was made. I am of the opinion that where better evidence of a fact required to be recorded in the governor's office exists, it must be given controlling weight if inconsistent with the record. For example, the same secton provides for a record of restorations, in which is to be entered the "name of each convict to whom the governor has issued a certificate evidencing the restoration of the rights and privileges forfeited by his conviction, the date of the certificate, of what crime, in what county, and at what term of court he was convicted, and the term of his sentence." The date of the restoration of the convict to his rights and privileges might become material in a given case, and in that event it seems clear that the best evidence thereof would be the date of the certificate, as shown on the face of the certificate itself, and not the date of the certificate, as entered upon the record in the governor's office.

Similarly, in the case now under consideration, I am of the opinion that the date of the commission is better evidence of the date of appointment than the record of appointments required to be kept by the governor; for the one is really a written act showing an executive determination, while the other is merely a secondary record of that act showing that the determination has been made.

The date of the delivery of the commission being absolutely immaterial for the reason as decided in Marbury v. Madison, supra, that delivery is a mere ministerial act and no part of the act of appointment, I am of the opinion, for the reasons above stated, that the date of the commission of a district assessor, appointed in 1913, is conclusive as to the date of his appointment; and where, as in the specific case which I have been asked to consider, the appointee qualified immediately upon notice of his appointment and performed services from the date of his appointment, he is entitled to receive compensation for his entire official term, beginning on the first day thereof, which is the day of his appointment.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BOARD OF EDUCATION—CANNOT BE COMPELLED TO FURNISH SCHOOL BOOKS FREE OF CHARGE TO PUPILS OF PAROCHIAL SCHOOL—BOARD AUTHORIZED TO PURCHASE ONLY TEXT BOOKS ADOPTED BY BOARD.

The board of education of a school district cannot be compelled to furnish school books free of charge to pupils of a parochial school. Board authorized to purchase only text books adopted by board.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 3, 1915.

HON. GEORGE THORNBURG, Prosecuting Attorney, St. Clairsville, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—In your letter of March 16th you requested my opinion, as follows:

"The board of education of Colerain township in Belmont county have asked me to secure an opinion from you on the following:

"They want to know whether a township school board are compelled to furnish school books for parochial schools. In this county a number of foreign children attend the catholic schools and the priest demands books furnished to children whose parents are unable to pay for them.

"In some of these schools I am informed teachers are employed who do not hold a county teacher's certificate. If you answer that the board must furnish books for such schools, must the teacher in such schools hold a county certificate or its equivalent?"

Section 7739, G. C., provides:

"Each board of education may furnish, free of charge, school books, necessary to enable the parent or guardian, without expense therefor, to comply with the requirements of this chapter (relating to schools and attendance), to be paid for out of the contingent fund at its disposal. Such levy each year, in addition if necessary to that otherwise authorized, as may be necessary to furnish such school books free of charge to all the pupils attending the public schools, is hereby authorized. But pupils wholly or in part supplied with necessary school books shall be supplied only as other or new books are needed. All school books furnished as herein provided, shall be the property of the district, and loaned to the pupils on such terms and conditions as the board prescribes."

Section 7763, G. C., as amended, 104 O. L., 232, provides:

"Every parent, guardian or other person having charge of any child between the ages of eight and fifteen years of age, if a male, and sixteen years of age, if a female, must send such child to a public, private or parochial school, for the full time that the school attended is in session, which shall in no case be for less than twenty-eight weeks. Such attendance must begin within the first week of the school term, unless the child is excused therefrom by the superintendent of the public schools, or by the principal of the private or parochial school, upon satisfactory showing either that the bodily or mental condition of the child does not permit of its attendance at school, or that the child is being instructed at home by a person qualified, in the opinion of such superintendent or clerk, as the case may be, to teach the branches named in the next preceding section."

This statute, within the limits therein prescribed, makes school attendance compulsory.

Section 7739, G. C., was formerly known as section 4026 of the Revised Statutes, as found in Bates' Annotated Ohio Statutes in the chapter relating to "schools and attendance enforced" under the head of "compulsory education."

Section 7763, G. C., as found in the chapter relating to compulsory education, was formerly a part of section 4022-1 of the Revised Statutes, as found in Bates' Annotated Statutes in the same chapter, and under the same head as section 4026, R. S.

