Dear Skechers USA, Inc., Retail Business Partner:

In response to a lawsuit by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and separate lawsuits brought by a group of state attorneys general, Skechers has agreed to stop making certain claims for the following footwear products: Shape-ups, the Resistance Runner, Toners, and Tone-ups.

Although we dispute the charges, to settle the FTC's and the states' cases against us, Skechers has agreed to stop using advertising or promotional materials claiming that any of our footwear products can:

- Improve or increase muscle tone and muscle strength;
- Improve or increase overall circulation or aerobic conditioning;
- Result in increased weight loss or loss of body fat; and/or;
- Result in improvement or reduction in body composition.

In addition to the above, Skechers has agreed to stop using advertising or promotional materials claiming that the Resistance Runner improves or increases muscle activation.

Please take these three steps immediately:

- (1) If you have materials on display (POS, posters, etc.) that include any of these claims, please remove them.
- (2) Where these claims appear on boxes, please cover them with stickers that Skechers will provide.
- (3) If inserts in boxes or footwear hangtags include any of these claims, please remove them.

We are actively pursuing additional studies in the marketplace. We look forward to sharing these details with you as they become available.

You can find out more about the settlement at www.ftc.gov. Please call [Insert name and telephone numbers of the responsible Skechers USA, Inc., Attorney or Officer.] if you have any questions.

Skechers thanks you for your business and greatly appreciates your cooperation in this matter.

Sincerely,

Skechers USA, Inc.