It seems clear that the chapter as above referred to in section 7739, G. C., means the chapter relating to schools and attendance taken in connection with the chapter relating to compulsory education.

You will observe that the furnishing of free school books under the above provision of section 7739, G. C., is optional with the board of education of a school district. The authority of the board of education, in levying a tax for this purpose, is limited by the provision that such board is authorized to make an annual levy in addition to the levy otherwise authorized for contingent purposes "as may be necessary to furnish books free of charge to all the pupils attending the public schools."

A parochial school is not a public school and is not subject to all the requirements of the statutes governing public schools. In the instance to which you call my attention, a teacher in a parochial school is not required to hold a teacher's certificate from the state board or county board of school examiners. The provisions of the statute governing the selection and use of text books for the public schools as found in section 7709, et seq., of the General Code, do not apply to the text books used in private or parochial schools.

Under the provisions of section 7644, G. C., it is made the duty of each board of education "to establish a sufficient number of elementary schools, and provide for the free education of the youth of school age under its control at such places as will be most convenient for the largest number thereof."

I am not unmindful of the provisions of section 7777, G. C., which are as follows:

> "When a truant officer is satisfied that a child, compelled to attend school by the provisions of this chapter, is unable to do so because absolutely required to work at home or elsewhere in order to support itself or help to support or care for others legally entitled to its services who are unable to support or care for themselves, such officer must report the case to the president of the board of education. Thereupon he shall furnish text books free of charge, and such other relief as may be necessary to enable the child to attend school for the time each year required by law. The expenses incident to furnishing books and relief must be paid from the contingent funds of the school district. Such child shall not be considered or declared a pauper by reason of the acceptance of the relief herein provided for. If the child, or its parent or guardian, refuses or neglects to take advantage of the provisions thus made for its instruction, it may be committed to a children's home or a juvenile reformatory, as provided for in the next three preceding sections."

While the provisions of this section make it the duty of the president of the board of education of a school district, under the conditions and within the limitations therein, prescribed, to furnish free text books and such other relief as is necessary to enable a child to attend school for the time each year required by law, it does not follow that the child must be furnished with the text books prescribed by the principal of a private or parochial school.

The limitations on the provisions of this statute must be determined in the light of the provisions of all the statutes relating to schools and attendance and to compulsory education.

The board of education of a school district, under authority of section 7739, G. C., may furnish text books, free of charge, to enable a parent or guardian to comply with the requirements of section 7763, G. C., as amended in 104 O. L., 232, and other sections of the General Code relating to compulsory school attendance, or, within the limitations prescribed by section 7777, G. C., it is the duty of the board of education to furnish a child text books, free of charge, and such other relief as may be necessary to enable such child to comply with said statutes.

The provision of section 7763, G. C., as amended, within the limitations therein prescribed, permits a parent or guardian to send a child to a private or parochial school, but in case such parent or guardian is not able or does not choose to do this, said provision compels the attendance of such child at a public school, and, for the purpose of making compliance with this mandatory provision possible, it is the duty of the board of education of a school district, within the limitations prescribed by section 7777, G. C., to furnish free text books to a child and such other relief as may be necessary to enable said child to comply with said prevision, or said board of education, under authority of section 7739, G. C., may furnish free text books to a child to enable its parents or guardian to comply with said provision, or said board of education may, in its discretion, furnish text books, free of charge, to all the pupils attending the public school of the district.

Under section 7709 to 7720, G. C., boards of education may purchase such books only as are prescribed by "the state commissioner of common schools" (now the superintendent of public instruction). Free text books when furnished are only loaned and remain the property of the board of education.

Relying to your question I am of the opinion that the board of education of a school district cannot be compelled to furnish school books, free of charge, to pupils attending a parochial school within said district, nor is such board of education authorized to purchase any text books except those lawfully adopted by said board.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

ELECTION—INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM—MUNICIPAL CORPORATION—SUBMISSION OF TWELVE QUESTIONS ON BOND ISSUES MAY BE MADE UPON ONE BALLOT—QUESTIONS PROPOSED BY INITIATIVE PETITION UPON ONE BALLOT.

More than one question, which may be properly submitted to a vote of the people at the same election, may be placed on one ballot.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 3, 1915.

HON. CHARLES Q. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—I acknowledge receipt of yours under date of April 16, 1915, submitting for an opinion upon the following:

> "There was filed April 10, 1915, by the clerk of the city council with this board, twelve separate resolutions, each resolution providing for the issue of bonds in certain amount for a certain municipal improvement. All to be voted on at a special election set for May 11, 1915. Shall these twelve resolutions be submitted separately on one ballot or shall they be submitted on twelve separate ballots?
> "The well water committee have filed three separate petitions. Shall these three propositions be submitted separately on one ballot or shall they be submitted on three separate ballots?

Each of the foregoing questions involve a construction of section 5020, G. C., which is as follows:

> "When the approval of a question, other than a constitutional amendment, is to be submitted to a vote, such question shall be printed on a separate ballot and deposited in a separate ballot box, to be presided over by the same judges and clerks of election."

By the act of May 2, 1902, (95 O. L., 352), it was provided that a question of the adoption of a constitutional amendment might, under the proper action of a party convention, be placed upon a party ticket on the ballot upon which was printed the names of the candidates for office. It may be further noted that there was then no authority for placing upon the ballot containing the names of candidates for office, any other matter or question submitted to a vote of the people, and that the provisions of this act was in effect at the time of the passage of the act of April 23, 1904, (97 O. L., 241), in section 18, of which is found the following provision:

> "Whenever the approval of any question other than a constitutional amendment is to be submitted to a vote of the people, such questions shall be printed on a separate ballot and deposited in a separate ballot box to be presided over by the same judges and clerks."

Further examination of section 18 of this act will disclose that the two paragraphs thereof, preceding the provision above quoted, refer solely to the form and arrangement of the ballot with reference to the names of candidates for office and party tickets thereon. So that from the context of the whole section, when it is borne in mind that nothing other than the names of candidates and constitutional amendments might then be placed upon the ballot containing party tickets, it is fairly inferable that the meaning of the phrase "separate ballot" is a ballot separate from that on which appears such party tickets rather than a ballot separate from that on which any other question is presented.

This view is strengthened when it is observed that in the original enactment of section 5020, G. C. (97 O. L., 231), the plural form is used in the provision that "such questions shal be printed on a separate ballot" clearly indicating the intent of the legislature, not that each question should be upon a ballot separate from all other questions, but that all such questions be placed upon one ballot separate from that exclusively referred to in the preceding provision of that section.

Indeed, this seems clearly to have been the legislative intent in the original enactment, and so slight are the changes of the original provisions as carried into the General Code, it will not be presumed without some apparent reason therefor that any modification of the legal effect thereof was contemplated.

Your second question refers to two measures or resolutions and an ordinance proposed by initiative petition, and you inquire of all these may be submitted on one ballot.

If the subject-matter of such resolutions and ordinance be such as may be controlled by legislative action of the municipality, they are then within the provisions of article II, section 1f of the constitution, and section 4227-1, G. C. (104 O. L., 238), and may be proposed by initiative petition. The same reasons and therefore the same rule would then apply to these questions as to those referred to in your first inquiry.

To answer your questions more specifically, I am therefore of the opinion that the submission of the twelve questions of bond issue referred to in your first question, may be made upon one ballot, and that the three questions proposed by petition may be submitted upon one ballot.

If all these questions are to be submitted at the same election, there is little, if any, doubt that they may all be placed upon the same ballot, but since that might tend to result in a confusion of many electors, I advise that the measures and ordinance proposed by petition be placed upon one ballot, and that the twelve questions of bond issue be placed upon another.

The question of the validity of the bonds proposed to be issued is not submitted nor are facts sufficient for its determination stated, and is not, therefore, here considered.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

REQUISITION—EXPENSES OF OFFICER RETURNING FROM ANOTHER STATE WITHOUT REQUISITION, A PERSON UNDER INDICTMENT —PAYABLE UNDER SECTION 3015, G. C.

The expenses of an officer in returning from another state, without requisition, a person under indictment, are payable under section 3015, G. C., and not under section 3004, G. C.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 4, 1915.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS, Prosecuting Attorney, Elyria, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under date of April 19th, you inquire as follows:

"Our grand jury recently indicted one Edward L. Conn for non-support of minor children. In the opinion of this office it was an aggravated case, and after much trouble, we located the defendant at Indiana Harbor, Indiana.

"At my request, the sheriff sent one of the deputies, Mr. Edward Bark, who, however, is not a salaried official, and Mr. Bark was able to induce Conn to return without the necessity of extradition papers, and I may add in this connection, that Mr. Bark has in many instances succeeded in inducing defendants to return without extradition papers, and we seldom secure them when he is the officer sent for the felon.

"Mr. Bark expended in railroad fare and necessary expenses of himself and the prisoner, approximately $50.00. I desire to know,

"First: Whether this is a proper charge to pay out of my fund provided by section 3004?

"Second: Whether this is one of the bills which may be allowed by the commissioners under section 2491?

"I would appreciate your opinion at your earliest convenience."

Section 2491, General Code, to which you refer, reads as follows:

"Section 2491. When any person charged with a felony has fled to any other state, territory or country, and the governor has issued a requisition for such person, or has requested the president of the United States to issue extradition papers, the commissioners may pay from the county treasury to the agent designated in such requisition or request to execute them, all necessary expenses of pursuing and returning such person so charged, or so much thereof as to them seems just."

It is my opinion that under said section, it is necessary that a requisition shall issue before the commissioners may pay anything thereunder.

The fund which section 3004, General Code, allows to the prosecuting attorney in furtherance of justice is "to provide for expenses which may be incurred by him in the performance of his official duties and in furtherance of justice, not otherwise provided for."

Section 3015, General Code, provides as follows:

"Section 3015. The county commissioners may allow and pay the necessary expense incurred by an officer in the pursuit of a person charged with felony, who has fled the country."

The person sent, as stated by you in your inquiry, was a deputy sheriff—therefore, an officer, and I am of the opinion that section 3015, General Code, will cover the matter. Section 3004 will not, for the reason that under the provision of section 3015, the expenses are otherwise provided for.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Attorney General.

BANK EXAMINER—CAN BE APPOINTED TO SERVE IN LIQUIDATION OF A BANK AT A DIFFERENT SALARY—CAN BE APPOINTED SPECIAL DEPUTY SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS IN LIQUIDATION OF BANKS—DOES NOT NULLIFY APPOINTMENT AS BANK EXAMINER—COMMON PLEAS COURT'S FAILURE TO PAY SALARIES AND EXPENSES OF PERSONS EMPLOYED IN LIQUIDATION DOES NOT PERMIT THEM TO BE PAID FROM STATE TREASURY —LIQUIDATING AGENT REQUIRED TO OBTAIN ORDER OF COURT BEFORE HE SELLS REAL OR PERSONAL PROPERTY OR SELLS OR COMPOUNDS DOUBTFUL DEBTS.

1. A bank examiner and office clerk appointed under section 712, G. C., salary fixed under section 713, G. C., can be appointed to serve in liquidation of a bank by superintendent of banks, at a different salary than received in position to which appointed under section 712, G. C.

2. A bank examiner appointed under section 712, G. C., salary fixed under section 713, G. C., can be appointed special deputy superintendent of banks in liquidation of a bank and receive a different salary than received as bank examiner.

3. If a bank examiner is appointed a special deputy superintendent, it does not necessarily nullify his appointment as bank examiner, but the action of the superintendent of banks in appointing a bank examiner as special deputy superintendent may be construed as granting a leave of absence to the person holding the position of bank examiner, from such position during the period he serves as special deputy superintendent.

4. If the common pleas court fails to allow salary and expenses of persons employed in the liquidation of a bank, the amount rejected may not be paid out of the state treasury, and the person receiving the same should res ore it to the state.

5. If a liquidating agent sells real or personal property, or sells or compounds doubtful debts without an order of the court first obtained, the act of so selling or compounding is a nullity.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 4, 1915.

HON. A. V. DONAHEY, Auditor of State, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR:—Under recent date, you submitted several questions to me for opinion, which said questions I shall consider in the order in which they are propounded.

You first inquire:

> "May a bank examiner and an office clerk, appointed under the provisions of section 712, G. C., and his salary fixed under the provisions of section 713, G. C., be assigned to duty in a bank under process of liquidation, at a greater salary than that fixed under section 713, G. C?"

The provisions of law that govern the appointment of both a bank examiner and an office clerk are contained in section 712, G. C., referred to by you in your inquiry.

Section 712, G. C. (103 O. L., 384), provides in part as follows:

> "With the approval of the governor, the superintendent of banks may employ, from time to time, the necessary clerks, and examiners to assist in the discharge of the duties imposed upon him by law. * "

The salaries of such clerks and examiners are provided for in section 713, G. C. referred to by you in your inquiry.

Section 713, G. C., provides as follows:

> "The superintendent of banks shall fix the salaries of the deputies, assistants, clerks and examiners at such rates per annum as the governor approves. Upon vouchers approved by the superintendent of banks, such salaries shall be paid monthly by the teeasurer of state upon the warrant of the auditor of state."

The positions of both the bank examiners and the clerks are, in contemplation of law, continuous positions and not temporary positions. This is clearly deducible from the fact that the law uses the word "salaries;" that it refers to the fact that they are to be at such rates per annum as the governor approves, and the fact that they are to be paid monthly.

There is no doubt that the question of clerk in the department of the superintendent of banks is within the classified service of the state civil service; and also no doubt that bank examiners in the department of superintendent of banks are within the classified service of the state civil service, unless the civil service commission should determine that it is impracticable to determine their merit and fitness by competitive examination. On inquiry, I have ascertained that the state civil service commission has not so determined. We may, therefore, proceed on the basis that neither a bank examiner nor a clerk in the office of the superintendent of banks is in the unclassified service of the state civil service.

Section 742, G. C., provides that whenever it is provided that the superintendent of banks may take possession of the property and business of a banking corporation, doing business under the provisions of the banking laws of this state, to liquidate its affairs, the superintendent of banks shall take possession of and administer the assets of such bank as is provided in the subsequent sections.

Section 742-4, G. C., provides as follows:

> "The expenses incurred by the superintendent of banks in the liquidation of any bank in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall include the expenses of deputy or assistants, clerks and examiners employed in such liquidation, together with reasonable attorney fees for counsel employed by said superintendent of banks in the course of such liquidation. Such compensation of counsel, of deputies or assistants, clerks and examiners in the liquidation of any corporation, company, society or association, and all expenses of supervision and liquidation shall be fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of such corporation, company, society or association was located, on notice to such corporation, company, society or association. The expense of such liquidation shall be paid out of the property of such corporation, company, society or association in the hands of said superintendent of banks, and such expenses shall be a valid charge against the property in the hands of said superintendent of banks and shall be paid first, in the order of priority."

From the above section it is to be seen, that while the superintendent of banks, in the liquidation of a bank, may employ deputies or assistants, clerks and examiners, and pay their compensation, yet the fixing of such compensation by such superintendent is subject to the approval of the common pleas court of the county in which the office of the bank is located, and payable out of the property of such bank.

If the position held under appointment by the superintendent of banks in the liquidation of a bank is within the classified service of the civil service, then the superintendent of banks would not be authorized to appoint bank examiners and office clerks to positions in the liquidation of a bank, unless such person were transferred under the provisions of section 486-16, G. C. (103 O. L., 706), which provides in part as follows:

> "With the consent of the commission, a person holding an office or position in the classified service may be transferred to a similar office or position in another office, department or institution having the same pay and similar duties; but no transfer shall be so made from an office or position in one class to an office or position in another class, nor shall a person be transferred to an office or position for original entrance to which there is required by this act, or the rules adopted pursuant thereto, an examination involving essential tests or qualifications or carrying a salary different from or higher than those required for original entrance to an office or position held by such person. * * *" which, as I understand in the given case, has not been done.

The question after all, to be determined is, as to whether or not a position held under the provisions of section 742-4, by appointment by the superintendent of banks, the compensation for which is to be fixed by him, subject to the approval of the common pleas court, can be considered as within the purview of the state civil service act.

It is true that section 486-1 defines "civil service" as follows:

> "The term 'civil service' includes all officers and positions of trust or employment * * * in the service of the state * * *."
> "The 'state service' shall include all offices in the service of state * *."

Said section 486-1 likewise defines the term "employe" as follows:

> "The term 'employe' * * * signifies any person holding a position subject to appointment, removal, promotion, or reduction by an appointing officer."

There is no doubt that a bank examiner or an office clerk who has been appointed to assist the superintendent of banks in the liquidation of a bank would come within the definition of the term "employe" as so generally defined in the above quotation. But the query arises as to whether or not the service of such persons would be considered as the "service of the state."

Section 486-21 provides in part as follows:

> "After the expiration of twelve months from the taking effect of this act (the civil service act), it shall be unlawful for the auditor of state * * * to draw, sign or issue, or authorize the drawing, signing or issuing of any warrant on the treasurer * * * of the state * * * to pay any salary or compensation to any officer, clerk, employe, or other person in the classified service unless * * * a payroll * * * containing the name of each person to be paid, shall bear the certificate of the state civil service commission * * *."

The foregoing provision of the civil service act is the principal provision of said act for the enforcement of the law.

Such provision likewise gives to the civil service commission the power to check up the various departments of the state in order to see whether or not the provisions of the civil service act are being carried out. The fact that the superintendent of banks is required to receive the approval of the common pleas court, and upon such approval may pay his appointees from the assets of the bank, does not in any way give a check to the civil service commission to see whether or not the civil service act of Ohio is being carried out in such liquidation.

In the case in question, the persons serving in the liquidation of a given bank do not look to the state for their compensation, since it is fixed by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court, and paid out of the assets of the bank. There is no state money paid to them for their services.

It therefore, seems to me, that the employes in the liquidating department of a bank, since they are paid from the assets of the bank itself, directly by the superintendent of banks, subject to the approval of the common pleas court, are not to be considered within the purview of the civil service act.

The only definition that I can find given to "civil service" is found in Hope et al. v. New Orleans et al., 106 La., 345, cited with approval in 7 cyc. 178, wherein the court says, at page 348:

> "Civil Service, in its enlarged sense, means all service rendered to and paid for by the state, the nation, or by political subdivisions thereof, other than that pertaining to naval and military affairs."

Section I, of chapter 648, of the laws of 1887, of the state of New York, gives a preference in employment to honorably discharged Union soldiers "in every public department, and upon all public works of the state of New York, and of the cities, towns and villages thereof."

In the case of People ex rel. Uhrie v. Gilroy, commissioner of public works of the city of New York, 60 Hun. 507, the facts are: That a certain Uhrie was an honorably discharged veteran of the war of the rebellion; on May 31, 1888, he receivd an appointment in writing from the commissioner of public works, as follows, viz.: "You are hereby appointed inspector on the work of laying mains of the Standard Gas Light Company, by whom you will be paid at the rate of $100.00 per month." On January 26, 1889, he was relieved from service by the following notice in writing: "You are hereby notified that your services as inspector on the work of the Standard Gas Light Company will not be required after this date."

The syllabus of the case is as follows:

> "Section 1, of chapter 464, of the laws of 1887, gives a preference in employment to honorably discharged union soldiers 'in every public department and upon all public works of the state of New York, and of the cities, towns and villages thereof.'
> "Such a soldier was by a written notice appointed by the acting commissioner of public works of the city of New York, inspector on the works of laying mains of the Standard Gas Light Company in said city, which notice stated that the appointee would be paid by said company. He was subsequently discharged. Held, that the appointee was not employed in the general service of the 'department of public works;' that his employment was limited to a particular purpose and to a special work; that the statute did not require, in such a case, that the appointee should receive continuous employment in the department after the special purpose for which he was employed had ended, and that the commissioner was not required to retain him."

While the above case is not exactly in point in the question under consideration, nevertheless the court holds that an appointment can be made by an official of the state for a particular purpose, the pay for which is to be made out of funds other than public funds, and that he will not in holding such a position be considered as within public employment.

In the same manner do I believe that the employes of the superintendent of banks, in the liquidation of a bank, although they are appointed by the superintendent of banks, a state officer, nevertheless, since their compensation is to be paid out of the assets of the bank, and that said compensation is subject to the approval of the common pleas court, are not within the purview of the civil service act.
